The Orange Free State, an independent Dutch Republic, situated immediately south of the Transvaal, west of Natal, and north of the eastern portion of the Cape Colony, has enjoyed its political freedom since 1854. Its inhabitants, numbering about fifty thousand, are mostly Boers, or pastoral farmers, of the same class and race as those of the Transvaal; and its form of government is precisely similar to that which the Transvaal, with a like population, constitutionally possessed from 1852 to 1877. There is a President, elected every five years, assisted by a small Executive Council, a Volksraad or Assembly, to pass the laws, and local institutions of the same type. Mr. Martin Wessel Pretorius, of the Transvaal, was at one time President of the Orange Free State, and there was some idea of a political union between the two neighbouring commonwealths. But this project was not carried into effect. In November, 1863, Mr. John Henry Brand, a barrister practising at Capetown, of English education, but of Dutch family, being the son of Sir Henry Brand, who held a high judicial office in the Cape Colony, was elected by the Orange Free State citizens to be their President. We recollect that, in the following January, when Mr. Brand passed by Fauresmith and Philippolis, on his way to take up the government at Bloemfontein, he was greeted by the English residents, as well as by the Dutch, with a hearty welcome. He there performed the ceremony of laying the foundation-stone of an English church; and the clergyman, the Rev. Mr. Clulee, sent us a sketch of this interesting scene, which appeared in the Illustrated London News of June 10, 1864. Mr. Brand was sworn in at Bloemfontein on Feb. 2 of that year, since which date he has been thrice re-elected President; and the Orange Free State has made greater progress, we believe, in all that belongs to good government, than any other part of South Africa. Its finances have been prudently managed; and its prosperity would have become still more remarkable but that it has been unjustly deprived of the Diamond-Fields (West Griqualand), and has been subjected to exorbitant charges upon its imports and exports through Port Elizabeth, in the Cape Colony. President Brand visited England five or six years ago, when he was invited by Lord Carnarvon to attend the Conference of South African delegates upon the proposal for a Confederation. Whatever may have been his own views and wishes upon that question, he found himself bound to respect the determination of the Volksraad, which positively declined to enter into the projected union, feeling that its advantages would not compensate for the loss of political independence. The Cape Colony itself showed little desire to adopt the scheme, in the shape which it then bore, and its revival, at a later date, has not proved more successful. Hence the Colonial Office now forbears to urge its acceptance upon the different South African communities; but it may perhaps be spontaneously taken up by some of them at a more convenient time. Meanwhile, it is the special merit of President Brand to have played the part of peacemaker, with happy success, between her Majesty's Government and the Transvaal.

BURNING OF A THEATRE AT NICE.

A terrible disaster, which has caused the loss of nearly a hundred lives, took place at Nice on the Wednesday night of last week. The Municipal Theatre, at the opera representation of "Lucia di Lammermoor," by a special company of performers from Italy, with Signora Bianca Donadio for "prima donna," was occupied by a large audience. It was the first day of the regatta at Nice, which had brought a great many visitors to the town, including some French naval officers of the Mediterranean Squadron, then lying at Villafranca. The boxes and stalls, however, were not yet filled, though the pit and galleries were crowded, at the time when the fire broke out, which was a few minutes before eight o'clock, when the performance should have begun. It was caused by an explosion of gas at the back of the stage. All the lights were suddenly extinguished, and left the house in darkness. The people in the pit and boxes were able to get away; but in the upper galleries, which had no way out but down several flights of narrow winding stairs and through a small passage, there was a frightful panic and crush. Most of the helpless victims there were suffocated by the thick smoke; others were thrown down and trampled upon. It is said that not above ten or a dozen of these in the upper gallery escaped alive. Sixty-three dead bodies were got out of the ruins next day, but many more are believed to have perished. The dead were taken at first to the Church of St. Francis de Paul, and were afterwards removed to the Château, for public inspection and identification. Among them, we regret to hear, are the son and two daughters of Mr. David Kennedy, of Edinburgh, the well-known Scottish vocalist. Their names are James Kennedy, twenty-three years of age; Kate Kennedy, nineteen; and Lizzie Kennedy, seventeen. They were studying at Nice under Signor Lamperti, and were in the theatre at the time of the explosion. They were all of great promise as artists, and the family is deservedly popular both in this country and in the colonies. Signora Bianca Donadio escaped from her dressing-room, as did also most of the opera company, and M. Strakosch, the manager; but the basso, Signor Cottoni, was suffocated, and another of the leading male singers. The fire was extinguished about midnight; the town fire-brigade were assisted by soldiers of a French regiment, and by a party of French sailors with the naval fire-engines from the squadron at Villafranca. We present three Illustrations of this subject—a view of the theatre as it appeared before the fire; one of the actual conflagration, from a sketch taken in the street at the time; and one of the public funeral procession conveying some of the dead to the cemetery, on Friday week. The Municipal Theatre of Nice was built many years ago, when that town belonged to the Kingdom of Sardinia, before its annexation to the French Empire in 1859. It received a yearly grant of £4000 from the civic municipality of Nice. The interior was constructed entirely of wood, and only the outer walls are left. The front of the building faced the Church of St. Francis de Paul, in the street of that name, but one end extended to the Quai de Midi.

THE SILENT MEMBER.

The severe illness of the Earl of Beaconsfield, regretted by political friends and opponents alike, has been particularly felt by his colleagues in the House of Lords. Whilst the front Opposition bench has not seemed itself without the noble Earl, his absence has also deprived the Ministerial bench of some vivacity; and business, lacking the leaven of Lord Beaconsfield's ironic wit, has been humdrum enough. Questions brought uppermost by the late Boer War in the Transvaal, such as the protection of loyal Boers, the massacre of the men of the 94th at Bronker's Spruit, and the conflict at Potchefstroom the day peace was concluded, have occupied the attention of their Lordships for a few minutes. To the credit of noble Lords must it be put that they sat on Saturday, the Earl of Redesdale presiding, to read the first time the No. 2 Consolidated Fund Bill, Royal Assent to which was signified on Tuesday; with a few other measures. But for active legislation their Lordships are still waiting upon the rather improvident providence which sits enthroned in the Lower House.

The House of Commons has experienced that lull which fitly precedes the storm of rhetoric in store for it next week. Some Opposition laughter was hardly to be restrained when the Ministerial announcement was made that Major-General Sir Frederick Roberts would arrive at the Cape only to find a telegram recalling him. But the most important subject discussed has been the vexed question of the withdrawal from Candahar. The retention of this Afghan stronghold would naturally have justified to a certain extent the Afghan policy of the late Government. Hence the anxiety of Mr. E. Stanhope, one of the most promising juniors of the Conservative Government, to maintain with characteristic confidence and readiness, "That, in the opinion of this House, the withdrawal of troops from Southern Afghanistan in the present critical state of affairs in the country will not be conducive to the true and permanent interests of India." Mr. Stanhope introduced his resolution on the 24th ult.; and used Russian aggression in Asia as his chief argument in favour of holding Candahar. In debating ability, the late Under-Secretary for India met his equal in Sir Charles Dilke. The exceptionally capable Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs finds time, it will be observed from the Sketch, to array himself in evening dress sometimes, probably to undergo the penalty of dining out incumbent on each holder of his office. Sir Charles has been singularly successful as the representative of the Foreign Office in the Commons. His Ministerial answers are invariably distinguished by commendable clearness and a thorough grasp of the question put to him. By his reply to Mr. Stanhope, Sir Charles proved that he has not lost a jot of the argumentative power he acquired in his guerrilla days whilst in Opposition below the gangway, his strongest point in responding to the Russophobist line of reasoning being the declaration that the very first act of the new Emperor was to put a stop to the operations of General Scobeleff, and recall that brilliant Commander to St. Petersburg. In fine, the ultra-Radical member for Chelsea has been transformed into an official Whig, under the velvety manipulation of Earl Granville. The first night of the debate was also notable for the promising speech of Mr. H. S. Northcote in favour of the motion, and for the admirably bright and pointed maiden speech of the Prime Minister's youngest son. Mr. Herbert Gladstone has bided his time to some purpose. The junior member for Leeds was wont when he first entered the House to sit (as delineated) with folded arms immediately behind his father, now listening with justifiable pride to the resonant periods of Mr. Gladstone, anon absently directing his gazelle-like eyes to the illuminated roof when some member of the Opposition, greatly daring, was essaying to refute the Prime Minister's conclusions. When his hour at length arrived, Mr. Herbert Gladstone could not well say anything fresh on the well-thrashed theme; but what he had to say was delivered in so lively and able a manner as to richly merit the Ministerial cheers that greeted him. To a totally opposite school belongs Mr. Bourke, here represented as he sits complacently on the front Opposition bench, ready to propound a pungent query to his colleague, Sir Charles Dilke, whom he has not hitherto caught asleep, he himself must admit. Mr. Bourke is one of the dry, official type of officials. Without dwelling on the right hon. member's arid recapitulation of the too-familiar points of the Candahar question, or upon the abler addresses of Lord George Hamilton, Mr. Fawcett, the Marquis of Hartington, and Sir Stafford Northcote, I may with satisfaction point to the figures of the division—by which Mr. Stanhope's motion was negatived by 336 to 216 votes—as the answer of the country to the directly contrary decision of the House of Lords.

Mr. Mundella, Vice-President of the Council (limned as he delights to comport himself in the Lobby), may be regarded as the most emphatically Radical member of the Administration. It is refreshing to note that he continues to have a good opinion of himself and of his own peculiar political views; and that his robust oratory, exercised on such opposite subjects as School Board Education and the Cattle Plague, still rouses the sympathy of Mr. Peter Rylands and his neighbours below the gangway.

Mr. Osborne Morgan, having opened the churchyards to the public generally, and thus interred a grave subject, has now been the medium of abolishing "the cat" in the Army. The lash was doomed on Monday, when, after an interesting discussion, the Army Discipline Bill was read the second time. Afterwards, Mr. Harcourt's motion, declaring it expedient to defray the expenses for highway roads "from other sources than county rates," was defeated by the narrow majority of 14—159 to 145; but this amendment by Mr. J. W. Pease was agreed to:—"That it is expedient to amend the Highway Act of 1878, and especially those portions of it which relate to the main roads." On Tuesday, "the silent highway" was the topic of discussion; and the pressure brought to bear against the Thames River Bill induced Mr. Chamberlain to withdraw it, and to promise a Ministerial measure in its place. Later, Mr. Ashton Dilke's motion in favour of the adoption of the decimal system for coinage and weights and measures led Mr. Anderson to propose that a Select Committee should consider the matter; but the proposal, resisted by the Government, was negatived by 108 to 28 votes. Mr. Leatham's resolution against the sale of benefices was so far fruitful that it called up Mr. Gladstone with a promise to offer every facility for the discussion on Mr. Wortley's bill.

The celerity with which English business has been transacted since the subsidence of the Home Rulers' revolt against "coercion" was notably exemplified on Wednesday, when Mr. W. H. James's bill for the Amendment of the Metropolitan Open Spaces Act, and Mr. W. H. Fowler's Municipal Corporations Act Amendment Bill were read the second time, and an ample debate also took place on Mr. Carbutt's measure for the closing of public-houses during election time.

REPORTS OF ELECTION COMMISSIONS.

The Gloucester Commissioners report that corrupt practices extensively prevailed in Gloucester at the election in March, 1880; that Messrs. T. Robinson, C. J. Monk, W. K. Wait, and B. St. J. Ackers were not at the time cognisant of or privy to such corrupt practices; that Messrs. W. K. Wait and B. St. J. Ackers did sanction expenditure for illegal purposes at that election, and that Mr. W. K. Wait did, after becoming cognisant of such corrupt practices at that election, repay money expended therein. Secondly, that corrupt practices did extensively prevail at Gloucester at the election of 1874, and Messrs. C. J. Monk, W. K. Wait, J. J. Powell, and Sir Trevor Lawrence, Bart., were not at the time cognisant of or privy to the said corrupt practices; that Messrs. C. J. Monk and J. J. Powell did sanction expenditure for illegal purposes at that election; that Mr. W. K. Wait did, after becoming cognisant of corrupt practices at that election, repay money expended therein. Thirdly, that corrupt practices did not extensively prevail in Gloucester at the election of 1873. Mr. W. Killigrew Wait is scheduled as a briber in 1874 and 1880. Nineteen hundred and sixteen electors admitted having received bribes to the amount of about £2500 in 1880. The Commissioners suspect about 840 more of having received about £1100, and believe that 2756 were bribed out of 4904 who recorded their votes. About 270 or 280 distributed those bribes. Among those scheduled are three magistrates, three aldermen, fifteen town councillors, five guardians of the poor, one member of the school board, and four solicitors.

After the consideration of the evidence given before the Macclesfield Commissioners, they find that corrupt practices extensively prevailed at the elections in 1865, 1868, 1874, and 1880. They do not find that either Mr. Menton Eaton or James Charles J. Whitehorne, the deputed candidates, were guilty of any corrupt practices at the election of 1880; but they had felt themselves compelled to place in the schedule the names of William Coare Brocklehurst and David Chadwick, the late members for the borough, and of William Mair and John Frederick May, the election agents appointed by the Liberal and Conservative candidates respectively, as having been guilty of bribery at that election. They further stated that, in their opinion, Mr. William Mair and Mr. John Frederick May wilfully furnished to the returning officer untrue statements of the election expenses incurred by or on behalf of the candidates, by whom they were appointed. Of the 2872 persons whose names are included in the schedule four are magistrates and five town councillors.

THE LATE SIR CHARLES REED, M.P.

The death of this valued citizen and useful public man, which is recorded in our Obituary, on another page of this week's Paper, has occasioned much regret, especially among those who feel an interest in different works for the social benefit of the population of London, so diligently served by his manifold personal labours. As Chairman of the London School Board, since the retirement of Lord Lawrence, and previously as Vice-Chairman, he has rendered most important services to the cause of popular education. Sir Charles Reed has been an active member of the House of Commons in two Parliaments (with an interval from 1874 to 1880); he was also a magistrate, and manager of the Ulster estates of the Corporation of London. As President of the Sunday School Union and one of the founders of the Congregational Board of Education and its Training College, he devoted his earnest attention to the furtherance of religious instruction. These and other public efforts, in which he showed a high degree of practical sagacity and sound judgment, as well as unremitting industry, have left their mark, for good, on the state of affairs within the range of his influence, in this great metropolis, where the figure of Sir Charles Reed will certainly be missed. His funeral, on Wednesday last, in the Abney Park Cemetery, was attended by a deputation of the London School Board, and by many gentlemen, amongst whom were the Right Hon. H. Fawcett, M.P., the Right Hon. A. J. Mundella, M.P., Lord Sandon, Mr. S. Morley, M.P., and other members of Parliament. The flag of the Thames Conservancy Board was half-masted, as Sir Charles was one of that body.

BOW BELLS.

It is really time for the Cockney to assert himself. His position in the world's history is, as I believe, unique. The greatest of all cities is the most laughed at; its inhabitants have, it would seem, the least patriotism; they allow the bumpkin to satirise them, and very rarely and feebly attempt a retort.

Look at the sublime and legitimate scorn with which the Parisian treats the Frenchman of the provinces! In comic papers, on the stage, in songs innumerable, he ridicules his accent, his costume, everything that is his; and treats all reprisals with a contempt that perfectly blunts them. As compared with the Londoner, he is doubly in the wrong, yet he comes out doubly triumphant. Your French cockney, when he gets into the country, is really a ludicrous object. He ordinarily goes about dressed in clothes so thoroughly in place on the boulevards that they must be thoroughly out of place elsewhere. He shoots—and for shooting does a sort of stage costume quite unfitted to protect his poor little legs against briars and gorse. He rides—and the very sight of him jogging along with his hands in the air, each very full of rein, ought to be enough to create caricaturists. The Londoner goes into the country "pot-hunting"—winning prizes, at their own sports of running, rowing, or putting weights, from the sturdiest rustics! Yet "Parisian" is taken as a term of praise; "Cockney," as a scornful reproach.

It is the story of the statue of Hon and man. In France the lion has taken his turn at sculpturing, and has naturally represented himself as winner; here, we of the town have allowed our modesty to over-ride the proper dignity of self-esteem. Moreover, we have a sense of humour, and laugh at ourselves—and, unwisely, allow this laughter to be overheard. Thus, to have been born within the sound of Bow bells—to have the keenness, the polish, the toleration, proper to the inhabitants of a great city—these, our true titles to honour, have become signals for the laughter of our inferiors: and we have permitted it!

This is not so elsewhere in England. Look at the preposterous conceit of individual counties—one might, perhaps, say of each individual county! How a Devonshire man brags that he "is Devonshire!"—how he insists on telling you all about the beauty of its moors and its girls, the unrivalled properties of its cream, and its Chancellor of the Exchequer! Considering Devon scenery and women, one might be on the point of admitting that there was something in it—when, behold! there comes a Norfolk man, with a tale every whit as long! There never was such a town as Norwich, with its "school" of artists (why should painters always be classified like whales?); there was never any philosopher like Sir Thomas Browne, nor anybody at all like Horatio Nelson. And so he tells his tale—very likely a plausible one, but not a bit better than the Yorkshireman's: whose county has at all events the advantage of size, and who insists on quoting the unintelligible fag-end of a story—of which I have never yet heard the beginning—to the effect that "measter's Yorkshire too."

It certainly seems foolish enough to be elated because you were born only half an hour's rail from the birthplace of Nelson; nor is there any particular wisdom in bragging of the large proportion of good-looking women in your neighbourhood, particularly if you are plain. Still, if there is to be any enjoyment got out of these topics, why should Londoners be debarred from their share, and blush rather than boast about their splendid birthplace? In the matter of celebrated natives, only take, as an example, men of letters—go through the list of the greatest poets, philosophers, historians. Nearly every county has one of almost the highest rank; some have two, a very few rise to three. But London the ridiculous, the home of the Cockney, the smoky and unromantic—London has produced its scores or its two dozen of the greatest men: London can easily beat any four or five of the largest counties, with their thousands of square miles and myriads of bragging proverbs!

This is not an empty boast; it can be borne out by facts and figures. Old Athens had not greater names than Milton; Goethe did not shake modern Europe with a greater impetuosity of new strength than Byron, burd of Holles-street. And yet these were Cockneys, and so to be derided!

For the very word is an insult. Does everyone know the foolish derivation popularly given to it? Men say that, somewhere in the middle ages, a Londoner of the purest went to stay at a farmhouse. There, in the evening, he heard a fiery steed neighing to its partner—horses are quite unknown in the Borough, and our cit remarked (they were called "cits" then, or shortly after), "Oh, how that animal is laughing!" My own belief is that he was a wit—as well as a cit—and was jocularly alluding to a "horse-laugh:" a jest which the rustics were too dense to perceive, and they accordingly—after imitating the nobler quadruped—were condescending enough to inform our gentleman that "Horses didn't laugh; they neighed."

On the morrow he was awaked by the early village cock; and we are to suppose that he had been fortunate enough hitherto to escape the ministrations of that bird—for (as the incredible and wholly ridiculous story goes) he mildly remarked to his host "Did you hear that cock neigh?" One can imagine how the rude rustic exploded, and stamped about the place, and choked, and got red in the face, shrieking "Haw, haw, haw! A cock neigh! Ho, ho, ho! Tha 'lt never beat that! Ha, ha, ha!"—with other simple efforts of bucolic wit, of which the staple is merely the rudest possible personalities, shouted in the loudest possible tone.

At all events, the name of "cock neigh" or "cockney" stuck to our Londoner and his race, and even became a sort of generic term for a fool; for Shakespeare mentions a cockney who put eels in the paste alive and cried thereat—also her brother who, in pure kindness to his horse, buttered his hay. Professor Wilson thought he had quite settled a poet like Keats when he had dubbed him Cockney—to which one is inclined to say, "So much the worse for Wilson:" only, unfortunately, at the time people did not think so. In a word, the sharp and witty townsman, who could "chaff" any rustic he encountered, and who, when he got into ten minutes, has allowed himself for centuries to be the butt of the clumsiest, but not therefore the least galling, of waggeries. He has been represented as always small and ill-favoured—only walk down Regent-street, and see how true this is!—as constantly substituting r for w in his conversation: which is far more characteristic of many other dialects—and, most chiefly, of inserting the letter h where it should not be: a crime fiftyfold commoner in Berkshire, Yorkshire, and Nottingham!

Is this to be borne? Let the Londoner retaliate, and insist upon the absurdities of a broad bucolic speech, a clumsy gait, a red face, and the rude and unpolished manner of the shires; let Punch, Fun, and Judy make common cause: and in five years every countryman with a sense of humour will be on his knees to implore the honour of a residence within the mystic circle ministered to by Bow Bells.

SUBSCRIPTION TO THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

AT HOME.

| | |
|---|---|
| Twelve months (including Christmas Number), | £1 9s. 3d. |
| Six months, 14s. | Christmas Half-Year, 15s. 3d. |
| Three months, 7s. | Christmas Quarter, 8s. 3d. |

Copies will be supplied direct from the Office to any part of the United Kingdom and the Channel Islands, for any period, at the rate of 6½d. for each Number, paid in advance.

ABROAD.

The yearly subscription abroad is 30s. 4d. (on thin paper, 22s.), with the following exceptions:—

To Aden, Borneo, Ceylon, India, Java, Labuan, Mozambique Penang, Philippine Islands, Sarawak, Singapore, and Zanzibar, 41s. (thin paper, 34s.)

To the Hawaiian Islands, Madagascar (except St. Mary), and Paraguay, 45s. (on thin paper, 36s. 4d.)

Subscribers are specially advised to order the thick paper edition, the appearance of the engravings in the thin paper copies being greatly injured by the print at the back showing through.

Newspapers for foreign parts must be posted within eight days of the time of publication, irrespective of the departure of the mails.

Subscriptions must be paid in advance, direct to the Publishing Office, 198, Strand, in English money; by cheque crossed the Union Bank of London; or by Post-Office Order, payable at the East Strand Post Office, to George C. Leighton, of 198, Strand, London.

NEW BOOKS RECEIVED.

ALLEN AND CO.
Chili: Sketches of Chili and the Chilians during the War 1879-1880. By R. A. Boyd. Encounters with Wild Beasts. By Parker Gillmore. Illustrated.
A New Basis of Belief in Immortality. By John S. Farmer. Second Edition.

BALLIERE AND CO.
Life on the Gold Coast. By Dr. Charles A. Gordon, C.B. Second Thousand.
Feeding and Feeding Parties: Specially Considered. By Dr. Forbes Winslow.

BEMROSE AND SONS.
Ned Fenn's Experiences as a Scrap-Book. Enlarged. Ninth Edition.

BLACKWOOD AND SONS.
The Life of Colin Campbell, Lord Clyde. Illustrated by Extracts from his Diary and Correspondence. By Lieut.-General Shadwell, C.B. 2 vols. Portrait and Maps.
Foreign Classics for English Readers. Corneille and Racine. By H. M. Trollope.

CHAPPO AND WINDUS.
Popular Romances of the West of England; or, the Drolls, Traditions, and Superstitions of Old Cornwall. Collected by Robert Hunt. With Illustrations by George Cruikshank. Enlarged.

DEAN AND SON.
Debrett's Illustrated House of Commons and the Judicial Bench, 1881. Edited by Dr. Robert Henry Mair.

FOLK-LORE SOCIETY.
Remains of Gentilisme and Judaisme. By John Aubrey, 1686-7. Edited by James Britten.
The Folk-Lore Record. Vol. III. Part 2.

JAFF AND CO.
Whymore and Co. A Tale of the Great Bank Failure.
Thomas Carlyle. The Man and His Books. Illustrated by Personal Reminiscences, Table-Talk, and Anecdotes of Himself and His Friends. By W. Howie Wylie.
"Bailway News" Publishing Offices.
A Household Queen, and Other Poems. By Alsager Hay Hill.

LOW AND CO.
The Margaret-Book. A Legend of Lorraine. By Mrs. Veit Salchrm.

MACMILLAN AND CO.
A Manual of Practical Hygiene. Authorized Translation from the German of Dr. Heinrich Reipert.
Fo'c'sle Yarns. Including Bessy Lee and Other Poems.
Sermons Preached in a College Chapel. With an Appendix. By J. R. Illingworth.
Blacks, Boers, and British. A Three-Cornered Problem. By F. Reginald Statham.

MURRAY.
The Light Cavalry Brigade in the Crimea. Extracts from the Letters and Journal of the late Gen. Lord George Paget, K.C.B., during the Crimean War. Map.
Handbook of the Bombay Presidency. With an account of Bombay City, carefully revised on the spot. Maps and Plans.

NEWMAN AND CO.
Three Hundred Years Hence; or, A Voice from Posterity. By William Delisle Hay.
An Calucky Lic. By Athol A. Johnstone

PARKER AND CO.
An Attempt to Discriminate the Styles of Architecture in England, from the Conquest to the Reformation. With a Sketch of the Grecian and Roman Orders. By the late Thomas Rickman. Seventh Edit. With Additions, by J. H. Parker

PAUL AND CO.
My Old Portfolio. Poems.

REEVES AND TURNER.
The Tribune Reflects, and other Poems. By Edward St. John Brenon.

SOTHERAN AND CO.
Keramic Art of Japan. By George A Audsley and James L. Bowes.

SPACK.
Chapters in the History of Old St. Paul's. By Dr. W. Sparrow Simpson.

TINSLEY BROTHERS.
In Luck's Way. A Novel. By Byron Webber. 3 vols.
My Lady Coquette. By Iota. 3 vols.
Men We Meet in the Field; or, the Bull-shire Hounds. By A. G. Bagot. ("Bagot-belle.")
The Life of George the Fourth. Including his Letters and Diplomas, with a View of the Men, Manners, and Politics of his Reign. By Percy Fitzgerald. 2 vols.
Wooing a Sweetheart. A Novel. By Lolo. 3 vols.

WARD, LOCK, AND CO.
The Irish Problem and How to Solve It. An Historical and Critical Review of the Legislation and Events that have led to Irish Difficulties, including suggestions for Practical Remedies.
Ashton Hall: A Tale. By O. S. Round.

"WINCHESTER OBSERVER" OFFICE.
Cowgill, and Other Tales. By Ida Linn Gerard.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

A PATTERN of FASHIONABLE SPRING JACKET, with Design of "Hardicks" for Embroidering same, is presented gratis with SYLVIA'S HOME JOURNAL for APRIL.

Price 6d. Containing also—
A Large Coloured Plate of the Latest Fashions—The Five-Guinea Prize Essay—Economical Dishes—Continuation of Serial Stories—Fancy Notes and Fancy Dresses—Sylvia's Advice to Correspondents on all matters connected with Dress and Home—Social Amusement—The Lady's Garden Guide—Ornamental Dessert Dishes, &c.; with many high-class Engravings of the Latest Parisian Fashions and Newest Needlework Designs.
London: WARD, LOCK, and CO., Salisbury-square, E.C.

Just ready, demy 8vo, cloth, 6s.,

THE IRISH PROBLEM; and HOW TO SOLVE IT. An Historical and Critical Review of the Legislation and Events that have led to Irish Difficulties, including suggestions for Practical Remedies.
London: WARD, LOCK, and CO., Salisbury-square, E.C.

MR. WILKIE COLLINS'S NEW NOVEL.
On April 5 will be ready, in 3 vols., crown 8vo, at every Library,

THE BLACK ROBE. By WILKIE COLLINS.

NEW NOVEL BY THE AUTHOUS OF "READY-MONEY MORTIBOY."
Just ready, 3 vols., crown 8vo, at every Library,

THE CHAPLAIN OF THE FLEET.
By WALTER BESANT and JAMES RICE.

MR. JAMES PAYN'S NEW NOVEL.
On April 15 will be ready, in 3 vols., crown 8vo, at every Library,

FROM EXILE. By JAMES PAYN,
Author of "A Confidential Agent," "By Proxy," &c.

Price One Shilling,

THE GENTLEMAN'S MAGAZINE for APRIL.

CONTENTS:—The Comet of a season. By Justin McCarthy, M.P.—A National Scare. By Alex. Charles Ewald.—The Fairy-land of Shakespeare. By Charles Grant.—Wild Horses and Kangaroos. By Redspinner.—The Entrenches of Cervantes. By James Mew.—Degeneration. By Andrew Wilson, F.R.S.E.—Science Notes. By W. Mattieu Williams.—Table Talk. By Sylvanus Urban.

Price One Shilling, Illustrated,

BELGRAVIA for APRIL.

CONTENTS:—Joseph's Coat. By D. Christie Murray. Illustrated by Fred. Barnard.—An April Pastoral. By Austin Dobson.—The Queen of the Blue-stockings. By H. Barton Baker.—The Rev. James Christison's Adventure. By Mortimer Collins.—Balloon Ball. By Robert Macgregor.—Two Sonnets. By George Barlow.—April Days in Cornwall. By Ira Dutton Hardy.—The Belleties in Parliament. By Justin H. McCarthy.—Flounders about Eton.—IV. By Alfred Rimmer. With Three Illustrations.—About Eton: V. By Alfred Rimmer. With Three Illustrations.—A Romance of the Nineteenth Century. By W. H. Mallock.
CHAPPO AND WINDUS, Piccadilly, W.

Now ready.

MRS. HENRY WOOD'S MAGAZINE,

THE ARGOSY for APRIL.

CONTENTS.
1. Court Netherleigh, by the Author of "East Lynne." Chaps. 10, 11, and 12; Illustrated by M. Ellen Edwards. 2. The Lily and the Flower. 3. The Hammond's Tidy Duckling. 4. On the South Coast, by Charles W. Wood, with six Illustrations. 5. Two Dreams. 6. Mrs. Berhamld. 7. A Freak of Fortune. 8. Shrove-tide in Ireland. 9. Good Night.
Sixpence Monthly.

Eighth Edition of the "Argosy" for January now ready. Also, the "Argosy" for February and March.

"The 'Argosy' gets better and better. It is the cheapest and best magazine of its class published. The fiction is always pure, and as certainly is it interesting and readable in an unobtrusive way."—Spectsman.

"The 'Argosy' for January is an excellent number. No Magazine has a selection of more universal interest than this excellently conducted periodical."—Liverpool Albion.
RICHARD BENTLEY and SON, 8, New Burlington-street, W.

A SUNFLOWER DESIGN, for CREWEL WORK. A Silk Embroidery, handsomely printed in Colours, is given with the LADIES' TREASURY for MARCH. Second Edition now ready, price 6d.; by post, 7d. "It will be a wonder if the design does not rapidly become a favourite."—Aberdeen Journal. "Very pretty."—Derby Mercury. "Beautifully executed."—Brighton Gazette.
BEMROSE and SONS, 23, Old Bailey, London.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

MAJOR E. ROGERS'S NEW NOVEL.
Second Edition, at all Libraries, in 3 vols.,

A MODERN SPHINX. The New Novel.
London: J. and R. MAXWELL, Shoe-lane, E.C.

PLAYS, PLAYERS, and PLAYHOUSES, at HOME and ABROAD, with Anecdotes of the Drama and the Stage. By JOHN WILLIAM LEONARD. 2 vols. 21s.
HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

This day, with numerous Illustrations, crown 8vo, cloth, 3s. 6d.; postage, 4d.

THE LADIES' MULTUM-IN-PARVO FLOWER GARDEN and AMATEURS' COMPLETE GUIDE. By SAMUEL WOOD, Author of "Good Gardening," &c.—CROSBY LOCKWOOD, and Co., 7, Stationers' Hall-court, E.C.

VERE FOSTER'S COMPLETE COURSE OF DRAWING. By Eminent Artists. With Practical Instructions and Paper for Drawing on. Re-issue, in Twelve Books, at One Shilling each, complete in itself.

| | |
|---|---|
| ELEMENTARY. | ORNAMENT. |
| LANDSCAPE. | PLANTS. |
| HORSES. | FIGURE. |
| GEOMETRY. | MARINE. |
| MECHANICAL. | OBJECTS. |
| CATTLE. | TREES. |

London: BLACKIE and SON, 49 and 50, Old Bailey; and of all Books-llers and Stationers.

THOMAS CARLYLE. By MRS. OLIPHANT. SEE

MACMILLAN'S MAGAZINE,

No. 250,
for April.
Price 1s.
CONTENTS OF THE NUMBER.
1. The Portrait of a Lady. By Henry James, Jun. Chaps. XXV.—XXVIII.
2. The People's Concert Society. By Mrs. Julian Marshall.
3. Free Libraries and their Working. By W. Odell Jun.
4. Lucretius. Part of Philosophy. By Agnes Mac Donnell.
5. The Other Side of the Question. By Frances Martin.
6. Archæology, Literature, and History. By Percy Gardiner, Disney Professor of Archæology, Cambridge.
7. Pauline. By Robert Browning. By J. A. Chewney.
8. In Memoriam. Major-General Sir George Pomeroy-Colley. By the Archbishop of Dublin.
9. Thomas Carlyle. By Mrs. Oliphant.
MACMILLAN and Co., London.

Now ready (One Shilling), No. 256,

THE CORNHILL MAGAZINE for APRIL. With Illustrations by George Du Maurier and W. Small.

CONTENTS.
Love the Debt. (With an Illustration.) Chap. X.—"In the Net." XI.—Reparation. XII.—Drifting.
Rambles among Books. No. II.—Autobiography.
Nightingale and Cuckoo. By Alfred Austin.
The Youth of Henry the Fifth. By Alex Charles Ewald.
Timarchus. By Edmund W. Gosse.
Winter Nights at Daves. (Leaves from the Diary of an Invalid.)
A Poaching Adventure.
The Comus of 1881.
A Gripe from a Thorn. By James Payn. (With an Illustration.) Chap. XIV.—A Confession. XV.—The Call. XVI.—Ella is given her Chance." XVII.—Mr. Josceline becomes confidential. XVIII.—A Double Game.
London: SMITH, ELDER, and Co., 15, Waterloo-place.

Second Edition, price 4s. 6d., to be had of all Booksellers,

RESPIRATORY DISEASES, and CONSUMPTION, BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, &c. and their Specific Cure. By Dr. JOHN FRANCIS CHURCHILL'S Discoveries of the Hypophosphites and Inhalants.
J. W. RICHMAN, Sen. Clapham-junction, London.

Liberal Discount. Post Orders promptly executed. Just published, post-free two stamps,

DYSPEPSIA and the SEVERER FORMS of INDIGESTION. A small Pamphlet on these distressing complaints and their cure.
Published by the Author, RICHARD KING, Esq., Staff Surgeon Royal Navy, 23, Warwick-street, Regby.

Just published, post-free, Two Stamps,

FITS.—EPILEPSY, or FALLING SICKNESS.—SENSATIONS, GIDDINESS, FAINTS.—A Pamphlet on these distressing complaints, explaining their Treatment and complete Cure. By a Licentiate of the Royal College of Physicians. Published by Mr. WILLIAMS, 10, Oxford-terrace, Hyde Park, London.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

NEW NOVELS AT THE LIBRARIES.

POLICY AND PASSION. By Mrs. CAMPBELL PRAED. 3 vols.
A CHILD OF NATURE. By ROBERT BUCHANAN. 3 vols.
AN OCEAN FREE LANCE. By the Author of "The Wreck of the Grosvenor." 3 vols.
RICHARD BENTLEY and SON, New Burlington-street.

POTTERY PAINTING: A Handbook to the Practice. By JOHN C. L. SPARKES, Director of the Lambeth School of Art, Head Master of the South Kensington. Second Edition, price 1s.; post-free, 1s. 1d.
London: LECHERTIER, BARBE, and Co., 60, Regent-street, W.

Id., Weekly; Monthly Part, 5d.,

GARDENING ILLUSTRATED. Villa, Suburban, Cottage, and Town Gardening: Window Plants, Bees, Poultry: All Departments.
Can be post-free, 1d. Vol. I., 7s. 6d.
37, Southampton-street, Strand, London.

"A host of golden Daffodils,
Beside the lake, beneath the trees."
SPECIAL NOTICE.

THE GARDENERS' CHRONICLE for SATURDAY, APRIL 9, 1881, will contain a
DOUBLE-PAGE COLOURED PLATE (18 in. by 13 in.), from a Painting by Fitch, representing
THE DAFFODIL or LENT LILY,
(Companion Plate to "THE POET'S NARCISSUS," published Oct. 16, 1880).
Price 3d.; post-free, 5½d.;
or, with Plate, inclosed in case, 7½d.
Purchasers are specially recommended to order the Plate in a Case, to prevent injury from folding.
The cost of the Number with the Plate so protected, will be 6d., if obtained through a Newsagent.
The Plate of "THE POET'S NARCISSUS" may still be had, price 6d.; or by post, inclosed in case, 7d.
W. RICHARDS, 41, Wellington-street, Strand, W.C.
May be ordered of all Booksellers and Newsagents, and at the Railway Bookstalls.

THE REVISED VERSION OF THE NEW TESTAMENT.

The following OXFORD EDITIONS will be ready on or about May 17 next. Prompt supplies may be secured by ordering immediately of the Booksellers.

| | Cloth. | Paste Grain. | Morocco. | Morocco Circuit. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | s. d. | s. d. | s. d. | s. d. |
| Pica, royal 8vo .. .. | 12 6 | — | 25 0 | — |
| Pica, demy 8vo .. .. | 10 0 | — | 18 0 | — |
| Long Primer, crown 8vo .. | 4 6 | 6 0 | 9 6 | 12 0 |
| Brevier, 16mo .. .. | 2 6 | 3 6 | 6 0 | 8 6 |
| Nonpareil, 32mo .. .. | 1 0 | 2 6 | 4 6 | 6 0 |

The Revised Version is the joint Property of the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge.

THE GREEK TEXT OF THE NEW TESTAMENT, WITH THE REVISERS' READINGS,
will be published by the Clarendon Press, simultaneously with the REVISED VERSION.

| Demy 8vo. | | Foolscap 8vo. | | Large Paper Edition. | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| | s. d. | | s. d. | | s. d. |
| Cloth .. | 5 0 | Cloth .. | 3 6 | Cloth .. | 21 0 |
| Morocco .. | 9 0 | Morocco .. | 6 0 | Morocco .. | 33 0 |

Full particulars at all Booksellers'.

London: HENRY FROWDE,
Oxford University Press Warehouse, 7, Paternoster-row.

COINS.—Catalogue No. 17 of saleable Antique and Modern Coins has just been published, and can be had gratis of JOSEPHUSCHE and KOEBER, Leipsic.

JOSEPH GILLOTT'S STEEL PENS.
GOLD MEDAL,
PARIS,
1878.

WHAT IS YOUR CREST and WHAT IS YOUR MOTTO? Send name and county to CULLETON'S Heraldic Office. Plain Sketch, 3s. 6d.; colours, 7s. The arms of man and wife blended. Crest engraved on seals, dies, books, and steel dies, 7s. 6d. Gold seal, with crest, 42s. Solid Gold Ring, 18-carat, Hall-marked, with crest, 42s. Manual of Heraldry and engravings, 5s. 4d.—T. CULLETON, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

CULLETON'S GUINEA BOX of STATIONERY contains a Ream of the very best Note and 500 Envelopes, all stamped in the most elegant way with Crest and Motto, Monogram, or Address, and the engraving of Steel Dies included. Send for any part for P.O. order.—T. CULLETON, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

VISITING CARDS, by CULLETON. Fifty best quality, 2s. 8d.; post-free, including the Engraving of Copper-plate. Wedding Cards, 50 each, 50 Embossed Envelopes, with Maiden Name, 12s. 6d.—T. CULLETON, Seal Engraver, 25, Cranbourn-street, St. Martin's-lane, W.C.

FOR ARMS and CREST send Name and County to T. MORING, Inns of Court Heraldic Offices, 44, High Holborn, W.C. Plain Sketch, 3s. 6d.; Coloured, 7s. 6d. Seals, Dies, and Diplomas. Illustrated Price-Lists post-free.

FOR FAMILY ARMS (Lincoln's-inn Heraldic Office) send Name and County. Sketch, 2s. 6d.; in colours, 5s. 6d. Arms Painted and Engraved on Seals, Dies, &c. PUGH BROTHERS, Great Turnstile, Lincoln's-inn, W.C.; and 76, Queen Victoria-street, E.C. Prize Medal, Paris 1878.

CHROMOPHOTOGRAPHY.
(KRAUS' PROCESS.)
The New Art (enabling any person without previous knowledge of either Painting or Drawing) to Colour Photographs on convex glasses, in imitation of China and Enamel Painting. Boxes containing every requisite, 20s. and 30s. Particulars post-free. Specimens shown on application at the Sole Agents, J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street, London, W.

VITREMANIE, superseding Diaphanie. An easy and inexpensive method of decorating windows in churches, public buildings, and private houses, by which may be produced the rich colouring and beautiful designs equal in appearance to real stained glass. Handbook of Designs and full instructions, 1s. 1d. Boxes, comprising designs, &c., at 21s., 31s. 6d., 42s. Particulars post-free. Sole Inventors, J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street, London, W.

WHITE WOOD ARTICLES for Painting, Fern Painting, and Decalcomanie, Blotting-Books, Card Plates, Cigar-cases, Screens, &c. New Patterns. Priced List free. WM. BARNARD, 119, Edgware-road, London, W.

MUSICAL BOX DEPÔTS, 22, Ludgate-hill, & 56, Cheapside, London.—Nicole's celebrated Musical Boxes, playing the finest overtures and sacred music. Prices £4 to £200. Small boxes from 5s. to 30s. Largest stock in London. Catalogue gratis and post-free. Apply to WALES & M'CULLOCH, as above.

NOTICE.
JAMES SHOOLBRED and CO.
WILL SELL IN THEIR NEW SHOW-ROOMS, on THURSDAY, APRIL 7, and following Days, the ENTIRE STOCK of CHINA, GLASS, &c., of MESSRS. COPELAND and SONS, 160, NEW BOND-STREET, who are relinquishing the RETAIL TRADE; also the STOCK of TABLE and FANCY GLASS of MESSRS. PERRY and CO., 72, NEW BOND-STREET, who are giving up that department, requiring more accommodation for their Chandelier business.
TOTTENHAM HOUSE,
TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD.

NEW MUSIC.

THE PIRATES OF PENZANCE. Comic Opera. By W. S. GILBERT and ARTHUR SULLIVAN.
Vocal Score .. .. .. .. .. 5s.
Pianoforte Solo, arranged by Berthold Tours .. .. 2s.
Waltz. D'Albert .. 2s. net | Polka. D'Albert .. 2s. net
Lancers. D'Albert .. 2s. „ | Galop. D'Albert .. 2s. „
Quadrille. D'Albert .. 2s. „
Fantasias by Boyton Smith (2) and Kuhe .. each 2s. 6d. net
Simplified and three-part Fantasias .. each 1s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

OLIVETTE. New Comic Opera. Enormous success at the Strand Theatre. Adapted by H. B. Farnie; Music by AUDRAN.
Vocal score .. .. .. .. .. 2s. net.
Abridged Edition of the Vocal Score, containing the Overture, Songs, &c. .. .. .. .. 1s. „
Pianoforte Solo .. .. .. .. .. 2s. 6d. „
All the Favourite Airs, arranged for the Violin .. 1s. 6d. „
Lancers. D'Albert .. 2s. net. | Galop. D'Albert .. 2s. net.
Waltz. D'Albert .. 2s. „ | Nearest and Dearest 2s. „
Quadrille. D'Albert .. 2s. „ | Waltz. D'Albert .. 2s. „
Polka. D'Albert .. 2s. „
Boyton Smith's Fantasia .. .. .. .. 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

NEW AND POPULAR SONGS.

WELCOME. Lady ARTHUR HILL. 2s. net.
OCEUR DE LION. H. J. STARK. Sung by Mr. Oswald. 2s. net.
AT THE PORTAL. N. FERRI. Sung by Madame Mary Cummings. 2s. net.
WHAT THE FIRELIGHT TOLD. J. L. ROECKEL. 2s. net.
ANGUS MACDONALD. J. L. ROECKEL. Sung by Madame Enriquez. 2s. net.
THE CHILDREN IN THE WOOD. ROECKEL. 2s. net.
WHERE THE PURPLE VIOLET GROWS. From "The Turquoise Ring." L. BENSON. 2s. net.
DINNA LEAVE ME. A. M. WAKEFIELD, Composer of "No, No." 2s. net.
THOUGHTS AT SUNRISE. Mrs. L. MONCRIEFF. 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

NEW SONGS by Mrs. RONALDS.
IN SHADOW .. .. .. .. .. 2s. net.
WHY? .. .. .. .. .. 2s. net.
EVER NEAR .. .. .. .. .. 2s. net.
DIS MOI POURQUOI .. .. .. .. 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

CHARLES D'ALBERT'S NOVELTIES.
ADELINA WALTZ. Illustrated with a beautiful Portrait of Madame Patti .. .. .. 2s. 6d. net
PORTIA WALTZ .. .. .. .. 2s. 0d. net
DRINK, PUPPY, DRINK! POLKA .. .. .. 2s. 0d. net
CAN'T STOP! GALOP .. .. .. .. 2s. 0d. net
CONGRESS LANCERS .. .. .. .. 2s. 0d. net
DISTANT SHORE WALTZ .. .. .. .. 2s. 0d. net
THE PANPAIPE POLKA .. .. .. .. 2s. 0d. net
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

Now ready, Volume II. of
CHAPPELL'S OLD ENGLISH DITTIES.
Handsomely bound in cloth and gold.
Price 10s. 6d. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S THREE-YEARS' SYSTEM of HIRE of PIANOFORTES, HARMONIUMS, and AMERICAN ORGANS, by which the Instrument becomes the property of the Hirer at the end of the third year, provided each quarter's hire shall have been regularly paid in advance. Pianofortes from 2 gs. Harmoniums, from £1 7s.; and American Organs, from £2 10s. a Quarter.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S PIANINOS, from 20 guineas.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S COTTAGES, from 27 guineas.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S GRANDS, from 75 guineas.

CHICKERING PIANOFORTES, from 120 guineas, with American discount.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ALEXANDRE HARMONIUMS, for Church, Schools, or Drawing-Rooms, from 8 to 150 guineas; or, on the Three-Years' System, from £1 5s. per quarter.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S IMPROVED AMERICAN ORGANS, combining Pipes with Reeds, Manufactured by Clough and Warren, Detroit, U.S.A. The immense advantages these instruments possess over the Organs hitherto imported have induced Messrs. Chappell and Co. to undertake the sole Agency of this eminent Manufactory. A large variety on view, from 18 to 250 guineas. Price-Lists on application to CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

CLOUGH and WARREN'S Favourite ORGAN. Compass, five octaves, ten stops, four sets of reeds, two of two and two thirds octaves and two of two and one third octaves, knee swell, elegant carved Canadian walnut case, price 25 guineas. With twelve stops, sub-bass octave coupler, and two knee pedals, 35 guineas. Illustrated Price-List free by post.
Sole Agents, CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

INSTRUMENTS by ALL MAKERS may be HIRED or PURCHASED on the Three-Years' System.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

A LARGE DISCOUNT TO PURCHASERS FOR CASH.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

BROADWOOD'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on CRAMER'S Three-Years' System, from £2 12s. 6d. per Quarter.

COLLARD'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on CRAMER'S Three-Years' System; in Black and Gold, £2 12s. 6d. to £5 5s., 50 Gs., £7 7s., and in Special Early English Ebonised Case, £8 8s. per Quarter.

ERARD'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on CRAMER'S Three-Years' System, from £3 5s. per Quarter.

CRAMER'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on their Three-Years' System, from £1 11s. 6d. per Quarter. Detailed Lists post-free on application to Regent-street, W.; Bond-street, W.; Moorgate-street, E.C.; and 146, High-street, Notting-hill.

£20 SCHOOL-ROOM PIANO (Co-operative price for cash). Seven octaves—strong, sound, and substantial. Adapted for hard practice. Carefully packed free, and sent to any part. Drawings gratis.
THOMAS OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street.

£35.—There is nothing in London—nor, in fact, in all England—to be compared to the elegantly carved DRAWING-ROOM TRICHORD COTTAGE PIANOFORTE, with Cabriole Trues Legs, which is sold for £35 by THOMAS OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, Portman-sq.

"Steinway is to the Pianist what Stradivarius is to the Violinist."—Herr Joachim.

THE STEINWAY PIANOFORTES, GRAND AND UPRIGHT,
THE GREATEST PIANOFORTES IN THE WORLD.
The Steinway Pianofortes are the chosen instruments of the educated and wealthy classes in every nation throughout civilisation, and have by far the largest annual sale of any pianofortes in the world.

STEINWAY and SONS,
STEINWAY HALL,
LOWER SEYMOUR-STREET, PORTMAN-SQUARE, W.
(And at Steinway Hall, New York.)

JOHN BRINSMEAD and SONS' PATENT SOSTENENTE PIANOS have gained the highest awards at all the recent International Exhibitions, including the two First Prizes, Melbourne, 1881; the First Prize, Queensland, 1880; the two First Special Prizes, Sydney, 1880; the Legion of Honour, Paris, 1878, &c. For SALE, Hire, and on the Three-Years' system.—18, 20, Wigmore-street; and the Brinsmead Works, Grafton-road, N.W. Lists post-free.

NEW MUSIC.

Price 2s. 6d. each volume, paper; 4s., cloth, gilt edges.
THE ROYAL SONG-BOOKS.
A complete Encyclopædia of Vocal Music.
THE SONGS OF ENGLAND. 2 vols.
THE SONGS OF SCOTLAND.
THE SONGS OF IRELAND.
THE SONGS OF WALES.
THE SONGS OF FRANCE.
THE SONGS OF GERMANY.
THE SONGS OF ITALY. (In the Press.)
THE SONGS OF SCANDINAVIA and Northern Europe.
THE SONGS OF BOHEMIA, HUNGARY, and Eastern Europe. (In the Press.)
The above 10 volumes contain nearly 1000 Popular Ballads of the various countries of Europe.

BEETHOVEN'S SONGS. (Complete.)
MENDELSSOHN'S SONGS.
SCHUMANN'S SONGS.
SCHUBERT'S SONGS.
RUBINSTEIN'S SONGS.
RUBINSTEIN'S VOCAL DUETS.
The above have German and English Words.
HANDEL'S ORATORIO SONGS.
HANDEL'S OPERA SONGS. (Italian and English Words.)
* SONGS FROM THE OPERAS. Mezzo-Soprano and Contralto.
* SONGS FROM THE OPERAS. Tenor and Baritone.
* In transposed keys, with Italian and English Words.
MODERN BALLADS. By the most eminent living composers.
SACRED SONGS, ANCIENT AND MODERN.
HUMOROUS SONGS, NEW AND OLD.
CHOICE DUETS FOR DRAWING-ROOMS.
DOUBLE VOLUMES.
Price 5s. each, paper; 7s. 6d., cloth, gilt edges.
THE ROYAL OPERATIC ALBUMS. Containing celebrated Songs, Duets, Trios, and Choruses, with Words, in the original keys.
1. THE PRIMA DONNA'S ALBUM.
2. THE CONTRALTO ALBUM.
3. THE TENOR ALBUM.
4. THE BARITONE ALBUM.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

MADAME PATEY'S NEW SONGS.
THE CHILDREN OF THE CITY. By S. ADAMS.
THE MERCHANT OF DIEPPE. By LOUIS DIEHL.
2s. each.—BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

EDWARD LLOYD'S NEW SONGS.
MIGNONETTE. By SUCHET CHAMPION.
THE LOVE OF LONG AGO. By W. H. CUMMINGS.
2s. each.—BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

THE LITTLE ROUNDHEAD MAID. By the Composer of "No, Sir!" Sung by Miss Wakefield at the Ballad Concerts.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

THE BOATSWAIN'S STORY. By J. MOLLOY. Sung with the greatest success by Mr. Santley at all the last Ballad Concerts. Price 2s.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

ROCHESTER BELLS. By MARZIALS. Sung by the Composer at the Ballad Concerts, and enthusiastically encored. Price 2s.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

ALL IN ALL. By F. H. COWEN. Sung by Mr. Joseph Maas at the last three Ballad Concerts, encored on each occasion.—BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

FAIRLY CAUGHT. A great Success. By LOUIS DIEHL. Sung by Miss Clara Samuell at the Ballad Concerts. 2s. net.—BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

THE FIRST LETTER. By MOLLOY. Sung by Miss Mary Davies.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

BOOSEY'S SHILLING PIANOFORTE ALBUM (the Musical Cabinet).
212. BOOSEY'S MARCH ALBUM. (30 Marches.)
205, 206, 211. RICHARDSON'S THREE ALBUMS. (36 pieces.)
207. RUBINSTEIN'S STUDIES.
207. RUBINSTEIN'S SIX PRELUDES.
214. ROBERT SCHUMANN'S ALBUMBLATTER. (20 pieces.)
209. BACH'S PIANOFORTE ALBUM. (13 pieces.)
204. BRAHMS' PIANOFORTE ALBUM. (4 pieces.)
196. FIELD'S NOCTURNE ALBUM. (10 Nocturnes.)
194. BEETHOVEN'S WALTZ ALBUM. (45 Waltzes.)
117. CHOPIN'S WALTZES, complete.
143. CHOPIN'S MAZURKAS, complete.
171. CHOPIN'S NOCTURNES, complete.
80. HELLER'S TWELVE SHORT PIECES.
85. HELLER'S PROMENADES D'UNE SOLITAIRE.
161. HELLER'S PETIT ALBUM. (30 pieces.)
100. SCHUMANN'S KINDERSCENEN, &c.
23. OVERTURES (1st book), including Firaro, Fra Diavolo, Crown Diamonds, William Tell, Freischutz, Zampa.
211. OVERTURES (2nd book), including Masaniello, Oberon, Gazza Ladra, Euryanthe.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

BOOSEY'S SHILLING ORATORIOS, MASSES, and CANTATAS, large quarto size.
HYMN OF PRAISE. | MOUNT OF OLIVES.
HAYDN'S IMPERIAL MASS. | WALPURGIS NIGHT.
GOUNOD'S CECILIA MASS. | BEETHOVEN'S MASS IN C.
MOZART'S TWELFTH MASS. | ACIS AND GALATEA.
ROSSINI'S STABAT MATER. | MOZART'S REQUIEM.
JUDAS MACCABÆUS. | DETTINGEN TE DEUM.
THE MESSIAH. | ISRAEL IN EGYPT.
BACH'S PASSION (Matt.) | THE CREATION.
1s. 6d.
Boosey's Pocket Editions of "The Messiah" and "The Creation." Price 1s. each.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

BOOSEY'S SHILLING INSTRUCTORS.

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Organ | Best. | Theory | Dr. Callcott. |
| Harmonium | Mount. | Violin | Henning. |
| Pianoforte | Mount. | Violoncello | Howell. |
| Singing (Men) | Hatton. | Flute | Pratten. |
| Singing (Ladies) | Hatton. | Cornet | Jones. |
| Ballad Singing | Balfe. | Concertina | Case. |
| Choral Singing | Dr. Spark. | Clarionet | Kappey. |

BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

MISS WAKEFIELD'S NEW SONGS.
"YES, SIR!" A sequel to "No, Sir!" Words by W. M. Hardinge.
SWEET SALLY GRAY. A North Countrie Ballad. Words by the late Robert Andreson.
NO, NO! Spanish Ballad. Also arranged as a Vocal Duet by Theo. Marzials.
A SERENADE. Words by Tom Hood.
Each 2s. net.
PATERSON and SONS, 27, George-street, Edinburgh.

METZLER and CO.
35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

THE GIPSIES' FESTIVAL.—A very pleasing Descriptive Fantasia for the Pianoforte. By J. PRIDHAM. Illustrated title, 4s.; post-free for 24 stamps.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

LES CHEVALIERS. Marche Militaire, composée pour Piano. A good stirring well marked march. Par J. DUVAL. No. 1, post-free for 18 stamps.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

CLASSICAL EXTRACTS from the GREAT COMPOSERS. A most attractive assortment of the best classical subjects. Arranged and fingered for the Pianoforte by J. DUVAL. Six books, at 3s. each; post-free at half-price.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

HALF-HOURS AT THE ORGAN; being Selections from the Works of the best Ancient and Modern Composers. Arranged in a familiar style for that Instrument by JOHN BISHOP. Twenty-four Books, 3s.; free by post for 18 stamps each; or in 2 vols., whole cloth boards, 15s. 8d. each.—London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

TELL HIM I LOVE HIM YET. Song. Poetry by W. M. Praed; Music by ALFRED SCOTT GATTY. 4s.; post-free, 18 stamps. One of the sweetest and purest melodies which has been written by Mr. Gatty.—Vide Standard.—London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

TIRED. Song. In D flat and D. By Miss M. LINDSAY. "A very sweet song."—Vide Orchestra. "Young singers will be sure of its meeting with a welcome."—Vide Yorkshire Post. Post-free for 24 stamps each.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

"TARRY, TARRY, ERE YE MARRY." Words by Gordon Campbell; the Music by A. S. GATTY. A highly successful setting to a most telling melody, in true Scotch rhythm. Post-free for 18 stamps.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

NEW MUSIC.

THE MUSICAL TIMES for APRIL contains:—The Music of Dvorak—The Great Composers: Berlioz—Mr. Pepys the Musician, by F. Hueffer—Sacred Music in Italy—Music in Manchester—Bach Choir, Sacred Harmonic Society, Philharmonic Society, Mr. Charles Halle's, and M. Lamoureux's Concerts—Music in Manchester—Dr. Stone "on the Combination of Voices with Musical Instruments"—Occasional Notes—Foreign and Country News—Reviews, &c. Price 3d.; post-free, 4d. Annual Subscription, 4s., including parcel.

THE MUSICAL TIMES for APRIL contains:—"Holy Spirit, Come, O Come!" Anthem for Whitsuntide, by George C. Martin. Price, separately, 1½d.

MESSRS. NOVELLO, EWER, and CO. have the honour to announce that they have purchased the ENTIRE STOCK and COPYRIGHTS of the WORKS hitherto published by Messrs. NEUMEYER and CO., of Neumeyer Hall, including the whole of the valuable Compositions of HEINRICH HOFMANN, &c.

NOVELLO'S ORATORIOS.
ONE SHILLING EACH.

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Esgedi | Beethoven. | Israel in Egypt | Handel. |
| Mount of Olives | „ | Judas Maccabæus | „ |
| Jephthah | Carissimi. | The Creation | Haydn. |
| Messiah | Handel. | Last Judgment | Spohr. |

London: NOVELLO, EWER, and Co.

NOVELLO'S CANTATAS.
ONE SHILLING EACH.

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| God goeth up | Bach. | Hear my Prayer | Mendelssohn. |
| Lord, Thou art the Rock | „ | The Fair Melusina | „ |
| My spirit was in heaviness | „ | 98th Psalm | „ |
| O light everlasting | „ | Night's Dream | „ |
| Ride with us | „ | Man is Mortal | „ |
| A Stronghold Sure | „ | Festegesang | „ |
| Ruins of Athens | Beethoven. | Christus | „ |
| A song of Destiny | Brahms. | To the Genius of Art | „ |
| The Dream | Sir M. Costa. | Ave Maria | „ |
| Spring's Message | Gade. | The Story of the Bell | Romberg. |
| Christmas Eve | Niels W. Gade. | The Transient and Enduring | „ |
| Ed King's Daughter | „ | Song of Miriam | F. Schubert. |
| Venus | Goetz. | Manfred | R. Schumann. |
| The Soul's Aspiration | Grimm. | Spring Song | „ |
| Acis and Galatea | Handel. | The North-east Wind | „ |
| Dixit Dominus | „ | God Thou art great | Spohr. |
| Queen Winter (from "The Seasons") | Haydn. | The Christian's Prayer | „ |
| May Day | G. A. Macfarren. | Jubilee Cantata | C. M. V. Weber. |
| Lobgesang | Mendelssohn. | | |

London: NOVELLO, EWER, and Co.

NOVELLO'S MASSES, PSALMS, &c.
ONE SHILLING EACH.

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Stabat Mater | Astorga. | 114th Psalm | Mendelssohn. |
| Magnificat | Bach. | 115th Psalm | „ |
| Mass in C | Beethoven. | 13th Psalm | „ |
| Requiem (C minor) | Cherubini. | 91st Psalm | Meyerbeer. |
| Third Mass in A | Goetz. | First Mass | Mozart. |
| By the Waters of Babylon | „ | Twelfth Mass | „ |
| Messe Solennelle | Ch. Gounod. | Requiem Mass (Latin and English) | „ |
| Dettingen Te Deum | Handel. | Stabat Mater (Female Voices) | Pergolesi. |
| Utrecht Jubilate | „ | Stabat Mater | Rossini. |
| O praise the Lord (Sixth Chandos Anthem) | „ | Mass in G | Schubert. |
| First Mass (B flat) | Haydn. | Advent Hymn | R. Schumann. |
| Second Mass (C) | „ | Mass | E. Silas. |
| Third Mass (Imperial) | „ | Mass (G) | C. M. Von Weber. |
| Te Deum (Latin and English Words) | „ | Mass (E flat) | „ |
| 42nd Psalm | Mendelssohn. | O Lord, Thou art my God | S. S. Wesley. |
| 95th Psalm | „ | | |

London: NOVELLO, EWER, and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.; and 80 and 81, Queen-street, E.C.

JOSEPH WILLIAMS'S LIST.
THE LATEST SUCCESS.
BILLEE TAYLOR. Comic Opera. By H. P. STEPHENS and E. SOLOMON.
VOCAL SCORE .. .. .. .. 5s. net.
SONGS,
ALL ON ACCOUNT OF ELIZA (Third Edition). 2s. net.
SELF-MADE KNIGHT (Second Edition). 2s. net.
THE VIRTUOUS GARDENER. 2s. net.
FANTASIA FOR PIANO. CH. TOURVILLE. 1s. 6d. net.

PIANO SCORE (Complete). 2s. 6d. net. Now ready.
*QUADRILLES. By CHARLES COOTE. 2s. net.
*LANCERS. By ARTHUR GRENVILLE. 2s. net.
*WALTZES. By CHARLES COOTE. 2s. net.
DANCE MUSIC, BILLEE TAYLOR, ready. Orchestra, 2s.; Septet, 1s. 6d.
* Beautifully Illustrated.

HENRY FARMER'S PIANOFORTE TUTOR, considerably Enlarged and Fingered by the Author. Tenth Edition. 4s.
"Decidedly the best and most useful instruction book we have seen."—Musical Review.

Post-free, 2s. net.
A LIFE'S LOVE. In C and D. Song. Composed by J. B. WALDECK. Will be sung by Mr. Robert Hilton at Dumbarton, Helensburgh, and Glasgow on the 24th, 25th, and 28th inst.
London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 26, Berners-street; and 123, Cheapside.

THE LOVE OF OLD. ROECKEL'S charming New Song will be sung by Miss Damian at her forthcoming engagements. Post-free, 24 stamps.

PIANO DUETS.
C. REINECKE. Three Sonatas, Op. 139. Price 2s. each, net.

PIANO SOLOS.
W. KUHE. NEW SACRED TRANSCRIPTIONS.
Eli (Costa), Naaman (Costa). Price 2s. each net.
TH. LACK. NEW PIECES.
Menuet, La Meunette, Bolero. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
H. ROUBIER. NEW PIECES.
Joyeuse Reunion, Fête a Trianon, Parfait Bonheur. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
FRANZ HITZ. NEW PIECES.
Caviatrope (Caprice). Latin Rose, Le Regiment qui passe. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
JOYFUL MOMENTS. Ten Easy Pieces on Popular Subjects. Arranged by CH. TOURVILLE. Price 1s. each net.
OUR FAVOURITES. Ten Moderately Easy Pieces on Popular Subjects. Arranged by CH. TOURVILLE. Price 1s. 3d. each net.

THE PROGRESSIVE MUSIC SCHOOL.
Carefully Edited, Fingered, and Corrected from the Original Manuscripts by J. LEVIACH. First Series (very easy), 15 Numbers. Numbers 1 to 14, price 1s. 6d. each net. Number 15, price 1s. 6d. net.

VIOLIN AND PIANO DUETS.
S. JACOBY. Six Popular Airs (Easy). Price 1s. each net.
CH. TOURVILLE. Twelve Favourite Subjects (Moderate). Price 1s. 6d. each net.

H. FARMER. Popular Violin Solos (Brilliant), with Piano Accompaniment. Nine Numbers. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 24, Berners-street, W.; and 123, Cheapside, E.C.

CHARLES HALLÉ'S PRACTICAL PIANOFORTE SCHOOL.
Section 1.—No. 1. PIANOFORTE TUTOR.
Catalogue and all Particulars may be had from FORSYTH BROTHERS, 272a, Regent-circus, Oxford-street; Manchester, Cross-street and South King-street; and all Musicsellers.

HELLER'S TRANSCRIPTION for the PIANOFORTE of SCHUBERT'S SONGS. WANDERING, THE BUTTERFLY, THE HURDY-GURDY PLAYER.
Performed by Mr. Charles Hallé.
Price 2s. each.
Sold at half price and postage free.
FORSYTH BROTHERS, 272a, Regent-circus, Oxford-street, London; and Cross-street, South King-street, Manchester.

THE BUGLER, in D, F, and G. By CIRO PINSUTI. Words by F. E. Weatherly. This very successful song has now reached the tenth edition.

WEIT VON DIR (Far from Thee). Waltz. By OSCAR SEVDEL. "When she went back to the ball-room, Captain Winstanley followed her, and claimed his waltz. The band was just striking up the latest German melody, 'Weit von Dir,' a strain of drawing tenderness."—Vide Miss Braddon's "Vixen." Each of the above 2s. net.
B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster-row.

PLEYEL WOLFF and CO. Established 1807. Gold Medal, 1827, 1836, 1839, 1844, and 1878. Prize Medal, 1862. Medaille d'Honneur, 1855. Hors de Concours, 1849, 1867, 1873. The Sole Agents have every description of three admired PIANOS for SALE or HIRE. Special models in black wood.—170, New Bond-street, W.

FURNISH THROUGHOUT.

SUBSTANTIAL ARTISTIC FURNITURE (Regd.)
OETZMANN & CO.,
HAMPSTEAD-ROAD,
NEAR TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD.

FURNISH THROUGHOUT.—OETZMANN and CO., 67, 68, 69, 70, 71, 72, 77, and 78, HAMPSTEAD-ROAD, near Tottenham-court-road. CARPETS, Furniture, Bedding, Drapery, Furnishing Ironmongery, China, Glass, Paper Hangings, Pictures, Bronzes, Clocks, Pianos, &c., and every other requisite for completely furnishing a house throughout. Lowest prices consistent with guaranteed quality.—OETZMANN & CO.

THE EASIEST OF EASY-CHAIRS. OETZMANN and CO.'S Club, Divan, or Dining-Room Easy-Chair, as used in the principal West-End Clubs. The most comfortable Easy-Chair extant, spring seat and back, upholstered very soft and comfortable, all hair, in best morocco leather, and finished in the best manner, 8 guineas. A large stock of Easy-Chairs in the show-Rooms from 1 guinea upwards.—OETZMANN and CO.

LADIES' NEEDLEWORK tastefully mounted in the best manner, and adapted to any articles of Furniture required. This department has long been quite a speciality with O. and Co.; and great attention is paid in the mounting, so as to secure the most artistic effect. Superior workmanship guaranteed, and the prices will be found considerably lower than those usually charged. A Sheet of Illustrations and prices post-free; and special designs will also be forwarded free for approval, if desired, adapted to any special size and style of Needlework.—OETZMANN and CO.

CARPET DEPARTMENT.—A quantity of ready-made Carpets, in all sizes, made to use up last year's patterns, will be cleared out a bargain. Quotations forwarded per post, upon receiving size and description required. Large-size Hearthrugs, 4s. 9d. each; 4-4 wide, 5s. 11d. and 12s. 9d.; Best Axminster ditto, 15s. 6d., usual price 21s. Stout Floorcloth, at 9d. per yard. Patent Linoleum Floorcloth and Staircloth, from 1s. 9d. per yard. Hemp, Dutch Carpet, yard wide, 8d. per yard; Large Kitchen Hearthrugs, 3s. 3d.; Sheepskin Hearthrugs, from 5s. 9d., upwards; Ditto Mats, from 2s.
OETZMANN and CO.

CURTAIN DEPARTMENT.—Handsome Damask, Rep, and Tapestry Curtains, from 20s. per pair, the largest, cheapest, and best assortment in London; Cretonne ditto, from 10s. 9d. per pair; "Cyprus" ditto, all wool, 12s. per pair; Muslin and Lace Curtains, elegant designs, 2 yards long by 40 and 42 inches wide, 4s. 11d. per pair, worth 7s. 6d.; very handsome ditto, 4 yards long by 52 to 56 inches wide, 10s. 6d., worth 15s. 9d.; magnificent Guipure Lace Curtains, 4 yards long by 60 inches wide, 14s. 9d. per pair. Reduced Price-Lists and Patterns post-free on application.—OETZMANN and CO.

FURNISHING IRONMONGERY DEPARTMENT.—Superior Electro-Plate Tea and Coffee Pots, Spoons, Forks, Cruets, &c. (quality guaranteed); best warranted Table Cutlery; hand-some Coal Vases, from 3s. 11d. up wards; Dish Covers, Japanned Toilet Sets, full size bath, pail, and can, various neat designs in colours, 9s. 11d. per set. Kitchen Ironmongery of every description. Mats, Matting, Brooms, Brushes, Pails, &c. Bronze Umbrella Stands, from 3s. 6d. Table Lamps, complete, good style, 3s. 11d.—OETZMANN and CO.

CLEARING OUT ACCUMULATED STOCK to make room for New Designs.—DINNER, DESSERT, TEA, and BREAKFAST SERVICES: a quantity of sets, some with one or two pieces deficient or slightly chipped; also some TOILET SETS, will be cleared out about half price. They are set out for inspection in one of the show-rooms. An early visit solicited. A constant succession of New Designs in China and Glass always on view.—OETZMANN and CO.

POSTAL ORDER DEPARTMENT. OETZMANN and CO.—Orders sent per post, whether large or small, receive prompt and careful attention. Those residing at a distance, or any to whom a personal visit would be inconvenient, desirous of leaving the selection to the firm, may rely upon a faithful attention to their wishes and interests in the selection. This department is personally supervised by a member of the firm, and O. and Co. continually receive numerous letters expressing the greatest satisfaction with the execution of orders so entrusted. Persons residing in Foreign Countries and the Colonies will find great advantages by entrusting their orders to O. and CO. For further particulars please see page 379 in Catalogue, sent free on application.—OETZMANN and CO.

DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE, post-free.
OETZMANN & CO.,
HAMPSTEAD-ROAD.

ELKINGTON and CO.,
MANUFACTURING SILVERSMITHS,
PATENTEES OF THE ELECTRO-PLATE.

ELKINGTON and CO.
SUPPLY THE PUBLIC DIRECT.
PRICES TO SUIT ALL PURCHASERS.
Illustrated Catalogues post-free.
ELKINGTON and CO., 22, Regent-st.; or 42, Moorgate-st., City.

GARDNER'S DINNER and TABLE GLASS SERVICES. Free, graceful, and original designs, of unequalled value. Dinner Services, from 21s. Table Glass Services, of the best Crystal, for twelve persons, complete, 63s. Cash discount, 15 per cent. Coloured Photographic Sheets and Illustrated Glass Catalogues post-free.
453 and 456, West Strand, Charing-cross.

GENUINE DUBLIN WHISKY.
THE MOST WHOLESOME OF ALL SPIRITS.
DUBLIN WHISKY, Distilled by Messrs. JOHN JAMESON and SON, GEORGE ROE and CO., WILLIAM JAMESON and CO., and JOHN POWER and SON, can be obtained in Wood by wholesale merchants and dealers, direct from their respective distilleries.

SCHWEITZER'S COCOATINA.
Anti-Dyspeptic Cocoa or Chocolate Powder.
Guaranteed Pure Soluble Cocoa, with excess of Fat extracted. Four times the strength of Cocoas Thickened yet Weakened with Arrowroot, Starch, &c.
The faculty pronounce it the most nutritious, perfectly digestive Beverage for "BREAKFAST, LUNCHEON, or SUPPER." Keeps in all Climates. Requires no Cooking. Is unequalled for Breakfast Cup, costing less than a halfpenny. Samples gratis. In Air-Tight Tins, at 1s. 6d., 3s., &c., by Chemists and Grocers.
H. SCHWEITZER and CO., 10, Adam-street, London, W.C.

CHOCOLAT MENIER.
Awarded the GRAND DIPLOMA OF HONOUR.

CHOCOLAT MENIER, in ½lb. and ¼lb. Packets.
For BREAKFAST and SUPPER.

CHOCOLAT MENIER.—Awarded Twenty Eight PRIZE MEDALS.
Consumption annually exceeds 18,000,000lbs.

CHOCOLAT MENIER. Paris, London, New York.
Sold Everywhere.

FRY'S Gold Medal, Paris, 1878. First Award, Sydney, 1879.
FRY'S CARACAS COCOA.
"A most delicious and valuable article."—Standard.

COCOA. PURE COCOA ONLY.
FRY'S COCOA EXTRACT.
"Strictly pure."—W. W. STODDART, F.I.C., F.C.S., City Analyst, Bristol.
Thirteen Exhibition Medals.

LONDON: Printed and Published at the Office, 198, Strand, in the Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middlesex, by GEORGE C. LESSENTON, 198, Strand, aforesaid.—SATURDAY, APRIL 2, 1881.

THE LATE SIR CHARLES REED, M.P., CHAIRMAN OF THE LONDON SCHOOL BOARD.—SEE PAGE 326.

DEPARTURE OF IRISH EMIGRANTS.—SEE PAGE 331.

THE LATE EMPEROR OF RUSSIA.

One of the Sketches by our Special Artist at St. Petersburg shows the present aspect of the spot where the murderous act which destroyed the life of Alexander II. was perpetrated, on Sunday, the 13th inst., as related in the accounts that have been published. In the evening of that day the spot where the Emperor fell was carpeted with moss and branches of evergreen. A delegation of the Municipality took immediate steps to build a temporary pavilion, or mortuary chapel, adorned with verdure and natural flowers, on a substructure of steps covered with black cloth. On the altar is placed a picture of Our Lady of Kazan, and sentries, placed on either side, keep guard at all hours. Innumerable crowns of flowers and green leaves have been deposited on the steps by the people, and many of the most august personages in St. Petersburg have visited the spot. A permanent Memorial Church is to be erected on this site.

Some fresh particulars of the assassination are given by an assistant military surgeon, Vassili Gorokhoff, who witnessed the horrible affair. He was passing along the Catherine Canal towards the Nevsky Prospect when he overtook a man of middle height and long light hair, dressed in a thin overcoat, with a tall fur cap. The man was carrying a small white parcel. The Emperor's carriage appeared on the canal road, and, having saluted the Emperor, who, Gorokhoff says, returned his salutation, he heard a violent explosion, which impelled him forward, and looking round he saw a Cossack fall from his horse and another staggering. The man whom he had previously observed then ran towards the Nevsky Prospect without any parcel in his hand, and he seized him, a policeman and two soldiers immediately laying hold of the man. The Emperor approached them, asked if he were the criminal, ordered him to be searched, and turned, proceeding towards his carriage. Gorokhoff appears to have a dim recollection of having seen a man of short stature go quickly towards the Emperor, and then something was thrown, either by this man or from between the railings of the canal, which fell at the Emperor's feet with a deafening explosion. The Emperor and all standing around, including the man whom he had noticed, fell to the ground as if mowed down. Gorokhoff saw the Emperor lying on his right side, and an officer with white epaulettes—this was the Police Colonel Dvorjetsky—drag himself towards his Majesty, who slightly raised his head, which then sank again on the snow. Whilst the young man who had been seized running away was being held after the second explosion, a soldier came up and struck him on the head, saying, "You miscreant, what have you done?" Russakoff replied, "For God's sake don't strike me. You will know afterwards. You are ignorant people." When the police were leading Russakoff along the road, Gorokhoff observed two or three groups of people maltreating unknown persons, and several from the crowd ran up and struck Russakoff. He was then placed in a sledge and taken to the Prefecture, where he was undressed and examined. He was respectably clad, and had a purse containing three rouble notes, a passport, and other papers. A small package was found on him, containing several crystals of a dark-bluish colour. When interrogated in another room Russakoff first gave a fictitious name, but soon acknowledged his real name. Amongst other things, he stated that he had met his friends the week previously, who had explained to him that on the Sunday following he would have to shoot at the Emperor. Russakoff also affirmed that he knew others would be appointed to carry out the same deed, but did not know who they were. He had proceeded to the Canal-road, but, being too early, walked across the bridge to the small market-place adjacent. There Russakoff says he met a young woman, seventeen years of age, good-looking and well dressed, who knows him, and whom he knew by sight, not by name. She handed him a parcel, telling him he was to throw it, and it would explode violently. After remaining a short time in the market-place he returned to the Canal-road. What followed is only too well known.

The photograph of the Emperor's body, or what remained of it, was taken immediately after the process of embalming, at the Winter Palace. It is copied in our Engraving. The features are seen in profile, and it is the left side of the face which is exposed. The sparse hair is carefully brushed away from the temples, the grizzled moustache and whiskers are carefully trimmed and combed; but the eyes are sunken, and there seems to have been a wound on the cheek, the marks of which were partially concealed by art. The head reposed on a pillow of white satin; the body was clothed in the green uniform tunic of the Preobrajenski Guard Regiment, with massive epaulettes of gold bullion. The right hand, partly bent, rested peacefully on the breast, close to the medallion of some image sacred to the Russo-Greek communion; but with this head and torso ends, they say, all that remained of the shattered body of Alexander II. From the trunk downwards the destruction caused by the explosion had been such as to leave nothing for the skill of the embalmer.

The removal of the late Emperor's body, on Saturday, the 19th ult., from the Winter Palace to the Church of St. Peter and St. Paul, in the Citadel, on the opposite bank of the Neva, was attended with great funereal pomp. The procession was formed in thirteen sections, comprising 172 groups or members. First, at the head of it rode a master of the ceremonies, followed by the private escort of the Emperor; the mounted drummers and trumpeter of the Horse Guards, a mounted officer in uniform and deep mourning, a marshal of superior rank, with his bâton, a squadron of his Majesty's Hussars of the Guard, four companies of the Guard Regiment of Pawlosk, of the Grenadiers, the Engineers, and the Chasseurs of the Guard; then another superior officer of the Imperial stable, followed by forty liveried footmen, marching four abreast, eight luckeys, and as many kitchen-men, likewise in fours, and a corps of twenty pages, with their commander. At the head of the second section of the cortége rode another master of the ceremonies leading up a bâton-bearing marshal and the Imperial standard with the family arms and his Majesty's charger, flanked by two subaltern officers, and followed by two grooms. Then followed five standards, bearing respectively the arms of Tcherkask, Armenia, Kabarda, Georgia, and Karabaline, carried by mounted functionaries of the eighth class, and each of their horses led by two subaltern officers. Then came the third section of the long procession, including fourteen other standards, also borne by mounted functionaries of the eighth class, and followed by more chargers and grooms. After this, in similar order and array, came the fifth section, comprising the twenty-six standards of the other districts and provinces of Russia. Following these several banners came other emblems of Imperial power in the shape of the marine flag, carried by a naval captain in deep mourning, accompanied by two frigate captains; and then the great black and white silk standards with the Imperial arms, the former followed by a horse richly draped with sables, the drapery similarly blazoned, and the latter by a figure which attracted much attention—a knight in golden armour, mounted upon a gorgeously harnessed steed, carrying a drawn sword. After him walked a man-at-arms in sable armour, with a drawn sword; and then the mourning standard of black silk, followed by a horse in drapery of the same hue, two grooms, with three officers of the Imperial stable. The sixth section was headed by another mounted master of the ceremonies, followed by a marshal of the rank of major-general and the official of the sixth class, bearing the blazoned shields of Schleswig-Holstein, Taurida, Siberia, Finland, Poland, Astrakan, Kasan, Novgorod, Vladimir, Kieff, and Moscow, with the grand escutcheon of the Empire preceded by four major-generals and carried by two such officers, assisted by two other superior ones—all in full-dress uniform and deep mourning. Then, similarly led as the other sections, walked representatives of the three corporations of peasants, middle-class citizens, and merchants, with those of the rural administrations, and the Mayor of St. Petersburg, followed by the civic secretary and the Masters of the various trade guilds, carrying the symbols of their profession. Then the representatives of various zemstvos or provincial assemblies, of the nobility of the capital and of the country, of the various courts of justice, with those of the various governments. These were followed, led by a master of ceremonies as usual, by the Red Cross, the Economical and Philanthropic Societies, by the office-bearers and pupils of the establishments, under the Conseil de Tutelle Impériale, three abreast. Close upon these, in similar marching order, came marshals representing the Ministries of Posts and Telegraphs, Justice, Roads and Communication, and for the control of the Empire, with numerous officials from those departments, and also from the various other ministries and civil, legislative, and administrative bodies. The sable monotony was next relieved by a squadron of his Majesty's Cuirassiers of the Guard, two heralds, and four Colonels carrying the four swords of the Empire reversed. Then followed a crowd of functionaries of the fourth class carrying on golden cushions the foreign decorations, orders, and medals of the deceased Sovereign, fifty-seven in number, and including the Garter, the Black Eagle, the Golden Fleece, the Holy Ghost, the Elephant, and the Medjidie; and after these came functionaries of the third class bearing his Majesty's seventeen other Russian orders and medals, comprising a golden one in memory of the emancipation of the serfs and three others for the war of the years 1852, 1855, and 1856, the conquest of the western Caucasus between 1859 and 1864, and the Turkish campaign of 1877-8. After these, in the care of functionaries of the second class, came the crowns of the kingdoms of Georgia, Tauris, Siberia, Poland, Astrakan, and Kasan, with the Imperial globe, sceptre, and crown, followed by two masters and the Grand Master of the Ceremonies—all these orders and insignia-bearing officials being flanked on each side by a battalion of cadets from St. Paul's Military School, marching in single file. The thirteenth section brought up a taper-carrying multitude of ecclesiastical persons, including the singers of Saint Alexander Newsky and the Cathedral of Notre Dame de Kasan, the clergy, the Metropolitans of Novgorod and St. Petersburg, the archdeacons and priests of the Court, and the father confessor of the deceased Emperor; and now at last appeared the gorgeously gilt funeral car, drawn by eight horses, led by as many functionaries of the eighth class. On each corner sit four aides-de-camp of his late Majesty, the cords and tassels depending from the pall being held by eight Generals and as many Major-Generals, all in deep mourning, while at the sides of the car walked sixty liveried pages, with burning torches.

Immediately after the hearse containing the body of Alexander II. walked the Emperor Alexander III. in full-dress General's uniform of the Preobrajenski Regiment of the Guard. His Majesty was followed by the Ministers of his household, the Minister of War, and two or three Generals of his suite, with all the members of the House present in St. Petersburg, and including the Grand Dukes Wladimir, Alexis, Sergius, Paul, Constantine Sergius, Michaelovitsch, Dimitri, the three Nicholases, Peter, Nicholas, and George and Alexander—all on foot, like his Majesty, with the following Princes:—Romanoffsky, Leuchtenberg, Nicholas and George Maximilianovitch, Peter, Alexander, and Constantine of Oldenburg, and the Dukes George and Michael of Mecklenburg-Strelitz. Following them walked the Generals and Aides-de-Camp of the Emperor, with the Aides de-Camp and suites of their Imperial Highnesses and the foreign Princes just mentioned; and then, preceded by a company of the Grenadiers of palace, approached a stately mourning-coach with the Empress and her children, accompanied by the Princess Marie Paulovna, wife of the Grand Duke Wladimir, the windows of the carriage being flanked by two esquires at arms, and the rear guarded by a couple of Cossacks. Almost similarly escorted, drove in one mourning carriage the Grand Duchesses Alexandra Josephevna, daughter of the late Duke of Saxe-Altenburg and of the Grand Duke Constantine, Olga Feodorovna, a Princess of Baden, and wife of the Grand Duke Michael, with the Duchess of Edinburgh, and in another carriage the Princess Marie Maximilianovna, the Princess Romanovsky, Duchess de Leuchtenberg, Thérese Petrovna, the Princess Eugénie Maximilianovna of Oldenburg, and the Duchess Hélène Georgievna of Mecklenberg-Strelitz. Following these came the Ladies of Honour attending on these Princesses, then the great Court officials, with Chamberlains and gentlemen in waiting, and his late Majesty's physicians and body servants, with five companies from as many regiments of the Guards, one battery of Artillery, two squadrons of Cavalry, another battery of Horse Artillery, and, finally, a squadron from the School of Cavalry Cadets.

As the funeral car passed, all the troops along the line of route presented arms, while the bands of the various military contingents in the cortége played solemn music. On the hearse arriving at the entrance to the cathedral, in which places had been previously assigned, among others, to the Ambassadors, ministers, and other members of the Diplomatic Corps, with their ladies, the pall was taken up by eight generals, while the Emperor, assisted by the Grand Dukes and Princes, lifted the coffin and bore it into the sacred pile, preceded by the Metropolitan and clergy, and placed it on the catafalque prepared for it. On each side of the coffin-bearers marched six Grenadiers of the Palace without their arms, and six under-officers of the Guard Regiments whereof the deceased Czar was chief, with their helmets off. The steps of the catafalque being thus reached, the coffin lid was taken off by eight aides-de-camp of the Emperor and laid upon a table covered with a silver cloth fringed with gold. On the upper estrade of the catafalque, on each side of the coffin, six captains of the Guard take their stand; on the steps twelve pages; at the foot as many pupils from the military schools; beside the columns supporting the canopy, four under-officers of the Grenadiers of the Palace with grounded arms—all as a guard of honour; while the entrance to the cathedral, outside and inside, is guarded by four sentinels. The coffin having been placed on the catafalque, the Metropolitan, assisted by the superior clergy, commenced the solemn and impressive service for the dead, in which all most fervently joined.

An Illustration of the melancholy pageant of the late Emperor's body lying in state, is furnished by another of our Special Artist's Sketches. It was in the Church of St. Peter and St. Paul, in the citadel of St. Petersburg, an exterior view of which appeared in our last. The following is a description of the arrangements made for the lying in state, which was viewed by an enormous multitude of visitors throughout every day of last week. "The catafalque bearing the coffin stands in the centre of a raised platform in the form of a cross with seven steps on all sides. The platform is covered with crimson cloth and the floor of the church with black cloth. A baldachin is supported above the platform by four columns, to which are attached the four ends of the cloth of gold, lined with ermine, that hangs suspended over the bier. The huge crown-shaped top of the baldachin is surmounted with white ostrich feathers. On the gold cloth of the canopy the Imperial arms, draped in black crape, are seen at intervals. Across the foot of the coffin is the gold mantle, edged with ermine. Four general aides-de-camp stand at each corner close to the coffin, and several other officers and members of the military schools stand motionless around. One Grenadier of the Palace is posted at the foot of the catafalque, which is towards the altar. At the head, the priests, with lighted tapers, continually read the Scriptures. Clustered in semicircles round the head and foot of the coffin are the Imperial regalia and orders and decorations on gold cushions, resting on small stools, also covered with gold cloth. The lid of the coffin, covered with beautiful flowers and bearing the sword and helmet, rests on a raised structure on one side of the church. It has the simple inscription on a gold plate of the birth, accession, and death of the illustrious Emperor Alexander II. On the two sides of the church are the beautiful white marble tombs of the deceased Sovereigns, the more recent ones decked with fresh flowers. The tomb of the late Empress, especially, is covered with fragrant bouquets and especially with violets, these having been brought from the tomb of her first son at Nice. The walls of the church are draped in black and silver. Continual streams of people press in within stated hours to take a last look at the remains of their late Emperor. Mounting the platform on one side between officers, they each reverently bend over and kiss the hands folded on the breast and make the sign of the Cross. Many cannot restrain their emotion and leave the church in tears." On the later days of the week, it was observed, there was some alteration, from the increasing crowds of visitors, who were admitted with all possible expedition to ascend the steps beneath the catafalque and kneel before the coffin. The face and hand of the Emperor were, however, no longer visible, being completely veiled by the mass of votive crowns placed there by loving and reverent hands. The steps of the dais were also thickly strewn with wreaths. The Russian Courier of Moscow contains a touching narrative, given by a member of a deputation of peasants who travelled to the modern capital for the purpose of laying a floral tribute at the feet of the dead Emperor.

"More and more," says this Russian peasant, "as we approached the church, did I feel my heart sink within me. At last we entered. There were many generals present. They made way to let us pass. From that moment my remembrance becomes confused. We fell on our knees and wept bitterly. We struck the pavement with our foreheads, and our tears flowed abundant and irrepressible. I was ashamed before so many generals; but all was of no avail, and I continued to weep. Three times we bent the knee. There are no words that will express what I felt. The coffin had disappeared between a mountain of wreaths; but General Kylieff parted the mass asunder, in order to place our crowns on the breast of our father. Yes, the wreath of the poor peasants rested on the heart of our liberator, of our martyr. Then our tears began once more to flow. The General permitted us to kiss the hand of the Sovereign. On beholding the countenance of the dead Emperor, I became as though petrified. It did not at all resemble the portraits which we all know. The hair and beard were completely white; the traces of the crime were visible on the left eyelid and on the cheek. They say this was due to the action of the horrible dynamite. But be was there in his coffin, our martyred Czar, with an expression of ineffable sweetness, as though he slept. A sacred image was between his hands; flowers encircled his head; and the whole face bore an aspect of such mildness that the most hardened and depraved heart might have been softened by the sight of this cruel martyrdom."

The final ceremony of burial—that is to say, the act of depositing the late Emperor's body in the vault beneath the floor of the church, where it had lain in state during eight days previously, was performed last Sunday. We shall give some Illustrations of this solemn ceremonial in our next publication.

The Emperor Alexander III. and the Empress, with the Grand Dukes and other members of the Russian Imperial family, arrived in the church soon after half-past ten o'clock. The mournful procession passed up the nave, preceded by the Metropolitan and attendant priests in brocades, robes, and jewelled mitres, to the dais, where they at once occupied the places assigned to them on the right of the coffin. The Emperor stood with his back to the column behind the Imperial regalia. The Empress and the Duchess of Edinburgh stood beside him, and the rest of the Imperial family took their places at the further corner of the platform.

Immediately behind the dais on either side were representatives of the various provinces, delegates from important cities and corporations, and the whole Diplomatic Corps. The body of the church was occupied by officials of the first and second rank, and deputies from all parts of the Empire situated within ten days' journey of the capital.

The religious ceremony then commenced, and was conducted with imposing grandeur and effect. Towards the middle of the service, the deep solemnity of which was softened by the sweet voices of the boy choristers, the Prince and Princess of Wales, the Duke of Edinburgh, the Crown Prince of Germany, and others, arrived. They joined their august relatives under the central canopy, the Princess of Wales standing beside her sister, now Empress of Russia.

Soon after one o'clock the service was ended; the Emperor stepped forward, and kissed the lips of his dead father. His Imperial Majesty stood by whilst the rest of the Imperial family followed his example. He then covered for the last time the face of the deceased.

Assisted by the Princes who were present, the Grand Dukes lifted the coffin, and carried it steadily and carefully to the side of the open vault.

The lid of the coffin was now fastened in the presence of the mourners, and the body of the Czar in its massive coffin was gently lowered into the vault.

Upon the ground beside the grave were strewn leaves and sand, of which the Emperor scattered a little upon the coffin as it lay in the vault. His Majesty's example was followed by all who were present at the ceremony, as, one by one, they filed by the open vault. Flowers and wreaths were strewn upon the catafalque.

As the last rite was accomplished the troops stationed outside the cathedral fired three rounds of musketry; the cannon of the fortress thundered forth a salvo across the Neva; the Imperial flag was hoisted, and the crowds, watching far off, behind the serried ranks of the soldiery, then knew that Alexander II. had been laid with his fathers.

The Emperor and Empress now returned to the Winter Palace. They were followed by the Grand Dukes and other members of the Imperial family, the Prince and Princess of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh, and the German Crown Prince.

The Imperial insignia, which formed a conspicuous object in the ceremony, were afterwards conveyed back to the palace, guarded by a military escort.

The vault in which were deposited the remains of the late Czar was not at once covered, and the military guard which had been in attendance during the lying in State was to remain there till the tomb should be finally closed.

On Monday last, the Prince of Wales, on behalf of her Majesty the Queen, invested the new Emperor Alexander III. with the Order of the Garter. The ceremony of investiture took place in the Throne Room of the Anitchkin Palace, in the presence of all the members of the Imperial Family, the Princess of Wales, the Crown Prince of Germany (who wore the Riband of the Order), the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh, and the Grand Duke of Hesse. The insignia of the Order were borne by the officers of the suite of the Prince of Wales, headed by Lord Dufferin and the staff of the British Embassy.

The trial of Russakoff and three other supposed accomplices in the plot to murder the late Emperor is fixed for Thursday next. One of them is a young lady, Sophie Perofskaya.

FINE ARTS.

MR. McLEAN'S AND MESSRS. TOOTH'S GALLERIES.

The spring exhibitions at these galleries in the Haymarket include, as usual, British and foreign oil-pictures, in about equal proportions. As regards, however, a large number of the works in both collections, it is hardly our duty to enter into detailed criticism. These are evidently painted for and offered to amateurs content with minor "examples" of popular artists, either English or foreign, the painters of many of the latter having been introduced to the London public at the neighbouring French gallery. The characteristics of these artists are too well known to need definition; and, besides, will probably in many cases be more fully represented in the major exhibitions of the year. It will suffice, then, to say that here are specimens of Messrs. Vicat and G. Cole, H. W. B. Davis, P. Graham, J. Webb, J. M'Whirter, E. A. Waterlow, Tom Lloyd, E. Parton, J. B. Burgess, R. Beavis, E. Crofts, J. J. Pott, Haywood, Hardy, T. B. Hardy, and James Hardy; and of the foreign artists E. Frere, Seignac, Roybet, Baisch, B. Constant, Rosa Bonheur, J. Benllieure, Fantin, Israels, Sadee, Blommers, &c.

However, there are in both collections a few works of fresher or more salient interest; and, as there appears to be more that is novel at Messrs. Tooth's, we refer to this gallery first. The principal attraction here, then, is a picture by L. C. Muller, representing the Encampment of a Caravan outside Cairo, which fully bears out all that we have said of the same painter's fine work at the French Gallery. The scene, animated with many figures of varied type, in their picturesque Oriental costumes, and flooded with sunlight, has the vividness of reality, with all the charms of art. The area of the view in the French Gallery picture is more limited, and the colouring therefore allowably deeper, but this is fully compensated by the sense of atmosphere and space in the present instance. Another picture is very remarkable as a daring attempt to master the difficulties of rendering brilliant sunlight chequered with the shade of trees. We allude to a view near the Arc de Triomphe, with the gay afternoon crowd of Parisians, by De Nittis. It requires some little time for the eye to become accustomed to the strong contrasts of colour in light and shade; but the picture will repay lengthened examination, and is in many parts a very successful technical achievement, though the artist hardly seizes French physiognomies more accurately than English. A picture by E. Schultz-Breisen tells its pitiful story with much feeling and intelligence, and is careful, honest, and sound, though not showy, in execution. A man "Committed" stands in chains near the prison door, his wife by his side holding their babe for a kiss but hiding her own face; the stern jailor waits impatiently; children, neighbours, and gossips have followed the unhappy pair, and lurking behind a pillar are two guilty-looking associates of the man, or who should perhaps take his place. Examples of foreign mannerisms will be found in R. Madrazo's "Souhrette," crude and meretricious as it is clever in other respects; Jacquet's female bust, in morning déshabille, also very clever and very French; Bastien Lepage's "Mowers"—uninteresting and vapid in colour; Michetti's "Gossip," and Rauber's "Asking the Way"—very sprightly and deft in handling, to which, however, there is little objection. Mr. Pettie almost reaches his best in a dashing pair of costume figures, male and female. Mr. Boughton's "Whisperings" of a couple of rustic lovers is likewise in his pleasantest vein. Lastly, there is a large landscape by Mr. Leader at the head of the room, effective and sparkling, as usual, the right-hand portion being specially successful in composition and in the effect of slanting sunlight.

At Mr. McLean's one of the pièces de résistance—indeed, strong meat and highly spiced—is a fearless display of blinding but skilfully-balanced chromatic exaggeration by Ziem, representing a "High-Tide at Venice"—so high that gondolas ply in the Piazza. At the very antipodes to this—in their sobriety, keeping, and perfect graduation of tone—are two small but very noteworthy coast scenes by E. Dücker, "A Summer's Evening" and "Sunrise—Holland." M. Dücker should be better known to our public and artists. There is consummate art in these modest, unlaboured little works, and, at the same time, a truth to nature that is almost illusive, particularly in the latter. A pretty bust of "An Egyptian," so-called, by J. Van Beers, is disappointing after the little picture of the lady in pink at a rendezvous à la campagne, which attracted so much attention at the last Salon. The flesh is smooth and stippled, like a coloured photograph. A picture by Palmaroli is noticeable for its own merit, and also for its frame, which is a charming piece of decorative art. Why cannot we have some inventive design in picture-frames? Mr. Orchardson has seldom done anything better than "Rejected"—a gentleman retiring from a room after receiving his congé from a young lady in a high-waisted dress of the Empire. Despite the artist's slight formal execution, and the canvas to let, the risky situation is given with exquisite feeling, tact, and delicacy. In Mr. F. Holls' "Fisherman's Home" the expression of the young woman holding the knife is not a little ambiguous; and the artist's affection for violent contrasts of light and shade, or rather of whiteness and blackness, grows upon him. Mr. P. R. Morris's picture of a pretty little girl with a nosegay embracing her dainty mamma on her (mamma's) birthday is very sweet in sentiment—almost, indeed, to the point of mawkishness: the background, slight as it is, and conventional in the negative middle tone, is artistically suggestive. By Mr. Briton Rivière there are two or three capital little pictures with dogs, in one of which, called "The Poacher's Nurse," the man's dog is licking his hand as it lies out of bed.

At a general meeting of the Society of Painters in Water Colours held on Monday Professor Adolph Mengel, of Berlin, was elected an honorary member, and Messrs. George du Maurier and Wilmot Pilsbury were elected associate exhibitors.

Messrs. Christie, Manson, and Wood, sold, last Saturday, the pictures and water-colour drawings of Mr. A. Roberts, the collection realising more than £800).

Mr. Keyworth has been commissioned by the Mansion House Rowland Hill Memorial Committee to supply the bust of the Post-Office reformer for the memorial in Westminster Abbey.

An exhibition of ancient English and other art-needlework was opened to the public on Tuesday at the Royal School, South Kensington, and will remain open till the 9th inst.

Mr. J. F. B. Firth, M.P., yesterday week presented the prizes for the past year's work to the successful students at the Broadway (Hammersmith) Science and Art Classes.

The Lord Lieutenant of Ireland and the Countess Cowper were present on Thursday week at the distribution of prizes to the students of the Dublin School of Art. His Excellency gave a brief address. On the same day Lord Powerscourt presided at the annual meeting of the Art Union of Ireland.

The Wright Memorial Committee have commissioned Mr. F. J. Williamson to execute a statue in Italian marble of the late Mr. J. S. Wright, to be placed in Birmingham; and Mr. Williamson is executing for the Corporation of Birmingham a bust in marble of Mr. Samuel Timmins, J.P., to be placed in the free library of that town.

The Lord Mayor presided at the annual distribution of prizes to students in the Female School of Art on Monday afternoon in the Egyptian Hall of the Mansion House, in the presence of a numerous assembly. In the twenty-first annual report of the committee attention was drawn to the fact that two National Silver Medals, one National Bronze Medal, and five National Queen's Prizes of Books, had been gained in competition with all the schools of art in the United Kingdom. At the same time the committee expressed their gratification at the general excellence observable in the work of the various classes of students, as shown by the sixty-one Third-grade Prizes obtained, being the largest number hitherto awarded to this school. During the past year 223 students received instruction in art education.

ROYAL INSTITUTION LECTURES.

ORIGIN AND DESTINATION OF THE BLOOD CORPUSCLES.

Professor E. A. Schäfer, F.R.S., began his ninth lecture, on Tuesday, March 22, by stating that the origin of the nucleated red corpuscles of the blood had been chiefly studied in the chick. Early on the second day of incubation the embryo is seen to be surrounded by a circular area, marked out by its mottled appearance from the rest of the germinal membrane. Reddish specks, which are really enlarged cells (the "blood-islands" of Rander), dot this "vascular area." These extend, and, by joining with one another, become blood-vessels—the blood corpuscles being developed within them (Klein). In mammals there is also a vascular area, in which a similar development takes place: so that the first blood corpuscles and vessels are formed outside the body. The white blood corpuscles are probably only some of the embryonic or germinal cells, which have found their way into the blood-vessels of the vascular area. In regard to the origin of the red disks of mammals, the Professor considered various opinions. It has been thought that the formation of the blood corpuscles takes place in young animals in the cells of the connective tissues, the cells becoming hollowed out and converted into vessels which join those already existing. It has also been supposed that they are formed from white corpuscles, which become coloured and lose their nuclei; or from cells like white corpuscles found in the marrow of certain bones, or from similar cells in the spleen. Besides blood corpuscles and fibrin filaments, there are to be seen in a drop of blood numerous very minute round particles, many of which, according to Hayem, are coloured, being in process of transformation into coloured blood corpuscles. In regard to the problem how and where red blood corpuscles are destroyed, Professor Schäfer suggested, that some are gradually dissolved in the blood, and some are taken into the interior of white corpuscles in the spleen, and broken up in them. In all probability the hæmoglobin of the red blood corpuscles is transformed into the colouring matter of the bile. Numerous magnified specimens were shown by the electric light, including the beating of the heart of the chick in the egg after a few days' incubation.——Professor Schafer, in his concluding lecture, on Tuesday next, will consider the changes which the blood undergoes in disease, and the medico-legal detection of blood.

ANTIQUE ORNAMENT.

Mr. H. H. Statham, in his second lecture, given on Thursday, March 24, began by contrasting the characteristics of the classic school of ornament with those of the Romance school, the former exhibiting subjection to logical principles in dealing with pure forms, geometrical or natural, the latter aiming rather at general effect, with indifference to logical development and correctness. The Egyptians were described as the precursors of the Greeks in art. They did their best with hard stubborn materials. They used in abstract ornament geometrical forms very effectively, of which very characteristic specimens were exhibited in large diagrams. From them was originally derived the idea of the Greek fret or key pattern, which is based upon squares drawn one within another, the lines being broken off and reunited in such a manner as to mask the real basis of the design. They also, in copying natural forms, such as leaves, appear to have aimed at accuracy rather than conventional treatment. The great excellence of Greek ornament and its prevalence and influence throughout Europe to the present day were next considered. Its logical development, beauty, and refinement were dwelt on, as exhibited in diagrams. In their abstract ornament the Greeks were great masters in the employment of rhythm, symmetry, repetition, and alternation of forms. All their curves are so constructed as to proceed from each other; and even in their treatment of natural objects, such as the honeysuckle ornament, Mr. Statham suggested that it was no imitation, but merely the natural principle of growth from a central stem systematically carried out. The Greeks, he said, adopted ideas from all nations, making them their own, with increased beauty; thus, the Ionic column appears to have had a Persian origin. They conventionalised natural forms, such as the acanthus leaf in the capital of the Corinthian column, with great effect. This was vulgarised by the Romans in their very elaborate copies, in which the foliage appears cabbage-like when compared with the severe purity of the Greek lines and curves. Commenting on the inferiority of Pompeian ornament, he pointed out its remarkable similarity to that of the Renaissance. The lecture concluded with the exhibition of specimens of Byzantine ornament, the link between the Antique and Mediæval styles.

WEATHER AND HEALTH OF LONDON.

Mr. Alexander Buchan, F.R.S.E., Secretary of the Scottish Meteorological Society, at the evening meeting on Friday, March 25, commented on the results obtained, by Dr. Arthur Mitchell and himself, from eight years' study of the meteorological and vital statistics of London as set forth chiefly in the weekly reports of the Registrar-General. The metropolis was chosen for investigation on account of its enormous population, spread over such a limited area, that it may be regarded as having only one climate for each season of the year. The maximum of deaths from diseases of the abdominal organs was stated to be in summer, from those of the respiratory organs in winter. The year was divided into six climates—(1) beginning October (fourth week), damp and cold—"the fall of the leaf;" mortality largely increased over all the line, especially diseases of the respiratory organs and fevers; (2) beginning December (fourth week), cold—rapid increase of deaths from whooping-cough, with maximum of diseases of respiratory organs; great fatality through fog, especially from asthma, bronchitis, and pneumonia; (3) beginning February (fourth week), dry and cold—maximum of deaths from nervous diseases; (4) beginning April (second week), dry and warm; healthy period; maximum of some nervous diseases; and at the end of the period rise of deaths from abdominal diseases, cholera, &c.; (5) beginning June (fourth week), heat—maximum of abdominal diseases, atrophy and debility (varying with age), convulsions, hydrocephalus; (6) beginning September (second week), damp and warm—maximum of dysentery and cholera, scarlet fever, &c. Dysentery and similar diseases show a very marked obedience to seasonal influences. The chief maximum time of nervous disease is May. This suggests that in many of the deaths attributed to teething and whooping-cough, the nervous centres are involved. Scarlet fever and diphtheria also appear to be allied. In conclusion, Mr. Buchan said that more recent and extended researches in regard to special diseases, such as scarlet fever, whooping-cough, and bronchitis, convinced Dr. Mitchell and himself of the necessity of securing a greater uniformity in observing the temperature and humidity of the air, and, as regards atmospheric humidity, perhaps more radical changes in the methods of observation, so as to state scientifically what are the actual climatic differences, under different types of weather, of such situations as Wapping, and the air immediately round the parks of the metropolis.

OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES.

The Rev. H. R. Haweis, M.A., began his second lecture on American Humourists, given on Saturday last, March 26, by stating that Oliver Wendell Holmes was born at Cambridge, Massachusetts, in 1809; graduated at Harvard University in 1829; studied the law for a year; visited Europe in 1833, when he gave up law for medicine, which he studied for three years at Paris; on his return home became Professor in 1836, and practised till 1849. To the first twelve numbers of the Atlantic Monthly, of which he was one of the founders, he contributed the celebrated papers entitled the "Autocrat of the Breakfast Table," on which his fame as a humourist chiefly rests. Other writings appeared in the North American Review. After noticing Holmes's poems, which partly remind us of Pope, Hood, and the "Rejected Addresses," and giving short examples, Mr. Haweis commented on his personal character, which, as it shines forth in all his works, exhibits his religious tolerance, his unrivalled power of observation and delineation of character, his ideal of life, with true love for goodness, not worshipping either talent or money apart from honour; his great respect for women; preferring the "woman of heart" to the "woman of brain;" yet not loving a fool; liking all feminine good qualities to be nicely balanced. In his writings he also duly estimates the relative claims of body and soul; and his close intimacy with suffering, incident to his practice of the medical profession, rendered him inexpressibly tender and humane. In illustration of Holmes's flashes of wit and atmosphere of humour, abundantly mingled with good sense, Mr. Haweis read many short extracts; touching upon the difference between tragedy and comedy, the gilt bosses of money and matrimony, and similar topics. Travellers were described as changing their guineas, and not their dispositions; and people were said to have no consciences respecting horseflesh, violins, or umbrellas. The development of hats, buns, and coughs, was satirically traced; and the lecture concluded with passages from the pleasing love story which closes the "Autocrat of the Breakfast Table," a work which abounds with lifelike sketches, leaving details to be pleasantly supplied by the imagination of the reader.

Professor Tyndall will give a discourse on the Conversion of Radiant Heat into Sound at the meeting on the 8th inst.

No lectures will be given during Holy (or Passion) and Easter weeks.

IRISH EMIGRANTS.

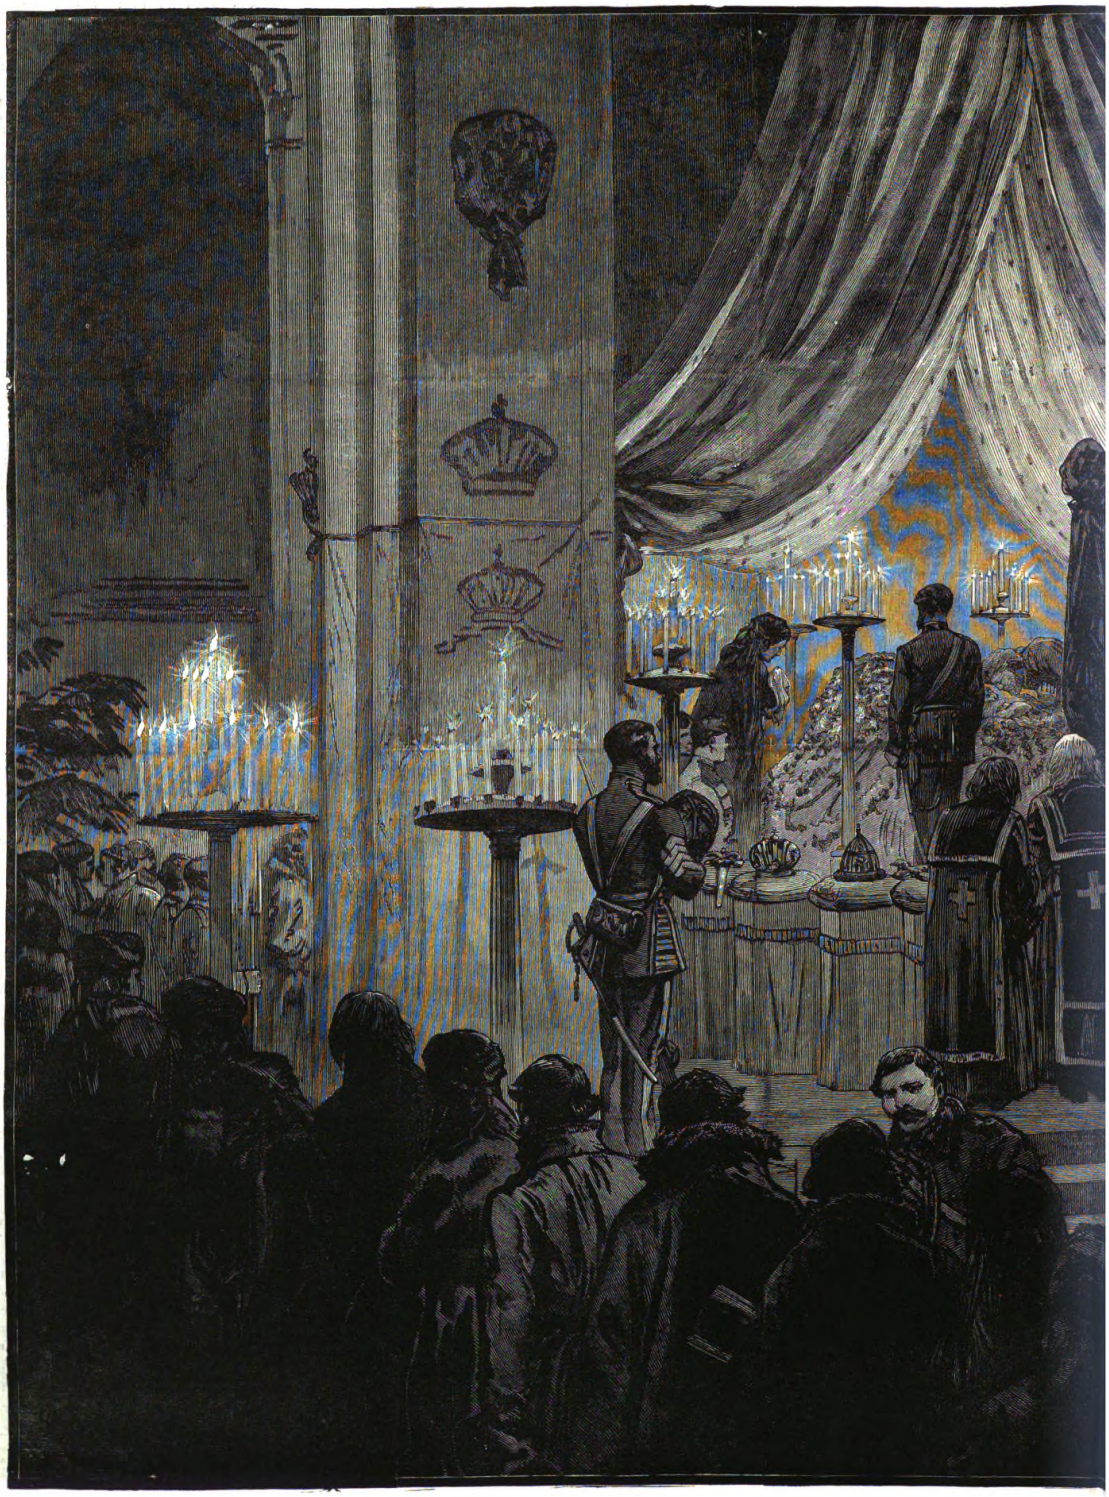
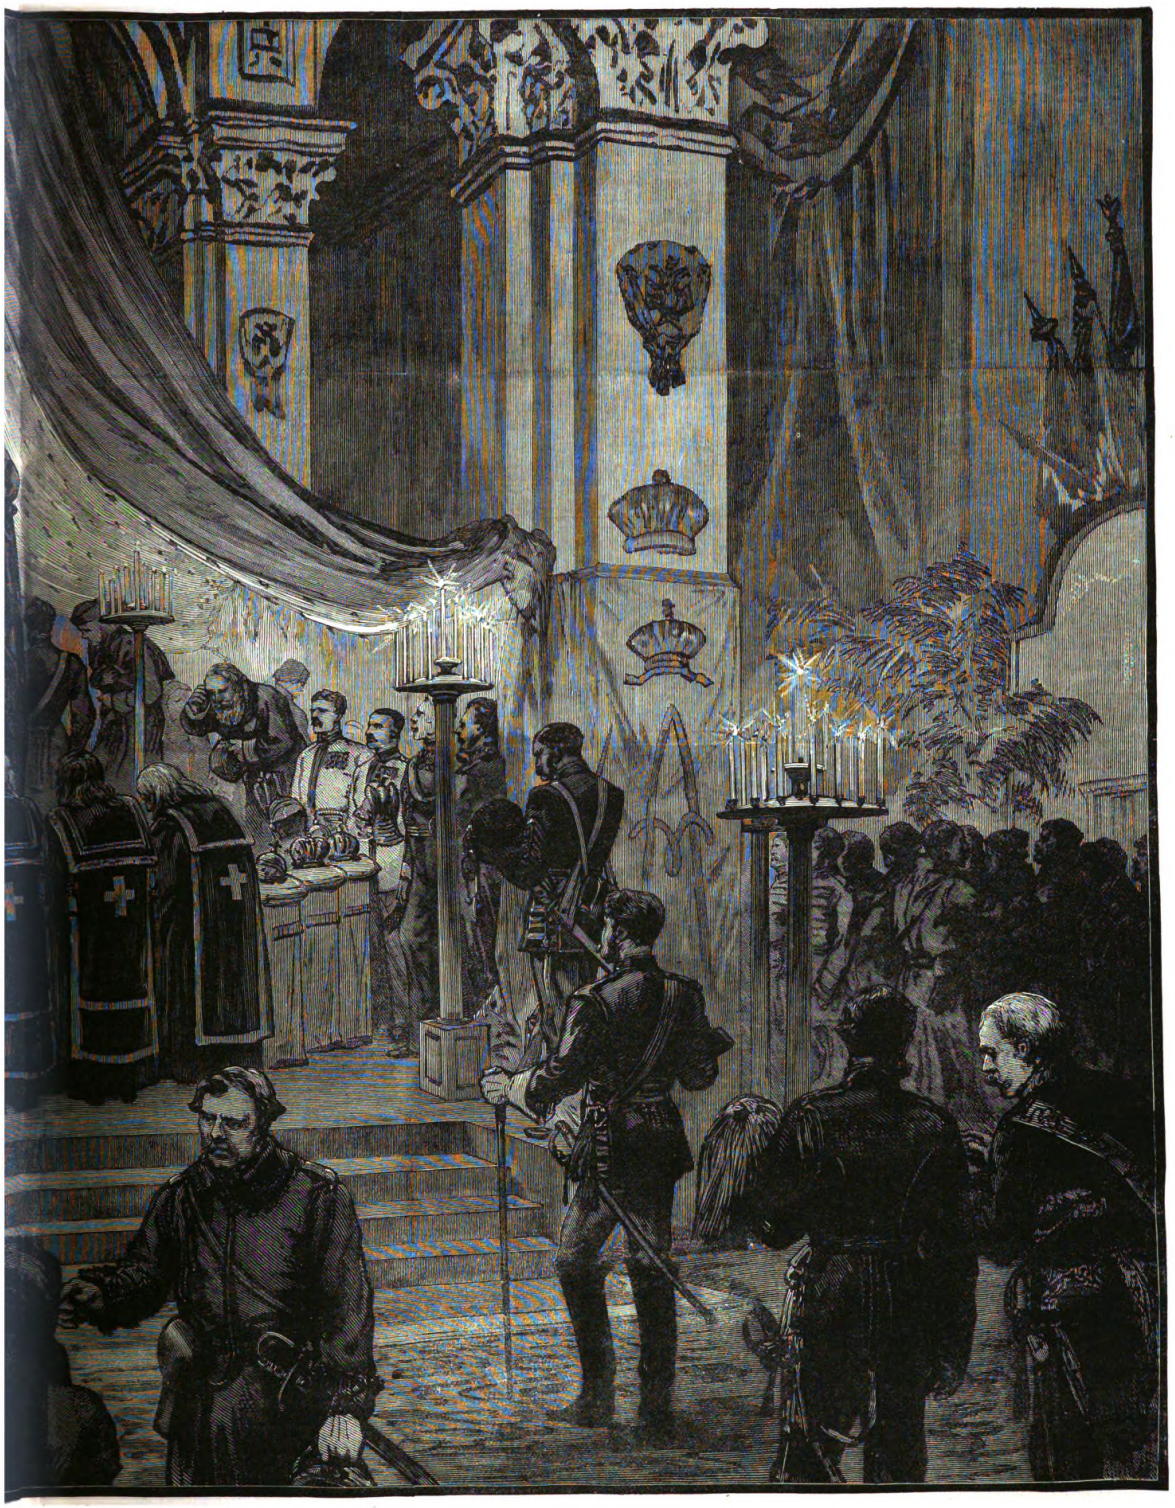
The doleful countenances and demeanour of these poor people, waiting on the platform of a railway station for the train which must convey them to a port of embarkation, should not be regarded as protesting against emigration to America or elsewhere, if this be considered the best remedy for the distress of the agricultural peasantry. We have read and heard some very decided opinions, from persons of great practical acquaintance with the industrial capabilities of the West of Ireland people, and with the conditions of those new lands of promise to which they are invited to transfer their labour, in hope of a secure and comfortable livelihood. If only half be true of what is said upon this topic, it would be a sin to discourage the poor emigrant; and we do not mean that such should be the effect of publishing our Artist's Sketch. However woe-begone and sorrowful they look—the Irish are most affectionate to their kindred—at the moment of parting from those dearest to them, and from the home of their youth, it is yet to be hoped that they will hail the arrival in Manitoba, or wherever they are going, with a cheerful alacrity, and will soon be engaged in profitable work. Any testimonies which may come to hand proving that Irish emigrants of this class have actually done well in the New World should be published for the consolation of those who sympathise with their lot. We are sure that in England as well as in Ireland it is felt to be a subject of general concern.

Last Saturday afternoon the annual general meeting of the Printers' Pension Corporation was held at the Memorial Hall, Farringdon-street. Mr. William Charles K. Clowes was called to the chair, and opened the proceedings by recapitulating the progress of the charity for the past year. The Pension Fund showed receipts amounting to £2767, and the expenditure left a balance of £404; the receipts for the Almshouse Fund, including a balance of £43 due to bankers, were £435, which gives the amount of expenditure, including repayment of a debt of £67 due to the treasurer; the Orphan Fund, with a balance of £28 in hand, showed an income of £395, and the eleemosynary outlay was £328. The amount paid in pensions was £1700, and when the financial year closed there were 116 pensioners on the list, and sixteen new ones were elected at the meeting. The report and financial statement were adopted.



THE LATE EMPEROR OF RUSSIA LYING IN STAT

FROM A SKETCH BY



STATE IN THE CHURCH OF ST. PETER AND ST. PAUL.

FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.

OBITUARY.

THE EARL OF CAITHNESS.

The Right Hon. James Sinclair, F.R.S., Earl of Caithness and Lord Berriedale in the Peerage of Scotland, Baron Barrogill in the Peerage of the United Kingdom, and a Baronet of Nova Scotia, Lord Lieutenant and Vice-Admiral, of Caithness, died at New York on the 28th ult. He was born Dec. 16, 1821, the son of Alexander, thirteenth Earl, by Harriett, his wife, youngest daughter and coheiress of the Very Rev. William Leigh, of Rushall, Dean of Hereford, and succeeded to the Scottish honours Dec. 24, 1855, at the decease of his father. His Lordship married, first, in July 1847, Louisa Georgiana, daughter of Sir George Richard Philips, Bart., of Weston; and secondly, March 6, 1872, Marie, widow of General the Conde de Medina Pomar, and daughter of Senhor Don Jose de Mariategui. By the former (who died July 31, 1870), he leaves a son, George Philips Alexander, Lord Berriedale, born Nov. 30, 1858, who becomes fifteenth Earl of Caithness, and a daughter, Lady Fanny Georgana Elizabeth Sinclair. The nobleman whose death we record was under Lord Palmerston's Administration a Lord in Waiting to the Queen; and was created, May 1, 1865, a Peer of the United Kingdom. His Lordship was well known by his scientific inventions.

LORD DUNBOYNE.

The Right Hon. Theobald FitzWalter Butler, Baron of Dunboyne, in the county of Meath, a Representative Peer for Ireland, died on the 22nd ult., at his seat, Knoppogue Castle, in the county of Clare. His Lordship was born Feb. 11, 1806, the eldest son of James, thirteenth Lord Dunboyne, by his first wife, Eleanor, daughter of Mr. David O'Connell, of Cork, and succeeded to the title at his father's death, July 6, 1850. He married, Nov. 14, 1832, Julia Celestina Maria, second daughter of the late Mr. William Brander, of Morden Hall, Surrey, and leaves one surviving daughter, Julia Anne, unmarried, and two surviving sons—viz., James FitzWalter, now fifteenth Lord Dunboyne, and the Hon. Robert St. John FitzWalter Butler, Master of the Court of Exchequer in England, both of whom are married: the elder son, the present Lord Dunboyne, was born May 20, 1839, and married, June 12, 1860, Marion, only child of Colonel Henry Morgan-Clifford, of Llantilio, and assumed in consequence the prefix surname of Clifford. By her, he has an only daughter, Rosalinda-Catherine-Sophia. The noble House of Dunboyne, is an early branch of the illustrious Anglo-Norman family the Butlers of Ormonde, the great rivals of the Geraldines, and their equals in historic importance and renown. The nobleman whose death we record was much beloved. His tastes were historic and antiquarian, and the collections formed by him on those subjects are very interesting.

SIR C. REED, M.P.

Sir Charles Reed, M.P. for St. Ives, Chairman of the London School Board, died on the 25th ult., at Earlsmead, Tottenham. He was born in 1819, the son of the Rev. Andrew Reed, D.D., by Eliza, his wife, daughter of Mr. J. T. Holmes. He was educated at the London University, and had the degree of LL.D. from Yale University conferred on him in 1876. Sir Charles was senior partner in the well-known firm of type-founders bearing his name. He became Chairman of the London School Board in 1874, in which year he received the honour of knighthood. From 1868 to 1874 he sat in Parliament for Hackney, and at the general election last year was returned for St. Ives. Sir Charles was prominently associated with educational institutions, both at home and abroad. He married, in 1846, Margaret, daughter of Mr. Edward Baines, M.P. A portrait of Sir Charles Reed is given in the present Number.

MR. SERJEANT BURKE.

Peter Burke, of the Inner Temple, Serjeant-at-Law, died on the 26th ult., at his residence in South Kensington. He was eldest son of the late Mr. John Burke, of London, and grandson of Mr. Peter Burke, of Elm Hall, in the county of Tipperary, J.P. for that county and the King's County, and was consequently elder brother of Sir Bernard Burke, C.B., Ulster King of Arms. Serjeant Burke was an accomplished scholar, a graceful writer, and, in some branches of his profession, an erudite and able lawyer. He edited several legal works of authority; and, in general literature, gained also considerable reputation. His "Life" of his great namesake, "Edmund Burke," and his "Romance of the Forum" are well known. He was at one time president of the Society of Antiquaries of Normandy; and always took a peculiar interest in the old Norman town of Caen, where he had been educated. A remarkable incident is associated with his academic honours at the college there. In a concursus with French students in the class of rhetoric he carried off the prize for the best essay in the French language. He was called to the English Bar in 1839, and became a Serjeant-at-Law in 1863. He practised on the Northern Circuit; and appeared as counsel before the House of Lords in several important peerage cases, such as "Dunboyne," "Fermoy," "Shrewsbury," "Inchiquin," and "Netterville."

We have also to record the deaths of—

Mr. John Prescott, Knight, R.A., the well-known painter, late Secretary of the Royal Academy, on the 26th ult., at 24, Maida Hill West.

Mrs. Holt Mackenzie (Harriett), widow of the Right Hon. Holt Mackenzie, of Wimpole-street, and Aspenden Lodge, Herts, on the 14th ult., aged seventy-nine.

Mr. Barry Girling, D.L. for Norfolk, formerly Captain West Norfolk Militia, at The Heath, East Dereham, in his ninety-third year.

Major P. Cahill, Military Knight of Windsor on the Royal Foundation, an officer who had seen service in China and the Crimea, at his residence in the Lower Ward of the castle.

Mr. William Corrie, late City Remembrancer, on the 24th ult., in his seventy-fifth year. Born in 1806, he practised for a time as a solicitor, but was called to the Bar in 1836. He had a good practice, and was Deputy Judge of the Palace Court until its abolition. In 1851 he was appointed a metropolitan magistrate, and in 1864 was elected Remembrancer of the City of London.

Viscountess d'Airey (Amelia), at Lisbon. She was second daughter of Mr. George D. Walsh, of Lisbon, and was married, in December, 1851, to Captain John Moore Cole Airey, R.N., Viscount d'Airey, in the Kingdom of Portugal, brother to General Lord Airey, G.C.B.

Mr. D. P. Le Grice, of Trereife, Cornwall, on the 19th ult., aged eighty-one. He was the only child of the Rev. Charles Valentine Le Grice, M.A., of Trereife. He was educated at Eton, and at Oriel College, Oxford, where he took his degree of B.A., in 1822. He was a Magistrate and Deputy Lieutenant for Cornwall, a Deputy Warder of the Stannaries, and served as High Sheriff in 1864. He married Arabella Mary, daughter of the Rev. Christopher Tuthill, of Webbville, Cork, and is succeeded by his only son, Charles D. N. Le Grice, who is married, and has children.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

All communications relating to this department of the Paper should be addressed to the Editor, and have the word "Chess" written on the envelope.

F C (Gloucester).—We are quite sure you are mistaken. The vast majority of our readers know that a Pawn may be promoted to any piece except a King.

J D (Dublin).—Please to look at No. 1935 again.

D W K (Brighton).—Your play has greatly improved, but the game is much too long and is lacking in point.

H N H (Warsaw).—We will make inquiries, and if the book can be found shall comply with your request.

W B (Stratford).—One of yours is marked for insertion next week.

Correct Solutions of Problems Nos. 1927 and 1928 received from W Pocock (Cape Town); of 1930 and of Mr. Taylor's Problem from Va (U.S.), and of No. 1932 from Philosythmos.

Correct Solutions of Problem No. 1933 received from S D Berrell, C M A B (Surbiton), F Chuckaray, John Perkins, H F Jones, James Atkinson, James L Myland, and Philosythmos (Almada).

Correct Solutions of Problem No. 1934 received from D A (Dublin), W Heward Cuitty, J J Vernon, John Perkins, Robert Foster, M H Moorhouse, H F Jones, James Atkinson, J Bumstead, Thornhill-square, "Fitzwarine," and R Bohm Junior (Vienna).

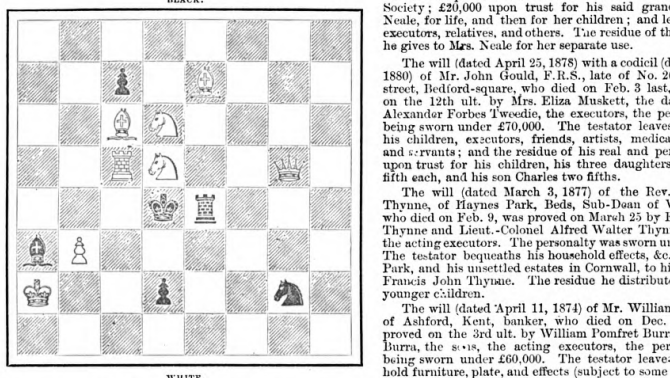
Correct Solutions of Problem No. 1935 received from H B, Sidmouth, J W Waugh, D A (Dublin), E L G, Sudbury, Capt. East Marden, Shaftoth, H H Noyes, Aaron Harper, R T Kemp, F G Pariser, S Fairnot, L L Greenaway, S Lowndes, C W Milsom, F Ferris, Elsie, Ben Nevis, C S Cox, R Jesson, An Old Hand, C Oswald, E Casella (Paris), B W Keil, E Elsbury, M of Helsowan, C Darrell, L Sharswood, E Sharswood, S S Harris, J G Anstee, R Grey, G L Mayne, R L Dyke, D Templeton, E J Vines, G W Law, H Langford, Jupiter Junior, H Blacklock, A Karberg (Hamburg), A M Colborne, John Perkins, R H Brooks, J Alois Schmucke, Frank Littleboy, and E Louden.

Solution of Problem No. 1934.

| WHITE. | BLACK. |
|---|---|
| 1. B to Q B sq | |
| 2. Mates accordingly. | Any move |

PROBLEM No. 1937.
By F. J. Kelner (Vienna).

BLACK.



WHITE.

White to play, and mate in three moves.

Played in the Match between the City of London and the St. George's Chess Clubs, Mr. Gunzberg on the one side and Dr. Ballard on the other.

(Allgaier Gambit.)

| WHITE (Mr. G.) | BLACK (Dr. B.) | WHITE (Mr. G.) | BLACK (Dr. B.) |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1. P to K 4th | P to K 4th | 13. | Kt to Kt 5th |
| 2. P to K B 4th | P takes P | 14. Q to K 2nd | K takes R |
| 3. Kt to K B 3rd | P to K Kt 4th | 15. P to R 3rd | Kt to B 3rd |
| 4. P to K Kt 4th | P to Kt 5th | 16 Castles | K to Kt 3rd |
| 5. Kt to Kt 5th | P to K R 3rd | 17. Kt to Q 5th | R to R 2nd |
| 6. Kt takes P | K takes Kt | 18. P to K 5th | R to B 2nd |
| 7. P to Q 4th | P to Q 3rd | 19. P to Q 3rd (ch) | K to Kt 2nd |
| 8. B to B 4th (ch) | K to Kt 3rd | 20. Kt to B 6th | Kt takes Q P |
| 9. B takes P | Kt to K B 3rd | | |
| 10. Q to Q 3rd | Q to K sq | A singular oversight to occur in an important match game. Black, however, has no good move in this position. | |
| 11. Kt to B 3rd | Kt to Q B 3rd | | |
| 12. P to R 5th (ch) | Kt takes P | 21. Kt takes Q (ch), and Black resigned. | |
| 13. R takes Kt | | | |

A bold stroke for victory, and quite in Mr. Gunzberg's dashing style of play.

During a recent visit to New Orleans, Captain Mackenzie, the American chess champion, played sixteen games simultaneously, of which he won eight and lost three, the remainder being drawn. The following is one of the games played on this occasion.—(Evans's Gambit.)

| WHITE (Captain M.). | BLACK (Mr. Maurian). | WHITE (Captain M.). | BLACK (Mr. Maurian). |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1. P to K 4th | P to K 4th | 12. Q to B 3rd | Kt to Q R 5th |
| 2. Kt to K B 3rd | Kt to Q B 3rd | 13. Q to K Kt 3rd | K to R sq |
| 3. B to B 4th | B to B 4th | 14. B to K Kt 5th | Q to K sq |
| 4. P to Kt 4th | B takes P | 15. Q R to K sq | R to K Kt sq |
| 5. P to Q B 3rd | B to R 4th | 16. Q to R 4th | Kt to B 4th |
| 6. Castles | Kt to K B 3rd | 17. P to K B 4th | Kt to K 3rd |
| 6. P to Q 3rd is the best move at this juncture; but Mr. Maurian's skill has probably fallen off during his long retirement from active play. | | 18. P to K B 5th | Kt takes B |
| | | 19. Q takes Kt | P to Q Kt 4th |
| 7. P to Q 4th | Castles | 20. B to Q 3rd | Q to Q sq |
| 8. Kt takes P | Kt takes Kt | 21. P to B 6th | P to K Kt 3rd |
| 9. P takes Kt | Kt takes Q P | 22. R to K 4th | Q to K B sq |
| 10. Q to Q 5th | B takes Q B P | 23. R to K R 4th | B to Kt 2nd |
| 11. Kt takes B | Kt takes Kt | 24. K R to B 4th | Q to B 4th (ch) |
| | | 25. R to Q 4th, and wins. | |

On Wednesday, the 23rd ult., a match was played between the North London and Shaftesbury Chess Clubs, the former winning with a score of seven games to five.

A match between the City of London and St. George's Chess Clubs was played at Willis's Rooms on the 24th ult. The City Club was represented by Messrs. Blackburne, Baddeley, Block, Earnshaw, Gunzberg, Henley, Heywood, Hockvale, Jackson, Jansens, Lord, Macdonnell, Mason, Potter, Stevens, and Vyse; the St. George's Club by Messrs. Ballard, Ball, Battie, Gunston, Hirschfeld, Lewis, Lindsay, Marett, Minchin, Owen, Puller, Barken, Salter, Warner, Wayte, and Zukertort. The score of the first-rate players shows a majority of games in favour of the City, but on the whole score the St. George's won the match by twelve games to nine and four draws. We give above one of the games played on this occasion between Messrs. Ballard and Gunzberg, who, we see, won one game of the other.

A handicap tourney, which has been in progress for some time past at the Café de la Régence, Paris, has just been brought to a conclusion. The prize, a hundred francs, presented by the proprietor of the café, was won by M. Naglte.

The score in the match between Messrs. Blackburne and Gunzberg, the former yielding the large odds of two games out of seven, now stands—Mr. Blackburne, 3; Mr. Gunzberg, 4; and one game drawn.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will (dated Dec. 19, 1877) of the Right Hon. William John, Earl of Cottenham, late of Tandridge Court, Godstone, Surrey, who died on Jan. 20 last, at St. Leonard's-on-Sea, was proved on the 16th ult. by the Right Hon. Theodosia Selina, Countess of Cottenham, the widow, and sole executrix, the personal estate being sworn under £25,000. The testator, after making a bequest to his brother, the Hon. Henry Leslie Pepys, gives the residue of his estate and effects to his wife for her own absolute use and benefit.

The will (dated Feb. 11, 1870) with a codicil (dated Feb. 14, 1878) of Mr. William Ellis, late of No. 6, Lancaster-terrace, Regent's Park, who died on Feb. 11 last, was proved on the 16th ult. by James Innes and Julian Hill, the surviving executors, the personal estate being sworn under £160,000. The testator bequeaths his household furniture, plate, pictures, effects, horses and carriages to his daughter, Mrs. Lucy Ducamp; an annuity of £300 to his brother, Charles Ellis; £1000 each to his executors, and to John Runtz and the Rev. Lewis Wood; an annuity of £200 to William Andrew Shields; an annuity of £60 to William Lovett; and £200 each to Robert W. Pike, Edward Teather, and James Runtz. As to the residue of his property, he leaves one third upon trust for the children of his late son, Edward Ellis; one third upon trust for his daughter Mrs. Lucy Ducamp; and one third upon trust for his daughter Mrs. Mary Durham.

The will (dated Feb. 18, 1879) of Mr. William Hudson, late of Kirmington-vale, Lincolnshire, who died on Feb. 1 last, was proved on the 15th ult. by William Parkinson Neale and Robert Brown, jun., the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £90,000. The testator devises the Kirmington-vale estate upon trust, as to one third for his great niece, Mrs. Hannah Margaret Neale, in tail general; as to another third for Joseph Barton Carter for life, and then equally between his (testator's) great nephew and nieces, Francis Edward Carter, Annie Martha Cumpston, and Charlotte Henrietta Mary Titley; and as to the remaining third for Atkinson Pickering for life, and then equally between his (testator's) great nephews and niece, William Hudson Atkinson Pickering, Atkinson Pickering, and Mary Eliza Pickering; the Thornton Hall estate he settles upon the said Francis Edward Carter, charged with £8000 in favour of his sisters Mrs. Cumpston and Mrs. Titley; the estate at Thornton Curtis, which he bought of Messrs. Winn and Hague, he settles upon the said W. H. A. Pickering, charged with the payment of £6000 to his brother Atkinson and £4000 to his sister Mary Eliza; all the residue of his real estate is settled upon Mrs. Neale; the testator bequeaths £50 to the British and Foreign Bible Society; £20,000 upon trust for his said grandniece, Mrs. Neale, for life, and then for her children; and legacies to his executors, relatives, and others. The residue of the personalty he gives to Mrs. Neale for her separate use.

The will (dated April 25, 1878) with a codicil (dated Oct. 27, 1880) of Mr. John Gould, F.R.S., late of No. 26, Charlotte-street, Bedford-square, who died on Feb. 3 last, was proved on the 12th ult. by Mrs. Eliza Muskett, the daughter, and Alexander Forbes Tweedie, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £70,000. The testator leaves legacies to his children, executors, friends, artists, medical attendant, and servants; and the residue of his real and personal estate upon trust for his children, his three daughters taking one fifth each, and his son Charles two fifths.

The will (dated March 3, 1877) of the Rev. Lord John Thynne, of Haynes Park, Beds, Sub-Dean of Westminster, who died on Feb. 9, was proved on March 25 by Francis John Thynne and Lieut.-Colonel Alfred Walter Thynne, his sons, the acting executors. The personalty was sworn under £60,000. The testator bequeaths his household effects, &c., at Haynes Park, and his unsettled estates in Cornwall, to his eldest son, Francis John Thynne. The residue he distributes among his younger children.

The will (dated April 11, 1874) of Mr. William Burra, late of Ashford, Kent, banker, who died on Dec. 4 last, was proved on the 3rd ult. by William Pomfret Burra and Henry Burra, the sons, the acting executors, the personal estate being sworn under £60,000. The testator leaves his household furniture, plate, and effects (subject to some specific gifts to his other children), horses and carriages to his daughter, Miss Elizabeth Dent Burra, he also leaves £10,000 upon trust for her; to his sons Henry and James Salkeld certain freehold properties and £6000 each; and among the other bequests there are legacies to the clerks in the Ashford Bank and to his groom. The residue of his real and personal estate he leaves to his son William Pomfret Burra.

The will (dated May 24, 1876) of Mrs. Amelia Cornish, late of Clifton Lodge, Norwood, who died on Jan. 29 last, was proved on the 12th ult. by Henry Pollock, the nephew, Charles Frederick Bailey, and Charles Cornish Brown, the nephew, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £45,000. The testatrix leaves to her executors £200 each; to Blanche Daubeney, £500; to her sister Caroline Brown an annuity of £200; to her sister Georgina Ann Brown an annuity of £100; to her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Bertha Ann Cornish Brown, her residence, with the furniture, plate, and effects during widowhood; legacies to her servants; and the residue of her property, real and personal, upon trust for her grandson, John Charles Cornish.

The will (dated May 16, 1879) with a codicil (dated July 23, 1880) of Mr. Thomas Josiah Laing, late of No. 82, Holland-road, Kensington, who died on Nov. 15 last, has been proved by Henry Avory and Henry Kemp Avory, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £25,000. The testator gives several legacies, including £3000 to his nurse, Rachel Hiscock; and the residue of his real and personal property upon trust for his sister, Miss Emma Laing, for life; at her death some further legacies are payable, and one half of the ultimate residue is given to the said Rachel Hiscock, and the other half as his said sister shall appoint.

The will (dated Feb. 16, 1881) of Mr. Henry Constable (the jockey), late of Epsom, who died on Feb. 17 last, was proved on the 12th ult. by the Earl of Rosebery, the sole executor, the personal estate being sworn under £8000. The testator leaves the whole of his property, subject to the payment of his debts, funeral and testamentary expenses, upon trust for his mother, Mrs. Mary Constable, for life, and then as to one moiety as she shall by will appoint, and as to the other moiety, for his sister Helen.

At the meeting of the Indian Section of the Society of Arts, yesterday week, Colonel Hardy, for the author, Sir George Campbell, M.P., read an instructive paper on "The Tenure and Cultivation of Land in India."

Up to the present time, the Citizen states, twenty-one patients, paying at the average rate of 8s. per day, have been admitted into the two wards of St. Thomas's Hospital appropriated to this class of patients under the recent scheme. The number that can be accommodated is about forty. The success, so far, appears to have led the Governors to anticipate that the venture will be financially beneficial to the hospital.

BANK OF NEW ZEALAND
(Incorporated by Act of General Assembly, July 20, 1861).
Bankers to the New Zealand Government.
Capital subscribed and paid up, £1,000,000.
Reserve Fund, £550,000.
Head Office—Auckland.
BRANCHES AND AGENCIES.
In Australia—Melbourne, Sydney, and Newcastle.
In Fiji—Levuka.
In New Zealand—Auckland, Blenheim, Christchurch, Dunedin, Invercargill, Napier, Nelson, New Plymouth, Picton, Wellington, and at eighty-two other towns and places throughout the Colony.
The Bank grants Drafts on all their Branches and Agencies, and transacts every description of banking business connected with New Zealand, Australia, and Fiji on the most favourable terms.
The London Office RECEIVES FIXED DEPOSITS of £50 and upwards, rates and particulars of which can be ascertained on application. F. LARKWORTHY, Managing Director.
No. 1, Queen Victoria-street, Mansion House, E.C.

SUN FIRE OFFICE.
Threadneedle-street, E.C. Charing-cross, S.W.
Oxford-street (corner of Vere-street), W.
Established 1710.
Home and Foreign Insurances Effected.
Sum Insured in 1879, £202,467,561.
FRANCIS B. HELTON, Secretary.

PROVIDE AGAINST ACCIDENTS!
ACCIDENTS WILL HAPPEN!—A fixed sum in case of Death by Accident, and a Weekly Allowance in the event of Injury, may be secured by a policy of the RAILWAY PASSENGERS' ASSURANCE COMPANY, the Right Hon. Lord Kinnaird, Chairman. £1,620,000 has been paid as Compensation.
West-End Office, 8, Grand Hotel Buildings, Charing-cross; and 64, Cornhill, London.—WILLIAM J. VIAN, Secretary.

CANADA.—FREE GRANTS of 160 ACRES of LAND offered to bonâ fide Settlers in MANITOBA and the NORTH-WEST TERRITORY. From 100 to 200 acres in other parts. Government railway lands can be purchased from 4s. to £1 per acre and improved farms, with buildings, &c., from £4 to £10 per. Good openings for FARMERS, FARM-LABOURERS, and others, and for the Investment of Capital. ASSISTED PASSAGES to AGRICULTURISTS and DOMESTIC SERVANTS.
For new Pamphlets, including TENANT-FARMERS' DELEGATES' REPORTS, just published, which will be sent post-free, apply to JOSEPH COLLIER, Canadian Government Offices, 10, Victoria-chambers, London; JOHN DYKE, 15, Water-street, Liverpool; THOMAS GRAHAME, 40, St. Enoch-square, Glasgow.

SMART'S WRITING INSTITUTION, 97B, Quadrant, Regent-street (entrance in Swallow-street). Open from Ten till Nine daily. Persons of all ages received privately, and taught at any time suiting their own convenience. Lessons one hour each. No classes. No extras. Improvement guaranteed in eight to twelve easy lessons. Separate room for ladies. Apply to Mr. Smart, as above.

MARRIAGE with a DECEASED WIFE'S SISTER.
INCREDIBLE as it may seem, IT IS A FACT that the Queen in Council has specially legalised those marriages throughout Australia, and yet that such Australian marriages are of doubtful validity in England, and the offspring of them certainly illegitimate.
IT IS A FACT that in the Isle of Man and the Channel Islands such marriages become, on the death of either of the parties, absolutely valid, and the children legitimate; but if the survivor subsequently settles in England, his or her children thereby become illegitimate, and are consequently disinherited.
IT IS A FACT that the most eminent authority on Scotch Marriage Law has recently stated that, as the interpretation of Lex Loci remains in dispute, the legality and illegality of such marriages in that country is uncertain, the possibility being that the Courts would decide in favour of their legality.
IT IS A FACT that the Law of England regards cousins, although they are consanguineously related, as not being "near of kin," and permits them to marry, while it prohibits a man from marrying his deceased wife's sister, who is not related to him by blood, because she is "near of kin."
IT IS A FACT that the English Law also in the matter of marriage treats a wife's sister as a man's own sister; while in the matter of legacy duty it regards her as an entire stranger in blood.
IT IS A FACT that all marriages of this kind contracted in England prior to Aug. 31, 1835, are not only rendered valid by the statute of that date, but are held to be in the sight of God lawful and binding; while by the same statute all subsequent marriages of a similar kind are declared null and void—presumably on the ground that they are Scripturally condemned.
IT IS A FACT that this British Law is now maintained by a very small minority of the people, in opposition to the known wishes of the majority, and, notwithstanding, it is daily disregarded not merely with impunity but with approval; notwithstanding also, that "there neither has been nor is, in the Statute-Book of any other country in the world, an Act so inconsistent in its provisions, so repugnant to common-sense, and so shocking to the first dictates of morality" as that upon which this law is founded.

EASTER CARDS at CHAPMAN'S.
Varied Selection.
Descriptive List post-free.
T. CHAPMAN, Stationer, 54, Leicester-square, W.C.

EASTER CARDS at CHAPMAN'S.
Now on view.
Descriptive List post-free.
T. CHAPMAN, Stationer, 54, Leicester-square, W.C.

EASTER CARDS at CHAPMAN'S.
BIRTHDAY CARDS, SCRAPS, &c.
Descriptive List post-free.
T. CHAPMAN, Stationer, 54, Leicester-square, W.C.

DIAMONDS. SAPPHIRES. CATS'-EYES. OPALS. EMERALDS.
Mr. STREETER, 18, New Bond-street, W.
INTRODUCER of 18-CARAT GOLD JEWELLERY and ENGLISH LEVER WATCHES, (MACHINE-MADE.)
BRANCH ESTABLISHMENT, COLOMBO, CEYLON.

WALKER'S CRYSTAL CASE WATCHES are superseding all others. Prize Medals—London, 1862; Paris, 1867. Silver Watches, from £4 4s.; Gold, from £6 6s. Price-Lists sent free.—77, Cornhill; 230, Regent-street; and 76, Strand.

DENT'S WATCHES, CLOCKS, and CHRONOMETERS.—Illustrated Catalogue sent free.—Apply to 61, Strand, or 34, Royal Exchange, London.

THE FINEST WATCHES MADE. SEWILL'S KEYLESS WATCHES, Prize Medals, London, Paris, and Philadelphia. Damp and Dust-proof, 18-carat cases, adjusted and compensated for all climates, £10 10s., £14 14s., and £25; Ladies', £7 7s., £10 10s., and £18 18s.; in silver cases, for Ladies or Gentlemen, £5 5s., £6 6s., and £8 8s. Forwarded on receipt of remittance.—J. Sewill, 20, Cornhill, London; and 61, South Castle-street, Liverpool.

NOVELTIES IN JEWELLERY. New Styles for 1881. Gold, Silver, and Gem Jewellery of all kinds. New "Pic," "Mouse," &c.; Artificial Diamond Jewellery; Norwegian, Italian, and Mauresque filigree Jewellery; Ladies' Watches, &c. Price-List, 200 illus., sent post-free.—Jewellery Depôt, 57, Cambridge-street, Birmingham.

FOR SOUTH AFRICA.—How to get rid of your left-off clothes, jewels, furniture, antique lace, old gold for its photos, &c. Why send them to most respectable purchasers, who pay you ready money before taking them away.—Mr. and Mrs. PHILLIPS, Old Curiosity Shop, 31, Thayer-street, Manchester-square, London, W.

ELECTRICITY IS LIFE.
PULVERMACHER'S "GALVANISM," NATURE'S CHIEF RESTORER OF IMPAIRED VITAL ENERGY."
In this Pamphlet the most reliable proofs are given of the vast and wonderful curative powers of Pulvermacher's Patent Galvanic Chain-Bands, Belts, &c., in Rheumatic, Nervous, and Functional Disorders. Sent post free for three stamps on application to
J. L. PULVERMACHER'S GALVANIC ESTABLISHMENT, 194, Regent-street, London, W.

PRATT'S LADIES' BELTS AND ABDOMINAL SUPPORTS
ARE CONFIDENTLY RECOMMENDED AS THE MOST COMFORTABLE AND EFFICIENT EVER MADE
Apply to the Ladies' Attendant,
J. P. PRATT,
420, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON, W.

NOTICE. — For PETER ROBINSON'S Court and General Mourning Warehouse, "REGENT-STREET" is the only one address.

FAMILY BEREAVEMENTS.
Upon Receipt of Letter or Telegram
PETER ROBINSON'S EXPERIENCED DRESSMAKERS and MILLINERS TRAVEL to ALL PARTS of the COUNTRY (no matter the distance) FREE OF EXPENSE TO PERSONS with Dresses, Mantles, Millinery, and a full assortment of MADE-UP ARTICLES of the best and most suitable description. Also Materials by the Yard, and supplied at the same VERY REASONABLE PRICES as if Purchased at the Warehouse in "REGENT-STREET."
Mourning for Servants at unexceptionally low rates, at a great saving to large or small families.
Funerals Conducted in Town or Country at Stated Charges.
Address only to 256 to 262, Regent-street, London.
PETER ROBINSON'S.

THE BEST CRAPES,
THAT WILL NOT SPOT WITH RAIN.
Special qualities finished by the manufacturer in this desirable manner solely to the order of PETER ROBINSON.
Good qualities from 2s. 6d. to 7s. 9d. per yard. Others, not finished by this process, from 1s. 6d. to 4s. 6d.

A SPECIAL PURCHASE.
300 PIECES OF
RICH BLACK BROCADED SILKS, very fashionable new for Costumes and Mantles, 3s. 9d., 3s. 11d., 4s. 3d., 4s. 9d., 5s. 11d., 6s. 6d.

100 PIECES OF
BLACK SATIN IMPERIAL, a New Make of Satin, Rich in appearance, and wears better than any other silk. 5s. 6d., and up to 10s. 3d.

BLACK SATIN MERVEILLEUX, new this Season, 3s. 6d., 4s. 11d., 5s. 9d., 6s. 6d.

BLACK SATIN DE LYON, a good useful Silk, for Hard Wear, 3s. 6d., 4s. 11d., 5s. 11d., 6s. 6d.

BLACK DUCHESS SATIN, at 5s. 6d., 6s. 6d.; Magnificent qualities at 7s. 6d. and 10s. 6d.

BLACK SATINS (Cotton Backs), 1s. 11d., 2s. 6d., 2s. 11d., 3s. 6d.

BLACK BROCADED VELVETS, 5s. 9d., 6s. 11d., 8s. 9d., 10s. 9d.

BLACK TWILLED SILKS, for Summer Wear, at 3s. 6d., and above.

BLACK SURAT SILKS, with White Floral Designs, 2s. 11d., 3s. 6d., 3s. 11d.

COSTUMES in SILK, SATIN, and BROCADE
Facsimiles of Expensive Paris Models at 4½ guineas and up to 25 guineas.
Materials for Bodices included.
For list of Costumes above, Please write to—
PETER ROBINSON'S, REGENT-STREET, Nos. 256 to 262.

TEENS that young ladies are in no hurry to get out of—
"LOUIS" VELVET-TEENS.
THE "LOUIS" VELVETEEN
IS SIMPLY UNIQUE.
Do not be induced by persuasion to take any other
LOUIS
AN EXTRA PROFIT TO YOUR LOSS may be speciously made if you accept, under whatever name offered, an inferior quality of Velveteen.
"THE LOUIS"
has established its reputation so widely that even a slight inferiority would injure its repute, which constitutes
A TEST OF MERIT,
and guarantee of
LOUIS
UNSURPASSED QUALITY.
Be sure you find the words
THE "LOUIS" VELVETEEN
on every yard,
or you have not the
GENUINE "LOUIS,"
notwithstanding all assertions to the contrary.
LOUIS
Wholesale London Agent, J. H. FULLER, 92, Watling-street, who will send on inquiry, post-free, the names of the nearest Drapers from whom the genuine LOUIS VELVETEEN can be obtained.

NICHOLSON'S
NEW SPRING SAMPLES.
Patterns post-free.
FRENCH CASHMERES, BEIGES, SERGES, HERRING-BONE and MILAN STRIPES, and all the Newest Materials in the most beautiful colours.

NICHOLSON'S
NEW WASHING FABRICS.
Patterns post-free.
FRENCH SATTEENS, CAMBRICS, OATMEAL CLOTH, BRILLIANTS, &c., in every new and tasteful design.

NICHOLSON'S
NEW SILKS.
Patterns post-free.
PLUSHES, VELVETS, SATINS, BROCHES, SATIN DE LYONS, and PLAIN LYONS GROS GRAIN, in every fashionable shade.

D. NICHOLSON and Co., 50 to 61, ST. PAUL'S CHURCHYARD, LONDON. SOLE LESSEES OF THE COSTUME COURT, CRYSTAL PALACE.

PATENT "SEAMLESS" GLOVE.
These perfect-fitting Gloves are made without the usual side seam, and are cut on the best principle from the Hide Prime Kid Skins. They are hand-sewn, and are sold in two qualities, as under:—

| | Two Buttons | Four Buttons | Six Buttons | Eight Buttons | Ten Buttons |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| "APRLE" | 2s. 10½d. | 5s. | 7s. | 9s. | 11s. |
| "VICTORIA" | 4s. 1½d. | 5s. | 6s. | 7s. 6d. | 9s. |

(Sample Pair post-free.)
DEBENHAM and FREEBODY,
WIGMORE-STREET and WELBECK-STREET, LONDON, W.

AEGIDIUS, — The only non-shrinking Flannel Shirt. Warm as wool, soft as silk, and very elastic. Patterns and self-measure free.—H. FORD, 61, Poultry, London.

JAY'S, Regent-street.
MOURNING.
MESSRS. JAY'S experienced DRESS-MAKERS and MILLINERS are ALWAYS Travel to any part of the Kingdom, free of expense to purchasers.
They take with them dresses and millinery, besides Patterns of materials
At 1s. per yard and upwards,
All marked in plain figures, and at the same price as if purchased at The Warehouse in Regent-street.
Reasonable Estimates are also given for Household Mourning, at a great saving to large or small families.
Funerals, at stated charges, conducted in London or Country.
JAY'S, Regent-street.

PATTERNS FREE.
LAINE ÉLASTIQUE, a new French Black Material for Dresses. Means JAY are the Sole Agents for its sale in this country.
JAY'S, Regent-street.

PEAU DE CHAMOIS COSTUMES.—A varied series of COSTUMES, made from Peau de Chamois Satin, are produced weekly during the season. Price 6½ guineas each, including suitable trimming in the bodice.
JAY'S, Regent-street.

DRESS.—Messrs. JAY respectfully invite their clientèle to the choice Collection of Pattern Costumes of the Newest Type of Fashion, which are imported from Paris and Berlin.
JAY'S,
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
REGENT-STREET, W.

ROYAL and IMPERIAL PATRONAGE. EGERTON BURNETT'S SERGES
For LADIES and GENTLEMEN include the Best Makes.
Address 4, Wellington, Somerset.

NOVELTIES for LADIES' MORNING DRESSES.—French Patterns, 48s.; Pompadours, 72s.; Prints, 5½d.; Linen Lawns, 9d. Patterns free.
JOHN HOOPER, 52, Oxford-street, W.

EARLY SPRING DRESSES.—A very cheap parcel of New HEATHER TWEEDS. Price 6½d. per yard (regular price 9½d.). Patterns free.
JOHN HOOPER, 52, Oxford-street, W.

FLORIMEL OF PALM.
A white and delicate hand is the first attribute of beauty and civilisation. "The hand," says Sir Charles Bell in the "Bridgewater Treatise," "distinguishes man from the brute; he carries of it, for in polite society it is an index not only of the body but of the mind."
The Florimel of Palm being rubbed over the skin is to be removed with a little water, then dried with a soft towel. Once using will convince the most sceptical that, if daily applied, too much cannot be said in favour of Florimel of Palm for rendering the skin or hands white, delicate, soft, and fair.
Sold in Jars, 2s. 6d. each.
PIESSE and LUBIN, 2, New Bond-street, London.
May be obtained of any Chemist or Perfumer in the world.

TURKISH PASTILS.
"Through all my travels few things astonished me more than seeing the beauties of the harem smoking Narghilés at Stamboul. After smoking a sweet aromatic lozenge or pastil is used by them, which is said to impart an odour of flowers to the breath. I have never seen these lozenges but once in Europe, and that was at PIESSE and LUBIN'S shop in Bond-street."—Lady W. Montagu.
In Boxes, 2s.; by post, 2s. 2d.
2, NEW BOND-STREET, LONDON.

SWEET SACHETS.
PIESSE and LUBIN compose every variety of Sachet Powder the same odours as their many perfumes for the handkerchief. Placed in a drawer, etui, or travelling-bag, they impart a grateful and pleasing perfume without being too pronounced. Piesse and Lubin also have, on demand, Dried Odorous Flowers, Spices, and Odoriferous Gums. For use, 1s. per box, post-free.
2, NEW BOND-STREET, LONDON.

ROWLANDS' ODONTO is the purest and most fragrant dentifrice ever made. All dentists will allow that neither washes nor pastes can possibly be of a more beneficial nature to the teeth and keeping them sound and white as a pure and non-gritty powder without being too pungent. Possessed Lubin also have, on demand, Dried Odorous Flowers, Spices, and Odoriferous Gums. For use, 1s. per box, post-free.
2, NEW BOND-STREET, LONDON.

ROWLANDS' ODONTO is the purest and most fragrant dentifrice ever made. All dentists will allow that neither washes nor pastes can possibly be of a more beneficial nature to the teeth and keeping them sound and white as a pure and non-gritty powder without being too pungent. Possessed Lubin also have, on demand, Dried Odorous Flowers, Spices, and Odoriferous Gums. For use, 1s. per box, post-free.
2, NEW BOND-STREET, LONDON.

NUDA VERITAS.—GREY HAIR restored by this valuable specific to its original shade, after which it grows the natural colour, not grey. Used as a dressing, it causes growth and arrests falling. The most harmless and effectual restorer extant. One trial will convince it has no equal. Price 10s. 6d., of all Chemists and Hairdressers. Testimonials post-free.—R. HOVENDEN and SONS, London.

GOLDEN HAIR.—ROBARE'S AUREOLINE produces the beautiful Golden Colour so much admired. Warranted perfectly harmless. Prices 6s. 6d. and 10s. 6d., of all Perfumers. Wholesale, R. HOVENDEN and SONS, 5, Great Marlborough-street, W.; and 93 and 95, City-road, E.C.

VALUABLE DISCOVERY for the HAIR.
If your hair is turning grey, or white, or falling off, use "The Mexican Hair Renewer," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White Hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots where the glands are not decayed. "The Mexican Hair Renewer" is sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere, at 3s. 6d. per Bottle.

FLORILINE. For the Teeth and Breath.
Is the best Liquid Dentifrice in the world; it thoroughly cleanses partially-decayed teeth from all parasites or living "animalculæ," leaving them pearly white, imparting a delightful fragrance to the breath. The Fragrant Floriline removes instantly all unpleasantness arising from a foul stomach or tobacco smoke, being partly composed of honey, soda, and extracts of sweet herbs and plants. It is perfectly harmless, and delicious as sherry. Sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere, at 2s. 6d. per Bottle.

BREIDENBACH'S SACHETS. — Wood Violet, White Rose, Eau Bouquet, Musk, Chypre, Stephanotis, Frangipanni, Jockey Club, Patchouli, Jewsy Opoponax, Heliotrope. In Paper Envelopes, 1s. each; in silk Bags, 1s. each; in Flat Satin Cushions, 2s. 6d. each. Sold by all Perfumers, Stores and Fancy Dealers, or post-free from 157a, New Bond-street, London, W.

"AND TEETH LIKE ROWS OF PEARLS."
JEWSBURY and BROWN'S Exquisite Compound,
THE ORIENTAL TOOTH-PASTE.
The celebrated original and only genuine Oriental Tooth-Paste is signed "JEWSBURY and BROWN, Manchester. Established years." PEARLY WHITE and SOUND TEETH, healthy gums, firm and bright of colour so essential to beauty and fragrant breath, are all insured by the use of this most perfect Dentifrice. Pots, 1s. 6d.; double, 2s. 6d. All Perfumers and Chemists. Only the ORIGINAL ORIENTAL TOOTH-PASTE is signed JEWSBURY and BROWN, Manchester, and bears their Trade Mark, J. and B. in a double triangle.

THE SKIN.—The glory of woman, the pride of man. It contains the delicate lines of beauty and gentleness all that we term feminine; by what means have these skins been ruined by the use of the irritant soaps, Carbolic, Coal Tar, Glycerine, and the coarse coloured soaps, caustic with alkali and made of putrid fats. The more delicate the skin the quicker its ruin. The ALBION MILK AND ALMOND SOAP is the purest. Its use is solely for purifying of all soaps, by its purifying action taking away and preventing all pimples, blotches, and roughness. It is recommended by the entire Medical Profession as the most elegant preparation for the skin that is made. Sold by all Chemists, in Tablets, 6d. and 1s. THE ALBION SANATORY SOAP COMPANY, 532, Oxford-street, London.

HOOPING COUGH.
ROCHE'S HERBAL EMBROCATION.
THIS celebrated effectual Cure without internal medicine. Sole Wholesale Agents, W. EDWARDS and SON, 157, Queen Victoria-street (formerly of 67, St. Paul's-churchyard), London, whose names are required on the Government stamp.
Sold by most Chemists. Price 4s. per Bottle.

"FOR THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE."
CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE is warranted to cleanse the Blood from all impurities, from whatever cause arising. For Scrofula, Scurvy, Skin and Blood Diseases, its effects are marvellous. In Bottles, 2s. 9d. each, and in cases, containing six times the quantity, 11s. each, of all Chemists. Send free any address for 30 or 132 stamps, of the Proprietor, F. J. CLARKE, Chemist, Lincoln.

ALFRED B. PEARCE, 39, Ludgate-hill,
INVITES INSPECTION of all that is new and beautiful in useful and ornamental CHINA and GLASS, including

| | £ | s. | d. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Dinner Services (" Cottage "), 50 pieces | 13 | 6 | |
| Dinner services for 12 persons (the pieces) | 35 | 0 | |
| China Dessert Services for 12 persons, Gilt, 17s., Ungilt | 16 | 0 | |
| Gilt China Tea Services, 40 pieces, 18s. | 36 | 0 | |
| China Breakfast sets for 6 persons, 11s. for 4 persons | 7 | 0 | |
| Toilet Services (for washstands), 7s. 6d., 5s. 6d., and | 3 | 9 | |
| White Stone 3 jugs, "The Grecian," set of these | 1 | 3 | |

All really excellent patterns.

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Quart Decanters, good cut glass, 5s. per pair | plain | 4 | 0 |
| Claret Decanters (with handle), 6s. each | " and | 3 | 0 |
| Plain light Claret Glasses, well made, 2s. per doz. | " and | 0 | 6 |
| Wine Glasses, plain or cut, Ports and Sherries, per doz. | | 1 | 9 |
| Engraved Wine Glasses do. do. | do. | 3 | 0 |
| Rock Glasses, ruby bowl, 6s. per doz. | green bowl | 3 | 0 |
| Tumblers, cut, 3s. 6d.; plain, 2s. 3d. moulded, per doz. | | 1 | 6 |
| Plain light Finger-Glasses, taper shape per doz. | | 0 | 6 |

Other articles proportionately cheap.
Descriptive Catalogue post-free.
ALFRED B. PEARCE, 39, LUDGATE-HILL. Established 1760.

EPPS'S COCOA. GRATEFUL and COMFORTING.
"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operation of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.
JAMES EPPS and CO., HOMŒOPATHIC CHEMISTS.
Also, EPPS'S CHOCOLATE ESSENCE, for Afternoon Use.

FARROW and JACKSON, the largest and best Makers of IRON WINE BINS, SODA-WATER RACKS, BAR FITTINGS, SEALING-WAX, and every Article for the Dealer in or Consumer of Wines, 18, GREAT TOWER-STREET; & HAYMARKET; 91, MANSELL-STREET, London.
Agent in Paris,
N. EDARD, 26, RUE DU DRAGON.

CHUBB'S PATENT SAFES, FIRE AND THIEF RESISTING.

CHUBB'S SAFES FOR JEWELS, DEEDS, PLATE, BULLION, &c.

CHUBB'S LOCKS AND LATCHES, CHESTS, BOXES, &c.

CHUBB'S ILLUSTRATED PRICE-LISTS POST-FREE.

CHUBB and SON, 128, Queen Victoria-street, E.C.; and 68, St. James's-street, London.

JEWEL ROBBERIES PREVENTED.
J. TANN'S RELIANCE SAFES have never failed to resist the attempts of the most determined burglars. Fire-Resisting Safes, £2 5s. Lists free.—11, Newgate-street, E.C.

D. HULETT.—GASELIERS in CRYSTAL GLASS and ORMOLU or BRONZE. Medieval Fittings. A large Stock always on View. Every article marked with plain figures.—Manufactory, 55 and 56, High Holborn.

ROBERT ROBERTS AND CO.'S CELEBRATED TEAS.
TWELVE POUNDS AND UPWARDS CARRIAGE PAID.
Samples and Price-lists free by post.
Queen Insurance-buildings, Liverpool. ESTABLISHED 1840.
No agents.
All communications and orders direct.

THE ESSEX FLOUR and GRAIN COMPANY, Liverpool-road, London, N., supply the best goods only. Flour: Whites for Pastry, per 56 lb., 8d.; Households, for Bread making, 6s. 6d.; Whole Wheaten Meal (granulated) for Bread from a Breed, 8s.; Best Scotch Oatmeal for Porridge, per 14 lb., 3s.; Hominy, 2s.; Barley, Buck Wheat, Maize, and Mixed Corn for Poultry, per bushel, 5s.; Indian Corn, 5s.; Middlings, 2s.; Bran, 1s.; Pearl split Peas, per peck, 3s.; Split Egyptian Lentils, 3s.; Neat Biscuits, per 14 lb., 3s. 6d.; Barley Meal, per 28 lb., 5s.; Lentil Flour, per 14lb. 6in. 6d.; per 28 lb., 9d. All other kinds of Grain and Seeds. Prices sent on application. Special quotations for large orders. P.O. Orders and Cheques to be made in favour of George Young.

EVERY ONE who takes DR. LOCOCK'S PULMONIC WAFERS is astonished at their wonderful and rapid efficacy in Asthma, Consumption, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds. They taste pleasantly.

THROAT AFFECTIONS and HOARSENESS.—All suffering from Irritation of the Throat and Hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES. These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable Chemists in this country, at 1s. 1½d. per Box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government stamp around each box. Prepared by JOHN I. BROWN and SONS, Boston, U.S. European Depôt, 33, Farringdon-road, London.

TAMAR INDIEN GRILLON, For CONSTIPATION, BILE, HEADACHE.

TAMAR INDIEN GRILLON, A LAXATIVE AND REFRESHING FRUIT LOZENGE, UNIVERSALLY PRESCRIBED BY THE FACULTY.

TAMAR INDIEN GRILLON, 2s. 6d. per box, stamp included. Sold by all Chemists and Druggists. Wholesale—E. GRILLON, 30, Queen-street, London, E.C.

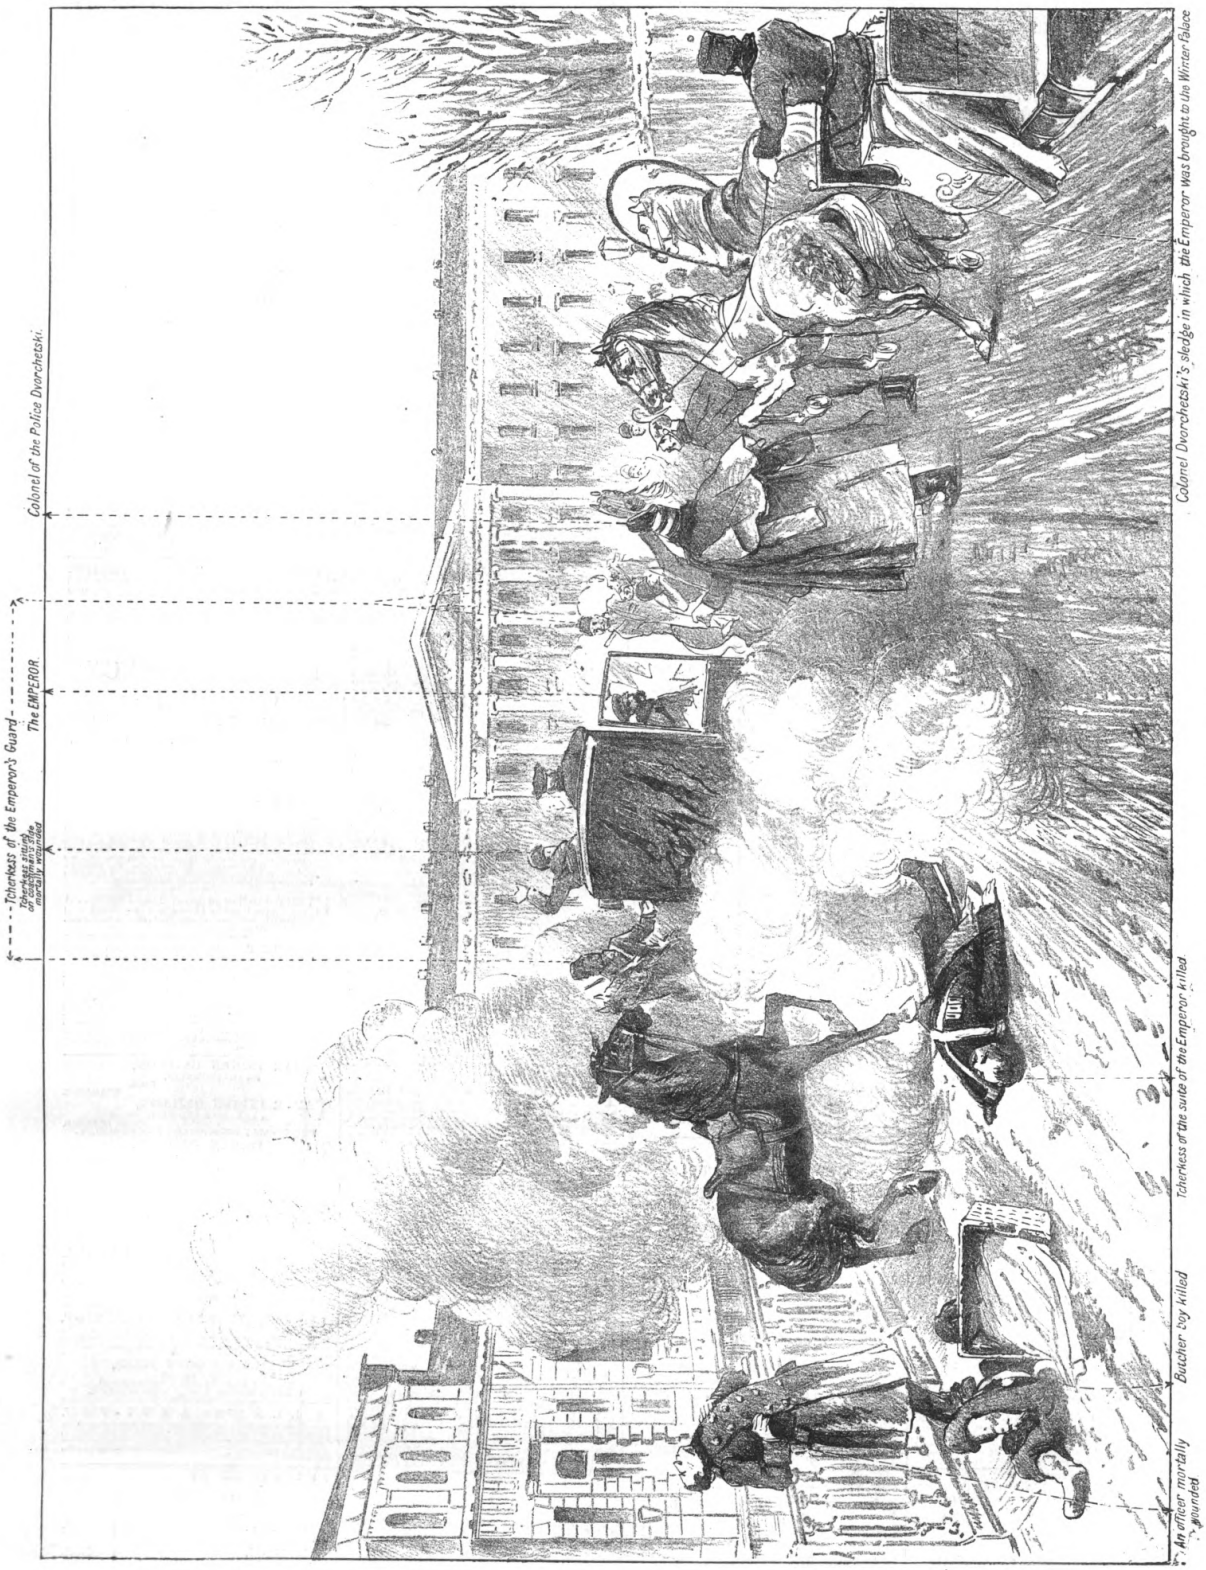
TOOTHACHE.
INSTANT CURE.
FORMS A STOPPING.
SAVES THE TOOTH.
J. Honnell, Esq., Surgeon, Bridport, writes:—"I consider HUNTER'S NERVINE a specific for Toothache. Very severe cases under my care have found instantaneous and permanent relief."
Of Chemists, 1s. 1½d. per Packet.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS and OINTMENT. The Pills purify the blood, correct all disorders of the liver, stomach, kidneys, and bowels. The Ointment is unrivalled in the cure of bad legs, old wounds, gout, and rheumatism.

BLAIR'S GOUT PILLS, THE GREAT REMEDY FOR GOUT AND RHEUMATISM. Sold by all Chemists, at 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. per Box.

ALLAN'S ANTI-FAT. Purely vegetable, perfectly harmless; will reduce from two to five pounds per week; acts on the food in the stomach, preventing its conversion into fat. Sold by Chemists. Send stamp for pamphlet.—ALLANS' MEDICINE COMPANY, 493, Oxford-street, London, W.C.

COLDS CURED BY
DR. DUNBAR'S ALKARAM, or Anti-Catarrh Smelling-Bottle.
ALKARAM. COLDS.
ALKARAM. COLDS.
ALKARAM. COLDS.
If inhaled on the first symptoms, ALKARAM will at once arrest them, and cure severe cases in half an hour. Sold by all Chemists, 2s. 9d. a bottle. Address, Dr. Dunbar, care of Messrs. F. Newbery and Sons, 1, King Edward-st., E.C.



ASSASSINATION OF ALEXANDER II.: SKETCH SHOWING EXACTLY HOW THE EMPEROR WAS ATTACKED.
FORWARDED BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.

ON THE SLOPE OF LAING'S NECK: EVENING, JANUARY 28.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

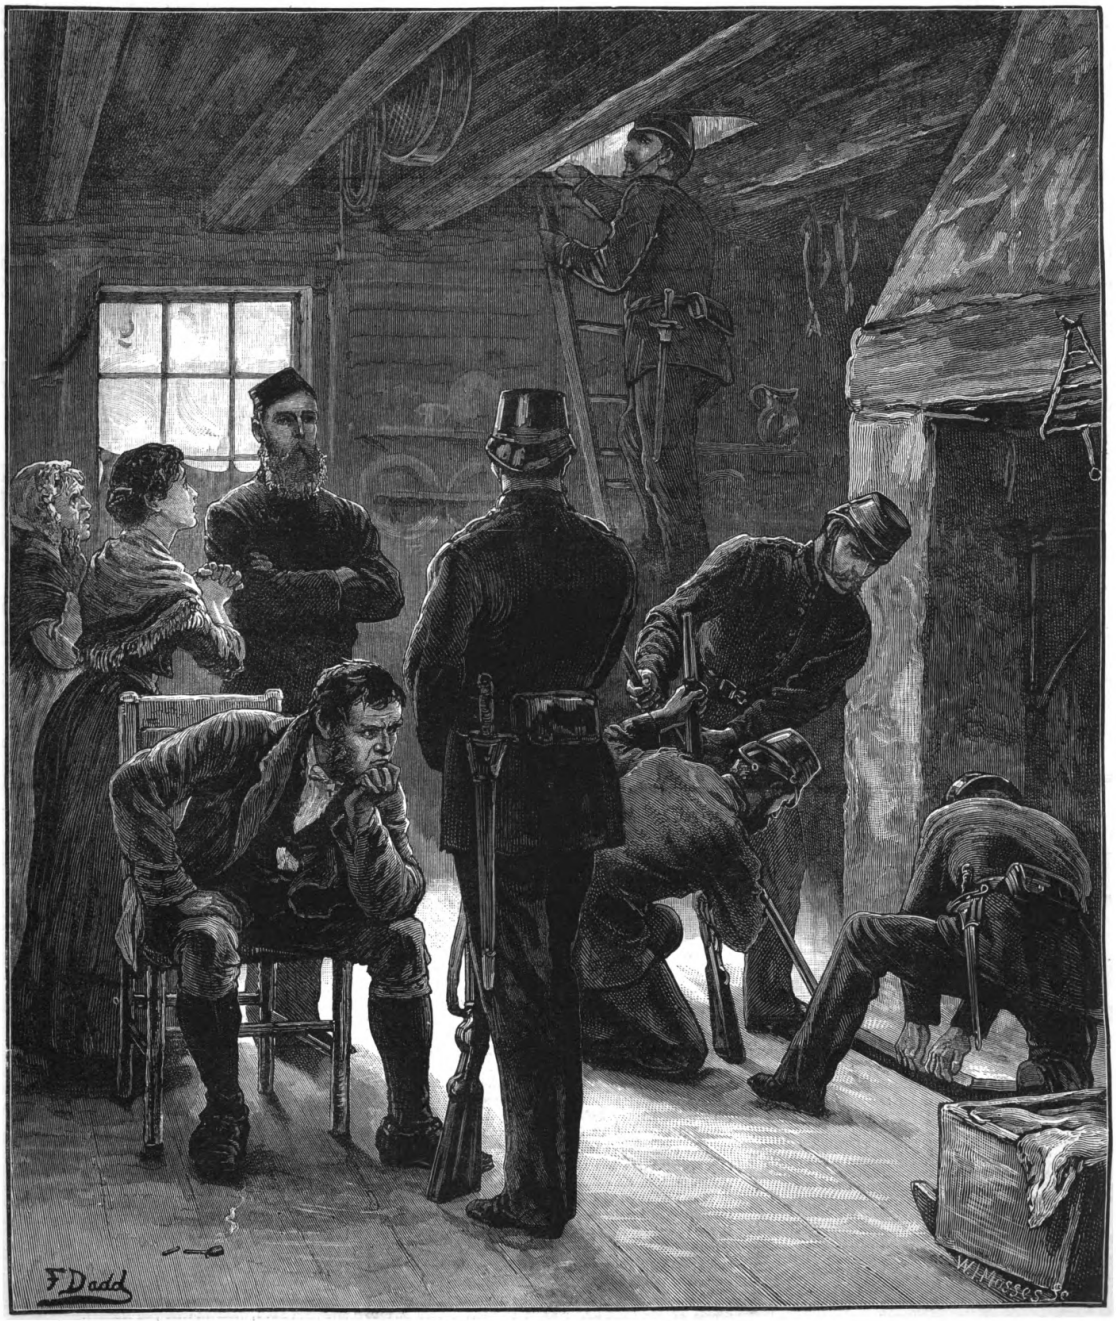
REGISTERED AT THE GENERAL POST-OFFICE FOR TRANSMISSION ABROAD.

No. 2186.—VOL. LXXVIII. SATURDAY, APRIL 9, 1881. WITH TWO SUPPLEMENTS SIXPENCE. By Post, 6½d.



THE STATE OF IRELAND: SEARCHING FOR ARMS.—SEE PAGE 342.

BIRTHS.

On the 27th ult., at Henbury, Wimborne, Dorset, the Hon. Mrs. Clark Kennedy, of Knockgray, of a son.

On the 1st inst., at Llandhangel-Rhyd-Ithon Vicarage, Radnorshire, the wife of the Rev. Lewis Arthur Smith, of a son.

On the 4th inst., at Gates-heath, Grassendale, near Liverpool, the wife of John Bromfield Williams, of a daughter.

On the 3rd inst., at 11, Stratton-street, Piccadilly, the Hon. Mrs. Hugh Elliot, of a son.

On the 30th ult., at Brough Hall, Yorkshire, Lady Lawson, of a daughter.

On the 30th ult., at Islip-street, Kentish Town, the wife of the Hon. Sir Henry Page Dick, Bart., of a son (heir).

MARRIAGE.

On the 2nd inst., at St. Mary Abbot's, Kensington, by the Hon. and Rev. Carr Glyn, assisted by the Rev. William Law, M.A., William Bouch, son of the late Sir Thomas Bouch, C.E., to Jeanie, younger daughter of Francis Balfour Paton, Esq., of Cairnbank, Fortarshire.

DEATHS.

On the 25th ult., at 7, Palace-square, Upper Norwood, Captain Daniel Alexander Rogers, late of the 7th Regiment Madras Native Infantry, H.E.I.C.S., great-nephew of Samuel Rogers, the poet.

On the 31st ult., at North Carway, New Hampshire, the Lady Blanche Murphy, R.I.P.

On the 30th ult., at Copdock Rectory, Ipswich, suddenly, the Hon. and Rev. Frederick de Grey, son of the fourth Lord Walsingham, aged 70, forty-four years Rector of Copdock.

On the 31st ult., at Bromley, Kent, in her 82nd year, Dame Harriet Mary Dowling, widow of Sir James Dowling, Knight, for many years a Judge and Chief Justice of the colony of New South Wales.

On the 28th ult., at Richmond Villa, Clifton, Colonel P. W. Taylor, Colonel Bristol Volunteers, late commanding the Royal Canadian Rifles, and formerly of the 90th.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING APRIL 16.

SUNDAY, APRIL 10.

Sixth Sunday in Lent. Palm Sunday.
Morning Lessons: Exodus ix.; Matt. xxvi. Evening Lessons: Exodus x. or xi.; Luke xix. 28 or xx. 9—21.
St. Paul's Cathedral, 10.30 a.m., Rev. Prebendary Dyne; 3.15 p.m., Rev. Canon Liddon; 7 p.m., Rev. Canon Furse.
Westminster Abbey, 10 a.m., Rev. Canon Spence, Vicar of St. Pancras; 3 p.m., Rev. Canon Farrar.
St. James's, noon, the Bishop of London.
Whitehall, 11 a.m., Very Rev. Dr. Purey-Cust, Dean of York; 3 p.m., Rev. Dr. Percival, Pres. Trin. Coll., Oxford.
Savoy, 11.30 a.m., Rev. Henry White, the Chaplain; 7 p.m., Rev. Prebendary Stanley Leathes.
Temple Church, 11 a.m.; 3 p.m., Rev. Alfred Ainger, the Reader.

MONDAY, APRIL 11.

Telegraph Engineers' Society, University College, 9 p.m., to meet Professor Helmholtz.
Victoria Institute, 8 p.m. (Mr. N. Whitley on Supposed Paleolithic Tools in Devonshire).
Geographical Society, 8.30 p.m. (Col. H. C. Tanner on Kafiristan and the Siah-Posh Kafirs of the Hindu Kush).
Society of Arts, Cantor Lecture, 8 p.m. (Mr. Alan S. Cole on Lacemaking).
Medical Society, 8.30 p.m.
United Service Institution, 8.30 p.m. (Mr. R. Griffiths on Means for Facilitating the Handling and Traversing Heavy Guns).
City of London Pension Society, elections, Memorial Hall, noon.

TUESDAY, APRIL 12.

Horticultural Society, 11 a.m.; promenade, 3 p.m.
Statistical Society, 7.45 p.m.
Photographic Society, 8 p.m.
Actuaries' Institute, 7 p.m.
Anthropological Institute, 8 p.m. (Mr. Joseph Lucas on the Ethnological Relations of the Gipsies; Mr. Gerard A. Kinahan on the Sepulchral Remains at Rathdown, in the county of Wicklow).
Colonial Institute, 8 p.m. (Mr. T. Archer on Queen-Land).
Medical and Chirurgical Society, 8.30.
Civil Engineers' Institution, 8 p.m. (Discussion on the Lateral Pressure of Earthwork; Mr. W. R. Browne on the Relative Value of Upland and Tidal Waters in Producing Scour).
Races: Nottingham Spring Meeting.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 13.

Hilary Law Sittings end.
Literary Fund, 3 p.m.
Microscopical Society, 8 p.m. (Messrs. Shrubsole and Kitton on the Diatoms of the London Clay).
Graphic Society, 8 p.m.
Amateur Mechanical Society, 8 p.m.
Public Analysts Society, 8 p.m.
Sanitary Institute, 8 p.m. (Dr. B. W. Richardson on Dealing with Small-pox, &c., in the Metropolis).

THURSDAY, APRIL 14.

Full Moon, 11.50 a.m.
Maundy Thursday.
Princess Beatrice born, 1857.
Mathematical Society, 8 p.m.
Telegraph Engineers' Society, 8 p.m. (Mr. St. George Lane Fox on Electricity for Lighting and Heating; papers by Profs. Perry and Ayrton).

FRIDAY, APRIL 15.

Good Friday.
Morning Lessons: Genesis xxii. 1—20; John xviii. Evening Lessons: Isaiah liii. 13 and liii.; 1 Peter ii.
St. Paul's Cathedral, 10.30 a.m., Rev. Canon Fleming; 3.15 p.m., Rev. J. F. Kitto, Rector of Whitechapel; 7 p.m., Rev. W. A. Moberly. Addresses on the Seven Words from the Cross by Rev. C. N. Kelly.
St. James's, noon, Very Rev. Dr. Stanley, Dean of Westminster.
Westminster Abbey, 10 a.m., Rev. Canon Farrar; 3 p.m., Very Rev. Dr. Stanley, the Dean.
Whitehall, 11 a.m., Rev. Canon Wilberforce, her Majesty's Sub-Almoner; 3 p.m., Rev. Dr. Boyd, Principal Hertford College, Oxford.
Savoy, 11.30 a.m., Rev. Alfred Williams Momerie; 7 p.m., Rev. Frederic Wallis.

SATURDAY, APRIL 16.

Easter Eve. Whitehall Chapel, Rev. W. F. Erskine Knollys.

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE KEW OBSERVATORY OF THE ROYAL SOCIETY.

Lat. 51° 28′ 6″ N.; Long. 0° 18′ 47″ W. Height above Sea, 34 feet.

| DAY. | DAILY MEANS OF Barometer Corrected. | Temperature of the Air. | Dew Point. | Relative Humidity. | Amount of Cloud. | THERMOM. Maximum, read at 10 P.M. | Minimum, read at 10 A.M. | WIND. General Direction. | Movement in Miles, from 10 A.M. to next morning. | Rain at 10 A.M. next morning. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| | Inches | ° | ° | % | 0 to 10 | ° | ° | | Miles. | In. |
| March 27 | 29·885 | 43·9 | 23·0 | 63 | 2 | 43·4 | 26·9 | E. ESE. | 197 | 0·000 |
| 28 | 29·836 | 38·0 | 27·1 | 66 | 4 | 45·9 | 30·0 | ENE. ESE. | 213 | 0·000 |
| 29 | 29·728 | 39·7 | 28·5 | 62 | 2 | 54·6 | 28·8 | ESE. N. | 226 | 0·000 |
| 30 | 30·005 | 36·7 | 23·0 | 61 | 1 | 44·2 | 27·5 | NE. ENE. | 251 | 0·000 |
| 31 | 29·942 | 38·3 | 24·5 | 61 | 0 | 45·0 | 33·2 | ENE. | 336 | 0·000 |
| April 1 | 29·714 | 42·8 | 26·5 | 57 | 3 | 50·6 | 32·8 | ENE. | 545 | 0·000 |
| 2 | 29·841 | 41·3 | 27·2 | 61 | 5 | 49·0 | 36·2 | NE. ENE. | 726 | 0·000 |

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at ten o'clock a.m.:—

| | | | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Barometer (in inches) corrected | .. | 29·918 | 29·879 | 29·727 | 30·012 | 29·901 | 29·771 | 29·702 |
| Temperature of Air | .. | 38·6° | 40·0° | 39·6° | 39·6° | 40·1° | 42·1° | 42·6° |
| Temperature of Evaporation | .. | 37·0° | 36·2° | 36·2° | 35·8° | 36·3° | 38·9° | 39·3° |
| Direction of Wind | .. | .. | E. | ESE. | N. | ESE. | ESE. | NE. |

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE FOR THE WEEK ENDING APRIL 16.

| Sunday. | | Monday. | | Tuesday. | | Wednesday. | | Thursday. | | Friday. | | Saturday. | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| M. | A. | M. | A. | M. | A. | M. | A. | M. | A. | M. | A. | M. | A. |
| h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m |
| 1 a | 11 40 | — | 0 5 | 0 28 | 0 48 | 1 8 | 1 25 | 1 43 | 2 0 | 2 15 | 2 35 | 2 50 | 3 10 |

LYCEUM.—THE BELLE'S STRATAGEM. On SATURDAY, APRIL 16, will be presented, with new scenery, dresses, and appointments, Mrs. Cowley's Comedy, THE BELLE'S STRATAGEM—Doricourt, Mr. Irving; Letitia Hardy, Miss Ellen Terry; Mossoodle Young, Mr. Howe; Mr. Termit, Mr. Pinero; Mr. Elwood, Mr. Beaumont, &c. Preceded by Alfred Bunn's new Tragedy THE CUP—Mr. Irving, Miss Ellen Terry. Box-Office open from Ten till Five, under the direction of Mr. Hurst.

MR. and MRS. GERMAN REED'S ENTERTAINMENT. At CLOSED. Will RE-OPEN EASTER MONDAY, at Three and Eight with a New First Part, MANY HAPPY RETURNS, by Gilbert A'Beckett and Clement Scott; Music by Lionel Brough. A New Musical Sketch, OUR INSTITUTE, by Mr. Corney Grain; and ALL AT SEA by Arthur Law; Music by Corney Grain. Easter Monday and Tuesday, at Three and Eight; Wednesday and Friday at Eight, Thursday and Saturday at Three.—ST. GEORGE'S HALL, Langham place. Admission, 1s., 2s.; Stalls, 3s., 5s. No fees. Booking-Office now open, from 10 to 5.

EASTER ARRANGEMENTS.—LONDON, BRIGHTON, and SOUTH COAST RAILWAY.
ALL EXPRESS and ORDINARY RETURN TICKETS will be extended as usual.
EXTRA TRAINS FOR ISLE OF WIGHT.—The 4.55 p.m. from Victoria and London Bridge will convey Passengers for Ryde, Sandown, Shanklin, and Ventnor on APRIL 13, 14, and 16; also to Newport and Cowes on APRIL 14 and 16 (1st, 2nd, and 3rd Class).

PARIS AT EASTER.—SPECIAL CHEAP TRAINS.
Leaving London Bridge and Victoria at 11.30 a.m., THURSDAY, April 14.
Returning from Paris by Night Service on any day up to and including Wednesday, April 27. Fares—First Class, 34s.; Second Class, 27s.

BRIGHTON.—EVERY SUNDAY AND ON GOOD FRIDAY, a CHEAP FIRST-CLASS TRAIN from Victoria, 10.45 a.m., calling at Clapham Junction and Croydon. Day Return-Tickets, 10s.

VOLUNTEER REVIEW AT BRIGHTON.—The March Past of the Volunteers at the Grand Stand on the Brighton Race Course will take place soon after 2.0 p.m.
A SPECIAL FIRST CLASS EXPRESS TRAIN will leave Victoria Station for Brighton at 9.30 a.m. on EASTER MONDAY, returning from Brighton the same day at 4.45 p.m., arriving at Victoria at 8.15 p.m.
Application for Tickets should be made at Victoria Station, or at the General Offices, 28, Regent-street, Piccadilly, and 9, Grand Hotel Buildings, Trafalgar-square, on and after April 9. Fares—London to Brighton and back, First Class, 17s. 6d.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—FREQUENT DIRECT TRAINS DAILY to the Crystal Palace from London Bridge, New Cross; also from Victoria, York-road, Kensington, West Brompton, and Chelsea.

BRANCH BOOKING OFFICES.—For the convenience of passengers who may desire to take their Tickets in advance, the following Branch Booking Offices, in addition to those at the Victoria and London Bridge Stations, are now open for the issue of Tickets to all Stations on the London, Brighton, and South Coast Railway, to the Isle of Wight, Paris, and the Continent, &c.:—
The Company's General West-End Booking Offices, 28, Regent-street, Piccadilly, &c., and 9, Grand Hotel-buildings, under the Grand Hotel, Trafalgar-square.
Cook's Tourist Offices, Ludgate Circus.
Gaze's Tourist Office, 142, Strand.
Cavaillé's Tourist Offices, 371, Strand (next Exeter Hall).
Whitelev's, Westbourne-grove.
Hay's City Agency, 4, Royal Exchange-buildings, E.C.
Letts and Co., King William-street, City.
Tickets issued at these offices will be dated to suit the convenience of passengers.
* These two offices will remain open until 10 p.m. on Wednesday, Thursday, and Saturday, April 13, 14, and 16.
For full particulars of Times, Fares, &c., see Handbills and Time Books, to be had at all Stations, and at any of the above Branch Booking Offices.
(By Order) J. P. KNIGHT, General Manager.

EASTER HOLIDAYS, 1881.
ST. JAMES'S GRAND HALL,
REGENT-STREET and PICCADILLY.
THE
MOORE and BURGESS MINSTRELS will celebrate their
SIXTEENTH ANNUAL EASTER HOLIDAY FESTIVAL during the week commencing
EASTER MONDAY, APRIL 18,
WITH AN ENTIRELY NEW AND EXTRAORDINARILY ATTRACTIVE PROGRAMME, in which the entire strength of this the LARGEST AND MOST POWERFUL MINSTREL COMPANY IN THE WORLD, will take part.
EXTRA GRAND DAY PERFORMANCES
will be given during the Holidays on EASTER MONDAY, TUESDAY, AND WEDNESDAY AFTERNOONS, commencing each day at Three.
Tickets and Places for all parts of the Hall can be secured, without extra charge, at Austin's Ticket office, St. James's Hall.

SOCIETY OF BRITISH ARTISTS.—FIFTY-EIGHTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION NOW OPEN at the SUFFOLK-STREET GALLERIES, Pall-mall East, from Nine to six daily. Admission, One Shilling.
THOMAS ROBERTS, Secretary.

THE SEVENTEENTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION of CABINET PICTURES, by ARTISTS of the BRITISH and FOREIGN SCHOOLS is NOW OPEN at THOMAS McLEAN'S GALLERY, 7, Haymarket (next the Theatre). Admission, including Catalogue, One Shilling.

THE ANNUAL SPRING EXHIBITION OF HIGH-CLASS PICTURES by BRITISH AND FOREIGN ARTISTS, including Professor Leopold Carl Muller's picture, "An Encampment Outside Cairo," is now open at ARTHUR TOOTH and SONS' Gallery, 5, Haymarket. Admission, One Shilling.

DORÉ'S GREAT WORKS.—"ECCE HOMO" ("Full of divine dignity."—The Times) and "THE ASCENSION." "CHRIST LEAVING THE PRETORIUM," "CHRIST ENTERING JERUSALEM," with all his other Great Pictures.—DORÉ GALLERY, 35, New Bond-street. Daily, 10 to 6. 1s.

SUBSCRIPTION TO THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

AT HOME.

| | |
|---|---|
| Twelve months (including Christmas Number) | £1 0s. 3d. |
| Six months, 14s. | Christmas Half-Year, 13s. 3d. |
| Three months, 7s. | Christmas Quarter, 6s. 3d. |

Copies will be supplied direct from the Office to any part of the United Kingdom and the Channel Islands, for any period, at the rate of 6½d. for each Number, paid in advance.

ABROAD.

The yearly subscription abroad is 30s. 4d. (on thin paper, 32s.), with the following exceptions:—

To Aden, Borneo, Ceylon, India, Java, Labuan, Mozambique Penang, Philippine Islands, Sarawak, Singapore, and Zanzibar, 41s. (thin paper, 34s.)

To the Hawaiian Islands, Madagascar (except St. Mary), and Paraguay, 45s. (on thin paper, 36s. 4d.)

Subscribers are specially advised to order the thick paper edition, the appearance of the engravings in the thin paper copies being greatly injured by the print at the back showing through.

Newspapers for foreign parts must be posted within eight days of the time of publication, irrespective of the departure of the mails.

Subscriptions must be paid in advance, direct to the Publishing Office, 198, Strand, in English money; by cheque crossed the Union Bank of London; or by Post-office Order, payable at the East Strand Post Office, to George C. Leighton, of 198, Strand, London.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, APRIL 9, 1881.

A Gladstone Budget is a political phenomenon always looked forward to by the British public with liveliest interest, generally suggestive of fruitful reflections, and sometimes involving great financial operations upon one or other of the staple industries of the country. Often they are characterised by immense courage, and, quite as often, the reforms they propose are founded upon economical bases as solid and immovable as granite rocks. Mr. Gladstone appears to possess all the qualities which should go to the making of a perfect Financier. He is enterprising; but he combines with enterprise a faculty of research and a mastery over details which restrain him, so far at least as his legislative proposals are concerned, within the orbit of sobriety and safety. To no man of modern times, perhaps, has the fiscal policy of this country been more largely indebted; and yet no man who has occupied the post of Chancellor of the Exchequer so entirely commands the confidence of capitalists and men of property. He has acquired a reputation among all classes that, in his official capacity, he both knows where he is and what he can do, and is competent so to adjust the burden of taxation—no light one, it may be remarked—to the power of the people to bear it, and to the relative claims of different classes to justice, as to give seemingly and virtually a large accession of vigour to the country, as well as to the State.

This, however, constitutes by no means the entire fitness of Mr. Gladstone's mind to preside over and to arrange National Finance. He can marvellously elucidate and commend to the judgment of others what he has to initiate; his tongue can utter the schemes which his genius conceives. He can even fascinate where he fails to convince, and, what is of still greater importance, he can open out prospects of large fertility, of which, for the time being, he declines to avail himself. Almost every point he touches, in any of his financial statements, he renders luminous, not only in itself, but to a large environment of related circumstances. His greatest changes, as we have already intimated, are safe; but the most trivial of the readjustments which he suggests are so suggested as to be far more important for what they imply than for what they are. He seldom removes an impost, or puts on a duty, without assigning for what he does reasons which cover much more than the ground of the particular instance they are meant to justify. It is, perhaps, this which, quite apart from the direct matters that he handles, imparts such a charm to subjects that, in themselves, are usually considered uninteresting and dry.

Mr. Gladstone's Budget of Monday night was not a great one—not great, we mean, in its immediate promise to the country. It was hardly possible that it should have been such. His hands were tied by previous arrangements for which he was not more responsible than other members of the House of Commons. He had debts to pay which others had contracted. He had increased expenditure to provide for, which had been entailed by a policy to which he strongly objected. The revenue of the last Fiscal year, it is true, exceeded the Estimate of his predecessor in Office by a considerable sum, and his own forecast of Revenue tallied pretty nearly with that given by Sir Stafford Northcote. Nevertheless, the sum actually realised from taxation in the year 1880-1 told somewhat doubtfully of the elasticity of our resources. We need not give the figures. They will be already in the minds of those of our readers whose taste lies in this direction. Suffice it to say that the proposals actually made to the Legislature, affecting the mode of taxation for the year 1881-2, comprise the taking off of the additional penny of Income Tax conceded to him last year, for the purpose of meeting the extra expenditure to be incurred by the substitution of a Beer Tax for the Malt Tax. He thereby surrenders the whole of his apparent surplus, and leaves a deficit, on the side of estimated Revenue, of £275,000. This loss he must recover, and by certain alterations in the mode of exacting Legacy and Probate Duties, and by a readjustment of the Duty on Foreign Spirits, he expects to obtain in round numbers a surplus of £300,000. The Duty on Silver Plate is to be gradually abolished, with a view to encourage a manufacture which, we are told, can be liberally and successfully dealt in by India. Such (without going into minute details) is the gist of Mr. Gladstone's eleventh Budget—the last, he forewarns us, that he will present to the House of Commons. Even if it be (as he seems to have determined in his own mind) his last Financial Statement, and though it cannot be ranked among the highest, it contains waymarks for any future Chancellor of the Exchequer, which, it is to be hoped, will guide that official, be he whom he may, to fruitful results. We will not, however, speculate on matters so largely enveloped in uncertainty. Be it our present satisfaction to learn that we are now rapidly getting rid of extraordinary liabilities, and are closing up the sources from which they issued. Financially speaking, this country is still on the strain, or, in other words, is bearing a larger amount of taxation than is normally due to it. But unless the Queen's Government rushes into new expenses—War expenses, we may say—or unless it is pushed into them by benevolent legislation for civil objects, it may be fairly hoped that we have touched the zenith of expenditure, for several years to come, at any rate, and, even if it should be so, local expenditure, we fear, will be upon the increase for some time forward.

One cannot but wonder at the ease with which the House of Commons has resumed its former habits and spirit. To be sure, it costs the vast majority of members far less to re-enter upon a traditional procedure in regard to business than it does to resist and overcome deliberate and persistent obstruction. But, it must be confessed, the contrast between the last two or three weeks and the first eight or ten which preceded them is so great as to make us wonder at our then alarms. Things which were not long ago spoken of as impossibilities have now been achieved. Dangers which appeared to be imminent and all but inevitable have passed away. We are gliding back rapidly, but almost insensibly, into ordinary channels. We are anticipating a busy time, it is true, but also a time of genuine progress. We have had what we may call a regular Budget accepted, not from sheer necessity, but upon its own merits. And now we are to have an Irish Land Bill, which will make its way, we trust, through both Houses of Parliament; and, what is more, will settle a controversy which has been open from a period long before the memory of this generation.

Our readers will be glad to learn that "G. A. S." will resume his pleasant "Echoes" next week.

Baroness Burdett-Coutts and Mr. Burdett-Coutts Bartlett arrived at No. 1, Stratton-street, on Monday.

THE PLAYHOUSES.

Modern melodrama, as recently exhibited, appears to me to be as unsymmetrical and discordant as the smart screens that are made out of cuttings from the illustrated papers. They are showy; they startle the eye with some splash of colour or eccentricity of form; they cost their author or manufacturer evident anxiety and labour; but they are totally deficient in harmony, artistic feeling, and taste. The new play at the Princess's Theatre, written by Mr. Richard Lee, and called "Branded," has evidently cost the author an infinity of trouble and the management a considerable amount of money. But, for all that, it is a play of patchwork, and its effect is just as glaring. Situations and surprises; horses from the circus; tongue-tied children; murderesses more abominably callous than Marguerite Dixblanc, who strangled poor Madame Ravel in Park-lane; convicts dragging weighted shot at their ankles; funerals and dead marches; drunken women apostrophising corpses; mortuary chapels tumbling about the ears of hunted criminals; conscience-stricken bankers shrinking under the ordeal by touch, have all been liberally peppered over the scene-plot. The audience is never permitted to wait longer than five minutes for an excitement; but the result is precisely the opposite to what was evidently intended. No one can say that the new drama is dull; but whether in its excess of "sensational" material it is not vulgar is quite another matter. Such a play as this deceives nobody. It is unreal, hollow, and empty of influence. The border line between a comforting deception and a distracting childishness in melodrama is extremely slight; and when I see the horses paraded for military evolutions, the dumb speaking, women shot through the brain recovering as from a trance, the stage littered with the bricks and débris of a fallen chapel, and actors and actresses once more compelled to be subordinate to the mechanical tricks of the scene, I ask myself whether the drama that is gaining intellectual form in one direction is not losing it in another?

For this is altogether a modern idea, to make of melodrama a trap for the laughter-loving and the witless. An entertainment that attracts an audience half influenced by its garishness, and half tickled at its ludicrous exaggeration, is not, after all, a very desirable form of art. It was not thus that old melodramas were made or were acted. Take such familiar instances as the "Flowers of the Forest," the "Green Bushes," "Janet Pride," the "Dead Heart," the "Duke's Motto," the "Colleen Bawn," and "Arrah-na-Pogue," and you will find there exaggeration, no doubt, but mingled with it a very touching and true chord of human sympathy. Laughter and tears were happily blended; romance, however high-flown, was relieved by the comic man, and I don't believe that anyone got up from any of these plays without feeling somehow or other the better for them. You don't get up from "Branded" any the worse for seeing it, for its moral tone and sentiment are unimpeachable, but it can scarcely be called an intellectual treat or even a mental stimulant of any kind whatever. People say that they become children again when they go to a play, and by this they mean that their minds are just as open to innocent influences as children are. But they don't mean that they can get excited at a troop of circus horses just because they are on the stage, or can be thrilled when a built-up edifice crumbles like an infant's box of bricks. The makers of modern melodrama expect too much from our faith when sensation borders on silliness.

But I think the artists who in the loyal service of their art have to play second fiddle as it were to the mechanist, the scene-painter, and the circus director are really more to be pitied than the audience. There is no law compelling man, woman, or child to sit out a modern melodrama of sensational interest; but the actors and actresses, who are faithful servants of the public, are forced to occupy themselves precisely as the public desires. The "drama's laws the drama's patrons give," and so we see Henry Neville, Charles Warner, Mrs. Vezin, and Miss Caroline Hill, cum multis aliis, standing aside as it were whilst the sensation is preparing that is to astonish London in the form of a gigantic poster. The sensation is not the outcome of the acting: the actor is subordinate to the situation. It was not ever so. The art of the melodramatic actor was continually in high and deserved esteem. Frederick Lemaitre and Mélingue, Benjamin Webster and Charles Fechter, Leigh Murray and Boucicault—these are names of great pith and moment. They were artists one and all, although they most distinguished themselves in melodrama; but I should be surprised indeed if Mr. Henry Neville, Miss Caroline Hill, and Mr. F. Archer seriously believe that their talent is even tested in a work of this description. I may be in a minority, but I do not honestly believe that melodramas of patchwork, plays pasted together of clever odds and ends, curious, fantastic experiments of combined experience, are really so pleasing to the public as the stage romance of other days, that had much absurdity in its development but a good deal of heart and nature at its root.

But if Mr. Richard Lee will excuse me for saying so, he suffers most from the unaccountable suppression of comic interest. Melodrama must have this relief. What would the Adelphi melodramas have been without Wright and Toole and Paul Bedford to vary the monotony of the strain on the imagination? In recent days, what would the "World" have been without Mr. Harry Jackson's comic Jew, or "Michael Strogoff" without Mr. H. J. Byron's pun-making Englishman. That comic sexton in "Branded"—a most dreary creature, it must be confessed—is not strong enough as an olive to give a taste for the full-flavoured wine. If some comic scenes could be written on to the new melodrama, "it is not impossible it might run, with its other showy attractions.

"London Assurance" is what is called an actor's play; or, in other words, it brims over with good parts, capable of bringing out the individual characteristics of clever people. Experience shows that the famous comedy is as safe "to draw" as "The School for Scandal," or even "Hamlet" itself. There has been no exception to this rule down at the Imperial, at Westminster, once more turned into an afternoon theatre, where Miss Helen Barry, Mr. J. H. Barnes, and various other clever people will be found. Miss Helen Barry is a striking instance of the result of hard work and indefatigable industry. Every year she improves; practice makes perfect; and her Lady Gay Spanker is full of vivacity, humour, and good-nature.

I am sorry to hear that Charles Warner, the Michael Strogoff of the Adelphi Russian melodrama, has broken down at last under the strain, pain, and nervous excitement caused by the injury to the palm of his hand that I have already described. He kept up bravely till the last moment, in the teeth of medical and surgical advice; but on Tuesday, after consulting two of the first surgeons in London, Mr. Warner was compelled to take to his bed and submit to a course of complete rest that was imperatively ordered. The management discovered a substitute in Mr. J. H. Clynds, a melodramatic actor well known in the east end of London, and of great experience. The last time I had the pleasure of seeing Mr. Clynds was at the old Victoria, when he played a virtuous working man excellently, as I thought. In fact, I have never ceased to wonder why Mr. J. B. Howe, Mr. Reynolds (of the Britannia), and Mr. J. H. Clynds did not more frequently appear at West-End theatres. Mr. Mead, as we all know, is now an established favourite at the Lyceum.

For the rest, there has not been much stirring in the way of novelty at the playhouses or places of entertainment, if I except a pleasant evening, under the presidency of Dr. B. W. Richardson, at the Steinway Hall, when Miss Gertrude Kellogg, a clever American lady, recited chiefly from the best prose and poetry works of America. Her success was indisputable. Easter no longer brings to us a pretty collection of fairy plays and fanciful stories, as in the days when we knew the combination of Madame Vestris, Charles Mathews, and J. Robinson Planché, at the Lyceum. True, there will be a change at the Lyceum, when, on Saturday week, Mr. Henry Irving will revive "The Belle's Stratagem," and enact Dericourt to the Letitia Hardy of Miss Ellen Terry. Everything done at the Lyceum must necessarily be interesting, but excitement at present is veering towards the new æsthetic opera by Mr. W. S. Gilbert and Arthur Sullivan, that is almost ready at the Opera Comique, where it follows the successful "Sorcerer," "Pinafore," and "Pirates of Penzance."

C. S.

"THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS."

Another new journal for the young! The first illustrated newspaper, for boys was published on Wednesday last, at the price of one penny, under the auspices of the proprietors of the Illustrated London News. Over 100,000 copies of the first Number of The Boys' Illustrated News were ordered by the Trade on the day of publication. A fresh edition has since been printed. We trust this popularity will not be considered undeserved. Our readers may rely upon it that The Boys' Illustrated News will be a journal full of entertainment and information for youth, and at the same time a paper which parents can with confidence place in the hands of their children. We have to thank Punch for paying the following graceful compliment to the new venture and to its conductors:—

"Captain Mayne Reid, with Mr. John Latey, Junior, edits the New Journal for Boys. Of course, under such direction, there'll be nothing in it they Mayn't read. The Boys are quite e-Latey'd."

ROYAL NATIONAL LIFE-BOAT INSTITUTION.

At a meeting of this institution, held on Thursday at its house, John-street, Adelphi, its silver medal was voted to the Rev. J. O'Reilly Blackwood, and £21 to the crew of the Ballywalter life-boat, for putting off during a severe easterly gale, the weather being bitterly cold and the sea running most high, and, with great difficulty, saving, in two trips, the crew of twenty-five men of the ship Castlemaine, of Liverpool, which had stranded in Ballyhalbert Bay. Double the usual reward, £24, was also granted to the crew of the Holy Island life-boat for their services during a hurricane on March 8, in pulling the boat a distance of six miles through a very heavy sea to the barque Jupiter, of Liverpool, which had gone ashore on the Sand Rigg at Goswick, and saving the crew of fifteen men, together with one women and two children. Other rewards, amounting to £487, were granted to the crews of various life-boats for recent services, the boats having been instrumental during the month of March in saving altogether 113 lives, besides helping to rescue three vessels from destruction. The silver medal of the institution was voted to Mr. Thomas Bate, coxswain of the Bude life-boat, and its thanks, inscribed on vellum, to Mr. George Tickle, jun., of H.M.S. Defence, in acknowledgment of their gallant and meritorious conduct in assisting to save, by means of life-lines and a hawser, the crew of three men of the ketch Shicley, of Bude, which was wrecked off that place during stormy weather on Dec. 31 last. Other rewards were granted to the crews of shore-boats for saving life from wrecks on our coasts, and payments amounting to £4000 were made on different life-boat establishments.

The receipt of her Majesty's annual subscription of £50 to the institution was announced, with other contributions, including £500 from Mrs. Molson, of Errol Park, per W. O. Dalgleish, Esq. The late Sir Thos. Tobin has left the institution a legacy of £186 to supplement his "Penny" Life-Boat Fund, which is to be appropriated in providing a life-boat in memory of his son, the boat being named the Arthur Lionel.

Reports were read from the chief inspector and the five district inspectors of life-boats on their recent visits to life-boat stations.

Mr. Gladstone is to be invited to a banquet of the Fishmongers' Company on the 27th inst.

General Sir W. Fenwick Williams, Bart., G.C.B., has been appointed Constable of the Tower.

Mr. Rigby, Mr. Karslake, Mr. Whitehorne, and Mr. Romer have been promoted to the rank of Queen's Counsel.

The Duke of Portland has been elected president of the Nottingham General Hospital.

Major-General Sir H. Havelock-Allan, M.P., has been appointed to the command at Aldershott.

The Prince of Wales, at the request of the German Crown Prince, has consented to allow his Indian art-treasures to be exhibited at Berlin in the autumn.

Sir R. Malins has been made a member of her Majesty's Most Honourable Privy Council, on his retirement from the Vice-Chancellorship.

The members of the South-Eastern Circuit have invited Mr. Justice Williams and Mr. Justice Mathew to dinner in the Inner Temple Hall on Tuesday, the 12th inst.

The Duke of Buckingham and Chandos was appointed Chairman of the Buckingham Quarter Sessions at Aylesbury on Monday, in place of Lord Cottesloe, who has resigned on account of his great age, eighty-three.

A report from Tipperary states that the Empress of Austria has taken Thomastown Castle, between Cashel and Tipperary, the residence of the late Comte de Jarnac, as a hunting-lodge for next year, and that a sum of £5000 is to be expended shortly on the house and grounds. The situation is picturesque, and is in the centre of a fine sporting district.

Lord Beaconsfield's health was, at the time of our going to press, slowly improving. The bulletin issued on Wednesday morning stated: "Lord Beaconsfield has passed a fair night. The symptoms generally, as regards the chest and the gout, are improved. His Lordship's condition is, on the whole, favourable." Dr. Kidd returned to Curzon-street at about one o'clock on Wednesday, and saw Lord Beaconsfield for a short time. On leaving, the medical gentleman stated that his patient had had a quiet morning, and was "doing nicely." Dr. Quain and Dr. Kidd again called in the afternoon, and were satisfied with his progress. A telegram was sent to the Queen at five o'clock by Lord Barrington with the latest report.

MUSIC.

THE GUILDHALL ORCHESTRAL SOCIETY.

The concert given at the Mansion House last Saturday afternoon was eminently successful. This institution and the Guildhall School of Music, both under the direction of Mr. Weist Hill, are raising the City to a high reputation in musical art. The orchestral playing on Saturday was generally excellent, especially so in the opening overture, that by Mendelssohn, entitled "A Calm Sea and Prosperous Voyage;" other pieces having also been given with great effect by a very full band, consisting almost entirely of amateurs. A novelty was a pretty Gavotte, composed expressly for the society by Mr. Louis Diehl.

A difficult solo for the clarinet was remarkably well played by Mr. V. Gerard (an amateur); and two clever little ladies, Misses G. M. and A. G. Porter, distinguished themselves by performances, respectively, on the violin and violoncello. These juvenile artists are pupils of the Guildhall School, as are Messrs. J. D. Henderson and H. Gluenstein, each of whom was successful in vocal solos.

The delivery of Linley's song, "O bid your faithful Ariel fly," by Miss B. Cox, was especially meritorious; Miss E. Gibson having also sung well in Sterndale Bennett's sacred air "O Lord, Thou hast searched me out." These ladies are students at the National Training School. Mr. Weist Hill conducted with special ability.

The Corporation Music Deputation is to be congratulated on the success with which this new civic movement is being carried out by the energy and skill of Mr. Hill.

THE LONDON MUSICAL SOCIETY.

The first concert of the third season took place at St. James's Hall on Saturday evening, when a fine choir and select orchestra gave full effect to the "Dixit Dominus" of Leonardo Leo (the great Neapolitan composer who flourished contemporaneously with Handel), and the late Herman Goetz's impressive setting of the 137th Psalm, "By the waters of Babylon." Both these works have before been given and commented on. In Saturday's performance the solo portions were very effectively rendered by Misses A. Williams, Wakefield, and J. Jones, Mr. C. Wade, and the Hon. Spencer G. Lyttelton, in the "Dixit Dominus;" and Viscountess Folkestone and the last-named gentleman in the psalm.

The second part of the concert opened with a highly skilful performance of Herr Max Bruch's violin concerto by Herr Emil Mahr, and closed with a new "Magnificat" by Mr. E. Silas. This work—for chorus, orchestra, and solo vocal quartet—was performed for the first time, and proved highly effective, although placed at the end of the programme. It contains some very skilful writing, both in the fugal and the florid styles, the choral portions being especially well constructed, and the orchestral details well contrasted. The incidental quartet, "Et misericordia," was smoothly sung by Viscountess Folkestone, Miss Wakefield, Mr. C. Wade, and the Hon. S. G. Lyttelton. Mr. Barnby conducted with care and judgment, and Mr. W. Hodge was a competent organist.

The second concert takes place on June 30.

At last Saturday's Crystal Palace concert, Mr. F. H. Cowen's symphony in C minor was performed for the first time there. This is the third and the most elaborate work of its kind produced by Mr. Cowen, and is intended to reproduce the impressions received by him during his professional tour in Scandinavian countries. As we have already spoken of the merits and characteristics of the symphony when recording its production at one of Mr. Cowen's concerts (in December last), we need now only record its fine performance and favourable reception at Saturday's concert; other specialties at which were Herr Joachim's rendering of the adagio and allegro from Spohr's sixth violin concerto, and of the player's own theme with variations. Miss Santley sang with much effect, as did Mr. F. King, each in two solo pieces.

At the Popular Concert of last Saturday afternoon, Herr Straus was the leading violinist; Madame Schumann having again been the pianist and Madame Lavrouska the vocalist. At the following evening concert, on Monday, the lady last named and Herr Joachim reappeared, Miss Agnes Zimmermann having contributed some effective pianoforte performances, solo and concerted. The last Saturday afternoon performance takes place this week; and the final evening concert of the series on Monday next, this being, as usual, the director's benefit.

The "South London Choral Association" opened its third season with the first of three concerts at St. James's Hall on Tuesday evening, when the old madrigal, "Come again, sweet love," by Dowland, Stevens's glee, "The cloud-cap't towers," and various modern part-songs, were effectively rendered—the programme having also included vocal solos by Mrs. Osgood, Madame Bolingbroke, and Mr. Maas. Mr. Sainton having contributed a brilliant violin fantasia. The second concert takes place on May 19, and the last on June 22.

The first of three concerts sustained by past and present pupils of Madame Sainton-Dolby's vocal academy took place at Steinway Hall on Thursday afternoon.

Of this week's performances of Handel's "Alexander's Feast," Bach's "Sanctus" (in D), and Brahms's "Requiem," by the Bach Society (at the second concert of the year), we must speak next week.

The fourth of this year's concerts of the Philharmonic Society took place on Thursday evening, when the programme included a repetition of Berlioz's "Romeo and Juliet" symphony (produced at the previous concert) and other interesting features.

For the same evening performances of Mr. Arthur Sullivan's sacred musical drama "The Martyr of Antioch" and Brahms's "Requiem" were announced by the Royal Albert Hall Choral Society, conducted by Mr. Barnby; the principal solo vocalists named having been Mesdames Albani and Patey, Mr. E. Lloyd and Mr. F. King, as at the production of the work at last year's Leeds Festival.

Handel's "Samson" was promised for performance by the Sacred Harmonic Society yesterday (Friday) evening, with Miss A. Marriott, Madame Patey, Mr. Maas, Mr. Wells, Mr. F. King, and Mr. Bridson as principal vocalists.

This week's "Ballad Concert for the People"—at the Victoria Coffee Music-Hall—was under the direction of Mr. Hullah; and the programme included the following names:—Miss Avigliana, Miss Edith Phillips, Miss Clara Myers, Miss Constantine; Mr. Thorndike, Mr. Percy Blandford; solo violin, Mr. Marcel Herwegh; pianoforte, Mr. Deacon, with a recitation by Mr. Lionel Tennyson; and the "Toy Symphony," performed by a band of thirty musicians.

The series of twelve Twopenny Concerts given by Mr. Ridley Prentice at the Kensington Townhall has recently been brought to a very successful close. Much good music has been included in the programmes, and the performances have been generally appreciated by large audiences.

Mr. Mapleson has announced that the Italian Opera season at Her Majesty's Theatre will open on May 7.

THE UNIVERSITIES' BOAT-RACE.

R. A. PINCKNEY (EXETER).

BOW: R. H. J. POOLE (BRASENOSE).

A. R. PATERSON (TRINITY).

E. BUCK (HERTFORD).

COXSWAIN: E. H. LYON (HERTFORD).

R. S. KINDERSLEY (EXETER).

D. E. BROWN (HERTFORD).

STROKE: L. R. WEST (CHRIST CHURCH).

J. H. T. WHARTON (MAGDALEN).

THE OXFORD CREW.—SEE PAGE 342.

THE UNIVERSITIES' BOAT-RACE.

H. SANDFORD (ST. JOHN'S).

BOW: R. C. G. M. GRIDLEY (TRINITY).

J. A. WATSON-TAYLOR (MAGDALEN).

P. W. ATKINS (JESUS).

COXSWAIN: H. WOODHOUSE (TRINITY HALL).

E. LAMBERT (PEMBROKE).

M. HUTCHINSON (JESUS).

STROKE: E. C. BROOKSBANK (TRINITY HALL).

C. W. MOORE (CHRIST'S).

THE CAMBRIDGE CREW.—SEE PAGE 342.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

As the result of the Universities Boat-Race will be generally known before these lines appear, it is difficult to write anything of much interest concerning it. The practice of both crews was carried on under great difficulties last week, owing to the fearfully rough state of the river, and on Monday the Cambridge boat was very nearly swamped below Putney Bridge. Each crew has had several trials with scratch eights, and, on the whole, they can scarcely be said to have passed the ordeal favourably, as they have not been able to get away from their opponents until superior condition told its inevitable tale. The "light blue" is certainly the prettier crew to look at, and has done the better times over the course; but the betting—an infallible guide in this race—points to the success of Oxford. We append the names and latest weights of both crews:—

| OXFORD. | st. | lb. |
|---|---|---|
| R. H. J. Poole, Brasenose (bow) ... ... ... | 10 | 9 |
| 2. R. A. Pinckney, Exeter ... ... ... ... | 11 | 3½ |
| 3. A. R. Paterson, Trinity ... ... ... ... | 12 | 6½ |
| 4. E. Buck, Hertford ... ... ... ... | 11 | 11 |
| 5. R. S. Kimberley, Exeter ... ... ... ... | 13 | 2 |
| 6. D. E. Brown, Hertford ... ... ... ... | 12 | 6 |
| 7. J. M. T. Wharton, Magdalen ... ... ... | 11 | 10 |
| R. L. West, Christ Church (stroke) ... ... | 11 | 1 |
| E. H. Lyon, Hertford (cox.) ... ... ... | 6 | 12 |
| CAMBRIDGE. | st. | lb. |
| R. C. Gridley, Third Trinity (bow) ... ... ... | 10 | 12 |
| 2. H. Sandford, St. John's ... ... ... ... | 11 | 11 |
| 3. J. A. Watson-Taylor, Magdalene ... ... ... | 12 | 4 |
| 4. P. W. Atkins, Jesus ... ... ... ... ... | 12 | 0 |
| 5. E. Lambert, Pembroke ... ... ... ... | 12 | 6 |
| 6. M. Hutchinson, Jesus ... ... ... ... | 12 | 1 |
| 7. C. W. Moore, Christ's ... ... ... ... ... | 11 | 11 |
| E. C. Brooksbank, Trinity Hall (stroke) ... ... | 11 | 9 |
| H. Woodhouse, Trinity Hall (cox.) ... ... | 7 | 3 |

We never remember to have seen such a muster at Northampton as that which took place on Tuesday last. Progression in the large ring was really a very difficult matter, and the outside public congregated in thousands, doubtless tempted by the weather, which was beautifully fine and bright, with less north-east wind than we have suffered from during the past fortnight. After Old Elsham Lad had given Archer a successful ride in the opening event, a very fair field of youngsters came out for the Althorp Park Stakes. In spite of her poor exhibition at Lincoln, Isabel was once more made a hot favourite, the next in demand being Comely, a filly by Winslow—Belle of Kars, belonging to Sir George Chetwynd. Corky was also backed again; and Admestus, a half-brother to Flavo, for whom Mr. Bates gave 1250 guineas last season, had a few friends. Belle Lurette could tell the stable exactly what chance Comely possessed, so we were not surprised to see her gallop home a very easy winner from a couple of complete outsiders, the trio having no trouble in beating Isabel and Corky. Mowerina, who was in rare form last autumn, took the Bucclengh Cup; and then eighteen numbers were hoisted for the Spencer Plate. Sir George Chetwynd supplied the favourite in Œnone (6 st. 12 lb), a very smart two-year-old last year, and who had been so well tried with Grace that her defeat was never thought of. Whyborn, who had never won an important event, rode her in somewhat eccentric fashion, but she had so much in hand that getting badly away and coming all round her horses below the distance did not prevent her success. Eastern Empress (7 st. 7 lb.) and Golden Eye (7 st. 7 lb.) finished a dead-heat half a length behind her; but St. Augustine (7 st. 1 lb.), in spite of carrying a very large sum of money, never looked dangerous.

The field for the old-fashioned Northamptonshire Stakes dwindled down to very small proportions, only three starters putting in an appearance at the post. This was almost compensated for, however, by the grand race that ensued between Baron A. de Rothschild's Commandant, by Le Petit Caporal—Marcella, 5 years (7 st. 9 lb.), and Mr. W. S. Crawfurd's School Boy, 4 years (6 st. 11 lb.), the former, with Fordham up, winning a most exciting race by a neck only. Barratt, the pilot of the outsider Verax, was unfortunately unshipped when going very well, in consequence of his saddle slipping round, and therefore did not pass the post.

The melancholy death of George Levett, coupled with the recent accident to James Potter—who, we regret to say, is lying in a very precarious state—call attention once more to the great need of a fund amongst jockeys and stable-lads to meet cases of this sort, where a man is deprived of all means of livelihood in a moment, or leaves a widow and children quite destitute, or only partially provided for. The present system of raising a subscription, to which all classes of racing men, and the members of the ring in particular, seldom fail to contribute most liberally, is unsatisfactory in many ways; and we sincerely trust that the idea of a Turf Benefit Society, which has so often been mooted, will ere long be carried into effect.

The much-postponed match for the billiard championship, between Joseph Bennett, the holder of the title, and F. Shorter, will positively take place at St. James's Hall on Wednesday evening next.

---

The recurrence, this week, of the annual Oxford and Cambridge Boat-Race on the Thames, with the "jubilee" celebration, in which many of the old University oarsmen are now pleased to join, gives fresh interest to a book published eight years ago, and noticed by us with approval at that time. It is a volume issued by Messrs. Macmillan, bearing the title "University Oars," the author of which is Dr. J. E. Morgan, M.D., M.A., of University College, Oxford, Physician to the Manchester Royal Infirmary, and now Professor of Medicine in the Victoria University (late Owens College) at Manchester. Dr. Morgan had applied much care and labour, during four years, from 1869 to 1873, to ascertain the facts bearing upon a question then much disputed by the medical profession, the effect of hard rowing, or that of hard training for these rowing contests, upon the young men at Oxford and Cambridge who engage in them with so much zeal and fortitude. His personal inquiries concerning the after life and state of health of some two hundred and fifty members of the rival University crews, from 1829 to 1869, accepting their own testimony or that of their family connections or intimate friends, must be regarded as conclusive and satisfactory in a high degree. The remarks of Dr. Morgan, as a physiologist and physician, and himself experienced in the captainship of a college boat at Oxford, should have considerable weight in our judgment of this question. His views are discriminating, though sufficiently decided; and, while he commends rowing as a beneficial exercise, in moderation, for ordinary persons, he points out what sort of persons may be fit subjects for its more athletic trials of bodily strength and endurance. The lists of University crews, and particulars of former races, appended to this volume, may be referred to again this week.

In the theatre of the Society of Arts, on Monday evening Mr. Allan S. Cole gave the first of the course of Cantor lectures for the present session, the subject being "The Art of Lace-making." This lecture dealt principally with the history of the art, which Mr. Cole said covered a period of some 300 years, so far as relates to what we now speak of as lace.

The Extra Supplement.

PEOPLE WHO ALWAYS SEE THE RACE.

The popular mind of London yearly gets into a fit of more or less affected excitement, upon the favourite occasion that comes off on Friday morning, as usual, along the famous rowing-course of the Thames, from Putney to Mortlake, where Oxford and Cambridge champion eights, the "Dark Blues" and the "Light Blues," pull against each other for the honour and glory of their respective Universities. It is not a little remarkable that the declaration of a zealous sympathetic partisanship for one or the other of those learned and reverend academical corporations, the two ancient English Universities, should be most frequently uttered by the mouths of babes and sucklings, of servant-maids, errand-boys, and the illiterate streetocracy, who can have no possible reason for partiality to either serene abode of classic studies. "Are you Oxford or Cambridge?" these simple folk demand of every one they meet, as if it were a contested election, when one is supposed to be Liberal or Tory, and to know the reason why, unless one has a still better reason for not being either the one or the other. It is like what the fuss about "the Derby" used to be, among people whose actual knowledge of horses was equally naught with their knowledge of boat-racing, and whose real concern and interest therein was not less remote. For all that, we are bound to confess that the Epsom Downs, on a fine Wednesday of early summer, with some fifty thousand Londoners making holiday there, afford a magnificent sight; and nearly the same is to be said of the crowded banks of our river on the Friday morning, though too soon in the spring season to escape a perilous chilliness of the air, when the rival "Blues" exhibit their manly prowess in a competition of aquatic swiftness. The scene which our Artist has delineated in the large Engraving presented for an Extra Supplement this week abounds with characteristic figures and gestures of "People who always see the Race."

---

THE STATE OF IRELAND.

Our Illustration of a scene occasioned by one of the extraordinary measures of precaution that Government has been obliged to adopt in Ireland, the search for concealed arms under the Peace Preservation Act, might sufficiently explain itself. We here see a party of that half-military police force, the Royal Irish Constabulary, with their officer in command, in the kitchen of a small farm-house, raising the hearthstone with a crowbar to look for suspected rifles or revolvers, while the loft overhead is about to be explored by the man now ascending the ladder in the corner of the room. The fierce and sullen temper of the man in custody, or perhaps only expecting to be led off as a prisoner when the evidences of his illegal conduct shall have been discovered, is plainly expressed by his face, sitting there, hopeless of resistance, amidst half a dozen armed guardians of law and order. His wife and daughter are trying, but in vain, the power of their tearful entreaty to relax the officer's stern sense of duty; and there can be no doubt that the resident magistrate of the district will have to deal with this case.

The Dublin Gazette, issued on Tuesday night, contains proclamations under the Peace Preservation Act, and orders that every person not licensed to carry arms is required, on or before the 15th inst., to deposit at the nearest police-station all arms and ammunition in his possession. The Act is to be in force from the 7th inst., in the county of Cork, in certain baronies of county Donegal, in the counties of Galway, Kerry, Leitrim, Limerick, Longford, Mayo, Roscommon, Sligo, and Westmeath; in parts of Kilkenny, Queen's County, city of Limerick, city of Cork, Galway town, county Cavan, county Monaghan, and some baronies of Tipperary. Regulations are provided for the sale of arms and ammunition, and arms issued for some of these counties and districts.

An order in the Dublin Gazette of yesterday week proclaims twelve baronies in the county of Cork to be in a state of disturbance and requiring additional establishment of police.

Mr. Joseph Tully, editor of the Roscommon Herald and Land League organiser for the county, has been arrested under a warrant issued by the Lord Lieutenant, charging him with "boycotting" and intimidation, and lodged in Kilmainham Gaol.

Several men were killed and others were wounded in an affray last Saturday between the people and a number of police who were protecting a process-server on an estate at Clogher, Gurteen, near Ballaghadareen, in the county of Mayo. It seems that the police marched with the process-server from Mullaghmore; and when half-way between that place and Ballaghadareen a party of country people, armed with sticks and other weapons, came from behind the hedges and attacked them. Stones were flung and some of the police were injured. Constable Armstrong, of Mullaghmore, who was in charge of the party, was knocked down by a blow of a stone, and received so severe a wound that he lay insensible on the road. The police fired in self-defence, and two men were shot dead. The fight then became general and the people continued to throw stones, but were ultimately driven off. Constable Armstrong was then conveyed to the neighbouring police-barracks and a doctor was sent for, who pronounced the case hopeless, as his skull had been smashed, and he died shortly afterwards. Thirty-two of the mob were wounded.

George Marshall, son of a farmer at Ballymacelligott, near Tralee, was arrested on Monday morning under the Coercion Act, and was conveyed to Kilmainham Gaol by the 8.30 a.m. train.

---

TAKING THE CENSUS.

The ninth Census of the United Kingdom was taken on Monday throughout the British Isles. The only religious Census to be taken is as to Ireland, and there no record is required as to imbecility or lunacy, as directed in England and Scotland. The Census in England is taken under the Local Government Board, in Scotland under the Secretary of State, and in Ireland under the Lord Lieutenant. At the last Census, in 1871, the number of persons returned in the United Kingdom was 31,857,338, against 29,571,644 in 1861. The Census of 1871 showed an increase of 2,646,042 persons and 519,612 inhabited houses in England, in Scotland 297,724 and 18,965, in the Channel Islands and Man 1191 and 844. In Ireland the decrease was 387,551, or 56,596 families, and 31,927 houses, giving, after the deductions, an increase of 2,205,694 persons, and 505,620 inhabited houses as the result of the Census. It is anticipated that the present Census will show that the population has increased to about 34,000,000.

---

The arrivals of live stock and fresh meat landed at Liverpool last week from the United States and Canada, as was expected, were above those of the preceding week: making a total of 1004 cattle, 486 sheep, 7046 quarters of beef, 1514 carcases of mutton, and 342 pigs.

THE COURT.

The funeral of the infant, Victoria Georgina Beatrice Maud Anne, daughter of Princess Frederica of Hanover and Baron von Pawel Rammingen, took place on Thursday week at Windsor Casle. The coffin was conveyed from Hampton Court Palace at an early hour and deposited in the Albert Memorial Chapel. It bore the inscription, "The infant child of Princess Frederica, daughter of the King of Hanover, and Baron Freigher von Pawel Rammingen. Born March 7. Died March 21, 1881." At twelve o'clock the funeral service was performed in St. George's Chapel, which was attended by Baron von Pawel Rammingen and his sister, Baroness von Coburg, the Hon. Mrs. Charles Eliot, Lady-in-Waiting to Princess Frederica, and Mr. W. H. Roots, her medical attendant. Princess Beatrice was present, and also Major-General Du Plat and Colonel Sir John Carstairs M'Neill, on behalf of the Queen. The Dean of Windsor and the Rev. Canon Lord Wriothesley Russell officiated, the infant being placed in the Royal vault beneath the chapel, where lie her grandfather and other relatives. Various wreaths were placed upon the coffin. Baron von Pawel Rammingen and Baroness von Coburg were afterwards received by her Majesty, and subsequently left Windsor for Hampton Court.

Princess Christian visited the Queen upon her return from Berlin, and General Sir Neville Chamberlain and Major-General Wilson, with Lieutenant-General the Right Hon. Sir Henry and the Hon. Lady Ponsonby, dined with her Majesty.

A Council was held by the Queen the next day, at which were present Earl Spencer, Earl Sydney, and the Right Hon. Sir William Harcourt. Earl Spencer and Sir William Harcourt had audiences of her Majesty; after which Mr. Justice Mathew, Mr. Justice Cave, and Mr. C. W. Sikes, of Huddersfield, were knighted. Major-General Sir John Cowell arrived at the castle on his return from attending the funeral of the late Emperor of Russia at St. Petersburg. Her Majesty's dinner party included Prince and Princess Christian, Princess Beatrice, the Earl and Countess of Morley, Lady Southampton, Viscount Torrington, Major-General Sir John and Lady Cowell, and Captain Edwards.

The Empress Eugénie arrived at the castle last Saturday, on a visit to the Queen. Princess Beatrice met the Empress at the Windsor Station. The Judge Advocate-General had an audience of her Majesty; and the Royal dinner party included the Empress Eugénie, Princess Beatrice, Lady Southampton, Madame d'Arcos, M. Pietri, Viscount Torrington, Lieutenant-General the Right Hon. Sir Henry and the Hon. Lady Ponsonby, and General Sir Lintorn Simmons.

On Sunday the Queen and Princess Beatrice attended Divine service in the private chapel of the castle, the Rev. H. Montagu Butler, D.D., Head Master of Harrow School, officiating. The Empress Eugénie went to St. Andrew's Chapel, Clewer. Her Majesty and the Empress drove out in the afternoon. Prince Leopold arrived from Claremont. His Royal Highness and Princess Beatrice were present at the afternoon service in St. George's Chapel.

The Empress Eugénie returned to Coombe Cottage on Monday. Princess Christian visited her Majesty. Mr. Francis Clare Ford was presented to the Queen and kissed hands on his appointment as Minister at Athens, and, with the Marquis of Lansdowne and the Earl and Countess of Lathom, was included in the Royal dinner party.

The Duke of Edinburgh lunched with her Majesty on Tuesday, and the Prince of Wales visited the Queen.

Her Majesty and Princess Beatrice left Windsor on Wednesday for Osborne.

By the Queen's desire, telegrams are sent daily to her Majesty giving intelligence of the state of Lord Beaconsfield.

While the Court was in town last week Princess Beatrice and the Duchess of Connaught went to the Haymarket Theatre, and also visited the Exhibition of Water-Colour Sketches of South Africa, by Miss Catherine Frere, at the Librairie de l'Art, in New Bond-street, and the Panorama of the Light Cavalry Charge at Balaklava in Leicester-square.

Mrs. Drummond, of Megginch, and the Dean of Westminster dined with her Majesty; and Mr. Gladstone had an audience of the Queen. Princesses Louise, Victoria, and Maud of Wales lunched with her Majesty at Buckingham Palace.

The Gazette announces that her Majesty's birthday will be generally kept on Tuesday, May 24 next; but that, in order to avoid interference with the business of Parliament on that day, it will be celebrated in London alone on May 28.

THE QUEEN'S LEVEE.

By the Queen's command, the Prince of Wales held a Levée on Tuesday at St. James's Palace on behalf of her Majesty. His Royal Highness was escorted from Marlborough House by a detachment of Life Guards. The Levée was attended by the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, the Duke of Edinburgh, the Duke of Connaught and Strathearn, the Duke of Cambridge, Prince Christian of Schleswig-Holstein, and Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar. There was a large attendance, the presentations numbering three hundred.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince of Wales and the Duke of Edinburgh, travelling strictly incog., arrived at Berlin on Saturday from St. Petersburg. Their Royal Highnesses, after exchanging visits with their relatives, dined at the Crown Prince's Palace, with the Emperor and Empress and the immediate members of the Royal and Imperial family, including Prince and Princess William and the uncle of the latter, Prince Hohenlohe-Lagnenburg. The journey was afterwards continued to Brussels, where the Prince and the Duke of Edinburgh were received at the railway station by the King of the Belgians, the Count of Flanders, and the personnel of the British Legation. Their Royal Highnesses were present at a dinner given in their honour at the palace on Sunday. The Princes left Brussels on Monday morning, travelling viâ Calais to Dover, and thence, by a special train on the South-Eastern Railway, to Charing-cross, whence the Prince drove to Marlborough House and the Duke of Edinburgh to Clarence House. The Princess of Wales and the Duchess of Edinburgh remain at St. Petersburg. The Duke of Connaught and Prince Christian visited the Prince on Tuesday. His Royal Highness held a Levée, and called to inquire after Lord Beaconsfield, and afterwards went to Windsor Castle.

Princesses Louise, Victoria, and Maud of Wales, accompanied by the Rev. T. Teignmouth Shore, visited St. Paul's Cathedral yesterday week, Bishop Claughton conducting them over the edifice.

---

Prince Leopold presided at a second meeting of the committee for promoting the proposed special Loan Exhibition of Spanish and Portuguese Ornamental Art held at the South Kensington Museum last Saturday.

The Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz and the Duchess of Teck and her children and the Duke of Cambridge visited the Royal London Panorama, on Tuesday.

The Duke of Cambridge had a dinner party at Gloucester House, Park-lane, last Saturday.

The Duchess of Teck, with Princess Victoria of Teck, visited the exhibition of ancient needlework, now being held at the Royal School of Art Needlework, Exhibition-road, on Monday.

The marriage of the Hon. Coplestone Bampfylde, 1st Life Guards, and Miss Beaumont, is fixed to take place on May 19; and the marriage of the Earl of Kilmorey and Miss Nellie Baldock, second daughter of the late Mr. E. H. Baldock (who sat for Shrewsbury), is arranged to take place during the ensuing season.

PARISIAN SAYINGS AND DOINGS.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Paris, Tuesday, April 5.

The Parisian spring has two opening days—one regulated by the calendar, and the other by the movement of le high-life. The question of spring weather is altogether different. The signs of the approach of the spring of fashion which have to be recorded this week are the opening of the Hippodrome and the first spring race-meeting, which took place at Longchamps last Sunday. It is at Longchamps that the Parisian ladies decide what shall be worn and what shall not be worn, what shall be the cut of dresses and what the form of hats. Unfortunately, the race-meeting last Sunday was not favoured by fine weather. It rained nearly all day, and so the ceremony was a failure, from the point of view of society. Otherwise Paris is quite prepared for spring. The milliners' windows are gay with straw hats and bright-coloured flowers; the dressmakers are shewing summer stuffs; new potatoes may be had even in the cheap prix fixe restaurants; asparagus is plentiful; green peas may be bought by the bushel at the market; the chairs in the Champs Elysées have been newly painted. The only thing wanting in order to make Paris altogether agreeable is a little sunshine.

Last Friday the notabilities, artistic, literary, ministerial, social, and nondescript, who form the heterogeneous whole known as tout Paris, met together at the Opera to hear and see Gounod's new opera, "Le Tribut de Zamora." When one thinks of the time and labour spent in composing and preparing a spectacle of the importance of a modern opera, it seems cruel to dismiss it in two or three lines. Still, a journal has limits; and this letter, in particular, has very narrow limits. I regret, therefore, to say briefly that the general impression is that the "Tribut de Zamora" is an inferior work, and, while containing details that are admirable, it is deficient and uninteresting as a whole. It was only saved from a flat failure by the immense talent of Madame Krauss, who has a good scene in the third act.

Last night a detachment of the tout Paris above referred to was present at the opening of a new theatre, La Comédie-Parisienne, built on the site of the old Menus Plaisirs, in the Boulevard Strasbourg. The house is very prettily arranged; the staircase is mediæval and monumental, and the entr'acte of the crush-room or foyer would delight your most æsthetic and long-chinned lily maids. The opening piece is a vaudeville, "La Reine des Halles," which was well received, and in which Thérésa, who plays the leading rôle, achieved a great success. The director of the new theatre is M. Léon Dormeuil, formerly one of the directors of the Palais-Royal.

Before quitting the world of theatres let me announce what is thought a great event here: Hortense Schneider, the famous operetta queen of "Belle Hélène" and "Barbe Bleue" renown, is about to sell her diamonds, jewels, artistic furniture, miniatures, eighteenth-century bibelots, and all the wonderful collections that adorn her famous villa in the Bois de Boulogne. The sale will last, at the Hôtel Drouot, the whole of next week.

We have two art exhibitions to discuss for the moment en attendant the opening of the Salon: one, an imitation of the London "Black and White," in the gallery of L'Art in the Avenue de l'Opera, the other in an apartment on the Boulevard des Capucines. The latter, the exhibition of the irreconciliables, the "artistes indépendants," formerly known as "impressionists," is the most interesting as well as the most original. It is the sixth annual exhibition of a group of painters who are enemies of shadow and see all things brightly, after the Japanese fashion. The principal and most characteristic exhibitors are Degas (who sends a remarkable wax statue of a danseuse), Pisarro (whose landscape reminds one of Millet), Madame Berthe Morisot, Miss Mary Cassatt, Forain, and Raffaelli—all names worth remembering. Pisurro is a man whom posterity will recognise.

On Thursday next, M. Rousse, a barrister of reactionary opinions, author of a consultation favourable to the expelled religious congregations, will be received at the French Academy. M. Rousse is a man of no literary or legal eminence, and his election was due to party spirit alone. He takes the place of Jules Favre. The Duc d'Aumale will reply to the new Academician's reception speech. Apropos, the Duc d'Aumale, who lately sold his mansion in the Rue Saint Honoré, has just bought another, which formerly belonged to the ex-Empress Eugenie, and which gives on to the gardens of the Elysée Palace. The wits say that it is of no use for the Duc d'Aumale to get near the National Palace; he will never enter it.

Politics are practically at a stand-still. Both Houses are occupied with reading bills and modifying them, and reciprocally refusing to accept each other's modifications. The reporter of the committee appointed to examine the scrutin de liste bill has resigned, and there is no probability of that bill being brought before the Chamber until after Easter. Meanwhile the conflict between the Paris Municipal Council and the Prefect of Police has come to a head. The Council demands that functionary's revocation; the Government virtually throws him over; and the Prefect, like Marshal MacMahon, says, J'y suis, j'y reste! The police of the capital is naturally not so well attended to in these conditions as the inhabitants could wish. This affair will doubtless be officially brought before the Chamber of Deputies, and probably a new law will be passed concerning the relations of the Prefect and the Municipal Council.

The Government has at length determined to put an end to the disturbances in Tunis. Yesterday the Chamber and the Senate both approved an announcement of M. Jules Ferry to the effect that troops had been dispatched to punish the marauding tribes, and particularly the Kroumirs, who lately caused some bloodshed in engagements with French troops on March 30 and 31. Some wiseacres say that the end or this matter will be the French annexation of Tunis. T. C.

The Hereditary Princess of Denmark died at Copenhagen on Thursday week. The venerable Princess was born Oct. 28, 1793, and married, Aug. 1, 1829, the late Duke Ferdinand, Hereditary Prince of Denmark, who died June 29, 1863.

The Windsor Castle, 1075 tons, Captain Smith, chartered from Messrs. Green and Co., of Blackwall, by the Agent-General for Queensland, left Plymouth on Thursday week with emigrants for Brisbane. She has on board 323 souls, of whom 100 are English, 29 Scotch, 112 Irish, and 82 foreigners.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

ITALY.

The Budget was laid before the Chamber of Deputies on Sunday by the Minister of Finance, Signor Magliani. The surplus for 1880, which was estimated in May, 1879, at 3,500,000 lire, was found at the close of the year's accounts to be 28,252,940 lire, and, but for 25,208,707 lire of additional expenses which the Government will have to ask the House to authorise, it would have amounted to 53,461,647 lire. This unforeseen expenditure of twenty-five millions was due, the Minister said, to exceptional causes; among them the extraordinary luck that had fallen to the gamblers in the State Lottery, entailing a loss on the latter of some 5,000,000 lire. The Budget for 1881 showed a surplus of 15,000,000 lire. The Minister said that the Government would make every effort to abolish the forced currency, and the loan which it was intended to raise would be concluded on honourable and advantageous terms.

SPAIN.

Floods and gales have devastated the provinces of Seville, Granada, Huelva, Cordova, and other parts of the South of Spain. The Cabinet has sent one of its members to Seville with £2000, but the losses exceed £200,000, and 30,000 poor people are said to be in want of provisions. The senators and deputies of Andalusia have decided to open a national subscription for the sufferers, and the King, Queen, and the Infanta Isabella have consented to head the list with subscriptions respectively of £400, £200, and £100. Loss of life has happily been slight.

GERMANY.

The Emperor William will leave Berlin for Wiesbaden in about a week's time, and will afterwards, it is said, proceed to Ems and Gastein.

The Berlin papers announce the approaching betrothal of Prince Henry of Prussia, second son of the Crown Prince and Crown Princess, with Princess Elizabeth of Hesse-Cassel.

At the approaching marriage of the Archduke Rudolph of Austria at Vienna the Emperor of Germany will be represented by the Crown Prince.

The German Parliament has adopted, by an almost unanimous vote, the resolution of Herr Windthorst, recommending International Treaties for the prosecution and extradition of persons guilty of murdering, attacking, or conspiring against the life of the chiefs of the States which shall join the proposed League.

AUSTRIA-HUNGARY.

Her Imperial Majesty the Empress of Austria arrived at Vienna on Sunday morning.

Last Saturday the Lower House of the Austrian Reichsrath discussed the bill providing for the issue of 50,000,000 fl. of Five per Cent Paper Rente to cover the deficit in the Budget of 1881. After the Minister of Finance had spoken in justification of the measure, it was decided to consider the bill clause by clause. The whole bill was eventually adopted in the form proposed by the Committee.

TURKEY AND GREECE.

According to a Constantinople telegram, the Ambassadors there, having received information of the view taken by Greece of the last proposal of the Turkish Government, held a meeting on Monday to consider the question of fresh overtures to the Porte and the form in which they might be made. It is stated that no decision has been come to as to the mode of action to be taken by the Powers—whether it should be collective or identical—nor as to who shall take the lead in urging the acceptance of the new frontier upon Greece. The Vienna correspondent of the Times states that "a complete understanding has now been arrived at between the Powers with regard to the frontier line to be recommended both to Greece and Turkey, all the Powers having given their consent to the line of the Ambassadors. It does not seem, however, that this step was taken without some discussion, and it is even said that the Russian Government wished to go back to some arrangement in connection with the cession of Crete, as being the line most likely to lead to an understanding. Notwithstanding the warlike spirit of the news from Athens, the eventuality of Greece not refusing the offer at once, but trying to negotiate and improve on the offer, seems to be by no means excluded." The Daily Telegraph's correspondent at Vienna states that a private telegram from Athens announces, as "the last word of the Greek Government," the cession of the island of Crete, in addition to the territory about to be offered by the Powers on behalf of the Porte. There have been fights in Crete between the Greeks and Mussulmans, in which several of the latter have been killed and numerous combatants wounded on both sides, and the Governor-General of the island has applied to the Porte for reinforcements.

The review originally fixed for Independence Day, the 6th inst., was held at Athens on Monday, in the presence of the King and Queen, the Royal children, and 8000 spectators. The troops on the ground numbered 4510, besides eleven batteries of field and mountain artillery. King George presented new colours to the regiments, and expressed himself highly gratified at the military bearing of the whole force. Great enthusiasm prevailed throughout the proceedings.

The Khedive of Egypt has declined to furnish Turkey with a contingent in the event of a war with Greece, on the ground that the present state of Egyptian finances does not admit such a considerable military expenditure. The Sultan is reported to be greatly incensed by this refusal.

The Porte has agreed to rectify the Turco-Persian frontier, giving the district of Khotour to Persia, in conformity with the map presented to it by Mr. Goschen and M. de Novikoff on the 31st ult.

AMERICA.

The Senate is still engaged in the political debate on the Republican resolutions concerning the election of officers. Several important nominations have not been confirmed.

Mr. Windom, the Secretary of the Treasury, has given notice that he will redeem any outstanding funded Five per Cent Bonds of 1881 announced in the 101st call, at the rate of 101¼ dols. in full payment for each 100 dol. bond.

Lieutenant R. M. Berry has been appointed to the command of the expedition to be dispatched in search of the Polar exploring vessel Jeannette.

Destructive floods have occurred along the Upper Missouri River.

The Tennessee Senate has rejected, by 13 votes to 12, the bill passed by the House of Representatives settling the State debt at par with 3 per cent interest.

Resolutions have been adopted by the executive committee of the Anti-High-Rent League of New York City denouncing the 10 to 30 per cent increase of rent demanded by the landlords after May 1 next.

CANADA.

The revenues of the Dominion for March show an increase of 320,000 dols., as compared with the same month last year.

A public meeting has been held at New Westminster, British Columbia, at which a resolution was adopted denouncing the petition to the British Government relative to the construction of the Pacific Railway, and expressing satisfaction at the efforts made by the Dominion to carry out the terms of the agreement.

The Legislature of Prince Edward Island has unanimously adopted a Ministeral resolution for the dissolution of the present House of Assembly and Legislative Council, to be followed by an appeal to the people, with a view to substituting an Assembly of only fifteen members. A petition to the Governor-General of Canada has also been adopted complaining that the Dominion Government has failed to maintain efficient steam communication between Canada and Prince Edward Island, thereby violating the terms of the union, and asking for the redress of grievances.

Captain Kirwan, an Irishman, has published a letter warning the Fenians in the United States that the Irish population of the Dominion would feel bound to protect their country against any scheme devised for the invasion of Canada.

INDIA.

The Calcutta correspondent of the Times telegraphs that the evacuation of Candahar will begin on or about the 10th inst., the exact date of the commencement of the march being left to General Hume's discretion, and that the troops will return to India by the Thall-Chotiali route. Telegrams from Candahar announce that the advance guard of the Cabul army, consisting of about 2000 cavalry, is now only thirty-five miles from Candahar. The main body, consisting of 3000 infantry and 2000 militia, with twelve field guns, left Cabul on March 21, and will probably arrive at Candahar about the 12th inst. The Governor-elect, Muhamad Hashim, a son of the late Sirdar Muhamad Azim Khan, is with the cavalry. A Times telegram says that it is believed that the Ameer himself will come down to Candahar before long to supersede the operations against Herat.

A telegram from the Viceroy received at the India Office confirms the statement that Herat is being besieged. Ayoub Khan is reported to have been taken prisoner.

A later telegram received at the India Office from the Viceroy states that Hashim Khan, with the Cabul cavalry, reached Robat on the 3rd, and was to halt there for the present. General Mahomed Khan had established himself at Girisk, and proclaimed the Ameer's accession. Many chiefs were coming in to him.

AUSTRALIA.

The statement of the revenue of New South Wales for the quarter ending March 31 is of a satisfactory character. The total receipts are £1,393,000, or £465,000 in excess of the revenue of the same period last year; and for the year ending March 31 the increase of revenue, as compared with 1880, amounts to £1,080,000.

The Victoria Legislative Council has waived its objections to the introduction of the bill for the reform of the Constitution, and has read the bill the first time.

It has been decided to apply the Spanish Constitution and press laws to Cuba and Porto Rico.

Her Majesty's Government have decided not to accept the invitation to attend the Monetary Conference in Paris, for which invitations have been issued by France and America.

Mr. George H. Wyndham, C.B., now secretary to her Majesty's Legation at Madrid, has been appointed secretary to her Majesty's Embassy at St. Petersburg.

By an edict of the communal council of Unterhallen, in the Swiss canton of Schaffhausen, young persons under fifteen years of age are forbidden to smoke tobacco or cigars, whether in the public streets or at home.

Considerable excitement is reported to prevail in a number of villages in Russian Poland, the peasants belonging to the United Greek Church having refused to take the oath of allegiance in the Russian United Greek Churches, declaring that they will do so only in presence of Roman Catholic priests.

Mr. Stephen Massett, recently gave an entertainment on board the United States man-o'-war St. Mary's, lying in New York Harbour, for the benefit of the sailors and boys of the nautical school. There was a large attendance, among those present being a number of ladies and gentlemen, including many officers of the United States Navy and Army. The occasion was of much interest, and a journal remarks, that "the audience were alternately moved to tears and laughter."

THE EARTHQUAKE AT CHIOS.

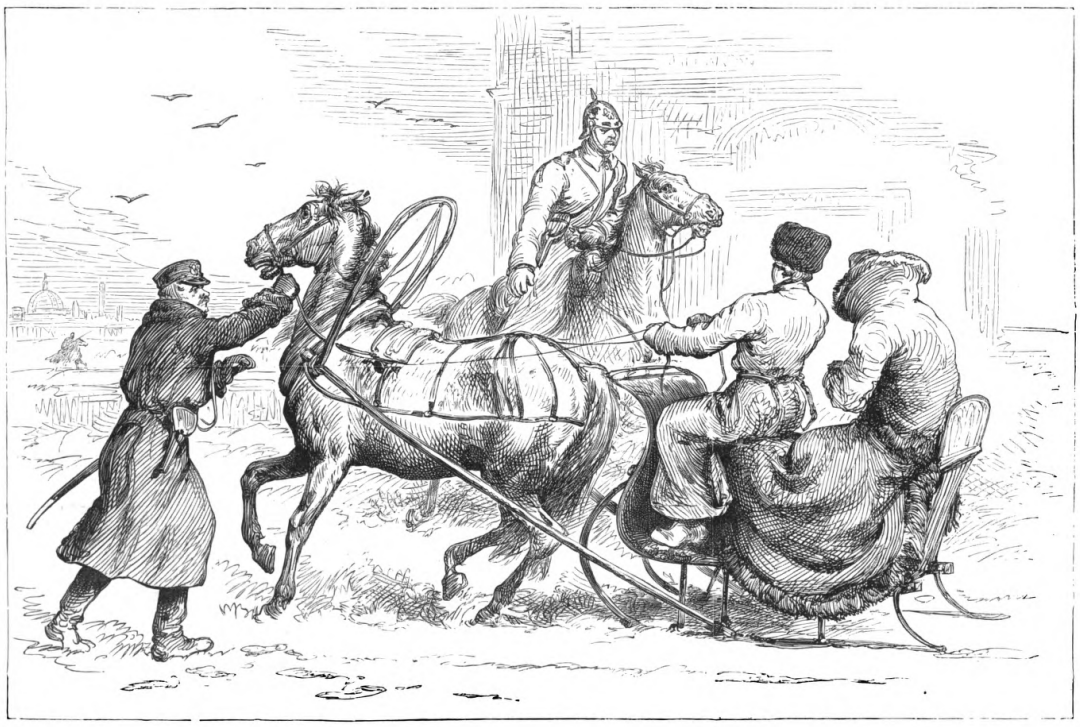
The present year threatens to be known as a year of earthquakes. The little Turkish island of Chios, in the Ægean Sea, was on Sunday visited by an earthquake, which destroyed a great part of its chief town, Chio, and many neighbouring villages, three thousand persons being killed or injured. The shock was felt at Smyrna and Syra. A Constantinople telegram states that fresh shocks occurred on Monday, and that the inhabitants were taking refuge on board the steamers in the harbour. The island of Chio, Scio, or Skio, for the name is thus variously spelt, is situated in the Ægean Sea, separated from the coast of Anatolia by a channel not more than seven miles wide where narrowest, and about fifty-three miles west of Smyrna. The Island is the ancient Chios, and contends with many other places for the honour of having given birth to Homer, an excavation in the rock being pointed out as the place where "the blind old bard of Scio's rocky isle" is said to have taught. Chios is of somewhat quadrangular form, thirty-two miles long from north to south, with a mean breadth of about twelve miles, and an area of 296 geographical square miles. The population of the island is over 60,000; the capital, Chio, containing about a quarter of the whole number of the inhabitants. Chio, which appears to have been the principal sufferer by the disaster, is situated near the middle of the east coast, and consists almost entirely of houses built for the most part of hewn stone or brick, and generally with terraced roofs. It is defended by a castle, and the manufacture of velvet and some lighter fabrics is carried on in the town, while at its harbour, formed of two moles and provided with two lighthouses, which are rendered necessary by the difficulty of access, a considerable trade is done.

A meeting of the Victoria (Philosophical) Institute was held last Monday at its house, 7, Adelphi-terrace, when Professor Balfour Stewart, F.R.S., read a paper on "The Visible Universe," which he described in general terms, and then sought to trace its history back, giving a passing sketch of the views of the theologian on the one hand and the materialist on the other, through its many forms to its first logical origin. A discussion ensued.

Lord Carrington presided on Tuesday at a meeting of the Central and Associated Chambers of Agriculture, at which the questions of railway charges, instruction in agricultural science, the Rivers Conservancy Bill, and distress for rent were discussed, and resolutions passed. Several objections were advanced against the Rivers Conservancy Bill, and a Deputation was appointed to wait upon the President of the Local Government Board on the subject. It was stated that American cheese was brought to London at the rate of 30s. a ton, while it costs 50s. to bring Cheshire cheese to the metropolis.

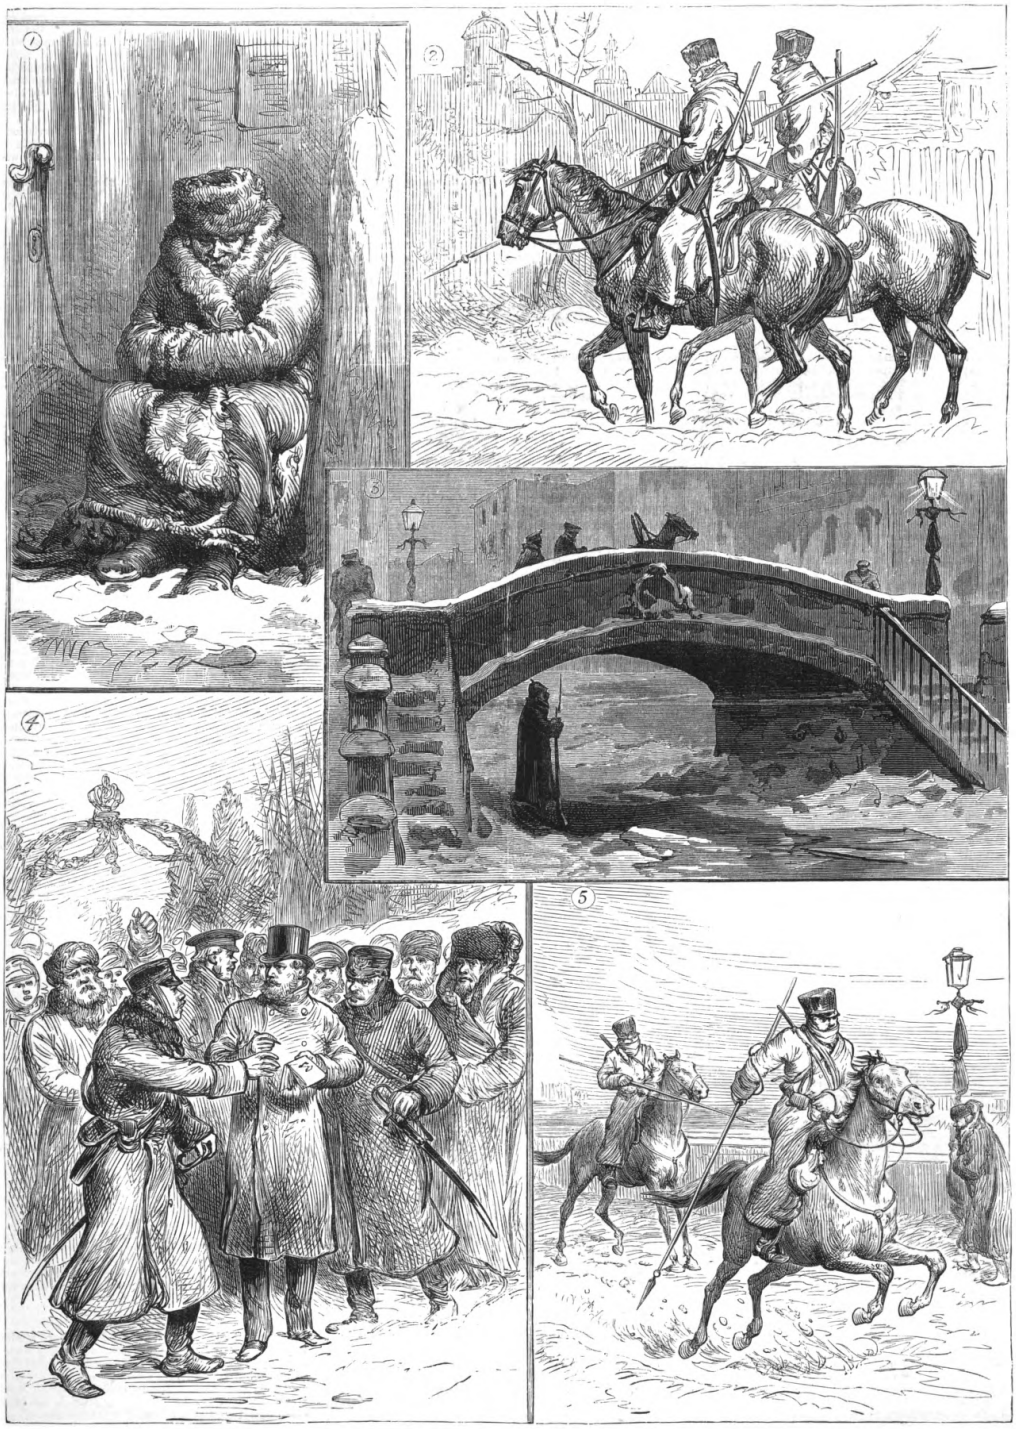
SKETCHES IN ST. PETERSBURG, BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.

CHEESEMONGER'S SHOP IN LITTLE GARDEN-STREET, WHERE THE MINE WAS DISCOVERED.



SLEDGE APPROACHING THE CITY STOPPED BY POLICE.—SEE PAGE 346.

SKETCHES IN ST. PETERSBURG, BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.



1. A Night Watchman at a House Door. 2. Cossacks Pätrolling. 3. Sentinel under Canal Bridge. 4. Our Special Artist in a Difficulty. 5. Cossacks on the Alert.

THE CONSPIRACIES IN RUSSIA.

The Sketches of our Special Artist in St. Petersburg show some of the incidents of the present condition of that city, where fresh discoveries have been made by the police, and extraordinary precautions have been adopted, since the alarm caused by the assassination of the late Emperor Alexander II. The city is now invested by a chain of Cossack patrols, with posts of guard officers and police on all the high roads. There are no means of ingress or egress for Nihilist conspirators or peaceable citizens. If special passports for this purpose are to be issued, such an alleviating measure will follow later as of secondary importance. Last Saturday morning, the various entrances to the city were thronged by troops of travellers and public carriers of all kinds to whom a return to the capital was positively forbidden. The inconvenience to many townsmen, whose business constantly calls them outside St. Petersburg, can easily be imagined. The Cossacks are instructed to send everybody trying to enter the town to the superior officers stationed on the highways, by whom the strictest investigation is made, and travellers arriving by rail must engage their cabs through an agent of police, according to the Berlin railway regulations. Every householder is obliged to keep a private watchman outside the street door all through the night, which affords the subject of one of our Artist's Sketches.

An important experiment has been successfully initiated by the new police prefect, General Baranoff, on whose suggestion the Emperor has approved the formation of a Council of the inhabitants to advise with the Prefect respecting the measures to be adopted against the troublers of social order. The idea evidently is to unite the administration and the inhabitants in the presence of the common enemy. The householders and lodgers in each of the 228 sections of the city were invited to elect one representative for each section, and these 228 elected persons selected from their number 25 members to form a Council. The choice actually made is generally approved, comprising as it does such experienced persons as General Trepoff, the former police prefect, Count Bobrinsky, marshal of the St. Petersburg nobility, Count Vorontzoff-Dashkoff, General Bogdanovitch, Baron Korff, mayor of St. Petersburg and an active member of the municipality, M. Krnieff-sky, proprietor of the Golos, and other well-known persons. It remains to be seen what will result from this measure, obviously aimed in the direction of bringing society to co-operate actively with the Government in combating revolutionary conspiracies.

One of the Paris journals publishes a narrative of the operations of the Russian police and the Nihilists, professing to emanate from a correspondent at St. Petersburg. It is very startling, but there may be some foundation for it. It may be interesting to reproduce it in a condensed form:—

"You are aware that several of the leading members of the Nihilist party have been arrested. The Advocate Trigoni, Michaeloff, Sheliaboff, Mdlle. Perofskaya, and a few others are under lock and key. The important position of these individuals in the Nihilist party was ascertained through the confession of Goldenberg, the assassin of Prince Krapotkine. They organised all the recent attempts, but never carried them personally into execution; and the facility with which they so long escaped detection reflects the highest discredit on the Russian police. It is evident to any one who has investigated the facts that, with a little common vigilance, the assassination of the Czar might have been avoided. At the beginning of February the police received an intimation from abroad that one of the heads of the Terrorist Party had proceeded to St. Petersburg. This was no other than the Advocate Trigoni. He took up his abode at the Maison Likatchdef, opposite the Anitchkoff Palace. He was discovered on Feb. 20, but, instead of being at once arrested, the police were content to follow him about. He thus had ample time to organise the attempt; and it was on the eve of its perpetration only that he was taken into custody. When brought before General Melikoff he ironically exclaimed, 'I don't care about being taken. This time he cannot escape.' Again, the case of the pretended cheese-shop, where the mine was dug which was to blow up the quarter of the Anitchkoff Palace, affords another fair illustration of the peculiar imbecility of the police authorities. The suspicious character of the shop was made known to the police, and watched. The Dvornicks of the quarter insisted upon the house being searched. General Morvinsky, a member of the Local Board of Health, went to the place to see if the house was damp. The sham cheese vender, of course, said he did not complain of it on that score. 'And what have you got in that barrel?' inquired the General. 'Only cheese,' was the reply. The same question was asked as to the contents of two other barrels, and met with the same reply. The General did not think it worth his while to see what the contents were, or he would have found that the barrels were full of dynamite, and that a large press or chest which had attracted his attention contained the tools, and some of the earth that had been removed to form the mine."

The trial of the five persons, three men and two women, who are in custody upon the charge of conspiring for the assassination of the late Emperor, was to commence on Thursday last. The prosecutor for the Crown, M. Mouravieff, is a nephew of the distinguished General of that name. His persuasive eloquence in the famous Valets de Cour trial at Moscow brought him into notice, and increased the reputation which he had already gained by books on many legal subjects. The trial is expected to last four days. There will be sixty-two witnesses and eleven experts.

The official indictment, or "Act of Accusation," is drawn up against Nicholas Ivanoff Recsakoff, aged nineteen, workman; Nicholas Andrew Ivanhoff Sheliaboff, thirty, peasant; Sophie Looffa Perofl-skaya, twenty-seven, gentlewoman; Gabriel Timothy Michaeloff, twenty-one, peasant; and Hesse Miroff Helfmann, twenty-six, workwoman. After briefly stating the nature of the crime of which the prisoners are accused — namely, the assassination of the Emperor Alexander II., the Act goes on to relate the circumstances in which it took place.

Facts elicited by inquiry into the attempts of April 2, Nov. 19, 1879, and Feb. 5, 1880, showed that a fresh attempt had been determined on by the same criminals. It has now been discovered who these people were, and which of them actually planned and carried out the crime of the 13th of March.

In November, 1880, was arrested Alexander Michaeloff, living under the name of Polivanoff, in whose possession were found dynamite and other materials evidencing his criminal occupation. Further searches led to the discovery of two lodgings, in one of which dynamite was manufactured, the other being a clandestine printing-office. In course of time many visitors to these lodgings were arrested, amongst them two persons, Michael Trigoni, student, and Sheliaboff, already charged with complicity in an attempt to blow up the Imperial train at Alexandrofsky in November, 1879. Sheliaboff was arrested a few days before the assassination of the Emperor, together with Trigoni, in the latter's lodging at the corner of the Nevsky Prospect and Karavannaya, close to the Sadovaya, or Little Garden-street, where the mine was discovered beneath the cheesemonger's shop.

On March 14, the day after the Emperor's assassination this prisoner, Sheliaboff, sent a letter to the Procureur declaring his intimate complicity with Recsakoff, and demanding to be included in the indictment. He had several times attempted to take the life of the Emperor, and if he had taken no physical part in the assassination, this was only by accident. Further, Sheliaboff acknowledged his participation in all the doings of the Nihilists, and that he belonged to the Narodnaya Volya party, which held the destruction of their rulers one of the means to be employed in an active struggle for the attainment of their ends. As an agent of the third degree—that is, possessing the full confidence of the executive committee—he received from it the commission to organise a fresh attempt on the life of the Czar. He chose Recsakoff and the others from forty-seven men who answered to his call for volunteers.

There is a long statement relating to Recsakoff's connection with the Revolutionary party. His inclination tended towards Nihilism even in 1878, before his entry into the School of Mines; but he took no active part until January, 1880. A year ago, feeling that he could do nothing alone, he determined to enter into the Workman's Revolutionary Organisation, and this he was enabled to do by the intervention of Sheliaboff, whose acquaintance he made about that time. It seems that Recsakoff was a friend of Shmaef, hanged last year for complicity in various attempts on the Emperor, and that this connection got him into trouble with the police, whereupon he began to live under the name of Glazoff, with a false passport. Before he entered actively upon Nihilism, Sheliaboff told him that the party were in great need of money, upon which Recsakoff drew five months' allowance, and gave fifty roubles to his associates. But in January last they offered him membership in the workmen's organisation, and regular pay to the extent of thirty roubles a month. Recsakoff, in turn, worked hard at the organisation of workmen's circles, the meetings of which took place sometimes at his rooms, sometimes elsewhere. At these meetings terrorist measures were only spoken of as a means to quicken the movement and protect the party against spies. Afterwards, feeling the want of a leader, it was determined that the Narodnaya Volya party should act as such; and the workmen were divided into a propagandist and directing party and an Executive Committee; to the latter of which belonged Recsakoff, Sheliaboff, Ehnikoff, and Michaeloff. The assassination of the Emperor did not emanate from the workmen's party, but was proposed by the Executive Committee (that is of the Narodnaya Volya sect), by whom even Recsakoff at first understood that it would be carried out. However, the deed was discussed, and ten days before its consummation Sheliaboff called for volunteers willing to undertake it.

On March 13, a few hours before the assassination, Sheliaboff's fellow-lodger, Slatveensky, living with a woman calling herself Vozinovaya, was arrested. In his rooms were found chemicals and several tin boxes which had contained sweetmeats or sugar, and two red caoutchouc tubes. In two of the boxes was a small quantity of black dynamite, of which, when full, they would have held seventy-two pounds. The woman escaped, but was captured in the Nevsky Prospect, and proved to be Sophie Perofl-skaya, already charged with participation in Hartmann's attempt. On her were found printed proclamations, dated March 14, and referring to the event of the previous day—eighteen copies being issued by the famous Executive Committee, and fourteen by the "working men" section of the Narodnaya Volya party.

The statement of this woman, Sophie Perofl-skaya, who is of high family, the daughter of a former Governor of St. Petersburg, and niece to an officer of the Imperial Court, fully confirms all that had been said by the other prisoners. And she, like them, makes no secret of her actions and motives. She followed the higher women's course in the Communism in 1869, and in the year following left her home to become a teacher of the people. In 1872 she joined the Revolutionists, and was several times arrested and condemned for propagandism. In 1878 she was sent to exile in the Olonets district, but escaped, and has since lived "illegally" under various names. When the assassination took place, she was standing on the opposite side of the Canal, and saw both explosions.

Recsakoff states that he was directed, by Sheliaboff and the Executive Committee, to go about the assassination in company with Ehnikoff, and to follow all the movements of the Czar, under the direction of Sophie Perofl-skaya. The other "volunteers," who met in Nicholas Sablin's rooms, were Michaeloff and one "Michael." From time to time, too, a man made his appearance who was called "The Technic," who explained in detail the bombs, and furnished them with a sample, which the volunteers tried with full success in a field behind the Smolno Monastery.

On the eventful day, at eight in the morning, they assembled again to get final instructions and the bombs. These were brought by Perofl-kaya in a bundle. There were but two of them, but she said that perhaps more would come; they had been working all night at them, but had been unable to prepare the number previously decided upon. After this "The Technic" arrived, bringing more bombs, which were given to Perofl-skaya, who drew on the cover of each a plan of the streets, marking the spots where the respective bearers were to stand. The disposition was as follows:—If the Emperor passed down the Sadovaya, the mine was to be exploded, Recsakoff standing with his engine in the square at one end, "Michael" at the other end of the street where it runs into the Nevsky. In the Manège-square, as the more dangerous place, were to stand Ehnikoff and Michaeloff, as being better known to each other, more experienced, and with a better Revolutionary record. On the explosion of the mine all were to run towards the spot to ensure the death of the Emperor if the explosion had failed to do its work. If, however, the Imperial carriage did not come that way the conspirators were to meet in the Michael-street, where Perofl-skaya would give them a sign if they were to go to the Catherine Canal and wait their victim there. This was what in fact happened; and Recsakoff, getting the signal from the woman, went to the Canal, and, as already stated, threw his bomb under the horses. At that time Ehnikoff was standing by the railing some way further on. He threw the second bomb, which killed both the Emperor and himself.

On the night of March 15, in consequence of information received, took place the police raid already described, in a house where one man shot himself dead with a revolver. He was identified by Lieut.-Colonel Sablin, of the 1st Grenadier Regiment, as his brother, Nicholas Sablin. The woman captured proved to be the prisoner Helfmann. Sablin had belonged to the Revolutionary party since 1873. In this lodging were found two bombs, or tin cases, exploding on concussion, and containing the main charge of nitro-glycerine, mixed with camphor, which last ingredient increases the violence of the explosion. There were also found various chemicals and chemical apparatus; a plan of St. Petersburg, with pencil marks on locality of Winter Palace, and along streets leading from the Manège; and, finally, a sketch which, on comparison with the map, proved to refer to the neighbourhood of the assassination, with marks where the deed was done, in the Manège-square, and where the mine was found in the Sadovaya. Among other things in Sablin's lodging, a note evidently referring to the organisation of the assassination, which, after referring to revolvers, daggers, passports, &c., says:—"The work goes on swimmingly, but we want a woman, a Jewess, to take an intelligent part. Ask Hesse (Helfmann) from me if she will take this on herself; if not, tell A. M. to intrust her with the direction of affairs in Petersburg, and come herself."

On the same night the prisoner Michaeloff was arrested, after firing six shots from a revolver, wounding two of the men who made the capture, in the same lodging where Sablin had committed suicide. On Michaeloff were found copies of the revolutionary proclamation announcing the accession of Alexander III., and a note of three addresses, with an hour named against each. These appointments, needless to say, were kept by the police; and in the confectioner's shop at the corner of the Nevsky and Sadovaya they captured Ivan Gregorieff Orloff, son of a priest, who had on him a dagger, revolutionary proclamations, and manuscript inflammatory articles in the writing of Michaeloff.

Several witnesses identify Sheliaboff as a visitor to the shop in Little Garden-street, or the Sadovaya, and in his lodgings was found cheese, which, from the stamp on the wrappers, was bought there.

Kecbalchich, who figures in the Act of Accusation as the maker of the bombs, confesses the part he took in the attempts to blow up the Imperial train on its way from the Crimea in 1879, near the towns of Odessa and Alexandroffsk, as well as his participation in the crime of last month. This Kecbalchich, also the son of a priest, spent some years in a seminary, but afterwards entered the School of Government Engineers, and there laid the foundation of that scientific skill and knowledge which have constituted such a terrible weapon in the hands of the Nihilist party. The dynamite and electrical apparatus used in former attempts, as well as the fatal bombs and the subterranean torpedo of Sadovaya-street, were the work of his hands. But he declares that there are others at large quite capable of taking his place.

A special Imperial escort is to be formed from the various regiments of the Guard, after the model of that organised for the protection of the late Emperor during the war.

The Imperial Charitable Society announces that it will take charge of the families of all loyal subjects who may lose their lives in the course of the present struggle against the Nihilists.

THE EASTER MONDAY REVIEW.

The general orders for the volunteer field-day at Brighton on Easter Monday have been issued by the War Office. There will be an attacking force and a defending force.

The attacking force will comprise two divisions, and will be commanded by Major-General G. W. A. Higginson, C.B. The artillery will be commanded by Colonel W. N. Waller, R.A., and will comprise the Honourable Artillery Company, the 3rd Middlesex, and 3rd Kent (Royal Arsenal), in all 976 men and twenty-six guns. Major-General H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, K.G., will command the First Division, which will include three brigades. The first will be under the command of Colonel E. H. Clive, Grenadier Guards. Battalions:—The Civil Service, Post Office, City of London Rifle Brigade, 2nd and 3rd London—2504 men of all ranks. Lord Ranelagh will have the Second Brigade, consisting of 1st Middlesex, 1st London, and Tower Hamlets, Engineers, and the 1st Herts and 3rd Hants (Portsmouth) Rifles—total, 1973. The Third Brigade, commanded by Colonel R. A. Logan, C.B., will comprise the following corps:—Hornsey, West Middlesex, Harrow, South-West Middlesex, North Middlesex, Central London, and the 23rd Middlesex (Westminster)—total, 2930. The 2nd Middlesex Artillery will be the divisional battalion. Total of the brigade, 7816.

Second Division.—Commander Major-General the Hon. Richard Monck. First Brigade, Colonel G. R. Fitzroy, Coldstream Guards. Battalions:—West London, St. George's, Victorias, London Irish, Paddington, Bloomsbury, and Finsbury—total, 3179. Second Brigade, Colonel H. Wilkie, Forty-sixth Brigade Dépôt. Battalions:—1st Surrey (South London), 3rd Surrey (Clapham), 7th Surrey (Southwark), 3rd Kent (West Kent), and 4th Kent (Woolwich Arsenal)—total, 2197. Divisional Battalion, 2nd Tower Hamlets. Brigade total, 5877. Total of attacking force, 14,669, and to it will be attached a troop of the Middlesex Yeomanry Cavalry.

The defending force will consist of one division only (the Third) commanded by Major-General W. Earle, C.S.I. The artillery will be in charge of Lieutenant-Colonel Tester, Brighton Artillery, and will comprise 670 men and eight guns. First Brigade—Colonel G. H. Moncrieff, Scots Guards. Battalions—South Middlesex, London Scottish, 10th Middlesex (Colonel Oxley's), Queen's Westminster, Inns of Court, Cambridge University, and the Artists'—total, 2610. Second Brigade—Lord Bury. Battalions:—1st Hants (Portsmouth) Artillery, Brighton Rifles, Hastings, Worthing, 1st Essex (Ilford), and 3rd Essex (Plaistow)—total, 2145. Third Brigade—Colonel T. F. Lloyd, 48th Brigade Dépôt-Battalions:—Croydon Rifles, Reigate, Rotherhithe, and 8th (late 19th) Surrey (Kennington)—total, 1725. Divisional battalion, 1st Tower Hamlets Rifles. Total Third Division, 6971. Total of defending force, 7641. This makes the total of all arms 22,310 and 34 guns, and a troop of yeomanry cavalry, which is about 1000 more infantry than last year, while the number of guns is the same. All the corps will rendezvous at Brighton before and after the review.

The programme of the railway arrangements has been issued by Lieutenant-Colonel J. P. Knight, the general manager of the London, Brighton, and South Coast Railway. The tickets will be ready for issue to corps on April 8. The return fares will be—officers 5s., men 2s. 6d., and will be available from the morning of Wednesday, April 13, till the evening of Thursday, April 21. Great confusion and interference with the general arrangements having last year been caused by volunteers who had straggled from their corps, it has been decided that stragglers will not be conveyed from Brighton except by the volunteer trains.

Messrs. L. D. Gover and F. H. Weber, students of the Royal Agricultural College, Cirencester, have been successful in obtaining the diploma and life membership of the Highland and Agricultural Society of Scotland, in the examination concluded in Edinburgh; and two other students, Messrs. Alfred Hardie, and J. M. Little, have obtained, the former a first-class, and the latter a second-class certificate.

Thursday week saw the end of the financial year, and the Revenue Return published shows what events have long foreshadowed, a handsome surplus. The total receipts amount to £84,041,288, which is £2,776,233 more than the twelve months preceding, and £1,315,288 more than Mr. Gladstone's estimate in June last of £82,696,000. The Customs show a decrease of £142,000; but there is an increase of £1,420,000 from property and income tax, £640,000 from stamps, £350,000 from the Post Office, £180,000 from the telegraph service, and £70,000 from land tax and house duty.

THE CHURCH.

PREFERMENTS AND APPOINTMENTS.

Audsley, Thomas Moss, to be Perpetual Curate of St. Philip, Dewsbury.
Bulkeley, Richard George; Vicar of St. John Dukinfield. Surrogate.
Campbell, Thomas; Perpetual Curate of St. Mary, Laisterdyke, Bradford.
Carter, Arthur R.; Rector of Wapping.
Christie, Francis William; Curate of Helmsly.
Irvine, A. C.; Head Master of Walsall School; Vicar of St. Mary, Warwick.
Knox, Andrew; Incumbent of St. Anne's, Birkenhead, Surrogate.
Lang, O. C. S.; Rector of Frensham, Surrey; Chaplain to the High Sheriff of the County of Surrey.
Matthews, Thomas Robert, Incumbent of Earlstown; Surrogate.
Maynard, John; Curate of St. John's, North Woolwich.
Mitchell, Joseph; Vicar of New Wortley, Leeds.
Porter, G. F., Vicar of St. Anne's, Dropmore, Maidenhead; Vicar of Banbury.
Prest, Ven. Archdeacon, Rector of Gateshead; Rector of Ryton.
Sewell, H., Vicar of Aldsworth; Vicar of Wotton-under-Edge.
Williams, E. Cyril; Vicar of Denham, Wickham Market, Suffolk.
Wilson, Thomas Holt; Rector of Redgrave-cum-Botesdale, Suffolk.
Wood, William; Rural Dean of Deddington.—Guardian.

A handsome three-light window, the work of Messrs Jones and Willis, has been erected at Chelmorton church, near Buxton.

The Archbishop of Canterbury has conferred the degree of Doctor in Divinity on the Ven. John Henry Gray, M.A., of Christ College, Cambridge, formerly Archdeacon of Hong-Kong, in recognition of his valuable services during twenty-eight years' residence in China.

The company appointed for the revision of the Authorised Version of the Old Testament finished their sixty-eighth session yesterday week at the Jerusalem Chamber. The first revision of Proverbs was completed, and that of Ecclesiastes carried as far as chap. vii., verse 6.

Last Saturday the Bishop of Chichester opened Hove church, which had been closed for extensive alterations and repairs. His Lordship afterwards presided at a public meeting in support of the provision of a new church for the north-west portion of the parish. The scheme was generally approved.

The Church Association has offered to give six prizes of twenty guineas each to the writers of the best essay on each of the following subjects:—1. The Church; its Constitution, Character, and Continuity. 2. The Ministry and its Functions. 3. The Sacrament of Baptism. 4. The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper. 5. The Rule of Faith. 6. Worship and Ritual.

The Dean of Chester, speaking at the annual meeting of the Chester Diocesan Deaconesses' Institution last week, said the new translation of 1 Timothy iii. 11 would show that in the ancient Church the word "deaconess" did not mean merely the wives of deacons, but a separate organisation of women deacons. Had this passage been so read heretofore the English people would not have so long allowed that ancient institution of the Church to remain in abeyance.

A memorial signed by 23,997 laymen, including peers and other influential persons, was forwarded to the Archbishop of Canterbury last Saturday, emphatically protesting against the "toleration within the Church of England of any doctrines or practices which favour the restoration of the Romish mass or any colourable imitation thereof, any reintroduction of the confessional, or any assumption of sacerdotal pretentions on the part of the clergy in the ministrations of the Word and sacraments."

Baroness Burdett-Coutts has restored the mutilated and long-neglected monument, now placed in the vestibule of Hackney parish church, of Lady Lucy Latimer, daughter of Henry, Earl of Worcester, and wife of the Right Hon. John Nevyle, Knight, Lord Latimer. The monument to this lady, who died on Feb. 23, 1582, and from whom the Baroness claims descent, used to be a conspicuous and much-admired object in the old Church of St. Augustine at Hackney, but was allowed by the Puritans to fall into decay. It has lately been in the sexton's tool-house, beneath the old church tower. The smaller effigies of Lady Latimer's four daughters, which formed part of the original monument, were much damaged.

The thirty-third report of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for England was published last Saturday. In giving an account of their work during the year (ending Oct. 31, 1880), the Commissioners state that they have constituted or assigned fifty-two districts under the designation of district chapelries, consolidated chapelries, districts, and new parishes, &c. In eighteen cases the boundaries of districts or new parishes have been altered. In sixteen cases new churches have been substituted for old or existing parish churches. In seventeen cases churches have been formally approved by the Commissioners as churches for new parishes. Scales of pew rents have been fixed for four churches, and 167 conveyances of sites for churches, burial-grounds, parsonage-houses and glebe respectively have been accepted. The report states:—"During the year certain real estates have been assigned to the Bishop of Hereford as the permanent endowment of his see; and, on the avoidance of the see of Durham, the estate previously assigned as the endowment of that see has been revised and resettled." The Bishopric of Liverpool has been founded, and the net income of the see is now reported at £3245 per annum. The Commissioners give a summary of the work accomplished by them in the augmentation and endowment of benefices during the last forty years. The total number of benefices which have been augmented and endowed by the Commissioners is about 47,000.

THE UNIVERSITIES.

OXFORD.

The Examiners for the Hall and Hall-Houghton Prizes have awarded them as follow:—Senior Septuagint, Mr. C. W. Ridley, B.A., University College; Junior Septuagint, Mr. C. J. Spurrell, B.A., scholar of Balliol College; Proxime Accessit, Mr. J. J. Powell, B.A., unattached student. Senior New Testament, no candidate. Junior New Testament, Mr. A. R. Buckland, B.A., scholar of Pembroke College; Proxime Accessit, Mr. M. H. Peacock, scholar of Exeter College. Syriac Prize, Mr. Thomas Randell, Mansell Exhibitioner of St. John's College. The Examiners recommend Mr. Powell and Mr. Peacock for a prize of books.

CAMBRIDGE.

The Vice-Chancellor has appointed Sir William Muir, K.C.S.I., LL.D., University of Glasgow, to the office of Sir Robert Rede's Lecturer for the ensuing year.

A Congregation was held on Thursday week, the Vice-Chancellor presiding, whereat the Honorary Degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon Professor Helmholtz, of Berlin, according to Grace passed at the last Congregation. The Professor was warmly welcomed, and was presented by the Orator to the Vice-Chancellor in a laudatory speech.

The Bell University Scholarships, for which, under the will of the founder, a preference is given to sons or orphans of clergymen, have, after competitive examinations, been adjudged to—1. S. M. Leathes, Trinity College; 2. G. W. Blenkin, Trinity College; H. Joynes, King's College—the last two equal in merit.

The undermentioned gentlemen have been elected to Minor Scholarships at Trinity Hall:—J. C. Nicol, King Edward's School, Birmingham, to a Scholarship of £70; J. D. Kerrich, Grammar School, Beccles, and D. Tait, Marlborough College, whose merits were equal, to Scholarships of £50 each; the values are yearly.

The following are the awards, as the results of competitive examinations, at the colleges named, so far as at present declared. The values stated are yearly in all cases:—St. Peter's: W. H. Young, City of London School, £80, J. W. Bartratt, Christ's Hospital, £60; A. J. Parish, King's School, Ely, £60. Clare: For Mathematical Attainments—Knight, Larmer, and Pattinson, £60 each. For Natural Science—Johnson, £60. For Classics—Griffith, Cave Exhibition, £50; Pilgrim, Archdeacon Johnson's Exhibition, £32. Jesus: Recommended for Scholarships and Exhibitions: Classics—T. Herring, Christ's Hospital, £50. Mathematics—F. W. Hewitt, King Edward's School, Birmingham, £50. Rustat Scholarships—A. Nairne, Haileybury, H. Atkinson, Rossal School; W. H. M. Ragg, St. Andrew's, Chard, School; R. W. K. Edwards, Beccles School. Marsden Scholar—E. M. Lance, Winchester College, £40.

ABERDEEN.

Lord Rosebery presided yesterday week as Lord Rector at the Arts Graduation ceremony in connection with this University, and afterwards distributed the eight University prizes. His Lordship was accompanied by the Countess.

EXETER HALL, STRAND.

The jubilee, or celebration of fifty years' past existence, with the renewed dedication of this well-known building, henceforth to be occupied by the Young Men's Christian Association, was held on the Tuesday evening of last week. It was attended by above three thousand persons, the Large Hall being densely crowded. The Earl of Shaftesbury presided, and was supported by the Archbishop of Canterbury, Earl Cairns, Lord Mount-Temple, Lord Radstock, the Lord Mayor, Mr. S. Morley, M.P., Mr. A. M'Arthur, M.P., Sir T. Chambers, M.P., Sir J. Kennaway, M.P., Bishop Perry, Canon Fleming, Dr. Thain Davidson, the Rev. John Clifford, the Rev. Prebendary Wilson, the Rev. W. Hay Aitken, Mr. W. Hind Smith, and others. There was special prayer offered, at an earlier hour, in the Lower Hall, to invoke the Divine blessing upon the religious works and services to be carried on in the building. Addresses were delivered, in the Great Hall, at seven o'clock, by Lord Shaftesbury, Lord Cairns, the Archbishop of Canterbury, and the Lord Mayor; and appropriate resolutions were passed by the meeting. We give an Illustration, showing the appearance of the Lower Hall, from four to five o'clock, when Mr. George Williams presided over the prayer-meeting.

The purchase of the lease and the reconstruction and adaptation of the building have involved an expenditure of £50,000, which has nearly all been subscribed. The internal changes which have been made by the architect, Mr. Alfred Pite, have the effect, in the first place, of removing all serious objections to the structural arrangements on the score of safety. The means of egress, in case of any alarm, are now ample. A reconstruction of the main staircase was one of the points insisted on by the Metropolitan Board of Works. This has been effected by cutting away the wall on each side, so as to enable the double flight to be continued up from the first landing, where it formerly converged, the ascent being thence made by a single staircase. On the ground floor there has been a complete remodelling of all the apartments. The lower hall, in which the rehearsals of the Sacred Harmonic Society's concerts used to be held, and which would accommodate no more than 350 persons, has been enlarged by taking in the corridor and by continuing the gallery at the western end along the southern side and north end, so that the number of seats will now be upwards of 700. The spacious apartment heretofore tenanted by the Ragged School Union—who have taken rooms above stairs—is now fitted up as a restaurant for members of the association, who will also have a commodious reading-room on the same floor. The basement has undergone a still more important change. At a sacrifice of the rent formerly paid by mercantile firms, who used the cellarage for storing their wares, class-rooms, well lighted, warmed, and ventilated, have been provided, with lavatories, and an engine-house for driving the cold-air fan, and for supplying the coil pipes by which the building is to be warmed. The open area in Exeter-street, measuring 92 ft. in length, has been covered with a glass roof, and will henceforth serve as a gymnasium, in connection with which are baths. A small day gymnasium, for ladies and children, is also provided, on the other side of the basement, in a room which was once an open yard, and which will serve for evening lectures, tea meetings, and similar purposes, after dusk. On the intermediate floor, midway between the entrance and the great hall, rooms are let to various bodies, such as the Ragged School Union, the Country Towns Mission, and the Young Abstainers' Union. Access is also gained from this level to the gallery of the lower hall, which has entrances at every possible point. The great hall has undergone several important alterations. The steep and quite unnecessary rise of the area floor has been reduced, so that the back seats are lowered by four feet, leaving a lofty space beneath the end gallery, opposite the organ. Windows that have been obscured are now restored to their right use; the walls have been redecorated, the chandeliers freshly lacquered, and the whole aspect of the once dark and dingy interior brightened and rendered pleasant. Most praiseworthy of all the improvements, however, is that by which eleven entrances are given to this hall, instead of the seven which formerly admitted slow-moving crowds. A council-room, approached from the grand staircase, has been obtained by the appropriation of a chamber which had been let to the Exeter Hall Hotel, and used as a private theatre. The alterations have been executed by Messrs. Higgs and Hill, the builders, under the architect's personal directions.

A small volume, entitled "Exeter Hall and its Associations," by F. Morell Holmes, is published this week by Messrs. Hodder and Stoughton. It narrates the founding, building, and opening, on March 29, 1831, of this important place of meeting for religious and philanthropic societies. The originator of the scheme was Mr. J. S. Brooks; but Captain Pownall, late chairman of the Middlesex magistrates, Admiral Lord Gambier, Sir G. H. Rose, Sir Robert Inglis, Mr. Henry Drummond, and others, took an active part in it. The name was derived from the site, having anciently been part of the garden of Exeter House, belonging to the elder branch of the Cecils, Earls of Exeter (their present rank is Marquis), who inherited it from Queen Elizabeth's great Minister, Lord Burleigh. Old Exeter 'Change, demolished in 1829, took its name from the same circumstance. Mr. F. M. Holmes's little book relates also the most interesting courses of public meetings held in Exeter Hall to promote special undertakings in the past fifty years, such as those of the Anti-Slavery movement, the Temperance Reform, the Ragged School Union, the Bible Society, Foreign Missions, and, lastly, the Young Men's Christian Association.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will (dated July 20, 1871) with a codicil (dated July 10, 1873) of the Right Hon. Alexander William Crawford, Earl of Crawford and Balcarres, Lord Lindsay, and Baron Wigan, late of Haigh Hall, Lancashire, who died on Dec. 13 last, at the Villa Palmieri, Florence, was proved on the 28th ult. by James Ludovic, Earl of Crawford and Balcarres, the son, the acting executor, the personal estate in the United Kingdom being sworn under £300,000. The testator bequeaths to his wife, Margaret, Countess of Crawford and Balcarres, whom he appoints sole guardian of his infant children, £3000 and his furniture and effects at Brook-street; he makes up her annual income to £5000; and she is also to have the use during her life of the Villa Palmieri, with the farm lands, furniture, and fittings, as purchased by him from the Grand Duchess of Tuscany; his house, No. 47, Brook-street, and his plate and diamonds (with their settings); subject thereto, the said villa and furniture, house, plate, and diamonds are given to his said son. To each of his daughters he leaves £300; to his cousin, Miss Catherine Hepburn Lindsay, an annuity of £500; to his brothers, General the Hon. James Lindsay and Colonel the Hon. Charles Lindsay, some shares in the Wigan Coal and Iron Company; and a large number of shares in the same company have been settled. The residue of his real and personal estate is left to his said son.

The will (dated March 8, 1877) of Mr. John Chave Luxmoore, late of Gloucester-square, who died on Jan. 10 last, was proved on the 22nd ult. by Charles Manby Nainby, the acting executor, the personal estate being sworn under £180,000. The testator bequeaths £500 to the London Homœopathic Hospital; £200 each to the Deaf and Dumb Institution, Exeter, and the Blind Institution, Exeter; and legacies to friends and servants. The residue of his real and personal estate is directed to be held upon trust for his grandson, William Chave Nainby, for life, and then for his children or other issue, as he shall by deed or will appoint. He provides that his said grandson shall take the name and arms of Luxmoore.

The will (dated Jan. 13, 1881) of Mr. Thomas Bullock, late of Fern Lodge, in the parish of Handsworth, Staffordshire, who died on Feb. 8 last, was proved on the 4th ult. by his sons Thomas Bullock and William Henry Bullock, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £120,000. The testator devised and bequeathed unto his said sons, Thomas Bullock and William Henry Bullock, all his freehold and copyhold lands and real estate, and also all his leasehold estate, and all his money, securities for money, shares, and personal estate, upon trust for realisation and conversion; and, after payment of certain pecuniary legacies, and particularly legacies to the children of his deceased daughter, Caroline Millichamp, upon trust as to the residue, to divide the same into five parts—one fifth to each of his sons, Thomas Bullock, Alfred Bullock, and William Henry Bullock; and as to the two remaining fifths, upon trust for his two married daughters, Ann Maria Proctor and Emily Louisa Walker, and their respective children. As to his freehold hereditaments and works in Cleveland-street, Birmingham, the testator gave to his sons Thomas and William Henry (who then occupied the same) the option of purchasing them at a valuation to be made by a surveyor named by him in his will.

The will (dated April 23, 1879) of Mr. Grosvenor Hodgkinson, late of Newark-on-Trent, Notts, who died on Feb. 14 last, was proved on the 15th ult. by Mrs. Alice Hodgkinson, the widow, and Grosvenor Hodgkinson and Robert Hodgkinson, the sons, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £70,000. All his freehold, copyhold, and leasehold property the testator leaves upon trust for his wife for life, and then for his three sons, Grosvenor, Robert, and George. To his son George he bequeaths £6500; to his sons Grosvenor and Robert, £5300 each; and to his daughters, Alice and Julia, £5000 each. A sum of £20,000 is to be held upon trust for his wife for life; at her death further legacies of £5000 each are bequeathed thereout to his said daughters, and the remainder of the said sum is given to his three sons. The residue of the personalty he gives to his wife.

The will and codicil (both dated Feb. 27, 1877) of Mr. Charles Rivers Freeling, late of New-square, Lincoln's-inn, and of No. 6, Cambridge-square, who died on Dec. 21 last, were proved on the 3rd ult. by George Augustus Luard and Lestocq Robert Erskine, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £25,000. After making some bequests, the testator leaves the residue of his real and personal estate upon trust for all his children by his late wife, Mrs. Emma Amelia Freeling, the children by his first wife having been already provided for.

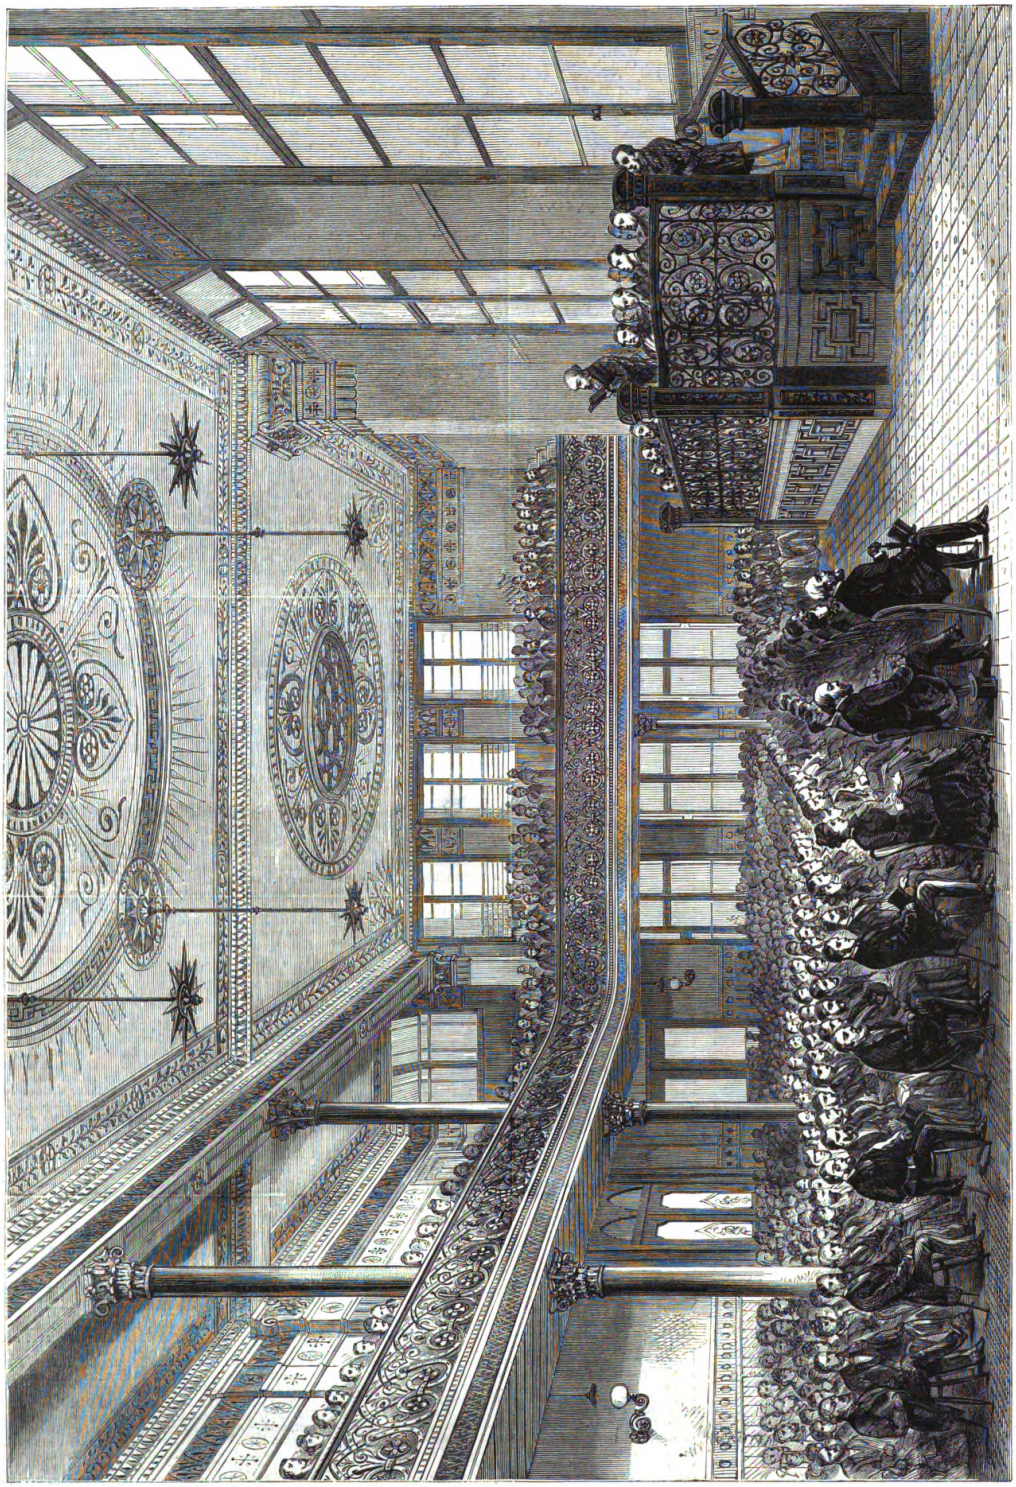
The will (dated July 19, 1880) of Mr. John Cousen, late of Holmesdale-road, South Norwood, who died on Dec. 26 last, was proved on the 5th ult. by Lumb Stocks and Arthur Stocks, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £25,000. There are considerable legacies to relatives and others, and the residue of his property the testator divides between his brother and certain of his nephews and nieces.

The will (dated Jan. 13, 1880) with two codicils (dated Jan. 15, 1880, and Jan. 19, 1881) of Miss Lucy Walker, late of Percy Villa, Buckingham-road, Brighton, who died on Feb. 7 last, was proved on the 8th ult. by Miss Hannah Walker, the niece, and John Grundy Thompson, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £20,000. Among numerous other legacies, the testatrix bequeaths nineteen guineas each to the Trinitarian Bible Society, the Society for Promoting Christianity among the Jews, the Church Missionary Society, the Church Pastoral Aid Society, the London City Mission, the Home for Fallen Women, Euston-road; the Institution for the Deaf and Dumb, Brighton; the Connemara Schools, West of Ireland; and the Institution for Homeless Boys and Girls, in connection with Dr. Barnardo. The residue of the personalty she gives to her said niece.

The will (dated Feb. 8, 1881) of Lord William Pitt Lennox, late of No. 34, Hans-place, who died on Feb. 18 last, was proved on the 23rd ult. by Charles Lennox Peel and Harvey Ranking, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £8000. The testator leaves one third of his real and personal estate to his son, William Robert Lennox, and two thirds to his wife, Lady Maria Jane LenNox.

The will (dated Jan. 6, 1876) of Mr. Henry Hill, late of No. 52, Queen's-gate-terrace, Kensington, who died on Feb. 1 last, was proved on the 17th ult. by the Right Hon. Sir Samuel Martin, P.C., James Williamson, jun., and Henry Wood Hill and George Wood Hill, the sons, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £7000. There are bequests of considerable amount in favour of his wife and his seven children, and legacies to his executors, Sir Samuel Martin and Mr. Williamson, for their trouble; the testator directs his real estate to be sold, and the net proceeds are to be applied in aid of the personalty in payment of the legacies. The residue of his property is to be divided equally between his four sons, Henry, George, Thomas, and John.

The state apartments of Windsor Castle will be open to the public on and after Monday next.



REOPENING OF EXETER HALL BY THE YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

JOHN PRESCOTT KNIGHT.

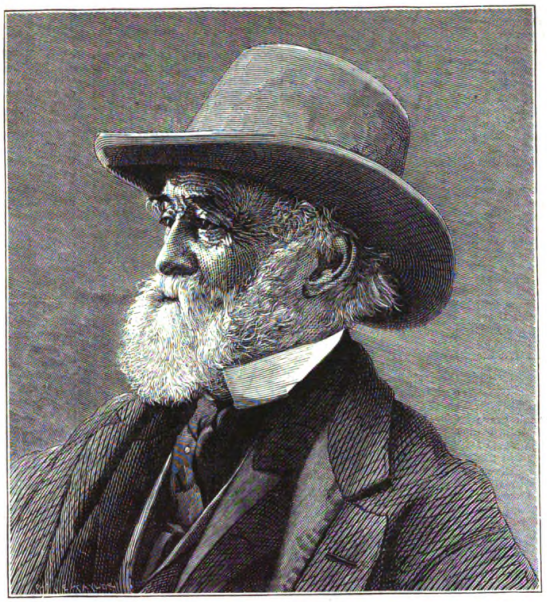
Mr. Knight, whose death we have already announced, was chiefly known as an able portrait-painter, especially successful with male sitters; but early in his career he painted many genre and historical subjects in the somewhat conventional style of the day. The artist was a son of Knight, the comedian, and was born at Stratford, in 1803. He began life as a clerk in a merchant's office; but on the failure of the firm, having shown some love of drawing, he was placed by his father for a time under the late Mr. Sass and Mr. G. Clint. He began to exhibit about 1826; was elected an Associate of the Royal Academy in 1836, a full Member in 1844; and two years after was appointed secretary to that body, a post he resigned in 1873. Since then the Academicians have appointed a lay secretary, and, in view of the varied duties of the post and the scholarship requisite, particularly since the Academy has undertaken the annual exhibition of Old Masters, they have, no doubt, done wisely.

Our Portrait is from a photograph by the Imperial Photographic Company, Baker-street.



THE LATE MR. J. P. KNIGHT, R.A.

THE ELECTRIC LIGHT IN THE CITY.

The rival systems of electric light apparatus, respectively produced by the Anglo-American Brush Company and by Messrs. Siemens, of Woolwich, have been put on trial in the City streets, beginning with the Thursday night of last week. A third system, that of the Electric Generator and Light Company (Lontin's) will be tried in Southwark. The Thames Embankment has long been lighted by the Jablochkoff system, and the British Electric Light Company has recently provided a fine illumination for the Cannon-street railway terminus, quite equal to that at Charing-cross. It is claimed for both of the systems tried last week in the City that they possess special advantages. The Siemens lamps, suspended from the tall latticed iron poles, are so constructed to take carbons of sufficient length to last eighteen hours without renewal. Each great lamp, such as those at the Mansion House, is fed by its own dynamo-electric machine, separate conductors being led from the machines to each lamp, while the twenty-eight smaller lights are arranged in four groups of seven lights each, and fed from two alternate current machines, each supplying two groups, or fourteen lights. The Siemens lights are supplied from works erected in Old Swan-lane. To prevent as far as possible any risk of accident, the communicating wires have been laid in cast-iron pipes, and the generating engines are divided into two equal groups, each of which is driven by a steam-engine. A third steam-engine is kept as a reserve. The Brush system requires for the lighting of its section of the City, including thirty-two lamps, only two "generating" machines of its own special kind, and works the whole of it from the Victoria Works, Vine-street, York-road, Lambeth. It is also claimed for the Brush system that, although the initial cost of "plant" may be large, the yearly cost of working will not exceed that of gas. The "double-rod" Brush lamp has two sets of carbons, one set being automatically lit after the other is consumed. This lamp will last for sixteen hours, and if three sets of carbons were introduced would last for twenty-four hours. In cost, as in method, the competing systems vary greatly. The estimates of the three contracting companies are for a year's lighting of almost equal areas as follows:—The Brush system, £1410; the Siemens, £3720; and the Lontin, £2930, all these charges including those of installation. The City authorities have decided on a year's trial of these systems.

Our Illustration shows the scene in front of the Mansion House, where the combined effect of Siemens Brothers' three lofty lamps—each 75 ft. high and of 2000 or 3000 candle power—shed a splendid effulgence on the surrounding area, and brought out with startling effect the architectural features of the Royal Exchange, the Bank, and the Mansion House. For a while there was scarcely a perceptible flickering of the large lights, but subsequently some amount of unsteadiness was shown, though not to any serious extent. The lighting by Siemens' system extended from London Bridge, by King William-street, and the Poultry, to the middle of Cheapside, and to Guildhall; and that of the Brush Company from the middle of Cheapside, through St. Paul's Churchyard, down Ludgate-hill, and by New Bridge-street to Blackfriars Bridge. The Lontin system, which is to be displayed on the night of May 1, will extend from Southwark Bridge, up Queen-street, along Queen Victoria-street in one direction, and along Mansion House-street, in the other.

THE ELECTRIC LIGHT AT THE MANSION-HOUSE.

The sixteenth annual general meeting of the governors and subscribers to the Royal Albert Orphan Asylum was held on Thursday week at the office of the charity, 18, Newgate-street. Mr. William Morley, chairman of the managing committee, presided. The committee of management, in their report, acknowledge a great increase of public support. The fourth dinner in aid of the funds of the institution produced a net result of over £1788. The report of the managing committee further stated that the general appearance of the institution, the exhibitions of needlework, boot-making, tailoring, &c., met with the warmest commendation of the Royal and other visitors. The number of children admitted during the past year was 37. Of these 33 were admitted by election and 4 by presentation. During the year 28 boys and 14 girls left the home to take situations provided for them.

THE SILENT MEMBER.

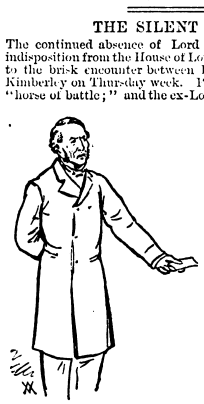
The continued absence of Lord Beaconsfield through grave indisposition from the House of Lords gave peculiar significance to the brisk encounter between Earl Cairns and the Earl of Kimberley on Thursday week. Peace with the Boers was the "horse of battle;" and the ex-Lord Chancellor led the charge.



Now, Earl Cairns in robe and wig and Earl Cairns in mufti (as here limned) are two different personages. As guardian of "the Queen's conscience" and solemn maintainer of a host of precedents and customs, a Lord Chancellor as he sits with more or less dignity on the woolsack, seems to have a close affinity to the sedate occupants of the episcopal benches. But in a frock-coat, and in Opposition, Earl Cairns can evidently hit out straight from the shoulder with a freedom hardly compatible with the wearing of a sombre silk gown. As Lord Selborne admitted at the sitting in question, Earl Cairns is a "master of the art of minute, destructive criticism." His natural acuteness, his remarkably lucid style and clear enunciation, gave incisive force to the lively attack he delivered against the Government, apropos of their rather shilly-shally proceedings with regard to the Transvaal. His speech, too long by half, was at the same time effective as a bid for the leadership of the Conservative Party; and would have been a complete success had he not, as Lord Kimberley adroitly pointed out, avoided the important fact that it was the late Administration which threw upon the present Ministry the burden of the Transvaal difficulty. The Colonial Secretary pleaded that Sir O. Lanyon and Sir George Colley told him "up to the last moment that things were quieting down, and that there was reason to believe all our difficulties would disappear." Which Ministerial excuse for the unfortunate Boer War being a surprise, the Government ought assuredly to make Ministers more careful in the selection of capable and trustworthy representatives abroad.

Lord Cranbrook, Lord Northbrook, the Lord Chancellor, and the Marquis of Salisbury also took vigorous part in the Transvaal debate in the Lords; and this set assault on the Ministry, combined with Sir Michael Hicks-Beach's notice on the same subject in the Commons, point clearly to the use of the Boer charger as a stalking-horse against the Government. Earl Granville's absence (through that fashionable complaint, a cold) has naturally prevented foreign questions from being general. Noble Lords have fallen back, as they did last Tuesday, on such topics as exits from London theatres (the Lord Chamberlain's confidence in the adequateness of which will not be widely shared), and Army Reorganisation, Lord Abinger's practical recommendation with regard to which deserved something more direct in the way of reply than H.R.H. the Duke of Cambridge's resurrection of a Mansion-House speech.

The Lower House has once more to deal with the unpalatable case of Mr. Bradlaugh. The Judges on Appeal having decided in favour of Mr. Clarke, who claimed the penalty against Mr. Bradlaugh for having voted in Parliament without taking the oath, the junior member for Northampton was thereby unseated. Whereupon, Mr. Labouchere on the Friday moved that a new writ should be issued for the borough. Sir Richard Cross endeavoured to throw the onus of the proceedings on the Government. But the Attorney-General was ready for him. Sir Henry James (outlined as he sits on the centre of the Treasury bench) is prompt to rise, and by clear thought expressed in plain speech clear the mists with which a controversial matter is oft-times veiled. The Attorney-General in this instance made it evident that the Government had done nothing one way or the other with regard to this delicate subject. Sir Stafford Northcote did not see how the issue of the writ could be opposed. Mr. Gorst, however, made the motion the grounds of a fresh attack on the Ministry, whom Mr. Gladstone neatly defended in a light and jocose vein. The upshot was that the writ was issued. To-day the new election takes place, with the probable results of Mr. Bradlaugh's re-election and the placing of the House on the horns of the same dilemma that perplexed us nearly a twelvemonth ago.

"Butterine or Oleomargarine?" Mr. Sclater-Booth (sketched as he disposes his ample form on the front Opposition bench) has not risen to address the House often since the Conservatives changed sides. But the introduction from America of spurious compounds under the euphonious names of "Butterine or Oleomargarine" was a thing the late President of the Local Board could not stand. Ere the division could be taken on Sir H. Maxwell's motion to prohibit the importation of these delectable articles, Mr. Sclater-Booth, rising to the occasion, by a mighty effort got on his legs, and emphatically insisted a spade should be called a spade, or, in other words, this American adulterated butter should be named "Butterine or Oleomargarine." Nevertheless, the resolution was negatived by 75 to 59 votes.

The Prime Minister had on Monday merely a plain, unvarnished tale to tell. Yet there was the usual brilliant and crowded House to hear Mr. Gladstone's masterly financial statement as Chancellor of the Exchequer. The Budget speech lasted a little over two hours. The right hon. gentleman's proposals were of a far more moderate nature than those he made last year. He indulged in a pleasant play of fancy when he compared Burton beer to nectar, an allusion which drew sympathetic laughter from the majority. Figures were handled with all the old familiar dexterity.

The past year's revenue was £84,011,000 instead of £82,696,000, as estimated, the great increase coming from the Post Office and similarly fruitful sources. The conversion of the Malt Duty into a Beer Tax had not been immediately successful; but this text gave Mr. Gladstone an opportunity to refer, in a light and amusing strain, to "Mum" as a mysterious liquid that puzzled the Excise. The National Debt had been reduced last year by £7,000,000. By converting short annuities into long annuities the Debt would be reduced by 1906 to the amount of £90,000,000. Plunging into current figures, the Premier estimated the expenditure for 1881-2 at £84,705,000, and the income at £85,990,000, leaving an apparent surplus of £1,285,000, which was reduced £100,000 by a loan to barracks. Taking a penny from the Income Tax (which would then stand at fivepence in the pound), the surplus would be converted into a deficit of £275,000. This would be met by a surtax of 4d. per gallon on foreign spirits; and a readjustment of the legacy duties by means of which the whole payments due to the State may be made at once on payment of an augmented 5 per cent probate duty and a 1½ per cent probate duty would take the place of the 1 per cent legacy duty. These and a few minor changes would transform the deficit into a surplus of £295,000. Such are the main features of this unsensational Budget, which Mr. Gladstone remarked, in conclusion, was his eleventh, and probably might be his last—a pathetic allusion which did not fail to elicit the sympathetic cheers of the House. It is needless to add that the Budget resolutions were agreed to.

It was fated that the Ministerial Land Bill for Ireland should not be introduced without a final flicker of Milesian excitement. Mr. T. P. O'Connor (perhaps the ablest of Mr. Parnell's lieutenants) on Tuesday provoked an animated discussion by animadverting upon the alleged unsatisfactory nature of Mr. Forster's answers, and by urging that the promised measure ought to be retrospective in its action. Mr. Forster, even Mr. Gladstone himself, Mr. Justin M'Carthy, and Mr. Parnell carried on the debate, which ended, however, in a count-out.

On Wednesday, the Lords met for a few minutes to read the second time, but not without remonstrance, the Army Regulation and Discipline Bill. The chief business done in the Lower House was the second reading of Mr. Litton's bill for assimilating the Irish Lunacy Law to that of England.

Samples of the Easter and birthday cards issued this year by Messrs. Marcus Ward and Co. exhibit great taste and elegance of design. Some of the birthday cards have appropriate verses inscribed upon them.

An amateur performance will be given at Cromwell House on Monday, May 9, in aid of the new out-patient wing of the Victoria Hospital for Children, Chelsea. The pieces selected for representation are "Out of Sight," an operetta in one act, by Frederick Clay; and "Les Beaux Arts," a French comedietta, by Mrs. Freake.

The "Journeymen Butchers' Festival" took place at the Metropolitan Tabernacle, Newington, on Tuesday, when about 2000 were entertained to a "knife-and-fork" tea, at five o'clock p.m. A public meeting was held at seven o'clock, at which Mr. W. Caine, M.P., who presided, Mr. H. Varley, Dr. Barnardo, and other gentlemen gave addresses. Mr. Spurgeon was absent owing to illness.

The Lord Mayor presided at the anniversary festival of the Field-lane Refuges and Homes affiliated therewith, held on Monday evening at the Freemasons' Tavern. About 150 guests sat down. The children, boys as well as girls, are maintained, clothed, and educated at the expense of the committee having the management of the institutions. It was stated that many thousands of destitute children and others had benefited by the philanthropic labours of the committee, who annually expend in their work about £7000. The greater part of which is supplied by subscriptions. At the conclusion of the festival, the secretary, Mr. Peregrine Platt, announced lists of subscriptions amounting to £1300, inclusive of £639 upon the chairman's list, and numerous gifts from the City companies. The neatly attired children from the schools, who were brought into the room prior to the proposal of the first toast, sang a selection of pieces in a pleasing manner.

HOME NEWS.

Mr. Flowers took his seat upon the bench of the new police court in Bow-street on Monday for the first time.

The Hull Cattle Market, which had been closed since the first week in February, was reopened for business on Tuesday.

An exhibition of building and decorative materials, on a plan similar to that which was successfully carried out last year, was opened on Monday at the Agricultural Hall.

Mr. Henry Riversdale Grenfell was on Tuesday elected Governor, and Mr. John Saunders Gilliat, Deputy-Governor of the Bank of England for the ensuing year.

The quantity of gold coin in the Bank of England at present is greater than it has been for many years past, amounting to fifteen and a half millions.

We learn from the City Press that the commission has given the city companies a further extension of time until May 13 to make their reports.

The Rev. W. H. Jervis, Vicar of St. Paul's, Colchester, has, it is stated, succeeded in discovering the registration of the marriage of his grandfather, by which, if proved, he will be enabled to claim the title of Viscount St. Vincent.

Intelligence received at Dundee indicates that the Newfoundland seal fishery of the present year has been exceptionally successful. The value of the catches by Dundee vessels alone is estimated at £100,000.

The next examination of candidates for admission to the Royal Military Academy, Woolwich, will begin in London, on Thursday, June 23 next, the medical inspection taking place at the Academy on the previous day.

Lanhydrock House, near Bodmin, the seat of Lord Robartes, was almost totally destroyed by fire on Monday evening. The walls were hung with paintings by the first masters, many of which were lost.

Why water wood pavements? asks Mr. Hubbard, M.P., in the Times. There ought to be no dust on wood, and the surface could be better cleansed without water than with it, as the moistening only renders it slippery.

At the dinner in aid of the Princess Mary Village Homes for Girls, which took place at Willis's Rooms on Thursday week—the Duke of Connaught presiding—donations and subscriptions amounting to £3200 were announced.

The anniversary festival of the Jews' Hospital and Orphan Asylum at Lower Norwood was held last week at the Freemasons' Tavern, under the presidency of Mr. B. L. Cohen, supported by a large number of prominent friends of the institution. The subscriptions amounted to £3987.

The Drapers' Company have placed at the disposal of the London School Board, for competition this year, four scholarships of the average value of thirty pounds per annum each, and tenable for four years. Two of them will be offered to boys and two to girls.

The annual banquet of the Institute of Civil Engineers was held last Saturday, Mr. Abernethy presiding. Among the guests were Lord Kimberley, Lord Derby, Mr. J. Russell Lowell, American Minister, Lord John Manners, and the Lord Mayor.

The Duchess of Manchester distributed the prizes to the successful competitors of the 24th Middlesex Volunteers yesterday (Friday) afternoon at the Cannon-street Hotel; and the Lord Mayor presides this (Saturday) afternoon at the annual distribution of prizes to the 2nd London Volunteers.

Mr. Justice Hawkins, in the Central Criminal Court on Thursday, sent for Charlotte Pickens, the young woman who acted so courageously in attempting to secure Williams, the perpetrator of the Kensington outrage, and ordered her to receive a reward of £10.

Judgment was given yesterday week on the Wigan election petition. Mr. Powell, the sitting member, was unseated, and ordered to pay his own costs and those of the petitioners, the latter not to exceed £2000. The Judges exculpated Mr. Powell from any personal participation in corrupt practices, but stated that "gross corruption" had prevailed at the election.

At a conference held at Newcastle-on-Tyne, Saturday last under the presidency of the Mayor, it was resolved to celebrate the centenary of the birth of George Stephenson in that town on June 9, and that the leading feature of the commemoration should be the erection of a Stephenson College, in connection with the University of Durham.

By order of the Government, Lancaster Castle was yesterday week taken possession of by the military authorities as the new military prison for the north of England. The southern portion of the prison buildings will be used for military prisoners, and the northern portion—the old part of the prison—for civil prisoners.

Mr. Fawcett, in a special circular to the Post-Office telegraphists, draws attention to the misrepresentations which have been made respecting the interview on the 15th ult. Whilst expressing his strong disapprobation of the tone which has been adopted, he intimates that he will not allow this to prevent him from doing full justice to the case generally.

A demonstration, attended by between two and three thousand people, was held in Hyde Park on Sunday afternoon, when a resolution was carried protesting against the action of the Middlesex magistrates in having issued an order to prevent religious services on Sunday in the Metropolitan Music-Hall.

Mr. John Brett, Major-General Augustus Henry Lane-Fox Pitt-Rivers, and the Rev. George Rawlinson, Camden Professor of Ancient History in the University of Oxford, were on Tuesday elected by the committee to be members of the Athenæum Club, under rule 2, which provides for the admission of persons eminent in literature, science, or art, or for public services.

The Japanese model exhibited at the Royal School of Art-Needlework, Exhibition-road, South Kensington, by Messrs. Liberty and Co., of Regent-street, is fitted together, as is always the case with Japanese Houses, entirely without nail or rivet. It is that portion of a Japanese house called the "Chajasuki"—i.e., the room reserved for specially favoured guests or friends.

On Thursday week an evening assembly was held at Exeter Hall in commemoration of the seventeenth anniversary of the Home for Little Boys, near Farningham, Kent. The charity provides homes for 300 little homeless boys, who are received under ten years of age from all parts of the kingdom. They are either absolutely without shelter or are in danger of falling into crime. There are ten separate homes, where the boys are boarded and lodged in families, each under the care of a Christian man and his wife. They receive a good elementary education, and are trained to industrial work, being, above all, grounded in religious principles. In connection with the ten homes are schools, workshops, bakehouse, swimming-bath, cottage infirmary, the chapel, reading-room and library, together with an "Old Boys' Lodge." The great hall was crowded in all parts, the Earl of Aberdeen, with whom was the Countess, presiding.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

MR. BRANDRAM'S SHAKESPEARE FOR THE YOUNG.
Now ready, large crown 8vo, price 7s. 6d.,

SHAKESPEARE. Certain Selected Plays
Abridged for the Use of the Young.
By SAMUEL BRANDRAM, M.A., Oxon.
London: SMITH, ELDER, and Co., 15, Waterloo-place.

NEW VOLUME BY MISS THACKERAY (MRS. RICHMOND RITCHIE).
Now ready, with Four Illustrations, crown 8vo, price 10s. 6d.,

MISS WILLIAMSON'S DIVAGATIONS.
By Miss THACKERAY (Mrs. Richmond Ritchie).
Reprinted from the "Cornhill Magazine," &c.
London: SMITH, ELDER, and Co., 15, Waterloo-place.

MR. WILKIE COLLINS'S NEW NOVEL.
Now ready, in Three Vols., crown 8vo, at every Library,

THE BLACK ROBE. By WILKIE COLLINS, Author of "The Woman in White."

NEW NOVEL BY THE AUTHORS OF "READY-MONEY MORTIBOY."
Just ready, Three Vols., crown 8vo, at every Library,

THE CHAPLAIN OF THE FLEET.
By WALTER BESANT and JAMES RICE.

MR. JAMES PAYN'S NEW NOVEL.
On April 15 will be ready, in Three Vols., crown 8vo, at every Library,

FROM EXILE. By JAMES PAYN,
Author of "By Proxy," "A Confidential Agent," &c.
CHATTO and WINDUS, Piccadilly, W.

THE NEW AND POPULAR NOVELS.
Now ready, at all the Libraries, in 3 vols.,

HARRY JOSCELYN. By Mrs. OLIPHANT.

LOVE-KNOTS. By the Author of "Ursula's Love Story," &c.

BESIDE THE RIVER. By Mrs. MACQUOID.

HIS LITTLE MOTHER. By the Author of "John Halifax," &c. 1 vol., 10s. 6d.

HER DESERTS. By Mrs. ALEXANDER FRASER.
HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

Just published, crown 8vo, price 5s., cloth (postage 6d.),

LATHE-WORK. A Practical Treatise on the Tools, Appliances, and Processes employed in the Art of Turning. By PAUL N. HASLUCK. With numerous Illustrations drawn by the Author.
CROSBY LOCKWOOD and Co., 7, Stationers' Hall-court, London, E.C.

Just published, crown 8vo, price 5s., cloth (postage 5d.),

PRACTICAL ORGAN-BUILDING. By W. E. DICKSON, M.A., Precentor of Ely cathedral. With numerous Illustrations.
CROSBY LOCKWOOD and Co., 7, Stationers' Hall-court, London, E.C.

Just published, crown 8vo, with numerous Illustrations, price 3s. 6d., cloth gilt extra,

THE LADIES' MULTUM IN PARVO FLOWER GARDEN AND AMATEURS' COMPLETE GUIDE. By SAMUEL WOOD, Author of "Good Gardening," &c.
CROSBY LOCKWOOD and Co., 7, Stationers' Hall-court, London, E.C.

MAJOR E. ROGERS'S NEW NOVEL.
Second Edition, at all Libraries, in 3 vols.,

A MODERN SPHINX. The New Novel.
London: J. and R. MAXWELL, Shoe-lane, E.C.

On the 14th inst. will be published, Vol. I., in 8vo, pp. 330, with Plates and Woodcuts, price 7s. 6d. cloth,

OLD YORKSHIRE: being Historical Notes relating to the People, Customs, and Traditions of the County. Edited by W. SMITH, F.S.A.S., with an Introduction by the Rev. Dr. R. COLLYER, New York.
A limited number only for sale, 100 copies having been subscribed for.
London: LONGMANS and Co.

THE STORY OF THE CROSS. By MONRO. Music by J. W. ETHERINGTON. Tenth Edition, revised. Post-free, 24 stamps. Words only, 1s. 6d., per hundred.
ETHERINGTON, Jun., Bach House, Richmond, Surrey.

"Specially called for by Reviews' New Edition."—Contemporary Review.
"Professors Westcott and Hort are practically co-editors."—Church Times.
Just published,
Cloth, 2s. 6d.; leather, 4s.; morocco, 8s.,

VARIORUM NEW TESTAMENT. By Clarke, Goodwin, and Sunday; separate from the "Variorum Teachers' Bible" by Chevne, Driver, Lumby, Sewell, Tristram, &c. The authority for each selected various reading or rendering is clearly illustrated and authenticated by the names or authorities. The Authorised Version is left intact, the ample Revision Notes being at foot of each page.
Prospectuses through the Booksellers.
EYRE and SPOTTISWOODE, Great New-street, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

THE CHEAPEST COMMENTARY EVER PUBLISHED.
Issue in 1s. Monthly Parts of

DR. ADAM CLARKE'S GREAT COMMENTARY ON THE HOLY BIBLE. New and Revised Edition, with additional Prefatory and Supplementary Notes, an Account of the Revision of the New Testament, &c. Prospectus post-free, on application.

IN ONE SHILLING MONTHLY PARTS.
(Complete in 20 Parts).—Part I., April 25,
DR. ADAM

CLARKE'S COMMENTARY ON THE HOLY BIBLE. New Edition, with additional Prefatory and Supplementary Notes by the Rev. THORNLEY SMITH.
The Complete Work will contain 6000 PAGES (forming SIX LARGE and HANDSOME VOLUMES), with about 100 PAGES OF ENGRAVINGS, MAPS, PLANS, &c., LIFE OF THE AUTHOR and PORTRAIT, &c.
Prospectus post-free on application.
London: WARD, LOCK, and Co., Salisbury-square, E.C.

THE NEW WEEKLY JOURNAL OF DRESS AND FASHION, giving the Earliest Parisian Modes SIMULTANEOUSLY WITH THEIR APPEARANCE IN THE FRENCH CAPITAL.
Now ready, price 3d., No. 1 of

THE MILLINER, DRESSMAKER, and DRAPER, and Illustrated Household Journal of Dress, Fashion, and Society. In addition to offering the great attraction of the NEWEST MODES and COMING NOVELTIES concurrently with their appearance in Paris, this new journal will have many features of great interest. Serial Stories, Amusing Novelettes, Epitome of all Fashionable Intelligence, Cookery Articles, Essays and Papers on Home Life, Hints for Housekeepers, Notes on Gardening, &c.
Specimen copy of No. 1, post-free for 4d.
London: WARD, LOCK, and Co., Salisbury-square, E.C.

POTTERY PAINTING: A Handbook to the Practice. By JOHN C. L. SPARKES, Director of the Lambeth School of Art, Head Master of Art-school, South Kensington. Second Edition, price 1s.; post-free, 1s. 1d.
London: LECHERTIER, BARBE, and Co., 60, Regent-street, W.

1d., Weekly; Monthly Part, 5d.,

GARDENING ILLUSTRATED. Villa, Suburban, Cottage, and Town Gardening; Window Plants, Bees, Poultry. All Newsagents.
Copy, by post, 1½d. Vol. I., 7s. 6d.
37, Southampton-street, Strand, London.

Second Edition, price 4s. 6d., to be had of all Booksellers,

RESPIRATORY DISEASES, CONSUMPTION, BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, &c., and their Specific Cure, by Dr. JOHN FRANCIS CHURCHILL'S Discoveries of the Hypophosphites and Inhalation.
J. W. KOLCKMANN, No. 2, Langham-place, London.

Eighth Edition, cloth, post-free, 32 stamps,

DR. BARR MEADOWS on Skin Disease.
Remarks on the Abuse of Arsenic and specifics.
London: G. HILL, 154, Westminster-road.

JUST PUBLISHED, post-free, 2 stamps,

DYSPEPSIA and the SEVERER FORMS OF INDIGESTION. A small pamphlet on these distressing complaints and their complete cure. Published by the Author, RICHARD KING, Esq., Staff Surgeon R.N., 23, Warwick-st., Rugby.

Just published, post-free, Two Stamps,

FITS.—EPILEPSY, or FALLING SICKNESS.—SENSATIONS, GIDDINESS, FAINTS.—A Pamphlet on these distressing complaints, explaining their Treatment and complete Cure. By a Licentiate of the Royal College of Physicians. Published by Mr. WILLIAMS, 30, Oxford-terrace, Hyde Park, London.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

THE

BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS.
A NEW JOURNAL FOR THE YOUNG.
The Proprietors of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS issued the first Illustrated Weekly Newspaper for Boys, price 1½d., Post-free, on Wednesday, April 6, 1881. THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS is a Journal full of Entertainment and Information for Youths and, at the same time, a Paper which Parents can with confidence place in the hands of their Children.

100,000 COPIES OF THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS were ordered by the Trade before noon on the Day of Publication.

BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS.—In No. 1,
APRIL 6, is commenced

CAPTAIN MAYNE REID'S "LOST MOUNTAIN." A New Romance in the best style of this famous Author.

CHARLES ROBINSON, the most facile Artist on this Journal, illustrates Captain Mayne Reid's New Romance.

BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS. No. 1,
APRIL 6, represents the University Crews practising for the

OXFORD and CAMBRIDGE BOAT-RACE, and presents a view of the contest "as we should like to see it."

PHIL HOLIDAY pleasantly chronicles Sport in THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS.

GEORGE R. SIMS (Author of "The Ingoldsby Ballads") will contribute to THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS.

RICHARD DOWLING (Author of "The Mystery of Killard") will contribute short Original Stories to THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS.

AGLEN DOWTY is among the Contributors to THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS.

JOTTINGS FROM A MIDDY'S JOURNAL.
By A MID OF THE OLDEN TIME, are begun in No. 1 of THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS.

"THE ROYAL MIDDIES" are portrayed in the Supplement presented GRATIS with No. 1 of THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS, April 6.

NATURAL HISTORY AND TRAVELS
and ADVENTURES will form regular features of THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS. CAPTAIN MAYNE REID furnishing entertaining and instructive papers under these heads, week by week, to THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS.

THE

BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS (Edited by Captain Mayne Reid and Mr. John Latey, Junior), will, week by week, present an attractive Budget of Romance, Adventure, Travel, and Summary of the World's News, especially written for Youth.

THE

BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS, price One Penny (post-free, 1½d.).

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION,
FOR THE UNITED KINGDOM:
Three Months, 1s. 8d.; Six Months, 3s. 3d.; Twelve Months, 6s. 6d.

ABROAD.
Post-free to any part of Europe, United States of America, Canada, and Egypt, for One Year, 6s. 6d.; to India, Ceylon, China, and Japan, for One Year, 10s. 10d. Elsewhere Abroad, One Year, 8s. 8d.
All subscriptions must be paid in advance direct by Post-Office Order, payable at the East Strand Post Office, to THOMAS FOX, 10, Milford-lane, Strand, London.

ADVERTISERS are requested to send their Announcements early in advance for No. 2 of THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS.

COINS.—Catalogue No. 17 of saleable Antique and Modern Coins has just been published, and can be had gratis of ZSCHIESCHE and KOEDER, Leipzic.

SCRAPS for SCREENS and SCRAP-BOOKS (Coloured).—Immense variety of Flowers, Figures Birds, and Landscapes, from 1s. per sheet; 1 doz. assorted, 10s. 6d.
Illustrated List free.—WM. BARNARD, 129, Edgware-road.

WHAT IS YOUR CREST and WHAT IS YOUR MOTTO? Send name and county to CULLETON'S Heraldic office, Plain Sketch, 3s. 6d.; coloured, 7s. The arms of man and wife blended. Crest engraved on seals, rings, books, and steel dies, 7s. 6d. Gold seal, with crest, 20s. Solid Gold Ring, 18-carat, Hall-marked, with crest, 42s. Manual of Heraldry, 400 engravings, 3s. 9d.—T. CULLETON, 25, Cranbourn-street, corner of St. Martin's-lane.

CULLETON'S GUINEA BOX of STATIONERY contains a Ream of the very best Paper and 500 Envelopes, all stamped in the most elegant way with Crest and Motto, Monogram, or Address, and the engraving of Steel Die included, sent to any part for P.O. order.—T. CULLETON, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

VISITING CARDS, by CULLETON. Fifty best quality, 2s. 6d., post-free, including the Engraving of Copperplate. Wedding Cards, 50 each, 50 Embossed Envelopes, with Maiden Name, 15s. 6d.—T. CULLETON, Seal Engraver, 25, Cranbourn-street, St. Martin's-lane, W.C.

FOR ARMS and CREST send Name and County to T. MORING, Inns of Court Heraldic Office, 44, High Holborn, W.C. Plain Sketch, 3s. 6d.; Coloured, 7s. 6d. Seals, Dies, and Diplomas. Illustrated Price-lists post-free.

FOR FAMILY ARMS (Lincoln's-inn Heraldic Office) send Name and County. Sketch, 3s. 6d.; in colours, 7s. 6d. Arms Painted and Engraved on Seals, Dies, &c. FOUR BROTHERS, Great Turnstile, Lincoln's-inn, W.C.; and 76, Queen Victoria-street, E.C. Price Medal, Paris 1878.

EASTER CARDS, at CHAPMAN'S, No. 6867.—LARGE MALTESE CROSSES. Passion flowers, rhododendrons, double jonquils, and syringa, gracefully entwined with crosses. Marcus Ward. Size, 6½ by 4½. The set of four, 1s. 8d.
No. 696.—RAISED CROSSES, in silver and delicate flowers, with Easter wishes on tinted backgrounds. Very like hand paintings. A pleasing effect. Size, 5½ by 4. The set of four, 1s. 6d.
No. 746.—LARGE RAISED CROSSES.—Beautifully raised in imitation of dead wood, partly covered with gold, entwined with flowers artistically grouped, and shaded; with verses. A very striking effect. Size, 6½ by 5. The set of four, 1s. 6d.
No. 747.—EASTER LILY CROSSES.—Water lilies, passion flowers, ferns, &c. Size, oblong, 6½ by 4. The set of four, 9d.
No. A.—GOLD CROSSES.—Snowdrops on drab backgrounds, with appropriate texts. Size, 5 by 3½. The set of four, 4½d.
No. 727.—EASTER EGGS.—Lifelike eggs of bullfinch, redstart, tree pipit, blue tit. Size, 4 by 2½. The set of four, 9d.
No. 8.—CHICKEN CROSSES.—Crosses of wood, with flowers entwined. Size, 6 by 3½. The set of four, 9d.
No. E.—RECUMBENT CROSSES.—Water lilies, passion flowers, ferns, &c. Size, 6½ by 4½. The set of four, 1s.
Any of the above sent post-free, prepaid orders. Stamps, 2d extra. PARAS provided at Charing-cross.
THOMAS CHAPMAN, 56, Leicester-square.

"MACNIVEN and CAMERON'S PENS are among the best products of British Industry."—Birmingham Gazette.
Just out—The New Pens.
The BIG WAVERLEY, 1s. 6d., and 1s. per Box.
The BIG "1," 1s. Sold by all Stationers.
"Macniven and Cameron's Pens are the best."—Argus.
Sample Box with all the kinds, by post, 1s. 1d.
Patentees of Pens and Penholders: Macniven and Cameron, 23 to 33, Blair-street, Edinburgh (Estd. 1770).
Beware of the party offering spurious Imitations.

JOSEPH GILLOTT'S STEEL PENS.
GOLD MEDAL,
PARIS,
1878.

CHROMOPHOTOGRAPHY.
(KRAUS' PROCESS.)
The New Art (enabling any person without previous knowledge of either Painting or Drawing) to Colour Photographs on convex glasses, in imitation of China and Enamel Painting. Boxes containing every requisite, 25s. and 30s. Particulars post-free. Specimens shown on application at the Sole Agents, J. HARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street, London, W.

VITREMANIE, superseding Diaphanie. An easy and inexpensive method of decorating windows in churches, public buildings, and private houses, by which may be produced the rich colour and beautiful designs equal in appearance to real stained glass. Handbook of Designs and full instructions, 1s. 1d. Boxes, comprising designs, &c., at 21s., 31s. 6d., 42s. Particulars post-free. Sole inventors, J. HARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street, London, W.

DIAMONDS. Mr. STREETER,
SAPPHIRES. 18, New Bond-street, W.
CATS'-EYES. INTRODUCER of
OPALS. 18-CARAT GOLD JEWELLERY and EMERALDS. ENGLISH LEVER WATCHES, MACHINE-MADE.)
BRANCH ESTABLISHMENT, COLOMBO, CEYLON.

WALKER'S CRYSTAL CASE WATCHES are superseding all others. Prize Medals—London, 1862; Paris, 1867. Silver Watches, from £4 4s.; Gold, from £10. Price-Lists sent free.—27, Cornhill; 220, Regent-street; and 76, Strand.

THE FINEST WATCHES MADE. SEWILL'S KEYLESS WATCHES, Prize Medals, London, Paris, and Philadelphia. Damp and Dust-proof, Jewelled, adjusted and compensated for all climates, £10 10s., £14 14s., and £25. Ladies' 4-Ct. Cases, £12 12s. and £15 15s.; in silver cases, for Ladies or Gentlemen, £7 7s., £9 9s., and £12 12s. Forwarded on receipt of remittance.—J. SEWILL, 75, Cornhill, London; and 61, South Castle-street, Liverpool.

NOVELTIES IN JEWELLERY. New Styles for 1881. Gold, Silver, and Gem Jewellery of all kinds. New "Pin" Money," &c.; Artificial Diamond Jewellery; Norwegian, Italian, and Manu-facture Bijouterie Jewellery; Ladies' Watches, &c. Price-List, 700 Illustrations post-free.—Jewellery Depot, 37, Cambridge-street, Birmingham.

JAY'S, Regent-street.

MOURNING.—Messrs. JAY'S Experienced Assistants travel to any part of the Kingdom, free of expense to purchasers. They take Patterns and millinery with them, besides patterns of materials, all marked in plain figures, and of the same prices as if purchased at the Warehouse in Regent-street. Funerals at Court, Chapels conducted in London or country. JAY'S, REGENT-STREET.

EVENING DRESSES, Black Net, Tulle, and Spanish Lace.—Messrs. JAY prepare for the season a variety of Black Evening Dresses, which they can confidently recommend both for correctness of fashion and economy in price. Designs and prices sent free.
JAY'S, Regent-street.

DRESS.—Messrs. JAY respectfully invite their clientele to the choice collection of Pattern Costumes of the Newest Type of Fashion, which are imported from Paris and Berlin.
JAY'S, Regent-street.

PEAU DE CHAMOIS COSTUMES.—A varied series of COSTUMES, made from Peau-de-Chamois Satin, are produced weekly during the season. Price 6 guineas each, including sufficient satin to make a bodice.
JAY'S,
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE, REGENT-STREET, W.

TEENS that young ladies are in no hurry to get out of—
"LOUIS" VELVET-TEENS.

THE "LOUIS" VELVETEEN
IS SIMPLY UNIQUE.
Do not be induced by persuasion to take any other.

LOUIS AN EXTRA PROFIT TO YOUR LOSS may be speciously made if you accept, under whatever name offered, an inferior quality of Velveteen.
"THE LOUIS"
has established its reputation so widely that even a slight inferiority would injure its repute, which constitutes
A TEST OF MERIT,
and guarantee of
UNSURPASSED QUALITY.
Be sure you find the words
THE "LOUIS" VELVETEEN
on every yard,
or you have not the
GENUINE "LOUIS,"
notwithstanding all assertions to the contrary.

LOUIS Wholesale London Agent, J. H. FULLER, 92, Watling-street, who will send on inquiry, post-free, the names of the nearest Drapers from whom the genuine LOUIS VELVETEEN can be obtained.

NEW SPRING DRESSES.—New Heather Tweed Beiges, 7½d.; New Granit Mercvilleux, 6½d. Patterns free.—JOHN HOOPER, 32, Pompadours, 7½d.; Prints, 5½d.; Linen Lawns, 3½d. Patterns free.
JOHN HOOPER, 32, Oxford-street, W.

A MARVEL.—3s. 11d. Twelve Yards, Pretty Spring Dresses, Black Cashmere, 11½d. per yard.
S. AMERY, 6 and 7, High-street, Clapham, London.

BREIDENBACH'S SACHETS. — Wood Violet, White Rose, Eau, Bouquet, Musk, Chypre, Stephanotis, Frangipanni, Ylang Ylang, Marechale, Jockey Club, Heliotrope. In Paper Envelopes, 1s. each; in Silk Bags, 1s. each; in Flat Satin Cushions, 2s. 6d. each. Sold by all Perfumers, Stores, and Fancy Dealers, or post-free from 157a, New Bond-street, London, W.

NUDA VERITAS.—GREY HAIR restored by this valuable specific to its original shade, after which it grows the natural colour, not grey. Used as a dressing, it causes growth and arrests falling. The most harmless and effectual restorer extant. One trial will convince it has no equal. Price 10s. 6d., of all Chemists and Hairdressers. Testimonials post-free.—R. HOVENDEN and SONS, London.

GOLDEN HAIR.—ROBARE'S AUREOLINE produces the beautiful Golden Colour so much admired. Warranted perfectly harmless. Price 5s. 6d. and 10s. 6d., of all Perfumers. R. HOVENDEN and SONS, 5, Great Marlborough-street, W.; and 93 and 95, City-road, E.C.

PRATT'S WATER PAD TRUSSES are the
MOST EFFECTUAL CURE FOR RUPTURES.
PRATT'S ELASTIC STOCKINGS,
for VARICOSE VEINS, &c.
J. PRATT,
Surgical Mechanician to St. Bartholomew's Hospital, 220, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON.

LADIES' ELASTIC SUPPORTING BANDS, for use before and after Accouchement. Instructions for measurement and prices on application to POPE and PLANTE, 4, Wateloo-place, Pall-mall, London.

ELECTRICITY IS LIFE.
PULVERMACHER'S GALVANISM, NATURE'S CHIEF RESTORER OF IMPAIRED VITAL ENERGY."
In the Pamphlet the most notable proofs are given of the real and wonderful curative powers of Pulvermacher's Patent Galvanic Chain-Bands, Belts, &c., in Rheumatic, Nervous, and Functional Disorders. Sent post-free for three stamps on application to
J. L. PULVERMACHER'S GALVANIC ESTABLISHMENT, 194, Regent-street, London, W.

MALVERN COLLEGE.
The NEXT TERM will BEGIN on TUESDAY, MAY 10.

NAUTICAL TRAINING COLLEGE.
THE THAMES NAUTICAL TRAINING COLLEGE, H.M.S. WORCESTER, moored off Greenhithe, Kent, is managed by a Committee of London Shipowners, Merchants, and Captains. Chairman, Sir Sir. H. Chambers, 4, Mincing-lane, E.C.; Vice-Chairman, W. Strang, Esq., 63, Fenchurch-street, E.C.; Treasurer, Thomas Daniel Hill, Esq., 4, Mincing-lane, E.C. Youths from 11 to 14½ years of age, intended for the Sea, are RECEIVED on board, and specially educated for a SEAFARING LIFE. The annual terms in the Upper School for Cadets from 13 to 15½ are 50 guineas, and in the Lower School for Cadets from 11 to 13, 45 guineas, with a charge to each of 10 guineas for uniform, medical attendance, washing, &c. Forms and Prospectuses may be obtained on application to W. M. BULLIVANT, Hon. Sec., 72, Mark-lane, London.

SPA TEPLITZ in BOHEMIA.
Ten miles distant from Prague and Dresden. For centuries celebrated hot alkaline-saline Thermal Waters (23-30 deg. R.). Uninterrupted cure the year throughout. OPENING of the SUMMER SEASON on MAY 1.
This first-class spa comprises extensive Thermal establishments, fitted according to the latest principles. Beside the Mineral there are also pure and partial Moor Baths, Douches, Own natural Mineral Drink Springs. All the Foreign Mineral Waters, by town license, and under official medical control, most recently bottled. Whey, Goat's Milk.
Prominent for its unrivalled efficacy against Gout, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Scrofulous swellings and Tumours, Anæmia, and other nervous and spinal diseases; but especially effective in the affections resulting from shot and cut wounds, after bone fractures, in stiffness in the joints, &c.
Beautiful situation, entirely sheltered, in a large valley surrounded by mountains. Mild and uniform climate. Gardens and Parks tastefully laid out. Delightful Promenades for rides through the high woods. Concerts by the Thermal Town Orchestra. Reunions, theatre with Opera, &c. Carnival, Library, Churches and Chapels for various faiths; two railway stations; large Hotels.
Ample Accommodation to all requirements are offered by the magnificent Kurerhof, the Stramic I, and the Stadthaus, as well as by numerous private boarding-houses.
During 1880 Spa Teplitz-Schonau had 34,000 visitors.
All particulars respecting Spa Teplitz and orders for apartments are readily given, free of charge, on application to MAGISTRAT TEPLITZ, BOHEMIA.

ELKINGTON and CO.,
MANUFACTURING SILVERSMITHS,
PATENTEES OF THE ELECTRO-PLATE.

ELKINGTON and CO.
CAUTION PURCHASERS AGAINST CHEAP AND INFERIOR IMITATIONS.
Illustrated Catalogues, post-free.
ELKINGTON and CO., 22, Regent-st.; or 42, Moorgate-st., City.

GARDNER'S DINNER and TABLE GLASS SERVICES. Free, graceful, and original designs, of unequalled value. Dinner services, from 21s. Table Glass Services, of the best Crystal, for twelve persons, complete, 65s. Cash discount, 5 per cent. Coloured Photographic Sheets and Illustrated Glass Catalogues post-free.
453 and 454, West Strand, Charing-cross.

GENUINE DUBLIN WHISKY.
THE MOST WHOLESOME OF ALL SPIRITS.
DUBLIN WHISKY, Distilled by Messrs. JOHN JAMESON and SON, GEORGE ROE and CO., WILLIAM JAMESON and CO., and JOHN POWER and SON, can be obtained in Wood by wholesale merchants and dealers, direct from their respective distilleries.

ROBERT ROBERTS and CO.'S
CELEBRATED TEAS.
TWELVE POUNDS AND UPWARDS CARRIAGE PAID.
Samples and Price-lists free by post.
Queen Insurance-buildings, Liverpool. ESTABLISHED 1840.
No agents.
All communications and orders direct.

CARSON'S ANTI-CORROSION PAINT,
Patronised by her Majesty, the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Edinburgh, and Lords of the Nobility, Gentry, and Clergy, for every description of outdoor work, has been established upwards of eighty years, and has the reputation over every part of the habitable globe of being the best Preserver of Iron, Wood, Stone, Brick, or Compo.
It stands any extreme of climate, and seems only to harden with exposure. It is sold in all Colours.—Prices, patterns, and full particulars of free delivery, cash discount, and full directions for use sent free. Out of Oils, Varnishes, Brushes, &c., can be had upon application to
WALTER CARSON and SONS,
La Belle Sauvage-yard, Ludgate-hill, London; 21, Bachelor's-walk, Dublin.

CARSON'S ANTI-CORROSION PAINT is used by all the leading horticulturists for their conservatories and hot-houses, and has stood par excellent test of upwards of eighty years.

CHUBB'S PATENT SAFES,
FIRE AND THIEF RESISTING.

CHUBB'S SAFES FOR JEWELS,
DEEDS, PLATE, BULLION, &c.

CHUBB'S LOCKS and LATCHES,
CHESTS, BOXES, &c.

CHUBB'S ILLUSTRATED PRICE-LISTS
POST-FREE.

CHUBB and SON, 128, Queen Victoria-street, E.C.; and 68, St. James's-street, London.

EPPS'S COCOA.
GRATEFUL and COMFORTING.
"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operation of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.
JAMES EPPS and CO., HOMŒOPATHIC CHEMISTS.
Also, EPPS'S CHOCOLATE ESSENCE, for Afternoon Use.

FARROW and JACKSON,
the largest and best Makers of
IRON WINE BINS, SODA-WATER RACKS, BAR FITTINGS, SEALING-WAX, and every Article for the Dining-room, Counter of Wines, 18, GREAT TOWER-STREET; 8, HAYMARKET; 91, MANSELL-STREET, LONDON.
Agent in
N. EDARD 58, RUE DU DRAGON.

SULPHOLINE LOTION.—An external Cure for Skin Diseases. There is scarcely any eruption but will yield to SULPHOLINE in a few days. Ordinary pimples, redness, blotches, scurf, roughness, vanish as if by magic; while old-skin disorders, that have plagued sufferers for years, however deeply seated, speedily succumb. SULPHOLINE will successfully attack Eczema, Tetter, Ringworm, Blotches, &c., and destroys the animalcules which cause the unsightly, irritable affections. Nothing can equal it for its positive results in clear skin. SULPHOLINE Lotion is sold by Chemists. Bottles, 2s. 9d.

"THEY HAVE NO EQUAL."
This is the universal opinion of everybody who has tried
DR. SCOTT'S BILIOUS and LIVER PILLS, for bilious and liver complaints, indigestion, wind, spasms, dull breath, nervous depression, irritability, faintness, loss of appetite, dyspepsia, heartburn, giddiness, dizziness of the eyes, &c. Being a mild aperient in their action as they are certain in their curative effects.—Prepared by W. Lambert, 24, Seymour-place, London, W., in Boxes, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d., and sold by all Chemists. The genuine are in square green packages. Take no other.

FOR SOUTH AFRICA.—How to get rid of your left-off clothes, jewels, furniture, antique law, old gold for its full price, &c. Why send them to the most respectable purchasers, who pay you ready money before taking them away.—Mr. and Mrs. PHILLIPS, Old Curiosity Shop, 31, Thayer-street, Manchester-square, London, W.

NEW MUSIC.

OLIVETTE. New Comic Opera. Enormous success at the Strand Theatre. Adapted by H. B. Farnie; Music by AUDRAN.
Vocal score ... 8s. net.
Abridged Edition of the Vocal Score, containing the Overture, Songs, &c. ... ... ... ... 4s. net.
Pianoforte Solo ... ... ... ... 2s. 6d. net.
All the Favourite Airs, arranged for the Violin ... 1s. 6d.
Lancers. D'Albert .. 2s. net.
Waltz. D'Albert .. 2s. net.
Quadrille. D'Albert.. 2s. net.
Polka. D'Albert .. 2s. net.
Galop. D'Albert .. 2s. net.
Scarcel and Pearcel Waltz. D'Albert .. 2s. net.
Boyton Smith's Fantasia ... 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

NEW AND POPULAR SONGS.

WELCOME. Lady ARTHUR HILL. 2s. net.
CŒUR DE LION. H. J. STARK. Sung by Mr. Oswald. 2s. net.
AT THE PORTAL. N. FERRI. Sung by Madame Mary Cummings. 2s. net.
WHAT THE FIRELIGHT TOLD. J. L. ROECKEL. 2s. net.
ANGUS MACDONALD. J. L. ROECKEL. Sung by Madame Enriquez. 2s. net.
THE CHILDREN IN THE WOOD. ROECKEL. 2s. net.
WHERE THE PURPLE VIOLET GROWS. From "The Turquoise Ring." L. BENSON. 2s. net.
DINNA LEAVE ME. A. M. WAKEFIELD, Composer of "No, Sir!" 2s. net.
THOUGHTS AT SUNRISE. Mrs. L. MONCRIEFF. 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

NEW SONGS by Mrs. RONALDS.
IN SHADOW ... ... ... ... 2s. net.
WHY? ... ... ... ... ... 2s. net.
EVER NEAR ... ... ... ... 2s. net.
DIS MOI POURQUOI ... ... ... 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

CHARLES D'ALBERT'S NOVELTIES.
ADELINA WALTZ. Illustrated with a beautiful Portrait of Madame Patti ... ... ... 2s. 6d. net
PORTIA WALTZ ... ... ... ... 2s. 6d. net
DRINK, PUPPY, DRINK! POLKA ... ... ... 2s. net
CAN'T STOP! GALOP ... ... ... ... 2s. 6d. net
CONGRESS LANCERS ... ... ... ... 2s. net
DISTANT SHORE WALTZ ... ... ... ... 2s. net
THE FANFARE POLKA ... ... ... ... 2s. net
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

Now ready, Volume II. of
CHAPPELL'S OLD ENGLISH DITTIES.
Handsomely bound in cloth and gold.
Price 10s. 6d. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S THREE-YEARS' SYSTEM of HIRE of PIANOFORTES, HARMONIUMS, and AMERICAN ORGANS, by which the Instrument becomes the property of the Hirer at the end of the third year, provided each quarter's hire shall have been regularly paid in advance. Pianofortes from 2gs., Harmoniums, from £1 5s.; and American Organs, from 12 hs. a Quarter.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S PIANINOS, from 20 guineas.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S COTTAGES, from 27 guineas.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S GRANDS, from 75 guineas.

CHICKERING PIANOFORTES, from 120 guineas, with American discount.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ALEXANDRE HARMONIUMS, for Church, Schools, or Drawing-Rooms, from £7 to 150 guineas; or, on the Three-Years' System, from £1 5s. per quarter.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S IMPROVED AMERICAN ORGANS, combining Pipes with Reeds, Manufactured by Clough and Warren, Detroit, U.S.A. The immense advantages these instruments possess over the Organs hitherto imported have induced Messrs. Chappell and Co. to undertake the sole Agency of this eminent Manufactory. A large variety on view, from 18 to 250 guineas. Price-Lists on application to CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

CLOUGH and WARREN'S Favourite ORGAN. Compass, five octaves, ten stops, four sets of reeds, two of two and two thirds octaves and two of two and one third octaves, knee swell, elegant carved Canadian walnut case, price 7½ guineas. With twelve stops, sub-bass octave coupler, and two knee pedals, 35 guineas. Illustrated Price-List free by post.
Sole Agents, CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

INSTRUMENTS by ALL MAKERS may be HIRED or PURCHASED on the Three-Years' System.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

A LARGE DISCOUNT TO PURCHASERS FOR CASH.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry; E.C.

BROADWOOD'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on CRAMER'S Three-Years' System, from £2 12s. 6d. per Quarter.

COLLARD'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on CRAMER'S Three-Years' System; in Black and Gold Cases, at £4 18s. 6d. to £5 5s., £6 6s., £7 7s., and in special Early English Ebonised Case, £8 8s. per Quarter.

ERARD'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on CRAMER'S Three-Years' System, from £5 5s. per Quarter.

CRAMER'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on their Three-Years' System, from £1 1is. 6d. per Quarter. Detailed Lists post-free on application to Regent-street, W.; Bond-street, W.; Moorgate-street, E.C.; and 145, High-street, Notting-hill.

CHALLEN and SON'S IRON-FRAME PIANOS, require but little tuning, pure and powerful in tone, and more damp-resisting than upon the old system of bracing. Their Gold Medal Pianettes, from 25 guineas, have taken the highest award at any Exhibition. Illustrated List free.—20, Oxford-street.

MELBOURNE EXHIBITION, 1881.
HIGHEST AWARD.—CHALLEN and SON have been awarded the First Prize for their Iron-Frame Upright Pianos, a distinction not conferred upon any other English Firm. May be purchased on the Three-Years' Hire System.—20, Oxford-st.

CHALLEN and SON'S THREE-YEARS' SYSTEM of Purchase affords facilities for obtaining a first-class Instrument by a series of twelve quarterly payments, after which the piano becomes the property of the hirer, without further payment. List and Terms free.—20, Oxford-street. Established 1861.

£20 SCHOOL-ROOM PIANO (Co-operative price for cash). Seven octaves—strong, sound, and substantial. Adapted for hard practice. Carefully packed free, and sent to any part. Drawings gratis.
THOMAS OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street.

£35.—There is nothing in London—nor, in fact, in all England—to be compared to the elegantly carved DRAWING-ROOM TRICHORD COTTAGE PIANOFORTE, with Cabriole Truss Legs, which is sold for £35 by
THOMAS OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, Portman-sq.

ERARDS' PIANOS.—Messrs. ERARD, of 18, Great Marlborough-street, London, and 13, Rue de Mail, Paris, Makers to her Majesty and the Prince and Princess of Wales, CAUTION the Public that Pianofortes are being sold bearing the name of "Erard" which are not of their manufacture. For information as to authenticity apply at 18, Great Marlborough-st., where new Pianos can be obtained from 30 guineas.

ERARDS' PIANOS.—COTTAGES, from 50 guineas.
OBLIQUES, from 85 guineas.
GRANDS, from 125 guineas.

NEW MUSIC.

THE ROYAL EDITION OF OPERAS, for Voice and Pianoforte, in the most newly-got-form ever published. Edited by ARTHUR SULLIVAN and J. PITTMAN.

ITALIAN AND ENGLISH WORDS.

| | s. d. | | s. d. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Gallo in Maschera (Un) .. | 3 6 | Huguenots (Les) .. .. | 5 0 |
| *Barbiere di Siviglia (Il) | 3 6 | Lucie di Lammermoor .. | 3 6 |
| Crown Diamonds (The).. | 3 6 | Lucrezia Borgia .. .. | 3 6 |
| Dinorah .. .. .. | 3 6 | Martha .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Domino Noir (Le).. .. | 3 6 | Masaniello .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| *Don Giovanni .. .. | 3 6 | Marcia .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Don Pasquale .. .. | 3 6 | Norma .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Elisir d'Amore (L') .. | 3 6 | Porter of Havre (The) .. | 3 6 |
| Faust .. .. .. | 3 6 | Puritani (I) .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Favorita (La) .. .. | 3 6 | Rigoletto .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Fidelio .. .. .. | 3 6 | Robert le Diable .. .. | 5 0 |
| *Figaro .. .. .. | 3 6 | Semiramide .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Figlia del Reggimento (La) | 3 6 | Sonnambula (La) .. .. | 3 6 |
| Flauto Magico (Il) .. | 3 6 | Traviata (La) .. .. | 3 6 |
| Fra Diavolo .. .. | 3 6 | Trovatore (Il) .. .. | 3 6 |
| Gazza Ladra .. .. | 3 6 | Vascello Fantasma (Il) .. | 3 6 |

*The unaccompanied recitatives of these operas are printed as dialogue, also with music.

ITALIAN, GERMAN, AND ENGLISH WORDS.
Freischutz (Der) .. .. 3 6 | Lohengrin .. .. .. 3 6

GERMAN AND ENGLISH WORDS.
Fliegende Holländer (Der). 2s. 6d.

GERMAN, FRENCH, AND ENGLISH WORDS.
Water Carrier (The) Les Deux Journées. 3s. 6d.

FRENCH AND ENGLISH WORDS.

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Fille de Madame Angot (La) | 3 | 6 | Fra aux Clercs (Le) ..... 3 6 |
| Grand Mogul (Le) ..... | 3 | 6 | Zampa ..... 3 6 |
| Médecin Malgre Lui (Le) .. | 3 | 6 | |

ENGLISH WORDS.

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Bohemian Girl (The) .. | 3 | 6 | Siege of Rochelle (The) .. 3 6 |
| Lily of Killarney (The) .. | 3 | 6 | |
| Mountain Sylph (The) .. | 3 | 6 | |

Also in cloth, gilt edges, 1s. 6d. and 2s. 6d. each extra.

BALLAD OPERAS.

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Beggar's Opera .. .. | 1 | 0 | No Song, no Supper .. 1 0 |
| Love in Village .. .. | 1 | 0 | Rosina .. .. 1 0 |

BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

BOOSEY'S SHILLING PIANOFORTE ALBUMS in the MUSICAL CABINET.
212. BOOSEY'S MARCH ALBUM. (36 Marches.)
293, 296, 213. RUBINSTEIN'S THREE ALBUMS. (36 pieces.)
206. RUBINSTEIN'S SIX STUDIES.
207. RUBINSTEIN'S SEVEN PRELUDES.
214. ROBERT SCHUMANN'S ALBUMBLATTER. (20 pieces.)
209. RACHS PIANOFORTE ALBUM. (13 pieces.)
289. BRAHMS' PIANOFORTE ALBUM. (4 pieces.)
190. FIELD'S NOCTURNES ALBUM. (18 Nocturnes.)
114. BEETHOVEN'S WALTZ ALBUM. (43 Waltzes.)
176. CHOPIN'S WALTZES, complete.
164. CHOPIN'S MAZURKAS, complete.
171. CHOPIN'S NOCTURNES, complete.
86. HELLER'S TWELVE SHORT PIECES.
85. HELLER'S PROMENADES D'UNE SOLITAIRE.
161. HELLER'S PETIT ALBUM. (20 pieces.)
106. SCHUMANN'S KINDERSCENEN, &c.
23. OVERTURES (1st book), including Figaro, Fra Diavolo, Crown Diamonds, William Tell, Freischütz, Zampa.
211. OVERTURES (2nd book), including Masaniello, Oberon, Gazza Ladra, Euryanthe.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

BOOSEYS' SHILLING OPERAS for PIANOFORTE.

| | |
|---|---|
| Ballo in Maschera. | Lucia. |
| Barbiere. | Lucrezia Borgia. |
| Crown Diamonds. | Madame Angot. |
| Dame Blanche. | Martha. |
| Dinorah (2s.). | Masaniello. |
| Domino Noir. | Norma. |
| Don Juan. | Nozze de Figaro. |
| Don Pasquale. | Oberon. |
| Ernani. | Rigoletto. |
| Favorita. | Robert le Diable. |
| Fidelio. | Sonnambula. |
| Figlia del Reggimento. | Semiramide. |
| Flauto Magico. | Sonnambula. |
| Flying Dutchman (2s.). | Tannhauser (2s.) |
| Fra Diavolo. | Traviata |
| Freischutz. | Trovatore. |
| Genevieve de Brabant. | Vepres-Sicilliennes (2s.) |
| Grand Duchess. | William Tell. |
| Huguenots (2s.). | Zampa. |
| Lohengrin (2s.). | |

BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

MADAME PATEY'S NEW SONGS.
THE CHILDREN OF THE CITY. By S. ADAMS.
THE MERMAID'S SONG. By LOUIS DIEHL.
2s. each.—BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

EDWARD LLOYD'S NEW SONGS.
MIGNONETTE. By SUCHET CHAMPION.
THE LOVE OF LONG AGO. By W. H. CUMMINGS.
2s. each.—BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

MARZIAL'S NEW SONGS.
A SUMMER SHOWER. Sung by Miss Mary Davies.
ROSEMISTER BEGIS. Sung by the Composer.
THAT SWEET STORY OF OLD. Sacred Song.
2s. each.—BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

MOLLOY'S NEW SONGS.
THE BOATSWAIN'S STORY. Sung by Mr. Santley.
THE FIRST LETTER. Sung by Miss Mary Davies.
TWENTY-ONE. Sung by Antoinette Sterling.
2s. each.—BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

THE LITTLE ROUNDHEAD MAID. By the Composer of "No, Sir!" Sung by Miss Wakefield at the Ballad Concert.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

To be had of every Musicseller in the United Kingdom.
THE CAVENDISH MUSIC-BOOKS. The cheapest and most popular musical serial published. Each book contains thirty-two pages of music, full size, price 1s. The only publication containing copyright songs and pieces by the most eminent living composers, besides the best standard music. Forty Numbers are now published. A List of Contents gratis.—BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

ALL SHEET MUSIC promptly collected and sent post-free at half price to any part of the Kingdom. Messrs. ROBERT COCKS and CO. possess great facilities in this branch, and are in constant communication with all the leading publishers.—London: 6, New Burlington-street.

AGAIN TO MEET. Song. By E. PIERACCINI. In two keys, C and E flat. Post-free for 18 stamps each. "A song of human love, lasting to all eternity." "The accompaniment is one of the most charming that we ever remember to have played."—Girls' Own Paper.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co. ... ... ...

I REMEMBER, I REMEMBER. Song. By CIRO PINSUTI. Post-free for 18 stamps. "Will outlive many of the so-called songs of the present day."
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

Just published,
O, SANTA MELODIA. A Transcription of Donizetti's beautiful theme by BRINLEY RICHARDS. Post-free for 18 stamps.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

NAZARETH. A Sacred Song. By GOUNOD. Transcribed for the Pianoforte by George Frederick West. 4s.; post-free for half price in stamps.—London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.; of whom may be had, gratis and post-free, a Catalogue of all Mr. West's Pianoforte Music.

DON'T FORGET ME. One of CIRO PINSUTI'S most popular songs. Full of melody and tender pathos. Post-free for 21 stamps.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

VALLEY ECHOES. Six elegant Morceaux for the Pianoforte. Composed by WILLIAM SMALLWOOD. Most appropriately and elegantly Illustrated.

| | |
|---|---|
| 1. Valley of the Rhine. | 4. Ehrenbin. |
| 2. The Tyrol. | 5. Feldsberg. |
| 3. Bonea, Naples. | 6. California. |

2s. each; post-free at half price in stamps.
"There is no doubt that the series will be much sought after, and highly appreciated."—Orchestra.
"They are written in a most happy style, and cannot fail to command a rapid sale."—Birmingham Chronicle.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

MISS WAKEFIELD'S NEW SONGS.
"YES, SIR!" A sequel to "No, Sir!" Words by W. M. Hodinott.
SWEET SALLY GRAY. A North Countrie Ballad. Words by the late Robert Anderson.
"NO, SIR!" Ballad. Also arranged as a Vocal Duet by Theo. Marzials.
A REHENADE. Words by Tom Hood.
Price 2s. each net.
PATERSON and Sons, 27, George-street, Edinburgh.

METZLER and CO.
35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

NEW MUSIC.

THE MUSICAL TIMES for APRIL contains:—The Music of Promise.—The Great Composers: Berlioz.—Mr. Pepys the Musician, by F. Hueffer.—Sacred Music in Italy.—Crystal Palace, Monday Popular, Bach Choir, sacred Harmonic Society, Philharmonic Society, Mr. Charles Hallé's, and M. Lamoureux's Concerts.—Music in Manchester.—Dr. Stone on the Combination of Voices with Musical Instruments.—Occasional Notes.—Foreign and Country News.—Reviews, &c. Price 3d.; post-free, 4d. Annual Subscription, 4s., including postage.

THE MUSICAL TIMES for APRIL contains:—"Holy Spirit, Come, O Come!" Anthem for Whitsuntide, by George C. Martin. Price, separately, 1½d.

MESSRS. NOVELLO, EWER, and CO. have the honour to announce that they have purchased the ENTIRE STOCK and COPYRIGHTS of the WORKS hitherto published by Messrs. NEUMEYER and CO., of Newmeyer (Hall), including the whole of the valuable Compositions of HERMANN HOFMANN, &c.

NOVELLO'S ORATORIOS.
ONE SHILLING EACH.

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Engedi .. | Beethoven. | Israel in Egypt .. | Handel. |
| Mount of Olives .. | " | Judas Maccabæus .. | " |
| Jephthah .. .. | Carissimi. | The Creation .. | Haydn. |
| Messiah .. .. | Handel. | Last Judgment .. | Spohr. |

London: NOVELLO, EWER, and Co.

NOVELLO'S CANTATAS.
ONE SHILLING EACH.

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| God goeth up ..... | Bach. | Hear my Prayer | Mendelssohn. |
| God's time is the best.. | " | Night of Espousal- | |
| My spirit was in heavi- | " | gie Night ..... | " |
| ness ..... | " | Midsummer Night's | |
| O light everlasting .. | " | Dream ..... | " |
| Ride with us ..... | " | Man is mortal.... | " |
| A Stronghold Sure..... | " | Pestgesang..... | " |
| Ruins of Athens .. | Beethoven. | Christus..... | " |
| A Song of Destiny .. | Brahms. | To the sons of Art | " |
| The Dream..... | Sir M. Costa. | Ave Maria..... | " |
| Spring's Message. 2d. | Niels W. Gade. | The Lay of the Bell | Romberg. |
| Christmas Eve ... | " | The Transient and | |
| Ert King's Daughter .. | " | the Eternal..... | " |
| Scena..... | Goetz. | Song of Miriam.. | F. Schubert. |
| The Soul's Aspiration | Grimm. | Manfred..... | R. Schumann. |
| Acis and Galatea .... | Handel. | The North-east Wind | |
| Spring. Summer, Au- | | blowing ..... | A. M. Smith. |
| tumn, Winter (from | | God, Thou art great .... | Spohr. |
| "The Seasons"). | Haydn. | The Christian's Prayer | " |
| May Day ..... | G. A. Macfarren. | Jubilee Cantata, C. M. V. Weber. | |
| Lobgesang..... | Mendelssohn. | | |

London: NOVELLO, EWER, and Co.

NOVELLO'S MASSES, PSALMS, &c.
ONE SHILLING EACH.

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Stabat Mater ..... | Astorga. | 114th Psalm ..... | Mendelssohn. |
| Magnificat ..... | Bach. | 115th Psalm .... | " |
| Mass in G ..... | Beethoven. | 18th Psalm .... | " |
| Requiem (C minor) | Cherubini. | 91st Psalm ..... | Mey rieer. |
| Third Mass in A ..... | Cherubini. | First Mass ..... | Mozart. |
| By the Waters of Babylon. | | Twelfth Mass .... | " |
| | Goetz. | Requiem Mass (Latin | |
| Messe Solennelle.. Ch. Gounod. | | and English)..... | " |
| Dettingen Te Deum .. | Handel. | Stabat Mater (Female | |
| Utrecht Jubilate .... | " | Voices) ..... | Pergolesi. |
| O praise the Lord (Sixth | | Stabat Mater..... | Rossini. |
| Chandos Anthem) .... | " | Mass in G ..... | Schubert. |
| First Mass (B flat) .... | Haydn. | Advent Hymn.. | R. Schumann. |
| Second Mass (C) .... | " | Mass..... | E. Silas. |
| Third Mass (Imperial) .. | " | Mass (G) .... | C. M. Von Weber. |
| Te Deum (Latin and | | Mass (E flat) | " |
| English Words) ..... | " | O Lord, Thou art my God, | |
| 42nd Psalm .... | Mendelssohn. | | S. S. Wesley. |
| 95th Psalm ..... | " | | |

London: NOVELLO, EWER, and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.; and 80 and 81, Queen-street, E.C.

THREE NEW SONGS.
By LORD HENRY SOMERSET.
ONE MORE. In F and D ... ... 2s. 6d.
DAWN, NOON, AND NIGHT. In F ... ... 2s. 6d.
GOOD-BYE. In E minor and F minor. The 2 for 2s. 6d.
Words by Major G. T. Whyte-Melville ...
London: NOVELLO, EWER, and Co.

JOSEPH WILLIAMS'S LIST.
THE LATEST SUCCESS.
BILLEE TAYLOR. Comic Opera. By H. P. STEPHENS and E. SOLOMON.
VOCAL SCORE ... ... ... ... 6s. net.
SONGS.
ALL ON ACCOUNT OF ELIZA (Third Edition). 2s. net.
SELF-MADE KNIGHT (Second Edition). 2s.
THE VIRTUOUS GARDENER. 2s. net.
FANTASIA FOR PIANO. CH. TOURVILLE. 1s. 6d. net.

PIANO SCORE (Complete). 2s. 6d. net. Now ready.
QUADRILLES. By CHARLES COOTE. 2s. net.
LANCERS. By ARTHUR GREENVILLE. 2s. net.
WALTZES. By CHARLES COOTE. 2s. net.
DANCE MUSIC. BILLEE TAYLOR, ready. Orchestra, 2s.; septet, 1s. 6d.
* Beautifully Illustrated.

HENRY FARMER'S PIANOFORTE TUTOR, considerably Enlarged and Fingered by the Author. Ninth Edition. 4s.
"Decidedly the best and most useful instruction book we have seen."—Musical Review.
Post-free, 28. net.

A LIFE'S LOVE. In C and D. Song. Composed by J. B. WALDECK. Will be sung by Mr. Robert Hilton at Dumbarton, Helensburgh, and Glasgow on the 24th, 25th, and 26th inst.
London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 24, Berners-street; and 123, Cheapside.

THE LOVE OF OLD. ROECKEL'S charming New Song will be sung by Miss Damian at her forthcoming engagements. Post-free, 24 stamps.

PIANO DUETS.
C. REINECKE. Three Sonatas, Op. 130. Price 2s. each, net.

PIANO SOLOS.
W. KUHE. NEW SACRED TRANSCRIPTIONS.
ELI (Costa). Nunium Prodiat. Price 2s. each net.
TH. LAUK. NEW PIECES.
Menuet à la Cour. Les Bergers. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
H. ROUBIER. NEW PIECES.
Joyeuse Rentrée. Fête à Trianon, Farfait Bonheur. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
FRANZ HEINTZ. NEW PIECES.
Caprice (Caprice) Lutin Rose, Le Regiment qui passe. Price 2s. 6d. each net.
JOYFUL SOUVENIRS. Three Easy Pieces on Popular Subjects. Arranged by CH. TOURVILLE. Price 1s. each net.
OUR FAVOURITES. Ten Moderately Easy Pieces on Popular Subjects. Arranged by CH. TOURVILLE. Price 1s. 3d. each net.

THE PROGRESSIVE MUSIC SCHOOL.
Carefully Edited, Fingered, and Corrected from the Original Manuscripts by J. LEYBACH. First Series (very easy), 15 Numbers. Numbers 1 to 14, price 1s. 3d. each net; Number 15, price 1s. 6d. net.

VIOLIN AND PIANO DUETS.
E. JAUBERT. Six Popular Airs (Easy). Price 1s. each net.
CH. TOURVILLE. Twelve Favourite Subjects (Moderate). Price 1s. 6d. each net.

H. FARMER. Popular Violin Solos (Brilliant), with Piano Accompaniment. Nine Numbers. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 24, Berners-street, W.; and 123, Cheapside, E.C.

CHARLES HALLÉ'S PRACTICAL PIANOFORTE SCHOOL.
Section I.—No. 1, PIANOFORTE TUTOR.
Catalogue and all Particulars may be had from FORSYTH BROTHERS, 272a, Regent-circus, Oxford-street: Manchester, Cross-street and South King-street; and all Musicsellers.

HELLER'S TRANSCRIPTION for the PIANOFORTE of SCHUBERT'S SONGS.
WANDERING. THE BUTTERFLY. THE HURDY-GURDY PLAYER.
Performed by Mr. Charles Hallé.
Price 2s. each.
Sold at half price and postage free.
FORSYTH BROTHERS, 272a, Regent-circus, Oxford-street, London; and Cross-street, South King-street, Manchester.

JOHN BRINSMEAD and SONS' PATENT SOSTENENTE PIANOS have gained the highest awards at all the recent International Exhibitions, including the two First Prizes, Melbourne, 1881; the First Prize, Queensland, 1880; the two First Special Prizes, Sydney, 1880; the Legion of Honour, Paris, 1878, &c. For SALE, Hire, and on the Three-Years' System.—18-20, Wigmore-st., London W. Illustrated Lists free.
JOHN BRINSMEAD and SONS' PIANOS for SALE, Hire, and on the Three-Years' System.—18-20, Wigmore-street; and the Brinsmead Works, Grafton-road, N.W. Lists post-free.

NEW MUSIC.

THE BUGLER. In D, F, and G. By CIRO PINSUTI. Words by F. E. Weatherly.
This very successful song has now reached the Tenth Edition.

THE LINNET'S ANSWER. In E and G.
A charming tenor song by the same Composer.
Received with continuing favour.

THE CHALLENGE. For Bass and Baritone.
By HUMPHREY J. STARK. Words by E. Oxenford. A bold and vigorous composition, and received always by great applause and repeated encores.

WEIT VON DIR (Far from Thee). Waltz.
By OSCAR SEYDEL. "When she went back to the ball-room, Captain Winstanley followed her, and claimed his waltz. The band was just striking up the latest German melody, 'Weit von Dir,' a strain of drawing tenderness."—Vide Miss Braddon's "Vixen." Each of the above 2s. net.
B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster-row.

PLEYEL WOLFF and CO. Established 1807. Gold Medal, 1827, 1838, 1839, 1844, and 1878. Prize Medal, 1862. Medaille d'Honneur, 1855. Hors de Concours, 1869, 1867, 1878. The Sole Agents have every description of these admired PIANOS for SALE or HIRE. Special models in black wood.—170, New Bond-street, W.

"Steinway is to the Pianist what Straduarius is to the Violinist."—Herr Joachim.

THE STEINWAY PIANOFORTES,
GRAND AND UPRIGHT.
THE GREATEST PIANOFORTES IN THE WORLD.
The Steinway Pianofortes are the chosen instruments of the educated and wealthy classes in every nation throughout civilisation, and have by far the largest annual sale of any pianofortes in the world.

STEINWAY and SONS,
STEINWAY HALL,
LOWER SEYMOUR-STREET, PORTMAN-SQUARE, W.
(And at Steinway Hall, New York.)

PIANOFORTES for HIRE or for SALE, from 25 guineas upwards.—JOHN BROADWOOD and SONS, 33, Great Pulteney-street, Golden-square, W. Manufactory, 45, Horseferry-road, Westminster, S.W.

MUSICAL BOX DEPÔTS, 22, Ludgate-hill, & 56, Cheapside, London.—Nicole's celebrated Musical Boxes, playing best secular and sacred music. Prices £1 to £200. Small boxes from 18s. to 60s. Largest stock in London. Catalogue and Lists sent post-free. Apply to WALES & MCCULLOCH, as above.

FURNISH THROUGHOUT.
SUBSTANTIAL ARTISTIC FURNITURE (Regd.)
OETZMANN & CO.,
HAMPSTEAD-ROAD,
NEAR TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD.

FURNISH THROUGHOUT.—OETZMANN and CO., 67, 69, 71, 73, 77, and 79, HAMPSTEAD-ROAD, near Tottenham-court-road. CARPETS, Furniture, Bedding, Drapery, Furnishing Ironmongery, China, Glass, Paper Hangings, Pictures, Bronzes, Clocks, Pianos, &c., and every other requisite for completely furnishing a house throughout. Lowest prices consistent with guaranteed quality.—OETZMANN & CO.

GREAT REDUCTION IN PRICE OF CARPETS.—OETZMANN and CO. are now selling an immense Stock, bought under great depression of markets, all the newest and best designs, quality unsurpassed; prices will range considerably below those of the co-operative Stores. Comparison of price and quality respectfully solicited before ordering elsewhere. O. and CO. have Brussels at 1s. 11½d. per yard, usually advertised at 2s. 6d., but they advise the better qualities, which they are selling at from 2s. 6d. to 3s. 9d. per yard below value. PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS, CLUBS, SHIPPERS, HOTEL-KEEPERS, and large BUYERS will find great advantages in purchasing from this Stock. Estimates free on application. All Remnants are sold off daily from Eleven to One o'Clock at great reduction.—OETZMANN and CO.

"STANLEY" DINING-ROOM SUITE in Solid Carved Spanish Mahogany, upholstered in best Marone leather, comprising a noble Couch, two Easy-Chairs, and six Chairs, price 14 guineas. Quality guaranteed. A variety of other patterns on show, from 6 guineas to 50 guineas. Massive Mahogany Telescope Dining-Tables, 4 feet by 4 feet, patent metallic screw, 5 guineas.—OETZMANN and CO.

THE ABBOTSFORD TAPESTRY CURTAINS.—Artistic, Conventional Designs, with double borders and rich decorated ends in Black and Gold, Dull Red, Sage Green, and Peacock Blue in the dual shades of colour so much in vogue; very stout quality; pattern is reversible, requiring no lining; size, 3½ yards long by 54 in. wide, 37s. 6d. per pair.—OETZMANN and CO.

DRAPERY DEPARTMENT.—Large White Quilts, 2½ yards by 2 yards, 4s. 11d.; handsome Marsella ditto, 5s. 11d.; White Wool Blankets, from 6s. per pair (see Special Reduced List, sent post-free); Large Witney ditto, 2½ yards long, 3s. 11d. per pair; handsome Cloth Table-Covers, from 4s. 11d.; magnificent ditto, large size, 10s. 11d.; Good Chintzes, new patterns, 4½d. per yard; Cretonne ditto, from 6d. per yard.—OETZMANN and CO.

KITCHEN REQUISITES.—OETZMANN and CO.'S TEN-FOOT NO SET (List No. 24, page 24, in large "GUIDE TO HOUSE FURNISHING"), sent post-free on application includes Table, Chairs, Clock, &c., with the various Culinary Utensils and requisites, containing all the most useful articles required in every Kitchen each being of superior quality, and in the most practical selection extant. A writer upon domestic matters in "The Queen" Newspaper says of this set:—"Seems very complete and carefully selected with a view to utility and durability."—OETZMANN and CO.

"NEO-CLEOPATRA" TOILET-SERVICE (Registered). Messrs. OETZMANN and CO. S New Registered Shape and Designs, manufactured exclusively for them, and is of the most artistic design and decorations. Ewer, Basin, &c., complete from 9s. 6d. per set. Illustrated Price-Lists post-free.—OETZMANN and CO.

POSTAL ORDER DEPARTMENT. OETZMANN and CO.—Orders sent per post, whether large or small, receive prompt and careful attention. Those residing at a distance, or unable to whom a personal visit would be inconvenient, desirous of leaving the selection to the firm, may rely upon a faithful attention to their wishes and interests in the selection. This department is personally supervised by a member of the firm, and O. and CO. continually receive numerous letters expressing the greatest satisfaction with the execution of orders so entrusted. Persons residing in Foreign Countries and the Colonies will find great advantages by entrusting their orders to O. and CO. For further particulars please see page 370 in Catalogue, sent free on application.—OETZMANN and CO.

DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE, post-free.
OETZMANN & CO.,
HAMPSTEAD-ROAD.

HEAL and SON.
BED-ROOM FURNITURE.
DINING-ROOM FURNITURE.
DRAWING-ROOM FURNITURE.
HEAL and SON,

D. HULETT.—GASELIERS in CRYSTAL, GLASS and ORMOLU or BRONZE. Medieval Fittings. A large Stock always on View. Every article marked with plain figures.—Manufactory, 55 and 56, High Holborn.

LONDON: Printed and Published at the Office, 198, Strand, in the Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middlesex, by GEORGE C. LEIGHTON, 198, Strand, aforesaid.—SATURDAY, APRIL 9, 1881.

HERALDS OF SPRING.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

HERALDS OF SPRING.

Once more the season has come round when, in the midst of the busy, toiling city, comes a cry that carries us away from brick and mortar, dust and smoke, to quiet country lanes, and purling streams, and banks "whereon the wild thyme blows." London cries, as a rule, are not much like angel voices, and are scarcely such as to lull one back into dreams of innocence and childhood; yet who has not been refreshed, while passing through the busy streets, with hearing the simple words, "Violets, sweet violets!" and "Primroses, fresh gathered!"

We suppose there are some, though we can hardly believe it, of whom it might be said—

> A primrose by a river's brim
> A yellow primrose was to him,
> And it was nothing more.

But, surely, there can be very few among us to whom this darling of the spring is nothing more than a common little yellow wilding. Who for a moment stops to compare its pale loveliness with the blushing splendour of, say, a summer rose, or the faint perfume of the one with the voluptuous fragrance of the other? 'Tis not for its beauty, though it is fair enough, nor for its perfume, though it is sweet enough, that we so dearly love our primrose. 'Tis because of its being one of the "earliest nurslings of the spring," and because around it cling a hundred tender associations born of love and hope, and of childhood's far-off days. It is pre-eminently the flower of spring. The gentle snowdrop, that braved the sleet and cold of February, was a harbinger of the joyous season, but died, alas, before spring had really come to stay with us. And the nodding daffodils, which met with proud defiance the north-east blasts of early March, are already beginning to wither. The crocuses, too, are drooping, and all the curly bulbs of our gardens. Very sweet and dear to us are those earliest blossoms of the infant year; but we look upon them rather as brave-hearted Heralds of the Spring, than associate them with the fresh young Spring herself.

On the more sheltered of our mossy banks primroses and sweet violets have been blooming sparingly for some weeks past; but it is now, when March is just over, when "the tyrannous breathing of the north"—which, as Shakspeare touchingly tells us, "checks all our buds from blowing"—is nearly spent, and when coquettish April, with her smiles and tears, has come, that the primroses burst forth in all their fresh loveliness. Wherever the soil is congenial, we find the sweet pale things in rich profusion; in the shade of groves, whose bu[illegible]ng trees are all but bursting into leaf; on sloping mossy ba[illegible]s; under the hawthorn hedges, which are now fast becoming tinged with green; on the moist margin of the bubbling brook and winding river; in field and wood, and by the lane-side. There is a peculiar charm in coming upon one solitary little tuft of primroses, all by itself; but so delicate is the perfume of the sulphur-hued blossoms, it almost escapes us where there is only a single tuft. In those more favoured spots, however, where primroses carpet the sloping banks as thickly as buttercups in June, where else in Nature's vast domain shall we find the air laden with more delicious fragrance? How prettily, too, the pale petals of the primrose contrast with the beautifully cut leaves, which in the balmy spring mornings, when the dew is still fresh upon them, seem to have been embossed afresh in the night-time by some of the merry little sprites of Mab and Oberon.

THE TRANSVAAL WAR.

Our further Illustrations of the recent campaign on the border of the Transvaal, in the northernmost part of Natal, are chiefly supplied by the sketches of Mr. Melton Prior, our Special Artist; but we present another sketch by Captain Ernest Thurlow, of the 60th Rifles, third battalion, who accompanied the Natal Field Force in the advance of Sir George Colley's troops from Newcastle to Mount Prospect, when preparing for renewed operations against the Boers' position at Laing's Neck. Captain Thurlow furnished us with the distant view of Laing's Neck, and of the scene of the unsuccessful British attack on Jan. 28, which appeared in our last week's paper, and which he sketched from the camp at Mount Prospect, three miles and a half south of Laing's Neck.

The sketch by our own Special Artist, engraved for this Number of the Illustrated London News, is that of a view from the heliograph station on the hill above Fort Amiel, at Newcastle, looking northward to the advanced camp at Mount Prospect, four miles beyond the Ingogo river and the hill called Schain's Hoogte, where the second fight of the late campaign, on Feb. 8, was fought by Sir George Colley with a view to clear the road behind him, and to protect his communications with Newcastle.

It will be remembered that, about that time, the Boers were supposed to be threatening Newcastle, and some parties of them had been seen, it was said, far to the south of that town, in the neighbourhood of the Biggarsberg range of hills, which is crossed by the road from Ladysmith to Newcastle, half way between these two places, and twenty miles from either town. The 97th Regiment, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel C. H. Browne, was therefore charged with the defence of the Neck or Pass over the Biggarsberg. One of our Special Artist's Sketches represents the head-quarters of the regiment at this place, with the earthworks and shelter trenches they constructed to fortify the position, and with a waggon convoy, under escort, passing on the road to Newcastle.

The remaining Sketch, by Captain E. Thurlow, shows an incident of the march up, from Pietermaritzburg to Newcastle, on Jan. 16, in crossing the Incangua river, near the last-named place. This river, like many others on the high roads of South Africa, is yet unbridged, and is usually crossed by a ford, or "drift," as they call it in that country. But after heavy rain, as it then rises very quickly, a "pont" is used, with ropes pulled by men over the water, to convey waggons, horses, and passengers to the opposite bank. Upon this occasion, it seems, a chain broke and the pont was upset, with a laden waggon upon it, which was thrown into the river. A great part of the contents of the waggon, bags and bundles, could be saved by the men, some of whom swam out for that purpose. Such rough experiences are common enough in ordinary South African travelling.

An "Eye-witness," writing to one of the Capetown papers, gives the following details of the fight on the Ingogo, otherwise called that of Schain's Hoogte:—"On Tuesday morning, the 8th, General Colley moved out from the camp with five companies of the 60th Rifles, numbering 500 men, two field and two mountain guns, and a detachment of mounted men patrol led the road. To cover the passage over the River Ingogo a company of the 60th, with two mountain guns, was left on a commanding height; the rest of the column crossed the river and passed on to a ridge of hills, from which a large body of the enemy were then seen, about 400 yards off. The 60th Rifles extended in skirmishing order, and took up position along the ridge, whilst the main body made for and obtained position of a plateau, about four acres of flat land. In the meantime the Boers, numbering about one hundred horsemen, extended along a ridge rather lower than that taken up by the British. The nine-pounder field-pieces opened fire, but were not of much use, the elevation being too high, but the fire had the effect of causing the Boers at once to relinquish their position and rush to the nearest dongas for shelter. The Rifles then opened fire, and the nine-pounders still continued in action. The Boers having gained the shelter of the dongas, replied with a heavy fusillade, directing the principal part of their fire upon the artillerymen, and both horses and men began to fall rapidly. Captain Grier was killed early in the action, and Lieutenant Parsons, who thereupon took charge of the guns, behaved with the greatest coolness. At first the Boers had only attacked from three sides, but about two hours after the commencement of the fight they gradually got to the remaining side and kept up a dropping fire. The General and his staff were in the middle of the hill, where few shots reached. The Boers kept up a hot fire during the afternoon, receiving reinforcements from time to time, while our men looked in vain for the remainder of their men, with the two seven-pounder, to come to their assistance. The artillery, being stationed within 500 yards of the Boer position, suffered severely. Men dropped very fast, although the limber and dead horses were taken advantage for the cover they afforded. At four o'clock in the afternoon a heavy thunderstorm came on The sufferings of the wounded, who were lying out in the open and were sadly in want of water, were very great. From four to six o'clock the Boers kept up a telling fire, insomuch that it was dangerous to show above ground, and men were shot in a recumbent position. Lieutenant Parsons was wounded whilst walking towards the guns for the purpose of giving an order, and the 60th Rifles were obliged to supply the place of gunners as man after man was hit. For six hours this kind of warfare was carried on, the British troops having no chance against the Boers in the way of shooting, the aim of the latter being particularly deadly. Darkness was now coming on, and as the ammunition of the British was running short, whilst the Boers were constantly receiving supplies from their camp, it was determined to retreat. At nine p.m. the retreat was commenced, and a terrible time it seems to have been. Seven of the 60th Rifles are reported to have been drowned in recrossing the Ingogo, and the survivors did not reach camp until seven o'clock on the following morning. About fifty wounded were brought in; but three times that number were left upon the field, and as soon as possible assistance was sent forward under a flag of truce. The British troops are reported to have behaved with great gallantry; but they were too few in number to do anything more than hold their own, whilst their fire was never at any moment so effective as that of the enemy. It is estimated that about 1000 Boers were engaged."

We have little authentic news from the Transvaal, since the Boers dispersed at Laing's Neck and returned to their homes. The British soldiers who were prisoners of war have, of course, been released and come down to Natal; they state that they were kindly treated. Sir Evelyn Wood has gone up to Pretoria, where he will be joined by the two other Commissioners, Sir Hercules Robinson and Sir Henry de Villiers, to settle the affairs of the Transvaal. The Cape Legislative Assembly and Legislative Council have adopted an address of thanks to her Majesty for making peace with the Transvaal.

THE MAGAZINES FOR APRIL.

"A Grape from a Thorn" continues to be the leading feature of the Cornhill, and is indeed a singularly graceful specimen of comedy in the form which comedy most affects in this age—the novel. The artist and author friends, the young lady whose charms seem likely to turn their friendship into rivalry, and the polished, worldly, but really affectionate father, are all typical figures of genteel comedy. There is comedy, too, in "Love the Debt;" but the mixture of insolence and cowardice displayed by provincial magnates in electioneering matters is less agreeable than humorous. "A Poaching Adventure" is a well-told anecdote; there is picturesqueness in Mr. Symonds's sketches of winter life at Davos, and dignity in Mr. Gosse's "Timasitheos," though we do not understand his accentuation of Greek proper names. A paper on the forthcoming Census contains much seasonable information respecting the method of carrying it out—down to the difficulties likely to be experienced in enumerating such persons as usually reside in the open air, "and own dogs of much fierceness." Mr. A. C. Ewald effectually explodes all the stories respecting the jeunesse orageuse of Henry V., and seems to consider that he has rendered his memory a great service thereby. We always thought melius sic pœnituisse quam non errasse.

Macmillan has but one contribution likely to attract a wide interest—Mrs. Oliphant's recollections of Carlyle, with special reference to his own reminiscences. Mrs. Oliphant's recollections principally turn upon Mrs. Carlyle, and she is evidently rather amused and not a little taken aback by the ideal aspect in which she presented herself to her husband. We have no doubt that Mrs. Oliphant saw all of Mrs. Carlyle that an observant woman could see; but a certain lack of finer insight is apparent throughout her paper, and makes us suspect that much was hidden from her. Professor Gardner's Disney Lectures at Cambridge is a fine exposition of the service which archæology can render to history. Mrs. Macdonnell tells the story of Lucretia Mott, one of the noblest of American female philanthropists; Mrs. Julian Marshall describes the operations of the People's Concert Society; and Mr. Odell offers a useful view of the present condition of the Free Libraries question.

Miss Helen Zimmern has found an attractive subject for Fraser in "Jewish Home Life," as illustrated in the fictions of Leopold Kompert. Kompert, a writer hitherto unknown in this country, appears to have displayed singular ability in grasping the various picturesque situations arising out of the peculiarities of the Jewish religion, or the relation of the Jews to their Christian neighbours, and working these up into stories which Miss Zimmern's lucid analysis satisfactorily prove to be of the highest merit. The paper is, moreover, most seasonable at the present revival of anti-Jewish intolerance. Mr. Lang's essay on Carlyle's Reminiscences deserves the palm among all which that publication has hitherto called forth. It neither strikes out novelties nor acts old truths in a new light, but is a model of sense, kindliness, and justice. An official of the Indian uncovenanted service points out its grievances in a very temperate spirit, and offers several suggestions tending towards a reduction of the expense of administration in India. The monthly review of the political situation is chiefly remarkable for the statement that Mr. Gladstone's sympathies are with the more Conservative portion of his Cabinet.

Blackwood has several fair papers, but "The Private Secretary" continues the pièce de résistance, bright in style, lifelike in its portraits of character, and with enough of varied incident to keep the attention continually on the stretch. "Round Delia's Basket" is a pretty little comedy, not without a touch of pathetic interest. Vallombrosa is the subject of a fine sketch by W. W. Story, steeped in Italian colour and sunshine. General Shadwell's life of Lord Clyde is impartially reviewed, with a full recognition of the superior judgment of Lord Canning. "Old Scottish Society," "Lighter Spanish Poetry," and "Freaks of the Telegraph" are all agreeable and entertaining contributions.

The leading article of the Nineteenth Century is one of great pith and moment, upon "The Military Impotence of Great Britain," by Captain Kirchhammer, of the Austrian general staff. Captain Kirchhammer tells us nothing that is not already well known to well-informed and reflecting persons, but his essay may be of much service in driving the mortifying truth home to the perception of persons who are neither. At the same time, the scope of his article being purely military, he omits the political and financial considerations which would make the strongest Continental Powers think twice before they quarrelled with England. Mr. Burt gives what is no doubt a very fair explanation of the general indifference of English working men to the Irish Land League agitation; and Mr. Matthew Arnold proposes two remedies for the present discontent, the expropriation of bad landlords and the endowment of the Roman Catholic Church. He does not sufficiently consider that the agitation is directed not against particular landlords, but against property in land altogether, and that the acceptance of a State provision is more likely to destroy than to confirm what remains of the Roman Church's influence over the Irish people. Lord Blandford, in a vigorous paper, assails feudal institutions altogether; and Lord Sherbrooke, condemning the recent resort to "urgency" in the Commons, advocates the clôture by a simple majority. Mr. Lionel Tenn[illegible]n's article on the Persian Passion Play and Mr. Wedmore's account of Jacquemart are agreeable contributions to the æsthetic department of the periodical; and M. Janet's critique of Diderot is an almost unique example of a contribution to an English review being written in French.

Perhaps the most important among the varied contributions to the Contemporary Review is Mr. Blackley's damaging critique on Prince Bismarck's scheme of compulsory insurance. Mr. Blackley is himself well known as the advocate of a measure which might pass under the same designation, but with the all-important distinction that, while Mr. Blackley wishes to compel the working classes to insure themselves, Prince Bismarck would enact that they should be insured by others. The English critic shows clearly that, apart from its demoralising effect, this would produce a general fall in wages. Mr. Muskett gives a favourable account of "The Boers at Home," but predicts that the concession of their independence will lead to a general unsettlement of the Dutch colonists throughout South Africa. Oscar Meding, better known under his pseudonym of Samarow, contributes an interesting sketch of the late deposed King of Hanover, of some of his Ministers, and of the Hanoverian Government's relations with the German press. They have not as yet gone far enough to show what induced the King to commit the irretrievable mistake of siding with Austria. Mr. R. S. Poole treats the gradual elevation of woman among the Hebrews as a clue to the order and date of the Old Testament Scriptures. Mr. Heath's memoir of Edgar Quinet is too uniformly eulogistic, but is useful as introducing a distinguished and little-known writer to the English public. "A Study of Carlyle" is very well written, but merely repeats what students of Carlyle have generally said.

The same remark is applicable to Mr. J. C. Morison's review of Carlyle's Reminiscences in the Fortnightly, which is, however, redeemed from mediocrity by its peculiar depth and earnestness of feeling. Dr. Hueffer's essay on the modern Italian poets deals principally with the new realistic school, which has rather an unpleasant smack of M. Zola, but whose chief, Cardoni, appears capable of imparting a really classical stamp and polish to his verses. Mr. Morley's article on Ireland is less striking than might have been expected; but Mr. Courtney supplies some curious and suggestive statistics of the cost of the late General Election. The most remarkable paper in the number, however, is Sir John Lubbock's on Fruits and Seeds, popular in style, but most philosophical in substance, and, a novelty in the Fortnightly, illustrated with excellent cuts.

The American magazines are, as usual, exceedingly good. The literary standard of the Atlantic Monthly continues of a very high order, though there is no contribution so remarkable as the exposure of the mineral oil monopoly in the last number. Mrs. Moulton's sonnets are particularly beautiful. Scribner's and Harper's, relying rather upon their illustrations, have, nevertheless, much matter of excellent literary quality. In the former we notice especially two charming and exquisitely illustrated articles on the applicability of marine forms to decoration and on the Panegro terra-cottas, besides an interesting account of Father Hyacinthe. Harper has equally excellent papers on "Salisbury Cathedral," "The Green Mountains in Summer Time," and "Milwaukee." This capital of Wisconsin is undoubtedly a very fine city, and it is pleasant to learn that one great cause of its prosperity is its reputation for honesty.

Mr. Justin McCarthy's "Comet of a Season" is the chief attraction in the Gentleman's Magazine, which also contains its usual share of bright gossipping papers; and one, Mew's essay on the interludes of Cervantes, which manifests considerable research. Belgravia, besides its serial stories, has one of Mr. Cobban's quaint and original tales. The Rev. James Christison's Adventure. "The Æsthetics in Parliament" is an amusing double-barrelled shot at "æsthetes" and the "Fourth Party," but is certainly overcharged. There is an interesting sketch of Mrs. Elizabeth Montagu, and Miss Hardy contributes a bright picture of "April Days in Colorado." There is nothing worthy of note in Time, except the ever fresh "Sophy." Temple Bar's serials, "Kith and Kin" and "The Freres," continue to rank among the best of current magazine fictions; and there are good papers on "Haroun Alraschid" and "Thackeray as a Poet." The most prominent feature in London Society, after the continuation of Mrs. Riddell's "Senior Partner," is a highly exciting story entitled "A Night Among the Nihilists." There are, however, other contributions of merit on subjects which have of late attracted more or less of public attention, such as "The Man of Ross," Berlioz, and the London Hospitals. The Argosy, St. Nicholas, and The Theatre maintain their accustomed standard of merit.

From Messrs. Cassell, Petter, and Galpin we have received the first part of an important work, Picturesque America (already noticed), a fit companion to their admirable Picturesque Europe; also Illustrated British Ballads, Magazine of Art, Family Magazine, Old and New London, Old and New Edinburgh, Technical Educator, Longfellow's Poetical Works, Science for All, Familiar Wild Flowers, an Illustrated Book of the Dog, the Royal Shakspere, and Cassell's Cookery.

The Fashion Books include Le Follet, the World of Fashion, Ladies' Gazette of Fashion, Myra's Journal, Myra's Mid-Monthly, Weldon's Ladies' Journal, and Household Journal.

Among the other magazines and serial publications received are the Art-Journal, Home (with a pathetically-tender article to the memory of Joseph Hadley Riddell), Good Words, Leisure Hour (containing a duet for female voices by A. Sullivan, words by Tennyson), Welcome, Month, Catholic Review.

Universal Instructor, Tinsley's, St. James's, Churchman, first part of Celebrities of the Day, Burlington, Portfolio, Men of Mark, St. James's, Churchman's Shilling Magazine, North American Review, Calcutta Magazine (for March), first part of Dictionary of Needlework, Antiquary, Science Gossip, Modern Thought, and Monthly Parts of All the Year Round, Social Notes, Sunday at Home, Sunday Magazine, Gardeners' Magazine, Gardening Illustrated, Day of Rest, Boy's Own Paper, Girl's Own Paper, Young England, and Union Jack.

FINE ARTS.

SOCIETY OF PAINTER-ETCHERS.

The greatly increased cultivation of etching in this country in recent years—due largely to the precept and example of Mr. Hamerton and Mr. Seymour Haden—has at length led to the formation of an exhibiting society that has opened its first display at the Hanover Gallery. The title, however, of "Painter-Etchers" which the society has adopted is, perhaps, a little illiberal, seeing that it implies a distinction that must exclude many celebrated etchers. The "painter-etcher" is one whose work is entirely autographic—that is to say, who, either being a painter or in the manner of a painter, produces his own conceptions or representations direct from nature, and does not copy or translate the works of other artists. The distinction is no doubt valid, but with important reservations. Setting aside original imaginative inventions (of which there are few nowadays in any branch of art) the same faculties, or nearly so, are employed in copying or translating a picture or other work of art into black and white, as in copying or translating nature. And, in point of fact, there are many etchings from works of art infinitely more artistic than many etchings from nature. A distinction that virtually depreciates and practically rejects from an exhibition of etchings reproductions such as those by Jacquemart, Bracquemond, Rajon, Flameng, Waltner, and many others, seems to be somewhat pretentious and ill-advised. The term came from France, but its legitimate meaning and scope have been much exaggerated by those who seek to give to etching itself a much higher importance than its very limited resources (compared with other branches of art) warrant. The same narrow perfervid admiration of the art has led to the placing of an absurd value on the accidental strokes and blots of the amateur, and the baldest hieroglyphics of the more expert, on the ground of their supposed "suggestiveness;" while the most pregnant and perfect work of the master has been voted wanting in artistic impulse and spontaneity. Depend upon it, however, that in a great majority of cases the suggestiveness of a work of art depends rather on the degree of knowledge, memory, and sympathetic insight that the spectator brings to it, rather than on latent meanings only half articulated by the artist. A person ignorant of art may derive a more vivid impression of reality from a child's caricature on a wall, than from an etching by Rembrandt himself—who, by-the-way, was always definite and accurate and complete in the essential details.

The council of the new society is announced as "Provisional"—which explains, we presume, the absence of some well-known names, even among the painter-etchers. However, the present council includes Messrs. Hamerton, Seymour Haden, Ernest George, Heywood Hardy, J. C. Hook, Colin Hunter, Professor Legros, R. W. Macbeth, J. Tissot, and other distinguished etchers, several of whom, however, do not exhibit, or only send one or two works—probably owing to the hurried formation of the society. For the same reason, doubtless, a considerable number of the works are not new to the public. But it is announced that in future exhibitions the works must not have been previously exhibited or published. The artists of the Council whose names we have given are well represented (with the exception of Mr. Hamerton, who is absent), but we may assume that their styles are too familiar to require minute discrimination. We may observe in passing that it is interesting to note how differently sometimes a given artist's temperament manifests itself in etching and painting. Mr. Hook, for instance, is far more careful, not to say laboured, than might be expected; while Mr. Colin Hunter is even more vigorous, graphic, and to us more fully descriptive in etching, than when he relies upon the artifices to which he resorts in oil. Other English or naturalised artists who take a prominent position are Messrs. Herkomer, Batley (designs for decoration), C. O. Murray, Otto Weber, R. S. Chattock, C. W. Cope, T. I. Dalgleish, C. J. Watson, D. Law, J. C. Hodgson, the brothers Slocombe, W. Burgess, J. H. Bradley, T. Ellis, C. W. Sherborne, H. Helmick, A. H. Haig, C. W. Mansel Lewis, G. P. Jacomb Hood, J. Mac Whirter, &c. Mr. Alma Tadema sends an etching of early date we suppose; and by Mr. G. F. Watts there is a small portrait of Mr. Legros, which may be commended to those others who seem to imagine that the art is an affair of haphazard, fortuitous scribbling. There is also a large contingent of etchings by American artists—many of them of much merit. Lastly, the works by foreign artists are numerous, and generally excellent; indeed, they force the conclusion upon us that, despite recent progress, our school is still far behindhand in the draughtsmanship that forms the only basis for good etching. We have space only to refer to the productions of Messrs. O. Bacher, F. Duvaneck, L. Richeton, L. L'Hermite, A. Ballin, P. Renouard, J. L. Meissonier, F. Buhot, A. Lançon, C. S. de Gravesande, M. L. Menpes, &c.

SOCIETY OF BRITISH ARTISTS.

The exhibition at Suffolk-street continues the improvement perceptible in the recent displays of this society; and in the hanging of the pictures we do not observe such flagrant instances of disregard of relative merit as on some former occasions. By a more liberal admission of new members, the exhibitions gain both in merit and variety; new tendencies among our younger painters are now as fully illustrated as at the Dudley Gallery, and once more this society is becoming a useful auxiliary to, and feeder of, the Royal Academy. In saying thus much we would not be understood to depreciate the members of longer standing. These favourites of the middle-class amateurs have done good service, if only in pointing the way to new efforts, and other and higher aims. It is, however, not necessary for us at each new show in these rooms to discuss styles or manners that are familiar to every frequenter of the gallery. We all know, for instance, what to expect from Mr. G. Cole, still an able landscape-painter (who sends a large single picture, No. 118); or from Mr. Peel (who is best represented in No. 554); or from Mr. Cobbett, with his picturesque groups of rustic lasses set in appropriate backgrounds; or from the brothers Holmes, with their child subjects and similar surroundings—Mr. George Holmes having, however, a rather stronger picture than usual, showing a girl laden with a couple of fox-hound pups (164); or from Mr. Woolmer, with his fantastic world of all jewelled colours peopled by nymphs, or what not, yet who has a very rare decorative gift; or from Messrs. Ludovici, who, if they draw from fancy as well as nature, have an artistic feeling for colour; or from Mr. Hayllar, with his jovial farmers and large-eyed beauties; or from Messrs. Patten, Wyburd, J. Morgan—who, by-the-way, has betaken himself to the fields, without, we are bound to say, a very happy result; and the younger members, W. L. Wyllie, and G. S. Walters. There are little pictures, too, of more than ordinary prettiness by Messrs. Haynes King, T. Roberts, and Mann, the characteristics of which will likewise suggest themselves.

But whatever indulgence may be due to some of these painters it is clear that the conventionality chargeable to several of them has not yet shown itself in most of the more recently elected members of their body. These have gone directly to nature, and if they only give us simple transcripts, those transcripts have the charm of freshness and fidelity. Take, for example, Mr. Stuart Lloyd's pleasant outlook over the sea, from a bank of flowers and weeds, "where once a garden grew" (136); or Mr. Yeend King's powerfully coloured view of a stream in a wood (181); or Mr. W. H. Bartlett's scene on the West Coast of Ireland (169), which is very noticeable for its truth and daylight effect. And with these may be associated the landscapes of F. Hines, Sir Robert Collier—"Last Sunrays, Rosenlaui" (295), T. F. Goodall, A. F. Grace, A. de Breanski, and L. Rivers. The landscape by the last (a name new to us), called "Where Gipsies Congregate" (444), representing a level heath with a narrow band of clouds along the horizon, lit by the sunken sun, is remarkable for breadth, and it seems to us a work of great promise. Mr. H. H. Canty's contributions are also fresh and vigorous, and he is equally at home in figures and landscape. His "Whither?" (173)—a little girl gazing seaward from the steps of a jetty, is, besides, pleasant in idea. A higher indefinable sentiment with chastened colour distinguish Mr. J. E. Grace's landscape, No. 43. But for beauty of colour there is little here to compare with a small landscape with figures (43), by W. E. Symonds.

Another important new element is brought into the society by painters of the Scotch school. We had not seen anything by Mr. J. Burr so refined as "A Fisher Lass" (67), or so brilliant as "The Pride of the Ballet" (84). It is, however, the Scotch landscape-painters, J. R. Reid and J. White, who seem to have had more influence with their studies of "bits" of landscape, often under exceptional effects. We may quote as a typical example the small picture called "Strayed" (248), by Mr. Reid, showing a girl looking at a friendless dog on a road wet with recent rain, the sky being a mass of dark grey cloud, except where it lifts along the horizon, disclosing a band of gold and orange. This is an effect a French impressioniste might essay, and if he realised it with the same summary truth he would hardly obtain the same solidity and force. Such force, however, is attained by sacrificing tenderness, subtlety, and realisation of detail. Mr. Edwin Ellis might belong to the same school. He has undoubtedly a natural gift in landscape, but his pigments are still more loaded to give brilliancy of lighting, and he forces his colouring, particularly the crude greens and blues, far beyond the modesty of nature. A. E. Emslie and W. C. Estall, and other exhibitors, appear to be taking the same direction, though their works are not yet so exaggerated. "The Village Bridge" (239), by Mr. Macnab, has much merit, though it has little of the characteristics of the Scotch school.

J. S. Noble's "Waiting and Watching" (195), a hay-cart with two collies, and "Return from Sport" (13), are, as usual, sound and unassuming pieces of work. "On the Moor" (426), by H. Moore, a dreary scene with highland cattle, is unwontedly heavy in effect for this artist; H. Calleri distinguishes himself as an artistic colourist in "Isabella" (185), with her pot of basil; and in a landscape; Mr. Dendy Sadler, whose angling picture, "Great Expectations," we recently engraved, has another humorous illustration of the "gentle art" (12), in which he shows us a number of Franciscan monks leading a brother Dominican, on a visit, to a fishing rendezvous. We have also to mention with commendation W. Hughes's "Summer Fruits" (19), a capitally painted group of strawberries, white currants, &c.; an artistic little picture (289) by L. P. Smythe; T. Sydney Muschamp's "The Fool and Maria," from "Twelfth Night" (541); "The Loving Cup" (202), by J. Savile Lumley; two sea-pieces by J. Frazer; a "View in Sussex" (269), by C. Gibbs, which won the Turner medal at the Academy the year before last; J. D. Watson's "A Moonlight Walk" (428), which is either the picture exhibited at Burlington House last year or a replica; F. W. Meyer's "By Moonlight" (433), which also has a pair of lovers; P. Pavey's "Nubian Orange-seller" (484); and P. H. Millar's portrait head called "Violets" (149).

DECORATIVE ART EXHIBITION.

The distinction—of modern date—between Fine and Decorative Art is, if understood as depreciatory of the latter, futile or erroneous from many points of view. The highest art must, as the humblest may, be decorative. Fine Art at its best is decorative; decoration in its very nature is art—which can hardly be said of many pictures claiming to be fine-art. Decorative art concerns itself primarily with colours and forms, so as to convey pleasure to the eye—without which there can be no art. In painting, it usually frankly acknowledges the surface on which it is employed, and does not pretend to be a hole in it; nor in its other applications does it affect to be anything different from what it is. And, surely, this is a true if not the entire function of art. Art has its own language, or vehicle of expression, complete in itself, without borrowing incident or story, or even a definite individual scene or subject from life, literature, or nature. It may employ these as media, and superadd poetry and imagination; but, we repeat, these are not essential; indeed, they are often inappropriate or impossible if we would bring art into our homes, and have its charms in all our daily surroundings. The old masters knew nothing of the distinction to which we refer, and they never seemed to have dreamt that any application of art was beneath them. The anomaly of the distinction is obvious when we reflect that, while decorative art embraces the simplest operations of the art-workman, it is also understood to include the noblest works of Michael Angelo, Raphael, Tintoretto, and Rubens. However, since the distinction exists, the best plan—if we would have art outside so many frames of the same pattern—is to acknowledge the artistic claims of all forms of decoration, and to show the connection of the lowest with the highest.

This is precisely what seems to be proposed in the Decorative Art Exhibition, to be opened this season in Bond-street. The principles of decoration and design—i.e., of art, are to be shown in examples ranging from mural painting and sculpture through all the varied applications of decoration and ornamentation to every kind of material, surface, or object. The idea is a new one, and deserves the success which we are informed is already assured to it by the support the exhibition is receiving. The moment is favourable to the project, and it is started under other favourable conditions. The galleries and rooms in Bond-street are spacious, measuring 260 feet in length. The list of "patrons," which is headed by Princess Louise, Marchioness of Lorne, includes a large number of noblemen and gentlemen, many of them noted for their encouragement of the decorative arts, or as authorities thereon. The committee consists of artists, writers on art, and other connoisseurs. The director, Mr. T. J. Gullick (who will furnish further information to intending exhibitors), has been connected with several exhibitions.

---

A series of three large pictures by Madame Courtauld Arendrup are on view at Messrs. Dowdeswell's, 133, New Bond-street. The intention of all three pictures is to enforce "Christ's Appeal," by presenting our Lord in the Agony in the Garden; on the Cross; and in His glorified Person presenting His wounded hands in an attitude of loving invitation. Texts from the Bible and the Apocrypha are given as mottoes for the picture. The profound religious feeling that distinguished former pictures by this lady which we have noticed at the Royal Academy is still more intense here, but the large scale of the works has proved rather too severe a test of the artist's powers—considerable as these certainly are. However, both the subjects and scale of treatment could be better appreciated in a church than in a small room.

A collection of South African sketches by Miss Catharine Frere (daughter of Sir Bartle Frere), forming an interesting little exhibition, is now visible at the Librairie de l'Art, 134, New Bond-street; the proceeds will be devoted to the South African Colonial Relief Fund. The sketches, several of which are lent by various owners, among whom is the Queen, comprise scenery, some of the more characteristic inhabitants, portraits, many illustrations of the brilliant and varied flora of South Africa, &c. In artistic merit they are much above the ordinary level of amateur work—as we need hardly say, for to a portion of them that was in the Paris International Exhibition of 1878 was awarded a bronze medal.

Lord Rosebery will open an exhibition in the Whitechapel Schools on the 14th inst. Pictures by Sir F. Leighton, Messrs. Watts, Burne Jones, Walter Crane, and other well-known artists, embroidery and pottery from some of the best private collections, and several cases from South Kensington Museum have been put at the disposal of the committee.

Much interest is felt in artistic circles concerning the associate who will be elected to fill the place of the deceased Royal Academician, Mr. J. P. Knight, among the forty.

The proposition to erect a statue on Chelsea Embankment and to place a bust in Westminster Abbey to the memory of the late Thomas Carlyle has met with ready support amongst his friends and admirers, and an influential committee has been formed for its promotion.

At the Oxfordshire Quarter Sessions on Monday a portrait of the late chairman, Mr. Hugh Hamersley, was presented to the county. It will be hung in the grand jury room, in company with those of the Hon. J. W. Henley and Mr. W. H. Ashurst, both of whom were members for the county, and filled the office of Chairman of Quarter Sessions.

Princess Mary Adelaide, attended by the Hon. Mary Thesiger and accompanied by Princess Victoria Mary of Teck, has visited the exhibition of ancient needlework being held at the Royal School of Art-Needlework, Exhibition-road. Owing to the interest taken in the exhibition by the public, the committee have determined to allow it to remain open over the Easter holidays.

At a meeting in Glasgow of the subscribers to the memorial to the late Dr. Norman McLeod, the secretary reported that £1400 had been received, and that the committee had now decided to erect upon a pedestal in Cathedral-square, near the Barony Church, a bronze statue of Dr. McLeod.

At Messrs. Robinson and Fisher's rooms, Old Bond-street, last week, a collection of high-class modern pictures was disposed of.

An attractive sale of prints, embracing choice and rare examples of Bartolozzi and his school, formed by Mr. Tuer to assist him in his book on "Bartolozzi and his Works," and fine mezzotints, principally fancy subjects, will take place at Christie's on the 12th inst.

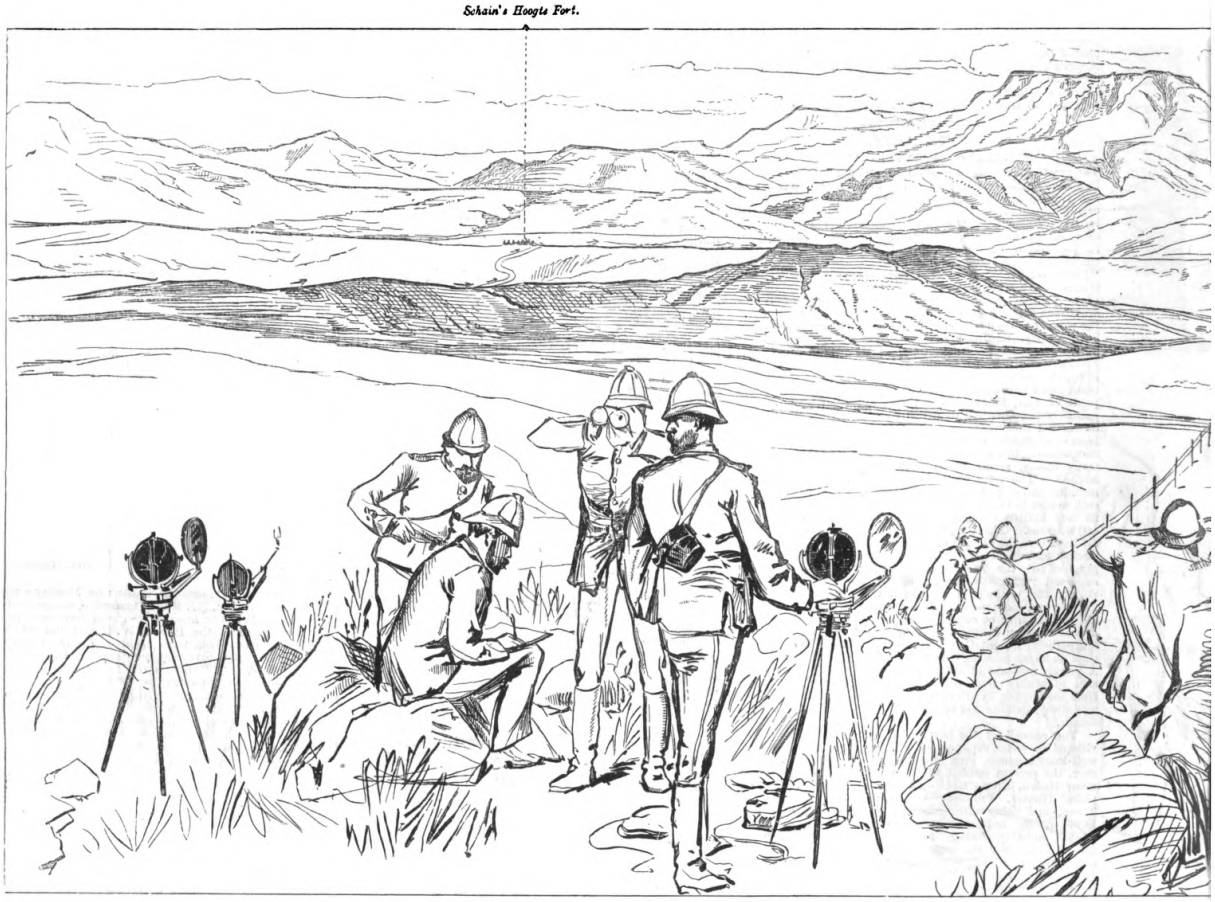
Messrs. Christie, Manson, and Woods have for sale during the present week the striking collection of pictures, water-colour drawings, and sculpture which belonged to the late Mr. H. S. Bicknell, of Cavendish House, Clapham-common. The collection includes more than two hundred original paintings by David Roberts, all of which came direct from his studio, many of them being presented by the artist to his daughter, the late Mrs. Bickuell.

---

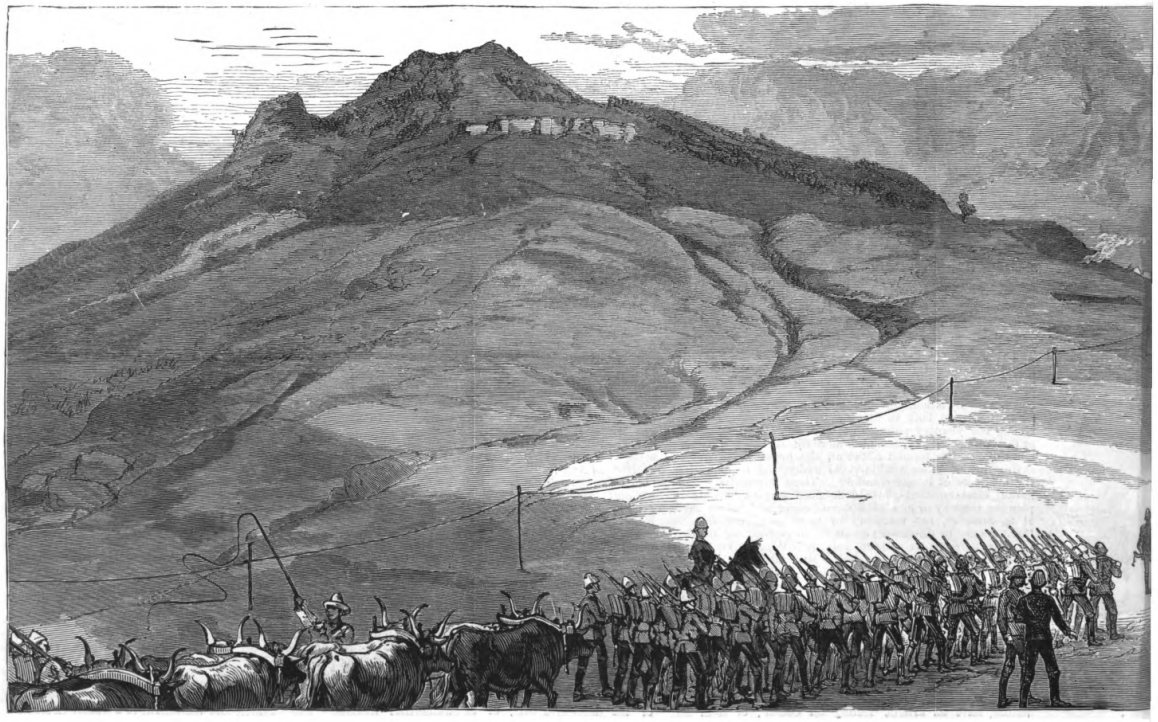
The season of the Royal Botanic Society was inaugurated on Wednesday last week at the gardens in Regent's Park by an exhibition of spring flowers, and, although the east wind somewhat tried the endurance of visitors, the sunshine and flowers attracted an unusually large company. Princess Mary Adelaide and daughter visited the exhibition at an early hour. Her Royal Highness spent much time in the examination of the collections exhibited for prizes, especially admiring the groups of roses, cyclamens, and amaryllis. In addition to the prizes offered in the schedule, special medals were awarded for miscellaneous collections, many of which were very extensive—the hyacinths of Messrs Veitch and the cyclamens of Messrs. Smith forming grand banks of colour and numbering many hundreds of plants.

The death of Sir Charles Reed was the principal subject discussed at the meeting of the London School Board on Thursday week. Mr. Edward Buxton, the vice-chairman, moved a resolution placing on record the profound sorrow and regret of the members, and the sense of the loss they had sustained through the death of their chairman. The proposition was seconded by Mr. Freeman; and, after several members had expressed how deeply they felt the death of Sir Charles Reed, and how greatly they sympathised with Lady Reed and her family, it was agreed to unanimously. It was further resolved that a copy of the resolution should be sent to Lady Reed, together with an expression of the members' deep and heartfelt sympathy.—At the meeting of the Court of Common Council on the same day a resolution was unanimously passed expressing great regret at the death of Sir Charles Reed, deputy, a valued, useful, and much-respected member of that body.

A meeting convened by the committee of the People's Entertainment Society was held last Saturday at the Grosvenor Gallery, and was well attended by ladies and gentlemen, and by many members of the working classes. The chair was taken by Sir Coutts Lindsay. The report stated that the society, which was in its third season, was giving concerts every Saturday evening at Lammas Hall, Battersea; Bolingbroke Hall, Clapham; the School-room, Star-corner, Bermondsey; and the Dartmouth Hall, Westminster. During the past year similar societies had been formed in Manchester, Newcastle, and Winchester, and arrangements were being made for starting others in Liverpool and Nottingham. The report added that the committee had received numerous and convincing proofs of the vitality of the movement and of the real good accomplished. The claims of the society to public support were advocated by the chairman, Mr. Bethune, the Earl of Shaftesbury, Mr. Henry Leslie, and others, and resolutions to a similar effect were adopted.

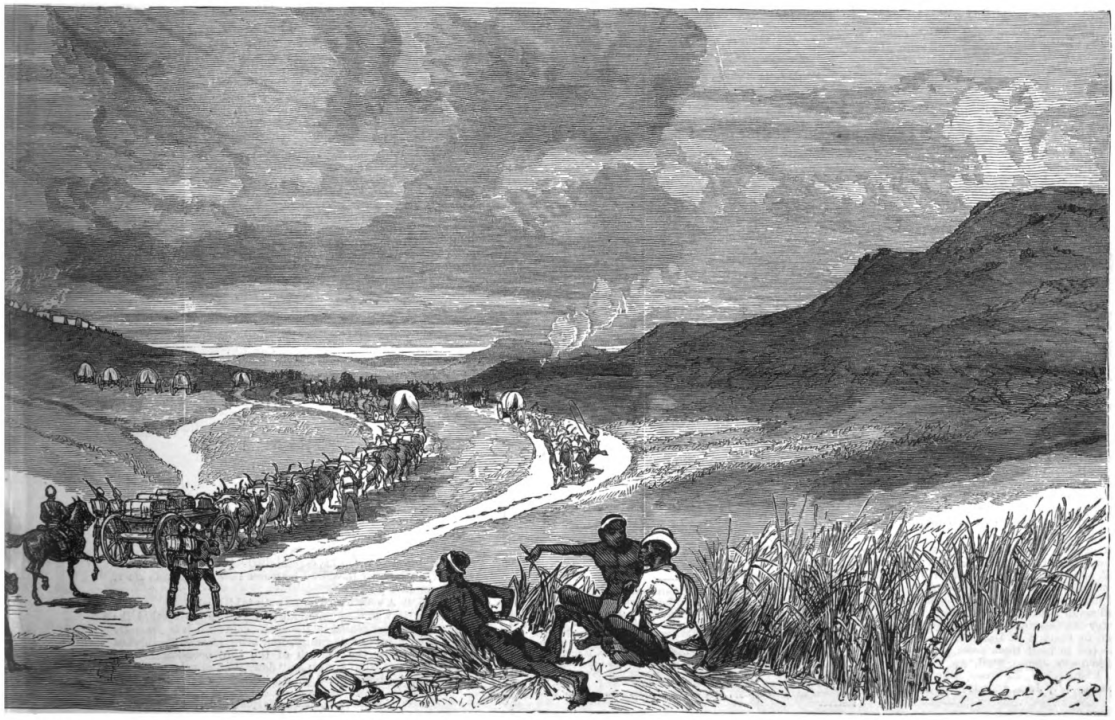


THE TRANSVAAL WAR: GENERAL SIR G. P. COLLEY'S CAMP AT PROSPECT HILL.—V
FACSIMILE OF A SKETCH BY OU



HEAD-QUARTERS OF THE 97TH, UNDER COLON
FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL A

FROM THE HELIOGRAPH STATION ON THE HILL ABOVE FORT AMIEL, NEWCASTLE.
AL ARTIST, MR. MELTON PRIOR.



H. BROWNE, HOLDING BIGGARSBERG NECK.
. MELTON PRIOR.—SEE PAGE 354.

OBITUARY.

ADMIRAL WIGSTON.

Admiral James Wigston, of Bitterne Hall, Southampton, died on the 30th ult. at Southsea. He was born in 1792, the second son of the late Mr. John Wigston, of Trent Park, Herts, by Mary, his wife, daughter of Sir James Winter Lake, third Baronet, of Edmonton; was educated at Harrow, and entered the Royal Navy in 1801. His commission as Lieutenant bears date in 1811, and that of Admiral in 1866. On board the Greyhound he served at the capture of the Dutch frigate Pallas, for which he was given a medal; was afterwards in the attack on two French frigates off Barfleur; and took part, in the boats of the Norge, in co-operation with the troops against New Orleans. Admiral Wigston married, in 1833, Mary Theodora, only daughter of Major-General Sir J. Chalmers.

HON. AND REV. F. DE GREY.

The Hon. and Rev. Frederick de Grey, M.A., J.P. for Suffolk, for forty-four years Rector of Copdock, in that county, died on the 30th ult., aged seventy. He was fourth son of Thomas, fourth Lord Walsingham, by Elizabeth, his wife, daughter of the Hon. and Right Rev. Brownlow North, Bishop of Winchester, and was great grandson of Sir William de Grey, Lord Chief Justice, on whom the Barony of Walsingham was conferred in 1780. The Hon. and Rev. F. de Grey was educated at St. John's, Cambridge, and took his M.A. degree in 1836.

MR GRANVILLE R. H. SOMERSET, Q.C.

Mr. Granville Robert Henry Somerset, Q.C., D.C.L., Recorder of Gloucester, and a J.P. and D.L. for Monmouthshire, died on the 23rd ult., at his residence, Queen Anne's-gate, aged fifty-seven. He was born Jan. 7, 1824, the eldest son of the Right Hon. Lord Granville Charles Henry Somerset, by the Hon. Emily Smith, his wife, tenth daughter of Robert, first Lord Carrington, and was thus cousin to the Duke of Beaufort, K.G. Having received his education at All Souls' College, Oxford, he was called to the Bar at the Inner Temple in 1851, and attained his silk gown in 1868, his practice being principally at the Parliamentary bar. He was appointed Recorder of Gloucester in 1877. Mr. Somerset married, Aug. 18, 1857, Emma Philadelphia, second daughter of Sir George Dashwood, Bart.

SIR BROOKE ROBERTSON.

Sir Daniel Brooke Robertson, K.C.M.G., C.B., late her Majesty's Consul-General, Shanghai, China, died on the 27th ult., at 15, Arlington-street, Piccadilly. He was son of Mr. Daniel Robertson, by Emily, his wife, daughter of the Rev. R. Brooke Clarke; was born in 1810, and married, in 1839, Ellen Nutter, daughter of Mr. Charles Aingell, by whom he leaves issue. He received knighthood in 1872, and was made a Commander of St. Michael and St. George in 1879. He was called to the Bar in 1840, and was at one time Consul at Canton.

We have also to record the deaths of—

Sir Philip de Malpas Grey-Egerton, Bart., M.P. A memoir will be given next week.

Admirable J. T. Talbot, on the 30th ult., at Merton Lodge, Clifton.

The Venerable Archdeacon J. Cleugh, D.D., resident at Malta fifty-seven years, on the 25th ult., aged eighty-eight.

Lady Dowling (Harriet M.) widow of Sir James Dowling, Chief Justice of New South Wales, aged eighty-one.

Admiral C. G. E. Patey, C.M.G., late Governor of St. Helena, a naval officer who saw good service not only in his own profession, but also in the colonies, on the 25th ult., at his residence, Newton St. Loe.

Mr. John Vere, of Carlton-on-Trent, Notts, a country gentleman of estate and position, on the 27th ult., at Park Hill, Torquay, in his eighty-fourth year. Mr. Vere had a strong impression, fostered by family tradition, that he was a male descendant of the illustrious house of De Vere Earls of Oxford.

Lady Blanche Murphy, eldest daughter of the Earl of Gainsborough, granddaughter, maternally, of the seventeenth Earl of Erroll, and wife of Mr. Thomas P. Murphy, at North Conway, New Hampshire, on the 21st ult. She was born in 1845, and married in 1870.

Mr. Frederick Cowper, of Carleton Hall, Cumberland, J.P. and D.L., on the 31st ult., in his eighty-seventh year. He married, Sept. 5, 1818, Susan Lydia, elder daughter of Mr. Andrew John Nash, of Hyde House, Middlesex, and had a large family. His eldest son, Frederick, is J.P. and D.L. in Westmorland.

The Rev. Dr. Bateson, Master of St. John's College, Cambridge, whose death is announced, was a distinguished and much-loved member of that University. For several years before his election, in 1857, as Master of St. John's he held the important office of Public Orator. In 1858 he was Vice-Chancellor of the University. Dr. Bateson married, in 1857, Anna, daughter of Mr. J. Atken, of Liverpool, and leaves issue.

Augusta Maria, Dowager Countess of Carysfort, on the 24th ult., at her residence in Grosvenor-crescent. Her Ladyship was eldest daughter of William, second Earl of Listowel, K.P., by Maria Augusta, his wife, daughter of Vice-Admiral William Windham, of Felbrigg Hall, Norfolk. She was born May 31, 1832, and married July 19, 1853, to Granville-Leveson, fourth Earl of Carysfort, K.P., who died without issue in 1872.

On Aug. 2 an International Medical Congress will be held in London, and for the first time in England. Medical men from many parts of the world have already signified their intention to attend the congress, and a large number of the most distinguished professors of medicine in all its branches in the Universities and medical schools, both of the Continent and of America, are expected to take part in the proceedings.

The anniversary meeting of the Chemical Society was held at Burlington House last week. Professor Roscoe, the president, in his annual address, congratulated the society on its flourishing condition. He said that at no period in its history had the number of Fellows been so large, while the number of papers read during the past twelve months had increased both in number and in importance. The Research Fund, founded by Dr. Longstaff, had done much for the progress of science. The Longstaff Medal was presented to Professor Thorpe, of the Yorkshire College Leeds, as the Fellow who had done the most to promote chemical science by research.

The naval pension of £50 a year for navigating officers, vacant by the death of retired Commander Edward Rose on March 21 last, has been awarded to retired Captain J. Stokes from that date. An additional Greenwich Hospital pension of £80 a year for chief inspectors and inspectors of machinery in the Royal Navy, and seven additional Greenwich Hospital pensions of £50 a year for chief engineers, having been created by her Majesty's Order in Council of March 2, the following officers have been selected to hold them from that date:—Chief Inspector of Machinery James Steil, £80; Chief Engineers Robert Gow, Frederick J. Newton, John M. Ollis, John M'Kie, John G. Oakshott, James M'Gregor, and Felix Forman, £50.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

All communications relating to this department of the Paper should be addressed to the Editor, and have the word "Chess" written on the envelope.

A C P (Drayton).—We are always glad to hear from you. The problem shall soon appear.

P J (Broadmoor).—The correction of your four-move problem is noted; and the new one, in three moves, shall have early examination.

V A (U.S.A.).—Your last communication shall be replied to through the post. The solution of Mr. Carpenter's problem was published some weeks ago.

F O N H (Liverpool).—The defence referred to is answered in the solution which appears below. The first two moves of No. 1935 are conceived in the highest spirit of chess strategy.

E J P (Preston).—As you are very wide of the mark in your proposed solution of No. 1933, you are probably mistaken in respect of the "late problem," but such a reference is too indefinite for us to satisfy either you or ourselves on the point.

R P G (Herts).—The correction of your problem is noted.

W B (Stratford).—Your three-move problem has succumbed to a final examination. There appears to be a solution by way of 1. Q to Q B 3rd, P moves; 2. Q to R 3rd, K moves; 3. Q to R 6th, mate. If Black play, 1. K to Kt 3rd, then 2. Q to R 3rd, and mates next move.

J P (Fishguard).—The problem shall have early attention.

D A (Dublin).—The last shall be first.

H E B (Exeter).—As the club is intended to be, as you say, a very unpretentious affair, it does not seem to call for public notice.

CORRECT SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEM NOS. 1931 and 1932 received from Va (U.S).

CORRECT SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEM No. 1934 received from H J Grant, The Almelo Chess Club, Brick, E Philp, John Tucker, and F W Humphries.

CORRECT SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEM No. 1935 received from J J Heaton, S G C, G A (Bonchurch), J Bumstead, H Stebbing, A Chapman, M H Moorhouse, E Philp, John Tucker, W F R (Swansea), Alpha, and Lulu.

CORRECT SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEM No. 1936, in two moves, received from H B, Shadforth, Sidmouth, John Fraser, Portobello, W J Eggleston, Semal, W C C, Pinopolis, East Marden, G G (Abingdon), E Louden, J W W, J B L, J Allen (Chiselhurst), W F R (Swansea), Trial, F J Wallis (Newcastle Chess Club), J J Heaton, Rev F W Clements, S G C, A Dearlove, W F Wood, Chidwell, C Wood, W T, G Michal (Rotterdam), Fred Carroll, Norman Rumbelow, A Chapman, Damiano, E W Martin, J Way, Lily and Comrade, R H Brooke, James Dobson, X Y Z, Matthew Hendrie, John Wood, Dr F St. Smutch, P Daly, H N, E Philp, H T, John Perkins, E Hedgway, F O N Hopkins, John Tucker, N Ris, Luin, W Biddle, Theodor Willink, T H (Wilmslow), E L G, J Perez Ventoso, W Hillier, C Darragh, L Sharswood, E Sharswood, An Old Hand, M O'Halloran, B R Wood, R J Vines, Jupiter Junior, L Falcon (Antwerp), Elsie, L L Greenaway, P G Parslow, H Noyes, Ben Nevis, E Elsbury, C Oswald, R Gray, E Casella (Paris), F Ferris, Otto Fulder (Ghent), G A (Bonchurch), Fred Littleboy, Frank Littleboy, and J G Anstee.

NOTE.—Many of the foregoing correspondents have sent the author's intended solution, as well as the mate in two moves. The following have sent the author's solution only:—W H Lancaster, Emile Frau, A C (Malines), Œdipus, Botkin, W P Gartside, J Watson, J H Symington, James Bunce, John Baltour, James L Hyland, H Stebbing, F Nicholls, Ernest Garre, J A Schmucke, S H-me, M H Moorhouse, Stuart Berkeley, A J Brigham, R R, Julia Short, Alfred Rowley, and W Fleetham. The problem may be corrected by placing a White Pawn at K 5th.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM No. 1935.

| WHITE. | BLACK. |
|---|---|
| 1. Q to B 2nd | P to B 4th* |
| 2. Q takes R P | K moves |
| 3. Mates by Q to R sq or B to K 6th, accordingly. | |

*If Black play 1. P to K 3rd, White continues with 2. B takes P (ch); if 1. K takes Kt or 1. K to K 5th, then 2. B to K 6th; and if 1. P to B 6th, then 2. Kt to Kt 6th (ch), mating on the third move in each case.

PROBLEM No. 1938.

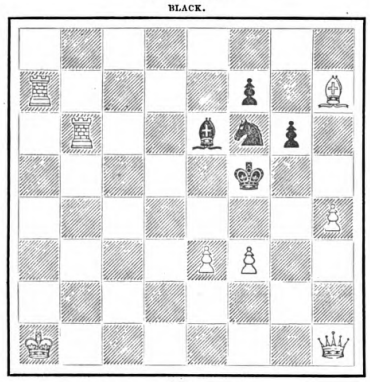
By JOHN TUCKER.

BLACK.



WHITE.

White to play, and mate in three moves.

On Monday last, the 4th inst., a match was played between six members of the fourth class of the City of London Club and a representative team from Oxford University. The match, which excited much interest in London chess circles and attracted over a hundred spectators, was very closely contested, the City winning, however, with a score of three games to two and one draw. We append one of the games played on the occasion between Mr. GATTIE, of the University, and Mr. CUTLER, of the City Club.

(Scotch Gambit.)

| WHITE (Mr. G.) | BLACK (Mr. C.) |
|---|---|
| 1. P to K 4th | P to K 4th |
| 2. Kt to K B 3rd | Kt to Q B 3rd |
| 3. P to Q 4th | P takes P |
| 4. Kt takes P | B to B 4th |
| 5. B to K 3rd | Q to B 3rd |
| 6. P to Q B 3rd | K Kt to K 2nd |
| 7. B to Q B 4th | |

In this form of the Scotch gambit the Bishop is better posted at Q Kt 5th.

| | |
|---|---|
| 7. | Kt to K 4th |
| 8. B to Kt 3rd | |

8. B to K 2nd is the correct move here.

| | |
|---|---|
| 8. | Q to Kt 3rd |
| 9. Castles | P to Q 4th |
| 10. Kt to B 5th | |

The best way of meeting the threatened attack by B to K R 6th, besides bringing about an exchange of the minor pieces.

| | |
|---|---|
| 10. | B takes B |
| 11. P takes B | B to K 3rd |
| 12. Kt takes Kt | K takes Kt |
| 13. P takes P | B to Kt 5th |
| 14. Q to Q 2nd | P to K B 4th |
| 15. Kt to Q 2nd | P to K R 4th |
| 16. R to B 2nd | P to R 5th |
| 17. Q R to K B sq | R to R 4th |
| 18. P to K 4th | R to K B sq |
| 19. Kt to Q B 4th | Kt takes Kt |
| 20. B takes Kt | R to Kt 4th |
| 21. P to K 5th | Q to Q Kt 3rd |
| 22. K to R sq | P to R 6th |
| 23. P to K Kt 3rd | Q to K 6th |
| 24. Q to Q 2nd | |

An unfortunate oversight, which deprives White of all resource. He should have played 24. Q to Q B sq, remaining with a winning game.

| | |
|---|---|
| 24. | B to B 6th (ch) |
| 25. K to Kt sq | |

He cannot, of course, take the Bishop with the Rook without losing his Queen, and Black now cleverly mates in four moves.

| | |
|---|---|
| 25. | R takes P (ch) |
| 26. P takes R | P to R 7th (ch) |
| 27. K takes P | R to K R sq (ch) |
| 28. K to Kt sq | R to R 8th. |

Mate.

The following table shows the pairing of the players and the full score in the above-mentioned match. The ½ signifies a drawn game:—

| OXFORD UNIVERSITY. | | CITY OF LONDON CLUB. | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Gattie (Christ Church) | 1 | Cutler | 0 |
| Weiss (Christ Church) | 0 | Stebbing | 1 |
| Lynam (Hertford) | 0 | Hunnex | 1 |
| Wainwright (University) | 1 | Blunt | 0 |
| Beebe (Trinity) | ½ | Staniforth | ½ |
| Wise (Lincoln) | 0 | Atkinson | 1 |
| | 2½ | | 3½ |

The match between Messrs. Blackburne and Gunzberg, the former yielding the odds of two games, the goal being seven, is drawing to a conclusion. The score at present stands, Mr. Blackburne six, Mr. Gunzberg five, the draws not counting.

We go to press too early in the week to note the result of the annual match between the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge. It was arranged to be played at the St. George's Chess Club on the 7th inst., with seven players aside. We have not been furnished with the names of the Cambridge champions, but Oxford will be represented by Messrs. Gattie Taylor, and Welsh (Christ Church); Kimber (Brasenose); Lynam (Hertford); Wainwright (University); and Beebe (Trinity), with Wise (Lincoln) as a reserve.

WEATHER-LORE OF THE WIND.

Various rules have been laid down, from time to time, for predicting the state of the weather from the position of the wind; some of which, framed after long observation by those whose employment has kept them much out of doors, are very reliable guides, embodied as we find them in those many trite sayings and proverbial adages current in this and other countries. Thus, according to a popular proverb, "Every wind has its weather," a maxim which has given rise to sundry rhymes, asfor instance the following, given by Tusser in his "Five Hundred Points of Good Husbandry":—

North winds send hail, south winds bring rain,
East winds we bewail, west winds blow amain:
North-east is too cold, south-east not too warm.
North-west is too bold, south-west doth no harm.

A similar rhyme, we are informed by Mr. Chambers, prevails in Scotland:—

When the wind 's in the north,
Hail comes forth;
When the wind 's in the wast,
Look for a wat blast;
When the wind 's in the soud,
The weather will be fresh and good;
When the wind 's in the east,
Cauld and snaw comes meist.

This rhyme, of course, varies in different localities, but in the main points it is the same. One further example we may quote as still in use among our rural peasantry:—

The south wind brings wet weather,
The north wind wet and co'd together;
The west wind always brings us rain,
The east wind blows it back again.

Beginning, then, with the weather-lore associated with the north wind, we are told in Suffolk that if the wind veers to the north and continues there in a dry season, there will be no rain so long as the wind remains northerly. If, on the contrary, the wind veers to the north in a wet season, it will continue wet so long as the wind remains in the same quarter. It is also said that "in whatever point the wind stands when the sun crosses the line on March 21, it will remain principally in that direction until June 21." It is also commonly said that—

A northern air
Brings weather fair.

We may give here a piece of weather-wise advice to anglers which is found in a variety of versions throughout the country:—

When the wind is in the north,
Then the fishes do come forth;
When the wind is in the south,
It blows the bait in the fish's mouth;
When the wind is in the east,
Then the fishes do bite least;
When the wind is in the west,
Then the fishes bite the best.

A north-west wind is universally popular, bringing with it the finest weather. Thus, in Yorkshire, one is advised to "do business with men when the wind is in the north-west."

Just as unpopular, however, is a north-east wind, for, as the proverb runs:—

The wind from north-east
Is neither good for man nor beast.

A south wind, on account of its wet and boisterous character, has naturally given rise to numerous quaint and pithy sayings. On account of the rain it brings, we are told how,

When the wind's is in the south,
'Tis in the rain's mouth.

Its boisterous nature has been graphically described by Shakspeare in "1 Henry IV." (v. 1), where he represents the Prince of Wales as saying—

The southern wind
Doth play the trumpet to his purposes;
And, by his hollow whistling in the leaves,
Foretells a tempest, and a blustering day.

Again, in "As You Like it" (iii. 5), Rosalind says,

Like foggy south puffing with wind and rain.

In days gone by the south wind was supposed to be the bearer of noxious fogs and vapours, in allusion to which Caliban says, in "The Tempest" (i. 2),

A south-west blow on ye,
And blister you all o'er.

A book, too, with which Shakspeare appears to have been thoroughly familiar—viz., Battman, "De Proprietatibus Rerum"—tells us, "This southern wind is hot and moist. Southern winds corrupt and destroy, they heat and make men falle into sicknesse." Hence, in "Troilus and Cressida" (iv. 1), Thersites speaks of "the rotten diseases of the south;" and in "Coriolanus" (i. 4), Marcius exclaims,

All the contagion of the south light on you.

A south-east wind is regarded as an unpropitious one; and in Scotland the peasantry affirm that if it bring rain it will be sure to last for some days. The wind, however, which is most unpopular is the east one; the same antipathy existing towards it everywhere in this country. In Edinburgh it is, we are told, the one of worse character among the medical faculty. Sir John Dalyell, nevertheless, in his "Darker Superstitions of Scotland," expresses his belief that the north is the most fatal to health, adducing, in proof of his assertion, the fact that an epidemic prevailed in 1833, after the wind had remained unusually steady for some time in that direction. Even with the fisherman, an easterly wind finds no favour, for

When the wind is in the east,
The fisher like s it least;
When the wind is in the west,
The fisher likes it best.

The following rhyme, prevalent in Northumberland, expresses, says Mr. Chambers, in his "Popular Rhymes of Scotland," an idea current among the Scottish peasantry—

A west wind north about,
Never long holds out, the notion being that a wind which goes from east to west, or contrary to the course of the sun, rarely continues for a long time, but soon relapses into the congenial direction. According to another Scotch rhyme we are told that—

East and wast
The sign of a blast;
North and south
The sign of a drouth.

The west wind, lastly, is always welcomed, as—

When the wind is in the west,
Then the weather 's always best.

Although it is also said that—

The west wind always brings wet weather.

Mr. Swainson, too, in his capital little book on "Weather-Lore," to which we have had occasion now and then to refer, quotes another proverb,

A western wind carries water in his hand.

Lastly, it was a common idea in years gone by that the vapours being congealed in the air by cold (which is generally most intense in the morning), and being afterwards rarefied and let loose by the warmth of the sun, occasioned those sudden gusts of wind known as "flaws," an allusion to which we find in "2 Henry IV." (iv. 4):—

As humorous as winter, and as sudden
As flaws congealed in the spring of day.

SOUND INVESTMENTS.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY OF CANADA.

—During the past month adverse reports as to the position and prospects of this Railway prevailed to such an extent that it might have been supposed some great calamity was imminent which would annihilate for ever the hopes of the Proprietors. These rumours were concocted by speculators with the sole object of depressing prices, and those who take the trouble to inquire will find that there has not been the shadow of foundation for any of the statements which have been so industriously circulated. My name has been freely used to assist in these operations, telegrams purporting to come from me having been scattered throughout the country recommending holders to realise, and in order to expose the nature of these tactics I was compelled to issue a special circular on March 16, flatly denying the allegations put forward.

Real investors in the securities of the Grand Trunk Railway have nothing whatever to fear from the temporary fluctuations in market values. The improvements which has taken place during the past year has not been due to any phenomenon, but to a natural course of development, which is still going on. The best evidence of the steadily advancing prosperity of this company is afforded by the traffic returns. Notwithstanding the unusual severity of the winter in America, the receipts for the thirteen weeks of the present year show an increase of £28,835, as compared with last year, when for the same period an increase of no less than £56,362 was earned in excess of 1879.

Apart from the improving position of the Grand Trunk Railway through the growing prosperity of Canada, the Chicago Extension must become a very valuable adjunct to the parent system. The recent issue of the balance of £180,000 first Mortgage Bonds of the Chicago and Grand Trunk Company will provide additional rolling stock and steel rails for completing the railaying of the line; and upon this subject Mr. Hickson, the skilful and experienced Manager, states—"With more power and a better road we could speedily double the receipts of the line."

While the process of this doubling of receipts on the Chicago Extension is going on, the Grand Trunk will be benefited in a twofold degree—viz., by the increased traffic derived from this new feeder and by the concurrent growth in value of its large holding of 2nd Mortgage Bonds and practically the whole of the Ordinary Capital in the Chicago line.

Since April last year the growth of the Grand Trunk Company has been enormous—the traffic receipts have increased no less than £291,741, large savings have been effected by the issue of 5 per cent Debentures in lieu of higher charges, the 1st and 2nd Preferences have received their full 5 per cent interest, and the 3rd Preference a small dividend, and yet the Ordinary Stock, which was quoted 26 at the date of the Meeting in 1880, is now only 22½, and the 3rd Preference, in the same period, has fallen from 46 to 44½. I feel confident that the forthcoming Report and Meeting will demonstrate that there is every reason to expect a considerable rise in value of all these Securities. The 1st and 2nd Preferences at 101 and 92 respectively are good dividend-paying stocks, together yielding an average of about 5¼ per cent, while the 3rd Preference and Ordinary must be regarded as steadily improving properties at the quotations of 44½ and 22½.

CANADIAN RAILWAYS FUSION.

—The smouldering embers of this old controversy have once more burst into flame, and shareholders in the two Companies are again confronted by the opposite statements of their respective presidents. On the one hand it is contended most positively by the president of the Grand Trunk that enormous savings would be at once effected by a fusion, while the president of the Great Western impeaches the accuracy of such estimates. Meanwhile, the shareholders, who should really be masters of the situation, are mere passive spectators of the strife.

NEW YORK, PENNSYLVANIA, AND OHIO RAILROAD (ATLANTIC AND GREAT WESTERN).

The decline which has taken place in the securities of this Company within the past few days has been brought about solely by market operations, and is not due in any way to unfavourable changes in the condition of the railway. So far from the latter being the case, the position of the property shows continued improvement. The unusual and late recurrence of snowstorms, which has unfavourably affected the traffic of many American railways, has caused but little diminution in the revenues of this line, and with improved weather the business should show considerable gains over last year. The heaviness in quotations has been increased by the difficulties of a provincial firm who were large speculative holders of these securities, the forced realisation of which exercised for a time the usual adverse influence. The stock thus offered, however, was speedily absorbed by investors, and I now look with confidence for a renewal of the upward movement based on the considerations fully set forth last month. The alliances and arrangements to which I have more than once drawn attention are still the subject of active negotiations, and will, it is expected, lead to the appointment of a strong Board, representing the leading interests at the next election. The 1st Mortgage Bonds at the present price of 68½ cannot fail to prove a sound and progressive investment.

PHILADELPHIA AND READING

RAILROAD.—The revenue return for the month of February is an agreeable surprise, for, while all other American lines have shown the effects of the stormy weather, the Reading line shows an increase of net revenue of 313,000 dollars, being at the rate of 6 per cent on the Ordinary Shares, and 5 per cent on the Deferred Bonds per annum. There is every reason to believe that Mr. Gowen will triumph over the factious minority of one, which in view of the recent voting disclosures it may fairly be called. The large holding of the one great opposing firm cannot absolve them from the injustice of endeavouring to oppose the will of 1600 shareholders, who have supported Mr. Gowen with remarkable unanimity.

MEXICAN RAILWAY.

—The traffic receipts for the past month have again shown enormous increase, and the values of the various securities of this Railway have consequently advanced. This Company affords a striking example of the rapidity with which a well-managed foreign Railway can develop. As early so recently as October, 1879, that I first prominently recommended investments in these shares, and the following comparison of the quotations as at that time and the present will be interesting:—

| | Price, October, 1879. | Price, April, 1881. |
|---|---|---|
| Ordinary Shares .. .. | 2½ | 15½ |
| 1st Preference Shares .. | 9½ | 38 |
| 2nd ditto .. .. | 4½ | 19½ |

During the progress of this development exactly the same tactics have been resorted to, as latterly in the case of the Grand Trunk, with the manifest intention of depressing prices for speculative purposes, but the analogous position of the Mexican to the Grand Trunk Railway in the enormous and continuous increase in the number of shareholders has completely counteracted these influences.

GREAT EASTERN RAILWAY.

—The Ordinary Stock of this line is one of the few remaining low-priced small dividend-paying English railway securities attractive as an investment for the future. The metropolitan, suburban, and Continental traffic are all greatly improving, and the line will derive further considerable benefit by the saving of working expenses incident to the opening of the Bishopsgate Goods Station (formerly the Shoreditch terminus) since Jan. 1. The important connection of this railway with the Great Northern, by means of the Spalding and Sleaford line), which will be opened during the ensuing summer, will ensure a profitable return upon a large amount of capital which at present is lying unproductive. There is also the prospect of a net saving of £30,000 a year being effected at an early date by the final extinguishment of the "Permanent Way Suspense Account," which was created a few years since, and this will of course lie entirely for the benefit of the ordinary shareholders. The stock is now to be bought at 67, and having quite recently been quoted 5 per cent higher, must be a very attractive investment in view of the improving prospects of the line. Perhaps the most astounding feature is the enormous development of the suburban traffic, as shown by the extraordinary increase in the season tickets. The value of building land adjacent to this railway has nearly doubled since the opening of the City Terminus.

ISLE OF MAN RAILWAY.

—Owing to the very satisfactory dividend recently paid (the highest in the history of the Company), the £5 fully paid shares are in demand at £5 10s. per share ex dividend. In my opinion they are well worth buying, the current year's prospects being very good.

ANGLO-AMERICAN TELEGRAPH.

—Shareholders in this undertaking must ere this have become almost oblivious to the "gigantic gooseberry" and "sea serpent" class of sensational rumours which have found currency from time to time. During the past month a new competitor for Atlantic Cable business was heralded, under the loud-sounding title of the Canadian and Asiatic Company, but, with the disavowal of any connection with the enterprise on the part of one of the reputed sponsors, the whole scheme seems to have collapsed.

COAL AND IRON COMPANIES.

—During the past month the Iron trade has been suffering from a depression which now appears to be passing away, while at the same time the business in Coal has been more active. There is therefore no reason why the 7 per cent Debentures of the Rhymney and the 7 per cent Preferences of the Llynvi and Tondu Companies (both being amply secured) should not still be regarded as desirable investments, yielding, as they do, 6 and 7 per cent to present investors. The Coal and Iron trades now exhibit more vitality.

TRAMWAYS.

—There has been more inquiry for these shares during the past month, which will no doubt continue as the receipts are affected by spring and summer traffic. I hope shortly to issue a special circular upon the subject of Tramways and Road Railways generally, as I think there is a great opening in England, Ireland, and Scotland.

INDIAN GOLD - MINES.

—Considerable interest is just now being manifested as to the quarts crushing on these Estates. From private advices I have reason to believe that the first company to declare dividends on results will be the Indian Gold-Mines Company of Glasgow, and this probably within the next fortnight. It may not be generally known that this Company was started eighteen months before the South Indian and Glenrock, and their works are therefore in a much more forward state. It is very evident that the event is looked forward to with great confidence, as it is impossible to purchase the shares, there being absolutely no sellers.

SOUTH INDIAN GOLD - MINE.

—The works on this property are vigorously proceeding. The reefs already opened out show practically an inexhaustible supply of rich quartz. Last month I anticipated the machinery would be in full work this month, but it is just possible there will be a delay of a fortnight or three weeks before the crushing is absolutely commenced; but no doubt long before this the Glasgow Company will have demonstrated the value of their property, which adjoins that of the South Indian. The present quotation for the latter includes the dividend of four shillings per share, which will be paid on or before the 10th inst. This Company's holding of £26,000 of shares in the Indian Trevelyan Mine has already advanced 30 per cent in value, so that this particular investment represents within £18,000 the total original cost of the entire property, the remaining portion of which, amounting to no less than 820 acres, is among the very richest in the Wynaad. The price of these shares is now 3 to 3¼.

INDIAN GLENROCK AND INDIAN PHŒNIX.

—The Glenrock machinery will be at work about the same time as the South Indian, and the Phœnix will quickly follow, all the necessary appliances having just arrived from Australia. The latter Company is first to show results, the effect on the value of each property will be immediate and considerable, as it will at once give the whole enterprise with the one evidence of reality which is alone required to indorse the accumulated testimony of every engineer and practical miner who has been consulted on the subject. Glenrock shares are now 2 to 2½, and Phœnix 1¼ to 1½.

INDIAN TREVELYAN.

—Shareholders will be glad to know that this Company is losing no time in making preparations for working. The Directors have appointed an engineer, who proceeded a fortnight ago to India to take possession of the estates, and lay the foundation for the machinery, which is now in course of shipment per Venguasian S.S. for Bryngore direct. The Company will forthwith commence the reduction of quartz, of which there are several thousand tons on the bank. For some time past the miners who were sent out to the properties by the South Indian Gold-Mining Company, the late proprietors, have been busily engaged in opening up the reefs, their work being now considerably advanced. Although this Company is one of the youngest, the Directors are using every endeavour to be among the first to give results, and they anticipate that at the statutory meeting they will be enabled to lay before the shareholders a highly satisfactory report. The shares are now to be bought at 1½.

From Mr. WILLIAM ABBOTT'S Circular for April.
10, Tokenhouse-yard, London, E.C.
362.

HORNIMAN'S TEA for Forty Years has commanded a large sale, because it can always be relied on for strength, flavour, and cheapness. It is the best tea imported. Sold only in Packets.

FRY'S | Gold Medal, Paris, 1878. First Award, Sydney. | FRY'S CARACAS COCOA. "A most delicious and valuable article."—Standard.

COCOA. | PURE COCOA ONLY. FRY'S COCOA EXTRACT. "Strictly pure."—W. W. STODDART, F.I.C., F.C.S., City Analyst, Bristol. Thirteen Exhibition Medals.

CHOCOLAT MENIER. Awarded the GRAND DIPLOMA OF HONOUR.

CHOCOLAT MENIER, in ½lb. and ¼lb. Packets. For BREAKFAST and SUPPER.

CHOCOLAT MENIER.—Awarded Twenty Eight PRIZE MEDALS. Consumption annually exceeds 18,000,000lbs.

CHOCOLAT MENIER. Paris, London, New York. Sold Everywhere.

SCHWEITZER'S COCOATINA. Anti-Dyspeptic Cocoa or Chocolate Powder. Guaranteed Pure Soluble Cocoa, with excess of Fat extracted. Four times the strength of Cocoas Thickened yet Weakened with Arrow-root, Starch, &c.

The faculty pronounce it the most nutritious, perfectly digestive Beverage for "BREAKFAST, LUNCHEON, or SUPPER." Keeps in all Climates. Requries no Cooking. A teaspoonful to Breakfast Cup, costing less than a halfpenny. Samples (extra) In Air-Tight Tins, at 1s 6d, 3s., &c., by Chemists and Grocers. H. SCHWEITZER and CO., 10, Adam-street, London, W.C.

BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR IS A WORLD-WIDE NECESSARY.

BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR FOR THE NURSERY.

BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR FOR THE FAMILY TABLE.

BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR FOR THE SICK-ROOM.

BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR HAS A WORLD-WIDE REPUTATION.

THE ESSEX FLOUR and GRAIN COMPANY, Liverpool-road, London, N., supply the best goods only: Flour, Whites for Pastry, per 56 lb., 9s. 6d.; Households, for Bread making, 8s. 6d.; Whole Wheaten Meal (granulated) for Brown Bread, 8s.; Best Scotch Oatmeal for Porridge, per 14 lb., 3s.; Hominy, 2s.; Barley Buck Wheat Maize, and Mixed Corn for Poultry, per bushel, 5s.; Indian Corn, 5s.; Middlings, 2s.; Bran, 1s.; Pearl Split Peas, per peck, 3s.; Split Egyptian Lentils, 3s.; Meat Biscuits, per 14 lbs., 3s. 6d.; Barley Meal, per 56 lb., 5s.; Lentil Flour, per 14lb. tin, 8d.; per 14 lb., 6s. All other kinds of Grain and Seeds. Price-List on application Special quotations for large orders. P.O. Orders and Cheques to be made in favour of George Young.

NOTICE. — For PETER ROBINSON'S Court and General Mourning Warehouse, "REGENT-STREET" is the only one address.

FAMILY BEREAVEMENTS.
Upon Receipt of Letter or Telegram
PETER ROBINSON'S EXPERIENCED DRESSMAKERS and MILLINERS TRAVEL to ALL PARTS of the COUNTRY (no matter the distance) FREE OF EXPENSE TO PURCHASERS, with Dresses, Mantles, Millinery, and a full assortment of MADE-UP ARTICLES of the best and most suitable description. Also Materials by the Yard, and supplied at the same VERY REASONABLE PRICES as if Purchased at the Warehouse in "REGENT-STREET."
Mourning for Servants at unexceptionally low rates, at a great saving to large or small families.
Funerals Conducted in Town or Country at Stated Charges.
Address only to 256 to 262, Regent-street, London.
PETER ROBINSON'S.

THE BEST CRAPES,
THAT WILL NOT SPOT WITH RAIN.
Special qualities finished by the manufacturer in this desirable manner solely to the order of PETER ROBINSON.
Good qualities from 1s. 6d. to 10s. 6d. per yard. Others, not finished by this process, from 1s. 6d. to 4s. 6d.

A SPECIAL PURCHASE.
300 PIECES OF
RICH BLACK BROCADED SILKS, very fashionable now for Costumes and Mantles. 2s. 9d., 3s. 11d., 4s. 9d., 4s. 9d., 5s. 11d., 6s. 6d.

100 PIECES OF
BLACK SATIN IMPERIAL, a New Make of Satin, Rich in appearance, and wears better than any other silk. 5s. 6d., and up to 10s. 9d.

BLACK SATIN MERVEILLEUX, now this Season. 3s. 6d., 4s. 11d., 5s. 9d., 6s. 6d.

BLACK SATIN DE LYON, a good useful Silk, for Hard Wear, 3s. 6d., 4s. 11d., 5s. 11d., 6s. 6d.

BLACK DUCHESS SATIN, at 5s. 6d., 6s. 6d.; Magnificent qualities at 7s. 6d. and 10s. 6d.

BLACK SATINS (Cotton Backs), 1s. 11d., 2s. 6d., 2s. 11d., 3s. 11d.

BLACK BROCADED VELVETS, 5s. 9d., 6s. 11d., 8s. 9d., 10s. 9d.

BLACK TWILLED SILKS, for Summer Wear, at 3s. 6d., and above.

BLACK SURAT SILKS, with White Floral Designs, 2s. 11d., 3s. 6d., 3s. 11d.

COSTUMES in SILK, SATIN, and BROCADE
Facsimiles of Exquisite Paris Models at 4½ guineas and up to 20 guineas.
Materials for Bodices included.
Patterns free.
Please write to—
PETER ROBINSON'S, REGENT-STREET, Nos. 256 to 262.

NICHOLSON'S
NEW SPRING SAMPLES.
Patterns post-free.
FRENCH CASHMERES, ZEPHYRS, SERGES, HERRING-BONE and MILAN STRIPES, and all the Newest Materials in the most beautiful colours.

NICHOLSON'S
NEW WASHING FABRICS.
Patterns post-free.
FRENCH SATTEENS, CAMBRICS, OATMEAL CLOTH, SHILLAKINS, &c., in every new and tasteful design.

NICHOLSON'S
NEW SILKS.
Patterns post-free.
PLUSHES, VELVETS, SATINS, BROCHES, SATIN DE LYONS, and PLAIN LYONS GROS GRAIN, in every fashionable shade.

D. NICHOLSON and CO., 50 to 53, ST. PAUL'S-CHURCHYARD, LONDON, SOLE LESSEES OF THE COSTUME COURT, CRYSTAL PALACE.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.
Please direct all Letters and Orders for
PETER ROBINSON,
SILKMERCER AND LINENDRAPER, TO THE ONLY ADDRESS,
103 to 108, OXFORD-STREET,
LONDON, W.
(where the Business was established in 1833).
CASH PRICES. PARCELS FREE.

LADIES IN THE COUNTRY are requested to write for Patterns of EARLY SPRING SILKS, including Suzats, Merveilleux, Duchesse Satins, Brocades, Figured Velvets, Black Silks, Satin de Lyons, Gros Grains, Fancy Silks, &c. All to be had in Black, White, and the Eighty-seven New Shades of Colour.
Cash Prices. Parcels free.
PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON.

LADIES IN THE COUNTRY are requested to write for patterns of NEW EARLY SPRING DRESSES, including Angola and Camel Hair Beige Casimir Foulé, Cachemire de Paris, Mixed Wool and Silk Damassé, Cashmere Merino Braid d'Italie, Plain Vigogne, New shades of Black and Coloured Rich Velveteens, New Pompadour and Plain Satins, Percales, &c. All the New Colours and Designs.
Cash Prices. Parcel free.
PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON.

ROYAL and IMPERIAL PATRONAGE. | EGERTON BURNETT'S SERGES For LADIES and GENTLEMEN include the Best Makes. Patterns free. Address 4, Wellington, Somerset.

MADAME ELLIOT makes up DRESSES stylishly and fits exquisitely. 8, Great Portland-street, Oxford-street.

MADAME ELLIOT'S CORSETS. Splendid Shape. French and English make. 5s. 6d., 10s 6d., 15s. 6d., 21s., 30s., 42s. Travesti delay, send size of waist and P.O.O. for the amount. Corsets changed if not approved. Corsets made to order.—9, Great Portland-street, Oxford-street.

MRS. S. A. ALLEN'S
WORLD'S HAIR RESTORER
THE ADMIRATION OF THE WORLD. Mrs. S. A. Allen's World's Hair Restorer is perfection for its wonderful life-giving properties to faded or falling hair, and quickly changing grey or white hair to its natural youthful colour and beauty. It is not a dye. It requires only a few applications to restore gray hair to its youthful colour and lustrous beauty, and induce luxuriant growth, and its occasional use is all that is needed to preserve it in its highest perfection and beauty. Dandruff is quickly and permanently removed. Sold by all Chemists and Perfumers.

FLORIMEL OF PALM.
A white and delicate hand is the first attribute of beauty and civilisation. "The hand," says Sir Charles Bell in the "Bridgewater Treatise," "distinguishes man from the brute; he careful of it, for in polite society it is an index not only of the body but of the mind."
The Florimel of Palm being rubbed over the skin is to be removed with a little water, then dried with a soft towel. Once using will convince the most sceptical that, if daily applied, too much cannot be said in favour of Florimel of Palm for rendering the skin or hands white, delicate, soft, and fair.
Sold in 1s., 2s. 6d. each.
PIESSE and LUBIN, 2, New Bond-street, London.
May be obtained of any Chemist or Perfumer in the world.

TURKISH PASTILS.
"Through all my travels few things astonished me more than seeing tall lancers of the Sultan smoking Narghiles at Stamboul. After smoking a sweet aromatic lozenge or pastil is used by them, which is said to impart a odour of flowers to the breath. I have never seen these breath lozenges but once in Europe, and that was at PIESSE and LUBIN'S shop in Bond-street."—Lady W. Montagu.
In Boxes, 2s.; by post, 2s. 2d.
2, NEW BOND-STREET, LONDON.

SWEET SACHETS.
PIESSE and LUBIN compose every variety of Sachet Powder the same odours as their many perfumes for the handkerchief. Placed in a drawer, etui, or travelling-bag, they impart a grateful and pleasing perfume without being cloying like. Piesse and Lubin also have, on demand, Dried Odorous Flowers, Spices, and Odoriferous Gums. Per ounce, 1s. 6d.; per lb., 21s.
2, NEW BOND-STREET, LONDON.

ROWLANDS' ODONTO is the purest and most fragrant dentifrice ever made. All dentists will acknowledge that neither powder can possibly be so efficacious for polishing the teeth and keeping them sound and white as a pure and non-gritty tooth powder; such Rowlands' Odonto has always proved itself to be.

VALUABLE DISCOVERY for the HAIR.
If your hair is turning grey, or white, or falling off, use "The Mexican Hair Renewer," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White Hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots where the glands are not decayed. "The Mexican Hair Renewer" is sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere, at 3s. 6d. per Bottle.

FLORILINE. For the Teeth and Breath.
Is the best Liquid Dentifrice in the world; it thoroughly cleanses partially-decayed teeth from all parasites or living "animalculæ," leaving them pearly white, imparting a delightful fragrance to the breath. The Fragrant Floriline removes instantly all odours arising from a foul stomach or tobacco smoke, being partly composed of honey, soda, and extracts of sweet herbs and plants. It is perfectly harmless, and delicious as sherry. Sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere, at 2s. 6d. per Bottle.

THE SKIN.—The glory of woman, the pride of man. It contains the delicate lines of beauty and constitutes all that we term "Loveliness;" yet how many thousands have their skins blemished by the use of the irritant soaps, Carbolic, Coal Tar, Glycerine, and the coarse coloured soaps, caustic with alkali and made of putrid fats. The more delicate the skin the quicker its ruin. The ALBION MILK AND SULPHUR SOAP is the purest, the whitest, and most purifying of all Soaps, by its purifying action taking away and preventing all pimples, blotches, and roughness. It is recommended by the entire Medical Profession as the most elegant preparation for the skin that is known. By all Chemists, in Tablets, 6d. and 1s. THE ALBION SANATORY SOAP COMPANY, 502, Oxford-street, London.

COLDS CURED BY
DR. DUNBAR'S ALKARAM, or Anti-Catarrh Smelling-Bottle.
ALKARAM. COLDS.
ALKARAM. COLDS.
ALKARAM. COLDS.
IF inhaled on the first symptoms, ALKARAM will at once arrest them, and cure severe cases in half an hour. Sold by all Chemists, 2s. 9d. a Bottle. Address, Dr. Dunbar, care of Messrs. F. Newbery and Sons, 1, King Edward-st., E.C.

DINNEFORD'S MAGNESIA.
The best remedy for Acidity of the Stomach, Heartburn, Headache, Gout, and Indigestion, and safest aperient for delicate constitutions, Ladies and Children. Of all Chemists.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS and OINTMENT.
The Pills purify the blood, correct all disorders of the liver, stomach, kidneys, and bowels. The Ointment is unrivalled in the cure of bad legs, old wounds, gout, and rheumatism.

BLAIR'S GOUT PILLS,
THE GREAT
REMEDY FOR GOUT AND RHEUMATISM.
Sold by all Chemists, at 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. per Box.

ALLEN AND HANBURYS'
"PERFECTED" COD-LIVER OIL
is free from disagreeable taste and smell, and causes no nausea or after-taste. Of all Chemists, in capsuled bottles only.

"FOR THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE."
CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE is warranted to cleanse the Blood from all impurities, from whatever cause arising. For Scrofula, Scurvy, Skin and Blood Diseases, its effects are marvellous. In Bottles, 2s. 6d. each, and in cases, containing six times the quantity, 11s. each, of all Chemists. Sent to any address for 30 or 14 stamps, of the Proprietor, F. J. CLARKE, Chemist, Lincoln.

ALLAN'S ANTI-FAT.
Purely vegetable, perfectly harmless; will reduce from two to five pounds per week; acts on the fat only, and not the stomach, preventing its conversion into fat. Sold by Chemists. Send stamp for pamphlet.—BOTANIC MEDICINE COMPANY, 493, Oxford-street, London, W.C.

THROAT AFFECTIONS and HOARSENESS.—All suffering from Irritation of the Throat and Hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES. These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable Chemists in this country, at 1s. 1½d. per Box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "sticking cold," or bronchial affections cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government stamp around each box.—Prepared by JOHN I. BROWN and SONS, Boston, U.S. European Depôt, 23, Farringdon-road, London.

HOOPING COUGH.
ROCHE'S HERBAL EMBROCATION.
THIS celebrated effectual Cure without internal medicine. Sole Wholesale Agents, W. EDWARDS and SON, 157, Queen Victoria-street (formerly of 67, St. Paul's-churchyard), London, whose names are engraved on the Government stamp.
Sold by most Chemists. Price 4s. per Bottle.

TOOTHACHE.
INSTANT CURE.
FORMS A STOPPING.
SAVES THE TOOTH.
J. Hounsell, Esq., Surrey-n, Bridport, writes:—"I consider HUNTER'S NERVINE a specific for Toothache. Very severe cases under my care have found instantaneous and permanent relief."
Of Chemists, 1s. 1½d. per Packet.

THE TRANSVAAL WAR: CAPSIZING OF THE PONT ON THE INCANGUA RIVER, NEAR NEWCASTLE.
FROM A SKETCH BY CAPTAIN ERNEST THURLOW, 60TH RIFLES, NATAL FIELD FORCE.—SEE PAGE 354.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

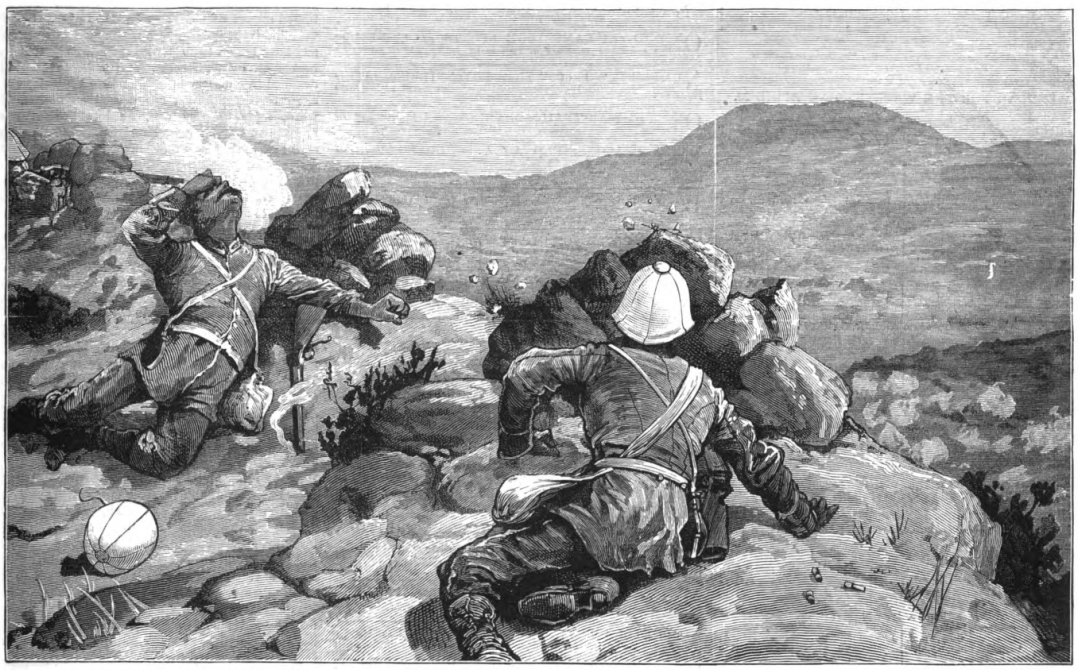
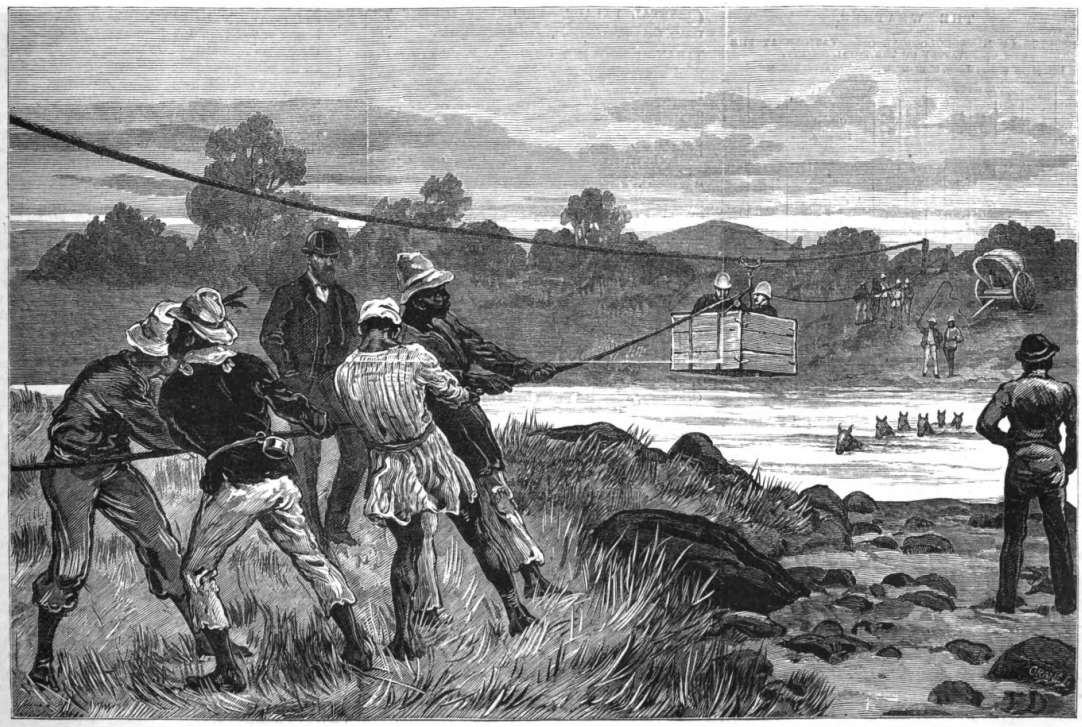
REGISTERED AT THE GENERAL POST-OFFICE FOR TRANSMISSION ABROAD.

No. 2187.—VOL. LXXVIII. SATURDAY, APRIL 16, 1881. WITH TWO SUPPLEMENTS SIXPENCE. By Post, 6½d.



THE TRANSVAAL WAR: ALL THAT WE SAW OF THE BOERS AT MAJUBA HILL.



DIFFICULTIES OF TRAVELLING IN SOUTH AFRICA OFFICERS CROSSING THE INGAGANI RIVER (SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST).—SEE PAGE 370.

BIRTHS.

On the 9th inst., at No. 14, Carlton House-terrace, the Countess of Lonsdale, of a daughter.

On the 8th inst., at 18, Chester-street, the Lady Augusta Fane, of a son.

On the 9th inst., at Brington Rectory, Northampton, the Lady Beatrice Stewart, of a son.

On Palm Sunday, at The Rookery, Great Stanmore, Middlesex, the wife of Captain J. Grove White, 57th Regiment, of a daughter.

MARRIAGES.

On the 7th inst., at St. Peter's, Eaton-square, Captain Raymond Parr, third son of the late Thomas Parr, Esq., of Greppenhall-Heys, Cheshire, to the Hon. Constance Plunkett, younger daughter of Lord Dunsany.

On Feb. 8 last, 1881, in the province of Ontario, Dominion of Canada, W. H. Buckerfield, Esq., Jun., Justice of the Peace, grandson of the late Rev. H. Buckerfield, M.A., Rector of St. Peter, Marlborough, Wilts, to Mary Ann, second daughter of George Dowler, Esq., formerly of Highfield House, in the county of Warwick, G.B., but now and for some years past an extensive landed proprietor in Ontario.

DEATHS.

On the 7th inst., at 7, Ovington-gardens, London, Henrietta Louisa, widow of Sir John Weelderburn, Bart., aged 77.

On the 10th inst., at Hazelcroft-Ripley, Yorkshire, Elizabeth Henrietta, widow of the late George Lloyd, Esq., of Cowesby Hall, Yorkshire, aged 79.

On the 29th ult., at his residence, Mortimer-road, Kilburn, London, aged 70 years, Charles Richard Craddock (late of the firm of Riddsdale, Craddock and Riddsdale, Solicitors), for upwards of fifty years of Guy's Inn.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, or Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING APRIL 23.

SUNDAY, APRIL 17.

Easter Day.
Morning Lessons: Exodus xii. 1—29; Rev. i. 10—19. Evening Lessons: Exodus xii. 29 or xiv.; John xx. 11—19 or Rev. v.
St. Paul's Cathedral, 10.30 a.m., Very Rev. Dean Church; 3.15 p.m., Rev. Canon Liddon; 7 p.m., Rev. E. B. Ottley.
Westminster Abbey, 10 a.m. and 3 p.m., Very Rev. the Dean, Dr. Stanley.
St. James's, noon, Rev. Canon Wilberforce, the Sub-Almoner.
Whitehall, 11 a.m., Ven. Dr. J. A. Hessey, Archdeacon of Middlesex; 3 p.m., Very Rev. Dr. West, Dean of St. Patrick's.

MONDAY, APRIL 18.

Easter Monday. Bank Holiday.
Volunteer Review at Brighton.
British Museum, Natural History Department, South Kensington, to be opened.
Architectural Association, soirée, 7.30.
Geologists' Association: excursion to Salisbury, &c. (two days), Waterloo Station, 9 a.m.
Opening of National Fisheries Exhibition, Norwich.
Races: Enfield, Nottingham, Four Oaks Park, Kempton Park, Manchester, Newcastle.
Athletic Sports: Woodbridge, Godalming, Newport, Bournemouth, Colchester, Epsom.

TUESDAY, APRIL 19.

Horticultural Society, promenade, 3.
Humane Society, 3.30 p.m.
Philological Society, 8.30 p.m.
Royal Dublin Society, Spring Cattle Show (three days).
Southern Counties Dog Show, Maidstone (three days).
Somerville Evening Meetings (Viscountess Harberton on Dress Reform).
Italian Opera, Covent-Garden, opening of the season.
Races: Newmarket Craven Meeting; Curragh.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 20.

Richmond Industrial and Fine-Art Loan Exhibition to be opened.
Oxford Easter Term begins.
Bankers' Institute, 6 p.m. (Mr. John Smith on the Government Bankruptcy Bill).
Meteorological Society, 7 p.m. (Dr. W. Koppen on Rain; papers by Mr. G. M. Whipple).
Hunterian Society, 8 p.m.
British Archæological Association, 8 p.m.
Dental Surgery Association, 8 p.m.
Albert Hall, "Judas Maccabæus."
University College Hospital, annual dinner, 6.30 p.m., Willis's Rooms.
Dialectical Society, 8 p.m. (Mr. A. B. Hopkins on Reformed Spelling).
Races: Lichfield Spring Meeting.

THURSDAY, APRIL 21.

Moon's last quarter, 9.38 a.m.
Numismatic Society, 7 p.m.
Historical Society, 8 p.m.
Civil and Mechanical Engineers' Society, 7 p.m. (Mr. J. H. Maugham on the Drainage of North Lincolnshire).
Dialectical Society, 8 p.m. (Mr. W. C. Coupland on the New Morality).
Linnæan Society, 8 p.m.
Chemical Society, 8 p.m. (Mr. W. E. Adeney on the Estimation of Hydric Peroxide, &c.).
Catterick Bridge Races.

FRIDAY, APRIL 22.

Cambridge Easter Term begins.
Propagation of Gospel Society, 2 p.m.
Quekett Microscopical Club, 8 p.m.
Clinical Society, 8.30 p.m.
Philological Society, 8 p.m.
Ascham Society, 8.30 p.m. (Dr. A. Wilson on Science Culture for the Young).

SATURDAY, APRIL 23.

St. George the Martyr.
Albert, King of Saxony, born, 1828.
Antiquaries' Society, anniversary, 2.
Botanic Society, 3.45 p.m.

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE KEW OBSERVATORY OF THE ROYAL SOCIETY.

Lat. 51° 28′ 6″ N.; Long. 0° 18′ 47″ W. Height above Sea, 34 feet.

| DAY. | DAILY MEANS OF Barometer Corrected. | Temperature of the Air. | Dew Point. | Relative Humidity. | Amount of Cloud. | THERMOM. Maximum, read at 10 P.M. | Minimum, read at 10 P.M. | WIND. General Direction. | Movement in Miles, from 10 A.M. to 10 A.M. next morning. | Rain, read at 10 A.M. next morning. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| | Inches. | ° | ° | | 0-10 | ° | ° | | Miles. | In. |
| April 3 | 29·985 | 36·3 | 22·1 | ·69 | 4 | 43·0 | 32·9 | ENE. NE. | 749 | 0·000 |
| 4 | 29·957 | 37·9 | 28·3 | ·66 | 3 | 46·4 | 30·2 | NE. ENE. | 660 | 0·000 |
| 5 | 29·758 | 39·6 | 29·8 | ·61 | 8 | 48·0 | 33·4 | ENE. NE. | 441 | 0·000 |
| 6 | 29·792 | 40·3 | 27·4 | ·63 | 4 | 49·2 | 34·8 | ENE. | 538 | 0·000 |
| 7 | 30·035 | 40·1 | 27·0 | ·65 | 3 | 48·3 | 32·8 | ENE. | 639 | 0·000 |
| 8 | 30·023 | 41·7 | 31·5 | ·70 | 7 | 48·4 | 32·1 | NE. E. | 441 | 0·000 |
| 9 | 30·027 | 44·4 | 35·0 | ·72 | 5 | 53·8 | 39·1 | NE. E. | 324 | 0·000 |

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the same days, in order, at ten o'clock a.m.:—

| | | | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Barometer (in Inches) corrected .. | 30·035 | 29·991 | 29·787 | 29·775 | 30·009 | 30·044 | 30·042 |
| Temperature of Air .. .. | 36·9 | 41·79 | 41·7 | 42·9 | 43·71 | 46·2 | 47·2 |
| Temperature of Evaporation .. | 31·8 | 35·6 | 37·3 | 36·5 | 36·7 | 39·9 | 42·8 |
| Direction of Wind .. .. | ENE. | ENE. | ENE. | ENE. | ENE. | ENE. | E. |

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE FOR THE WEEK ENDING APRIL 23.

| Sunday. | | Monday. | | Tuesday. | | Wednesday. | | Thursday. | | Friday. | | Saturday. | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| M. h m | A. h m | M. h m | A. h m | M. h m | A. h m | M. h m | A. h m | M. h m | A. h m | M. h m | A. h m | M. h m | A. h m |
| 3 30 | 4 0 | 4 0 | 4 30 | 4 58 | 5 28 | 5 13 | 5 43 | 5 26 | 5 57 | 5 37 | 6 7 | 6 19 | 6 41 |

LYCEUM.—THE BELLE'S STRATAGEM. TO-DAY (SATURDAY, APRIL 16) will be presented, with new scenery, dresses, and appointments, Mrs. Cowley's Comedy, THE BELLE'S STRATAGEM. Doricourt, Mr. Irving; Letitia Hardy, Miss Ellen Terry; Miss Sophie Young, Mr. Howe, Mr. Terriss, Mr. Pinero, Mr. Elwood, Mr. Beaumont. Preceded by Alfred Bennyson's Tragedy THE CUP—Synorix, Mr. Irving; Camma, Miss Ellen Terry. Box-Office open from Ten till Five, under the direction of Mr. Hurst.

NATIONAL STANDARD THEATRE, BISHOPSGATE. Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. John and Richard Douglas. Production of the great Scottish Drama, POOR RELATIONS, by James Willing. Miss Bella Pateman with Mr. Leonard Boyne and full company. EASTER MONDAY, APRIL 18, 1881, at 7.15, POOR RELATIONS, dramatised from "Jane Eyre." Jane Miss Bella Pateman; Rochester, Mr. Leonard Boyne; Messrs. Ernest Willmer, Walter Brooke, Vincent, and A. H. Hatton. Mesdames Dora Vivian, Lisette, Cuthbert, Vivian, Alice Raymer, and Fanny Addison. New scenery. Startling effects. Concluding with a Farce.

MASKELYNE and COOKE.—EGYPTIAN HALL. TWO PERFORMANCES on SATURDAY, the 16th, and on each Day in Easter Week. Great change of Programme, including the revival, with new features, of the Scene entitled WILL WITCH AND THE WATCH, which created such an enormous sensation in London eight years ago. For further particulars see daily papers.

MR. and MRS. GERMAN REED'S ENTERTAINMENT. EASTER MONDAY, at Three and Eight, with a New First Part, MANY HAPPY RETURNS, by Gilbert A'Beckett and Clement Scott; Music by Lionel Benson. A New Musical Sketch, OUR INSTITUTE, by Mr. Corney Grain; and ALL AT SEA, by Arthur Law; Music by Corney Grain. Easter Monday and Tuesday, at Three and Eight; Wednesday and Friday, at Eight. Thursday and Saturday at Three.—ST. GEORGE'S HALL, Langham-place. Admission, 1s., 2s.; Stalls, 3s., 5s. No fees. Booking-Office now open, from 10 to 6.

THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS, A NEW JOURNAL FOR THE YOUNG. The Proprietors of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS issued the first Illustrated Weekly Newspaper for Boys, price ONE PENNY, on Wednesday, April 6, 1881. THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS is a Journal full of Entertainment and Information for Youth; and, at the same time, a Paper which Parents can with confidence place in the hands of their children.

"PUNCH," of APRIL 9, says of THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS:—"Captain Mayne Reid, with Mr. John Latey, Junior, edits the New Journal for Boys. Of course, under such direction, there'll be nothing in it they Mayn't read. The Boys are quite e-Latey'd."

BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS.—In No. 1, APRIL 6, was commenced

CAPTAIN MAYNE REID'S "LOST MOUNTAIN." A New Romance in the best style of this famous Author.

OVER 100,000 COPIES of Number One of THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS were ordered by the Trade on the first day of Publication.

FRESH EDITIONS were Printed last Week of the First Number of THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS.

"SQUEE BIFFEN" will make every reader of THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS laugh.

OXFORD and CAMBRIDGE SPORTS are Sketched by Pen and Pencil in No. 2 of THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS for APRIL 13.

NUMBER TWO of "THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS" for APRIL 13 contains a bright Illustration depicting "The Brave Deeds the Royal Humane Society delights to Recognise."

ON THE WAR-TRAIL.—See the second instalment of Captain Mayne Reid's Romance, "THE LOST MOUNTAIN." APRIL 13.

LORD BEACONSFIELD AS A SCHOOLBOY!—Read the hitherto unpublished details of Lord Beaconsfield's Schooldays, Written by a Son of one of his Tutors, begun in No. 2 of THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS, APRIL 13.

BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS, price One Penny (post-free, 1½d.) THOMAS FOX, 10, Milford-lane, Strand, London.

THE SOCIETY OF LADY ARTISTS.—Exhibition NOW OPEN. Gallery, 48, Great Marlborough-street. 10 till 5.30. Admission, 1s.; Catalogue, 6d. Will close shortly after Easter.

THE ANNUAL SPRING EXHIBITION OF HIGH-CLASS PICTURES by BRITISH AND FOREIGN ARTISTS, including Professor Leopold Carl Muller's picture, "An Encampment Outside Cairo," is now open at ARTHUR TOOTH and SONS' Gallery, 5, Haymarket. Admission, One Shilling.

SOCIETY OF BRITISH ARTISTS.—FIFTY-EIGHTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION NOW OPEN, at the SUFFOLK-STREET GALLERIES, Pall-mall East, from Nine to Six daily. Admission, One shilling. THOMAS ROBERTS, Secretary.

THE SEVENTEENTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION of CABINET PICTURES by ARTISTS of the BRITISH and FOREIGN SCHOOLS is NOW OPEN at THOMAS McLEAN'S GALLERY, 7, Haymarket (next the Theatre). Admission, including Catalogue, one Shilling.

FRENCH GALLERY, 120, PALL-MALL.—The Twenty-Eighth ANNUAL EXHIBITION of PICTURES, by Artists of the Continental Schools (including Portraits of the Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone, Prince Bismarck, Count Moltke, Dr. Döllinger, and other works by Franz Lenbach), is NOW OPEN. Admission, 1s.

DORÉ'S GREAT WORKS.—"ECCE HOMO" ("Full of divine dignity."—The Times) and "THE ASCENSION." "CHRIST LEAVING THE PRAETORIUM." "CHRIST ENTERING JERUSALEM," with all his other Great Pictures.—DORÉ GALLERY, 35, New Bond-street. Daily, 10 to 6. 1s.

EASTER ARRANGEMENTS.—LONDON, BRIGHTON, and SOUTH COAST RAILWAY. All EXPRESS and ORDINARY RETURN TICKETS will be extended as usual. EXTRA TRAINS FOR ISLE OF WIGHT.—The 4.55 p.m. from Victoria and London Bridge will convey Passengers for Ryde, Sandown, Shanklin, Ventnor, Newport, and Cowes, on APRIL 16 (1st, 2nd, and 3rd Class).

BRIGHTON.—EVERY SUNDAY A CHEAP FIRST-CLASS TRAIN from Victoria, 10.45 a.m., calling at Clapham Junction and Croydon. Day Return-Tickets, 10s.

VOLUNTEER REVIEW AT BRIGHTON.—The March Past of the Volunteers at the Grand Stand on the Brighton Race Course will take place soon after 2.0 p.m.
A SPECIAL FIRST CLASS EXPRESS TRAIN will leave Victoria Station for Brighton at 3.30 a.m. on EASTER MONDAY, returning from Brighton the same day at 4.45 p.m., arriving at Victoria at 6.15 p.m.
Application for Tickets should be made at Victoria Station, or at the General Offices, 28, Regent-circus, Piccadilly, and 8, Grand Hotel Buildings, Trafalgar-square, on and after April 9. Fares—London to Brighton and back, First Class, 12s. 6d.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—FREQUENT DIRECT TRAINS DAILY to the Crystal Palace from London Bridge, New Cross; also from Victoria, York-road, Kensington, West Brompton, and Chelsea.

BRANCH BOOKING OFFICES.—For the convenience of passengers who may desire to take their Tickets in advance, the following Branch Booking Offices, in addition to those at the Victoria and London Bridge Stations, are now open for the issue of Tickets to all Stations on the London, Brighton, and South Coast Railway, to the Isle of Wight, Paris, and the Continent, &c.:—
* The Company's General West-End Booking Offices, 28, Regent-circus, Piccadilly, W., and 8, Grand Hotel Buildings (under the Grand Hotel), Trafalgar-square.
Cook's Tourist Offices, London-circus.
Gaze's Tourist Offices, 142, Strand.
Cargill's Tourist Offices, 371, Strand (next Exeter Hall).
Whiteley's, Westbourne-grove.
Hay's City Agency, 4, Royal Exchange-buildings, E.C.
Letts and Co., King William-street, City.
Tickets issued at these Offices will be dated to suit the convenience of passengers.
* These two offices will remain open until 10 p.m. on Saturday, April 16.
For full particulars of Times, Fares, &c., see Handbills and Time Books, to be had at all Stations, and at any of the above Branch Booking Offices.
(By Order) J. P. KNIGHT, General Manager.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, APRIL 16, 1881.

Hurrah for the Holidays! They have come, this year, nearly as late as it was possible for them to come; they have been preceded by an anxious time; and, in spite of some drawbacks to which the season is liable, they will probably be thankfully accepted, not only by public men, but by the community in general. To the Members of the Legislature, and especially to those of the House of Commons, a decided pause had become necessary—a pause which even their constituents will gladly share. Oh, the weariness of the earlier weeks of the Session! the blank absence of satisfaction, whether to mind or heart, that accompanied and followed the inglorious campaign of Obstruction! Happily, it has passed away, not soon again, we hope, to return; and now, lo! we have fairly advanced into the Spring season. Our heaviest troubles may be laid aside; our sunniest expectations may be cherished, not over-fondly or confidently, but without any sense of foolish presumption. Let all our lighter, more lightsome, and more healthy energies flap their wings, and be off in pursuit of needed recreation. And, if possible, let us pigeon-hole our remaining cares until we come back from the recess to resume our business.

We will not speak of wind or weather within the compass of the Easter Holidays. We dare not—its character being so uncertain that even professed Meteorologists, forecasting only for a space of twenty-four hours, are baffled in their predictions quite as often as they succeed. The approach to Easter has been a curious one. A severe winter seems to have been dissatisfied with its work, and to have prolonged it by fresh and still fresh attempts to push back the geniality of season which longer days and bright sunshine were fitted to promote. A persistent East wind smote with paralysis the heart of Spring. We had blazing skies and icy airs. Mornings and evenings, clear as they mostly were, made us shiver. Whatever one touched was cold—it might be shiny, but it never became warm. There was a treacherousness in the very look of the skies. Perfect loveliness, combined with horrid bitterness. The heavens were as brass, but not so the earth. Frosts crept along the ground and stopped all the customary signs of herbal life. The meadows scarcely took to themselves a deeper tinge of green than that which January left them. The trees continued almost as naked as in December. Some of the wild flowers successfully struggled with adverse influences, and have begun to illustrate the old truth that ferocity is best met by gentleness, and that modest beauty is destined to conquer in any serious contest with savage strength. The season has proved an abnormally backward, albeit a dry one, at least round about the Metropolis and its neighbourhood. But vernal airs are sure to come at last, and we can only hope that Spring will not run into Summer, as has been too frequently the case, of late. May the Easter Holidays be blessed with a fortunate share of enjoyable, as well as brilliant, weather!

Taken generally, in an ecclesiastical as in a secular sense, the Recess represents a resurrection from gloom to gladness. The aspect of our public affairs just now is fairly typified by the season. Thoughtful men are beginning to feel that in Great Britain, at least, sound and honest statesmanship is not only possible, but will, in the long run, prove to be most permanently successful. This consideration, besides being a grand one in itself, stimulates all the higher qualities of national character. The consciousness that we are improving is one of the surest and most trustworthy pledges that we shall improve. For, in this sense—not the highest, it is true—"to him that hath shall be given." There is nothing so certain of being followed by moral deterioration as despondency in regard to the progress of national life. Despair breeds shameless corruption, and corruption naturally augments despair. It is well to have stated intervals, now and then, for common rejoicing. The Easter vacation is wont to send a whiff of purer air into the atmosphere of common life, and to touch with golden tints the masses of drudgery at which we hastily look back. 'Tis a break; and there come to all of us times when a short breach of continuity in our daily occupations is invigorating. It may be well or ill spent—may strengthen or weaken us for our future duties. But the opportunity is, at least, desirable, and, when it occurs, should be gratefully seized.

The Trade prospects of the Country have not been extremely flattering since the opening of this year. The promises which they exhibited were somewhat illusory, and, perhaps, will continue to be of that character for a longer period than has been generally anticipated. But there is no reason that we know of why, if it can be caught on the wing, pleasant recreation should not be made use of even for a few days only. Under any circumstances, men of trade and of commerce, of manufacturing and of mercantile pursuits, will have to meet grave crises requiring much vigilance and care to surmount without serious loss. But should it be otherwise, they will be none the better prepared to wrestle with their troubles for having denied themselves the bodily and mental refreshment to be obtained out of a short holiday. We hope, however, that they will encounter no very serious danger on this side of the autumn; and there are few, indeed, who are likely to regret having taken grateful advantage of the brief rest allowed to them by the arrangements of society.

The young people of both sexes are to be envied the zest with which they will quit, for a few days, the term of their studies, and will rush into the innocent pleasures kept in store for them by those who with parental interest watch alike over their labours and their rest. Gladness, somehow or other, usually begins with them; and, like the circlets of water into which a stone has been cast, it evermore spreads, enlarging its scope whilst in expression it becomes weaker. Long live the youngsters! Long may they be able to assimilate, by easy digestion, the pleasures which are put within their reach! They, too, we trust, will have their opportunity of relaxation from toil. Twenty years ago the utterance of this wish might have assumed an appearance of irony. To a small minority it may do so now. But school studies are not as they used to be, easily scrambled through, or negligently toyed with. Our young readers will, no doubt, have done their best, like our Legislators, to earn a temporary frolic. That they will enjoy it we can fully believe. They will hardly need any exhortations or admonitions on this head. But we would pray them not entirely to forget that play is with a view to better work, and that too profuse an expenditure of strength in the former may seriously disqualify them for resuming the latter. But we are drifting into the lecture line, which, of all lines, is least fitted for Easter.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

Although I am passionately fond of home life, and esteem Diderot's ragged dressing-gown the most comfortable of all possible garments, and the "Old Arm-chair," once celebrated by Miss Eliza Cook, to be an article of furniture much more to be desiderated than the lordliest of foreign fauteuils, I am from time to time constrained, very much against my will, to go Out of Town—sometimes a very long way out, and at the very shortest notice. That I should be obliged occasionally to take the most unceremonious of French leaves of my patrons is (I can sincerely assure them) all the more distressing to me; as I am sure to find on my return a vast accumulation of letters from the great tribe of correspondents who, like Mr. Arthur Clennam, in "Little Dorrit," "Want to Know," and who are, no doubt, highly indignant because I am not always on the spot to answer their queries in the "Echoes."

For example, "Inquirer," writing from Bristol, is anxious for information touching the Hindu method of computing time. He is not satisfied with the explanation in a work called "The Faiths of the World" (Fullarton and Co., London and Edinburgh); and for that I am sorry, seeing that I should have referred him to the extensive compilation in question, in which (vol. ii., p. 929) it is stated, under the heading "Yug," that there are four yugs in Hindu chronology, and that the Brahmanical "kalpa" is equal to the whole period of the four yugs, and consists of 4,320,000,000 solar years, "which is a day of Brahma; and his night has the same duration." For further information I might refer "Inquirer" to Mr. Edwin Arnold, C.S.I., the author of "The Light of Asia." That gifted poet and accomplished scholar knows several billions more facts about Hindustan than I do. He is not a much busier person than I am; he is the most amiable and obliging of mankind; and but for the Post-Office regulations he would probably feel inclined to send me a dose of strychnine as a recompense for my endowing him with an additional correspondent.

Then, "A. E. C." writes from the Cape of Good Hope with reference to a statement as to the bibliography of the English translations of Rochefoucauld's "maxims" made by the late Mr. E. S. Dallas in an article in the Nineteenth Century. I entreat my esteemed correspondent at Cape Town to consult Notes and Queries. "W. F.," a gentleman engaged in military educational pursuits at Kamptee, Central India, writes me a very long letter about Euclid's Elements. "J. H. S.," Sheffield, asks for the correct pronunciation of the names "Villon" and "Gautier" (I have no personal remembrance of François Villon; but I knew Théophile Gautier well, and I think his name was pronounced "Goatyay"); and then "J. H. P., Greenhithe," would be obliged for a line or two of advice as to the best part of the United States for a doctor to settle in. Horace Greeley, when he was applied to for counsel by juvenile aspirants for employment, had one stereotyped reply—"Go West, young man." I might (following the Horatian maxim) say to my Greenhithe correspondent, "Go to Omaha, or to St. Paul's, Minnesota, and then begin to 'prospect about.'" If my own trade fell, I think that I should make for San Francisco, and try to obtain a situation as assistant to a photographer. The heliographic tribe have good times in El Dorado. As a man becomes richer and richer he naturally grows fonder and fonder of having himself, his wife, and his children photographed.

And what am I to say to "M. L.," who is much exercised as to whether the American people are still given to the use of what Mr. Thackeray used to call "expectoratoons"? I beg to state that I have a work on the United States (highly topographical, geological, statistical, and politico-economical) in the press; and that I have no wish to imperil its success by saying anything on the vexed question of "expectoratoons." And then "Le Mer," who contends that it was not a "steam jacket" which exploded on board the Great Eastern, but a cistern or tank to contain water for the purpose of feeding the boilers? What shall I say to him? "Le Mer" admits that at the time of the accident he was off the South African coast, and that he did not read the account of the explosion until some months afterwards. I can only repeat (from ocular observation) that it was a steam jacket, and not a cistern; only I should have said that it encircled the funnel instead of (as I erroneously put it) the mast.

Then a lady correspondent at Constantinople addresses me enthusiastically about the comfort and joy experienced by her only son, aged nine years, owing to his constant perusal of an excellent periodical for boys which she found recommended in the "Echoes." I am always delighted to give my small word of praise to journals calculated to train the minds of young people in the right direction;—journals that are wholesome, cheerful, and innocent, like the paper alluded to; like The Boys' Illustrated News, edited by Captain Mayne Reid and John Latey, jun., of which the first two numbers—bright, cheery, and entertaining, both in text and pictures—are now before me; like the publications of Messrs. Cassell; and like my dear old "Family Herald," in which was published seven and thirty years ago the first story that I ever wrote, and the monthly parts of which I still continue punctually to peruse.

But there must be a surcease in my "Answers to Correspondents." Next week I will endeavour to dispose of a few more kind friends who "Want to Know." I most respectfully beg my readers to bear in mind that I have been unavoidably absent from this page since Saturday, the Twelfth of March. I should have given notice, you may urge, of my intention to elope. Kind ladies and gentlemen, there was in me no guilty intention of running away. I had not the slightest idea of going out of town. In fact, I had made arrangements to deliver, on Saturday, the Nineteenth of March, in the drawing-room of one of the kindest and most hospitable ladies in London, a little twenty-five minutes' lecture called "Down Among the Mormons; or, Life in Salt Lake City." But I reckoned without Fate; and Fate forced me temporarily to suspend the "Echoes" and to disappoint my kind hostess, who will, I am afraid, never forgive me.

On Sunday, the Thirteenth of March, I was dining at a great house not far from Cavendish-square. Henry Irving, Frank Burnand, Arthur Cecil, and other celebrities were there, with many magnifices, whom I refrain from naming. Ere we sate down to table came to our host the copy of a telegram from the North to Prince Labanoff. "Sa Majesté est grièvement blessée." Thus ran the gist of that fateful message. By-and-bye arrived another despatch of even more direful purport. The Tsar Alexander II. had been assassinated. Immediately, mingled with horror at these appalling tidings, there came over me a mortal terror of the Printer's Devil. I slipped away from the table as soon as I could; and, dreading being run down by the Inky Fiend, conveyed to an office in Fleet-street, and kept until half-past two in the morning writing fantastic biographies of the murdered Emperor, I wandered furtively from club to club, and did not return to my own domicile until it was too late for the P. D. to wreak any harm on me.

But the Sooty Imp ran me down punctually on Monday. He assumed the guise of a person infinitely dearer to me than anyone else in the world. About two o'clock in the afternoon the person, who had been into the City, returned with a message from a Party therein. "Will you write a leading article about regicide?" said the person; "and a sub-leader on the high price of fish? and, after that, will you go to St. Petersburg?" I looked interrogatively at the person. "Yes," was the reply. "It will be dreadfully cold; but this is a case in which you ought to go; and you must go." So I pointed to one drawer in a bureau, and said "Passport," and to another drawer, saying "Bank;" and so sate down to my work, which I managed to finish by six o'clock. My passport had been visé for Russia, letters of credit procured, and all my packing completed while I was writing. I had time to dine comfortably, to run down to a saddler's and purchase a pigskin cigar-case capable of holding twenty-four regalias, and to fill my case at Mr. Carreras', in Princes-street; and at 8.5 p.m., I left Charing-cross for Dover.

So to Ostend. Delightfully calm passage. At noon on Tuesday, Cologne. Lovely spring weather in the Rhine country. At Berlin in time to dine at the Hôtel de Russie. I lost, to my great annoyance, a whole day in the not particularly agreeable capital of the German Kaiser, owing to the stupidity of the railway official at Ostend, who had wrongly registered my luggage. But on Wednesday night I left Berlin for Kœnigsberg; on Thursday, at half-past three, we crossed the Russian frontier at Wierzbolof (German, Wirballen), some five hundred miles from Petersburg; and by half-past six on Friday evening we reached the City of the Tsar itself. From the frontier to the banks of the Neva we found winter, and winter of the Arctic sort.

I spent twelve days of almost unmitigated wretchedness in the splendid metropolis to which I made my first journey nearly five-and-twenty years ago. Anything more intensely mournful and miserable than the aspect of St. Petersburg as I found it during my sojourn it would be difficult to conceive. Opera-houses, theatres, music-halls, all, of course, closed for an indefinite period. Black flags in all the streets. Black Care (apparently) sitting behind the statues of Peter I. and Nicolas I., bestriding their bronze chargers. The hotels crowded to overflowing with grandees bidden to the obsequies of the murdered Tsar, and who were all, seemingly, at a sad loss to know what to do with themselves till the funeral took place. A great deal of heavy eating and drinking of a silent sort going on. Consternation on most official faces. Too many official faces, generally speaking. Too much gendarme. Too much detective policeman. Too much spy. Too much mutual doubt and suspicion. His Imperial Majesty's Gaol, as a whole. That was the complexion to which St. Petersburg for the nonce had come. Sofia Perovskaya and the rest of the Nihilist assassins close prisoners in the casemates of the fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul; and the Emperor Alexander III. a prisoner not much less closely kept in the Anitchkoff Palace.

If I had not had a great deal of work by day and by night to do in this City of the Dead I think that I should have gone melancholy mad. As it was I was tied, so to speak, to the tail of a telegraphic wire, and felt uncomfortably galvanic. I used to fancy that the obliging cashier at Messrs. Thomson Bonars', the bankers from whom I was continually drawing large sums of money to pay for telegrams, had an idea that I was speculating on the Stock Exchange, or that I had taken to baccarat or to unlimited loo, and had been hit, heavily. In any case, I should be the most ill-conditioned of curmudgeons were I not to take the earliest opportunity of stating that for whatever success I may have obtained in the performance of a task, full of anxiety and difficulty, I am mainly indebted to the constant kindness and protection of his Excellency the Earl of Dufferin, her Majesty's Ambassador at the Court of St. Petersburg. I have had the honour to know Lord Dufferin for many years; but I lack words to express my gratitude for the invaluable assistance which his Lordship rendered me during a most momentous period.

In literary circles since my home-coming have I heard much talk, and rather unpleasant talk, concerning the not very decorous haste with which publicity was given to the "Reminiscences" of Thomas Carlyle, and the strictures passed therein, of some famous contemporaries of Mr. Carlyle's youth. One admires the genius and venerates the character of the grand old man so deeply that it is wretched to think of him deliberately sitting down ungratefully and unkindly to sneer at and disparage people who were kind to him when he was young, and obscure and poor.

Some passages, however, in these ill-timed "Reminiscences" have naturally provoked Mrs. Anne Benson Procter, the venerable yet brightly valid widow of that charming English lyrist "Barry Cornwall," to print "for private circulation" certain letters written by Mr. Carlyle between the years 1822 and 1830 to her mother, Mrs. Basil Montagu, and to her husband, Mr. Bryan W. Procter. In just two pages full of scathing indignation Mrs. Procter stigmatises sundry statements in the "Reminiscences" as "malignant lies;" and she points out that they are calculated to give pain not only to herself but to her children, her grandchildren, and a host of collateral kinsfolk and old friends of Mr. and Mrs. Montagu who are still living.

In the correspondence printed by the righteously wrathful relict of "Barry Cornwall" there is not much beyond expressions of gratitude for favours received, written in terms of so much adulation that one glances at the bottom of some of the sheets to see whether the smooth stuff is signed "Thomas Carlyle" or "Pertinax MacSycophant." Fancy the man who wrote "Sartor Resartus" "booing" in the following style to Mr. Procter:—

> My dear Sir,—I have long felt that I owed you a letter of the kindest thanks. Yet now I am not intending to repay you, but rather to increase my debt by a new request of favours. The case is this. I am since yesterday a candidate for the Moral Philosophy Professorship in the University of St. Andrew's, soon to be vacated by the transference of Dr. Chalmers to Edinburgh, and thus my task for the present is to dun all my friends who have a literary reputation for Testimonials in my behalf. . . . Your friend Mr. Jeffrey is my Palinurus, and forwards me with much heartiness. I may also reckon on the warm support of Wilson, Leslie, Brewster, and other men of mark in this City; and now I am writing to London for yours and Mr. Montagu's. . . . Shall I hope, then, to ornament my little list with two other names?

Thomas Carlyle with "a little list" and in want of names to "ornament" it! Well, what does all this prove? That there are spots on the Sun: not much more, I take it. Will the love and admiration felt by all true Carlylian scholars for the greatest English writer whom this age has seen be diminished one iota by the reminder that he was human, and that to err is human? Who is so sternly wise and upright that he has not had to "boo" now and again? Alighieri himself may have "booed" when bread was very hard to get. And as for that Bacon, whose works Mr. Basil Montagu edited so nobly, was he not continually bowing himself in the House of Rimmon?

"Echoes from Paris." I am very glad to welcome a confrère, or rather a sister, in a dainty little periodical, of which the fourth number has just been sent me, with the above title, published by Messrs. Strahan in London, and at Messrs. Galignani's Library in Paris, the chief object of which appears to be the furtherance of the admirable English Church Orphanage and Sanatorium in the French capital—institutions for which so much has been done by Miss Ada M. Leigh. These are good "Echoes"—I mean the Parisian ones, and I find in them, in addition to pleasant literary reading, much instructive information touching free registries for governesses and servants, Sunday Schools, a Young Women's Christian Association, Band of Hope meetings, and Bible and Singing classes; all for the benefit of the formerly neglected British community in Paris. Mademoiselle Echo, j'ai l'honneur de vous saluer.

A word or two about clubs. I believe that I am right in stating that his Excellency M. Challemel-Lacour, the Ambassador of France at this Court, has become a member of the Rabelais Club, and may be expected to preside at one of the coming festivals of that convivially erudite or eruditely convivial society. Then as regards the much talked about Falstaff Club (they knew all about it in St. Petersburg), I have to state that the club is established; that the transformation of "Evans's" into a palatial mansion will at once commence; and that the committee have begun to elect members. For further particulars apply to the secretary, Piazzas, Covent Garden.

Admirers of Thomas Bewick, the father of the Revival of Wood Engraving in England, and all lovers of beautiful books, will rejoice in the publication, in édition de luxe form, by the Fine-Art Society, New Bond-street, of Mr. F. G. Stephens's "Notes on the Collection of Drawings and Woodcuts" by Bewick, recently exhibited at the Fine-Art Society's rooms. The work also comprises a complete list of all works illustrated by Thomas and John Bewick, with the bibliography of the various editions, and it is illustrated by thirty-two splendid vignettes of "Father Thomas's" own designing and cutting. A choice tome indeed. The only fault I have to find with it is that the cover is a marvellously cunning imitation of antique leather binding, and that this skilfully simulated envelope will have to be stripped off when I send the book to be bound in whole morocco, extra.

I read about an endeavour to revive what may be termed "political pottery," in a memorial tankard, produced by Messrs. Mortlock at the request of Mr. Milnes Gaskell, in the shape of a triple-handed "tyg" of brown Doulton ware, designed to commemorate the return, for the first time in the history of the county of York, of six Liberal members for the West Riding. We have all heard of the "Rodney" Jug and the "Protestant Hero" Jug; but has any collector among my readers met with the ceramic cameo brooch executed by Josiah Wedgwood (was it designed by Flaxman?), and worn by the lady adherents of the Abolition of the Slave Trade? I have not Miss Meteyard's inestimable monograph of Wedgwood by me, and have only read about the cameo in Thomas Clarkson's History of Slave Trade Abolition.

This being Passion Week, we are going to press a day earlier than usual. I came back from Russia in as desperate a hurry as I went there, and have since been too tired to go to the play, save once, last Saturday, to the Haymarket, to see once more the delightful "Masks and Faces," with Mr. and Mrs. Bancroft and Mr. Arthur Cecil and Miss Marion Terry's admirable acting, and Mr. Lewis Wingfield's beautiful (and historically accurate) costumes. So there will be no Playhouses this week. At Eastertide I shall begin to grumble again. And, thank you, with all my heart, Mr. Clement Scott, for so promptly, gracefully, and efficiently filling my theatrical stall and the Playhouses column while I was out of town.

P.S.—The title of Messrs. Gilbert and Sullivan's new and anxiously expected "Comédie Chantante" is, I hear, "Patience; or, Bunthorne's Bride."

G. A. S.

THE GREAT REFRACTING TELESCOPE CONSTRUCTED AT DUBLIN FOR THE VIENNA OBSERVATORY.—SEE PAGE 366.

CHIOS, WHERE THE GREAT EARTHQUAKE TOOK PLACE ON SUNDAY, APRIL 3.

CASTRO, ISLAND OF CHIOS, DESTROYED BY THE EARTHQUAKE—SEE NEXT PAGE.

GREAT ASTRONOMICAL TELESCOPE.

The greatest refracting telescope in the world—Lord Rosse's is a reflecting telescope—has been constructed for the Vienna Observatory by Mr. Howard Grubb, at his celebrated manufactory of astronomical instruments, at Rathmines, near Dublin. It was visited and inspected last week by Earl Cowper, the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, who came after dark in the evening, and viewed the moon and planets through this magnificent instrument. We give an Illustration, from a sepia drawing of it by Mr. G. Browning; and we abridge the following account of it from descriptions already published:—

The idea of crowning the observatory at Vienna with a refracting telescope of surpassing power was conceived by the Austro-Hungarian Government about five years ago. Such a building was worthy of the best instrument that could be constructed. Every visitor to the Austrian capital must be struck by it, standing upon a site of between fourteen and fifteen acres at a height of 200 ft. above the city, and extending 330 ft. in length and 240 ft. in width. Desiring to possess the finest telescope which could be procured, the Government commissioned Dr. Edward Weiss, now Director-General of the Observatory at Vienna, to visit all the principal observatories and workshops in the world. He recommended that the task should be confided to Mr. Grubb, of Dublin, who was ordered to construct a refracting telescope of at least 26 in. aperture. A commission was appointed by the Austro-Hungarian Government to superintend the work. It was composed of the following gentlemen:—The Earl of Crawford and Balcarres, Dr. Higgins, the Earl of Rosse, Professor Stokes, of Cambridge, Professor Ball, Astronomer Royal for Ireland, Dr. Stoney, secretary of the Queen's University in Ireland, many years connected with Lord Rosse's observatory, Dr. E. Reynolds, professor of chemistry, Trinity College, Dublin, and Mr. Walsh, Austro-Hungarian Consul in Dublin. On the 16th ult. the Commissioners reported their unanimous approval of the finished instrument.

The general form of the telescope is that known as Grubb's modified gramme, and is similar to the well-known standard equatorial which he constructed for the Earl of Crawford and Balcarres, Dr. Huggins, Oxford University, Berlin, Cork, and other places. It possesses all the modern improvements and special arrangements of an ingenious character, which are rendered desirable by its great size. The length of the tube is 33 ft. 6 in., and the aperture is 27 in. The tube is entirely of steel, 3½ ft. in diameter in the centre, and tapering to each end. The entire moving parts, including the tube, polar, and declination axis, counterpoise and various adjustments weigh between six and seven tons; yet the whole apparatus is under such control that one person can move it about and manipulate it with the utmost ease. The mechanism is remarkable for its solidity and strength, as well as for its exquisite delicacy.

In order to render the motion of such ponderous instruments sufficiently easy, the makers are generally obliged to reduce the diameter of the axes, particularly that known as the declination axis, to an extent that makes one almost alarmed for their safety, to say nothing of their stability. Mr. Grubb, however, has mastered the difficulties of the position by a peculiar and most interesting system of equipoise, by which he is enabled to make his axes so large and solid as to ensure stability and give perfect confidence without sacrificing the ease of motion. The application of antifriction apparatus to the polar axis has been already successfully effected, and was a simple problem, but Mr. Grubb has the exclusive merit of applying it to the declination axis, which is a task of great and complicated difficulty, demanding the highest scientific skill.

Another remarkable feature in the work is the ingenious arrangement by which the circle can be read with the utmost ease and certainty. It is usually a very troublesome operation with large telescopes to read the circle, and when the circles are about 20 ft. or more from the ground the labour and delay which it involves are very formidable. In Mr. Grubb's instrument, the circles are carefully and accurately divided on a band of gold, and by a system of reflectors, at once beautifully simple and ingenious, the observer can without stirring from his chair read all the circles of the instruments through one little reader telescope attached to the side of the main telescope tube.

The setting of the telescope is massive and graceful. The frame on which it rests down to the ground level is of cast iron, and there are chambers of considerable size at the base. In the lower one, which is entered by a door at the end, is a clock for driving the instrument in order to follow the paths of the heavenly bodies. The castings of which the frame is formed are about ten tons weight, and are of simple but not inelegant design. The clockwork is controlled by Mr. Grubb's novel frictional governor, and is also furnished with his new electric control apparatus. There are two right ascension circles, each 2 ft. in diameter, one read from the eye end of the telescope and the other from the ground floor. The declination circle is 5 ft. in diameter, and is read from the eye end of the telescope. All the circles are divided on an alloy of half pure gold and half pure silver, which is found to be very white and not liable to corrode or tarnish.

The material for the object glasses was procured from M. Feil, of Paris. The protracted delay in procuring this material for the work was a subject of great anxiety to Mr. Grubb, and occasioned heavy additional outlay on his part. In October, 1879, however, discs, were obtained which in working gave good promise, and in December last he was able to report the work finished, his part of it being, in fact, accomplished in less than half the time stipulated by the agreement with the Austro-Hungarian Government. His task was practically trebled by the difficulty experienced in obtaining pure discs. The success of his undertaking is regarded with great satisfaction and with national pride. He has supplied equipments to most of the modern observatories, but this telescope is his greatest achievement.

Since the erection of the instrument, and its approval by the commission, Mr. Grubb has given as much facility as circumstances would permit to the scientific public for visiting the instrument. Applications for such admissions have enormously outnumbered the number it was possible to accommodate, notwithstanding which some 1500 people have been enabled to satisfy their curiosity within the last few weeks. In the foreground of this Illustration is shown an eight-inch Equatorial, similar in size to that which Mr. Grubb exhibited at last Paris Exhibition, which obtained the gold medal. Such an instrument would have been considered very large a few years ago, but a comparison of it with the Vienna telescope will give a good idea of the superior proportions of the latter.

---

In addition to Mr. Gladstone, the Marquis of Hartington and Earl Granville have provisionally accepted invitations for the banquet of the Fishmongers' Company on the 27th inst.

The Duke of Argyll has resigned the office of Lord Privy Seal, on account of a difference with his colleagues on some of the provisions of the Irish Land Bill. Lord Carlingford succeeds him in the office.

THE EARTHQUAKE IN CHIOS.

The most terrible disaster of this kind in recent times, causing the destruction of several thousand human lives, befell the small island of Chios, or Scio, in the Grecian Archipelago, on Sunday week. This is one of the islands still belonging to the Turks in the Ægean Sea, fifty-three miles west of Smyrna, and five miles from Cape Blanco, in Asia Minor. It is about thirty-two miles long and eighteen broad. In the middle ages the island fell into the possession of the Genoese, but in the sixteenth century it was taken by the Turks. In 1822 a Greek force landed on the island, and, being joined by a part of the inhabitants of the chief town, they attacked the citadel and overpowered the small Turkish garrison. This led to a terrible act of retaliation. A Turkish force having landed, the entire island was laid waste, its towns pillaged, and most of the inhabitants either massacred or carried off and sold as slaves. According to the latest information the island had a population of nearly eighty thousand. It has a delightful climate, and the fertility of a great part of its soil has enabled its industrious inhabitants to carry on a considerable trade with Constantinople, Syria, and Egypt. The island claims, in opposition to Smyrna and other places, to have been the birthplace of Homer; and this is alluded to in a familiar line of Byron's "Childe Harold:"

The blind old man of Scio's rocky isle.

A correspondent of the Times, who has visited Chios, says that such a picture of desolation he had rarely witnessed. "The town looks as if it had been subjected to a terrible bombardment; hundreds of houses have been transformed into a shapeless mass of ruins, under which lie buried an unknown number of victims. A majority of the remaining houses, already cracked and roofless, may fall at any moment. Nearly every building in the town has suffered more or less severely. The unhappy inhabitants wander about, anxious to search for missing relatives and lost property, but afraid to risk their lives in the perilous work of clearing away the rubbish. Many who are willing to expose themselves to the danger are prevented by their friends or the police. Fear, grief, and despair are depicted in nearly every face, and all have some sad or tragic tale to tell. A medical commission is sitting to consider whether it would not be well to refrain from removing the rubbish in the fortress, and cover it over with earth; for there is no hope of saving any lives, and the disinterment of the dead at present might produce epidemic. At present it is believed that throughout the whole island, which contains some 70,000 inhabitants, from six or seven thousand have been killed, and nearly 25 per cent of the survivors wounded. Some wonderful escapes have occurred. One woman was buried under the ruins for fifty-two hours, and at last was rescued, having given birth meantime to a child. The latter is dead, but the mother is doing well."

An account sent by telegraph last Monday states that, of three thousand houses in the town of Castro, not one hundred are now left in a habitable condition. The whole surviving population of the town is camped out in gardens and fields. Some are sheltered in tents and sheds, but others have to lie in the open air with no kind of shelter. A Relief Committee is distributing food to the destitute, and field ovens have been erected for baking bread. Many of the sufferers have been conveyed to Smyrna, but about two hundred are now in hospital at Castro. In addition to these, a large number of sick and injured remain unattended in the fields and in sheds, being unable to get removed to the hospitals, whilst in some cases the people are unwilling to go there owing to fear of the amputation of their limbs. This correspondent has obtained some particulars of the losses in other parts of the island which have suffered most severely. In the district of Kampos, which is south of Castro, there were ten villages. In Kalimasia, the largest of the villages, six hundred and seventy persons were killed, and one hundred and fifty were injured. In four other large villages three hundred and fifty-nine were killed and one hundred and eleven injured. The fact of so large a proportion being killed is explained by the structure of the houses in which the people lived. The houses, which were built of stone and without wood, were mostly very lofty, and in falling they consequently did more destruction. Some idea of the calamity can be formed by comparing these figures with the forty-four villages which have been destroyed. The Convent of Neamouti, built on the slope of the cliff, was swept bodily over a precipice, burying all the inmates except one.

There is great difficulty in sending help to the villagers whose houses have been destroyed, owing to want of communication; but there are numerous relief committees at work in the island, though the confusion is indescribable.

Her Majesty's ship Thunderer has been ordered to go from Malta, and the Bittern and the Antelope have proceeded to the same destination from Constantinople, to assist in relieving the terrible distress now existing in the island. Another ship will be dispatched if required. The Kingdom of Greece as well as the Turkish Government, has sent vessels with provisions and medical men to relieve the sufferers in Chios. The Lord Mayor of London has opened a subscription at the Mansion House, which already amounts to £13,000. There were several renewed shocks of earthquake on Monday last, causing more loss of life.

---

MUSIC.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

This establishment is to reopen for Italian opera performances on Saturday, May 7, Mr. Mapleson announcing, among other important features, the re-engagement of Madame Christine Nilsson, who is to repeat her fine performance as Margaret and Helen of Troy, in Signor Boito's "Mefistofele," which was brought out at Her Majesty's Theatre so late in last year's season that but few representations could then be given of a work whose success will doubtless render it a source of repeated attraction.

Another important feature in Mr. Mapleson's programme is the promised revival of Rossini's "Semiramide," with the title-character filled—for the first time—by Madame Nilsson, who will doubtless give its full musical and dramatic significance to the part.

Madame Gerster is named as the representative of the heroine in the probable production of a new grand opera composed by Baron Bodog D'Orczy (an Hungarian amateur), Italianised as "Il Rinnegato," the overture to which has already been heard at our New Philharmonic and Crystal Palace Concerts.

Other more or less familiar and welcome names in the list of engagements are those of Madame Trebelli, Mdlles. Lehmann, Tremelli, De Belocca, Vanzandt, Ricci, Dotti, and Valerga; Signori Campanini, Fancelli, Runcio, Ravelli, and Mr. Maas, Signori Galassi, Del Puente, Rota, Nannetti, and Monti—Signori Corsini and Novara being announced to make their first appearances.

The orchestra and chorus will be similar to those of past seasons, and the office of musical director and conductor is again to be worthily filled by Signor Arditi—occasionally relieved by Signor Faccio—Madame Katti Lanner continuing her skilled superintendence of the ballet department, in which Mdlle. Cavalazzi's name reappears as principal dancer.

During the season, concerts are to be given at the Royal Albert Hall and St. James's Hall, supported by the principal artists of the company.

---

Last week's concert of the Bach Choir—the second of this year's series—opened with a performance of Bach's Sanctus in D, for four-part chorus, orchestra and organ; the orchestral accompaniments having been rewritten by Mr. E. Prout; in which shape the work was given by the same society last year, when we commented on its merits. The "Sanctus" was followed by Handel's "Alexander's Feast," ending with the grand chorus, "Let old Timotheus," one of the many special examples of the composer's powers in fugal writing. In this, in the beautiful movement (on a "ground bass") "The many rend the skies," and in one or two other instances, the chorus-singing was more satisfactory than it had been in the "Sanctus." The vocal solos in Handel's work were effectively rendered by Mrs. Osgood, Mr. E. Lloyd, and Mr. Santley. The concert closed with Brahms's "Requiem," a work which has too often been noticed by us to need fresh remark now. The choral portions were generally well sung, as were the incidental solo passages which were assigned to Mrs. Osgood and Mr. Santley. Mr. Otto Goldschmidt conducted and Mr. T. Pettit presided at the organ and the pianoforte. Bach's mass in B minor is to be given by the choir at the next concert, on May 18.

On Thursday week the Philharmonic Society gave the fourth concert of the sixty-ninth season, the programme having included a repetition of Berlioz's "Romeo and Juliet" symphony. Of the production of this remarkable and elaborate work, and its highly effective performance at the second concert, we spoke at the time. Its second rendering here presented the same merits as before, the solo singers on this occasion having been Miss Hope Glenn, Mr. F. Boyle, and Signor Ghilberti. Madame Montigny-Rémaury gave an excellent performance of Beethoven's first pianoforte concerto (in C major); and the overture to Mozart's "Le Nozze di Figaro," and that to Wagner's "Tannhauser," completed the instrumental selection. Mr. Sims Reeves sang, with fine expression, Beethoven's "Liederkreis" and two songs by Schubert and Mendelssohn, well accompanied by Mr. Cocnen. Mr. Cusins conducted the orchestral performances with his usual ability.

A few lines may suffice to record the fine performance of Mr. Arthur Sullivan's sacred musical drama, "The Martyr of Antioch," at the Royal Albert Hall on Thursday week, conducted by the composer, the principal solo vocalists having been Mesdames Albani and Patey, Mr. E. Lloyd, and Mr. F. King, as at the production of the work at last year's Leed's festival, and recently at St. James's Hall. The Prince of Wales was present. The first part of the concert was appropriated to Brahms' "Song of Destiny," conducted by Mr. Barnby. The chorus-singing in each work was especially good.

Handel's "Samson" (with Sir M. Costa's additional accompaniments) was performed by the Sacred Harmonic Society yesterday (Friday) week. The oratorio contains some of its composer's finest choral writing, and this was effectively rendered on the occasion now referred to, particularly the movements "Then round about the starry throne," "Fix'd in His everlasting seat," and "Let their celestial concerts." Miss A. Marriott was greatly applauded for her delivery of the air "Let the bright seraphim" (with the skilful trumpet obbligato of Mr. T. Harper)—other effective solo performances having been those of Madame Patey in the contralto solos, especially "Return, O God of Hosts;" of Mr. Maas in the airs "Total eclipse," "Why does the God of Israel sleep?" and "Thus when the sun," Mr. Bridson in the martial song "Honour and arms," and Mr. F. King in the air "How willing my paternal love." The duet, "Go, baffled coward" (Mr. Maas and Mr. Bridson) was encored. Sir M. Costa conducted, and Mr. Willing presided at the organ, as usual.

Last Saturday's Crystal Palace concert brought forward M. Tivadar Nachéz, a violinist, who appeared for the first time there, and was favourably received in his execution of Mendelssohn's concerto and some characteristic Hungarian gipsy dances of the player's own composition. Of his merits we must await another opportunity to speak in detail. Neither the orchestral nor the vocal selection contained any absolute novelty, the latter having been well rendered by Mdlle. Pyk.

The twenty-third season of the Popular Concerts closed on Monday evening, the last afternoon performance having taken place on the previous Saturday. On each occasion Madame Schumann and Herr Joachim contributed to a programme of special interest, although devoid of novelty. On Monday the lady played, with fine effect, Robert Schumann's charming pieces for pianoforte solo, entitled "Carnaval," Herr Joachim and Herr Straus having given an admirable rendering of one of Spohr's duets for two violins. The first-named gentleman was associated with Miss Zimmermann in some of Brahms's Hungarian dances arranged for violin and pianoforte, the lady having played, with much effect, two movements for piano solo by Bach and Scarlatti. Another specialty was Signor Piatti's exquisite performance, on the violoncello, of two extracts from a sonata by Veracini. Beethoven's string quartet in E flat, op. 74 (by the gentlemen already named and Mr. L. Ries), and vocal pieces expressively sung by Mdlle. Pyk, completed an excellent concert. Mr. Zerbini was the accompanist, as usual. The resumption of these performances, early in November, will be eagerly looked for.

A concert, including the co-operation of many eminent artists, was announced to be given at St. James's Hall on Thursday evening, for the benefit of that excellent institution the Metropolitan Police Orphanage.

A concert was announced for Tuesday evening by the Kensington Amateur Orchestral Society. The performances, at the new Townhall, were for the benefit of the Industrial Home for Crippled Boys, Kensington.

"The Messiah" was performed on Good Friday evening by the Royal Albert Hall Choral Society, under the conductorship of Mr. Barnby. The solo vocalists were Miss Anna Williams, Madame Patey, Mr. Maas, and Mr. Thurley Beale.

Much interest is felt in the forthcoming farewell oratorio performances of Mr. Sims Reeves at the Royal Albert Hall, the dates of which are the evenings of April 27, May 4, 18, and 25, June 15, 22, and 29, and the morning of July 9. The concerts are to be given by the Royal Albert Hall Choral Society, conducted by Mr. Barnby, and the list of solo singers includes the names of Mesdames Albani, Christine Nilsson, Trebelli, and Patey, Mr. E. Lloyd, Mr. Santley, and Signor Foli. "Judas Maccabæus" is the oratorio selected for the first concert.

The Festival of the Three Choirs has been fixed to be held at the cathedral in Worcester in the first week in September next, and the preliminary arrangements are being forwarded, the following leading vocalists having just been engaged:—Madame Albani, Madame Patey, Miss Hilda Wilson, Miss Anna Williams, Miss Annie Marriott, and Mr. E. Lloyd as leading tenor. The other tenors and basses are not yet named. The band is made up, chiefly from London, with M. Sainton as leader. The chorus will be on the usual scale of efficiency.

PARISIAN SAYINGS AND DOINGS.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Paris, Monday, April 11.

The Tunisian question is naturally uppermost in the public mind at the present moment. On Thursday the Chamber granted the credits demanded by the Ministers of War and Marine "for repressing, with all the vigour that the situation demands, the acts that have been committed on the frontiers of Algeria on the confines of the Regency of Tunis." It must be remarked that up to the present the expedition against the Kroumirs is not characterised as a war; if it were a "war" the terms of the Constitution would require the consent of the Chambers before operations could be begun. The credits demanded were, it may be remarked, comparatively small—four millions of francs for the Minister of War and 1,695,276f. for the Minister of Marine. The attitude of the Bey of Tunis seems likely to render the Tunisian question more serious than the French authorities at first anticipated. An anti-French feeling still predominates in Tunisian territory, and the Italian Consul Maccio is agitating amongst the Arab populations by means of a journal, the Mostakel, which preaches a holy war against the French. Great indignation is shown by the press at the Bey's refusal to co-operate with France in punishing the Kroumirs, and at the protest against France which he has addressed to the Powers. The part which the Italians are taking in the anti-French agitation is also severely commented upon.

The affairs of Tunis and the dispatch of French forces to the Algerian frontier have provoked another campaign of hardly less interest to the French public; it is the campaign undertaken by several moderate journals against the slowness of the Ministry of War. This little expedition, as La France observes, is a thermometer which all Europe is watching with anxiety. If this thermometer allows a doubt as to the energy or decision of France everything is possible. Strange stories are told of disorganisation at the War Office, of stupid orders, of unaccountable delays. In dealing with a tribe like the Kroumirs the Minister of War surely ought not to require a fortnight to know where to find his soldiers. One thing is certain, the greater the delay before energetic and active measures are taken, the more complicated the matter becomes. If France had dispatched forces at once, instead of being obliged to make a great stir and fuss in her arsenals and ports for a fortnight together, the European press would not have had time to comment and put insidious interpretations upon preparations that are, after all, up to the present at least, not very formidable.

On Saturday the Chamber of Deputies began the discussion of the report of the Committee appointed to inquire into the charges brought against General de Cissey. The outlines of this affair, which made so much noise in the Parisian press last year, are doubtless fresh in the reader's mind. General de Cissey was accused of treason direct and of indirect treason, through his relations with the Baroness de Kaulla, the separated wife of Lieutenant-Colonel Jung, who was declared to be a Prussian spy, and a person who had already been the subject of police surveillance. These charges were brought by certain journals, notably by M. Henri Rochefort, with a levity and obstinacy only equalled by their total lack of evidence. The Parliamentary Committee, after a long and searching inquiry, have found that all the charges made against General de Cissey were groundless. The Chamber unanimously adopted the conclusion that General de Cissey was not guilty of treason. There was a charge of malversation brought against the General, on which the Chamber will hear a long report to-morrow. But in reality the De Cissey affair is at an end. The Parisian press, as a whole, comes out of the matter with a terrible shtr. How can the public have confidence in papers which so readily give credence to the vaguest and the most groundless calumny?

The progress of the seasons and the course of the year is marked in the external life of Paris by a succession of little events which are to the lounger—the flâneur as the French say—a sovereign remedy against ennui. The Parisians retain a certain rusticity in their observance of feasts and fasts, and they look forward to their annual fairs with the expectation of country people. Now is the time of the annual ham and pork fair, and of the gingerbread fair, which take place on the Boulevard Richard Lenoir and around the Place du Trône, and on the road to Vincennes. Yesterday the streets were full of people carrying sprigs of boxwood which had been dipped in holy water, and which are esteemed a better remedy against fire than any fire-engine ever invented, the theory being that prevention is better than cure. In the confectioners' and toy-shops poissons d'avril have yielded the place to Easter eggs. Almost every week in the year is marked by some little observance of this kind. As for the ham fair, it is a most curious sight, and succulent and appetising withal, for the French in the matter of cooking and preparing the pig, and in the charcutier's art, have long been famous. They do not make good bacon, but in the varieties of sausages, rillettes, hures, brawns, &c., they excel. The gingerbread fair is one of the largest fairs in existence. The mystery is what becomes of the vast quantities of gingerbread sold? Imagine that for several centuries past the town of Reims has been gravely occupied in manufacturing this ridiculous mixture of honey and rye, and moulding quaint statues in the style of Epinal images!

The opening of the Salon is looked forward to with great expectation in the artistic world. This year, for the first time, the artists have managed the whole affair without the intervention of the Government. The juries have been elected by the artists themselves; all privileges have been abolished, and every picture has been admitted exclusively on its own merits. It was decided that the number of oil-paintings admitted should be limited to 2500. On Saturday last the jury finished its operations, having chosen only 2420 pictures. A part of the jury wished to make a new revision in order to make up the number of 2500, but the majority was opposed to this revision. It is needless to say that the jury has been very severe, and amongst the artists whose works have been refused are not a few who have hitherto been exempt from examination and figured as "Hors Concours." This year it is expected that the Salon will gain in quality what it loses in quantity.

In England as in France, people talk a great deal about Zola without having read his books; he is just as much the hero of a fantastic legend on the other side of the Channel as he is on this side. The so-called disciples of Zola are the victims of the same indifference of the public to truth. In time, perhaps, the critics and chroniqueurs, the gommeux and club-men, will grow tired of feeble joking and affected disgust, and read the literature of the young generation before they talk about it. I permit myself to make these remarks à propos of the publication of two volumes—one a novel, "Une Belle Journée," by Henry Céard, the other a volume of dramatic criticism, in which M. Emile Zola discusses some of his most famous contemporaries, called "Nos Auteurs Dramatiques." Both these volumes are published by Charpentier, of Paris. T. C.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

SPAIN.

A brilliant ceremony took place in the Palace at Madrid last Saturday, on the occasion of the official investiture of the little Princess of the Asturias. The Ministers, the Grandees, and a great number of ladies attended in the Presence Chamber, where the King and Queen received a deputation with presents from the province of Asturias. The Queen placed on the Princess's breast the Cross of Pelayo, and requested that the money offering might be given to the historical shrine of Cavadonga. The King made an eloquent address to the Commissioners.

The Mayor of Seville telegraphs that the waters are retreating and that the alarm has passed. A "Te Deum" had been sung in the cathedral, and active preparations were being made for the processions of Holy Week and the festivities of Easter. The losses from the floods are considerable.

ITALY.

At the opening of the sitting of the Chamber of Deputies yesterday week Signor Cairoli announced that, in consequence of the vote on the Tunisian question, the Ministry had placed their resignation in the hands of the King. Signor Cairoli begged the Chamber in the meantime to continue its labours, and proceed with the discussion of bills of an administrative character. In Saturday's sitting a grant of 50,000 lire was voted for the International Geographical Congress at Venice. The Senate has passed a bill abolishing the forced paper currency.

The Chambers have adjourned until after Easter, and in the meantime the new Ministry will be constructed.

GERMANY.

The Emperor gave a dinner on the 7th inst. to a select company of forty, amongst the guests being Count Münster, and General Prince Suwaroff, the special Envoy of the Czar, with his companion, Colonel Prince Engalitcheff. The Emperor conferred high decorations upon them, and they left Berlin on Sunday for Rome.

The Crown Prince of Denmark left Berlin on Sunday afternoon for Denmark, after having paid and received the usual courtly attentions, among these being a visit to both Prince Bismarck and Marshal Moltke.

Generals Tchertkoff and Prince Galitzin arrived at Berlin yesterday week from Russia on a special mission; and General von Werder, the Military Representative of the German Emperor at St. Petersburg, has also made his appearance there.

AUSTRIA-HUNGARY.

In the sitting of the Upper House of the Reichsrath yesterday week the discussion of Herr Leinbacher's School Bill was continued, and the draught of the majority of the Committee, which essentially modifies the bill as passed by the Lower House, was adopted by 77 votes against 32.

The Austrian Parliament has risen for the Easter vacation. The Legislature will reassemble on the 27th inst.

A convention for the conversion of the Six per Cent Hungarian Gold Rente into Four per Cents was concluded yesterday week between the Hungarian Minister of Finance and a syndicate composed of Messrs. Rothschild and the Credit Anstalt.

About 100,000 acres of arable land in Hungary have been flooded by an overflow of the Theiss, owing to the breaking of a dam at Merezel.

INDIA.

The Times correspondent at Candahar telegraphs that the evacuation of the city was to begin on the 13th inst., and to be completed by the 22nd. A portion of General Hume's force will remain at Quetta. The Calcutta correspondent of the same paper says that the rumours of Ayoub Khan's desperate position at Herat are not confirmed.

Sir Frederick Haines, the late Commander-in-Chief in India, left Bombay on the 7th inst. for England. Full military honours were accorded him on his departure.

---

The revenue of Nova Scotia for the current year is estimated at 506,000 dols., and the expenditure at 504,000 dols.

The Indiana House of Assembly has, by a large majority, passed a resolution conferring upon women the right to vote at State elections.

A shock of earthquake was felt throughout the centre of California at two o'clock on Sunday morning; but no serious damage was done.

Sir Robert Biddulph, the High Commissioner in Cyprus, attended the examination of the scholars at the English public school at Nicosia on Friday evening, and expressed his great satisfaction at the rapid progress made by the pupils.

Among tokens of the vitality of the International Exhibition at Melbourne is the appearance of a paper called "The Exhibition Visitors' Programme," extending to eight pages, and published daily. The "Programme," which comprises much information concerning the exhibition and the sights and amusements of Melbourne and its neighbourhood, had reached on March 2 its 129th number.

The Cologne Gazette says that a colossal statue of the Norwegian poet Herik Wergeland, who was born in 1808 and died in 1845, has been erected at Christiania, on the Eidswoldsplatz, opposite the Storthing. It is to be unveiled on May 17, the date on which, in 1814, the first Norwegian Storthing, at Eidswold, accepted the National Constitution. Bjoernson, who is at present in America, is to deliver the festal speech.

Mr. Suter, an Englishman, the agent of a mining company near Salonica, has been carried off by a band of brigands, who demand £15,000 for his ransom, and threaten all kinds of fearful reprisals in event of non-payment. Mrs. Suter was also seized by the brigands, but was subsequently released. Mr. Suter was for some time during the Russo-Turkish war an assistant correspondent of the Daily Telegraph in the Dobrudscha, and proved himself courageous and enterprising. Mr. Goschen has informed the Porte that he must hold it responsible for the safety of Mr. Suter and for the payment of the ransom demanded by the brigands.

THE VOLUNTEER REVIEW.

The Easter Volunteer Review, at Brighton, or elsewhere, has usually occasioned, in former years, some interesting scenes at the departure of several "crack" London Volunteer Corps, a day or two beforehand, from the Victoria station, or by other routes, chosen at their own discretion. But there is a considerable change in the arrangements for this week; and the following is the general plan, issued by Lieutenant-Colonel Drew on Monday, for a combined advance on Brighton by a force consisting of detachments of the 1st London Engineers, 1st Middlesex Engineers, 3rd Middlesex Artillery, 8th Surrey Rifles, 4th Middlesex Rifles, and 10th Middlesex Rifles, to commence on Good Friday:—"The troops are to leave by train from London Bridge and Victoria on Good Friday morning, and on arrival at Three Bridges will be formed in brigade on the open land south of the Crawley-road, about 300 yards from the railway bridge, to the west, in line of quarter columns facing south, Artillery on the right, Engineers and the provisional battalion of Rifles of the right and left columns in succession to the left. The columns will advance with every precaution as to advanced guards and patrols. A short halt will be made every hour for about five minutes. Each hour's march will cover about two miles and a half, and at each halt the advanced party will be relieved, and at every other halt both the support and advanced party will be changed. Small patrols will be furnished from the supports, and strong patrols from the reserve. By this arrangement it is suggested that each corps will march under its own officers and have its share of the work and interest of the march. On the first day there is to be a combined advance on Cuckfield by the two roads running east and west of Tilgate Forest." Our Illustration shows the scene at the departure of the Artists' Corps from the Victoria station.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

In spite of the hardness of the ground, which is by no means in a fit state for steeplechasing or even hurdle-jumping, a capital little meeting took place at Warwick at the end of last week. Sir George Chetwynd is in such wonderful form just now that nothing was backed with any spirit for the Leamington Hurdle Handicap except Gil Blas (11 st. 1 lb.), who, however, tired dreadfully in the run in, and was easily beaten by Episcopus (10 st. 7 lb.). Still, two events fell to the popular Baronet during the afternoon, and, in the Stoneleigh Plate, Comely, fresh from her Northampton victory, but with all the worst of the weights, made short work of the Pero Gomez—Lady of the Lea colt, who gained a cheap reputation by running away from a very moderate field at Liverpool. Old Cock Robin (10 st. 11 lb.) was very well in the chief steeplechase, and made the running at a pace that had quite settled his two opponents when it came to racing; and the unfashionably bred Sebred took a couple of events, including the chief handicap. The Hunters' Steeplechase went to Professor, who, though he carried a welter weight and was running beyond his distance, had really nothing to beat.

Messrs. Barber and Jones were successful in promoting a very good meeting at Alexandra Park on Friday and Saturday last, the attendance on the latter day being, perhaps, the best on record. Backers had a wonderfully good time of it, and Wood, who has made a grand beginning this season, rode no less than four winners on the second day.

The thirty-seventh race between Oxford and Cambridge, or what is commonly known as the "battle of the blues," took place on Friday morning last, and the result once more proved the truth of the saying that the public are the best judges of public form. The Oxonians were established firm favourites very early in the year—in fact, from the moment speculation was indulged in—a position which they held right up to the finish of the struggle, and fully justified. Five steam-boats were chartered and allowed to accompany the race, one for the umpire, Mr. R. L. Lloyd, two for the 'Varsities, the fourth carrying the representatives of the press, and an extra craft for the convenience of the old "Blues," who on Thursday celebrated a postponed jubilee of the first inter-'Varsity race. These were all in position before a quarter past eight o'clock Soon after this the rivals made their appearance, and paddled to their respective stations, Oxford having won the toss, of course selecting the sheltered Middlesex side of the river. At 8.34, everything being ready, Mr. Searle, who was stationed in a waterman's boat between the two crews, gave the usual word "Go!" and the struggle commenced, with such an utter absence of flurry or hurry, that one could scarcely realise that the start had taken place. The Oxford stroke got the first grip of the water, striking at the rate of 36 strokes per minute, whilst the Light Blues were taking a stroke less. At the London Rowing Club's boat-house they were as nearly as possible dead level, both rowing cleanly, and without any splashing or irregularity. The Oxonians made the bishop's Creek in 1 min. 20 sec.; and were there leading by about six feet only, but were holding their place at 34 strokes to the others' 36 per minute. Approaching the Concrete Wall, Cambridge looked like drawing up, and were almost level by the old half-mile post. By the top of the Concrete Wall Oxford were some six yards in front, and this was not altered as the Grass Wharf was passed, in 4 min. 42½ sec. Up to this time there were not any signs of weakness or failing in either boat, Cambridge performing fully up to the form shown in their trials, whilst their opponents were exhibiting far better style and pace than they were ever credited with possessing. Passing the Soap Works, reached in 7 min. 13 sec., the Dark Blues still held an advantage of about six yards, which, however, on West spurting, was converted into a good half length as Hammersmith Bridge was shot. From this point the race was never in doubt, and, although the Cantabs struggled gamely, and fought for every inch of water, Oxford steadily forged ahead, and ultimately passed the post at Mortlake the easiest of winners by about three lengths, the time occupied in covering the course being 21 min. 52 sec.

The Old Carthusians and Old Etonians played off the final tie of the English Association Challenge Cup at Kennington Oval on Saturday afternoon, and, after a good game which lasted an hour and a half, the former team won by three goals to none. The losers tried their best, but were fairly beaten by want of condition before half time was called. The match was witnessed by upwards of five thousand spectators, and the following are the names and positions of the teams:—

Old Carthusians: L. F. Gillett (goal), E. G. Colvin and W. H. Norris (backs), J. F. M. Prinsep and J. Vintcent (half-backs), E. H. Parry (captain) and A. H. Tod (lefts), W. R. Page and E. G. Wynyard (centres), W. E. Hensell and L. M. Richards (rights).

Old Etonians: Hon. A. F. Kinnaird (captain) and B. Farrer (half-backs), C. W. Foley and T. H. French (backs), J. P. Rawlinson (goal), R. H. Macaulay and H. E. Goodhart (centres), H. E. Whitfeld and P. C. Novelli (lefts), W. J. Anderson and J. B. T. Chevallier (rights).

On Tuesday afternoon the annual four-handed racquet-match between the representatives of Oxford and Cambridge was decided at Prince's Club, Hamilton-place, Belgravia. Messrs. C. T. Studd (Trinity) and A. G. Steel (Trinity Hall) represented Cambridge, whilst the Oxford pair were C. F. H. Leslie (Oriel) and M. C. Kemp (Hertford). Contrary to general expectations, the match proved a most one-sided affair, as the two Cantabs, playing in most brilliant form, scored an easy victory by four games to one. The umpires were Messrs. Alfred Lyttelton and W. E. Dennison.

---

The trial of Mrs. Susan Willis Fletcher for defrauding Mrs. Hart-Davies of £10,000 worth of jewellery, at the Central Criminal Court, was brought to a close on Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Justice Hawkins having summed up, the jury found the defendant guilty on the first, second, third, and fourth counts. They also found her guilty of conspiring with her husband and Morton to secure the making of the will. She was sentenced to be imprisoned and kept to hard labour for twelve months.

THE VOLUNTEER REVIEW: DEPARTURE OF THE ARTISTS' CORPS FROM VICTORIA RAILWAY STATION.—SEE PAGE 367.

OFFICERS KILLED IN THE TRANSVAAL WAR.

We present the portraits of two more officers who have fallen during the recent campaign against the Boers of the Transvaal on the Natal border.

In the late General Sir George Colley's despatch to the War Office, after his second disastrous action, on Feb. 8, at Schain's Hoogte and the Ingogo river, that unfortunate commander said:—"The third battalion of the 60th Rifles has suffered a still heavier loss in the death of its Adjutant, Lieutenant Wilkinson, after having distinguished himself through the engagement by his coolness and gallantry, volunteering for every difficult and dangerous task. He was drowned in crossing the Ingogo river after returning to the battle-field with assistance for the wounded. He was of singularly winning disposition and manners, distinguished in all manly games, an excellent adjutant, and a most promising officer. Few men of his standing could boast so many and such warm friends, or will be so widely missed and deeply mourned."

Lieutenant Edward Obert Hindley Wilkinson was the only surviving son and heir of R. Hindley Wilkinson, Esq., of Chesfield, near Stevenage, J.P. for Herts and Bedfordshire, and late Lieutenant-Colonel of the Bedfordshire Militia, and of Caroline his wife, daughter of Lieutenant-General Le Vicomte Obert, late Governor of the Military College of St. Cyr. He was born in October, 1853, was educated at Eton, was captain of the Eton Eleven, and played in the Eton and Harrow match in the years 1871-2. He entered the Army in 1873 as a Sub-Lieutenant in the 60th King's Royal Rifle Corps, and was Adjutant of the third battalion of his regiment from 1875 to the time of his death. He served during the Zulu war, and was present at the battle of Ginghilovo and the relief of Ekowe. The official despatch from the General Officer Commanding in Natal states that Lieutenant Wilkinson lost his life while crossing the flooded stream for the purpose of taking aid to the wounded, three officers and fifty-two men of them being of Lieutenant Wilkinson's regiment.

THE LATE LIEUTENANT E. O. H. WILKINSON.

THE LATE LIEUTENANT MAURICE O'CONNELL.

Among those killed in action the same day was Lieutenant Maurice O'Connell, also of the 60th Rifles. He was eldest son of Sir Maurice James O'Connell, Bart., of Lake View, Killarney, in the county of Kerry. He entered the Army from the Kerry Militia on Jan. 22, 1879. He served with the third battalion of the Rifles throughout the Zulu war, and obtained the medal and clasp granted to the troops engaged in it. In December last Lieutenant O'Connell was at Durban, under orders to embark for England in charge of invalids, when intelligence reached that station of the outbreak of hostilities in the Transvaal. He instantly applied for and obtained permission to proceed to the front, where he was present at the engagement of Laing's Neck on Jan. 28. The high popularity which Lieutenant O'Connell had gained in the militia corps of his native county followed him into the Rifles, where he speedily won the esteem of both officers and men by his warm-hearted and generous disposition. He was but twenty-two years of age when he was killed in battle; and few of the gallant soldiers who fell in this last South African war will be more sincerely regretted, as well in the regiment as amongst those who knew him at home.

THE TRANSVAAL WAR: VIEW OF NEWCASTLE FROM FORT TERROR.
FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

THE SILENT MEMBER.

Parliament separated on April 8 for the Easter vacation. When the House of Lords meets again, Lord Carlingford will appear on the Ministerial bench in the place of the Duke of Argyll, who has resigned the post of Lord Privy Seal, as his Grace explained yesterday week, in consequence of differences with his colleagues regarding the principle of the Irish Land Bill. Ere their Lordships adjourned for May 5, Earl Granville (happily, no longer confined to his house by a bronchial attack) announced that he would on the day the House reassembled move a vote of thanks to Sir Frederick Roberts — not for his pleasure trip to the Cape, but for his services in Afghanistan. One familiar voice will, there is but too much reason to fear, be missed on this ceremonial occasion. When, in the early part of the Session, the Earl of Beaconsfield spoke with his old vigour and ironic humour in more than one debate, and was seen in the peers' gallery of the Lower House grimly smiling down upon the Irish Home Rulers who had overtaxed the patience of the House by carrying organised obstruction beyond the limit of endurance, no one who observed the serenity with which his Lordship appeared to bear his seventy-five years could have expected that the East winds of March would have so completely prostrated the Leader of the Conservative party that the whole country would, with anxious interest, be regarding each new bulletin issued concerning the varying state of the distinguished patient's health. The Mayfair mansion which Lord Beaconsfield sought to make the rallying-point of his Party has been visited by numberless personages of all shades of politics. Lord Rowton (represented in the act of handing a bulletin to a policeman at the door of the house in Curzon-street) hastened back from the Continent last week; but could not see his illustrious friend till Monday last, when he had the satisfaction to learn for himself that the noble Earl was better.

The Prime Minister—last summer and a short time ago as much an object of public solicitude on the score of his health as the Earl of Beaconsfield now is—can rarely have displayed his extraordinary powers to greater advantage than he did in the two great speeches he made last week. Mr. Gladstone has richly earned his Easter holiday at Hawarden; and we may all hope he will return like a giant refreshed when the House reassembles on Monday, April 25. The Budget speech of the Monday was equalled in grasp of subject by the eloquent address introductory of the Irish Land Bill on Thursday week. The vital feature of the Ministerial measure is the appointment of a Land Court empowered to settle differences between landlord and tenant; to fix a "judicial rent" which will hold for fifteen years, during which there could be no eviction save for the non-payment of rent and other breaches of contract; to grant tenant-right also to holders against whom actions for ejectment may have been unjustly commenced but not completed before the passing of the bill. The Court will consist of three members, with power to name assistant-commissioners. The Court will also be a Land Commission to aid tenants to buy their farms or estates from willing landlords by lending them three fourths of the purchase-money; and to grant advances for agricultural improvements, emigration, and reclamation of waste lands. Mr. Gladstone's fine speech lasted two hours and a quarter. It was listened to by a thronged House; was cheered in passages by the Irish members; and was animated with a lofty spirit, which, it will be seen, was maintained to the very close:—

Justice, Sir, is to be our guide. It has been said that love is stronger than death; and so justice is stronger than popular excitement, than the passion of the moment, even than the grudges, the resentments, and the sad traditions of the past. Walking in that path we cannot err; guided by that light—that Divine light—we are safe. Every step that we take on our road is a step that brings us nearer to the goal; and every obstacle, even although it seem for the moment to be insurmountable, can only for a little while retard, and never can defeat the final triumph (Loud cheers).

Mr. Dodson the same evening managed to secure the second reading of the Rivers Conservancy and Floods Prevention Bill, the object of which is to establish one conservancy board for the better management of rivers. Mr. Chamberlain the following evening introduced that much-needed measure a Bankruptcy Bill, which aims at simplifying the monstrous system under which gigantic fraud has grown up. This was the last important piece of business transacted before the House adjourned until Monday week, April 25.

Whilst hon. members haste to the country, anywhere out of the town, the urbane Speaker and overworked officials of the Commons do not hesitate to follow so seasonable an example. Captain Gosset, the veteran Serjeant-at-Arms, is wont in the recess to seek renewed vigour (as suggested in the Sketch) at a favourite south-coast Watering-Place. Whether he is staying there or at some other salubrious resort, one may trust the gallant Captain will be sufficiently braced by the sea breezes to deal with habitual equanimity with the junior member for Northampton, should be called upon to exercise a little gentle pressure when Mr. Bradlaugh approaches the table to take the oath on his re-election for St. Crispin's borough. Looking back over the stirring and unprecedented scenes the House has witnessed since it met as early as the 6th of January, nothing is more satisfactory than the dignity and firmness which the Speaker displayed, and the admirable ease and decision shown by Captain Gosset in the fulfilment of an uncongenial task. The issue which Mr. Bradlaugh will unfailingly raise when Parliament meets may possibly put this estimable officer to fresh trouble—that is, if the House does not adopt the less of two evils, and, by resolving that a simple affirmation of allegiance may be made by any member who objects to an oath, so prevent the heterodox representative of Northampton from posing on a pedestal as a political martyr.

LORD BEACONSFIELD.

The accounts of Lord Beaconsfield's health were more favourable on Tuesday (when we went to press) than those published on Monday morning or on Sunday. At ten o'clock on Tuesday morning the following official bulletin was issued:—"Lord Beaconsfield has passed a tolerably fair night. His Lordship has been free from distressing symptoms, and the gain of strength acquired during the afternoon of yesterday has been maintained." At five o'clock no further change was reported in the condition of Lord Beaconsfield, who had passed a quiet afternoon.

THE VOLUNTEERS.

Last Saturday evening the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress went in state to the Guildhall, attended by the sword and mace bearers and the City Marshal, to be present at the annual distribution of prizes of the 2nd London. The prizes included those given by the Salters', Merchant Taylors', Joiners', Skinners', Mercers', Saddlers', Grocers', and Fishmongers' Companies, and by the civic ward of Farringdon Without, besides many contributed by the battalion and the officers. The chief marksman of the regiment was declared to be Private E. Houghton. The regimental drill competition prize was won for the second time by Captain Grene's company. The battalion medal and badge were won by Colour-Sergeant C. I. Cooper. At the close of the distribution, Lieutenant-Colonel C. B. Vickers, the commanding officer, addressed the meeting, and stated that out of a total strength of 1001 men the efficients numbered 945, being the greatest, he believed, in any corps in the metropolis. The Lord Mayor, replying to a vote of thanks, congratulated the corps on its high standing and efficiency, and the City in possessing in that and other regiments so large a contingent of well-drilled and thoroughly able soldiers. His Lordship also enlarged on the value of Volunteer drill and exercise from many points of view.

Yesterday week the prizes of the 24th Middlesex, which is composed of Post-Office employés, were distributed at the Cannon-street Hotel, in the presence of a large company. Mr. Stevenson Blackwood, the permanent secretary, presided, and the Dowager Duchess of Manchester presented the prizes. Colonel Du Plat Taylor spoke of the work which the corps had done in attending at Dartmoor, Aldershott, and other places during the autumn manœuvres, and then stated that twenty of the company of signallers formed in the corps would serve with the head-quarters' staff on Easter Monday. The best shot of the regiment was Staff-Sergeant H. Barker, the next was Private F. Bennett. In all, there were thirty-nine marksmen. The chief prizes in the various companies were won by Staff-Sergeant Green, Quartermaster-Sergeant Burnham, Colour-Sergeant Leane, Private Bennett, Sergeant Sweetman, Private Lewis, and Sergeant Hamilton.

Mr. Gladstone, who arrived at Hawarden Castle from London last Saturday evening for the Easter recess, read the Lessons at the services in the parish church on Sunday, and takes his usual exercise in the park. A large number of strangers were present at the parish church on Sunday.

An order for the administration of the estate of the late Baron Cleasby was made in the Chancery Division last Saturday, the interference of the Court having been rendered necessary by the fact that deceased had prepared his own will, and had not given sufficient power to his trustees.

THE TRANSVAAL WAR.

Three more Sketches by our Special Artist with the Natal field force under the late Sir George Colley, recently engaged in the campaign against the Boers at Laing's Neck, on the Transvaal border, are engraved for this number of our Journal.

One of the two Illustrations on our front page is an example of the curious shifts and contrivances to which it is sometimes necessary to resort in South African travelling. Here is a party of British officers crossing the Ingagani river, a few miles south of Newcastle, on their way to join the head-quarters there, who are compelled to leave their waggon and let their horses swim across, while they consign their own persons, two at a time, to the singular conveyance shown in our Artist's Sketch. This is a box suspended from a rope fixed to poles or trunks of trees on the two opposite banks of the river, and the box is hauled over by a party of Kaffirs, keeping them high and dry, at a considerable elevation above the water.

The accompanying Illustration, which is entitled "All that We Saw of the Boers at Majuba Hill," speaks for itself as an instance of the manner of fighting amidst the rocks and crags of that rugged mountain summit where the British troops, on the morning of Sunday, Feb. 27, as they lay behind an imperfect shelter afforded by the blocks of stone around its exposed margin, could hardly perceive the approach of their enemy, in much greater force, climbing up the steep hillsides to make the final assault on their lofty position. They were, indeed, quite taken by surprise at the last, after having endured, for several hours, without very great loss, the incessant firing of the Boers from covered places below, though hundreds of bullets struck the rocky rampart in front of each British soldier, and cast splinters of stone over their heads. It was not till one o'clock in the afternoon that the Boers suddenly appeared at the top of the mountain, leaping over the stones and breaking through the circle of its defenders, who were speedily overpowered, shot down or driven off the ground, by greatly superior numbers. One company of soldiers and seven officers were taken prisoners; but the remainder of those not killed or wounded got down the sides of the hill, with much difficulty, in a scattered and dispersed condition, and found their way to the Mount Prospect Camp. Sir George Colley was left dead at the top of the hill.

Our third Illustration is a view of the town of Newcastle, in Natal, which is twenty-four miles from Laing's Neck, the road northward to the place last mentioned being across the Ingogo valley, over the long range of hills called Schain's Hoogte, and then by Mount Prospect, where Sir George Colley fixed his advanced camp, within four miles of the Boers' defensive position. All these places have become of considerable historical interest since the conflicts of Jan. 28, Feb. 8, and Feb. 27, which are the marked events of the late unfortunate military operations, though happily they have now ceased to have any political importance in the future pacific settlement of the Transvaal. The view of Newcastle, as will be seen by the flags displayed over the military head-quarters in the town, by the tents of the encampment on the neighbouring hill, around Fort Amiel, and on the plain to the right hand, as well as by the circular redoubts or "forts," erected at several points, was sketched at the time of fullest preparation for continued hostilities. One of these little "forts," bearing the name of "Terror," and designed for the protection of the town against a possible attack after the second disastrous conflict with the Boers, was the point of view from which the Sketch was taken. The eminence rising in the background is the "hill above Fort Amiel," where the heliograph station used to communicate by signals with the camp at Mount Prospect, and the view from which, looking northward to Mount Prospect, has appeared in a former Illustration.

Our news from South Africa, received up to last Tuesday evening, does not show any material change in the state of affairs. General Sir Evelyn Wood has returned from the Transvaal to Newcastle, where he is to meet Sir Hercules Robinson, Governor of the Cape Colony, and Chief Justice Sir J. H. de Villiers. Their official appointment, as the three Royal Commissioners to see to the execution of the terms of peace agreed to on the 23rd ult., and to the settlement of affairs in the Transvaal, has been published in the London Gazette. The British residents at Pretoria, and other partisans of the British Government there, who were ninety-six days with Sir Owen Lanyon and his garrison beleaguered in the fort, have returned freely into the town. At Heidelberg, there was a little difficulty in persuading the Dutchmen who were in the Landdrost's house to give it up, but Sir Evelyn Wood made them haul down their flag. The Boer leaders at Heidelberg have admitted to him that Commandant Cronje, who commanded the besieging force at Potchefstroom, broke the agreement that they had entered into by keeping the news of the armistice from reaching the garrison. They expressed their sincere regret at the occurrence, and agreed that the capitulation should be considered as cancelled, and that Potchefstroom should be reoccupied. General Sir Evelyn Wood accepted the apology, and the arrangement is to be carried out; the material of war surrendered by the garrison is at once to be handed over at Standerton.

At Bloemfontein, in the Orange Free State, an enthusiastic reception was accorded to President Brand on his return from Natal, his arrival being made the occasion for great public rejoicings. A triumphal arch was erected on the route leading to his residence. Replying to addresses presented to him by the Dutch and English inhabitants, Mr. Brand expressed his firm conviction that the peace concluded between the British Government and the Transvaal Boers would be the means of uniting all the nations of South Africa in the bonds of peace and friendship.

The Legislative Council of the Cape Colony, as well as the Legislative Assembly, has voted an address of thanks to the Queen for making peace with the Transvaal. The Colonial Treasurer introduced his Budget in the House of Assembly. The revenue for the current year is estimated at £2,968,210, and the expenditure at £2,852,013. The revenue for the past year amounted to £2,800,000, and the expenditure to £2,633,783, exclusive of the war expenditure provided for by loan.

The revised version of the New Testament is not only the joint property of the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge, but the editions of the version issued by the two University presses are identical in every respect except in regard to the word "Oxford" or "Cambridge" on the titlepages. The type, form, binding, and price are the same.

Mr. Charles Dew Miller, of Newgate-street, was returned on Tuesday, without opposition, to succeed Sir Charles Reed as a member of the Common Council in the civic ward of Farringdon Within; and, at the same time, Mr. Thomas Rudkin was nominated Deputy of the Ward in the place of Sir Charles, to whose widow and family a hearty vote of condolence in their bereavement was accorded. Another vacancy in the Court has happened in Bread-street Ward by the sudden death of Mr. Hugh M'Cabe.

THE COURT.

Special precautionary arrangements were made upon the occasion of the Queen's journey from Windsor to Osborne. A pilot engine preceded the special train by ten minutes. Platelayers were stationed along the entire line at distances of about half a mile apart, with flags and fog-signals; and her Majesty, contrary to custom, crossed from Portsmouth to Osborne on board the Admiralty yacht Enchantress, Captain Thomson, instead of her own yacht Alberta; the officers of both yachts being in attendance on the Enchantress. Princess Beatrice and Prince Leopold travelled with the Queen. Staff-Commander E. H. Hills, of the Enchantress, was presented to her Majesty by Captain Thomson.

The twenty-eighth anniversary of Prince Leopold's birthday (the 7th inst.) was celebrated with due honours both at Windsor and at the Isle of Wight. Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar came over from Port-mouth and lunched with the Queen at Osborne, and her Majesty's dinner party included Princess Beatrice, the Duke of Edinburgh, Prince Leopold, Lady Waterpark, the Hon. Horatia Stopford, the Hon. Evelyn Moore, Lord Charles Fitzroy, Sir Henry Ponsonby, Captain Waller, and the Master of the Household. The band of the Royal Marines played during and after dinner, under the direction of Mr. C. Kreyer, and the ladies and gentlemen of the household joined the Royal circle in the drawing-room.

Prince Woronzow arrived at Osborne yesterday week on a special mission to her Majesty, to announce the death of the late Emperor Alexander II. and the accession of the Emperor Alexander III. The Prince was introduced by Earl Sydney; and the Duke of Edinburgh and Prince Leopold were present with the Queen during the interview. The Royal dinner party included Princess Beatrice, the Duke of Edinburgh, Prince Leopold, Prince Woronzow, Lady Waterpark, the Hon. Horatia Stopford, the Hon. Evelyn Moore, Earl Sydney, Comte de Ribeaupierre, the Right Hon. Sir Henry Ponsonby, and the Master of the Household.

On Sunday her Majesty, Princess Beatrice, the Duke of Edinburgh, and Prince Leopold attended Divine service, performed at Osborne by the Rev. Canon Prothero.

The children of the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh crossed from Portsmouth to Osborne in the Alberta on Monday, accompanied by the Duke, who came from Cowes to receive them.

Her Majesty, with the members of the Royal family, has walked and driven out daily.

The Queen and Princess Beatrice have been to Newport to call on Mr. Toward, who is still very ill.

Daily telegrams have continued to be forwarded to her Majesty concerning the state of Lord Beaconsfield, and, by the Queen's command, Sir W. Jenner has visited the Earl.

Mr. E. Moira has received her Majesty's commands to paint miniatures of the children of the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince of Wales has hunted with Lord Carrington's bloodhounds at Winkfield, near Windsor; and his Royal Highness was present at a special performance of "The Martyr of Antioch," conducted by the composer, Mr. Arthur Sullivan, at the Royal Albert Hall.

The Princess of Wales, attended by Miss Knollys and Lieutenant-General Sir Dighton Probyn, paid a short visit to her relatives at Berlin on her return from St. Petersburg. Her Royal Highness on leaving Berlin on Sunday was accompanied to the railway station by the German Crown Prince and Crown Princess and the Crown Prince of Denmark. Lord and Lady Ampthill were also present. The Emperor and Empress paid a farewell visit to the Princess at the palace of the Crown Prince in the morning. The Princess travelled via Hanover and Cologne to Brussels, and thence, by way of Lille, to Calais, where she embarked on board the special steamer Maid of Kent, Captain Dane, and crossed to the Admiralty Pier at Dover, after an excellent passage. Her Royal Highness travelled from Dover by special South-Eastern train to Charing-cross, where she was met by the Duchess of Teck. Shortly after her arrival at Marlborough House the Prince and Princess drove out and visited the Duchess of Cambridge and the Grand Duke and Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz at St. James's Palace, and also called personally in Curzon-street to inquire after the Earl of Beaconsfield.

The Prince has presented to the Berlin Zoological Gardens two of the elephants brought by him from India.

His Royal Highness having to be present at the wedding of the Crown Prince of Austria in Vienna on May 10, has desired that the festival dinner of the Royal Hospital for Children and Women shall be postponed from May 9 to May 24, in order that he may preside.

Princesses Louise, Victoria, and Maud of Wales were at the private view of Miss Catherine Frere's Exhibition of South African Sketches in New Bond-street.

---

Princess Louise of Lorne arrived in town yesterday week from Paris.

The Duchess of Connaught has consented to open a naval and military bazaar on behalf of the Aldershott Soldiers' Homes and the Chatham Soldiers' and Seamen's Home on May 3, in the large hall of the Cannon-street Hotel.

Prince Christian has joined the committee which has been formed to raise a memorial to perpetuate the services rendered to the study of natural history and fish culture by the late Mr. Frank Buckland.

The Duke of Cambridge and the Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz and the Duchess of Teck, accompanied by Princess Mary and Princes Adolphus, Francis, and George of Teck, have inspected Miss Catherine Frere's Exhibition of South African Sketches, at 134, New Bond-street.

A marriage is arranged between Count Andrew Bernstorff, eldest son of the late German Ambassador to the Court of St. James, and Mdlle. Augusta de Hottinger, of Bel Air, Switzerland. The marriage of the Earl of Desart and Miss Bischoffsheim is fixed for the 26th inst.; that of the Hon. and Rev. Alberic Bertie and Lady Caroline M'Donnell will take place on the same day at St. Peter's Church, Eaton-square; and the marriage of Baron Werner von Globig, Aide-de-Camp to the Emperor of Austria and in waiting on the Archduke Rainer of Austria, with Miss Beatrice Gore, daughter of the Rev. W. F. Gore, of Feniton Court, will take place towards the end of May.

---

Sir William Jenner, M.D., K.C.B., was on Tuesday elected President of the Royal College of Physicians of London.

The Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress will entertain the Lord Chancellor and the rest of her Majesty's Judges at dinner at the Mansion House on Thursday, June 16 next; and the Archbishops and Bishops on the following Wednesday, June 22. The Judges will attend St. Paul's in state on the afternoon of Hospital Sunday, June 19. The Lord Mayor will entertain Dr. Moffat, the father-in-law of Livingstone, and other distinguished missionaries at dinner, in the Egyptian Hall, on May 7.

THE CONSPIRACIES IN RUSSIA.

The trial of the six persons, two of them young women, concerned in the recent fatal conspiracy to murder the late Emperor Alexander II., took place last week, occupying Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, and the verdict was given early on Sunday morning. They were all found guilty, and sentenced to be hanged.

A complete account of the evidence and the prisoners' own statements, which appear to be quite unreserved, and are doubtless entirely truthful, so far as concerns their own individual parts in this atrocious crime, was given in our last publication. Their names are Nicholas Shelihoff, aged thirty; Sophie Peroffskaya (or Peroffsky), aged twenty-seven; Nicholas Reesakoff, aged nineteen or twenty; Kibaltchik, a mining engineer; Gabriel Michaeloff; and Hessy Helfmann, a young Jewess. It will be recollected that Reesakoff was the young man who threw the first bomb-shell on Sunday, the 13th ult., which shattered the carriage in which the Emperor and his brother, the Grand Duke Michael, were riding. The Emperor then got out of the carriage, and was killed by a second bomb-shell, which was cast at his feet by another young man, Elnikoff, who himself died soon afterwards. The bomb-shells, as well as the explosive apparatus found in the mine at the cheesemonger's shop in Little Gardon-street, where the Emperor had been expected to pass, were manufactured by the engineer Kibaltchik. The woman Sophie Peroffskaya, who was of aristocratic birth, her father having been high in office under the Emperor's Government, assisted Shelihoff, one of the principal managers of the conspiracy, in contriving how, when, and where the Emperor should be waylaid. She also gave instructions to the young men, Reesakoff and Elnikoff, and delivered the instruments of murder into their hands; and she watched the actual perpetration of the crime from the opposite side of the canal. A third bomb-shell was to have been used by Michaeloff, if the Emperor went a different road. Along with the prisoner Shelihoff, the general direction and contrivance of the plot had been carried on by Nicholas Sablin, who shot himself when the police entered his lodgings to arrest him. The young Jewess, Hessy Helfmann, was taken in the same house at that time with a quantity of materials for bomb-shells, two bombs already made, and some papers referring to the conspiracy in which they were engaged.

The President of the Court of Judges was Prince Peter of Oldenburg, the chief judicial member of the Imperial Privy Council, who was accompanied by the Prince of Saxe-Altenburg. General Militin, Minister of War, General Timascheff, Counts Nesselrode and Barantsoff, M. Nabokoff, the Minister of Justice, and the Marquis Wielopolski.

The Procureur, M. Mouravieff, in a speech remarkable for its clearness and eloquence, summed up the accusations against the prisoners. He enlarged upon the enormity of their offences, particularised their several shares in the crime of March 13, and demanded in each case the punishment of death. Nothing less, he said, would satisfy the Russian nation. He portrayed in touching terms the courage and kindly solicitude of the Emperor, and dwelt upon the sorrow and indignation of the people. He sketched rapidly the history of Nihilism in Russia. From a peaceable propaganda its disciples had passed to bloody crime, having recourse first to the dagger and revolver, and then to dynamite. The learned counsel enumerated the many terrible deeds of the party, culminating in the assassination of the Emperor. Having analysed the testimony of the witnesses, he said it would be found that the immediate authors of the crime were ten in number, of whom Elnikoff and Sablin are dead, and the two Kobozeffs are still at large, whilst the remaining six are at the bar of the court. The latter might be divided into three groups, composed respectively of Reesakoff, who confessed his own share and incriminated his accomplices; Kibaltchik, Shelihoff, and Peroffskaya, whose avowals related only to themselves; and Helfmann, and Michaeloff, who made no confessions at all. Of these, full reliance might be placed on Reesakoff's statements, and partial reliance on those of the next three. Michaeloff had been stationed with one of the bombs in the Sadovaya-street. Helfmann evidently knew all that was going on; and without Kibaltchik the means by which to accomplish the crime would have been wanting. The Procureur spoke particularly of Sophie Peroffskaya, a woman, young, well educated, and of gentle birth, who could yet superintend the preparation of so horrible a crime and calmly survey its execution, he could only describe as a monster. At this word some emotion was evident amongst the spectators, who turned to see what effect the words of her accuser would have on the female prisoner. She sat impassive, and apparently quite unaffected, till the Procureur brought a seven hours' speech to a close with the demand that the last sentence of the law should be applied to all the prisoners. The advocates for the defence spoke in turn, and addressed themselves merely to the endeavour to extenuate the guilt of the accused.

Shelihoff spoke for himself, and, continually launching out into an exposition of the motives and aims of the Russian Socialists, was several times called to order by the President. On declaring himself to be a true Russian, the audience could not restrain an expression of dissent, and silence was not restored until the President rang his bell. The prisoner proceeded to the defence of Michaeloff, and, after speaking an hour and five minutes, sat down with a smile.

The accused were then, in turn, called upon to say their last words. Reesakoff was inaudible. Michaeloff and Helfmann had nothing new to offer; nor had Kibaltchik.

Sophie Peroffskaya spoke at some length. She defended her opinions and action quietly but firmly, and, towards the end, with evident emotion, demanded the punishment of death in common with her accomplices, without regard to her sex. Shelihoff had nothing to say, but that his party and his judges were totally at variance in their ideas.

The Court retired at eleven o'clock on Saturday night, and the President proposed twenty-four questions for consideration regarding the culpability of the accused. The Court found a verdict of guilty on all the counts except those charging Reesakoff, Michaeloff, and Helfmann with co-operation in the affair of the mine.

At half-past three o'clock the Court retired again, and reassembling three hours later, on Sunday morning, they sentenced all the prisoners to be hanged. The sentence was formally announced to them on Monday afternoon, when twenty-four hours would be allowed them to appeal for mercy. The sentence on Sophie Peroffskaya must be referred to the Emperor for confirmation, she being of noble birth.

The Emperor's carriage, with the damage that was done to it by the explosion of the first bomb-shell, is shown in one of our Artist's sketches. It had a foot-board behind for a Cossack to stand upon, which is quite knocked to pieces, only a single piece of wood being left. The man who stood there was killed at once. The lacquered covering of the back of the carriage, and of the upper hinder part of both sides, which was black, is quite torn away, exposing to view the shattered framework of the back and sides, and of the seat beneath. The axles and wheels are uninjured, so that the carriage might easily have been driven home to the palace, with the Emperor in it, if he had not chosen to alight; and it will be remembered that the coachman told his Majesty so, offering to take him safe home. The first bomb-shell not exploding directly under the carriage, but at the back of it, because it was going on rapidly, the floor and seat of the carriage were scarcely injured; only the woodwork of the floor was a little split, and partly lifted from its place. Neither the Emperor nor the Grand Duke Michael could be hurt while inside the carriage. This was precisely the case with the Emperor Napoleon III. and the Empress, when Orsini's bomb was thrown at their carriage, in front of the Opera-House in Paris, in February, 1858. It seems likely that the only chance of success, in an attempt by such means to kill persons actually in the carriage, would be to throw in the deadly instrument through the window; and it is possible that it might then fall upon their knees, or might strike the cushions, or other soft parts, and so fail to explode. The carriage was a coupé, and had but two seats, at the back; in front was the window, with a hat-peg for the Emperor to put his helmet upon, and with a gilt cup or pan for the ashes of his cigar. The lining of the carriage, and the covering of the two seat-cushions, were of dark blue twilled satin; the floor-cloth, over which was laid a bearskin or that of some shaggy beast, instead of a rug, shows no marks of the disaster. A few spots of blood are visible on the right-hand seat-cushion; it is believed that this blood did not come from the Emperor; but that some one of those with him, after the second explosion, having got blood on his hand by helping to lift up those who were wounded, may have looked into the carriage to see if the Emperor had left anything there, and may inadvertently have touched the cushion. The glass of the window, behind the coachman, is completely smashed. The interior is also full of small fragments of glass, which seem to have come from the exploding bomb-shell, and which have cut and torn the lining of the carriage, and stuck in the outer part behind, and have even made some scratches on the wheels.

Another Sketch by our Special Artist, made last week, represents the operations that have been going on to search for hidden torpedoes and mines in front of the Winter Palace. The police tell everybody who inquires that the workmen are only employed to dig a well, or to do something in the way of waterworks, but everybody knows better. A strong force of police, gendarmes, Cossacks, and other soldiers constantly patrol the ground, and forbid the people to assemble there.

The Russian Revolutionary party have issued another manifesto, with an address to the Emperor Alexander III. This address demands a national representation on the basis of universal suffrage, and asks for freedom of speech, of the press, of conscience, and of election. It declares that, if this programme be adopted, the Executive Committee will dissolve itself, and no resort will be had to violent measures against any form of Government thus sanctioned.

---

BENEVOLENT OBJECTS.

Mr. Russell Sturgis presided on the 7th inst. at the anniversary festival of the Orphan Working Asylum. Over 250 guests sat down. In proposing "Success to the Orphan Working Asylum," the chairman said that to provide for the 580 orphans who were being supported by the charity a sum of £15,000 was annually required. Of this amount they looked to the benevolent public for £8000. The work of the schools, both senior and junior, had been highly satisfactory. The subscriptions amounted to £3300.

Yesterday week the fourteenth anniversary dinner of the London General Porters' Benevolent Association was held at the Albion Tavern, under the presidency of Mr. Morley, M.P. Subscriptions were announced amounting to £1789, including 100 guineas by the chairman, a similar amount by Messrs. J. and R. Morley, and 50 guineas from Messrs. Leaf, Son, and Co.

The fourteenth annual season of the popular weekly entertainments at Brompton Hospital, which for so many years have admirably fulfilled their purpose of amusing and cheering the inmates, was brought to a close last week; the customary musical entertainments, occasionally interspersed with recitations, dissolving views, &c., having on this occasion been varied by a dramatic performance, under the able direction of Miss Hildyard.——The Rev. John Bennett, the Incumbent, preached in Park Chapel, Chelsea, last Sunday morning and evening, in behalf of the funds of the Consumption Hospital, Brompton; the collections amounting to £55.

The quarterly court of subscribers and governors of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls was held last Saturday at Freemasons' Hall. Colonel Creaton, grand treasurer, presided. Fifteen girls, daughters of Freemasons, were elected into the school; five of the successful candidates being from the metropolis. The annual festival of the institution, at which Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, M.P., Provincial Grand Master for Gloucestershire, will preside, will be held on May 8.

On Tuesday afternoon the Bishop of London presided at the thirty-third annual meeting of the St. John's House and Sisterhood for the Training and Employment of Nurses for Hospitals, the Poor, and Private Families. A report, detailing the operations of the institution for the past year, was read by the hon. secretary, Mr. S. W. Bell, from which it appeared that during that period a staff of forty-eight nurses had been supplied by the institution to King's College Hospital, and one of thirty-five to Charing-cross Hospital. Much had also been done among the poor at their own homes, and in the Maternity Hospital at Chelsea 111 poor women had been treated during the year.

The Grocers' Company have voted £25 to the funds of the Church of England Young Men's Society.

---

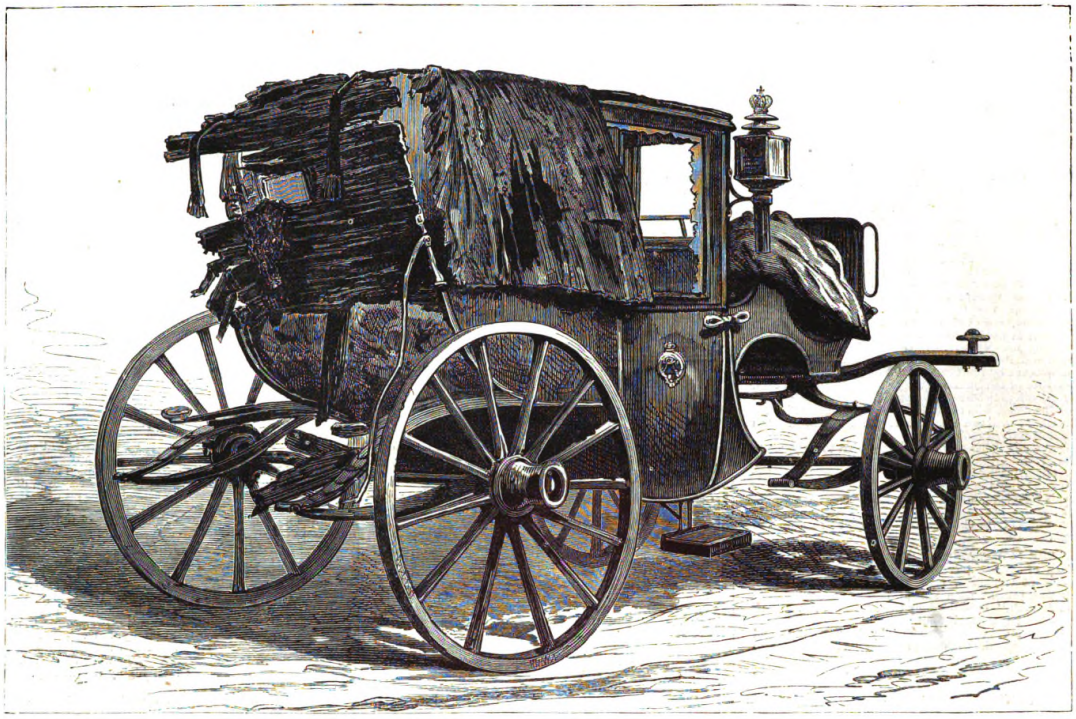
The council of the Charity Organisation Society have agreed to hold a meeting at the Westminster Palace Hotel on the 27th of April, to discuss the question of the City parochial charities. Lord Henniker is to take the chair.

A meeting was convened by the National Temperance League, at Exeter Hall, on the 7th inst., for the purpose of receiving the testimony of various provincial Mayors in favour of total abstinence. The Lord Mayor of York presided, being supported by the Mayors of Leeds, Huddersfield, Gateshead, Reading, Wakefield, Scarborough, Poole, Oswestry, and Bootle. Letters were read from sixteen other similar official representatives of provincial towns. The Mayor of Leeds mentioned that twenty-seven Mayors were abstainers.

At the meeting of the London School Board on the 7th inst., the proposal of Mr. G. Potter that a salary of £1500 should be attached to the office of chairman, was negatived by 30 to 3 votes. Mr. Edward North Buxton, vice-chairman, was unanimously elected chairman of the board, in the room of the late Sir Charles Reed; and Mr. Freeman, chairman of the Finance Committee, was appointed vice-chairman. A letter was read from Lady Reed acknowledging the sympathy expressed by the board in their resolution of last week. It was resolved to fill, on May 12, the vacancy occasioned in Hackney by the death of Sir Charles Reed.

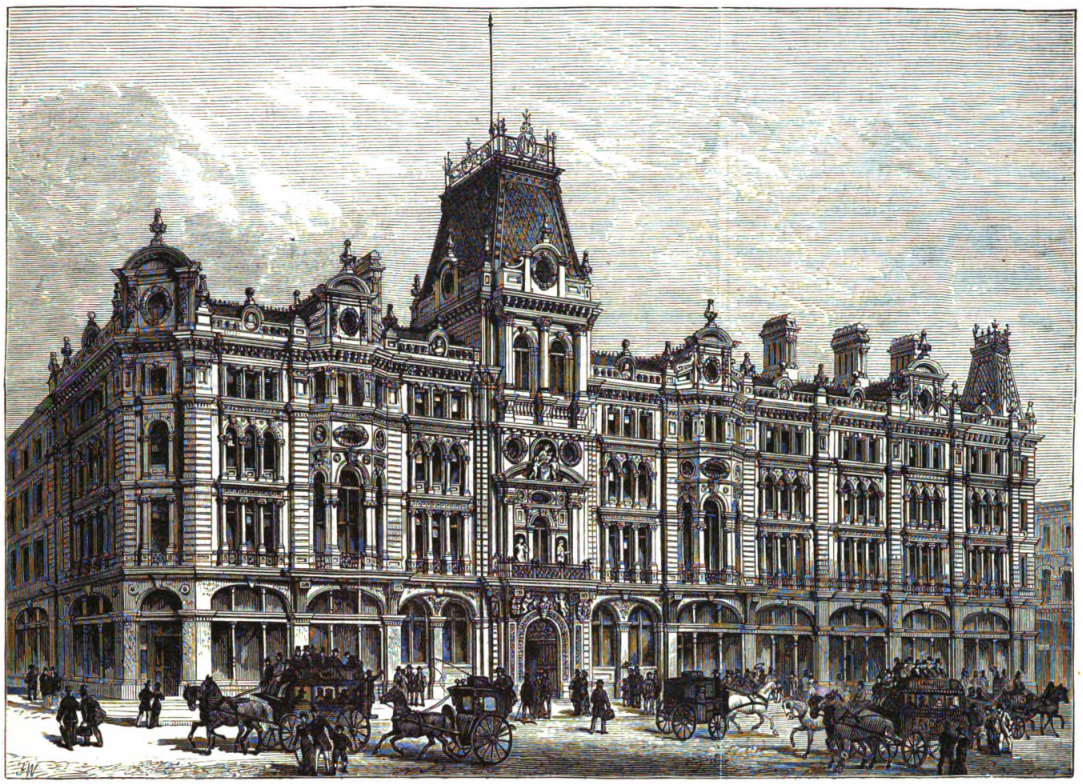
THE CONSPIRACIES IN ST. PETERSBURG: SKETCHES BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.

SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

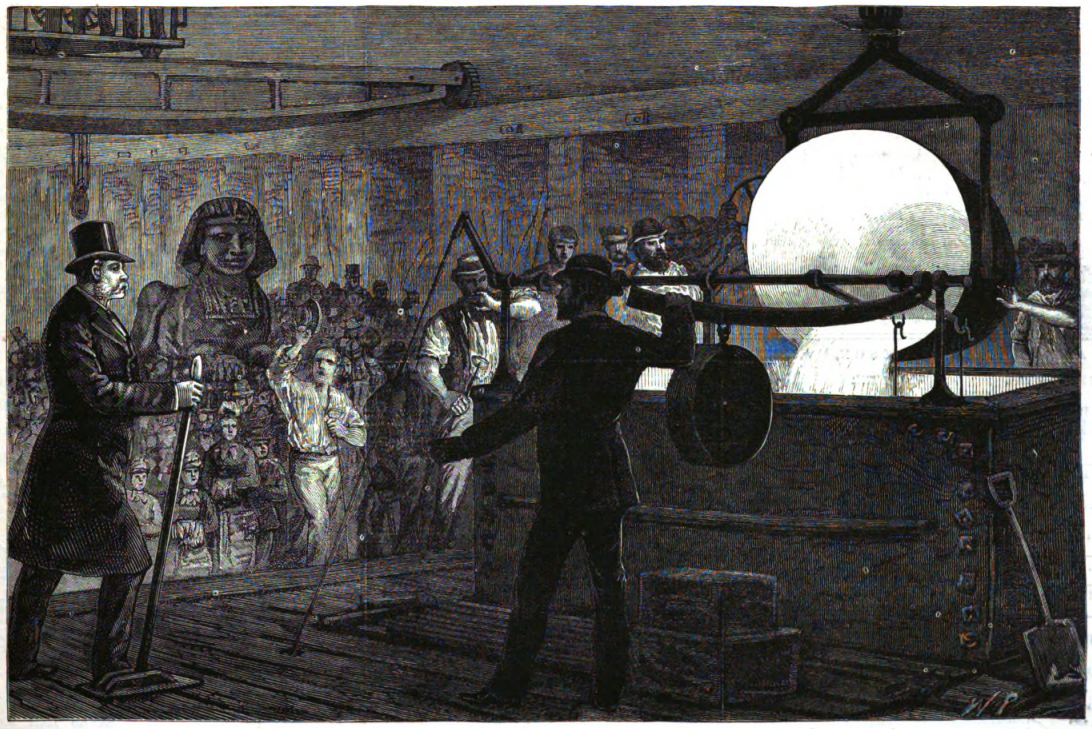


THE LATE EMPEROR'S CARRIAGE, SHATTERED BY THE EXPLOSION OF THE FIRST BOMB-SHELL.

SEARCHING FOR MINES IN FRONT OF THE WINTER PALACE.



THE MERCERS' COMPANY'S NEW BUILDINGS, CHEAPSIDE—SEE NEXT PAGE



MELTING THE METAL FOR THE BRONZE SPHINX TO BE PLACED ON THE THAMES EMBANKMENT.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

MERCERS' COMPANY BUILDINGS, CHEAPSIDE.

The stately new façade of the buildings connected with Mercers' Hall, on the north side of Cheapside from Ironmonger-lane to Old Jewry, adds a new and conspicuous ornamental feature to the architecture of the City of London. It is designed in the Italian style, adapted to business purposes, by Mr. George Barnes Williams, of Old Jewry, architect to the Mercers' Company; and its plan includes considerable additions to the palatial apartments of the Company, and to the offices for transacting its business.

In consequence of the resolution of the City Corporation that it was desirable to widen Cheapside, upon the expiration of existing leases, the Mercers' Company made arrangements to set back the former line of their frontage an average space of 8 ft. or 9 ft.; and this occasioned the rebuilding of that portion of their premises. Designs for that purpose were prepared by their architect, which have been carried into execution. They involved a complete rebuilding, from Cheapside back to Mercers' Hall, with the buildings also in Ironmonger-lane. The old front, which is supposed to have been the work of Sir Christopher Wren, was carefully taken down, and its design preserved, which has, by the Company's express orders, been reproduced in the new building.

The lower part of the front premises, consisting of a basement and the mezzanine floor, is devoted to shops; and, with one exception, the old tenants of the Company here are reinstated in their occupation, at moderate rents. The corner part, next the Old Jewry, has been let to the Insurance Office.

The Mercers' Company have provided their own mansion with a new entrance, in the same place as before, and with a grand staircase leading to a new drawing-room, which is situated over some of the shops, its windows looking down on Cheapside. The staircase is of noble dimensions, with beautiful oaken balustrades, roof, and wall-panels; and the domed part of its roof is decorated with paintings of allegorical figures. The old hall itself, one of the finest in England, has been re-decorated, and new stained-glass windows have been put in. The new drawing-room, 54 ft. long, 21 ft. wide, and 22 ft. high, is a very handsome apartment, and extremely light and cheerful. The small court-room is also newly-decorated. Other portions of the interior have been modernised and improved; and the quadrangle, part of which was formerly open, has been roofed in, with a skylight above it. The woodwork of the internal fittings is of real oak, wainscot, and walnut.

Our Illustration shows the new front, which extends 200 ft. in Cheapside, besides which there are side frontages in Ironmonger-lane and Old Jewry. The tower above the central entrance rises to a height of 90 ft. or 100 ft. The materials of the front building are Portland stone and Shap granite. The builders were Messrs. Ashby and Horner, of Aldgate. The decorative work was executed by Messrs. Crace and Son, of Wigmore-street; the hot-water apparatus and lighting apparatus were supplied by Messrs. Benham and Co.; and Messrs. Feetham and H. L. Taylor supplied the stoves.

LARGE BRONZE CASTINGS.

The pair of colossal Sphinxes, to adorn the pedestal of the Egyptian Obelisk called "Cleopatra's Needle," on the Victoria Thames Embankment, are cast at the foundry of Messrs. H. Young and Co., Eccleston-street, Pimlico. Our Illustration shows the operation of melting the metal at that establishment, where also the colossal equestrian statue of the Prince of Wales, modelled by Mr. Boehm, which Sir Albert Sassoon presented to the city of Bombay, was cast a few years ago. The mixture of metal used at Messrs. H. Young and Co.'s foundry is eleven parts of copper to one of tin; which alloy is similar to that proved to have been used by the ancients. It is a remarkable fact that the density of this alloy becomes greater than the mean density of its constituents; and, by experiments made at Woolwich Arsenal, its tenacity has been found equal to 30,700 lb. per square inch. It is less liable to corrosion than other metals. Great skill is required in the production of the mould. The artist's model being laid on a strong iron frame, the founder begins to mallet the prepared sand over half its surface, in suitable segments, keeping in view the easy extrication of each separate piece at its relative angle. When this tedious operation is accomplished, another iron frame, or mould-box, with cross-stays, or diaphragm plates, is fitted to the model covered with the aforesaid sand segments, which are dusted with a fine material, such as farina, reduced to an impalpable powder, to create a separation or parting, as required by the moulder. This box is fitted in, and rammed tightly with sand by iron rammers; then, by means of the overhead traveller crane, the boxes, with the model inclosed, are turned over. The moulder forms his centre joint and proceeds to make the segment sand pieces, which he covers with the iron frame, precisely in the same manner as he did before, making only, in addition, the "runners" or perforations, down which the metal must pass. When this is accomplished, the mould box is divided, and the sand segments are removed from off the model, and are fitted in their respective positions, in what may be called the top box. A false mould is needed to fit over the exposed half of the plaster model, so that it may be secured in its position whilst being turned over the second time, when the bottom box is lifted off, and all the sand segments are removed and fixed in their impress, as before described. The model is now done with; but we have only yet obtained an impress of the external surface of the sculpture; and it is necessary to form an inner mould, or "core," for the purpose of lightening the work, allowing a space of half an inch everywhere between the outer and inner mould or core. The formation of this core needs great care. An iron skeleton is formed to take the rough shape of the statue, anatomically constructed, for easy subdivision. The external or outer surface is covered with tissue paper, and upon it a layer of plastic sand is put, representing the required thickness of metal. The skeleton frame is now fitted in position, and the centre of it is filled in with a porous material, while the external part of the core is of a consistency which, when dried, will become perfectly hard and strong. This core, when prepared in the lower half of the mould, is built up to the form of the upper half, the pieces of which are removed as the core is advanced. The top box is now fitted on to ensure accuracy of the mould and core together; then again they are separated for the last time; the pieces are removed, channels are cut between the segments in connection with the perforations down which the metal must run; and then it is finally fixed in the top box. The core is extracted in its divisions, the thickness is pared off, the lower half of the mould is finished as the upper part; and the whole work is removed into a gigantic oven, in which it remains for six or eight weeks until all vapour is expelled. Then it is put together, provisions being made for easy escape of gases; it is lowered into the foundry floor, bolted together, and solidly embedded to prevent explosion or upheaving. A dam or receiver is placed on the top of the mould, for holding the metal by valves, until it is at proper temperature for induction, when it is suddenly released by means of a lever, and the founder's anxious task of months is brought to a close.

STATE OF IRELAND.

The Lord Lieutenant of Ireland has directed that a circular be issued to magistrates throughout Ireland requesting their co-operation in putting a stop to the illegal and criminal practice of holding Land League Courts, and reminding them that all who take part in those proceedings are liable to arrest, under the Protection of Person and Property Act.

More arrests have been made.

Mr. Parnell, addressing a great meeting in Cork on Sunday, boasted that the occupiers of land in Ireland were now nearer to victory than they ever were before. Having adjured them to retain their weapons and organisation, he predicted that in a year or two, if they continued the struggle, they would gain the free land, and afterwards the Irish people would obtain the right to make their own laws.

At a Land League meeting at Boyle, county Roscommon, on Sunday, a resolution was passed declaring the concessions in the Land Bill to be insufficient. But Mr. O'Kelly, M.P., said they should endeavour to improve it, and not hastily reject it. Mr. Sexton, M.P., said he should endeavour to remove one defect in the measure—its omission of all provisions for the benefit of Irish labourers.

NEW ELECTIONS.

Mr. Bradlaugh was re-elected for Northampton last Saturday by a majority of one hundred and thirty-two over Mr. Corbett, the Conservative candidate. His majority at the General Election was six hundred and seventy-five. The Mayor of Northampton, as returning officer, has been served with a notice that votes given for Mr. Bradlaugh will be void.

The nomination for West Cheshire has been fixed for Saturday (to-day), and the polling for Friday, the 22nd inst.

Mr. Samuel Storey, the Liberal candidate for Sunderland, was on Tuesday returned without opposition in succession to Sir Havelock-Allan, who has accepted a command at Aldershott. Mr. Storey has been three times Mayor of the town.

The polling for St. Ives, to fill the vacancy in the representation caused by the death of Sir Charles Reed, took place on Tuesday, when Mr. Ross, the Conservative candidate, was returned by a majority of 102 votes over Mr. Pendarves, the Liberal candidate.

Part 13 of the "Dictionary of Music and Musicians," edited by Mr. Grove, is published.

At the meeting of the Royal Geographical Society on Tuesday night, Sir Henry Rawlinson, who presided, announced the result of the Royal awards. A gold medal was awarded to Major Serpa Pinto for his remarkable journey across Africa, from Benguela to Natal, during which he explored nearly 500 miles of new country. A gold medal was also awarded to Mr. Benjamin Leigh Smith for having, in a steamer built and fitted at his own expense for the purpose of Arctic exploration, made important discoveries along the coast of Franz-Josef Land, and for his previous geographical work during three former expeditions, also equipped by himself, along the north-east land of Spitzbergen.

HOME NEWS.

The coaching season has begun, and in a few days will be in full swing.

The New Natural History Museum at South Kensington will be opened on Easter Monday without any ceremony.

The City Press states that the day census in the city will be taken on Monday, the 25th inst.

Mrs. Frances Bailey, a widow, died at Worthing last week, having reached the age of 103 years and eight months.

Mr. W. J. Evelyn has remitted half a year's rent to all his agricultural tenants on the Wootton and Abinger (Surrey) estates whose payments are not in arrear.

Mr. Alfred Young, of the Oxford Circuit, has been appointed Recorder of the city of Gloucester, in the place of Mr. Granville Somerset, deceased.

We may hope that the east wind is really going now, for Dr. G. F. Macdonald informs us that he heard the cuckoo and nightingale in Epping Forest on Sunday. Swallows and martins were seen at the same time and place.

The Irish Land Bill has been issued. It is divided into seven parts, and contains fifty clauses. The bill occupies twenty-seven pages, and bears the names of Mr. Gladstone, Mr. Forster, Mr. Brigat, and the Attorney-General and Solicitor-General for Ireland.

The report of the Oxford Election Commissioners states that, upon consideration of all the evidence, they find that corrupt practices were not committed at the election of 1868; but that corrupt practices did extensively prevail, by way of payment of money to voters, in 1874 and 1880.

At yesterday week's meeting of the Metropolitan Board of Works it was agreed to advance £100,000 to the School Board for London, at the rate of £3 15s. per cent, this sum being part of the £500,000 raised on behalf of the School Board for providing or enlarging school-houses.

A new monthly magazine, entitled Our Times, is announced to appear on May 1. It is to be a monthly record of events as well as an independent critical review. Mr. A. J. Duffield is the editor, and there are some well-known names among the contributors.

The President (Professor G. C. Foster, F.R.S.) and members of the Society of Telegraph Engineers and of Electricians gave a conversazione on Tuesday night in the library of University College, Gower-street, in honour of the visit of Professor Helmholtz to this country.

A number of Russian subjects residing in London took the oath of allegiance to Alexander III. on Sunday after service in the Russian Chapel in Welbeck-street. It will be administered to others who may attend next Sunday, or on any of the succeeding days till the 23rd inst.

A gentleman writing from Wilton-crescent says that a couple of thieves having watched his butler out, told the footman that the butler had ordered them to remove some empty bottles. They were let into the cellar, and instead of carrying away empty bottles took a dozen full ones.

By order of the Field Marshal Commanding in Chief, a general order was specially issued on Tuesday setting forth the changes which are to be made in the organisation, titles, and uniform of the regiments of the Infantry of the Line and militia. When not otherwise stated, they will come into effect on July 1, 1881.

The Easter term of the City of London College evening classes for young men began on the 4th inst. The council have obtained a site for the new building contiguous to the Moorgate-street Station, which will contain accommodation for about 4000 students, and should be completed by Midsummer, 1882, when the lease of the present premises expires.

The Board of Trade returns for March show that the total declared value of the imports during the month was £36,842,336, showing a decrease of £796,608 compared with the imports of the corresponding month of last year. The exports amounted in value during the month to £19,131,038, an increase of £278,988 compared with March, 1880.

The Medical and Sanitary Exhibition to be opened at South Kensington, on July 16, will be the first International Exhibition of Hygiene which has been attempted on so large a scale. It will be confined strictly to its objects, all mere curiosities or articles calculated rather to attract than to instruct visitors being rigidly excluded.

Johann Most, editor and part proprietor of the Freiheit, was committed for trial by Sir James Ingham, at Bow-street Police Court, on the 7th inst., on the charge of having published a wicked and malicious libel of and concerning the late Emperor of Russia, and also on the charge of "inciting to murder the Emperor of Germany, Alexander III., and others."

The usual course of Mayfair Lectures will begin, under the auspices of the National Society, on the 22nd inst., at 23, Hertford-street, Mayfair (by permission of Mr. Charles Matthews). Professor Fleming Jenkin will give a lecture on House Sanitation; Dr. Siemens, F.R.S., on Stoves and Grates; Mr. C. M. Cresswell, on Sanitary Relations of Local Self-Government; Dr. Robert Farquharson, M.P., on Health of our Public Schools; and Mr. Henry Power, M.B., on Education and Care of the Eye.

FARROW and JACKSON, the largest and best Makers of IRON WINE BINS, SODA-WATER RACKS, BAR FITTINGS, SEALING-WAX, and every Article for the Dealer in or Consumer of Wines, 18, GREAT TOWER-STREET; & HAYMARKET; 91, MANSELL-STREET, LONDON. Agent in Paris, N. EDARD, 38, RUE DU DRAGON.

CHUBB'S PATENT SAFES, FIRE AND THIEF RESISTING.

CHUBB'S SAFES FOR JEWELS, DEEDS, PLATE, BULLION, &c.

CHUBB'S LOCKS AND LATCHES, CHESTS, BOXES, &c.

CHUBB'S ILLUSTRATED PRICE-LISTS POST-FREE.

CHUBB and SON, 128, Queen Victoria-street, E.C.; and 68, St. James's-street, London.

EPPS'S COCOA. GRATEFUL and COMFORTING. "By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operation of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette. JAMES EPPS and CO., HOMŒOPATHIC CHEMISTS. Also, EPPS'S CHOCOLATE ESSENCE, for Afternoon Use.

ALFRED B. PEARCE, 39, Ludgate-hill, INVITES INSPECTION of all that is new and beautiful in useful and ornamental CHINA and GLASS, including s. d.
Dinner services ("College"), 97 pieces .. .. .. .. 13 6
Dinner Services for 12 persons (108 pieces) .. .. .. 35 0
China Dessert services for 12 persons, Gilt, 17s.; Unglit 16 0
Gilt China Tea services, 41 pieces, 12s. .. .. 29 pieces 8 6
China Breakfast Sets for 6 persons, 21s. .. .. for 4 persons 7 0
Toilet Services (for washstands), 5s. 6d., 8s. 6d., .. and 3 9
White Stone Jugs, "The Grecian," .. .. .. set of three 1 3
All really excellent patterns.
Quart Decanters, good cut glass, 5s. per pair .. .. plain 4 0
Claret Decanters with handles, 4s. each .. .. .. and 3 0
Plain light Claret Glasses, well made, 8s. per doz. .. and 4 6
Wine Glasses, plain or cut, Hocks and Sherries, per doz. 1 9
Engraved Wine Glasses .. do. .. do. 3 6
Hock Glasses, ruby bowl, 6s. per doz. .. green bowl 3 0
Tumblers, cut, 3s. 3d.; plain, 2s. 9d. moulded, per doz. 1 6
Plain light Finger-Glasses, taper shape .. .. per doz. 6 6
Other articles proportionately cheap.
Descriptive Catalogue post-free.
ALFRED B. PEARCE, 39, LUDGATE-HILL. Established 1760.

D. HULETT.—GASELIERS in CRYSTAL GLASS and ORMOLU or BRONZE. Medieval Fittings. A large Stock always on View. Every article marked with plain figures.—Manufactory, 53 and 56, High Holborn.

JEWEL ROBBERIES PREVENTED. J. TANN'S RELIANCE SAFES have never failed to resist the attempts of the most determined burglars. Fire-Resisting Safes, £5 5s. Lists free.—11, Newgate-street, E.C.

JOSEPH GILLOTT'S STEEL PENS. GOLD MEDAL, PARIS, 1878.

ELECTRICITY IS LIFE. PULVERMACHER'S "GALVANISM," NATURE'S CHIEF RESTORER OF IMPAIRED VITAL ENERGY. In this Pamphlet the most reliable proofs are given of the vast and wonderful curative powers of Pulvermacher's Patent Galvanic Chain-Bands, Belts, &c., in Rheumatic, Nervous, and Functional Disorders. Sent post-free for three stamps on application to J. L. PULVERMACHER'S GALVANIC ESTABLISHMENT, 194, Regent-street, London, W.

GENUINE DUBLIN WHISKY. THE MOST WHOLESOME OF ALL SPIRITS. DUBLIN WHISKY, Distilled by Messrs. JOHN JAMESON and SON, GEORGE ROE and CO., WILLIAM JAMESON and CO., and JOHN POWER and SON can be obtained in Wood by wholesale merchants and dealers, direct from their respective distilleries.

THE ESSEX FLOUR and GRAIN COMPANY, Liverpool-road, London, N., supply the best goods only. Flour: Whites for Pastry, per 3s 6lb., 2s. 9d.; Households, for Bread making, 2s. 9d.; Whole Wheaten Meal (granulated), for Brown Bread, 2s.; Best Scotch Oatmeal for Porridge, per 14lb., 2s.; Hominy, 2s.; Barley, Rice, Wheat, Maize, and Mixed Corn for Poultry, per bushel, 3s.; Indian Corn, 3s.; Middlings, 2s.; Bran, 1s.; Peas, Split Peas, per peck, 3s.; split Egyptian Lentils, 3s.; Meat Biscuits, per 14 lb., 2s.; 28 lb., 3s. 6d.; Barley Meal, per 28 lb., 3s.; Lentil Flour, per 14lb. tin, 9d.; per 140lb., 6s. All other kinds of Grain and Seeds. Price-List on application. Special quotations for large orders. P.O. Orders and Cheques to be made in favour of George Young.

THROAT AFFECTIONS and HOARSENESS.—All suffering from Irritation of the Throat and Hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES. These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable Chemists in this country, at 1s. 1½d. per Box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affection cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary Affections. Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government stamp around each box.—Prepared by JOHN I. BROWN and SONS, Boston, U.S. European Depot, 33, Farringdon-road, London.

BLAIR'S GOUT PILLS, THE GREAT REMEDY FOR GOUT AND RHEUMATISM. Sold by all Chemists, at 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. per Box.

"FOR THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE." CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE is warranted to cleanse the Blood from all impurities, from whatever cause arising. For Scrofula, Scurvy, Skin and Blood Diseases, its effects are marvellous. In Bottles, 2s. 6d. each, and in cases, containing six times the quantity, 11s. each, of all Chemists. Sent to any address for 30 or 132 stamps, of the Proprietor, F. J. CLARKE, Chemist, Lincoln.

COLDS CURED BY DR. DUNBAR'S ALKARAM, or Anti-Catarrh Snuffing-Bottle. ALKARAM. COLDS. ALKARAM. COLDS. ALKARAM. COLDS. IF inhaled on the first symptoms, ALKARAM will at once arrest them, and cure severe cases in half an hour. Sold by all Chemists, 2s. 9d. a Bottle. Address, Dr. Dunbar, care of Messrs. F. Newbery and Sons, 1, King Edward-st., E.C.

HOOPING COUGH. ROCHE'S HERBAL EMBROCATION. THIS celebrated effectual Cure without internal medicine. Sole Wholesale Agents, W. EDWARDS and SON, 157, Queen Victoria-street (formerly of 67, St. Paul's churchyard), London, whose names are engraved on the Government stamp. Sold by most Chemists. Price 6s. per Bottle.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS and OINTMENT The Pills purify the blood, correct all disorders of the liver, stomach, kidneys, and bowels. The Ointment is unrivalled in the cure of bad legs, old wounds, gout, and rheumatism.

TOOTHACHE. INSTANT CURE. FORMS A STOPPING. SAVES THE TOOTH. J. Hounsell, Esq., Surgeon, Bridport, writes:—"I consider DUNTER'S NERVINE a specific for Tooth ache. Very severe cases under my care have found instantaneous and permanent relief." Of Chemists, 1s. 1½d. per Packet.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

MR. HUBERT HERKOMER, A.R.A., has executed a Large Design for a PICTORIAL ADVERTISEMENT (size 11 ft. 6 in. by 3 ft. 3 in. in reference to which an Article will appear in THE MAGAZINE OF ART for MAY, under the title of THE STREETS AS ART-GALLERIES.

THE STREETS AS ART-GALLERIES.
Mr. Hubert Herkomer's Large Design for a PICTORIAL ADVERTISEMENT has been reproduced on a small scale to suit the pages of THE MAGAZINE OF ART, and will appear in this Magazine for MAY, with the Article above referred to.

Ready April 23,
THE MAGAZINE OF ART for MAY, price 1s., containing—
"The Symbol." From the Painting by Frank Dicksee, A.R.A. Frontispiece.
Treasure-Houses of Art: The Collection of Mr. C. P. Matthews. By Arthur Griffiths. With Five Engravings.
English Birds and their Haunts. By Grant Allen. With Five Illustrations.
Our Living Artists: William Quiller Orchardson, R.A. By Alice Meynell. With Portrait and Two Engravings.
"Apple-Blossom." From the Painting by M. Beyle.
Children in Painting and Sculpture. By J. H. P. With Four Engravings.
The Homes of our Artists: Mr. Millais' House at Palace Gate. By John Oldcastle. With Five Illustrations.
The Future of Sculpture in London. By Edmund W. Gosse.
Decorative Iron-Work. By George Wallis. With six Illustrations.
The Streets as Art-Galleries. With Two Engravings.
Pictures of the Year. With Four Illustrations.
"Shepherds Discovering the Head of Orpheus." From the Bas-Relief by M. Condomnier.
Art Notes.
"THE MAGAZINE OF ART' contains a very storehouse of art."—The Times.
CASSELL, PETTER, GALPIN, and Co., Ludgate-hill, London.

POPULAR EDITION OF THE DORE MILTON.
PART I. ready April 25, price 5d.,
MILTON'S PARADISE LOST. Illustrated by GUSTAVE DORE.
To be completed in Twenty-five Monthly Parts.
Prospectuses at all Booksellers.
CASSELL, PETTER, GALPIN, and Co., Ludgate-hill, London.

WILKIE COLLINS'S NEW NOVEL.
Now ready, in 3 vols., crown 8vo, at every Library.
THE BLACK ROBE. By WILKIE COLLINS, Author of "The Woman in White."

NEW NOVEL BY THE AUTHORS OF "READY-MONEY MORTIBOY."
Now ready, 3 vols. crown 8vo, at every Library,
THE CHAPLAIN OF THE FLEET. By WALTER BESANT and JAMES RICE.

MR. JAMES PAYN'S NEW NOVEL.
Now ready, 3 vols., crown 8vo, at every Library,
FROM EXILE. By JAMES PAYN, Author of "By Proxy," &c.

Crown 8vo, cloth extra, 7s. 6d.,
THE SUBURBAN HOMES OF LONDON: A Residential Guide to Favourite London Localities, their Society, Celebrities, and Associations. With Notes on their Rental, Rates, and House Accommodation.
CHATTO and WINDUS, Piccadilly, W.

1.—MESSRS. WARD, LOCK, and CO. beg to announce that they have made arrangements for the immediate publication, in Shilling Monthly Parts, of an Illustrated Edition of DR. ADAM CLARKE'S GREAT COMMENTARY on the HOLY BIBLE, with additional Notes, bringing the work up to the present standard of Biblical knowledge.

2.—THE CHEAPEST COMMENTARY EVER PUBLISHED.
In Monthly Parts, price 1s. each,
DR. ADAM CLARKE'S COMMENTARY ON THE HOLY BIBLE. New Edition, with additional Prefatory and Supplementary Notes. By the Rev. THORNLEY SMITH. Part I. ready April 25; complete in 24 Parts.
The complete Work will comprise 4000 pages (forming six handsome volumes), with about 1,000 Illustrations of Engravings, Maps, Plans, &c., Life of the Author and Portrait.
Prospectus post-free on application.
London: WARD, LOCK, and Co., Salisbury-square, E.C.

Just Ready, price One Shilling,
SYLVIA'S BOOK OF
BAZAARS AND FANCY FAIRS.
How to Organise a Bazaar or Fancy Fair, Arrange Stalls, Prepare Articles, Mark Prices, with full details as to saleable novelties, and contains 75 Useful Illustrations.
London: WARD, LOCK, and Co., Salisbury-square, E.C.

WARD AND LOCK'S LONG-LIFE SERIES.
Now Volume. Strong cloth, price 1s.,
HEARING, AND HOW TO KEEP IT.
Also, ready in same series:—
1. LONG LIFE, AND HOW TO REACH IT.
2. THE THROAT AND THE VOICE.
3. THE EYESIGHT, AND HOW TO CARE FOR IT.
4. THE MOUTH AND THE TEETH.
5. THE SKIN IN HEALTH AND DISEASE.
6. BRAIN-WORK AND OVER-WORK.
7. SICK NURSING.
8. THE YOUNG WIFE'S ADVICE-BOOK.
9. SLEEP: HOW TO OBTAIN IT.
The "Saturday Review" says:—"It is not too much to say of them, as a series, that the shilling invested betimes in each of them may be the means of saving many a guinea."
London: WARD, LOCK, and Co., Salisbury-square, E.C.

ALL MOTHERS SHOULD READ
MYRA'S MID-MONTHLY JOURNAL and CHILDREN'S HOUSE. Price 6d.; by post, 8d.
Published on the 15th of each Month.

MYRA'S MID-MONTHLY JOURNAL contains information upon all the Newest Modes for Children, from Infants to fourteen years of age.

MYRA'S MID-MONTHLY JOURNAL.
The Novelties for APRIL are:—
1. Coloured Fashion Plate.
2. Diagram Sheet, containing Patterns of the Saurin Mantle, Day Shirt for a Boy of fourteen, the Percy Costume, and Mother Hubbard Cloak.
3. Cut-out Paper Pattern of the Alma Dress for a Young Child.
4. The Silkworm's Gift, Doll's Bib, ram Sheet.
5. La Mode in Paris; Our Children; Notes on Novelties.
6. Myra's Answers; London Modes, Dress, Health, and Personal Attention, Play-time, the Cuninis Books and Authors, Music, Etiquette, Miscellaneous.
7. Last News from Paris; Illustrations of the Newest Modes in Costumes and Toilettes for Children; Indoor, Walking, and Evening Dresses; Mantles, Paletots, Chapeaux, Coiffures, Lingerie &c. Models of Skirts and Children's Costumes from Les Grands Magasins du Louvre.
8. Needlework: Designs for Embroidered Work-Case and Lace Insertion, Edgings and Fancy Stitch in Crochet.
Subscriptions—Yearly, 8s.; Half-Yearly, 4s.
GOUBAUD and SON,
30 and 40, Bedford-street, London, W.C.

JUST PUBLISHED, post-free, 2 stamps,
DYSPEPSIA and the SEVERER FORMS OF INDIGESTION. A small pamphlet on these distressing complaints and their complete cure. Published by the Author, RICHARD KING, Esq., Staff Surgeon R.N., 23, Warwick-st., Rugby.

Eighth Edition, cloth, post-free, 33 stamps,
DR. BARR MEADOWS on Skin Disease. Remarks on the Abuse of Arsenic, and specifics.
London: G. HILL, 154, Westminster-road.

Just published, post-free, Two Stamps,
FITS.—EPILEPSY, or FALLING SICKNESS.—SENSATIONS, GIDDINESS, FAINTS.—A Pamphlet on these distressing complaints, explaining their Treatment and complete Cure. By a Licentiate of the Royal College of Physicians. Published by Mr. WILLIAMS, 10, Oxford-terrace, Hyde Park, London.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

MR. BRANDRAM'S SHAKESPEARE FOR THE YOUNG.
Now ready, large crown 8vo, price 7s. 6d.,
SHAKESPEARE. Certain Selected Plays Abridged for the Use of the Young.
By SAMUEL BRANDRAM, M.A., Oxon.
"Mr. Brandram has solved the difficulty as to the best way in which Shakespeare can be reproduced for the use of the young. The result is a volume which ought to supersede all other editions for the use of young people."—John Bull.
London: SMITH, ELDER, and Co., 15, Waterloo-place.

NEW VOLUME BY MISS THACKERAY (MRS. RICHMOND RITCHIE).
Now ready, with Four Illustrations, crown 8vo, price 10s. 6d.,
MISS WILLIAMSON'S DIVAGATIONS.
By MISS THACKERAY (Mrs. Richmond Ritchie).
Reprinted from the "Cornhill Magazine," &c.
London: SMITH, ELDER, and Co., 15, Waterloo-place.

1d., Weekly; Monthly Part, 5d.,
GARDENING ILLUSTRATED. Villa, Suburban, Cottage, and Town Gardening; Window Plants, Bees, Poultry. All Newspapers.
Copy, by post, 1jd. Vol. I., 7s. 6d.
37, Southampton-street, Strand, London.

POTTERY PAINTING: A Handbook to the Practice. By JOHN C. L. SPARKES, Director of the Lambeth School of Art, Head Master of Art-School, South Kensington. Second Edition, price 1s.; post-free, 1s. 1d.
London: LECHERTIER, BARBE, and Co., 60, Regent-street, W.

Just published, crown 8vo, cloth, price 2s. 6d.,
REMINISCENCES OF A DENTAL SURGEON. By JOSEPH SNAPE, L.D.S., R.C.S.
SIMPKIN, MARSHALL and Co., Stationers' Hall-court, E.C.; and Edward Howell, Liverpool.

Second Edition, price 4s. 6d., to be had of all Booksellers,
RESPIRATORY DISEASES, CONSUMPTION, BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, &c., and their Specific Cure, by Dr. JOHN FRANCIS CHURCHILL'S Discoveries of the Hypophosphites and Iodoquina.
J. W. KOLCKMANN, No. 2, Langham-place, London.

SMART'S WRITING INSTITUTION, 97B, Quadrant, Regent-street (entrance in Swallow-street), Open from Ten till Nine daily. Persons of all ages received private[LY] and taught at any time suiting their own convenience. Lessons one hour each. No classes. No extras. Improvement guaranteed in eight to twelve easy lessons. Separate room for ladies. Apply to Mr. Smart, as above.

SUN FIRE OFFICE.
Threadneedle-street, E.C. (Charing-cross, S.W. Oxford-street (corner of Vere-street), W.
Established 1710.
Home and Foreign Insurances Effected.
Sum insured in 1878, £32,892,661.
FRANCIS B. RELTON, Secretary.

BANK OF NEW ZEALAND (Incorporated by Act of General Assembly, July 29, 1861).
Bankers to the New Zealand Government.
Capital subscribed and paid up, £1,000,000.
Reserve Fund, £250,000.
Head Office—Auckland.
BRANCHES AND AGENCIES.
In Australia—Melbourne, Sydney, and Newcastle.
In Fiji—Levuka.
In New Zealand—Auckland, Blenheim, Christchurch, Dunedin, Invercargill, Napier, Nelson, New Plymouth, Picton, Wellington, and at eighty-two other towns and places throughout the Colony.
The Bank grants Drafts on all their Branches and Agencies, and transacts every description of banking business connected with New Zealand, Australia, and Fiji on the most favourable terms.
The London Office RECEIVES FIXED DEPOSITS of £50 and upwards, rates and particulars of which can be ascertained on application.
F. LANSWORTHY, Managing Director.
No. 1, Queen Victoria-street, Mansion House, E.C.

FIRST ISSUE of 17,500 SHARES, of which 6000 are accepted by the Vendor in part payment for the properties. The remaining 11,500 Shares are now for Subscription.
THE TURKISH BATHS COMPANY (LIMITED).—CAPITAL £100,000, with power to increase for the purpose of erecting Baths elsewhere), in £25,000 Shares of £1 each. Payable 2s. 6d. per Share on Application, and 2s. 6d. per Share on Allotment; the remainder in Calls of not more than 5s. per Share each. Incorporated under the Companies' Acts, 1862 to 1880, whereby the liability of each Shareholder is limited to the amount of his Shares. Eight per Cent Interest guaranteed on the paid-up sum for the first 2 years of the Company's operations.
The Camden Turkish Baths were opened on Nov. 26, 1878, under the auspices of the following gentlemen:—
Sir Thomas Chambers, Knt., Q.C., M.P., Recorder for the City of London.
Robert Furniss, Esq., Metropolitan Board of Works (Member for St. Pancras).
Wm. Hardwicke, Esq., M.D., M.R.C.P.
Morell Mackenzie, Esq., M.D., F.R.C.P.
Samuel Pope, Esq., Q.C., Recorder for Bolton.
Edgar Sheppard, Esq., M.D., M.R.C.P., Medical Officer Colney Hatch Asylum.
The Rev. Chas. Wm. Williams, D.D., F.R.A.S.
Fortes Winslow, Esq., M.R.C.S., D.C.L.

DIRECTORS.
The Rev. Chas. Wm. Williams, D.D., F.R.A.S., Principal, North London Collegiate School, The Rectory, Brondesbury, Middlesex.
Lieutenant-Colonel Knollys, Brooke's Club, St. James-street, London.
Cornelius F. H. White, Esq., Edmonton, Middlesex.
Major W. H. Broun, 22, Chalcot-crescent, Camden, W.
*H. R. Bridgman, Esq., A.R.I.B.A., 125, Camden-road, London, N.W.
*Will join the Board (after Allotment) without remuneration.
BANKERS.—The National Bank, 189, High-street, Camden Town, N.W.; and 13, Old Broad-street, London, E.C.
SOLICITORS.—Messrs. Badham and Williams, 3, Salters' Hall-court, Cannon-street, London, E.C.
AUDITOR.—Henry N. Smith, Esq., Chartered Accountant, 37, Walbrook, London, E.C.
SECRETARY (pro tem.).—Henry Gamble Hobson, Esq. Registered Office, 5, Poultry, London, E.C.
ABRIDGED PROSPECTUS.
This Company has been formed for the purpose of purchasing and working the well-known Camden Turkish Baths (which are situated at the junction of Hich-street, and Kentish Town-road, Camden Town), with the premises adjacent thereto; and for the purpose of erecting and carrying on Turkish and other Baths, including Sea-water Baths, in various parts of the Metropolis and elsewhere. The Camden Baths have been conducted with increasing success since they were opened, at the latter part of 1878.
The commercial prosperity of and increasing demand for Turkish Baths in the metropolis led to the erection of the Camden Baths by private enterprise, in such a liberal manner that they are, without doubt, the most scientifically built, best ventilated, handsomely decorated, and most comfortable Baths in London.
The total receipts from the Camden Baths for the second year of their working show an increase of over 36 per cent. on the first year's takings; and, judging from this and the subsequent business done, there is no reason whatever to doubt the prosperity of the company.
The merits of Turkish Baths as a means of luxury and cleanliness and a preservative of health are becoming well known and recognised by nearly all classes, especially the faculty, and it is necessary that the bath should be constructed on true principles. There can be no hesitation in saying, after a careful scientific examination of the Camden Turkish Baths, that they are far in advance of any yet placed at the disposal of the public.
There is every probability of an increased profit in the undertaking proving more than ordinarily remunerative to shareholders; in addition to which they will have in the various properties assigned ample security for the amounts invested, with the prospect of an annual increase thereof.
The only Agreement entered into by the Company is dated April 11, 1881, and made between Mr. Henry Hewitt Bridgman (the Vendor) of the one part, and Mr. Henry Gamble Hobson, for and on behalf of the Turkish Baths Company (Limited), of the other part.
Copies of this Agreement and the Memorandum and Articles of Association can be seen at the office of the Company.
Prospectuses, giving full particulars of properties to be assigned to Company, estimated profits for first year of Company's business, with Forms of Application for Shares, can be obtained at the Offices of the Company, the Bathe, or from the Bankers or Solicitors. Should no allotment be made, the amount paid on application will be returned in full.

SOOLBATH NAUHEIM (near Frankfort-on-Main), station of the Main-Weser Railway.—NATURAL WARM SOOLBATHS, rich in Carbonic Acid; Saline Drinking Springs and Alkaline Chalybeate Springs; Inhalation Salon, Ozone and Iodated Atmospheres; Goat-Whey Cure. Season from MAY 1 to Sept. 30. Baths may be obtained before and after above dates.
For the Hesse Grand Ducal Nauheim Bath Direction, JARGES.

PETER ROBINSON'S
COURT and GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
REGENT-STREET.

FAMILY BEREAVEMENTS.
Upon Receipt of Letter or Telegram
PETER ROBINSON'S EXPERIENCED DRESSMAKERS and MILLINERS TRAVEL to ALL PARTS of the COUNTRY (no matter the distance) FREE OF EXPENSE TO PURCHASERS, with Dresses, Mantles, Millinery, and a full assortment of MADE-UP ARTICLES of the best and most suitable description. Also Materials by the Yard, and supplied at the same VERY REASONABLE PRICES as if Purchased at the Warehouse in "REGENT-STREET."
Mourning for Servants at unexceptionally low rates, at a great saving to large or small families.
Funerals Conducted in Town or Country at Stated Charges.
Address 256 to 262, Regent-street, London.
PETER ROBINSON'S.

THE BEST CRAPES,
THAT WILL NOT SPOT WITH RAIN.
Special qualities finished by the manufacturer in this desirable manner solely to the order of PETER ROBINSON.
Good qualities from 2s. 6d. to 4s. 6d. per yard. Others, not finished by this process, from 1s. 6d. to 4s. 6d.

A SPECIAL PURCHASE.
300 PIECES OF
RICH BLACK BROCADED SILKS, very fashionable now for Costume and Mantles, 3s. 9d., 3s. 11d., 4s. 3d., 4s. 9d., 5s. 11d., 6s. 6d.

100 PIECES OF
BLACK SATIN IMPERIAL, a New Make of Satin, Rich in appearance, and wears better than any other silk. 5s. 6d., and up to 10s. 3d.

BLACK SATIN MERVEILLEUX, new this Season, 3s. 6d., 4s. 11d., 5s. 9d., 6s. 6d.

BLACK SATIN DE LYON, a good useful Silk, for Hard Wear, 3s. 6d., 4s. 11d., 5s. 11d., 6s. 6d.

BLACK DUCHESS SATIN, at 5s. 6d., 6s. 6d.; Magnificent qualities at 7s. 6d. and 10s. 6d.

BLACK SATINS (Cotton Backs), 1s. 11d., 2s. 6d., 2s. 11d., 3s. 11d.

BLACK BROCADED VELVETS, 5s. 3d., 6s. 11d., 8s. 9d., 10s. 9d.

BLACK TWILLED SILKS, for Summer Wear, at 3s. 6d., and above.

BLACK SURAT SILKS, with White Floral Designs, 2s. 11d., 3s. 6d., 3s. 11d.

COSTUMES in SILK, SATIN, and BROCADE.
Facsimiles of Expensive Paris Models at 4½ guineas and up to 20 guineas.
Materials for Bodices included.
For Patterns of the above, Please write to—
PETER ROBINSON'S, REGENT-STREET, Nos. 256 to 262.

ROYAL and IMPERIAL PATRONAGE. EGERTON BURNETT'S SERGES For LADIES and GENTLEMEN include the Best Makes. Patterns free. Address 4, Wellington, Somerset.

TEENS that young ladies are in no hurry to get out of—
"LOUIS" VELVET-TEENS.
THE "LOUIS" VELVETEEN
IS SIMPLY UNIQUE.
Do not be induced by persuasion to take any
LOUIS AN EXTRA PROFIT TO YOUR LOSS may be speciously made if you accept, under whatever name offered, an inferior quality of Velveteen. "THE LOUIS" has established its reputation so widely that even a slight inferiority would injure its repute, which constitutes
LOUIS A TEST OF MERIT, and guarantee of UNSURPASSED QUALITY.
Be sure you find the words
THE "LOUIS" VELVETEEN on every yard, or you have not the GENUINE "LOUIS," not withstanding all assertions to the contrary.
LOUIS Wholesale London Agent: J. H. FULLER, 92, Wardour-street, who will send on inquiry, post-free, the names of the nearest Drapers from whom the genuine LOUIS VELVETEEN can be obtained.

LADIES IN THE COUNTRY are requested to write for PATTERNS of NEW SPRING SILKS, including
Surahs, Merveilleux, Duchesse Satins, Brocades, Figured Velvets, Black Silks, Satin de Lyon, Gros Grains, Fancy Silks, &c.
All to be had in Black, White, and the Eighty-seven New Shades of Colours.
Cash Prices. Parcels free.
PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON.

LADIES IN THE COUNTRY are requested to write for patterns of NEW SPRING DRESSES, including Angola and Camel Hair Beige Cashmir Fonlé,
Cachemire de Paris, Mixed Wool and Silk Damassé,
Cashmere Merino Grenadine, Fine Vigogne,
New shades of Black and Coloured Rich Velveteens.
New Pompadour and Plain Satins, Percales, &c.
All the New Colours and Designs.
Cash Prices. Parcel free.
PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON.

NEW COSTUMES for SPRING.
Success, a rich Satin Costume, 4½ guineas.
Palestro, stylish Silk Costume, 5 guineas.
Cora, rich Satin de Lyon Costume, 5½ guineas.
Patterns and Illustrations (just out) post-free.
PETER ROBINSON, Oxford-street, W.

AEGIDIUS. — The only non-shrinking Flannel Shirt. Warm as wool, soft as silk, and very elastic. Patterns and self-measure free.
R. FORD, 41, Poultry, London.

JAY'S, Regent-street.

MOURNING.—Messrs. JAY'S Experienced Assistants travel to any part of the kingdom, free of expense to purchasers. They take dresses and millinery with them, besides patterns of materials, all marked in plain figures, and at the same price as if purchased at the Warehouse in Regent-street. Funerals at stated charges conducted in London or country. JAY'S, REGENT-STREET.

EVENING DRESSES, Black Net, Tulle, and Spanish Lace.—Messrs. JAY prepare for the season a variety of black Evening Dresses, which they can confidently recommend both for correctness of fashion and economy in price. Designs and prices post-free.
JAY'S, Regent-street.

DRESS.—Messrs. JAY respectfully invite their clientele to the choice Collection of Pattern Costumes of the Newest Type of Fashion, which are imported from Paris and Berlin.
JAY'S, Regent-street.

PEAU DE CHAMOIS COSTUMES.—A varied series of COSTUMES, made from Peau de Chamois Satin, are produced weekly during the season. Price 6½ guineas each, including sufficient satin to make a bodice.
JAY'S,
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
REGENT-STREET, W.

NICHOLSON'S
NEW SPRING SAMPLES.
Patterns post-free.
FRENCH CASHMERES, BEIGES,
SERGES, HERRING-BONE and MILAN STRIPES,
and all the Newest Materials in the most beautiful colours.

NICHOLSON'S
NEW WASHING FABRICS.
Patterns post-free.
FRENCH SATTEENS, CAMBRICS,
OATMEAL CLOTH, BRILLIANTS, &c.
in every new and tasteful design.

NICHOLSON'S
NEW SILKS.
Patterns post-free.
PLUSHES, VELVETEENS, SATINS,
BROCHES, SATIN DE LYONS, and
PLAIN LYONS GROS GRAIN,
in every fashionable shade.

D. NICHOLSON and CO.,
50 to 53, ST. PAUL'S-CHURCHYARD, LONDON.
SOLE LESSEES OF THE COSTUME COURT, CRYSTAL PALACE.

NEW SPRING DRESSES.—New Heather Tweed Beiges, 7½d.; New Granit Merveilleux, 6¼d. Patterns free.—JOHN HOOPER, 52, Oxford-street, W.

NOVELTIES for LADIES' MORNING DRESSES.—French Satteens, 8¾d.; Pompadours, 7¾d.; Prints, 5½d.; Linen Lawns, 9½d. Patterns free.
JOHN HOOPER, 52, Oxford-street, W.

LADIES' ELASTIC SUPPORTING BANDS, for use before and after Accouchement.
Instructions for measurement and prices on application to POPE and PLANTE, 4, Waterloo-place, Pall-mall, London.

PRATT'S LADIES' BELTS AND ABDOMINAL SUPPORTS
ARE CONFIDENTLY RECOMMENDED AS THE MOST COMFORTABLE AND EFFICIENT EVER MADE
Apply to the Ladies' Attendant,
PRATT'S PATENT DEPOT,
420, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON, W.

NUDA VERITAS.—GREY HAIR restored by this valuable specific to its original shade, after which it grows the natural colour, not grey. Used as a dressing, it promotes the growth and arrests falling. The most inveterate baldness and effectual restorer extant. One trial will convince it has no equal. Price 10s. 6d., of all Chemists and Hairdressers. Testimonials post-free.—R. HOVENDEN and SONS, London.

GOLDEN HAIR.—ROBARE'S AUREOLINE produces the beautiful Golden Colour so much admired. Warranted perfectly harmless. Prices 5s., 7s., and 10s. 6d., of all Perfumers. Wholesale, HOVENDEN and SONS, 5, Great Marlborough-street, W.; and 33 and 36, City-road, E.C.

VALUABLE DISCOVERY for the HAIR.
If your hair is turning grey, or white, or falling off, use "The Mexican Hair Renewer." It will positively restore in every case Grey or White Hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots where the glands are not decayed. "The Mexican Hair Renewer" is sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere, at 3s. 6d. per Bottle.

FLORILINE. For the Teeth and Breath. Is the best Liquid Dentifrice in the world; it thoroughly cleanses partially-decayed teeth from all parasites or living "animalculæ," leaving them pearly white, imparting a delightful fragrance to the breath. The Fragrant Floriline removes instantly all odours arising from a foul stomach or tobacco smoke, being partly composed of honey, soda, and extracts of sweet herbs and flowers. It is perfectly harmless, and delicious as sherry. Sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere, at 2s. 6d. per Bottle.

FLORIMEL OF PALM.
A white and delicate hand is the first attribute of beauty and civilisation. "The hand," says Sir Charles Bell in the "Bridgewater Treatise," "distinguishes man from the brute; be careful of it, for in polite society it is an index not only of the body but of the mind."
The Florimel of Palm being rubbed over the skin is to be removed with a little water, then dried with a soft towel. Once using will convince the most sceptical that, if daily applied, too much cannot be said in favour of Florimel of Palm for rendering the skin or hands white, delicate, soft, and fair.
Sold in Jars, 3s. 6d., each.
PIESSE and LUBIN, 2, New Bond-street, London.
May be obtained of any Chemist or Perfumer in the world.

TURKISH PASTILS.
"Through all my travels few things astonished me more than seeing the beauties of the harem smoking Narghilés at Stamboul. After smoking a sweet aromatic lozenge or pastil is used by them, which is said to impart an odour of flowers to the breath. I have never seen these Pastils in England but once in Brighton, and that was at PIESSE and LUBIN'S shop in Bond-street."—Lady W. Montagu.
Price 2s. 6d., 5s., 10s., 21s.; by post, 2s. 2d.
2, NEW BOND-STREET, LONDON.

SWEET SACHETS.
PIESSE and LUBIN compose every variety of Sachet Powder the same odours as their many perfumes for the handkerchief. Placed in a drawer, trunk, or travelling-bag, they impart a grateful and pleasing perfume without being too pungent. Piesse and Lubin also have, on demand, Dried Odorous Flowers, Spices, and Odoriferous Gums. Price, In tin, 1s.; per box, 2s. 6d.
2, NEW BOND-STREET, LONDON.

ROWLANDS' ODONTO is the purest and most fragrant dentifrice ever made. All dentists will allow that neither wash nor paste can possibly be a efficacious for polishing the teeth and keeping them sound and white as a pure and non-gritty tooth powder; hence Rowlands' Odonto has always proved itself to be.

THE SKIN.—The glory of woman, the pride of man. It contains the delicate lines of beauty and constitutes all that we term "Loveliness;" yet how many thousands have their skins blemished by the use of the irritant soaps, Carbolic, Coal Tar, Glycerine, and the coarse coloured soaps, caustic with alkali and made of putrid fats. The more delicate the skin the quicker its ruin. The ALBION MILK AND SULPHUR SOAP is the purest, the whitest, and most purifying of all soaps, by its purifying action taking away and preventing all pimples, blotches, and roughness. It is recommended by the entire Medical Profession as the most elegant preparation for the skin that is known. By all Chemists, in Tablets, 6d. and 1s. THE ALBION SANATORY SOAP COMPANY, 32a, Oxford-street, London.

NEW MUSIC.

OLIVETTE. New Comic Opera. Enormous success at the Strand Theatre. Adapted by H. B. Farnie; Music by AUBRAN.
Vocal Score ... 2s. net.
Abridged Edition of the Vocal Score, containing the Overture, Songs, &c. ... ... ... ... 4s. net.
Pianoforte Solo ... ... ... ... 2s. 6d. "
All the Favourite Airs, arranged for the Violin ... 1s. 6d. "
Lancers, D'Albert .. 2s. net. | Galop, D'Albert ... 2s. net.
Waltz, D'Albert .. 2s. " | Nearest and Dearest Waltz, D'Albert .. 2s. "
Quadrille, D'Albert.. 2s. "
Polka, D'Albert .. 2s. "
Boyton Smith's Fantasia ... ... ... 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

NEW AND POPULAR SONGS.

WELCOME. Lady ARTHUR HILL. 2s. net.
CŒUR DE LION. H. J. STARK. Sung by Mr. Oswald. 2s. net.
AT THE PORTAL. N. FERRI. Sung by Madame Mary Cummings. 2s. net.
WHAT THE FIRELIGHT TOLD. J. L. ROECKEL. 2s. net.
ANGUS MACDONALD. J. L. ROECKEL. Sung by Madame Enriquez. 2s. net.
THE CHILDREN IN THE WOOD. ROECKEL. 2s. net.
WHERE THE PURPLE VIOLET GROWS. From "The Turquoise Ring." L. BENSON. 2s. net.
DINNA LEAVE ME. A. M. WAKEFIELD. Composer of "No, Sir." 2s. net.
THOUGHTS AT SUNRISE. Mrs. L. MONCRIEFF. 2s. net.
SERENADE ("Moonlight falls o'er the Sea"). LUKE C. WHEELER. 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

NEW SONGS by Mrs. RONALDS.
IN SHADOW ... ... ... ... 2s. net.
WHY? ... ... ... ... 2s. net.
EVER NEAR ... ... ... ... 2s. net.
DIS MOI POURQUOI ... ... ... 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

CHARLES D'ALBERT'S NOVELTIES.
PIRATES OF PENZANCE LANCERS, WALTZ, QUADRILLE, POLKA, and GALOP ... each 2s. 6d. net
ADELINA WALTZ. Illustrated with beautiful Portrait of Madame Patti ... ... ... 2s. 6d. net
PORTIA WALTZ ... ... ... 2s. 6d. net
DRINK, PUPPY, DRINK! POLKA ... ... ... 2s. 6d. net
CONGRESS LANCERS ... ... ... 2s. 6d. net
DISTANT SHORE WALTZ ... ... ... 2s. 6d. net
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

Now ready, Volume II. of
CHAPPELL'S OLD ENGLISH DITTIES.
Handsomely bound in cloth and gold.
Price 10s. 6d. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S THREE-YEARS' SYSTEM of HIRE of PIANOFORTES, HARMONIUMS, and AMERICAN ORGANS, by which the Instrument becomes the property of the Hirer at the end of the third year, provided each quarter's hire shall have been regularly paid in advance. Pianofortes, from 2½s. Harmoniums, from £1 5s.; and American Organs, from £2 10s. a Quarter.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S PIANINOS, from 20 guineas.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S COTTAGES, from 27 guineas.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S GRANDS, from 75 guineas.

CHICKERING PIANOFORTES, from 120 guineas, with American discount.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ALEXANDRE HARMONIUMS, for Church, Schools, or Drawing-Rooms, from 6 to 150 guineas; or, on the Three-Years' System, from £1 5s. per Quarter.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S IMPROVED AMERICAN ORGANS, combining Pipes with Reeds, Manufactured by Clough and Warren, Detroit, U.S.A. The immense advantages these instruments possess over the Organs hitherto imported have induced Messrs. Chappell and Co. to undertake the sole Agency of this eminent Manufactory. A large variety on view, from 18 to 250 guineas. Price-Lists on application to CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

CLOUGH and WARREN'S Favourite ORGAN. Compass, five octaves, ten stops, four sets of reeds, two of two and two thirds octaves and two of two and one third octaves, knee swell, elegant carved Canadian walnut case, price 25 guineas. With twelve stops, sub-bass octave coupler, and two knee pedals, 35 guineas. Illustrated Price-List free by post.
Sole Agents, CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

INSTRUMENTS by ALL MAKERS may be HIRED or PURCHASED on the Three-Years' System.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

A LARGE DISCOUNT TO PURCHASERS FOR CASH.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

BROADWOOD'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on CRAMER'S Three-Years' System, from £2 12s. 6d. per Quarter.

COLLARD'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on CRAMER'S Three-Years' System; in Black and Gold Cases at £4 14s. 6d. to £5 5s., £6 6s., £7 7s., and in Special Early English Ebonised Case, £8 8s. per Quarter.

ERARD'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on CRAMER'S Three-Years' System, from £5 5s. per Quarter.

CRAMER'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on their Three-Years' System, from £1 11s. 6d. per Quarter. Detailed Lists post-free on application to Regent-street, W.; Bond-street, W.; Moorgate-street, E.C.; and naS, High-street, Notting-hill.

"Steinway is to the Pianist what Stradivarius is to the Violinist."—Herr Joachim.

THE STEINWAY PIANOFORTES,
GRAND AND UPRIGHT,
THE GREATEST PIANOFORTES IN THE WORLD.
The Steinway Pianofortes are the chosen instruments of the educated and wealthy classes in every nation throughout civilisation, and have by far the largest annual sale of any pianofortes in the world.
STEINWAY and SONS,
STEINWAY HALL,
LOWER SEYMOUR-STREET, PORTMAN-SQUARE, W.
(And at Steinway Hall, New York.)

PIANOFORTES for HIRE or for SALE, from 25 guineas upwards.—JOHN BROADWOOD and SONS, 33, Great Pulteney-street, Golden-square, W. Manufactory, 55, Horseferry-road, Westminster, W.

£20 SCHOOL-ROOM PIANO (Co-operative price for cash). Seven octaves—strong sound, and substantial. Adapted for hard practice. Carefully packed free, and sent to any part. Drawings gratis.
THOMAS OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street.

£35.—There is nothing in London—nor, in fact, in all England—to be compared to the elegantly curved DRAWING-ROOM TRICHORD COTTAGE PIANOFORTE, with Cabriole Truss Legs, which is sold for £35 by THOMAS OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, Portman-sq.

PLEYEL WOLFF and CO. Established 1807. Gold Medal, 1827, 1838, 1839, 1844, and 1878. Prize Medal, 1862. Médaille d'Honneur, 1855. Hors de Concours, 1869, 1867, 1873. The sole Agents have every description of these admired PIANOS for SALE or HIRE. Special models in black wood.—170, New Bond-street, W.

NEW MUSIC.

MADAME PATEY'S NEW SONGS.
THE CHILDREN OF THE CITY. By S. ADAMS.
THE MERCHANT OF CHEAPSIDE. By LOUIS DIEHL.
2s. each.—BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

EDWARD LLOYD'S NEW SONGS.
MIGNONETTE. By SUCHET CHAMPION.
THE LOVE OF LONG AGO. By W. H. CUMMINGS.
2s each.—BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

MARZIALS' NEW SONGS.
A SUMMER SHOWER. Sung by Miss Mary Davies.
ROCHESTER BELLS. Sung by the Composer.
THAT SWEET STORY OF OLD. Sacred song.
2s. each.—BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

MOLLOY'S NEW SONGS.
THE BOATSWAIN'S STORY. Sung by Mr. Santley.
THE FIRST LETTER. Sung by Miss Mary Davies.
TWENTY-ONE. Sung by Antoinette Sterling.
2s. each.—BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

JOSEPH WILLIAMS'S LIST.
THE LATEST SUCCESS.
BILLEE TAYLOR. Comic Opera. By H. P. STEPHENS and E. SOLOMON.
VOCAL SCORE ... ... ... 8s. net.
SONGS.
ALL ON ACCOUNT OF ELIZA (Third Edition). 2s. net.
SELF-MADE KNIGHT (Second Edition). 2s. net.
THE VIRTUOUS GARDENER. 2s. net.
FANTASIA FOR PIANO. CH. TOURVILLE. 1s. 6d. net.

PIANO SCORE (Complete). 2s. 6d. net. Now ready.
*QUADRILLES ON THE AIRS OF THE OPERA. 2s. net.
*LANCERS. By ARTHUR GRENVILLE. 2s. net.
*WALTZES. By CHARLES GODFREY. 2s. net.
DANCE MUSIC, BILLEE TAYLOR, ready. Orchestra, 2s.; Septet, 1s. 6d.
* Beautifully Illustrated.

HENRY FARMER'S PIANOFORTE TUTOR, considerably Enlarged and Fingered by the Author. 100th Edition. 4s.
"Decidedly the best and most useful instruction book we have seen."—Musical Review.

Post-free, 2s. net.
A LIFE'S LOVE. In C and D. Song. Composed by J. R. WALDECK. Will be sung by Mr. Robert Hilton at Dumbarton, Helensburgh, and Glasgow on the 26th, 27th, and 28th inst.
London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 24, Berners-street; and 123, Cheapside.

THE LOVE OF OLD. ROECKEL'S charming New Song will be sung by Miss Damian at her forthcoming engagements. Post-free, 24 stamps.

PIANO DUETS.
C. REINECKE. Three Sonatas, Op. 139. Price 2s. each, net.

PIANO SOLOS.
W. KUHE. NEW SACRED TRANSCRIPTIONS.
Elì (Costa), Nazman (Costa). Price 2s. each net.
TH. LACK. NEW PIECES.
Menuet, La Mesquette, Bolero. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
H. MOURIER. NEW PIECES.
Joyeuse Rentrée, Fête à Trianon, Parfait Bonheur. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
FRANZ RITZ. NEW PIECES.
Carnotage (Caprice). Lutin Rose, Le Regiment qui passe. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
JOYFUL MOMENTS. Ten Easy Pieces on Popular Subjects. Arranged by CH. TOURVILLE. Price 1s. each net.
OUR FAVOURITES. Ten Moderately Easy Pieces on Popular Subjects. Arranged by CH. TOURVILLE. Price 1s. 3d. each net.

THE PROGRESSIVE MUSIC SCHOOL.
Carefully Edited, Fingered, and Corrected from the Original Manuscripts, by LEYBACH. First Series (very easy), 15 Numbers. Numbers 1 to 14, price 1s. 3d. each net. Number 15, price 1s. 6d. net.

VIOLIN AND PIANO DUETS.
S. JACOBY. Six Popular Airs (Brilliant), with Piano Accompaniment. Price 1s. each net.
CH. TOURVILLE. Twelve Favourite Subjects (Moderate). Price 1s. 6d. each net.

H. FARMER. Popular Violin Solos (Brilliant), with Piano Accompaniment. Nine Numbers. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 24, Berners-street, W.; and 123, Cheapside, E.C.

TARRY, TARRY, ERE YE MARRY.
Words by Gordon Campbell; the Music by A. S. GATTY.
A highly successful setting to a most telling melody, in true Scotch rhythm. Post-free for 18 stamps.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., 6, New Burlington-street.

VALLEY ECHOES. Six elegant Morceaux for the Pianoforte. Composed by WILLIAM SMALLWOOD. Most appropriately and elegantly illustrated.
1. Valley of the Rhine. | 4. Ihruim.
2. The Tyrol. | 5. Festinig.
3. Bonos, Naples. | 6. California.
3s. each; post-free at half price in stamps.
"There is no doubt that the series will be much sought after, and highly appreciated."—Orchestra.
"They are written in a most happy style, and cannot fail to command a rapid sale."—Birmingham Chronicle.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

QUIS EST HOMO. ROSSINI.
Beautifully transcribed for the Piano by GEO. F. WEST. Post-free for 18 stamps.—London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

ONLY TO SEE THEE. Song. By F. CAMPANA. Post-free for 18 stamps. "Is well worthy the attention of singers desiring a simple and touching song."
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

DON'T FORGET ME. Song. By CIRO PINSUTI. Post-free for 24 stamps. The popularity of this song continues unabated, and it justly ranks with his most successful compositions.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

O, SANTA MELODIA. DONIZETTI.
This beautiful theme, effectively transcribed for the Piano, by BRINLEY RICHARDS. Post-free for 18 stamps.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

WHEN ALL THE WORLD IS YOUNG.
New Song. By A. J. CALDICOTT. A most effective setting of Charles Kingsley's fine poem. Post-free for 18 stamps.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

THE BUGLER. In D, F, and G. By CIRO PINSUTI. Words by F. E. Weatherly.
This very successful song has now reached the Tenth Edition.

THE LINNET'S ANSWER. In E and G.
A charming tenor song by the same Composer.
Received with continuing favour.

THE CHALLENGE. For Bass and Baritone. By HUMPHREY J. STARK. Words by E. Oxenford. A bold and vigorous composition, and received always by great applause and repeated encores.

WEIT VON DIR (Far from Thee). Waltz.
By OSCAR SEYDEL. "When she went back to the ball-room, Captain Winstanley followed her, and claimed his waltz. The band was just striking up the latest German melody, 'Weit von Dir,' a strain of drawling tenderness."—Vide Miss Braddon's "Vixen." Each of the above 2s. net.
D. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster-row.

CHARLES HALLÉ'S PRACTICAL PIANOFORTE SCHOOL.
Section 1.—No. 1, PIANOFORTE TUTOR.
Catalogue and all Particulars may be had from
FORSYTH BROTHERS, London, 272a, Regent-circus, Oxford-street; Manchester, Cross-street and South King-street; and all Musicsellers.

HELLER'S TRANSCRIPTION for the PIANOFORTE of SCHUBERT'S SONGS.
WANDERING, THE BUTTERFLY, THE HURDY-GURDY PLAYER.
Performed by Mr. Charles Hallé.
Price 2s. each.
Sold at half price and postage free.
FORSYTH BROTHERS, 272a, Regent-circus, Oxford-street, London; and Cross-street, South King-street, Manchester.

NEW MUSIC.

THE MUSICAL TIMES for APRIL contains:—The Music of Dvorák—The Great Composers: Berlioz—Mr. Pepys the Musician, by F. Hueffer—Sacred Music in Italy—Crystal Palace, Monday Popular, Bach Choir, Sacred Harmonic Society, Philharmonic Society, Mr. Charles Hallé's, and M. Lamoureux's Concerts—Music in Manchester—Dr. Stone "On the Combination of Voices with Musical Instruments"—Occasional Notes—Foreign and Country News—Reviews, &c. Price 3d.; post-free, 4d. Annual Subscription, 4s., including postage.

THE MUSICAL TIMES for APRIL contains:—"Holy Spirit, come, O come!" Anthem for Whitsuntide, by George C. Martin. Price, separately, 1½d.

MESSRS. NOVELLO, EWER, and CO. have the honour to announce that they have purchased the ENTIRE STOCK and COPYRIGHTS of the WORKS hitherto published by Messrs. NEUMEYER and CO., of Neumeyer Hall, including the whole of the valuable Compositions of HEINRICH HOFMANN, &c.

NOVELLO'S ORIGINAL OCTAVO EDITION of OPERAS. Edited and Corrected according to the Original Scores by NATALIA MACFARREN and BERTHOLD TOURS. The English Translations by Natalia Macfarren and the Rev. J. Troutbeck, M.A., &c.

| | s. d. | | s. d. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Fra Diavolo .. .. | 3 6 | Die Zauberflöte .. .. | 3 6 |
| Masaniello .. .. | 3 6 | Il Seraglio .. .. | 3 6 |
| Fidelio .. .. | 3 6 | Il Barbiere .. .. | 3 6 |
| Norma .. .. | 3 6 | Guillaume Tell .. .. | 5 0 |
| La Sonnambula .. | 3 6 | Il Trovatore .. .. | 3 6 |
| I Puritani .. .. | 3 6 | Rigoletto .. .. | 3 6 |
| Lucia di Lammermoor .. | 3 6 | La Traviata .. .. | 3 6 |
| Lucrezia Borgia .. | 3 6 | Ernani .. .. | 3 6 |
| La Figlia del Reggimento | 3 6 | Tannhäuser .. .. | 3 6 |
| Martha .. .. | 3 6 | Lohengrin .. .. | 3 6 |
| Ifigenia in Aulis .. | 3 6 | Flying Dutchman .. | 3 6 |
| Ifigenia in Tauris .. | 3 6 | Tell .. .. | 3 6 |
| L'Etoile du Nord .. | 5 0 | Der Freischutz .. .. | 3 6 |
| Don Giovanni .. .. | 3 6 | Precios Ruse .. .. | 1 6 |
| Le Nozze di Figaro .. | 3 6 | (To be continued.) | |

JUST PUBLISHED, ONE SHILLING EACH.
NOVELLO'S PIANOFORTE ALBUMS.
Edited by BERTHOLD TOURS. Nos. 1 and 2, each containing Twenty Compositions by Bach. Nos. 3, 4, 5, and 6, each containing Twenty-four compositions by Handel.
List of Contents may be had on application.
NOVELLO, EWER, and CO., 1, Berners-street, W.; and 80 and 81, Queen-street, E.C.

THREE NEW SONGS. By Lord HENRY SOMERSET. ONE MORE (in E and D), 2s.; DAWN, NOON, AND NIGHT (in F), 2s. 6d.; GOOD-BYE (in G minor and E minor). The Words by Major G. J. Whyte-Melville, 2s. 6d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER, and Co.

MISS WAKEFIELD'S NEW SONGS.
"YES, SIR!" A sequel to "No, Sir!" Words by W. H. Harding.
SWEET SALLY GRAY. A North Countrie Ballad. Words by the late Robert Anderson.
"NO, SIR!" Spanish Ballad. Also arranged as a Vocal Duet by Theo. Marzials.
A SERENADE. Words by Tom Hood.
Price 2s. each net.
PATERSON and SONS, 27, George-street, Edinburgh.

METZLER and CO.
35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

MENDELSSOHN'S L'ANGE QUI CHANTE. Melodie Celeste. "A truly divine inspiration and angelic song of heavenly power."
Piano Solo, Violin and Piano, Flute and Piano, Violoncello and Piano.
Each 1s. 6d. net.—W. CZERNY, 349, Oxford-street.

JOHN BRINSMEAD and SONS' PATENT SOSTENENTE PIANOS have gained the highest awards at all the recent International Exhibitions, including the two First Prizes, Melbourne, 1881; the First Prize, Queens-land, 1880; the two First Special Prizes, Sydney, 1880; the Legion of Honour, Paris, 1878, &c. For SALE, Hire, and on the Three Years' System.—18 to 20, Wigmore-st., and 28, W. Illustrated List free.
JOHN BRINSMEAD and SONS' PIANOS for SALE, Hire, and on the Three-Years' System.—18, 20, Wigmore-street; and the Brinsmead Works, Grafton-road, N.W. Lists post-free.

MUSICAL BOX DEPÔTS, 22, Ludgate-hill, & 56, Cheapside, London.—Nicole's celebrated Musical Boxes, playing best secular and sacred music. Prices £1 to £200. Snuff-boxes from 18s. to 60s. Largest stock in London. Catalogue gratis and post-free. Apply to WALES & MCCULLOCH, as above.

THE PIANO-MÉCANIQUE (Debain, Inventor) performs the most elaborate compositions in their entirety, and with faultless precision and delicacy. Seven octaves. Organ, full trichord, grand action. Celeste, harmonic metal bars, Albert full, Plinth and fluted trusses, &c. 100 Guineas.

DIAMONDS, SAPPHIRES, CATS'-EYES, OPALS, EMERALDS. Mr. STREETER, 18, New Bond-street, W.
INTRODUCER of 18-CARAT GOLD JEWELLERY and ENGLISH LEVER WATCHES, (MACHINE-MADE.)
BRANCH ESTABLISHMENT, COLOMBO, CEYLON.

WALKER'S CRYSTAL CASE WATCHES are superseding all others. Prize Medals—London, 1862; Paris, 1867. Silver Watches, from £4 4s.; Gold, from £6 6s. Price-Lists sent free.—77, Cornhill; 220, Regent-street; and 76, Strand.

THE FINEST WATCHES MADE. SEWILL'S KEYLESS WATCHES, Prize Medals, London, Paris, and Philadelphia, Damp and Dust-proof, in oval cases, adjusted and compensated for all climates, £10 10s., £14 14s., and £25; Ladies', £7 7s., £10 10s., and £18 18s.; in Hunter cases, for Ladies or Gentlemen, £5 5s., £6 6s., and £8 8s. Forwarded on receipt of remittance.—J. Sewill, 20, Cornhill, London; and 61, South Castle-street, Liverpool.

DENT'S WATCHES, CLOCKS, and CHRONOMETERS.—Illustrated Catalogue sent-free.—Apply to 61, Strand, or 34, Royal Exchange, London.

NOVELTIES IN JEWELLERY. New Styles for 1881. Gold, Silver, and Gem Jewellery of all kinds. New "Pig," "Mouse," &c.; Artificial Diamond Jewellery; Norwegian, Italian, and Mauresque filigree Jewellery; Ladies' Watches, &c. Price-List, 300 Illustrations post-free.—Jewellery Depôt, 57, Cambridge-street, Birmingham.

FOR FAMILY ARMS (Lincoln's-inn Heraldic Office) send Name and County. Sketch, 3s. 6d.; in colours, 7s. 6d. Arms Painted and Engraved on Seals, Dies, &c. FUGE BROTHERS, Great Turnstile, Lincoln's-inn, W.C.; and 76, Queen Victoria-street, E.C. Prize Medal, Paris 1878.

WHAT IS YOUR CREST and WHAT IS YOUR MOTTO? Send name and county to CULLETON'S Heraldic Office. Plain Sketch, 3s. 6d.; colours, 7s. The arms of man and wife blended. Crest engraved on seals, rings, books, and steel dies, 5s. 6d. Gold seal, with crest, 20s. Solid gold ring, 18-carat, Hall-marked, with crest, 63s. Manual of Heraldry, 350 engravings, 3s. 9d.—T. CULLETON, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

CULLETON'S GUINEA BOX of STATIONERY contains a Ream of the very best Paper and 500 Envelopes, all stamped in the most elegant way with Crest and Motto, Monogram, or Address, and the engraving of steel Die included. Sent to any part for P.O. order.—T. CULLETON, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

VISITING CARDS, by CULLETON. Fifty best quality, 2s. 6d., post-free, including the Engraving of Copper-plate. Wedding Cards, 50 each, 5s. Embossed Envelopes, with Maiden Name, 1s. 6d.—T. CULLETON, Seal Engraver, 25, Cranbourn-street, St. Martin's-lane, W.C.

BREIDENBACH'S SACHETS. — Wood Violet, White Rose, Eau, Bouquet, Musk, Chypre, Stephanotis, Frangipanni, Ylang Ylang, Marechale, Jockey Club, Heliotrope. In Paper Envelopes, 1s. each; In Silk Bags, 1s. each; In Flat Satin Cushions, 2s. 6d. each. Sold by all Perfumers, Stores, and Fancy Dealers, or post-free from 157a, New Bond-street, London, W.

FOR SOUTH AFRICA.—How to get rid of your left-off clothes, jewels, furniture, antique lace, old gold teeth plates, &c. Why, send them to the most respectable pay-bayers, who pay you ready money before taking them away.—Mr. and Mrs. PHILLIPS, Old Curiosity Shop, 31, Thayer-street, Manchester-square, London, W.

FURNISH THROUGHOUT.
SUBSTANTIAL ARTISTIC FURNITURE (Registered).
OETZMANN and CO.,
HAMPSTEAD-ROAD,
NEAR TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD.
CARPETS, OETZMANN and CO.
FLOOR-CLOTHS, LINOLEUMS,
DINING-ROOM FURNITURE,
DRAWING-ROOM FURNITURE,
BED-ROOM FURNITURE, OETZMANN and CO.
BEDSTEADS, BEDDING,
DRAPERY, LINENS, &c.
FURNISHING IRONMONGERY,
ELECTRO-PLATE and CUTLERY,
KITCHEN REQUISITES,
CHINA, GLASS, OETZMANN and CO.
PICTURES, BRONZES, &c.,
CLOCKS, LAMPS, &c.
PIANOS, OETZMANN and CO.
ARTISTIC PAPERHANGINGS,
PAINTING, DECORATING, &c.,
GAS-FITTINGS, &c., OETZMANN & CO.
HOUSES TO BE LET OR SOLD.
REMOVALS by ROAD, RAIL, or SEA.
POSTAL ORDER DEPARTMENT.
SHIPPING DEPARTMENT.
DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE,
THE BEST FURNISHING GUIDE EXTANT,
GRATIS and POST-FREE,
OETZMANN and CO.,
67, 69, 71, 73, 77 and 79, OETZMANN and CO.,
HAMPSTEAD-ROAD, LONDON.

ELKINGTON and CO.,
MANUFACTURING SILVERSMITHS.
PATENTEES OF THE ELECTRO-PLATE.

ELKINGTON and CO.
CAUTION PURCHASERS AGAINST CHEAP AND INFERIOR IMITATIONS.
Illustrated Catalogues, post-free.
ELKINGTON and CO., 22, Regent-st.; or 42, Moorgate-st., City.

GARDNER'S DINNER and TABLE GLASS SERVICES. Free, graceful, and original designs, of unequalled value. Dinner Services, from 21s. Table Glass Services, of the best Crystal, for twelve persons, complete, 42s. Cash discount, 15 per cent. Coloured Photographic Sheets and Illustrated Glass Catalogues post-free.
453 and 454, West Strand, Charing-cross.

FRY'S Gold Medal, Paris. — First Award, Sydney.
FRY'S CARACAS COCOA.
"A most delicious and valuable article."—Standard.

COCOA. PURE COCOA ONLY.
FRY'S COCOA EXTRACT.
"Strictly pure."—W. W. STODDART, F.I.C., F.C.S., City Analyst, Bristol.
Thirteen Exhibition Medals.

SCHWEITZER'S COCOATINA.
Anti-Dyspeptic Cocoa or Chocolate Powder.
Guaranteed Pure Soluble Cocoa, with excess of Fat extracted. Four times the strength of Cocoa Thickened yet Weakened with Arrowroot, Starch, &c.
The faculty pronounce it the most nutritious, perfectly digestive Beverage for "BREAKFAST, LUNCHEON, or SUPPER." Keeps in all Climates. Requires no Cooking. A teaspoonful to Breakfast Cup, costing less than a halfpenny. Samples gratis.
In Air-Tight Tins, at 1s. 6d., 3s., &c., by Chemists and Grocers.
H. SCHWEITZER AND CO., 10, Adam-street, London, W.C.

CHOCOLAT MENIER.
Awarded the GRAND DIPLOMA OF HONOUR.

CHOCOLAT MENIER, in ½lb. and ¼lb. Packets.
For BREAKFAST and SUPPER.

CHOCOLAT MENIER.—Awarded Twenty Eight PRIZE MEDALS.
Consumption annually exceeds 18,000,000lbs.

CHOCOLAT MENIER. Paris, London, New York.
Sold Everywhere.

HORNIMAN'S TEA for Forty Years has commanded a large sale, because it can always be relied on for strength, flavour, and cheapness. It is the best tea imported. Sold only in Packets.

ROBERT ROBERTS and CO.'S CELEBRATED TEAS.
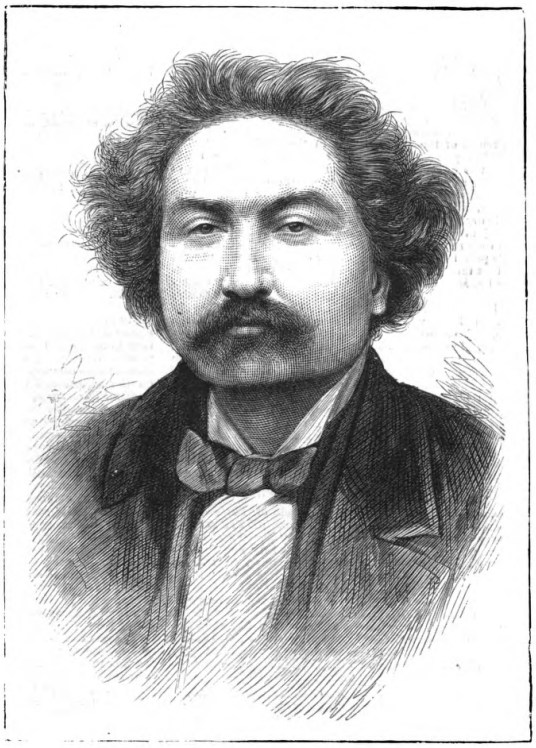
TWELVE POUNDS AND UPWARDS CARRIAGE PAID,
Samples and Price-lists free by post.
Queen Insurance-buildings, Liverpool. ESTABLISHED 1860.
No agents.
All communications and orders direct.

London: Printed and Published at the Office, 198, Strand, in the Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middlesex, by GEORGE C. LEIGHTON, 198, Strand, aforesaid.—SATURDAY, APRIL 16, 1881.

M. ERCKMANN.



M. CHATRIAN.

FARNBOROUGH HILL HOUSE, HANTS, THE NEW RESIDENCE OF THE EMPRESS EUGÉNIE.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

ERCKMANN-CHATRIAN.

This double name, which is associated with the joint authorship of many popular stories of French rustic, domestic, and military life, refers to the subjects of the two Portraits engraved by us for this week's publication. Emile Erckmann and Alexandre Chatrian have been united in a productive literary partnership since 1847, and have gained favour with hundreds of thousands of readers throughout Europe. The former was born, in 1822, at Phalsbourg, the latter in 1826, at Abreschwiller, both places in what was then the French department of the Meurthe, but in the province of Alsace, which has passed from France to Germany by the result of the war of 1870 and 1871. Erckmann was the son of a bookseller in his little native town, but came to Paris as a law-student. In 1847 he made the literary alliance with Chatrian, who was an usher in the town school or college of Phalsbourg. They first wrote tales and sketches for the provincial journals, but this work paid them so badly that Erckmann soon returned to his law studies, while Chatrian got a clerk's post in the Eastern Railway offices. It was not till 1859 that they gained a success in their story of "The Illustrious Dr. Mathéus," which was quickly followed by "Contes Fantastiques," "Contes de la Montagne," and "Contes des Bords du Rhin." "Maître Daniel Rock," published in 1861, was another story that attracted much notice. These writers had opened a fresh vein of picturesque, humorous, and romantic interest by their graphic and lifelike descriptions of rustic and domestic manners among the mixed French and German population of Alsace. They next began to depict the scenes and incidents of French military life in the Revolutionary and Napoleonic wars, more especially displaying the rough and hard experiences of the common soldier, and the sufferings of bereaved humble families, in such a manner as to expose the cruel effects of war upon the working-class people. This is the main theme of the most important works of Erckmann-Chatrian, several of which have been translated into English, German, and other foreign languages. The "History of a Conscript of 1813," "The Invasion, and Waterloo," "The Blockade of Phalsbourg," "The Story of a Peasant," and "A Man of the People," are very widely known, as well as "The Story of the Plébiscite, by One of the 7,500,000 who voted 'Yes,'" which refers to the re-establishment of the Empire, in 1852, by Napoleon III. A dramatic piece, in three acts, "L'Ami Fritz," written by these two authors jointly in 1864, was brought out at the Théâtre Français in 1876, with very good success; and they have contributed other plays to the stage. We understand that Messrs. Erckmann and Chatrian have recently been engaged, with Mr. Sydney Samuel, of London, in preparing an English version of their prohibited play, "Alsace," to be performed on the London stage.

THE EMPRESS EUGÉNIE'S RESIDENCE.

The widowed consort of the Emperor Napoleon III., whose bereavement of an only son, as well as of a husband, brought her the respectful sympathy of the English people, has preferred still to reside in England. Her Majesty will always be sure of the kind friendship of our Queen and Royal family, and was lately on a visit at Windsor Castle. Having quitted Camden Place, Chiselhurst, where the Emperor died eight years ago, she has chosen for her future abode the mansion formerly occupied by the late Mr. Thomas Longman, head of the eminent London publishers' firm, situate at Farnborough, in Hampshire. It is about thirty-three miles from London, near the Military College of Sandhurst and Wellington College, and close to the north side of Aldershott Camp. The Queen has a lodge or pavilion at Aldershott, and not unfrequently, when she is at Windsor in summer time, drives over there for two or three hours to enjoy the brilliant sight of a field-day parade of her gallant troops belonging to the Aldershott Army Corps. We may, therefore, anticipate that the Empress and our beloved Sovereign will often meet each other in that neighbourhood; and we trust that the invigorating air of the Hampshire Downs will preserve the health of the illustrious lady, who is now in the fifty-fifth year of her age, through the remainder of a long life, free from the cares and sorrows of her past career.

THE ISLE OF MAN.

Our Illustration of the dwellings and home life of Manx fishermen has a little occasional interest, since the first Session of the newly-elected "House of Keys," the island legislative assembly, was opened on Tuesday week. The late Parliamentary election there is the third under the Reform Act of 1866, but the first that has taken place under a greatly-reduced franchise. In the latter part of 1880 the local Legislature passed an Act whereby the qualification of a voter was fixed at "£4 annual value, owners and tenants all round." A still more liberal measure of reform was adopted—the granting of the franchise to female property-owners. By this last Reform Act the number of voters has been largely increased. According to the Census of 1871, the population of the Isle of Man was 53,763, and it is supposed that the ensuing Census will show an increase to nearly 60,000. The number of voters under the Act of 1866 was 4500; under the new Act 2238 have been added, making a total of 6788.

Under the administration of the present Lieutenant-Governor, Sir Henry Brougham Loch, K.C.B., the island has made great social and political progress. Soon after his appointment, in 1863, his Excellency introduced a number of reforms, and one was the abolition of the self-elective principle in the constitution of the House of Keys. The Lieutenant-Governor, the Governor's Council, and the House of Keys constitute the three political estates of the island. The working of popular representation in the government of the island has infused new life and energy into the conduct of affairs. The erection of harbour works at the various ports, the construction of railways, the extension of local government in the towns, reforms in the system of jurisprudence, the introduction of compulsory elementary education, and the establishment of a daily mail between Liverpool and Douglas may be enumerated among the improvements which have been effected. One of the political questions upon which candidates have now "gone to the country" is a further reduction of the franchise to household suffrage, a great number of fishermen and miners—an intelligent class of men, who represent the staple industries of the island—being excluded by the present qualification.

Our Artist's Sketch was taken at Port St. Mary, sometimes called Port-le-Murrey, in the south-west corner of the island, near Port Erin, which is the nearest to the shores of Ireland. There is a railway to these places from Douglas, the chief town, which is on the east coast, opposite Cumberland. The old capital, however, and still the seat of government, is Castletown, not far from Port St. Mary, on the south coast, with its ancient fortress of Castle Rushen, now used as a prison. Port St. Mary, as well as Peel, on the western shore of the island, has a large share of the herring fishery; its inhabitants own about eighty fishing-smacks, manned by six hundred men and boys. The number belonging to Peel is more than twice as great; but the Cornish and Irish fishing-boats, which are, together, far more numerous than all those of the Manxmen, are wont to assemble at Port St. Mary. Both those places, in the fishing season, present a lively sight; and it is pretty to watch the fleet of boats, with their brown sails glowing in the morning or evening sunshine, as they put forth to sea for the nightly labour among a vast shoal of herrings, or as they return with daylight bringing an abundant load of the finny prey. The Manx fishermen and peasants are good, honest, sober, and quiet folk, much like those of the Hebrides and the western and northern coasts of Scotland. Their small country is picturesque, and full of interesting antiquities, the most remarkable of which is the ruins of Peel Castle and the Cathedral of St. Germans, on a little rocky inlet in the bay at Peel.

SHOOTING WATERFOWL IN AFRICA.

The European traveller or settler in most parts of Africa, if he be addicted to the use of the rifle and the fowling-piece, will find a great variety of sport with large and small game, four-footed or winged, and no legal or artificial hindrances to its pursuit. We hear most of the more ambitious chase of such huge beasts as the elephant, rhinoceros, and hippopotamus, the not less formidable buffalo, or the diverse species of antelopes which abound in the vast uncultivated eastern regions of that Continent, so prolific of animal life. The lion, and the panther or leopard, sometimes erroneously called the tiger, have become comparatively scarce within the last thirty years on the accustomed beats of civilised visitors in quest of exciting adventures, or of the huntsman's marketable spoils. But the traveller who "hunts for the pot," having to find his dinner as he journeys on into the pathless wilderness of the remote interior, where little better food than "mealies" or some other native grain is to be procured from the villages on his way, does not omit to look out for some feathered game worth killing for the sake of eating. Bustards, partridges, sand-grouse, plovers, snipes, moorhens, wild ducks, besides cranes, flamingoes, and other kinds which inhabit the lands beneath a tropical or semi-tropical climate, are plentifully met with in the neighbourhood of water. The appetite of hunger, as well as that of thirst, may soon be satisfied by the expert "Africander" when he arrives on the banks of a river, a lake, or even a swamp affording both sustenance and cover to flocks of these winged creatures. If he has brought with him a portable boat of india-rubber cloth, such as that of Berthon's folding-up contrivance, which weighs only 50 lb., or if he can borrow a canoe from his native friends, the whole reed-overgrown expanse of a big piece of water, filled with an inconceivable quantity of bird-life, is placed at his entire disposal. This seems to have been the fortunate position of our worthy countryman, represented in the Illustration of "Shooting Waterfowl on Lake Mirambala," who has got a canoe, with a negro to paddle him about, and is so conveniently enabled to lie in ambush behind the tall fringe of reeds and rushes, amidst the beautiful Victoria Regia flowers and other aquatic plants, till the waterfowl rise within sure shooting range of his double-barrelled gun. He will have gathered enough of this booty in a couple of hours to feed himself and all his servants for a week. As the heat of the day comes on he will lie down in the canoe, beneath a shady roof of thick plaited grass, and enjoy his noonday sleep.

THE CUNARD STEAM-SHIP SERVIA.

Our Illustration shows the appearance of this noble ship, recently added to the fleet of the Cunard Royal Mail Steam-ship Company, and the largest by far of all ships afloat except the Great Eastern. She was designed and built by Messrs. James and George Thomson, at Clyde Bank, near Glasgow. The dimensions of the Servia are—length 530 ft., breadth 52 ft., depth 44 ft. 9 in., gross tonnage 8500 tons. A better idea of the huge size of the vessel will be gained from the following figures. Her cargo capacity will be equal to 6500 tons, with 1800 tons of coal and 1000 tons of water ballast, the vessel having a double bottom on the longitudinal braeket system. The anchor davits are 8 in., and the cable chain pipe 22 in. in diameter. The propeller shaft weighs 26½ tons, and the propeller, boss, and blades, which are made of Vicars steel, are 38 tons in weight. The machinery consists of three cylinder compound surface condensing engines, one cylinder 72 in. and two 100 in. in diameter, with a stroke piston 6 ft. 6 in. It is anticipated that the indicated horse-power will amount to 10,500. There are in all seven boilers, six of which are double and one single ended, and all are made of steel, with corrugated furnaces, the total number of furnaces being thirty-nine. Practically, the Servia is a five-decker, as she is built with four decks and a promenade. The promenade, which is reserved for the passengers, is very large and spacious. On the fore part of it are the steam steering gear and house, captain's room and flying bridge. On the upper deck forward is the forecastle, with accommodation for the crew, and lavatories and bath rooms for steerage passengers; while aft are the light-towers for signalling the Admiralty lights, with the look-out bridge on the top. Near to the midship house are the captain's and officers' sleeping cabins. Next to the engine skylight is the smoking-room, which can be entered from the deck or from the cabins below. It is unusually large for a smoking-room, being 30 ft. long by 22 ft. wide. Near the after-deck house is the ladies' drawing-room, to which access can be obtained either from the music-room or from the deck. Abaft of this, and in the upper end of the upper deck, is the music-room, which is 50 ft. by 22 ft. in dimensions, and which is to be fitted up in a handsome manner with polished wood-panellings. Immediately abaft of the music-room is the grand staircase, which leads to the main saloon and the cabins below on the main and lower decks. For the convenience of the passengers there are no fewer than four different entrances from the upper deck of the ship to the cabins. At the foot of the stair leading to the saloon, and also in the cabins, the panellings are of polished Hungarian ash and maple wood. The saloon is very large, being 74 ft. long by 49 ft. wide, with sitting accommodation for 350 persons, while the clear height under the beams is 8 ft. 6 in. The sides are all in fancy woods, with beautifully polished inlaid panels. All the upholstery of the saloon is of morocco leather. Right forward of the after deck are the pantries, baths, lavatories, and state-rooms. The total number of state-rooms is 168, and the vessel has accommodation for 450 first-class and 600 steerage passengers, besides a crew of 200 officers and men. For two-thirds of its entir. length the lower deck is fitted up with first-class state-rooms. The ship is divided into nine water-tight bulkheads, and she is built according to the Admiralty requirements for war purposes. A special feature is the arrangement of the water-tight doors in the engine and boiler spaces. According to the usual method, the door requires to be screwed down, and this process takes up a considerable time. In the Servia they can be shut from the upper deck in case of accident in a couple of seconds by simply using a connecting-rod. There are in all twelve boats, and these are equipped as life-boats, and have Hill and Clark's patent improved boat-lowering apparatus. The keel of the ship consists of five thicknesses, making a total thickness of 6¾ in.; and in order to secure thoroughly reliable workmanship, the riveting was done by Tweddell's hydraulic riveter. All the frames and beams of the ship were riveted by this process. The upper deck is of steel, covered with yellow pine, the main deck is of steel with a teak covering, and the lower deck is of steel with a covering of teak above the engine and boiler spaces. All the deck-houses and deck fittings, which are liable to be carried away in a heavy sea, are made of iron and steel, and are riveted to the steel decks underneath. The Servia possesses a peculiarity which will add to her safety—namely, a double bottom or iron skin. Thus, were she to ground on rocks, she would remain perfectly safe while the inner skin continued intact. There are three masts on the vessel, and the Cunard Company have adhered to their special rig, believing it to be more ship-shape than the practice of fitting up masts according to the length of the ship. On these masts there will be a good spread of canvas to assist in propelling the vessel.

OPIUM IN CHINA.

Our Special Artist now in China, Mr. Joseph Bell, furnishes a series of Sketches, the first of which is now published, to illustrate the processes of manufacturing opium for home consumption, as commonly practised in many large towns of the Celestial Empire. It seems to be quite a mistaken notion that the Chinese get all or most of their supply of this narcotic drug from British India, and that its use has been introduced amongst them by the questionable mercantile policy of our own Government. On the other hand, we do not intend to under-rate the serious objections, both moral and economical, to that policy, which was again discussed at an influential meeting held last week in London.

The habit of opium-smoking is common all over China; but it is in the west, in the comparatively unknown half of China west of the 110th meridian, that it is most prevalent. In some parts of Western Hu-Pei and Eastern Szechuen it is all but universal; there are few adults in any station of life who do not take an occasional whiff, and the very streets of the towns and villages reek with opium fumes. The practice is there indulged in in the most open manner, and no more stigma or disgrace attaches to it than to smoking tobacco. Mr. Watters, her Majesty's Consul at Ichang, made careful inquiries last year into the origin of the practice, and he found that it had been indulged in for several hundred years, long before the foreign merchants and their opium were ever dreamt of. The custom generations ago passed into the social and domestic habits of the people; and at funerals in the West of China, among other gifts which are transmitted into the next world, by burning paper facsimiles of them in this, for the solace of the departed, is a complete set of opium-smoking requisites—pipe, lamp, needle, &c. The whole of the opium consumed in the West is locally produced, and Indian opium does not come higher up the Yangtse than the districts contiguous to the port of Hankow; nor is it imported by any channel into Western Hu-Pei, Szechuen, or the other province of the West. Above and beyond the enormous quantity there grown for local use there is a large trade in the drug, mostly contraband, from west to east. Indian opium is consumed in the provinces adjacent to the treaty ports, and, being an expensive article as compared with native opium, is mostly smoked by the well-to-do classes. The common people in these provinces smoke the native drug, which is either grown on the borders of Kiang-Su and Ho-Nan, or is smuggled overland from the west. All Western China, therefore, and the lower classes in Eastern China smoke native-grown opium.

We have the testimony of two Englishmen who have had the best opportunities and means of procuring information regarding the native opium of the West—Mr. Colborne Baber, who was for four years Consular Agent in Szechuen watching the trade there; and Mr. Watters, who was our Consul at Ichang, the port of Western Szechuen, until the other day. The production of opium in Szechuen has been under-estimated hitherto. Mr. Baber, living and travelling among the Szechuen people, has been able to hear and see for himself, and he has obtained ample evidence that the production of Chinese opium in this one province is greater than the whole Indian crop, Malwa, Patna, and Benares, put together. Of the amount produced in the hill country of Hu-Pei Mr. Watters has not been able to give me any figures; but he says that in Ichang alone there is an opium restaurant to every thirteen inhabitants, where nothing is consumed except the native drug, produced in one or other of the four western provinces. All over Western China the conditions of poppy culture, as far as the officials are concerned, are those of perfect freedom, and even open encouragement. All the grower has to think of is his profit. Opium is a more risky crop than cereals, but it pays seven times as well. If he chooses to run the risk of a failure in the crop, or of inability to buy rice with the money he gets for his opium, he is at liberty to grow opium if he likes. In ordinary circumstances a poppy crop subjects the grower to no interference on the part of his officials beyond paying the customary taxes; and in many districts where opium in manufacture or transit is the sole source of revenue its culture is encouraged.

There is some force, apparently, in the remark of a correspondent of the Times that "The present attitude of the central and provincial Governments of China regarding native opium, as judged by their acts and not their words, and the present state of poppy cultivation in Western China, must be taken into account by any one who wishes to decide for himself the question which the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade is placing before this country."

The arrivals of live stock and fresh meat at Liverpool last week, from the United States and Canada, were—of live stock a large decrease, and of fresh meat an increase, on the arrivals of the preceding week: the total being 451 cattle, 724 sheep, 10,646 quarters of beef, 3328 carcases of mutton, and 495 hogs.——A vessel has arrived in the Thames from the River Plate with 19,000 carcases of sheep on board, which have been brought over in a frozen state.

On Easter Monday the National Fisheries Exhibition at Norwich will be opened. The Prince of Wales, accompanied by the Princess, Prince Leopold, Earl Spencer, the Earl of Kimberley, Sir W. V. Harcourt, and the Hon. Mr. Mundella are expected to be present. A feature will be the illustration of the aquatic fauna of Norfolk and Suffolk, which will be exhibited in a series of aquaria, specially prepared for the occasion, and furnished with live specimens of every fish indigenous in the local waters as well as those that have been introduced by acclimatisation. Earl Ducie, Viscount Powerscourt, Lord Lovat, Mr. Spencer Walpole, Professor Huxley, and Mr. Calcraft, the permanent secretary to the Board of Trade, have been appointed to act as her Majesty's Commissioners; and, in addition to a large number of special money prizes, Government gold, silver, and bronze medals and diplomas of honour will be awarded.

The Extra Supplement.

FIRE AT LANHYDROCK HOUSE, CORNWALL.

The Engraving which forms an Extra Supplement to this week's Illustrated London News represents the conflagration of Lanhydrock House, near Bodmin, Cornwall, on Monday, the 4th inst. This fine old mansion, the seat of Lord and Lady Robartes, and of their son, the Hon. T. C. Agar Robartes, M.P. for East Cornwall, is of some historical interest. It was built between 1636 and 1642, the dates conspicuously inscribed on the walls. The form of the building was three sides of a quadrangle, with a gateway of unusual design; the battlemented structure of granite had a look of greater antiquity. The approach is by a stately avenue of sycamores, and the park is finely wooded. In the time of the Civil Wars, this house was made the head-quarters of the Earl of Essex, while commanding the army of the Parliament in Cornwall. There were many old family portraits in the long gallery, and the library contained a rare collection of old books.

The fire on Monday week began about one or two o'clock in the afternoon, in the kitchen, and spread rapidly, a strong wind blowing full upon the front of the house. The picture-gallery and rooms under it, forming the north wing of the house, were saved by the exertions of the Bodmin Volunteer Fire Brigade and the officers and men of the Royal Cornwall Rangers Militia. They worked with great determination, and succeeded in cutting off the connection of that portion with the rest of the building. The church, standing close to the house, was also preserved. The central block and the south wing were burnt out. The furniture and some of the pictures were carried out before the fire extended too far, but the furniture was greatly injured.

Lord Robartes, who was raised to the Peerage in 1869, represented East Cornwall in Parliament for more than twenty years, and is deservedly esteemed. His son, who now represents the same constituency, was attending to his Parliamentary duties in London at the time of the fire; but Lord and Lady Robartes were at home, and did not leave the mansion till two thirds of it had been destroyed.

FINE ARTS.

OLD WATER-COLOUR SOCIETY.

The annual crop of water-colours of the parent society seems to us to alternate in quality somewhat considerably—like other harvests, or the weather—and the present yield is scarcely so good as last year's. Indeed, very likely this may be through the weather (for how could artists work at their best during the past winter), or it may be through the renewed depression, or, to trace things to their final causes, according to some authorities, through the spots on the sun—who can tell? Where the factors are so nearly the same, however different their combination, it is difficult to account for such mutations, yet they certainly appear. That the average of merit is high—very high—we need hardly say; but, with few exceptions, the members have produced no works of very exceptional or salient excellence.

Even the worthy President, Sir John Gilbert, has been taking a little retrospective repose, and does not surprise us with any new display of his hitherto apparently inexhaustible energy. We have had from his hand something similar, at least in motive, to "A Standard-Bearer" (106) and "Gipsy Encampment" (113), the latter with a knight, accompanied by a lady, asking their way of the group of dubious-looking denizens of the wild champagne—the only two drawings by which the artist is represented. In this last-named and more important work we have, however, that combination of picturesque figures with scenery, equally, if not more, picturesque, in which Sir John is always especially happy—in which we have with something of the sentiment of Salvator Rosa, a grandiose style of landscape-painting with fine rich harmonies of colour, such as few living figure-painters can command.

Among the rare exceptions to which we have alluded we have to place Mr. S. Palmer. In the miniature sunsets which this artist has of late years exhibited, great power of colour and poetical intention were always displayed; but that he did not do justice to himself in these, and that he is capable of rendering any degree of conventionality in his manner frankly acceptable, is shown in two comparatively large idyllic landscapes with pastoral figures, illustrative of "L'Allegro" (18 and 56), the second of which worthily occupied the post of honour. The splendour of afternoon sunlight in one, and the glory of a gorgeous sunrise blazing in gold and orange chromates over the Eastern hills and dispelling the purple night mists in fantastic flakes in the other, are beyond the power of words to describe, and have rarely, if ever, been equalled, for force, in water colours. It is idle to say they are unlike nature in detail; they reach, each as a whole, with their finely composed elements, a higher degree of poetical typical truth by efficiently suggesting the most magnificent of natural effects. Selecting other of the few drawings of poetical character, higher praise than usual should, we think, be accorded to Mr. A. Hunt's two views of his favourite Whitby—one with effect of serene evening (91), the other of a "Sullen-looking Night" (202). A view (124) of a glen at Sligachan, Skye, is also singularly impressive, with its solemn shadows and savage-looking peaks tracing their jagged edges along the twilight sky. In these drawings we are not immediately reminded of Turner, and there is not the customary search for an impossible mystic play of colour in the tones and gradations. Mr. Hale seems to be following in the steps of Mr. Hunt, and there is artistic feeling in his works, of which, perhaps, the most remarkable is "Autumn Twilight" (66). We miss some of the wonted grace and exquisiteness in Mrs. Allingham's contributions. Her rustic lasses chatting over the wall (199) and carrying "The Clothes' Basket" (48) are, however, very charming. "The Harvest" (178), by Tom Lloyd, with harvesters returning homewards singing and making merry, shows a new and commendable departure in the direction of breadth and sentiment. A similar remark applies to Mr. E. Buckman's "God's Share" (147), representing groups of gleaners; there is also a more artistic feeling for colour than in previous works, though some passages want clearing up. Mr. A. Goodman, on the other hand, is more realistic or definite than before in "A Summer Sea—Mount's Bay" (37). There is some want of transparency in the nearer waves, but the whole of the distance is admirable. Mr. W. Duncan has studies of romantic personages, evincing a colourist faculty, but marred by a rather commonplace fleshy type of figure. Mr. Herbert Marshall, as a painter of London scenes—inexhaustibly picturesque, but strangely neglected London—justifies the favourable opinion expressed on his advent to the society in views of the frozen Thames during last winter (1) and of "Rotherhithe" (114).

Returning to members of longer standing, Mr. George Fripp is as sweetly sober and delightfully truthful as ever, whether dealing with a Thames weir (97) or an Argyleshire loch (131) or glen (239). Mr. Alfred Fripp has a single drawing, "Mending Nets" (103), of peculiar refinement and delicacy. The praise of refined observation and workmanship is also due to C. Davidson's "Late Autumn Afternoon" (257); likewise, as need hardly be said, to E. Duncan's "Sheep-Feeding—Winter" (133). There is nothing here more conscientiously careful and thorough in draughtsmanship than G. P. Boyce's views "In the Auvergne" (195) and "In the Puy-de-Dôme" (195). The latter, however, is surely too chilly in tone; and, from the too great equality of the execution and gradations, the drawings have somewhat the aspect of tapestry. Three small works by Carl Haag, marked by his accustomed vigour of colour and effect, represent a mounted Sheikh (100); "A Night in Egypt" (110), with a bedawee shooting from the back of his recumbent camel at a swooping eagle; and "Zarifa" (215), in a rich Oriental interior. Birket Foster confines himself to English rustic subjects, and does not again grapple with the glories of Venice, nor the marvels of French Gothic, and we think he does wisely. S. Read turns again from man's architecture to that of God in a large impressive drawing of the mighty walls of the Bass Rock (152) "clanged about" with myriads of solan geese, gulls, &c. The same artist has a smaller drawing, Duncansbay Head, John-o'-Groats (70). O. W. Brierly sends another large illustration of the momentous struggle for maritime supremacy between England and Spain in the sixteenth century, the most effective work by the artist we have seen, depicting "The Decisive Battle fought off Gravelines between the English Fleet and the Spanish Armada, Aug. 8th, 1588" (74). Basil Bradley also comes to the front in a large hunting-subject (125), with the huntsman urging the pack of fox-hounds into a wood as they take up the scent. Mr. Bradley's draughtsmanship of the dog and other animals is beyond reproach, but a little more solidity of execution may be desiderated. H. Moore's seapiece called "Light Breezes" (13) has movement, but the blues are decidedly too positive. Few painters have observed and analysed the action of waves more carefully than Mr. F. Powell; his definition of them is, however, so sharp that they are apt to acquire almost sculpturesque fixity—see No. 19. "Opposite the Setting Sun" (24), by this artist, with ships floating apparently shadowless on the calm sea, and all-pervading light merging its surface through the rising haze of evening almost into the faintly-seen cumuli of the sky, recalls a lovely effect in nature, but hardly does full justice to it in beauty of colour and tenderness of touch. Mr. Henry Wallis sends but one small drawing, entitled "A Genuine Cremona" (260)—two gentlemen examining a violin, with a lady at a piano listening to their comments. Messrs. Dobson, T. M. Richardson, E. A. Goodall, E. K. Johnson, P. J. Naftel—who has benefited in his work by a trip to the Pyrenees—G. H. Andrews, T. Danby, S. P. Jackson, A. P. Newton, R. Thorne Waite, H. Brittan Willis, and other well-known members, are also represented; as likewise Miss Clara Montalba in clever sketches of Venice; and Mrs. Coleman Angell in several of her admirable flower-pieces.

A few works of some mark by younger members still claim notice. "Her First Offer" (169), by E. F. Brewtnall, shows a young lady standing by her papa, to whom she has dutifully submitted a letter of proposal; the expressions are most decorous on both sides, and hardly suggest any romantic or tragic sequel; the costumes are of the most hideous period, about the commencement of the century; technically, however, the drawing has considerable merit. "The Peace-Maker" (183), by N. Tayler—a young woman trying to stop an imminent fight between two navvies who have quarrelled at cards—is not an attractive subject, but the "situation" is well realised. "A Wooded Landscape" (53), by T. J. Watson, is richer in colour than any of the works with which this artist made his début last year. E. A. Waterlow, another lately elected member, on the contrary, seems, we regret to say, to have retrograded both as regards truth and agreeableness of colour. We have, in conclusion, to welcome two accessions to the society—Mr. W. Pilsbury and Mr. G. Du Maurier. Mr. Pilsbury has a Morland-like affection for farm outbuildings and purlieus, and paints them with a sober fidelity, modest harmony, and artistic keeping that is pleasant (if sometimes just a little monotonous) to look upon. It would be hardly fair to expect Mr. Du Maurier to extend the great reputation he has acquired in Punch immediately in water colours. He is represented by "Twins" (238), from a design in our dear old contemporary, and by a figure of a young lady looking over "A Picture Book" (267), two small drawings distinguished by the artist's unfailing grace, but in which the draughtsmanship, and light and shade are superior to the colour—as might be expected from Mr. Du Maurier's long practice in black and white.

WORKS BY DUTCH ARTISTS.

At Messrs. Goupil's galleries in Bedford-street, Covent-garden, is an interesting collection of works in oil and water colours by Dutch artists. Many of these artists are already familiar to the London public; but this assemblage of 140 of their works permits more readily an estimate to be formed of the general characteristics of the school. And Holland is one of the few countries which present a distinctly national school. This is apparent not merely in the subject-matter of the works, but in the effects rendered and their treatment—in the almost invariable grey, sad tone, and black shadow, testifying to a humid, depressing, sunless climate; and in the habit of representing nature with great breadth of tone and gradation, as seen through an aerial veil of mist. The power of generalisation to which seeing nature under such conditions obviously conduces always lends to a work of art an air of superior dignity and mastery: we feel that the subject has been grasped in its entirety, without regard to trivial details. In the same process the artist acquires a nice sense of the relative "values" of masses of tone or gradation; and in these particulars the works of the contemporary Dutch painters are well worthy of study by our own artists. There is, however, a danger in this, as in other directions—the danger that breadth may become emptiness, and spaces of "tone" unmeaning. Many works here, particularly among the drawings, have indeed more or less of the infirmity indicated. Another powerful influence on contemporary Dutch art has been exerted by the genius of Israels—throwing a deeper gloom, as it were, over the very climate, and intensifying, frequently to funereal hopelessness, the pathos of the hard, precarious, and dangerous lives of the poor fisherfolk among whom he has lived and worked. Few painters have had so many followers, as this exhibition amply shows. The careful, honest painting which laid the foundation of Israels' fame is exemplified in a small early picture, "The Woodcutter;" and there are several works of later date. We confess that many productions of his latest years provoke our impatience at their unconscionable slovenliness, and excite our resentment at their apparently tampering with, we had almost said trading upon, the sacred sentiment of pity. We regret that it is impossible within our restricted space this week to review this collection in detail. It must suffice, therefore, to say that there are also generally good samples of the figure-painters Artz, Bisschop, A. Neuhuys, Sadée, Blommers, Henkes, Van der Velden, and Herman ten Kate; of the landscape and marine painters J. Maris, Du Chattel, Backhuyzen, Roelofs, Wissenbruch, Mesdag, Mauve; of the animal-painter Verschuur; and the architectural painters Bosboom and Klinkenberg.

---

Mrs. Butler (née Thompson) has—besides her picture of the defence of Rorke's Drift, which has at length been finished and sent to the Academy—a picture, separately exhibited in an upper room at the Egyptian Hall, representing the charge of the Scots Greys at Waterloo. The famous dragoons are depicted at full gallop, headed by their officer, dashing in one resistless, resounding mass straight towards the spectator. The subject is a very stirring one, and is treated with great spirit; the actions of the men are well varied, and their expressions, as some of them shout "Scotland for Ever!" are vigorously realised; and the horses are boldly and not unsuccessfully foreshortened; though it may be objected that too many of them seem clear off the ground together. A quieter, more sombre sky might have furnished a better foil to the rush of men and horses below, and would have been more accordant with the recorded rain of that memorable day. The subject is of spectacular interest mainly, and did not, of course, admit of the pathos of the "Roll-Call," or even of the varied expressions of "Quatre Bras." The execution is equal to that in recent works of the artist.

---

The Spring Exhibition of Modern Water-Colour Drawings at the Royal Pavilion Gallery, Brighton, is now open.

The National Gallery will be closed for cleaning to-day (Saturday). On Easter Monday the gallery will be reopened.

Princess Mary Adelaide, Duchess of Teck, will open an Industrial and Fine-Art Loan Exhibition at the Castle Hotel, Richmond, next Wednesday, the 20th inst.

A portrait of her Majesty has been placed in the mess-room of the Royal Artillery permanent barracks at Aldershott, It is a copy of the picture by Angeli, which is in the Queen's private dining-room at Windsor Castle, and has been admirably drawn by Mr. Graves, jun.

The Government at Melbourne has bought, for the Colonial collection, Mr. Seymour Lucas's picture of the Gordon Riots, which was exhibited at the Royal Academy in 1879, and has since been one of the attractions of the Melbourne International Exhibition.

The first Loan Exhibition in Holland of Old Masters is now on view at the Hague. It comprises notable examples of the most famous Dutch painters and others. The exhibition, which will remain open till the end of the month, is for the benefit of sufferers by recent inundations in that country.

Mr. Bicknell's collection of pictures, which contained two fine works of Turner and a great number by David Roberts, with many other good pictures, was sold by Messrs. Christie, Manson, and Woods, on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday last, bringing large prices, and realising altogether the sum of £24,330. The late Mr. Bicknell was the son and heir of Mr. Elhanan Bicknell, whose fine collection was sold by Messrs. Christie in 1863.——Some good modern pictures by English artists were recently sold by Messrs. Christie, belonging to Mr. H. R. Willis, of Wolverley, near Kidderminster, with others from different proprietors whose names were not given; the total of the two days' sale amounting to £15,572.

The manager of the Royal Albert Hall writes to us:—"In reference to the exhibition of fine arts to be opened in May next at the Royal Albert Hall, I shall be much obliged if you will kindly allow me to correct a misapprehension which appears to be somewhat widely spread—namely, that the authorities of the Albert Hall will receive works 'rejected' by the council of the Royal Academy. What the council of the Albert Hall have announced is that they are prepared to receive for exhibition, without reference to any further tribunal, such works as have been submitted during the present year to the Royal Academy which want of space alone prevents being exhibited at Burlington House.

A report has been issued, as promised by Mr. Mundella last Session, on the system of circulation of art-objects on loan for exhibition as carried on by the Science and Art Department, South Kensington, from its establishment to the present time. During last year 6217 objects and 5872 pictures in frames were sent out from the parent museum to local exhibitions. Private owners have been encouraged to follow the example of the South Kensington Museum. It is believed that 170,000 loans of examples of fine and industrial art have thus been made by private owners to the various art-exhibitions with which the Department has been connected since 1854. Detailed information as to the loans of the Department is given in a number of appendices to the report.

---

The second of the series of Cantor Lectures upon the art of Lace-making was given at the Society of Arts on Monday evening, by Mr. Alan Cole. Needle-point lacework was the subject of the lecture.

The second of a series of lectures on "Stories of the Classics" was given last Saturday night at the Working Men's College in Great Ormond-street, by Mr. R. Mowbray, M.A., Oxford, his subject being "Prometheus." Lord Francis Hervey presided. Mr. Mowbray said that the story of Prometheus as told by Æschylus was fraught with more of human interest than any other story of the Greek tragedians that had come down to us. The creation of man, the dawn of civilisation, the growth of arts and sciences, the migrations of the human race—these all found a place in the story. The all-pervading force of destiny was the first great idea of Æschylus stamped in the story of Prometheus, and these one might be summed up in the single line borrowed from another of his plays—"That suffering leads men to the ways of truth."

A proposal has been made by some of the friends of the late Mr. Frank Buckland to perpetuate, by a substantial testimonial, the recollection of his services to Natural History and Fish-culture, and generally to afford to the public an opportunity of paying a tribute of respect to his memory and appreciation of his life-long work. For this purpose a subscription list has been opened. It is intended to expend a portion of the sum subscribed upon a bust of Mr. Buckland, to be placed in the Museum at South Kensington, with the collection he bequeathed to the nation. It is further hoped that the amount collected may be sufficient to supplement the income of Mr. Frank Buckland's widow by an annuity of £100. Should there be any surplus after the purchase of the bust and annuity, the committee propose that it should be applied to promoting the welfare of the fishermen of this country—an object which Mr. Frank Buckland had so much at heart. Subscriptions will be received by Messrs. Cox and Co., Bankers, Craig's-court, Charing-cross; at 34, Portland-place, by T. Douglas Murray, and Lieut.-Colonel E. S. Bridges, Hon. Secs.; and at the office of Land and Water, Fleet-street.

THE ELECTIONS IN THE ISLE OF MAN: FISHERMEN'S COTTAGES AT PORT ST. MARY.—SEE PAGE 378.

SHOOTING WATER-FOWL ON LAKE MIRAMBALA, AFRICA.—SEE PAGE 378.

ROYAL INSTITUTION LECTURES.

TRANSFUSION OF BLOOD.

Professor E. A. Schäfer, F.R.S., began his tenth lecture, on Tuesday, March 22, by explaining the method by which Welcker determined the total amount of blood in an animal to be generally about one thirteenth of the weight of the body. The quantitative composition of the blood was briefly noticed, and the difference in its composition in different parts of the body was stated to be almost inappreciative, except as regards the relative proportions of oxygen and carbonic acid. The variation in different mammals is also very slight; for in most cases the red corpuscles of one animal are destroyed by immersion in the serum of other animals. The possibility of substituting the blood of one animal for that of another (transfusion) was discussed—a subject closely connected with the early history of the Royal Society, whose Fellows devoted much attention to it in consequence of Harvey's recent discovery of the circulation of the blood. Transfusion was first proposed by the Rev. Master Potter; and the infusion of drugs into the blood was first attempted by Christopher Wren, Robert Boyle, Bishop Wilkins, and others. The first transfusion of blood into dogs was performed by Richard Lower, at Oxford and London, in 1666, when it was thought that such a substitution might greatly modify the nature of an individual. The first transfusion in man, when a lamb's blood was used, took place in Paris in 1667. It was considered at first successful, and repeated two or three times by Denis, but was stopped by law, after one fatal result. In November, 1667, Lower and King experimented upon Arthur Coga, a half-witted Bachelor of Theology, who received ten ounces of lamb's blood, whereby he was neither benefited mentally nor injured physically. The operation presently fell into disuse, probably through the disappointment of extravagant expectations. It was revived in the present century by Blundell, and by other experimenters has been placed upon a scientific basis. One main result of their labours has been the demonstration that the blood used for transfusion to replace lost blood must be from an animal of the same species, and for man must be human blood. The use of other animals' blood for this purpose is attended with positive danger.

THE BLOOD IN DISEASE.

Professor E. A. Schäfer, F.R.S., in his eleventh and concluding lecture, given on Tuesday, the 5th inst., considered and illustrated the changes in the blood in disease:—1. In regard to chemical changes, he referred to the variations in the amount of water (diminished in cholera), of fibrin (increased in acute inflammations, and diminished in most fevers), and of albumin; also to the presence of urea, sugar, and uric acid in the blood in some diseases. 2. In regard to morphological changes, reference was made to the diminution in the number and size of the red corpuscles in anæmia from various causes. The very ingenious method of measuring these bodies was explained. The great increase of the number of pale corpuscles, crowding out the red in some diseases, was next noticed. 3. After giving a full account of the different kinds of the microscopical organisms termed bacteria, illustrated by specimens, exhibited by means of the electric light, the Professor gave a detailed account of the researches of several eminent physiologists on the blood, Pollender, Bollinger, Koch, Buhl, Burdon Sanderson, Ewart, Greenfield, and Buchner, relating to the connection of these minute organisms with splenic, hay, relapsing, and intermittent or malarial fevers. Various forms of bacteria appear in cases of pyæmia, diphtheria, smallpox, and typhoid fever; but their connection with the disease is not yet determined. The lecture was concluded with remarks and illustrations of the methods of detecting the presence of blood by means of the spectroscope, and by the very peculiar crystals obtained from it.

CELTIC, SARACENIC, AND MEDIÆVAL ORNAMENT.

Mr. H. H. Statham began his third lecture, on Thursday, March 30, with remarks on the style of ornament termed Celtic, which was probably of Byzantine origin, and introduced into the British isles by early Christian missionaries. He referred to some Welsh examples, in diagrams, exhibiting the repetition and alternation of forms, such as the circle and modifications of squares, resembling the Greek fret. The ribbon-work in some illuminated Irish gospels is very intricate, and in some cases 136 interlacings have been traced. Much patient ingenuity was shown, with but little art. Grotesque forms of animals were sometimes introduced with a certain geometrical effect. Saracenic ornament was considered in two forms, Arabic and Moresque. From these all human or animal forms were religiously excluded, yet they exhibit most elaborate and beautifully rich ornament. The Arabs were more logical in their dealing with colour than the Celts. Their use of natural forms was highly conventional, and they cultivated symmetry, their alternations and repetitions being very fine. They were fond of what Mr. Statham termed "puzzle-ornament," from its intricacy, such as the effect produced by numerous lines proceeding from a hexagon. Among the illustrations copies of Greek, Roman, Arabic, Indian, and Byzantine scrolls were exhibited for comparison. Moresque ornament was specially characterised in drawings made from the Alhambra. India produced "the ornament of flowers," which were treated in a very realistic manner, especially in textile fabrics, such as carpets, in which the colours were much better blended than they are in many modern examples. The flowers were always treated as ornamental, and not to appear as copies. Indian Damascene metal-work, white upon dark, and Indian shawl patterns were described as very remarkable. The occasional appearance of classic types in Oriental ornament having been referred to, the transition from classic to mediæval art through Byzantine was noticed. Gothic art, the spirit of which was very similar to Greek, was described as specially realistic, with wonderfully truthful carving of natural forms. The German workmen often vulgarised nature, while the British were generally pure in their treatment, and their work exhibits a large amount of thought. Mr. Statham attributed the decay of Gothic art to the rise of the Perpendicular style, and the employment of ornaments of a merely mechanical character. He was indebted to the South Kensington Museum for many fine illustrations.

RENAISSANCE ORNAMENT.

Mr. H. H. Statham began his fourth and concluding lecture, given on Thursday, the 7th inst., by characterising Renaissance ornament as going back to the past, and endeavouring to reproduce it—being essentially imitative of Roman art, with a tendency to a realistic copy of nature. It arose in the fifteenth century, with the revival of the study of classic literature. Pure Greek art was then little known; and that of the Renaissance was deficient in logical principles—mere imitation superseded originality. Referring to a number of illustrations, Mr. Statham commented on their merits and incongruities, many of which were peculiar to different countries. The occasional intermixture with Oriental types was attributed to the workmen being chiefly Eastern emigrants, many of whom came to Venice and thence travelled westward. Specimens of German work, in which grotesque animal forms appear, were discussed (including work by Albert Dürer), some being excessively coarse and vulgar. Italian examples were next considered, and an example of Michael Angelo's work in the Sistine Chapel was said to contain all the vices of the age. The colouring was also described as inharmonious and common-place. The building up of incongruous materials, cumulative ornament, was censured, as contrary to the very first principles of good style in ornament, which require all the parts to be homogeneous in their character and intimately connected, as if they originated from the same workshop. Examples of this and the reverse were commented on. Adverting to French Renaissance specimens, Mr. Statham commented on some fine examples of the age of Louis XIV., some of which exhibited a good forcible style; others showed much incongruity. When the Watteau style prevailed good ornament was at its last gasp. The style of Louis XV. was in accordance with the prevailing moral corruption of the time; and that of Louis XVI., pretty and realistic, exhibited the complete degradation of good taste. After remarking on the merits and demerits of the Adam and Japanese styles, Mr. Statham protested against the inconsistency of their juxtaposition in the same room. In conclusion, he referred to the importance of the application of sound logical principles in architecture and furniture, and described how these principles were manifested in the treatment of materials in Egyptian, Greek, Gothic, and Oriental ornament. He stated that much good ornament now produced is not estimated sufficiently, and censured the preference frequently given to mere surface ornaments, to the exclusion of paintings and engravings, intellectual works.

THE KING IN HIS RELATION TO EARLY CIVIL JUSTICE.

Sir Henry S. Maine, K.C.S.I., in beginning his discourse at the evening meeting on Friday, the 1st inst., said that in the records of the very ancient races with whom we have some affinity, the King is almost always associated with the administration of justice, as well as being almost invariably a military chief, and constantly a priest. The very early Hindoo law books, of which the "Code of Manu" is one, at first dealt with all things human and divine, but always assume a king to administer justice, with learned Brahmans for assessors. The great Brehons who declared ancient Irish law were kings or kings' sons, with judges as assessors; and in the poems ascribed to Homer, the king, as judge, pronounces "dooms," or judgments, supposed to be dictated from on high. The Hebrew judges, such as Deborah, Eli, and Samuel, who represented a form of kingship, were exponents and administrators of the law; and this function, which scarcely appears in Saul and David, was revived in Solomon. By the side of the king there was another fountain of law and justice, the popular assemblies. The Roman law, which mainly supplies the law of the civilised world, where English law does not prevail, descended from this residuary jurisdiction; yet this law was distilled through the Roman prætor, to whom it descended from the half-fabulous ancient Kings of Rome. In the old Teutonic administration of justice we find the King and the popular tribunal side by side, and the relations of the two are tolerably clear in the law of the Salian Franks, which was really a manual of procedure for the ancient German court of the hundred. The King first appears as claiming a share of the fines; but gradually his authority gives most of its characteristics to the administration of law, and eventually popular justice is administered in the King's name. Royal justice steadily grew at the expense of popular courts, through their great numbers, and the burden of attending them cast upon the free cultivators. The justice administered by the King was also purer, more efficient, and more skilfully adapted to the facts. He was also ambulatory, moving over his territory with great rapidity. King John travelled over half of England in May, 1207, and continued the practice throughout his reign. Gradually, however, the itinerant king became a monarch of the modern type, and was represented by his "justices in eyre" (from iter, to go). The judicial system of England is, therefore, of Royal origin, and, except in the change introduced by county courts, is the most centralised in the world. The popular courts have practically perished; but the law itself has not changed. In France the civil code is little more than a version of Roman jurisprudence, and much of the form of the old popular judicature is retained. The residuary authority of the King in England produced also the Court of Chancery and the oppressive Star Chamber, which latter marks the exhaustion of what was once the most valuable of all sources of justice. Eventually, the reforming authority of the king descended to legislatures, now almost everywhere the children of the British Parliament.

JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL.

The Rev. H. R. Haweis, in his third lecture on American Humourists, on Saturday last, the 2nd inst., gave a brief sketch of Mr. Lowell's life. He was born at Elmwood, in Cambridge, Massachusetts, Feb. 22, 1819, and graduated at Harvard. He studied the law for a short time, but soon gave it up. He travelled in Europe, devoting himself most assiduously to the study of the language and literature of Italy and other countries. The fruit appeared in his beautiful poems and essays published at various times: "Prometheus," 1844; "Under the Willows," 1869; "The Cathedral," 1870; "Among my Books" and "The Biglow Papers," 1846—62; "The Fable for Critics," &c., and he edited the Atlantic Monthly, 1857—62. He was appointed American Minister at Madrid in 1877 and at St. James's in 1880, being another eminent example of the employment of literary Americans as diplomatists. His political principles were described as Conservative-Liberal, he being always willing to hear both sides of a question. The moral and religious element is essentially prominent in his character. He aims at getting at the root of a question, and when he reaches it he devotes all his power to maintain the truth, for which he will endure no apologies or compromise. He desires to be a man among men. Genius he holds to be a bubble in comparison with goodness, which is pure gold. He is one of the illustrious band of Abolitionists, being its poet. He was always a thorough opponent of slavery; and vigorously denounced the Mexican war of 1846-8, which had the extension of slavery as its chief object, as most iniquitous. This was the subject of the first series of "The Biglow Papers," in which he skilfully employs the old American dialect, and strikes home to the hearts of the great mass of the people. His Cassandra-like voice foretold the coming struggle between North and South. His stern, serious appeals failing, he turned to satire, and succeeded in making the advocates of slavery supremely ridiculous; using the weapon they had employed against fanatical abolitionists. The characters of the Rev. Homer Wilbur, the simple-minded, honest, pedantic minister, the father and son, Ezekiel and Hosea Biglow, homely, clear-headed, and full of shrewd common sense, and the despicable, time-serving Birdofredum Sawin, are vividly delineated. The second series of the "Biglow Papers" powerfully aided the government of the North during the civil war of 1861-4. The lecture, which was interspersed with numerous characteristic extracts, was concluded by the reading of the poem "Jonathan to John," in which Mr. Lowell keenly upbraids us for our conduct and temper towards the North at the beginning of the struggle.

ARTEMUS WARD.

The Rev. H. R. Haweis, in his fourth and concluding lecture on some American Humourists, given on Saturday, the 9th inst., commented on the characteristics of the writings and lectures of Charles F. Browne, who was born at Waterford, in Maine, in 1836, worked for some time as a type-setter in a printing-office, travelled about earning his living, and finally settled at Boston. Here he became a popular writer and editor of small periodicals, till, tired of the place, he travelled about again as a lecturer and assumed the name of Artemus Ward, giving his discourses in remarkably varied places with great success as a "showman." His longing desire to visit England was accomplished in 1866, when he was a dying man; and after lecturing in London he ended his career at Southampton, on March 6, 1867. His works are really his autobiography, and reflect his personal character, which was extremely amiable, according to the testimony of those who thoroughly knew him. During his short and restless life he was a keen observer of the peculiarities of men and manners, with a sharp eye for incident. As a lecturer and writer he exhibited great versatility of mind and spontaneousness of utterance. He appears to have desired to make his lectures as devoid of information and as full of fun as possible, mingled with much solid good sense, enlivened with flashes of wit. He attacked all kinds of Pecksniffism and moral platitudes, but never sneered at religion or virtue. Mild profanity he said was wicked, and not funny. His association of incongruous ideas was indescribable, and intensely humorous. His style and language were thoroughly adapted to the common people, upon whose hearts he played as on a fiddle. His peculiarities in spelling were also suggestive. The remarks of Mr. Haweis throughout the lecture were enlivened by well-selected extracts from "Artemus Ward: his Book." These lectures will be re-delivered at the London Institution on April 29, May 6, 13, 20, at 5 p.m.

FARADAY LECTURE.—(CHEMICAL SOCIETY.)

Professor Helmholtz, F.R.S., of Berlin, who received the Royal Society's Copley Medal in 1873, received the Faraday Medal of the Chemical Society at the Royal Institution on Tuesday the 5th inst. He then gave a discourse on "The Modern Development of Faraday's Conception of Electricity." He began by referring to the exactness and precision of Faraday's words, and to the way in which he had been led to a large number of general theories without mathematical aid. The first great fundamental problem which he discussed was the existence of forces acting directly at a distance without any intervening medium. With wonderful sagacity he saw how, by the systems of tensions and pressures produced by the dielectric and magnetic polarisation of the space surrounding electrified bodies, &c., all the phenomena of magnetic and electro-magnetic attraction, repulsion, and induction can be explained, without having recourse to forces acting at a distance. The second problem attacked by Faraday was the connection between electric and chemical force. His experiments contradicted the theory of Berzelius that the quantity of electricity collected in atoms is dependent upon their mutual electro-chemical differences, and proved the truth of the well-known law of definite electrolytic action. Since that time the methods of observing and measuring electrical phenomena have enormously improved. Currents which would take a century to decompose a milligram of water, could, by modern methods, be shown by Kohlrausch has proved that in dilute solutions of salts, &c., every atom under the influence of currents of the same density moves on with its own peculiar velocity, independently of other atoms, the total amount of chemical motion being represented by the sum of equivalents of the "kation" gone forwards and the "anion" gone backwards. This established Faraday's law, which tells us that the same definite quantity of either positive or negative electricity moves always with each univalent ion. The most startling conclusion from this is that if elements are composed of atoms, electricity also, both positive and negative, is divided into definite elementary portions, which behave like atoms of electricity. Now, it can be shown that electrolytic conduction is not limited to solutions of acids and salts, but that solid bodies, such as glass, behave like electrolytes. The Professor then proceeded to consider the forces which produce these motions, and showed how enormous was the quantity of electricity as measured by its electrostatic force required to decompose a small quantity of water; thus the electricity of one milligram of water separated and communicated to two balls one kilometre distant would produce an attraction between them equal to 25,000 kilos. From various considerations, we are driven to the conclusion that the motion of the ions through the interior of the liquid is resisted solely by the mutual attractions of the electrical charges of the ions. As soon as the ions are to be separated from their electrical charges the current meets with a powerful resistance, the overpowering of which requires much work. The Professor then surveyed the mutual relations between heat, electricity, and chemical action; and finally stated that, as the facts leave no doubt that the mightiest of chemical forces are of electric origin, he concluded, with Faraday, that the forces termed chemical affinity and electricity are one and the same. The lecture was illustrated by experiments. At its conclusion a vote of thanks, proposed by Professor Roscoe, the President of the Chemical Society, and seconded by Professor Tyndall, was carried with great enthusiasm.

CONVERSION OF RADIANT HEAT INTO SOUND.

Professor Tyndall, in his discourse at the evening meeting on Friday, the 8th inst., described and illustrated his most recent investigations on the absorption of heat by gases and vapours. After referring to the criticisms of some philosophers, he stated that his results had been fully established by means of well-tried apparatus, which he characterised as powerful, delicate, and exact. Having witnessed Mr. Graham Bell's method of obtaining musical sounds through the action of an intermittent beam of light upon solid bodies, which sounds Dr. Tyndall attributed to rapid changes of temperature producing corresponding changes of shape and volume, he was led to consider that, if gases and vapours really absorb radiant heat, they ought to produce sounds more intense than those obtainable from solids. This opinion was justified by experiment. The electric and lime lights, a red-hot poker, a lighted candle, and other sources of heat were tried in experiments upon a great variety of gases, vapours, and perfumes, which produced sounds of different degrees of intensity. To concentrate the rays of heat the Professor employed glass lenses, and afterwards a reflecting mirror. A disk of sheet zinc, at first provided with radial slits, afterwards with teeth and interspaces cut through it, was mounted vertically on a whirling-table, and made to rotate rapidly across the beam near the focus. The passage of the slit produced the desired intermittence, while a flask containing the gas or vapour to be examined received the shocks of the beam immediately behind the rotating disk. From the flask a tube of india-rubber, ending in a tapering one of ivory or box-wood, led to a keenly sensitive ear. The relation between the amount of radiant heat absorbed by a vapour or gas, and the corresponding increase in the loudness of the sound produced, was also proved. A glass tube, stopped by plates of diathermianous rock-salt, was connected with a bent glass tube containing a coloured liquid. When a beam of lime light was concentrated into the tube containing a gas or vapour the amount of heat absorbed could be measured by the rise of the column of water in the bent tube, due to the expansion of the gas or vapour. The gases chiefly operated upon during the discourse were dry air, carbonic acid, and olefiant gas. The sounds produced, even by the aqueous vapour of breathing into the tube, were audible to the chairman and others. The interaction of radiant heat and gaseous matter was thus demonstrated by a new method of research.

No lectures will be given in Easter week.

OBITUARY.

SIR PHILIP EGERTON, BART., M.P.

Sir Philip de Malpas Grey-Egerton, tenth Baronet of Egerton and Oulton, Cheshire, F.R.S., M.P. for the Western Division of that county, Lieut.-Colonel Cheshire Yeomanry, and a Trustee of the British Museum, whose death took place on the 5th inst., was born Nov. 13, 1806, the eldest son of Sir Philip Grey-Egerton, ninth Baronet, by Rebecca, his wife, daughter of Mr. Josias Du Pré, of Wilton Park, Bucks, and succeeded, at his father's death, Dec. 13, 1829, to the ancient baronetcy of Egerton, created in 1617, not long after the institution of the Order. He was educated at Eton, and at Christ Church, Oxford, where he graduated in 1828. Sir Philip married, March 8, 1832, Anna Elizabeth, second daughter of Mr. George John Legh, of High Legh, and had two sons and two daughters—viz., Philip le Belward, now the eleventh Baronet, born March 28, 1833; Rowland, Brevet Major of the Rifle Brigade; Anna Mary Elizabeth, wife of Mr. Henry Reginald Corbet, of Adderley; and Cecely Louisa, Countess of Selkirk. The deceased Baronet was heir male of the great family of Egerton of Cheshire, traceable back to William le Belward, Baron of Malpas, temp. King Stephen. He was a scholar and antiquary, a Fellow of the Royal Society, and one of the Senate of the London University. In politics he was a Conservative, and is stated to have been the oldest member but one in the House of Commons, his first election dating so far back as 1830, when he was returned by the city of Chester. He subsequently represented South Cheshire from 1835 to 1868, and West Cheshire from 1868 to the time of his death.

SIR GHOLAM HUSSEIN KHAN.

Sir Gholam Hussein Khan, who died recently, had rendered long and valuable service to the Government administration in the Punjaub, both in its internal affairs and in the dealings with the frontier tribes. At the Court of Dost Mahomed at Cabul he acted as British representative, and as such was at the siege of Herat in 1862 and 1863, being present at the capture and death of the Ameer. He was some time on the staff of Lord Napier of Magdala, and on that of the Prince of Wales when in India. In 1878 he proceeded to Cabul to negotiate with his old friend, Shere Ali, respecting the reception of an English Envoy, but was unsuccessful. He was subsequently on the staff of Sir Louis Cavagnari at Cabul, at the time of the massacre being on his way there from Candahar.

We have also to record the deaths of—

Mr. John William Willcock, Q.C., on the 5th inst., at Woodside, Addlestone, in his eighty-first year.

Mr. John Rocke, of Clungunford House, in the county of Salop, J.P. and D.L., on the 3rd inst., aged sixty-three, the representative of an old and respectable Salopian family.

Henrietta Louisa Lady Wedderburn, widow of Sir John Wedderburn, Bart., on the 7th inst., at 7, Ovington-gardens. Her Ladyship was daughter of Mr. William Milburn, was married, Sept. 7, 1822, to Sir John Wedderburn, Bart., and was left a widow July 2, 1862. She was mother of Sir David Wedderburn, present Bart., of Balindean, county Perth, M.P. for the Haddington Burghs.

Mr. Samuel Taylor, of Eccleston Hall, in the county of Lancaster, J.P. and D.L., on the 4th inst., in his seventy-ninth year. He was eldest son of Colonel Samuel Taylor, of Moston, in the county of Lancaster, who purchased the estate of Eccleston from the old Lancashire family of Eccleston. He married, 1825, Mary Anne, daughter of the Rev. John Still, Rector of Fonthill Gifford, by whom he leaves issue.

Dorothy, Lady Cayley, on the 4th inst., at Brompton, Yorkshire, aged seventy-nine. Her Ladyship was the second daughter and coheir of the Rev. George Allanson, of Middleton Quernhow, in the county of York, by his wife, Anne Elizabeth, sister and heir of the Rev. Whitehall Whitehall Davies, of Broughton, Flintshire, and Llanerch Park, in the county of Denbigh. She was married, July 8, 1830, to Sir Digby Cayley, Bart., of Brompton, in the county of York, and leaves three sons and one daughter.

Mr. Henry William Eyres, of 41, Upper Grosvenor-street, London, and of Dumbleton Hall, county Gloucester, on the 6th inst., at Naples, in his twenty-fourth year. He and his brother, Mr. Charles Thomas Eyres, inherited the extensive estates in Northumberland, Leicestershire, Bedfordshire, and Gloucestershire, acquired by their grandfather, the late Samuel Eyres, of Armly, near Leeds. Mr. Eyres married Oct. 20, 1880, Caroline Isabel, daughter of Mr. Edward Sharp, of Gilstead Hall, near Bingley.

The Lord Mayor presided at Exeter Hall on the 6th inst. over the twenty-seventh annual meeting held on behalf of Wesleyan Methodist Education. The great hall was completely full, and among those present were the Rev. E. E. Jenkins, the President of the Wesleyan Conference, and the Rev. Dr. Rigg. The report presented stated that at the Westminster and Southlands Training Colleges there were 229 students (all members of the society), 118 young men at Westminster under training as day schoolmasters, and 104 young women at Southlands under training as schoolmistresses. The last year's statistics as to Wesleyan day schools showed the number of scholars in 851 Wesleyan schools was 179,900, with an average attendance of 123,927. The school pence contributed amounted to £92,189, the Government grants to £96,704, the subscription to £22,278, the amount paid for teaching staff was £170,519, and the general expenses amounted to £47,207. The certificated Wesleyan teachers employed in schools numbered in December 1200. The Lord Mayor urged the importance of religious education side by side with secular instruction in the day schools, and he expressed his deep pleasure at the proofs given of the maintenance of the religious education of the people since the foundation of the Board Schools.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

All communications relating to this department of the Paper should be addressed to the Editor, and have the word "Chess" written on the envelope.

J A S (Stockton).—In reply to your proposed solution of No. 1937, 1. Kt to Q B 3rd• Black can play 1. R to B 5th, and there is then no mate in two more moves.

H F (Spartan Chess Club).—Problems intended for publication should always be accompanied by the solutions. The last pair shall be examined.

W B (Winchester-street).—Thanks for your letter and the inclosure.

J T P (Ipswich).—Very good; if found correct, it shall soon appear.

Sirs (Southampton).—You will find the variation of the Rabbi's Gambit referred to in the fifth edition of the "Handbuch," page 187. It is very rarely played.

W T R (Westbourne-terrace).—If you look again you will see your initials under the number of the problem solved.

C E T (Clifton).—Your problem is marked for insertion. We shall be glad to receive the others mentioned in your letter.

F L (Watford).—The White Pawn in No. 1932 is placed there to prevent the Knight being played to Q R 2nd on the first move.

An Invalid (Madeira).—Your suggestion that a Pawn should be promoted only to a piece that has been captured, remaining dormant should there be no vacancy, until one arises, has been advocated by nearly all the old writers upon the subject of chess. In later times, Staunton, discussing the regulation, quotes a game from Ponziani as an illustration of the confusion likely to ensue from its adoption, and, as the point raised is probably new to many of our readers, we reproduce the game here:—1. P to K 4th, P to K 4th; 2. P to K B 4th, P takes P; 3. Kt to K B 3rd, P to K 3rd; 4. B to Q B 4th, B to B 4th (ch); 5. P to K Kt 3rd, P takes P; 6. Castles (this operation must be effected after the Italian fashion—that is to say, K to K R sq and R to K B sq), 6. P to Q 4th; 7. B takes Q P, B to K R 6th; 8. B takes Q Kt P, P to Kt 7th (ch); 9. K to Kt sq, P takes R (as no piece has been captured, the Pawn remains dormant); 10. B takes R; White having captured a Rook, Black's Pawn instantaneously becomes promoted to that piece, when 10. B to B 7th effects a double checkmate, which is a curiosity in its way. The law permitting a plurality of pieces is now universally observed, and an attempt to change it, even if change were desirable, would be a hopeless undertaking.

Correct Solutions of Problem No. 1928 received from T M Manickum; of No. 1931 and 1932, from Va (U.S.); of No. 1933 from an Invalid (Madeira), and Va (U.S.); and of the Hermit of Tyrnau's problem from Va (U.S.), An Invalid (Madeira), and T M Manickum (Secunderabad).

Correct Solutions of Problem No. 1935 received from H F (Spartan Chess Club) F Johnston, An Invalid (Madeira), and F E Purchas.

Correct Solutions of Problem No. 1936 received from S D Berrel, Law and Medicine, H F (Spartan Chess Club), F Johnston, Frank E Purchas, Leslie Lachlan, Epicharmus, W T R, F P Holley, C D B, J X B, Duke, May Bank, Courtenay Richards, E J Stafford, and H Stebbing.

Correct Solutions of Problem No. 1937 received from H B, Alpha, J W W, W Scott, Stuart Berkeley, F Johnston, Dr F St. Frank E Purchas, Hereward, R H Brooks, W F K (Cleveden), John Balfour, Sudbury (Suffolk), Theodor Willink, John Perkins, East Marden, D W (Guernsey), G A (Bonchurch), W F Wood, Timmins, Rev W F Clements, E G, E Louis L, E Hidgway, H Slebbing, Sidmouth, James Dobson, S Farrant, An Old Hand, G L Mayne, W J Rudman, L L Greenaway, Elsie, C Oswald, E Ingersoll, A M Colborne, W Hillier, G W Law, N S Harris, C W Milson, Aaron Harper, R J Vines, M O'Halloran, G Fosbrooke, E Casella, H Blacklock, Ben Nevis, L Sharwood, E Sharwood, L Falcon (Antwerp), R T Kemp, Jupiter Junior, E Elsbury, T Greenbank, F Parslow, T H Holdron, H H Noyes, and Joseph Ainsworth.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM No. 1936.

| WHITE. | BLACK. |
|---|---|
| 1. Kt to R 6th | P to B 3rd* |
| 2. Kt to B 5th | K takes Kt |
| 3. Q mates. | |

*If Black play 1. P to B 4th, White continues 2. Kt to B 7th, mating next move As stated in our last issue, when acknowledging solutions a White Pawn should be placed on K 5th in the diagram of this problem.

PROBLEM No. 1939.

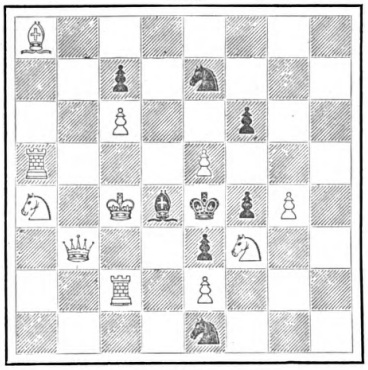
By A. Cyril Pearson.

BLACK.



WHITE.

White to play, and mate in two moves.

Played at Purssell's Coffee House between the Rev. S. W. Earnshaw and Mr. Gunzberg.

(King's Gambit Declined.)

| WHITE (Mr. G.) | BLACK (Mr. E.) | WHITE (Mr. G.) | BLACK (Mr. E.) |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1. P to K 4th | P to K 4th | 21. Kt to K Kt 5th | Q to K 2nd |
| 2. P to K B 4th | B to B 4th | 22. P to K R 4th | P takes P |
| 3. Kt to K B 3rd | P to Q 3rd | 23. P takes P | R to B sq (ch) |
| 4. B to Q B 4th | Kt to K B 3rd | 24. K to Kt sq | P to K B 6th |
| 5. P to Q Kt 4th | | | |

It was obviously advisable to drive back the Knight before taking the Q Kt P, as White threatens 25. Q to R 5th, &c.

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| | | 25. Kt to K B 3rd | Q takes P |
| There is always a dash of adventure in Mr. Gunzberg's offhand games, but those who prefer a sounder course will find either 5. P to Q B 3rd or 5. Kt to Q B 3rd better suited to them than the move in the text. | | 26. P to K Kt 4th | R to B 6th |
| | | 27. Q to Q 2nd | B to K 6th |
| | | Correctly played. The exchange of pieces forced by this coup leaves the White King almost hopelessly exposed to attack. | |
| 5. | B to Kt 3rd | 28. Q takes B | R takes Kt |
| Black errs on the right side, perhaps, but we believe the Pawn may be taken with perfect safety. | | 29. K R to R 2nd | Kt to B 4th |
| | | 30. R takes R | Q takes R (ch) |
| 6. P takes P | P takes P | 31. R to Kt 2nd | Q takes P (ch) |
| 7. P to Q 3rd | P to Q B 3rd | This exchange of Queens, winning another Pawn, is decisive. | |
| 8. P to K R 3rd | Castles | 32. Q takes Q | Kt takes Q |
| 9. P to Q R 4th | P to Q R 3rd | 33. R to Q B 2nd | R to Q sq |
| 10. P to R 5th | B to R 2nd | 34. P to K Kt 5th | Kt to Q Kt 5th |
| 11. B to K Kt 5th | Q to Q 3rd | 35. R to Q B 7th | R to Q 6th |
| 12. B takes Kt | Q takes B | 36. Kt to R 2nd | R to Q 8th (ch) |
| 13. Q to K 2nd | B to K 3rd | 37. K to Kt 2nd | Kt to Q 6th (ch) |
| 14. Q Kt to Q 2nd | Kt to Q 2nd | 38. K to Kt 3rd | R to Kt 8th (ch) |
| 15. Castles (Q R) | | 39. K to B 2nd | |
| White has a risky game after this move, but, owing to his careless opening, there is not much resource in the position. | | If 39. K to R 3rd, then follows 39. Kt to B 8th; 40. R to B 3rd (best), 40. P to Kt 5th (ch), winning the Rook. | |
| 15. | P to Q Kt 3rd | 39. | R to B 8th (ch) |
| 16. Kt to Q Kt 3rd | Q to K 2nd | 40. K takes Kt | R takes R |
| 17. P to B 3rd | K R to Q Kt sq | 41. P takes P | P takes P |
| 18. R to Q 2nd | P to Q Kt 4th | 42. Kt to Kt 4th | K to Kt 2nd, |
| 19. B takes B | Q takes B | and White resigned. | |
| 20. R to Kt 2nd | P to Q B 4th | | |

The annual match between the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge was played at the St. George's Chess Club on the evening of the 6th inst., and resulted in a victory for Cambridge with a score of 6½ to 5½. The following table shows the pairing of the players and their respective scores, the fractions denoting drawn games, which counted half a point to each side.

| OXFORD. | | CAMBRIDGE. | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Gattie (Christ Church) | ... 1 | Sugden (Trinity) | ... ... 0 |
| Kinder (Brasenose) | ... 2 | Carr (St. Katherine) | ... ... 0 |
| Taylor (Christ Church) | ... 0 | Morley (King's) | ... ... 2 |
| Welsh (Christ Church) | ... ½ ½ | Raymond (Christ's) | ... ... ½ ½ |
| Lynam (Hertford) | ... 0 | Atmore (St. John's) | ... ... 1 |
| Wainwright (University) | ... ½ | Thursby (Trinity) | ... ... 1½ |
| Beebe (Trinity) | ... 1 | Longsden (Trinity) | ... ... 1 |
| | 5½ | | 6½ |

The match between Messrs. Blackburne and Gunzberg was concluded on Monday the 11th inst., the former winning by one game. The terms of the match, it will be remembered, were that Mr. Blackburne should yield the odds of two games, and that the winner of seven games should be declared the victor. The final score stood—Mr. Blackburne 7, Mr. Gunzberg 6, including the two given, and three draws.

The twenty-sixth annual meeting of the West Yorkshire Chess Association will be held at the Queen Hotel, Huddersfield, on Saturday the 23rd inst. The room will be open for play at twelve o'clock, noon, and all who take an interest in the game of chess are cordially invited to attend.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will (dated Feb. 11, 1881) of Mr. Henry Rogers, late of Leadenhall-street, merchant, of Wolverhampton, Staffordshire, and of Fairholme, Oatlands, Surrey, who died on Feb. 14 last, was proved on the 26th ult. by Alexander Devas Druce, George Skey, and Mrs. Catharine Rogers, the widow, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £160,000. The testator leaves to his wife his furniture, plate, linen, pictures, books, household effects, horses and carriages, and for life £4000 per annum and his residence, Fairholme; £500 each to the South Staffordshire General Hospital and Wolverhampton Dispensary, and the Wolverhampton Orphan Asylum, Goldthorne-lane; and legacies to nephews, nieces, great-nieces, stepson, executors, and domestic servants. At the death of his wife the following additional charitable legacies are directed to be paid—viz., £1000 to the Wolverhampton Orphan Asylum, Goldthorne-lane; £500 each to the Church Missionary Society for Africa and the East, St. John's Foundation School, Leatherhead, the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, the Idiots' Asylum, Earlswood, the Corporation of the Sons of the Clergy, the South Staffordshire General Hospital and Wolverhampton Dispensary, the London City Mission, and the British Home for Incurables, Clapham-rise; and £250 each to the Religious Tract Society, the South Staffordshire Prisoners' Aid Society, the Refuge for Homeless Boys, Great Queen-street, and the Church Association, Buckingham-street, Strand. As to the residue of his real and personal estate, he leaves one eighth each to his nephews and nieces, Henry Rogers, William Rogers, Eliza Moore, Susan Walker, Fanny Rogers, Annie Rogers, and Anne Louisa Elliott, and the remaining eighths between his great-nieces, Alice Twentyman and Mary Twentyman.

The will (dated Dec. 23, 1874) of Mr. Charles Harrison, late of No. 3, Bryanston-square, who died on Dec. 23 last, was proved on the 16th ult. by Lady Amelius Beauclerk, the daughter, the acting executrix, the personal estate being sworn under £120,000. Excepting a bequest to a nephew, the testator leaves his real and personal estate to his daughter.

The will (dated April 16, 1880) with four codicils (dated April 17 and 27, and July 24 and 29 following) of Mr. Henry Reed, late of Mount Pleasant, in Tasmania, merchant, who died on Oct. 10 last, was proved in London on the 19th ult. by John Terry, as the attorney of the executors, the personal estate in England being sworn under £120,000. The testator leaves his wife, Mrs. Margaret Sayers Elizabeth Reed, £3000 per annum for life, in addition to other bequests to her; there are specific devises of real estate in this country, and also in Tasmania, to several of his sons; liberal provision is made for his daughters; and legacies are given to two grandsons and to his executors. The residue of his real and personal estate is settled upon his youngest son, Henry.

The will (dated July 28, 1875) with a codicil (dated Aug. 13, 1878) of Mr. Alfred Elmore, R.A., late of No. 1, St. Albans-road, Victoria-road, Kensington, who died on Jan. 24 last, was proved on the 21st ult. by Thomas John Elmore, the brother; William Powell Frith, R.A.; and Killingworth Richard Hedges, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £80,000. The testator bequeaths to his executors £100 each; to Agnes Lucy Koe, for her affectionate attention to his daughter, £1000; and to his daughter, Edith Jane Elmore, his leasehold residence, with the furniture, plate, pictures, household effects, and jewellery. The residue of his real and personal property is to be held upon trust for his said daughter for life, then for her children, and in default of children as she shall by deed or will appoint.

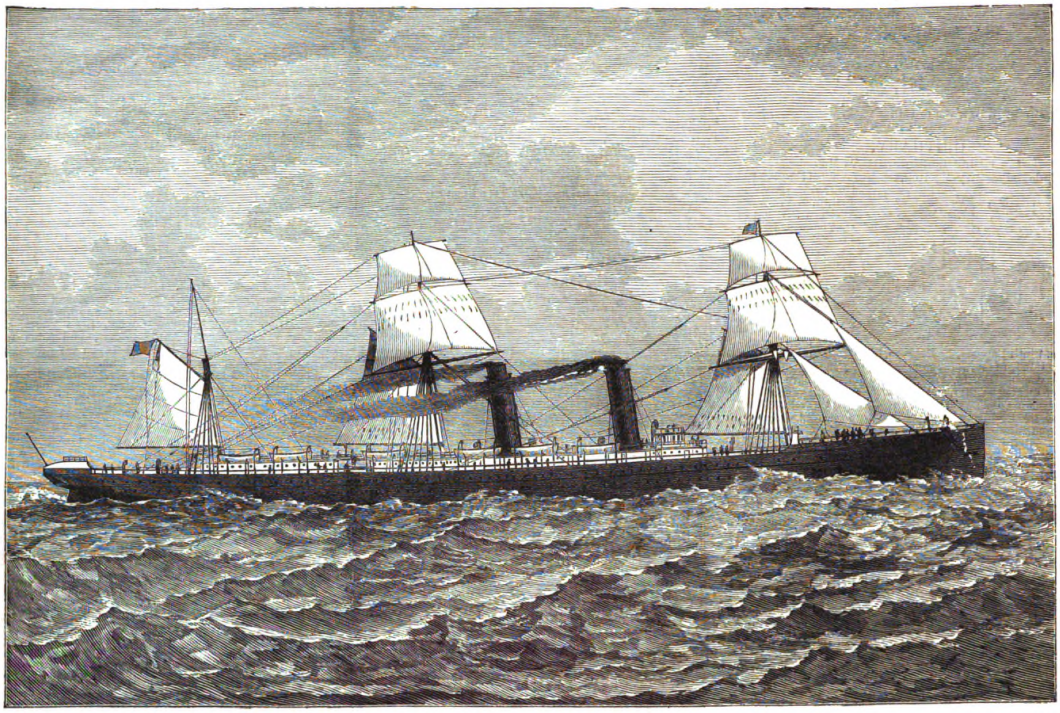
The will (dated Jan. 17, 1873) with a codicil (dated Aug. 30, 1876) of Sir Richard Courtenay Musgrave, Bart., late of Edenhall, Cumberland, and of No. 17, Cavendish-square, who died on Feb. 13 last, was proved on the 26th ult. by Samuel Steuart Gladstone, the Hon. Henry Brougham, and Edward Bleaymire, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £60,000. The testator leaves to his wife £2000, a close carriage with a pair of horses, the use of the family diamonds for life, and £1000 per annum charged on his real estates, in addition to the jointure of £1500 per annum already secured to her by settlement; she is also to have the use of his mansion house Edenhall during widowhood or until his eldest son attains twenty-one, whichever event shall first happen; £20,000 is charged on his real estate to be divided between his four younger children, and a further sum of £10,000, which he gives, in addition, to his two younger sons. All the real estate is settled upon his son who succeeds him in the baronetcy, and the residue of the personalty is left upon trust for the same son.

The will (dated May 5, 1874) with a codicil (dated Oct. 16, 1879) of Mr. Joseph Hawkins, late of Newsham House, Newsham, and of Preston, Lancashire, who died on Feb. 10 last, was proved on the 16th ult. by Mrs. Mary Anne Hawkins, the widow and acting executrix, the personal estate being sworn under £60,000. The testator leaves the Newsham House estate, with the furniture and effects, and £700 per annum, to his wife during life or widowhood; at her decease, or second marriage, the said estate is settled on his eldest son, and the furniture and effects are made heirlooms to go therewith. To each of his daughters he gives £6000; to each of his sons £12,000; and the residue of his property, real and personal, between all his sons.

The will (dated Jan. 29, 1879) with a codicil (dated Dec. 20, in the same year) of Mr. Ebenezer Robert Le Mare, late of Hazelwood, Clevedon, Somersetshire, who died on Feb. 4 last, was proved on the 21st ult. by Mrs. Mary Dorothy Le Mare, the widow, Joseph Rice and Joseph Consterdine, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £30,000. The testator leaves to his wife, in addition to the provision made for her by settlement, £500, his household furniture, plate, pictures, and effects, and the interest of £5000 for life; he also leaves her the interest of a further sum of £1000 for life; at her death the last-named sum is to be divided between the British and Foreign Bible Society, the Church Missionary Society, the Church Pastoral Aid Society, and the Colonial and Continental Church Society. There are legacies to his son Joshua, to two grandchildren, and to his executors; and the residue of his property he leaves between all his children.

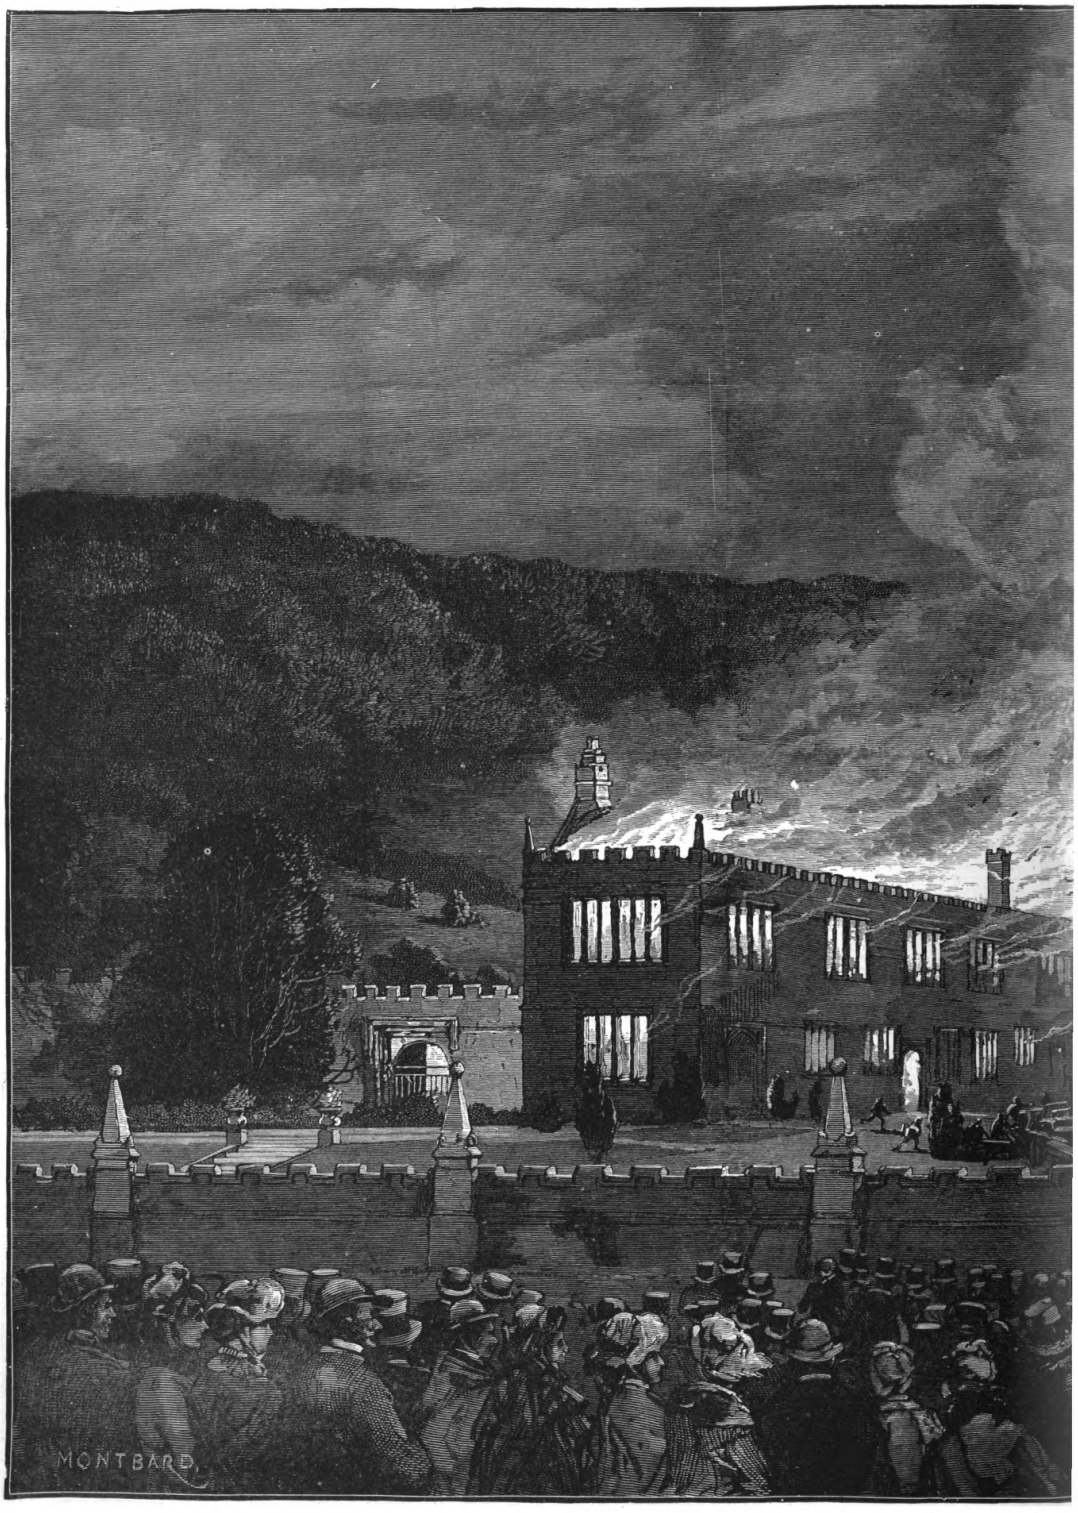
The will (dated June 22, 1880) of Mr. John Bridges, late of No. 52, Anerley Park, Anerley, who died on Feb. 24 last, at St. Helier's, Jersey, was proved on the 16th ult. by Frederic Anderson Stebbing, Samuel Wiggins, and Herbert Weston Bridges, the son, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £30,000. The testator makes provision for his wife and two daughters, and there are other bequests. The residue of his real and personal estate he gives to his said son.

The will and codicil (both dated June 7, 1878) of Mrs. Lavinia Legassicke Hicks, formerly of Rodney House, Ladbroke-grove-road, Notting-hill, but late of No. 2, Surrendale-place, Sutherland-gardens, were proved on the 21st ult. by John Forster Cooper, the sole executor. The testatrix bequeaths to the nation a large oil-painting of the British Fleet in Rodney's action, 1782; a portrait of Admiral Gidoim, who commanded the Torbay in the same action; a portrait of his son, the Rev. James Gidoim; a portrait of Mrs. Elizabeth Crespin; and a little catacomb lamp used by the early Christians during the reign of Nero.

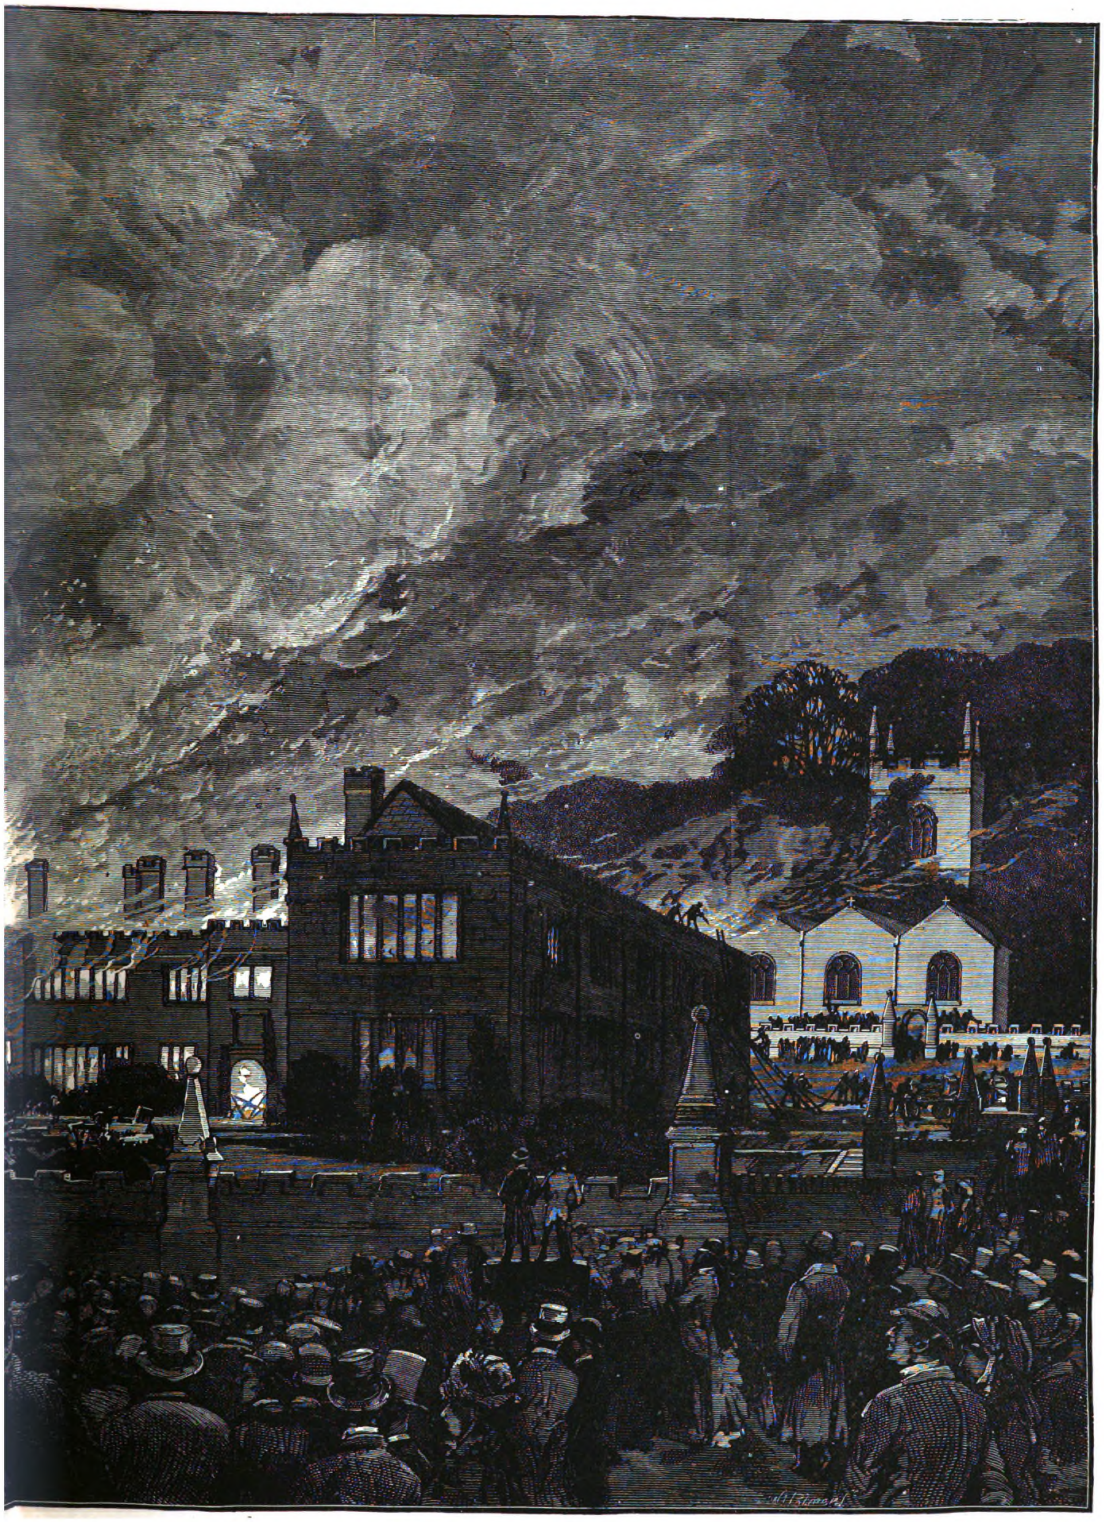


THE NEW CUNARD STEAM-SHIP SERVIA.—SEE PAGE 378.

BOILING AND TESTING OPIUM IN CHINA.—SEE PAGE 378.



FIRE AT LANHYDROCK HOUSE, THE SE



SET OF LORD ROBARTES, NEAR BODMIN.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

REGISTERED AT THE GENERAL POST-OFFICE FOR TRANSMISSION ABROAD.

No. 2188.—VOL. LXXVIII. SATURDAY, APRIL 23, 1881. TWO WHOLE SHEETS } SIXPENCE. By Post, 6½D.

ASSASSINATION OF THE LATE EMPEROR OF RUSSIA: THE CONDEMNED PRISONERS.—SEE PAGE 390.

BIRTHS.

On the 10th inst., at The Poplars, Riverhead, Sevenoaks, Kent, the wife of J. W. Mumby, of a son.

On the 10th inst., at Florence, the Lady Adela Larking, of a son.

On the 16th inst, at Powderham Castle, the Lady Agnes Wood, of a son.

MARRIAGE.

On the 19th inst., at Christ Church, Chelsea, S.W., by the Rev. G. F. Whitlock, M.A., Lieutenant-Colonel Sir Augustine Fitzgerald, Bart., to Clara Emma, second daughter of the late James Whitaker, Esq.

DEATHS.

On Easter Sunday, at Dane Bank House, Congleton, Edward Fisher Bodley, Esq., J.P., in his 67th year.

On the 18th inst., in Bruton-street, after a long illness, Henrietta, the beloved wife of General Sir George Buller, and daughter of General Sir John Macdonald, G.C.B., late Adjutant-General of the Forces.

On the 17th inst., at Bath, Eliza, wife of Kerrison Harvey, Esq., of Bath, and Thorpe, in Norfolk, and daughter of the late Sir Edward Knowles Lacon, Bart., M.P., aged 75.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.*

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE KEW OBSERVATORY OF THE ROYAL SOCIETY.

Lat. 51° 28′ 6″ N.; Long. 0° 18′ 47″ W. Height above Sea, 34 feet.

| DAY. | DAILY MEANS OF Barometer, Corrected. | Temperature of the Air. | Dew Point. | Relative Humidity. | Amount of Cloud. | THERMOM. Maximum, read at 9 P.M. | Minimum, read at 9 A.M. | WIND. General Direction. | Movement in 24 hours, read at 9 A.M. following. | Rain in 24 hours, ending 9 A.M. next morning. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| | Inches. | ° | ° | 0–10 | ° | ° | | | Miles. | In. |
| April. 10 | 29·929 | 44·9 | 38·7 | ·80 | 6 | 59·8 | 35·4 | ENE. E. | 226 | 0·000 |
| 11 | 29·895 | 51·2 | 45·7 | ·83 | 9 | 60·8 | 39·9 | E. S. SW. | 271 | 0·275 |
| 12 | 29·873 | 51·8 | 48·6 | ·89 | 9 | 59·7 | 46·9 | SW. SSW. | 290 | 0·005 |
| 13 | 29·886 | 53·6 | 43·3 | ·70 | 7 | 62·2 | 42·9 | SSW. SE. E. | 265 | 0·020 |
| 14 | 29·863 | 52·1 | 47·5 | ·83 | 9 | 62·7 | 48·0 | E. S. SSW. | 218 | 0·000 |
| 15 | 29·889 | 50·4 | 43·2 | ·78 | 6 | 61·3 | 45·5 | SW. W. SW. SSW. | 170 | 0·000 |
| 16 | 29·956 | 47·0 | 42·2 | ·85 | 8 | 60·0 | 39·4 | SSW. SE. E. | 127 | 0·000 |

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at ten o'clock a.m.:—

| | | | | | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Bar. meter (in inches) corrected .. | 29·906 | 29·895 | 29·873 | 29·879 | 29·896 | 29·906 | 29·937 | 29·970 |
| Temperature of Air .. | 49·2° | 52·6° | 51·9° | 59·1° | 56·0° | 51·4° | 47·4° | 46·8° |
| Temperature of Evaporation .. | 43·9° | 48·8° | 50·7° | 52·6° | 52·4° | 47·9° | 44·8° | 44·6° |
| Direction of Wind .. .. | E. | S. | SW. | ESE. | S. | WSW. | NW. | NW. |

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE FOR THE WEEK ENDING APRIL 30.

| Sunday. | | Monday. | | Tuesday. | | Wednesday. | | Thursday. | | Friday. | | Saturday. | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| M h m | A h m | M h m | A h m | M h m | A h m | M h m | A h m | M h m | A h m | M h m | A h m | M h m | A h m |
| 10 23 | 10 58 | 11 30 | 11 58 | — | 0 25 | 0 46 | 1 10 | 1 35 | 1 57 | 2 15 | 2 33 | 2 50 | 3 10 |

ROYAL ALBERT HALL. — Mr. SIMS REEVES, FAREWELL ORATORIOS, on WEDNESDAY EVENINGS, APRIL 27; May 4 18, 25; June 15, 22, 29; and SATURDAY AFTERNOON, JULY 9. Prices for the Series of seven Evening Concerts, £4 4s. and £3.

MR. SIMS REEVES' FAREWELL ORATORIOS.

FIRST CONCERT, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 27, at EIGHT.

JUDAS MACCABÆUS.—Artists:

MADAME CHRISTINE NILSSON.

MADAME TREBELLI.

MR. SIMS REEVES.

MR. SANTLEY.

MISS A. SINCLAIR, Miss Hoare, and the ROYAL ALBERT HALL CHORAL SOCIETY, Orchestra and Chorus, 1000. Band of Coldstream Guards (by permission). Organist, Dr. Stainer. Conductor, Mr. Barnby. Prices: Stalls, 1 to 5, Area, 10s. 6d.; Balcony, 5s.; and 2s. Admission, One Shilling.—Tickets of usual Agents; Austin's Office, St. James's Hall; and at the Royal Albert Hall.

SACRED HARMONIC SOCIETY, ST. JAMES'S HALL. Conductor, Sir Michael Costa.—FRIDAY, APRIL 29, at 7.30, Mendelssohn's ELIJAH.—Madame Anna Williams, Jessie Jones, M. Hunsock, and Percy Mencies. Lloyd, Carter, C. Henry, De Lacey, and Santley. Organist, Mr. Willing. Tickets, now ready, 10s. 6d., 7s., 5s., and 2s. 6d., at Society's Offices, 6, Johnstreet, Adelphi; Austin's, St. James's Hall, and Agents'. Note.—Owing to the invariable crush caused for Tickets for the Society's performance of "Elijah," early application is desirable to secure Numbered Seats—5s., 7s., and 10s. 6d.

MR. GANZ'S ORCHESTRAL CONCERTS.—ST. JAMES'S HALL.—FIRST CONCERT on SATURDAY AFTERNOON NEXT, APRIL 30, at Three o'Clock. The Programme will include Berlioz's Symphonie Fantastique; "Estelle la Vie d'un Artiste" (first time in London); Overtures—"Egmont" (Beethoven), "Merry Wives of Windsor" (Nicolai); Pianoforte Concerto in E flat ("The Emperor"), Beethoven; "Romeo and Juliet" Fantasia (Svendsen). Pianist, Madame Sophie Menter (her first appearance in London). Violinist, Mr. Lewis Thomas. Conductor, Mr. Ganz. Tickets, 10s. 6d., 7s., 5s., 3s., and 1s., at Chappell's, Austin's, and the usual Agents.

ST. JAMES'S HALL, PICCADILLY.

THE MOORE and BURGESS MINSTRELS' EASTER HOLIDAY PROGRAMME, replete with musical gems, sparkling comicalities, and humorous sketches, will be repeated until the end of the present month.

EVERY NIGHT AT EIGHT.

MONDAY, WEDNESDAY, and SATURDAY AFTERNOONS at THREE and EIGHT.

FIFTY ARTISTS,

including the Juvenile Choir, the Statuesque Dancers, and powerful Phalanx of Comedians.

Fauteuils, 5s.; Sofa Stalls, 3s.; Area, 2s.; Gallery, 1s.

No fees.

INSTITUTE OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS. The FORTY-SEVENTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION will OPEN on MONDAY NEXT, APRIL 25. H. F. PHILLIPS, Secretary. Gallery, 53, Pall-mall.

THE SOCIETY OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS. The NINETY-FIFTH EXHIBITION is NOW OPEN, 5, Pall-mall East, from Ten till Six. Admittance, 1s.; Catalogue, 6d. ALFRED D. FRIPP, Secretary.

THE ANNUAL SPRING EXHIBITION OF HIGH-CLASS PICTURES by BRITISH AND FOREIGN ARTISTS, including Professor Teobald Carl Muller's picture, "An Encampment Outside Cairo," is now open at ARTHUR TOOTH and SONS' Gallery, 5, Haymarket. Admission, One Shilling.

SOCIETY OF BRITISH ARTISTS.—FIFTY-EIGHTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION NOW OPEN, at the SUFFOLK-STREET GALLERIES, Pall-mall East, from Nine to six daily. Admission, One Shilling. THOMAS ROBERTS, Secretary.

THE SEVENTEENTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION of CABINET PICTURES by ARTISTS of the BRITISH and FOREIGN SCHOOLS is NOW OPEN at THOMAS McLEAN'S GALLERY, 7, Haymarket (next the Theatre). Admission on presentation of address card.

FRENCH GALLERY, 120, PALL-MALL.—The Twenty-Eighth ANNUAL EXHIBITION of PICTURES, by Artists of the Continental Schools (including Portraits of the Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone, Prince Bismarck, Count Moltke, Dr. Dollinger, and other works by Franz Lenbach), is NOW OPEN. Admission, 1s.

ROSA BONHEUR'S celebrated PICTURES, ON THE ALERT, and A FORAGING PARTY, which gained for the artist the Cross of the Order of Leopold of Belgium, at the Antwerp Academy, 1878. Also, the complete engraved works of Rosa Bonheur, including the well-known "Horse Fair," now on Exhibition at L. H. LEFEVRE'S GALLERY, 14a, Kings-street, St. James's, S.W. Admission, One Shilling. Ten to Five.

DORÉ'S GREAT WORKS.—"ECCE HOMO" ("Full of divine dignity."—The Times) and "THE ASCENSION" ("CHRIST LEAVING THE PRÆTORIUM," "CHRIST ENTERING JERUSALEM," with all his other Great Pictures.—DORÉ GALLERY, 35, New Bond-street. Daily, 10 to 6. 1s.

THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS, A NEW JOURNAL FOR THE YOUNG.

The Proprietors of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS issued the first Illustrated Weekly Newspaper for Boys, price One Penny, on Wednesday, April 6, 1881. THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS is a Journal full of Entertainment and Information for Youth; and, at the same time, a Paper which Parents can with confidence place in the hands of their children.

LORD BEACONSFIELD'S SCHOOLDAYS. BY A SON OF ONE OF HIS TUTORS. Read THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS for April 13 and April 20.

CAPTAIN MAYNE REID'S "LOST MOUNTAIN." A New Romance in the best style of this famous Author, commenced in THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS for April 6.

"SQUEE BIFFEN" will make every reader of THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS laugh.

THE TRAVELLER.—Read Captain MAYNE REID'S Entertaining and Instructive Papers on Travel, Voyage, and Adventure, presenting vivid Pictures of life All the World Over.

JACK'S NOTES ON NEWS in THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS will form a review of the Week's News for the Young.

THE NATURALIST IN SILURIA.—Under this head Captain MAYNE REID every week presents a budget of original Notes on Natural History in THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS.

THE MID Spins a Yarn of the Sea each week in THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS.

HOLIDAY NOTES, by PHIL HOLIDAY, give a Chronicle of Sport for the Young in THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS each week.

BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS, price One Penny (post-free, 1½d.). THOMAS FOX, 10, Milford-lane, Strand, London.

ADVERTISERS are requested to send their Announcements early in advance for THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS.

A MONTHLY PART of THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS will be published at the end of April.

ROYAL BOTANIC SOCIETY GARDENS, REGENT'S PARK. EXHIBITION OF SPRING FLOWERS, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 27, Two o'Clock. SUMMER EXHIBITIONS, WEDNESDAYS, MAY 25, JULY 6. EVENING FETE, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 22. Tickets to be obtained at the Gardens only by Fellows or by Vouchers from Fellows of the Society, price during April, Spring Exhibition, 2s. 6d.; Summer Exhibitions, 4s.; Evening Fete, 5s. each.

LYCEUM.—THE BELLE'S STRATAGEM. TO-DAY (SATURDAY), APRIL 23, will be presented, with new scenery, dresses, and appointments, Mrs. Cowley's Comedy, THE BELLE'S STRATAGEM—Hardcastle, Mr. Irving; Letitia Hardy, Miss Ellen Terry; Miss Sophie Young, Mr. Howe, Mr. Terriss, Mr. Tinsley, Mr. Elwood, Mr. Beaumont, &c. Preceded by Alfred Tennyson's Tragedy THE CUP—Synorix, Mr. Irving; Camma, Miss Ellen Terry. Box-Office open from Ten till Five, under the direction of Mr. Hurst.

MR. and MRS. GERMAN REED'S ENTERTAINMENT. A New First Part, MANY HAPPY RETURNS, by Gilbert A'Beckett and Clement Scott; Music by Lionel Benson. A New Musical Sketch, OUR INSTITUTE, by Mr. Corney Grain; and ALL AT SEA, by Arthur Law; Music by Corney Grain. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday, at Eight; Thursday and Saturday at Three.—ST. GEORGE'S HALL, Langham-place. Admission, 1s., 2s.; Stalls, 3s., 5s. No fees. Booking-office open from 10 to 6.

BRIGHTON. — PULLMAN DRAWING-ROOM CAR TRAINS leave Victoria for Brighton every WEEKDAY at 10.0 a.m. and 1.30 p.m., and Brighton for Victoria at 9.45 a.m. and 5.45 p.m.; also from Victoria on Sundays at 10.45, and from Brighton at 8.30 p.m.

EVERY SUNDAY.—A cheap First-Class Train from Victoria at 10.45 a.m., calling at Clapham Junction and Croydon. Day Return Tickets, 10s.

THE GRAND AQUARIUM AT BRIGHTON.—EVERY SATURDAY, Cheap First-Class Trains from Victoria at 10.55 and 11.50 a.m. and London Bridge at 9.30 a.m. and 12.0 noon, calling at Clapham Junction and Croydon. Day Return Tickets, First-and-Third-Class, including admission to the Aquarium and the Royal Pavilion Picture Gallery, Ealing, and Gunnersbury, available to return by any Train the same day, except the 5.45 p.m. Pullman Car Train.

(By order) J. P. KNIGHT, General Manager.

POSTAGE FOR FOREIGN PARTS THIS WEEK,

APRIL 23, 1881.

The publication of the Thin Paper Edition of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS being for the present week suspended, subscribers will please to notice that copies of this Number (consisting of Two Whole Sheets) forwarded abroad must be prepaid according to the following rates:—

| | | | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Africa, West Coast of | ... | ... | 2½ | Gibraltar | ... | ... | 2½ |
| Alexandria | ... | ... | 2½ | Greece | ... | ... | 2½ |
| Australia | ... | ... | 2½ | Holland | ... | ... | 2½ |
| Austria | ... | ... | 2½ | India | ... | ... | 2½ |
| Belgium | ... | ... | 2½ | Italy | ... | ... | 2½ |
| Brazil | ... | ... | 2½ | Jamaica | ... | ... | 2½ |
| Canada | ... | ... | 2½ | Mauritius | ... | ... | 2½ |
| Cape of Good Hope | ... | ... | 2½ | New Zealand | ... | ... | 2½ |
| China, via Brindisi | ... | ... | 2½ | Norway | ... | ... | 2½ |
| via United States | ... | ... | 2½ | Russia | ... | ... | 2½ |
| Constantinople | ... | ... | 2½ | Spain | ... | ... | 2½ |
| Denmark | ... | ... | 2½ | Sweden | ... | ... | 2½ |
| France | ... | ... | 2½ | Switzerland | ... | ... | 2½ |
| Germany | ... | ... | 2½ | United States | ... | ... | 2½ |

Newspapers for foreign parts must be posted within eight days of the time of publication.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, APRIL 23, 1881.

The slender thread binding a valuable life to a nation's history has snapped at last; and whilst we were enjoying the rough welcome of our Easter holiday Lord Beaconsfield passed quietly away. Since Lord Palmerston went from the helm England has known no such purely personal sorrow as this. And this personality of regret is, after all, a great fact, full of eloquence and tenderness and truth. It is persuasive of the domestic feeling and family enchantment that outlive and are stronger than religious contention and political strife. Men of all creeds and opinions, antagonists and sympathisers, friends and foes, alike laid down their arms, as it were, when the bells, tolled and the flags were floated half-mast high, when Queen and peers and commoners joined in a common grief, and the last and saddest of all the bulletins declared that hope was at an end and Lord Beaconsfield was dead. This can scarcely be a matter of surprise when we reflect how the dead statesman has for forty odd years played so conspicuous a part on the stage of politics and in the great drama of our national life. Let the truth be told: the country has lost a companion and a friend. The chambers of the Legislature will no longer ring with his polished eloquence, or glow with his incisive satire. Oratory and style have, at any rate, to lament a lost leader. Fashion, society, culture, and dilettantism are for the moment in mourning; for there was no closing the doors of exclusiveness or pride to one whose natural talent and brilliancy claimed for him admittance. Literature has to lament the deposition of a pen that survived scorn and commanded attention from the earliest youthful romance to the days of the most successful fiction of its time. Even caricature will miss the face, the figure, and the well-known characteristics of a man who was so perpetually prominent that he was invariably noticed as a type; but who, outliving the fever of inimical strife and the suspicion of his opponents—who, disdaining ridicule and smiling at envy, came to be recognised as a patriotic champion and a constitutional hero. Enigmatical from the first, mysterious, deeply imaginative, composed, unsensitive, and consistently clever, Benjamin Disraeli managed to outlive the distrust of his friends and to earn the personal admiration of his opponents.

It was the romance in the career of Lord Beaconsfield in the end so endeared him to the nation at large. His life was an example of the nobility of talent. The story of Richard Whittington himself; all the familiar fables that have for their moral the virtue of industry; the traditional romances of merchants commencing life with a modest pittance and rising to wealth, fame, and influence, were not, after all, more extraordinary, or, indeed, more edifying, than the life and career of the statesman who has been taken from the proud position to which he had attained. The only difference is that he followed politics instead of commerce. Englishmen like these typical instances of persistency and self-trust. When a man is lifted from the forge to the Senate, from the lawyer's office to the Bench, from the ranks to the Military Hierarchy, from the masses to the Mansion House, there is a certain national pride in such stories of success. They are encouraging and elevating. This, somehow, is what Englishmen are made for—to distinguish themselves, to conquer difficulties, and to come to the front; and, though Disraeli may not altogether have been accepted as a typical Englishman, still there was a chord of sympathy in his story that was strictly identified with the national sentiment.

In England, as elsewhere, there is nothing succeeds like success. Lord Beaconsfield at a very early period of his career came to the front, and remained there. He had that serene temperament that was indifferent to jealousy; there was nothing mean or revengeful in his composition; political animosities and acerbities he could soon forget; he loved applause that was won by brilliancy, cultivation, and style; and so it came about that a man born to no future became by his own talent, taste, and tact the companion of men constitutionally disposed to despise him, the revolutionist of pride and caste and the representative of the nation's aristocracy.

A more singular career than that of Lord Beaconsfield has seldom been recorded in the annals of statesmanship. The son of an illustrious but unambitious recluse did not work his way to fame and nobility without very remarkable gifts. Genius he must have had; but he had the common sense never to miss the opportunity when it presented itself. It is not every lawyer's clerk who can live such a laborious life and die amidst universal regret. It was not chance that advanced Disraeli, but indomitable perseverance. He was born to soar. He had undaunted courage and the gift of a marvellous imagination. He was not cast down when he, as a mere lad, rode the hobby-horse of fashion and was thrown. He wrote a book, at the advice of an old friend, to relieve himself of debt. What he did not know, he conceived. Society was his drunihead; and his fiction was so near truth that he gained the ear of people as imaginative as himself. When he travelled, he saw twice as much as his companions; for his mind supplied what the eye could not reach. His first visit to the East was a revelation; and the blood that flowed in his veins seemed to be fired with all the poetry and intensity of the old faith. It was this subjectiveness that sustained the statesman in his oratory, his style, and his literary pursuits, and that endeared him to his fellow-creatures in days of materialism, doubt, discrepancy, and distrust. In his quiet, undemonstrative, and impassive fashion, he loved the beautiful in every department of life, and turned his influence in that direction.

Best perhaps of all; behind this smiling and seemingly superficial exterior there was a warm heart. Lord Beaconsfield was a true and sincere friend. His love for the companion of his life that he lost was one of the most eloquent traits in his character; and his unceasing attachment to his former secretary and constant companion will never be forgotten in the society that welcomed them both. The old Latin proverb bids us speak nothing but good of the dead, but it would be possible to invert the sentiment and say that it is by death that the true value of the man is known. This has certainly been the case with Lord Beaconsfield. His faults, his foibles, and his weaknesses are forgotten spontaneously and without effort. His constancy and brilliancy remain. When indeed we find the Queen of this great empire lamenting with great sorrow her well-tried servant and confidential friend; the Princes and Princesses making tribute of their personal and sincere regret; the two Houses of the Legislature, Lords and Commons, Government and Opposition, at one in their expression of cordial esteem; Society and Fashion awaking from frivolity to testify to the worth of an old companion; and the respect for persistency and pluck travelling down to the hearts of the people, then it must be evident that the nation at large is conscious of a severe loss. Another familiar link has been severed; and the world seems older now that Lord Beaconsfield has gone.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

Sir Matthew Wilson, Bart., M.P., after having been presented on Tuesday, at Elland, in the West Riding of Yorkshire, with an illuminated address, subsequently, in addressing an open-air meeting of his constituents, referred to the lamented death of the illustrious Earl of Beaconsfield, and said that, however they might distrust the political principles of the deceased statesman, they should honour his high abilities and his exertions as a public servant through a long life; and they must all of them be proud to belong to a country where a man born under such disadvantages as he had, by sheer dint of his abilities, had raised himself to be the Prime Minister of England and a peer of the realm.

I declare that, after wading through column after column and page after page (the great bulk of which had evidently been "pigeon-holed" for a very long time) of journalistic panegyrics, biographies, leading articles, deathbed ana, and what not, concerning the sagacious political leader, brilliant novelist, and most amiable man who has just passed away, I can find no public utterance more sensible, more comprehensive, more fully to the point, and more generously just than the few words spoken at Elland, in the West Riding, by Sir Matthew Wilson, M.P. It is refreshing to read those words, amid avalanches of verbiage and "pigeon-hole" padding.

Whigs and Tories, Liberals and Radicals, alike admired and were proud of Lord Beaconsfield; and among the masses of the common people his very sobriquet of "Dizzy" attested his personal popularity. But we must wait a considerable time before his place in political history can be definitively and dispassionately adjudicated upon. As a man of letters his contemporaries have long since judged him. He will principally be remembered, I should say, as the brilliantly intellectual son of the learned Isaac D'Israeli; but for literature as a vocation Benjamin Disraeli, Earl of Beaconsfield, was not fitted. Personally kind to authors, he could take no serious view of literature as a calling full of difficulty, anxiety, and responsibility. He regarded authorship as a means towards an end. To his erudite father authorship was an end towards the achievement of which all possible means were to be subordinated.

By those who were privileged to enjoy his intimacy, due justice will, it is to be hoped, be done to the extreme sweetness, cordiality, and placability of his character. Notwithstanding all the bitter things which he could say, and which, on occasion, he said, I suppose that very few public men have ever made fewer personal enemies than Benjamin Disraeli during a long, long life had made.

I find, always with reference to Lord Beaconsfield, in one of the daily papers the following extraordinary, yet not incredible, statement:—"There were proposals, also, of tempting articles of diet; and it is a fact that one gentleman, who suggested transfusion, made offer of his own blood for the purpose." I call the statement extraordinary, but not incredible, for the reason that, you will remember, similar suggestions and self-sacrificing offers were made at the most critical period of the illness of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales. It is the modern fashion to ridicule "emotional" enthusiasm; but these "transfusion" offers (possibly made by readers of Mr. Charles Reade's "Griffith Gaunt") were prompted, evidently, by the most generous of motives, and demand respect.

There is much in the career and the personal character of Lord Beaconsfield to remind us of William Pitt; and by the side of the "transfusion" story may without impropriety be placed an equally curious one bearing on the last moments of "the Pilot who weathered the Storm," which is to be found in Earl Stanhope's "Life of Pitt." It is therein stated that on Jan. 6, 1806, "a Mr. South arrived at Putney from town in a chaise, bringing a vial of hartshorn oil, a spoonful of which he insisted on Mr. Pitt taking, as he had known it recover people in the last agonies. Remonstrance as to its certain inefficacy was useless; and on Sir Walter Farquhar saying that it could be of no detriment a couple of spoonfuls of the oil were poured down Mr. Pitt's throat. It produced no effect but a little convulsive cough."

On what may be termed the "Carlyle Controversy" there has appeared, in the current number of the World, a remarkably clever and, on the whole, impartial, article, one passage in which, however, cannot be allowed to remain unchallenged. Says the World, "He was always essentially the author of the uneducated. Clerks, shopmen, third-rate journalists, and young men from Scotch Universities read him with delight." If, instead of "Thomas Carlyle" the writer in the World had written "Charles Dickens," there would have been some sense in the passage which I have quoted; seeing that the writings of Dickens could be understood and delighted in by the educated and the uneducated alike. But it is next door to the impossible, I should say, to take "delight" in an author whose language is mainly incomprehensible to the reader; and to an "uneducated" person—who need be neither a clerk, a shopman, a third-rate journalist, nor a young man from a Scotch University to be so uneducated—a page taken at random from Carlyle would be not much more intelligible than a page of the Iliad, in Greek. The "uneducated" classes (by whom, of course, I do not mean the illiterate ones) fail, as a body, to admire Thackeray. His satire is too subtle, even his nomenclature is too recondite, to be comprehended by the vulgar. And let this patent although somewhat humiliating fact be borne in mind. Twenty years ago the "uneducated" classes of English readers were found to be but lukewarm admirers of Sir Walter Scott.

A cheap weekly periodical enjoying an enormous circulation having passed into fresh hands, the proprietors thought that they could render their journal more attractive, and at the same time more instructive by making some of the most favourite romances of the Wizard of the North the staple of their fiction. The experiment, if I remember aright, was begun with "Ivanhoe," the weekly instalments of which were illustrated by sumptuous designs from the pencil of Sir John Gilbert. Sad to relate, the circulation of the periodical steadily and seriously declined; and, after a few months, the well-meaning experimentalists were glad to sell the journal back to the original proprietor, who forthwith made a clean sweep of the Abbotsford romances, and reverted to novels of the good old "uneducated" type, such as "Sophy Fothergill; or, the Odd Fellow's Niece," and "Peerage and Profligacy; or, the Maniacal Marchioness." With the help of these edifying fictions, the periodical soon regained its immense circulation. I wonder how the proprietor would have fared had he treated his readers (with the author's permission) to a weekly dose of Carlyle.

There is nothing new under the sun. In the always entertaining World, just quoted, I read the following:—

> Cinderella only got as far as a glass slipper; but Miss Fanny Davenport, the American actress, is having made for her a glass dress. It will have a long train of woven glass, and will be elaborately trimmed with glass lace. The texture, it is averred, will have the appearance of a fine French satin, only much more brilliant.

If my memory serves me correctly, about eight-and-thirty years ago, in an extravaganza, "Cherry and Fair Star," at the old Princess's Theatre, a then popular burlesque actress and charming singer, Mrs. H. P. Grattan, wore a glass dress. The fabric, of rich white-and-crimson brocade, came from Messrs. Sewell and Cross's, and had been manufactured for them to serve as material for curtains. The "glass dress" worn by Mrs. H. P. Grattan had a surprisingly brilliant effect on the stage; but the poor workwomen in the wardrobe of the theatre told me that they cut their fingers somewhat severely while dealing with the stuff. It had to be taken up very tenderly indeed. By way of experiment (if you are curious in finger cutting), just try to handle one of the pretty little polychromatic glass-woven mats which they make at Murano, near Venice.

Mem.: The next time you go to Havana bring home to the adored one of your heart a couple of "pine-apple" dresses. These fabrics, woven from the fibre of the pine-apple leaf, are what the æsthetes created in the imagination of Mr. Du Maurier and Mr. Burnand would call "quite too utterly lovely."

My good friend, Mr. Richard Edgcumbe, draws my attention to a note in the current issue of Notes and Queries, from which it would appear that the Great Cham of Literature, Dr. Samuel Johnson, condescended on the 7th October, 1756, to "boo" to Mr. Hector, of Birmingham, in soliciting subscriptions for the great lexicographer's new edition of Shakspeare. I had seen the passage to which Mr. Edgcumbe alludes in some remarkably interesting and till now unedited letters of Dr. Johnson; but the tone in which he asks for Mr. Hector's assistance reads more like a good-humouredly authoritative demand than an obsequious request. He seems to be aware that the service would be done even before it was required. Do you not remember that charming story of La Fontaine the Fabulist. The great man under whose roof La Fontaine had, during many years, lived as an honoured guest died or came to grief. I forget the precise nature of the catastrophe; but the author of the "Contes" found himself without a home. Another great nobleman, meeting the poet in the street, expressed his sympathy, and told him that he must in future reside in his (the second grandee's) house. "I was going thither," replied the good La Fontaine. There was no "booing" here; yet, what a superb compliment was conveyed in that "j'y allais."

That was not a very decorous controversy which raged in the newspapers between the Homœopaths and the Allopaths. Having myself a maximum of faith in the surgeon who can cut off my leg and mend my head—within a moderate extent of fracture—if somebody batters it with a bludgeon, and a minimum of faith in physicians, eminent and otherwise, who diametrically differ among themselves as to what is really the matter with a sick man and how he ought to be treated (I had once, in the course of an illness of seven months' duration, three very eminent physicians, and they successively subjected me to three totally distinct and antagonistic modes of treatment), I have not taken any very great interest in the squabbles between the learned Doctors Sangrado, Purgon, and Thomas Diafoirus. On the other hand, I have been perusing with avidity a little book, published in the year 1846 (G. Bowron, Oxford-street), called "A Manual of Homœopathic Cookery, by the Wife of a Homœopathic Physician." Is this manual still in print, I wonder; and are its recipes yet followed in homœopathic households?

It is odd to note in a work on dietetics such a highflown passage as this:—

> The dulcet notes of a distant flute, heard in the stillness of midnight, raise the heart to feelings of rapture, or melt it in holy fervour; but the same tones fall unnoticed on the inattentive ear, amid the rude and uncongenial din of busy day.

This is a corollary to the dietetic axiom laid down by Hahnemann in his Organon, that, owing to the smallness of the doses in homœopathic treatment, everything having any medicinal action must be excluded from the diet and regimen, in order that the influence of the minute doses may not be disturbed by the extraneous medicinal irritant.

From her recipes the Homœopathic Physician's wife wholly excludes pepper and onions; although Hahnemann did not insist on their absolute rejection. He only recommended that they should be sparingly employed (Chron. Krankh. Ed. I., p. 134). The only sauces allowed by the lady for fish are a little plain mushroom ketchup, soy, or plain butter sauce. No vinegar and no mustard in sauces. No salmon allowed; and no shell-fish save oysters, with which the solitary condiment to be tolerated is a little sauce. No Yarmouth bloaters; no kippered herrings. No pork. No wild duck, and no pâté de foie gras.

No raw vegetables are to be eaten. Farewell, then, a long farewell, to the crisp lettuce, the curly barbede capucin, the soothing lettuce, the dulcet beetroot, the fascinating cucumber, the smiling tomato salad with its delicate sub-acid flavour! Although the employment of tea is unreservedly condemned by Hahnemann, the Physician's wife sees no harm in the use of "a weak infusion of good black tea." A very woman! Chocolate into the preparation of which spices have entered is relegated to the "Index Expurgatorius;" and, as a substitute for coffee, we are counselled to roast whole barley, rye, or maize, with a very little butter, grind it, and prepare it like ordinary coffee. "It has very much the taste of the real Mocha," blandly observes the authoress, "without its injurious effects."

Abiding, myself, by the old-fashioned regimen (pepper and onions—may your shadows never be less), I intend the week after next to put my household on a strictly homœopathic regimen. At length I shall be even with my old enemy the Family Grocer, and make the pork butcher and he that vends prime Wiltshire bacon know that there is such a being as Nemesis. I wonder what my household will think of the following recipe for kidney soup:—"Cut one large beef kidney in pieces; put it in a gallon of water, and let it boil two hours; take out the kidney and strain the soup; replace the meat, and season with a little salt and a tablespoonful of soy."

Hahnemanian students will remember that the Mighty Master also forbade the use of liqueurs, punch, strongly scented flowers in a room (farewell the floral decorations of our dinner tables!), old cheese, pickles, woollen garments near the skin, lying long in bed, enervation from the perusal of meretricious romances (farewell to our "Wednesday Book Box!"), gambling, over-exertion, and excessive parsimony. As regards the last prohibition, score one for the Founder of Homœopathy.

Touching sauces, here also is an old friend with a new face, and as puzzling a pedigree as ever, who, to my bewilderment, turned up the other day as I was referring to the late Dr. Granville's "St. Petersburg." In Vol. II., p. 363, I read:—"The Marchese Caraccioli, who was a great gourmand, and spent several years in England as Ambassador from Naples, used to observe, with reference to English cookery, 'Il y a en Angleterre soixante sectes réligieuses différentes et une seule sauce, le melted butter.' Quel pays!" To how many more or less witty gourmands, beginning with Voltaire, has not the saying been ascribed?

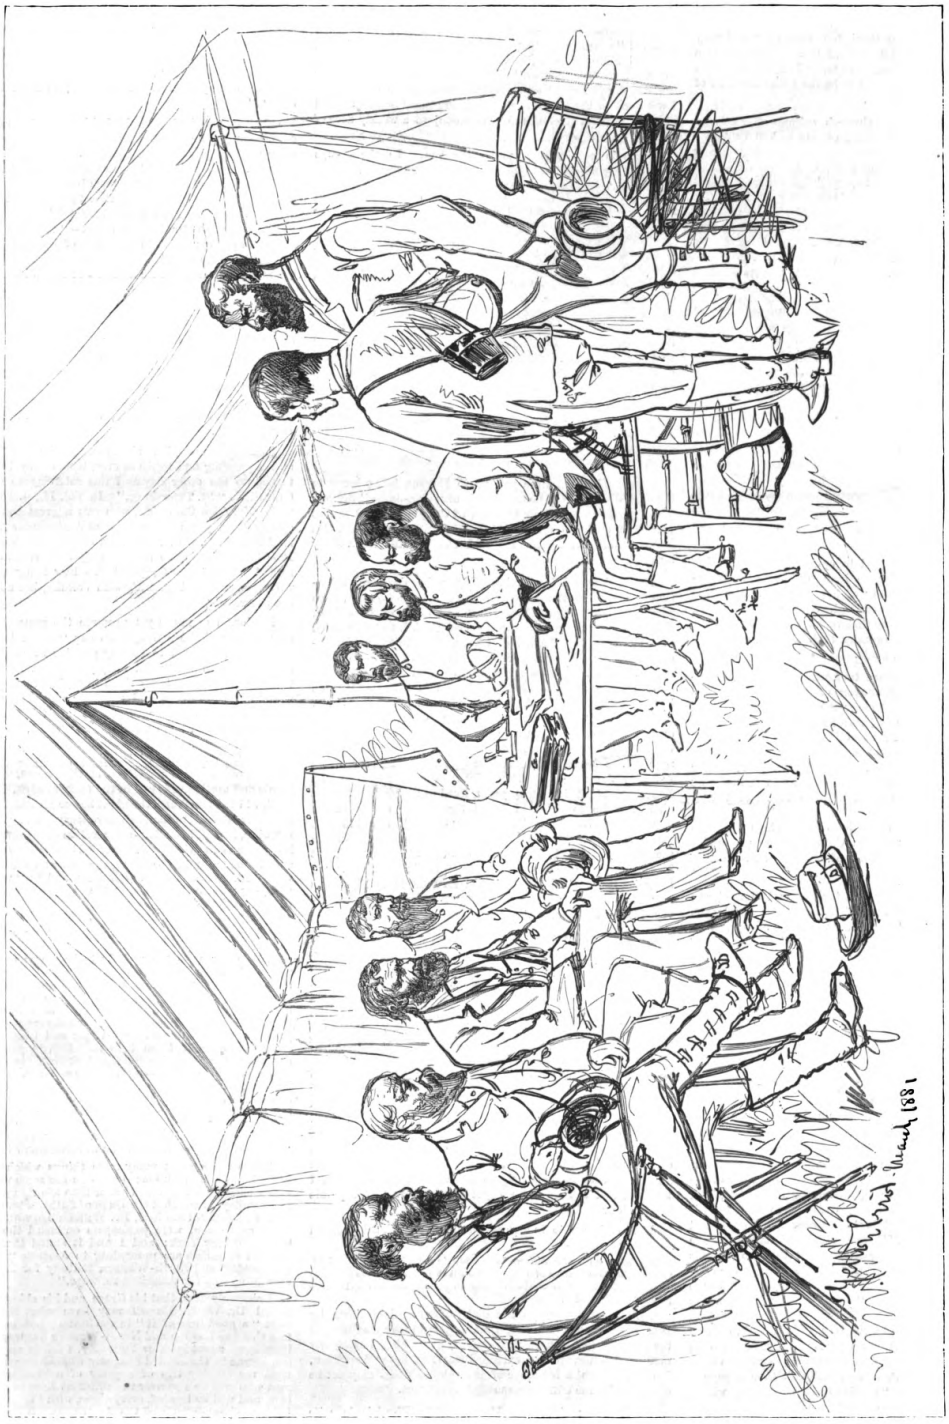
Do lovers of music yet preserve the remembrance of an exquisitely pathetic melody known as "Pestal" or "Pestel's Hymn," which used to be very popular in English musical society between thirty and forty years ago? I do not know whether I am technically right in saying that "Pestel" is, next to the beauteous and touching musical setting of the sixteenth and seventeenth verses of the First chapter of Ruth, (Entreat me not to Leave Thee), the longest of modern melodies. It sounds as though it were never coming to an end. The hymn of Pestel was, I have heard, the composition of a Russian nobleman of that name, who wrote the words and music in his cell in the fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul, at St. Petersburg, the night before his execution for high treason, a little more than half a century since. When, in the morning, he and his fellow-conspirators were brought out to be hanged, and the victims were ranged beneath the gallows-tree, with halters round their necks, the stools on which they stood were pushed from beneath their feet; and they were thus left swinging; but in Pestel's case the rope broke, and he fell to the ground. As the executioners were raising him and adjusting a fresh halter round his neck, he was heard to mutter, "Stupid Country, where they do not even know how to hang!"

This story with the melody to boot was recalled to my memory when, a day or two since, I was reading in the Times an account of the execution of the assassins of the Tsar Alexander II. That I might not have to see these wretched criminals strangled, I came away post-haste from St. Petersburg. I have had to see too many murderers and murderesses judicially done to death in my time; and I intend to see no more hangings, if I can help it. But, to judge from the account in the Times, the Russian Jack Ketch is fully as stupid now as he or his predecessor was fifty years ago. The exhibition is said to have been one of the most revolting ever witnessed; and the executioner and his assistants bungled horribly. Some say the hangman was drunk; others that the friends of the prisoners had secretly corroded the ropes with oil of vitriol. Pestel's murmured complaint naturally recurred to me—"Stupid Country; where they do not even know how to hang."

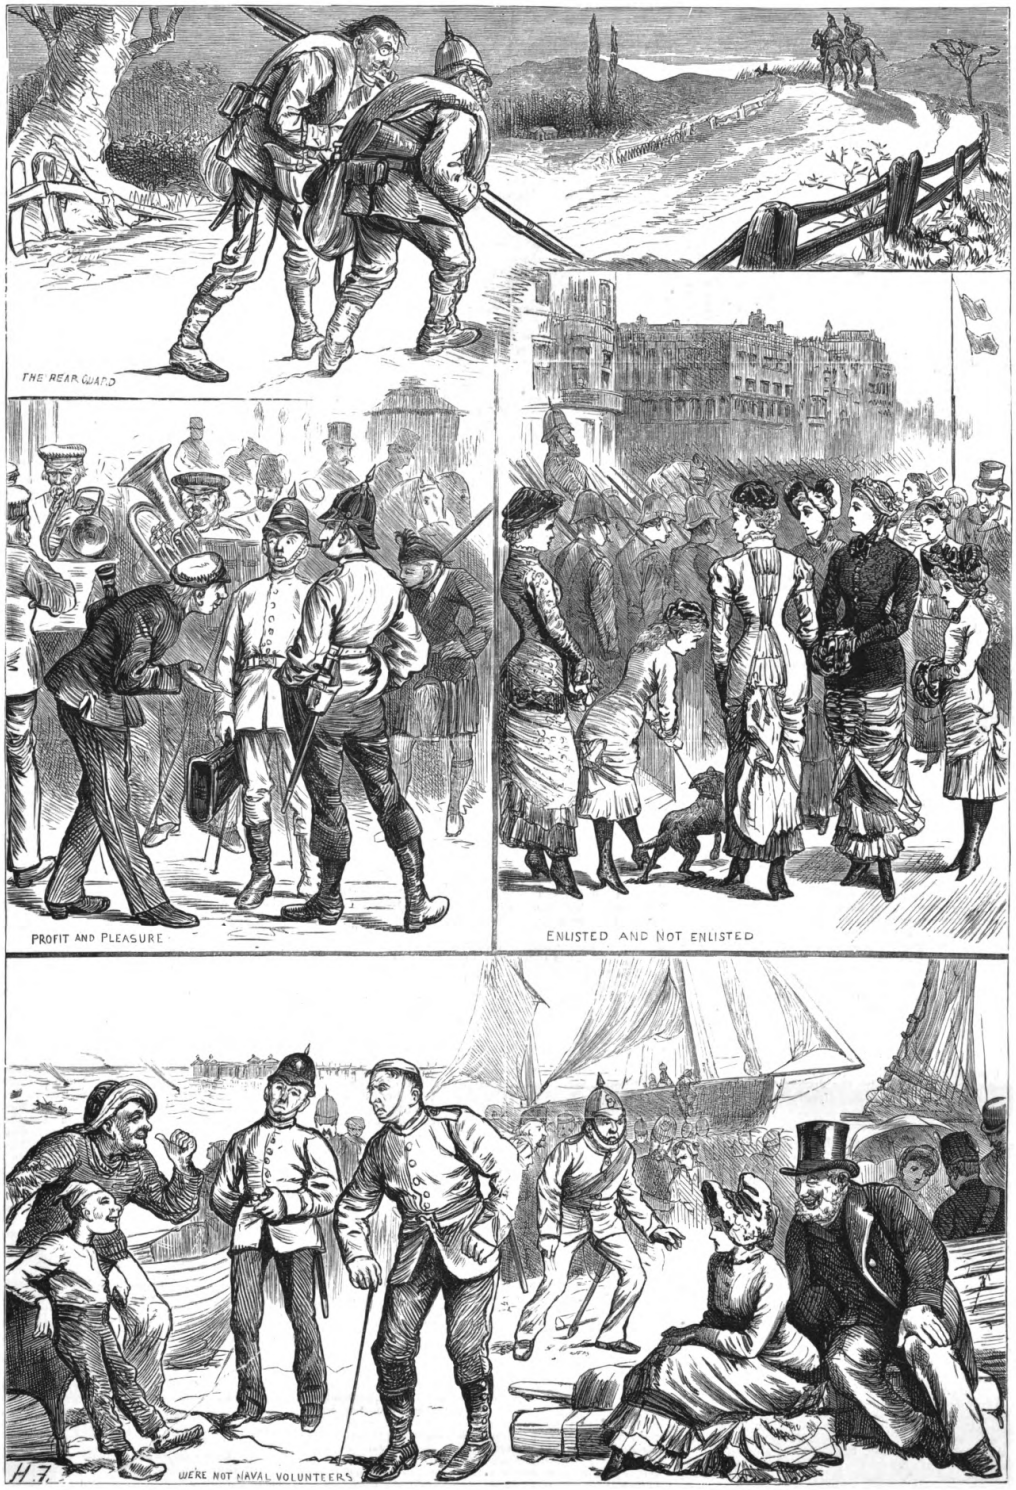
There are a great many more things which they do not know how to do in Russia; but there are some which they do very well indeed, and much better than the things are done in this country. I see that the Duke of Sutherland, accompanied by the Marquis of Stafford, Dr. William Howard Russell, and other gentlemen, were passengers on board the Cunard s.s. Gallia for New York; and I find it stated that the distinguished travellers are proceeding to America "on behalf of the London and North-Western Railway for the purpose of examining into the American railways."

I sincerely hope that his Grace and his eldest son and the genial Dr. W. H. Russell may have what the Americans term "a good time of it" in the States; but looking at the fact that the London and North-Western Railway have a very intelligent agent in New York City, I fail to see what benefit can accrue to the exalted company whose habitat is at Euston from the holiday trip of a party of noblemen and gentlemen who will be run over the different lines in the directors' cars, and will be treated, everywhere, with the splendid hospitality so characteristic of the Americans. Now that we have Pullman Cars and the Westinghouse brake in England, there is absolutely nothing to be learned from the American railway system save and except the practice of checking luggage: the feasibility of adopting which practice here I gravely doubt. The speed on the American railways is, as a rule, dismally slow; the ordinary cars (the Pullmans are perfection) are hideously uncomfortable; and the refreshment-rooms are simply abominable. Russian railway travelling is, on the other hand, thoroughly comfortable, and even luxurious. Let the Duke and Dr. Russell take a trip from Berlin to St. Petersburg next winter and report on their experiences.

G. A. S.



THE TRANSVAAL WAR: MEETING OF SIR EVELYN WOOD AND COMMANDANT JOUBERT TO ARRANGE THE ARMISTICE, MARCH 6.
FACSIMILE OF A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.—SEE PAGE 410.



SKETCHES AT THE BRIGHTON VOLUNTEER REVIEW.—SEE PAGE 394.

THE ASSASSINS OF ALEXANDER II.

Our Special Artist at St. Petersburg made, at the trial, sketch portraits of the six Nihilists, four men and two women, concerned in the murder of the late Emperor of Russia. We gave, in our last week's publication, a long account of the trial, which occupied three whole days, ending on Sunday morning, the 10th inst. The prisoners were Nicholas Shelhaboff, Sophie Perofskaya, the mining engineer Kibaltchik, Hessy Helfmann, a Jewess, and Gabriel Michaeloff and young Ressakoff; the two last-named having actually carried the explosive shells to kill the Emperor. Shelhaboff, Kibaltchik, and the young woman Perofskaya, had made full statements of the plot, in which they bore the contriving and managing part. The substance of these narratives and explanations of the leading conspirators was given in our journal on the 9th inst.

The Judges, having deliberated several hours upon their verdict, during the night of Saturday, the 9th inst., pronounced all six prisoners guilty; and sentence of death was then passed on all of them, which was formally announced in court on the Monday afternoon. The young woman Helfmann, being with child, her execution has been deferred. The other five prisoners were hanged last Friday morning, in the open space called the Semenofsky Plain, near the Tsarskoe Selo railway station.

Some characteristic details are given as to the manner in which the condemned prisoners passed their last day. Ressakoff asked for three wax tapers, such as are carried in church, a copy of the New Testament, and one of the small consecrated loaves that are made and sold by the monks. When not praying he smoked cigarettes, and in the course of the day offered his services to the Government as a spy. Of course he met with a refusal, for he belonged only to an outside circle, and could be of little use. Shelhaboff spent his time in writing page after page about the trial, committing to paper what he was not allowed to utter in his speech. Perofskaya wrote to her mother to waste no time or trouble in assuaging the wrath of her father, for what she had done he would never forgive. He is a high government official. Kibaltchik, the maker of the bombs, devoted his last hours to drawing up a memoir on the subject of his specific discoveries, addressed to the High Court of Justice. In this document he avowed his desire that his name should be immortalised, and he made a gift of his inventions to the State, on condition that all profit should go to the relief of the children of political criminals.

At half-past eight on Friday morning, the five prisoners to be hanged that day were escorted from the fortress by Cossacks and infantry, with drums and fifes. Detachments of all the regiments of the Guard stationed at St. Petersburg surrounded the scaffold. The mounted gendarmerie kept back the gathering crowd, which soon swelled to nearly fifteen thousand.

Soon after eight, General Barnoff drove up, and behind him came the executioner, a reprieved convict, whose four assistants, also convicts, were already waiting under the scaffold. He brought with him the cords, and at once proceeded to reef them through five iron rings on the cross beam of the gibbet.

At twenty minutes to nine o'clock arrived the prisoners in two carts, having upright posts, to which their arms were pinioned, Shelhaboff and Kibaltchik were seated in one cart; Perofskaya, between Ressakoff and Michaeloff, in the second; all riding with their backs towards the horses, dressed in black garments and flat caps, with a black board on their breast, bearing the inscription in white letters, "Assassin of the Czar." All were pale but Perofskaya, who had a slight flush on the cheeks, and was apparently the most resolute of them.

The roll of the drums never ceased during the procession from the prison; nor until all was over, except for a brief space whilst the Secretary of the Court read the sentence to the prisoners.

The five priests in attendance held a crucifix to each of the condemned, who, without exception, reverently kissed the symbol of Christianity. Their leader, Shelhaboff, spoke in an earnest and satisfied manner. Perofskaya, who was standing in the central place, then turned round, kissed Shelhaboff and Michaeloff, and also Kibaltchik, all of whom embraced each other. Ressakoff at the last moment asked the executioner if he would not be reprieved.

The executioner stepped forward and claimed his victims. Singling out Kibaltchik, he drew over his head a Capuchin hood, and, leading him under the gallows, adjusted the rope round his neck and assisted him to mount the one stool which was to serve for all. The latter was then pushed from under him, and the sentence of the law was soon carried into effect upon the first of the assassins.

Meantime, similar hoods had in like manner been drawn over the heads of the other four, who, with the exception of Ressakoff, preserved their dauntless demeanour to the last. They were hanged in turn, in the order in which they stood—Michaeloff, Perofskaya, Shelhaboff, and Ressakoff. The others died quietly, Ressakoff apparently fainting at the last moment. In one case, that of Michaeloff, the rope broke twice before the culprit was hung.

After hanging twenty minutes, the bodies were cut down, and, death being certified by the doctor, the bodies were placed in shells painted black, and driven away to a cemetery outside the city for interment.

---

On the afternoon of Easter Monday the National Union of Elementary Teachers began their twelfth annual conference in Hawkestone Hall. The proceedings were continued on the three following days. The conference dinner and soirée took place at the Bridge House Hotel on Tuesday. An extensive list of proposed resolutions referring to changes of rules and other important matters was printed and placed in the hands of members by way of agenda paper. Coming as they do from all parts of England, these draught resolutions afford an interesting view of the currents of opinion among those who are actively engaged in the work of instruction.

Several original manuscripts of Burns were sold last Saturday by auction in Messrs. Chapman and Sons' Rooms, Edinburgh. The first lot, consisting of "Holy Willie's Prayer," three pages foolscap, was sold for 30 gs.; the second lot, which included "A Scot's Love Song," "Yestreen I had a pint of wine," six verses, quarto, and "A new song from an old story;" "The night it was a holy night," two double verses, brought 14½ gs. A poem, one page and a half foolscap, "There was an auld man and he had a bad wife," was knocked down for 15 guineas. An unpublished poetical epistle, one page and a half foolscap, addressed to "W. Willm. Stewart, Closeburn Castle," "In honest Bacon's ingle neuk," six verses, was sold for 38 gs. An address, three pages foolscap, "To the Right Hon. W. P., Esq., &c.," "The distillers of Scotland," in Burns's holograph, went for 37 gs. An unpublished letter, one page quarto, addressed to "W. William Stewart, Closeburn Castle," was sold for 37 gs. A letter by Burns dated "Glencairn," and having reference to a lent copy of "Smellie's Philosophy," went for 10 gs. The manuscripts were the property of a gentleman in Ireland. At the same sale a letter of Sir Walter Scott's was sold for £2 15s.

PARISIAN SAYINGS AND DOINGS.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Paris, Tuesday, April 19.

The Easter fêtes, accompanied by the usual efflorescence of Easter eggs and gingerbread, both in its hygienic and ornamental forms, have been favoured with brilliantly fine weather up to to-day. The Parisians have emigrated in large numbers to the country, and the provincials have taken advantage of excursion-trains to visit the capital, and to eat an incredible number of pots-feu repasts in the Palais Royal. The Senate and the Chamber having adjourned until May 12, politics are at a stand-still. No new phase is to be noticed in the affairs of Tunis. According to the information received here, the Bey, maintains a hostile attitude towards France, and the Arabs are prepared for a holy war against the Christians. The journalistic campaign against the Minister of War continues, although with diminished vigour. On the other hand, the Minister is still preparing to take the necessary measures for punishing the Kroumirs.

The gingerbread fair has furnished the Parisians with an unexpected opportunity of exercising their patriotic ardour against the Tunisian marauders. The traditional Turk's head, which receives the blows of amateur Hercules desirous of testing their percussive power, has been replaced universally by a hideous black tête de Kroumir. This change, as ingenious as it is patriotic, has largely increased the business of the showmen, who have not speculated in vain on the Parisians' love of actualités, or things of the moment. Besides these wooden effigies, there are several live Kroumirs exhibited. In one of these Kroumirs I recognised a worthy African negro who used to be in the service of Dumas the elder!

In spite of colossal "puffing," to which the French journals and (unconsciously) some London contemporaries lend themselves so readily, the past theatrical season has been disastrous, and the end more disastrous even than the beginning. Dumas with the "Princesse de Bagdad," and Gounod with the "Tribut de Zamora," have obtained barely half-successes; at the Vaudeville, the Porte Saint-Martin, the Gymnase, and the Renaissance, the new pieces have all been modified failures. The Gymnase has been particularly unfortunate. "Monte Carlo," a new piece by MM. Belot and Nus, produced last Saturday, will barely run a fortnight even with the aid of plenty of "paper." At the Odéon M. François Coppée, an amiable poet, much admired and "protected" by the ladies, produced last Tuesday a drama in five acts, and a prologue in verse, called "Madame de Maintenon." M. Coppée writes excellent verse, but he has not been gifted with the sentiment of the stage. "Madame de Maintenon" is pronounced even by the ladies to be inexpressibly dull. "Nana" will reach its hundredth night at the Ambigu next Monday, and the theatre will close shortly afterwards. In fact, the theatrical season is already practically at an end.

The question of the Vengeur has again come to the front à propos of a proposal to raise a monument at Auch to Admiral Villaret-Joyeuse, because he commanded the Vengeur. The great-great-grandson of the Admiral writes to the papers to say that Admiral Villaret-Joyeuse commanded the fleet, and not the Vengeur itself. The commanders of the Vengeur were Renaudin, first captain, and Le Hir, second captain, killed at his post. It was Renaudin who had the French flag tied to the mast as the Vengeur was sinking. In the letter to which I refer the writer says:—"The English received Renaudin captive, strewing flowers on his path, and the rich families of Portsmouth sent him a new suit of clothes every day in order to preserve a souvenir of him." Do any of these quaint souvenirs still exist?

It is the custom of the freethinkers of Paris to defy public opinion by organising popular banquets on Good Friday. Fifteen hundred adherents met on Friday last in the different quarters of Paris. The most important banquet took place in the Avenue Saint-Maude, where four hundred men, women, and children sat down to a dinner of veal, mutton, and sausages, listened to speeches and poems directed against the priests, and finally broke up amidst confusion and fisticuffs.

M. Baze, life senator, honorary gueteur of the Senate, died on Friday last, at the age of eighty-one. Thanks to his conduct during the coup d'état, M. Baze has been immortalised in Victor Hugo's "Histoire d'un Crime."

Fires have been ominously frequent in Paris during past few weeks. Almost every day the firemen have been called out to struggle with insufficient means against the flames. On Friday last a fire broke out at the "Tapis Rouge," a large drapery and furnishing establishment similar to the "Printemps," which was burnt down recently. Luckily, some new fire-plugs had recently been placed in the quarter, and the fire was mastered after three hours' efforts. The damage is estimated at 350,000f. No lives were lost.

The sale of Mdlle. Schneider's diamonds, objects of art, and tapestries has produced a total of 424,127f. Had it not been for the European reputation of this actress I should not have mentioned her sale, for the simple reason that such enterprises are often organised with the connivance of jewellers, who speculate on the curiosity of Parisiennes. Amongst the important sales to come off shortly is that of a Renaissance Château, the Château de Montal, which has been demolished, packed up stone by stone, and sent by rail to Paris, where it will be sold by auction on April 30. And on May 30. It comprises a unique collection of eighteenth-century furniture, including a quantity of objects which belonged to Marie-Antoinette. The picture sales announced for May are innumerable.

Under the presidency of M. Barthélemy Saint-Hilaire, the proceedings of the Money Conference were resumed this day in the Salon des Fêtes, at the Foreign Office.

T. C.

---

It cannot be denied that the experiment in electric lighting, inaugurated by the Commissioners of Sewers, is so far as the light is concerned, a complete success; but it remains to be seen which system will prove in the end the best from a commercial point of view and most acceptable to the ratepayers. — A paper "On the Application of Electricity to Lighting and Heating for Domestic Purposes" was read on the 14th inst. before the Society of Telegraph Engineers and Electricians, at 25, Great George-street, Westminster, by Mr. St. George Lane Fox. Professor Forster, president of the society, occupied the chair, and there was a large attendance of members. The author of the paper said he regarded it as certain that before long electricity would be applied to many and various domestic purposes, especially those of lighting and heating. He contended that electric lamps could be worked in indefinitely large numbers from central stations with a proportionate cost of working, and this referred equally to any other applications of electricity. He described his lamp (by means of which the room was lighted), showing that the light resulted from the incandescence of continuous refractory conductors of high electrical resistance, mounted in vacuum.

THE COURT.

The twenty-fourth anniversary of Princess Beatrice's birthday was on Maundy Thursday.

Princess Louise of Lorne arrived at Osborne the previous day, she having been met at Portsmouth by Prince Leopold, who accompanied her across the Solent in her Majesty's yacht Alberta.

The Duke of Edinburgh, who was living on board her Majesty's ship Lively, in Cowes Roads, where and in the neighbourhood his Royal Highness had been engaged in inspecting the Naval Reserve, visited the Queen and the Royal family; and Lieutenant-General Sir Dighton Probyn dined with her Majesty.

The Queen's dinner party in honour of Princess Beatrice's birthday included Princess Louise, Princess Beatrice, the Duke of Edinburgh, Prince Leopold, Lady Waterpark, the Hon. Horatia Stopford, Lady Cowell, Lord Charles Fitzroy, Mr. Sahl, and the Master of the Household. The Ladies and Gentlemen of the Household joined the Royal circle in the drawing-room afterwards, when Mr. D'Albert performed a selection of music on the pianoforte before her Majesty. Lieutenant Le Strange, commanding her Majesty's ship Lively, and Mr. Henry Rickard, of her Majesty's ship Penelope, were presented to the Queen in the evening by the Duke of Edinburgh.

On Good Friday Divine service was performed at Osborne by the Rev. George Connor, Vicar of Bridport, in the presence of her Majesty, Princess Beatrice, the Duke of Edinburgh, and Prince Leopold.

Prince Leopold left Osborne the next day on a visit to the Prince and Princess of Wales at Sandringham. The Queen, Princess Louise, and Princess Beatrice drove through West Cowes and Newport in the afternoon. The Royal dinner circle included Princess Louise, Princess Beatrice, the Duke of Edinburgh, the Duke and Duchess of Bedford, Lady Waterpark, the Dowager Marchioness of Ely, Lord Charles Fitzroy, Captain Edwards, and Lieutenant Le Strange, commanding her Majesty's ship Lively.

On Easter Day her Majesty, Princess Louise, Princess Beatrice, and the Duke of Edinburgh attended Divine service at Whippingham church. The Rev. Canon Prothero, assisted by the Rev. George Connor, officiated, and administered the sacrament of the holy communion.

The Queen received with profound sorrow the sad intelligence of the death of the Earl of Beaconsfield, in whom her Majesty has lost a most valued friend and counsellor and the nation one of its most distinguished statesmen.

The usual daily out-of-door excursion has been enjoyed by the Queen and the Royal family.

Her Majesty has lately directed letters to be written in her name to the relatives of many of the officers who have lost their lives in action in the Transvaal, expressing her deepest sympathy for them in the sad losses they have sustained.

The Duchess Dowager of Athole has succeeded Lady Waterpark as Lady in Waiting. The Hon. Horatia Stopford has left Osborne. Admiral Lord Frederick Kerr has arrived as Groom in Waiting.

The Queen will hold Drawingrooms at Buckingham Palace on May 5 and 5 next; and the Prince of Wales will hold a Levée at St. James's Palace, on behalf of her Majesty, on May 23 next.

The Royal Maundy charities were distributed, as usual, on Maundy Thursday at Whitehall Chapel, the recipients numbering the same as the years of the Queen's age, sixty-two. The Minor and Discretionary Bounties and the Royal Gate Alms were also, as customary, distributed at the Royal Almonry, in Scotland-yard, at Eastertide, to upwards of 1300 poor persons of parishes in and around the metropolis.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Duchess of Teck and Prince and Princess Christian visited the Prince and Princess of Wales previous to their departure from Marlborough House for Sandringham, where their Royal Highnesses and their daughters have passed the Easter holidays. Divine service was performed on Good Friday at St. Mary Magdalene's Church in the park by the Rev. F. Hervey, Rector of Sandringham, their Royal Highnesses and Princesses Louise, Victoria, and Maud being present. Prince Leopold arrived on Saturday; and Earl and Countess Spencer, Sir William Vernon Harcourt, M.P., and Lady Harcourt, and Mr. J. Mundella, M.P., also arrived on a visit. The Prince and Princess, with their daughters, and Prince Leopold and their other guests, attended Divine service on Easter Day at Sandringham church, the Rector officiating. On Monday their Royal Highnesses, accompanied by Prince Leopold and a large party of guests, went to Norwich, and opened the National Fisheries Exhibition. Their Royal Highnesses travelled by special train to Thorpe station, where they were received by the Mayor and Sheriff and other civic authorities, a guard of honour of the Norfolk Artillery Volunteers, under Captain Coleman, being in attendance. The Royal cortége was preceded to the city by an escort of the 3rd (King's Own) Hussars, the route being by Prince of Wales's-road, London-street, and St. Giles's, to the Drill-Hall, where the Royal party was received by the president of the exhibition, Mr. E. Birbeck, M.P., who, after the Prince and Princess and Prince Leopold had been conducted to a dais in the hall, read an address, to which the Prince replied, and then declared the exhibition open; after which their Royal Highnesses made an inspection of the exhibits, some of which had been lent by the Duke of Edinburgh. The Prince and Princess with their party and some 310 guests were afterwards entertained at luncheon by the Mayor (Mr. Grimmer) at St. Andrew's Hall. The Prince, in a graceful speech, proposed "Success to the National Fisheries Exhibition;" and Prince Leopold proposed the Mayor of Norwich. The Royal party left shortly after four on their return to Sandringham. Norwich was en fête, and many thousands of spectators greeted their Royal Highnesses on their route through the city, order being well preserved by the local police and the Volunteers.

The Prince will inspect the Norfolk Artillery Militia, of which his Royal Highness is Colonel, at Great Yarmouth next June, when the Duke of Cambridge is expected to be present.

The Prince has given Mr. H. J. Brooks sittings for his portrait for his picture of the Benchers of the Middle Temple.

Pr...

In consequence of her Majesty holding a Drawingroom on May 3, the laying of the foundation-stone of the City and London Technical College, Finsbury, by Prince Leopold has been postponed until May 10.

The Duke of Schleswig-Holstein has left Windsor for the Continent.

Prince Christian and the Princess and her children remain at Cumberland Lodge.

The Duchess of Teck presented certificates to the Kensington classes of the St. John Ambulance Association at the Town-hall on Wednesday.

The marriage of Mr. W. Fuller Maitland, M.P. for Brecknock, and the Hon. Evelyn Gardner to J. F. Egerton, brother of the Earl of Ellesmere, with Miss Gore,

THE PLAYHOUSES.

On Easter Eve, being Saturday, the Sixteenth instant, the Lyceum was crowded to excess in view of an entertainment altogether remarkable, and to a great extent exceptional, in the fact that the tragedy King and Queen of "The Cup" were, after performing in that dolorous drama, to enact the hero and heroine in Mrs. Cowley's Comedy of "The Belle's Stratagem." I have seen Macready in Doricourt; but I do not remember that he preceded the assumption of a wholly artificial character by playing Hamlet or Macbeth. This, however, is an age when, if artists be gifted with the faculty of versatility, they must be versatile up to "agony point." If Roscius can dance on the tight-rope, or direct the antics of a troop of dancing dogs, or imitate the noises of the domestic animals, dance, or direct, or imitate he must. There are no allowances made; and no repose is granted to him. The public insist upon having "the whole box of tricks." They desire not only to be amused but to be excited, and they rather like to be horrified: thus I look forward with calm confidence to the culmination of dramatic sensationalism when it is announced that at the close of the performance the Great Mr. So-and-So will run himself through the body with an Andrea Ferrara, formerly in the Stowe Collection, or blow himself up with fulminating picrate of potash.

"The Cup" is such a very noble production, the scenery and appointments are so magnificent, the acting of Mr. Henry Irving is so highly artistic, and that of Miss Ellen Terry so incomparably graceful, intelligent, and poetic, that it jarred somewhat on the feelings to find these accomplished adepts in the most ennobling branch of their craft playing the tom-fool (and capital fooling it was) half an hour afterwards in the farrago of absurdities called the "Belle's Stratagem"—at least, in as much of it as the scissors of the modern adapter to the stage have left of an old but certainly not a fine comedy. In its integrity Mrs. Cowley's play would be, but for its irresistibly laughable situations, a very wearisome production. As it is, divested of many scenes and cut down from five to three acts, carved, slashed, snipped, and transposed so as to give a maximum of Mr. Irving and Miss Terry and a minimum of anybody else, the piece retains its laughable elements, and, save in the masquerade scene, which drags a little, is never dull. The only disadvantages which have resulted from an un-paring course of excision and compression consist in the presence in the various scenes of a number of excellent people who have nothing whatever to do with the action of the piece, and whose attributes are as mysterious as those of the "Gentleman at Large" attached to the household of the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. Sir George and Lady Touchwood, Saville, Villiers, and Courtall might all be very conveniently dispensed with. They are all very ornamental in the fine new clothes in which the taste and liberality of Mr. Irving here arrayed them; but they are certainly not useful.

It was in Doricourt that Mr. Henry Irving first won his laurels as an actor of high comedy in London; and his performance, albeit a little mellowed by time, is still in the highest degree easy, polished, and refined. Doricourt is not by any means a trivolous fop, aping the Continental manners which he has picked up on the Grand Tour. He is a gentleman of education and culture, who has been fascinated by the grace, the elegance, and the suavity of society in France and Italy, and contemptuously contrasts the lourishness, boorishness, and dull profligacy of English manners with the pleasant and vivacious ways of the foreigners among whom he has travelled. Mrs. Cowley's play was written at about the time when the Hon. Charles James Fox, returning from the Grand Tour, was exciting the wonder and amusement of the town by his French coats and wigs and handkerchiefs, and when Mrs. Piozzi and the Della Cruscano, coming home from Florence, were furnishing Gifford with food for spiteful satire, afterwards to be worked in the "Baviad" and "Mæviad." Doricourt was perhaps a beau of the Charles Fox type. At all events, Mr. Irving did well in representing him as a man of sense and wit, just slightly tinged with a passing Gallomania. In the outrageously farcical mad scene with Flutter he was exceedingly droll, and tore a passion to tatters in admirable mock heroics. More wildly grotesque gestures than those in which he indulged have rarely been seen on the stage. Miss Ellen Terry as Letitia Hardy was, from first to last, enchantingly vivacious, espiègle, and sympathetic. Mrs. Cowley's heroine is, to begin with, a thoroughly loveable girl. She herself is as passionately in love with Doricourt as Sophy Western was with Tom Jones; but her sweetheart is much more deserving of her affection than Fielding's profligate scapegrace was of the devotion of the most charming girl in English fiction. Miss Terry's delightfully arch and sprightly impersonation was not, it was pleasant to mark, devoid of a vein of genuine pathos. She is too finished an artist to paint a picture in what Queen Elizabeth, in her instructions to her portrait-painter, called "a fair garden light" without any shadow; and a dozen times you could see that poor little Letitia Hardy was fit to cry her eyes out at the thought that she might be unsuccessful in bringing Doricourt to love her, with his whole heart. Old Hardy was sensibly and humorously played by the excellent Mr. Howe; and the clamour of enthusiastic welcome with which this dramatic veteran was greeted on his entrance on to the stage must have convinced him very satisfactorily that he by no means lags superfluous thereupon. Mr. W. Terriss was very good as Flutter; and Miss Sophie Young, as Mrs. Racket, kept the ball of comedy-farce rolling with unflagging animal spirits. The dresses were throughout splendid, and the general appointments superb; but the fun in the masquerade scene was forced, and the minuet was, although gracefully danced, much too long. A long and prosperous career may be anticipated for the Lyceum version of "The Belle's Stratagem."

At the New Sadler's Wells, Miss Bateman (Mrs. Crowe) has found in the character of Margaret Field, in a new and highly melodramatic play called "His Wife," a part which exactly suits her many and striking capabilities—passionate entreaty and vehement denunciation of wrong foremost among them—and which enables her to develop both young, thrilling effect the story of a deeply injured woman. The play has been adapted, by Mr. H. A. Jones, from a novel called "A Prodigal Daughter." It is in five acts, and might advantageously be in four; and it labours under the drawback of a superabundance of irreclaimable villains. Of these there are no less than four: whereas two scoundrels would have amply sufficed for the persecution of Mrs. Crowe, and her ultimate deliverance, through the agency of a chivalrous gaol chaplain and two experienced constables of the metropolitan police. Villain number one is Colonel Forrester (Mr. E. H. Brooke), a military miscreant who has seen distinguished service in South Africa. He has contracted, under the assumed name of Captain Field, a Scotch marriage with poor Margaret, and after a time deserts her and her baby boy. Then he woos and is accepted by Miss Nellie Christy (Miss Kate Pattison), an heiress, and the daughter of Sir Wemyss Christy (Mr. Edmund Lyons), a wrong-headed and slightly idiotic baronet. On the eve of the wedding Margaret makes her appearance and confronts her faithless husband, who with cool impudence repudiates all knowledge of her. The poor lady is subsequently charged with attempted murder and with lunacy, and is locked up in gaol and afterwards in a private madhouse through the machinations of the villainous Colonel, aided by villain number two, Edward Jasper (Mr. E. F. Edgar), the Colonel's man-servant; villain number three, Nat Riddell (Mr. Redwood), a private detective, late of Scotland-yard; and villain number four, Harry Redwood (Mr. R. Lyons), a ticket-of-leave-man, who passes as Captain Field, and pretends to have been the bridegroom in the Scotch marriage. The unhappy Margaret is on the brink of being spirited across the British Channel and conveyed to a lonely French château, where she is to be murdered by villain number two, acting under instructions from villain number one, when, in the nick of time, villain number three, the private detective, is mortally wounded in a railway accident, and makes before he dies an ample confession, exonerating Margaret and inculpating his villainous accomplices. The sham Captain Field is arrested and handcuffed at the end of the fourth act; and in the course of the fifth Colonel Forrester blows his brains out—an act of reparation which, with greater propriety, he might have performed before the rising of the curtain. He is forgiven, previous to his retiring to commit suicide, by his much-injured wife, who, it is to be hoped, eventually marries the chivalrous gaol chaplain, the Rev. Michael Christy (Mr. J. D. Beveridge), who has stood her friend all along. But everybody must most deeply sympathise with poor Miss Kate Pattison, who played Nellie Christy with admirable tact and ease, and who is left in the handsomest of bridal costumes—all white satin, Brussels lace, and orange-flowers—with nothing but a slovenly, unhandsome corpse as a bridegroom. Perhaps poor Nellie will console herself with the hand of Dickey Bool (Mr. William Younge), a former sweetheart, whom she has jilted shamefully; but the trouble is that Dickey Bool is an unmitigated simpleton: and Miss Kate Pattison—I mean Nellie Christy—is far too clever to be wedded to a dolt. All the characters are carefully and efficiently played; and in particular Mrs. John Carter made a distinct mark by the almost terrifying realism of her rendering of Mrs. Puckram, a female attendant in the private madhouse, who bullies the unfortunate Margaret shockingly, and threatens to give her "a good hiding" if she does not declare her to be, in the presence of the medical gentlemen and the Commissioners of Lunacy, the kindest and most considerate of attendants. A clever bit of character-acting is also that of Miss Laura Lindon as Barby Haggit, a prisoner-servant to the matron of Tolminster Gaol, who has a weakness for the military, and gets into trouble thereby. "His Wife," as a whole, is very crudely constructed; and the scenes in the gaol—the chaplain's room in which appears to be a kind of house of call for all the idlers of Tolminster—are wildly improbable; but the strong dramatic interest of the story and the magnificently sustained earnestness, power, and pathos of Miss Bateman's acting carry the drama through, triumphantly.

G. A. S.

BENEVOLENT OBJECTS.

An evening concert was given at the Crystal Palace on Wednesday, at which eminent artists appeared, in aid of the funds for a Cottage Hospital for Upper Norwood.

A concert in aid of the funds of Nazareth House, Hammersmith, "which affords a home to 400 aged poor and crippled children," is announced to be held at the Allen-street Schools, Kensington, on Friday evening.

In the amateur performance at Mrs. Freake's, May 9, on behalf of the new out-patient wing of the Victoria Hospital for Children, instead of the second act of "Les Beaux Arts," Madame la Baronne de Ville and Mr. Coghlan have consented to appear in "Il faut qu'une Porte soit Ouverte ou Fermée," by Alfred de Musset.

Lord Cadogan has been elected to the presidency of the Chelsea Hospital for Women, which office had become vacant by the death of the Earl of St. Germans.——A fancy fair and musical fête will be held on June 8, 9, and 10, in ye arena of ye Royal Albert Hall, which will be transformed into an old English market-place. Ye entire proceeds will be devoted to ye fund for completing ye building for ye Chelsea Hospital for Women.

Sir Stafford Northcote spoke at Exeter on Thursday week in support of the Devonshire industrial Reformatory Establishment. He reviewed the great good done in England by the creation of institutions of this kind, and said they had been the means of breaking up schools that existed some years since for training youths to become criminals, and had substituted a system by which the homeless and neglected were incited to turn their energies to honest calling, instead of living by depredations and fraud upon the community.

At a meeting of the Court of Common Council last week the sum of 500 guineas was voted towards the Mansion House fund for the relief of the sufferers by the recent earthquake at Chios. Mr. Matteo Schilizzi, of Naples, has subscribed £1000 to the Lord Mayor's fund for the relief of the sufferers by the earthquake at Chios, "in the name and memory of John and Luca, his beloved brothers." A town's meeting was held on the 13th in Liverpool, under the presidency of the Mayor, to establish a fund for the relief of the sufferers by the terrible earthquake at Chios. There was a large attendance, and upwards of £2000 was subscribed.

ROYAL INSTITUTION.—AFTER EASTER ARRANGEMENTS.

Professor Dewar will on Tuesday next begin a course of six lectures on the Non-Metallic Elements; Professor Tyndall will on Thursday next begin a course of six lectures on Paramagnetism and Diamagnetism; and Professor Henry Morley will on Saturday next begin a course of three lectures on Scotland's Part in English Literature, to be followed by a lecture on Thomas Carlyle. On Saturday, May 21, Professor E. C. Turner, of the University of St. Petersburg, will begin a course of five lectures on the Great Modern Writers of Russia. The following are the probable Friday evening arrangements:—April 29, Professor J. Stuart Blackie, the Language and Literature of the Scottish Highlands; May 6, the Hon. George C. Brodrick, the Land Systems of England and of Ireland; May 13, Francis Galton, Esq., Mental Images and Vision; May 20, Walter H. Pollock, Esq., Shakspeare Criticism; May 27, Professor H. E. Roscoe, the Artificial Production of Indigo; June 3, Professor W. G. Adams, Magnetic Disturbance, Auroræ, and Earth Currents; June 10, Professor Dewar, Origin and Identity of Spectra.

Professor Helmholtz, the eminent German scientist, and the inventor of the ophthalmoscope, had the degree of LL.D., honoris causâ, conferred upon him on the 13th inst. in Trinity College, Dublin. He was also presented with the Honorary Fellowship of the Royal College of Surgeons.——At a meeting of the Royal Society of Edinburgh on Monday Professor Helmholtz read a paper on "Electrolytic Conduction." The Professor was warmly received.

MUSIC.

ROYAL ITALIAN OPERA.

We have already given a summary of the arrangements made by Mr. Gye for the new season of this establishment, which began on Tuesday. The opera chosen for the opening night was Verdi's "Aida," and the occasion included the appearances of two of the new singers promised in Mr. Gye's prospectus. In the title-character, Mdlle. De Reszké achieved a decided and genuine success. The lady possesses a powerful soprano voice, with an extensive upper range; and excels alike in declamatory passages and in those of tender emotion. She was much applauded after her effective delivery of the scena in the first act, and improved on the impression then made by her singing in the duet with Amneris in the second act, in Aida's Romanza "O cieli azzurri" and the duet with Amonasro, and that with Radamès in the third act; this last having been a special display of dramatic power on the part of Mdlle. De Reszké that was warmly recognised by the audience. In the final duet with her lover Radamès, in their living entombment, Mdlle. De Reszké sang with genuine pathos, and confirmed a success that promises a prosperous career for her.

The new tenor, M. Vergnet, who appeared as Radamès, has a voice of somewhat robust quality. He phrases well, and sings with good dramatic impulse in passages of a declamatory nature. He was applauded after his delivery of the Romanza "Celeste Aida," and sang with still more effect in the following duet with Amneris, and even better in that with Aida near the end of the third act, this last having been, on the part of each of the new-comers, an excellent display of dramatic vocalisation. Madame Scalchi, as on previous occasions, sang admirably in the character of Amneris, the music of which, especially in the duet with Aida in the first act and that with Radamès in the last act, was given with fine expression and impulse.

Signor Cotogni gave good effect to the music and the character of Amonasro; Signori Scolara and Silvestre were efficient representatives respectively of the King and Ramfis; and subordinate parts were filled by Madame Corsi and Signor Manfredi.

The orchestra (again headed by Mr. Carrodus as principal violin) was as excellent as heretofore; the chorusing was generally satisfactory, and the opera displayed the same stage splendour as in previous representations. Signor Bevignani conducted the performance, which was preceded by the National Anthem.

"Aida" was announced for repetition on Thursday and this (Saturday) evening. Madame Sembrich is to make her first appearance this season as the heroine in "Lucia di Lammermoor;" Signor Sante Athos making his début as Enrico.

The twenty-fifth season of Saturday afternoon concerts at the Crystal Palace is nearly concluded, this week's performance and the supplemental concert for the benefit of Mr. Manns on the following Saturday closing the series. The programme of last week introduced—for the first time here—the twelfth and last of the series of "Symphonische Dichtung ("Symphonic Poems") by Franz Liszt. Of the characteristics of these ambitious pieces of "programme music" we have more than once spoken in reference to other numbers. That given on Saturday is in illustration of Schiller's poem "Die Ideale;" and, like its predecessors, is very fragmentary in structure, containing incidental passages of power, and some few of pleasing melody, but much more that is laboured and crude—the chief effect being derived from the rich and varied orchestral colouring, which, in emulation of Berlioz's scores, Liszt knows so well how to employ. Herr Waldemar Meyer, of Berlin—a pupil of Herr Joachim—made a very successful début at Saturday's concert in a dry violin concerto by Monsieur Rüfer; an "Adagio" by Spohr, and a "Polonoise" by Laub. Of the violinist we shall doubtless soon have occasion again to speak. His reception was highly favourable. Beethoven's Pastoral symphony, and vocal pieces rendered by Madame Lemmens-Sherrington, completed the programme.

The performance of "The Messiah," by the Royal Albert Hall Choral Society, on Good Friday, was a fine one in most of its details. The choruses (as usual at these concerts) were very impressively sung, the movement "For unto us a child is born" having been encored. The soprano and contralto solos were rendered with special effect, respectively, by Miss Anna Williams and Madame Patey; Mr. Hollins having suddenly replaced Mr. Maas with much efficiency in the tenor music—that for the bass having been effectively sung by Mr. Thurley Beale. The first of the eight concerts including Mr. Sims Reeves's last appearances in oratorio, takes place next Wednesday evening, when the solos in Handel's "Judas Maccabæus" will be rendered by him, Mesdames Christine Nilsson and Trebelli, and Mr. Santley.

The Brixton Choral Society—conducted by Mr. W. Lemare—announced its final subscription concert of the season for Monday evening last, with a performance of Handel's "Samson."

That estimable pianist Madame Frickenhaus gave the first of three concerts of chamber music at the Royal Academy of music this week; her programme having included Mr. F. H. Cowen's clever Pianoforte Trio, Chopin's Sonata for Pianoforte and Violoncello, Weber's Sonata in A flat for piano alone, a Violin solo by Mr. Carrodus, and vocal pieces by Miss Damian.

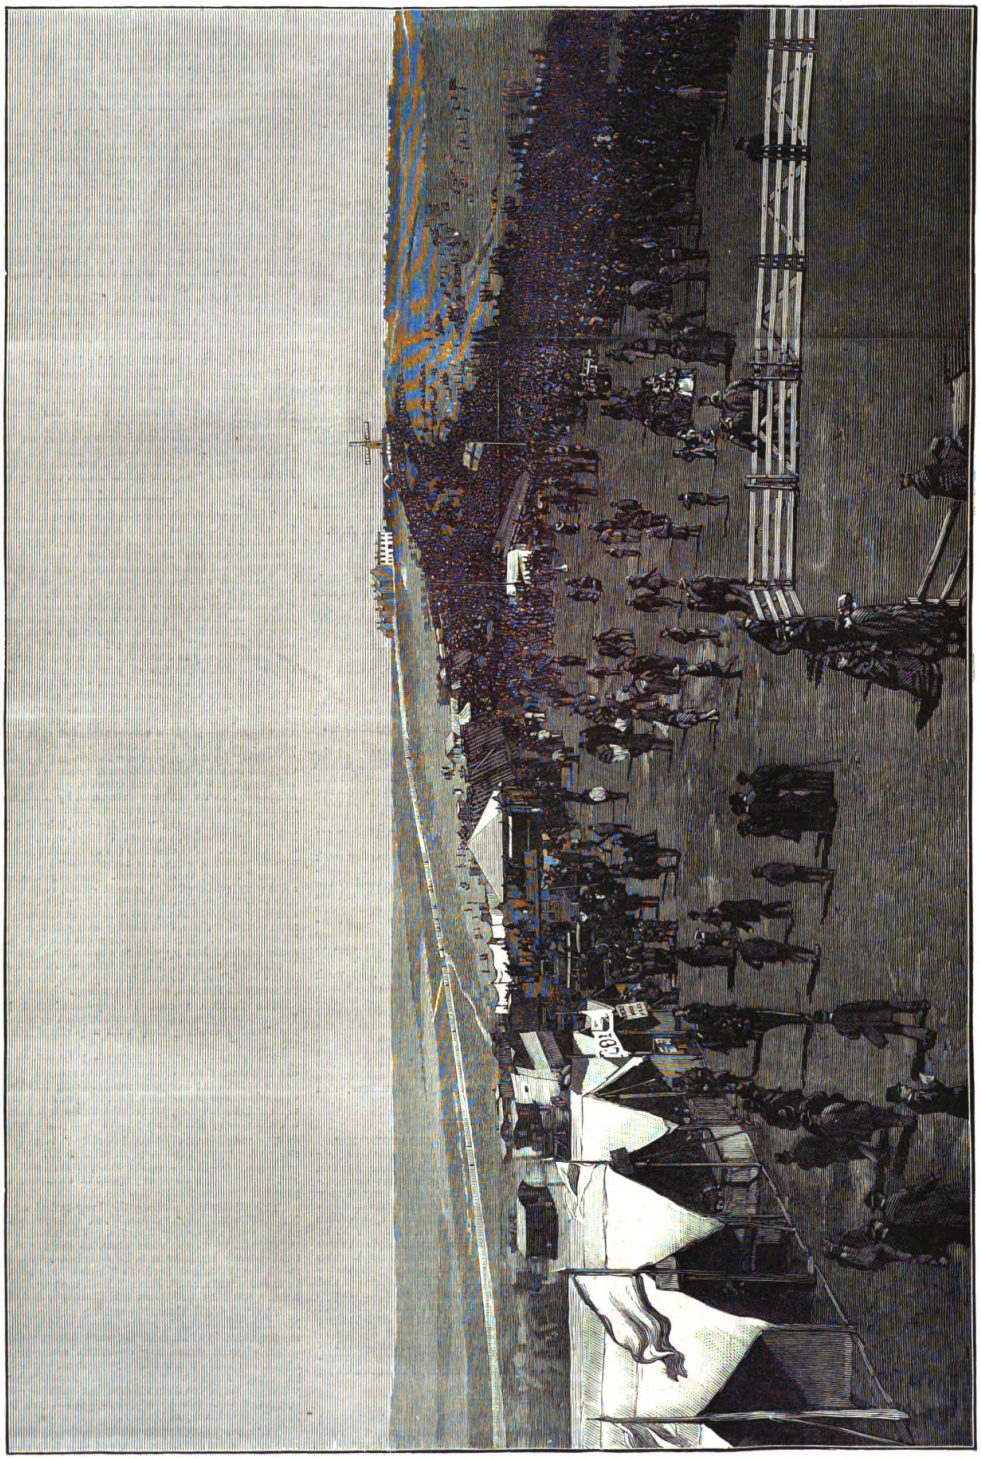
The "Guildhall Orchestral Society" is to give a concert this (Saturday) afternoon in the Guildhall. Of the excellent performances of this amateur band, trained and conducted by Mr. Weist Hill, we recently spoke in reference to a concert given at the Mansion House.

This (Saturday) evening the long-talked of new work by Mr. Arthur Sullivan and Mr. W. S. Gilbert is to be produced at the Opéra Comique Theatre. The title of the piece is "Patience." At the same time, at the Royal Albert Hall, Shakspeare's birthday is to be celebrated by a concert; and another repetition of Berlioz's "Faust" music is to be given, in the afternoon, at St. James's Hall, the principal solo singers being again Miss M. Davies, Mr. E. Lloyd, and Mr. Santley.

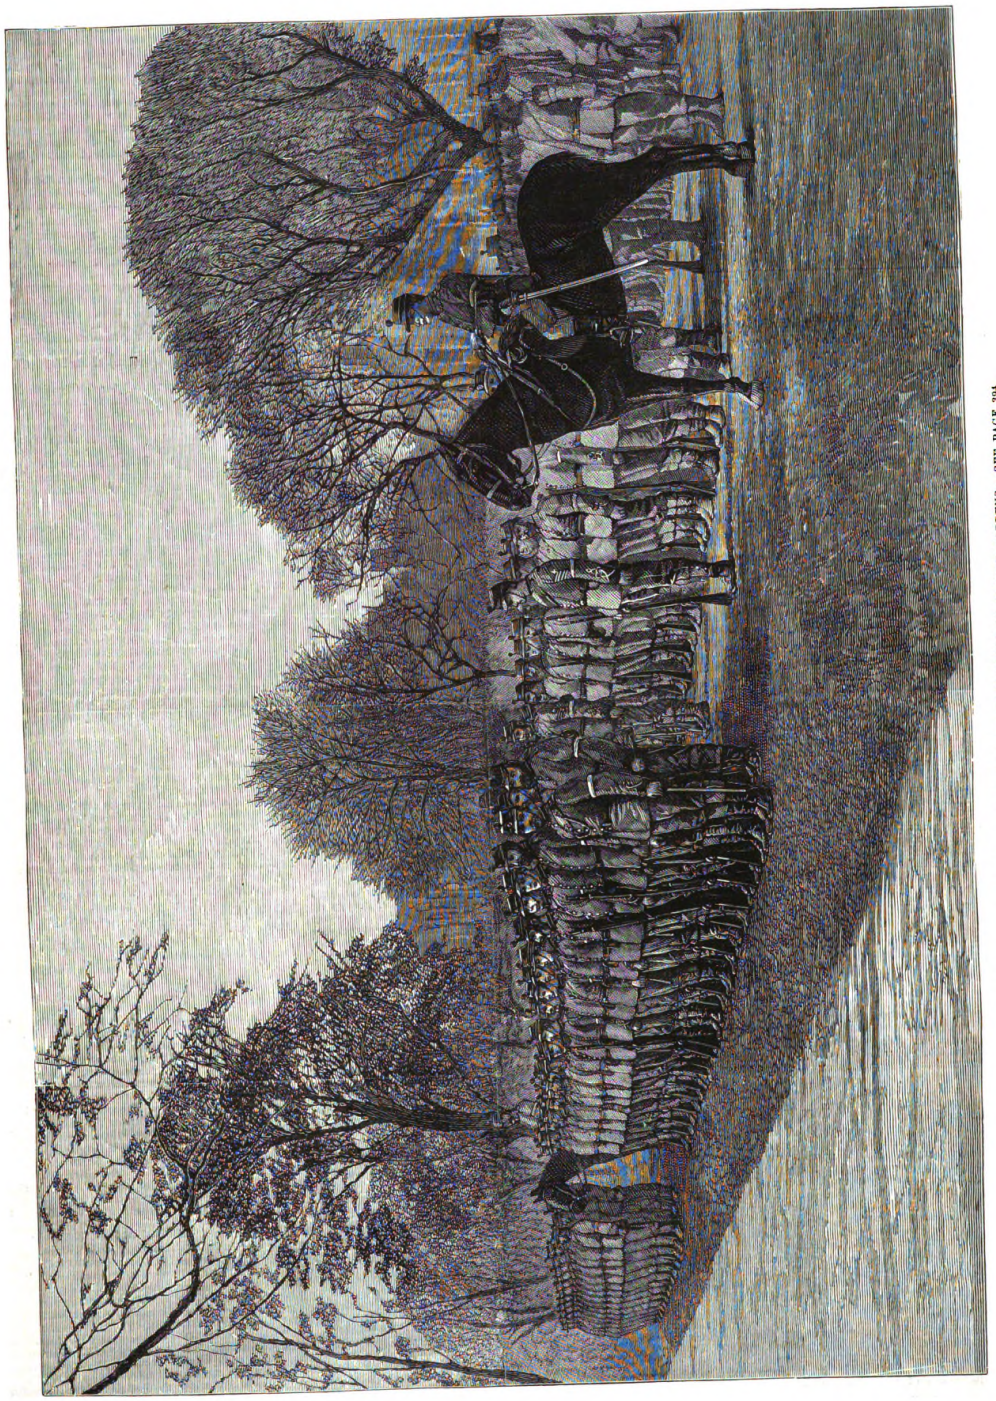
The "Musical Union"—so long successfully directed by Mr. John Ella—begins a new season on Tuesday next under the directorship of M. Lasserre, the eminent violoncellist.

Mr. Ganz's interesting orchestral concerts on Saturday afternoons begin a new season next week, the first programme including Berlioz's "Symphonie Fantastique," entitled "Episode de la Vie d'un Artiste," an important and elaborate orchestral work which we believe has not yet been given (at least in its entirety) in London.

The competition for the Lady Goldsmid Scholarship took place recently at the Royal Academy of Music, and the scholarship was awarded to Margaret Gyde. That for the Llewelyn Thomas Gold Medal also took place on the 11th inst., and the medal was awarded to Annie Grey. For the Evill Prize, ten guineas, there were six candidates, and the prize was won by Frank May.



THE BRIGHTON VOLUNTEER REVIEW: THE DEFENDING FORCE MARCHING INTO POSITION, SEEN FROM THE GRAND STAND.—SEE PAGE 394.



THE BRIGHTON VOLUNTEER REVIEW: MIDDLESEX CORPS IN STEYNE GARDENS.—SEE PAGE 394.

THE VOLUNTEER REVIEW.

The Easter Monday field manœuvres and parade of the Metropolitan Volunteer Corps were favoured with very fine weather, bright and sunny, with a bracing easterly wind, but not too cold, and which only caused some inconvenience by raising clouds of chalky dust. The volunteers, except those who went down to Brighton on Friday or Saturday, got off from London early on Monday morning, and arrived in good time in the forenoon.

The rendezvous of the different corps, as on previous occasions, was in the line of garden inclosures, which, commencing in the Old Steyne, extend nearly a mile to the north. Here arms were piled, the men rested, and took their breakfast or luncheon. There were, altogether, nearly 23,000 men, with thirty-four guns, under the general command of Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar. They were divided, as usual, for the purpose of the sham fight, into an attacking and a defending force. The attacking force consisted of the First Infantry Division, 7816 men, the Second Division, 6291, and the Artillery, 976 men, with twenty-six guns, commanded by Major-General Higginson, C.B. The defending force was composed of the Third Division, 6971 men, and the Artillery, 670 men with eight guns, commanded by Major-General Earle, C.S.I. The attacking force was first re-assembled at Brighton, and proceeded to occupy its position on the Downs. There was a little excitement among the spectators as Prince Edward and his staff and the commanding Generals, with their staffs, rode along the line, in the full uniforms of their rank, to see that all was in order. His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught was in command of the First Division. At half-past nine a gun signal put the attacking force in motion. It occupied the northern inclosures, and moved off, with bands playing, by alternate brigades of the First and Second Divisions, the first going by the Lewes-road and the other by Elm-grove up to the Windmill, and thence by the Drove-road to the rendezvous in front of Falmer village. The defending force took the opposite direction, going from the lower inclosures by the Steyne to the Marine-parade, thence by Bedford-street and East Park-road, to the racecourse, to Wick Farm, about the centre of the ridge they were to occupy, and on its reverse slope. The field battery of the Hon. Artillery Company moved with the troops. The heavy guns of position had been tugged by stout teams earlier in the morning, and placed in the positions they were to occupy, on either side. The troops moved off promptly, marched well, and were massed at their appointed rendezvous, with advance and outposts occupying the point of their positions, well before the time appointed for commencing the action.

In the disposition of the Attacking force the First Division massed from the Lewes-road, a little to the west of Falmer, forming line of battalions columns facing the hill which hid them from their opponents, with the First Brigade, under Colonel Clive, on the left, Lord Ranelagh's Brigade on their right in the first line, with Colonel Logan's Third Brigade and the Divisional Battalion of 2nd Middlesex Artillery in support. The four batteries of heavy guns of the 3rd Middlesex Artillery were posted in front of them behind the east end of Falmer, just far enough back on the reverse slope to be out of view of the Defenders' force. The six 40-pounder guns of the 3rd Kent were on the right flank of the attacking position, opposite Upper Bevendean, but on the reverse slope, of course, of Falmer Hill, and the field guns of the Honourable Artillery Company were detached early in the day in the same direction. The Second Division, under Major-General Monck, which moved by the Drove-road, turned to the left on reaching the Falmer-road, their way being cleared for them by an advanced guard and line of scouts, secundum artem. They kept along the road for a little while, and then struck off to their left across the shoulder of the hill, and on crossing the ridge turned to the left again to occupy the right of the attacking line, thus reversing the normal order of the attacking force. The advance in line of columns of the First Division was admirably performed by the troops of the Duke of Connaught. The Duke of Cambridge and Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar accompanied the First Division.

The defending force, under the command of Major-General W. Earle, on arrival at Brighton were brigaded by Colonel H. J. Buchanan and Major G. Salis-Schwabe, the Assistant Adjutant and Quartermaster Generals of the division. At ten o'clock the word to move was given, and the column defiled on the road of march with the 24th Middlesex (Post Office) Rifles, who had been added to the defending force in place of the 10th Middlesex, attached to the brigade of Colonel Moncrieff, of the Scots Guards. Lieutenant-Colonel Lord Bury, who followed, had his two Sussex battalions, the 1st Haute Artillery, in blue, the 1st Cinque Ports Rifles, and the 1st and 3rd Essex Rifles. The rear of the division was brought up by Colonel Lloyd's brigade of Surrey men and the 1st Tower Hamlets Rifles, who acted as the Divisional Battalion. This column marched by the Marine-parade, up Bedford-street and East Park-road, along the Racecourse to Wick Farm, which might be taken as the base of operations for them, the first line being extended right and left, along the Drove road from a position covering Upper Bevendean towards Newmarket Hill. Two 40-pounders of the 1st Sussex Artillery were placed in position on the northern side of the hill, while the other six took position just in front of Wick Farm—two of them commanding the right of Falmer Hill, while the other four were trained in the direction of Hogstrough Bottom, where it was expected the first assault would be made. This was a debateable piece of ground, and immediately the gun for the commencement of the action was fired General Earle sent forward his Left Brigade, under Colonel Lloyd, and took possession almost before there was a sign of the attacking party on the opposite crest of the hill. At the same time the remainder of the division was advanced, Lord Bury's brigade prolonging the line from Upper Bevendean, and this being taken up by Colonel Moncrieff's brigade on the extreme right, which was advanced as far as the crest of Newmarket Hill. Only the fighting line in loose formation were exposed to the enemy's fire from the big guns, all the reserves being kept well in hand, either behind the hill-top or in rear of a bank by the side of the road across it.

At noon precisely the signal for the mimic battle was given by the report of a big gun from Newmarket-hill, on the right of the defending force. It was answered by the 3rd Middlesex Artillery, whose fire was presently joined by the 3rd Kent Artillery, and to this replied the guns of the defence at Wick Farm and over Bevendean. Then Colonel Fitzroy's Brigade, the 1st of the Second Division, pushed over the crest of Falmer Hill on the right of the Attacking position, supported by the guns of the Hon. Artillery Company, worked in support of their fighting line. He found Colonel Lloyd's Brigade holding the inclosures of Upper Bevendean, against which his assault was directed. The first sight of the Attacking Force over the crest of the hill was the signal for turning on them the guns of position; while the defenders of Bevendean, lying down and well covered, opened on them a smart fusillade, at long range, that ought to have been pretty effective. Colonel Fitzroy's men, however, advanced in capital style by the new method of attack, and very soon a fight took place for the possession of the farmstead, till Colonel Lloyd ordered the force who had held the inclosures to fall back on the stronger position behind them below the crest of the Drove-road Hill. Covered by the fire of their supports, this movement to the rear was smartly effected, but under the fire of their assailants. On this flank the battle now resolved itself into a continuous exchange of rifle and artillery fire. Colonel Fitzroy's attack, indeed, was only a feint.

Meantime, the left wing of the attacking force, the Duke of Connaught's division, advanced to the real attack on Newmarket Hill. It was opposed by the brigades of Colonel Moncrieff and Lord Bury, the first-mentioned comprising the Queen's Westminster, the Artists' Corps, and the Inns of Court. This was the most effective and exciting part of the whole battle. The attack had a great superiority of massed numbers, but exposed itself greatly to the fire of Lord Bury's brigade, and was met by Colonel Moncrieff with invincible determination. It was, nevertheless, carried on with immense vigour, the Duke of Connaught pushing on every available company, until the concentration of numbers enabled the umpires to order Moncrieff's brigade to retire. This they did in admirable order, maintaining a good fire on the dense mass of their foes. It was a foregone conclusion that his Royal Highness was to score a victory, and when his men had swept up the face of Newmarket Hill, that result was held to have been achieved. The "Cease firing" was sounded soon after two o'clock.

The whole body of troops, both the attacking and the defending force, had now finished their warfare, and returned to the Race Stand, in order to march past and salute the Commander-in-Chief, with Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar. At three o'clock, the Duke of Cambridge, the Duke of Connaught, Prince Edward, and the numerous and brilliant Staff by which they were accompanied, reached the Grand Stand, and took up their positions in the saluting base inclosure, where they saw the different brigades march past in succession. First came the Artillery, guns, horses, and men all in the most creditable condition; then the brigades which had formed the defending force, among which the London Scottish Corps made a distinguished appearance. General Higginson, with the Duke of Connaught and his Staff, introduced the First Division, part of the late attacking force; this included the Civil Service Corps and the London Rifle Brigade, whose style of marching, as well as their performance in the fighting manœuvres, was especially admired. Lord Ranelagh's brigade, comprising several of the most popular London corps, mostly in scarlet, was the next to pass by; it was followed by others; several Middlesex corps brigaded under Colonel Logan; and the different Surrey corps, under Colonel Hales Wilkie, after which came the 2nd Tower Hamlets, Sir T. F. Buxton's corps ending the march past. All this had occupied nearly two hours. The London volunteers, after short rest and refreshment, left Brighton for home at no late hour of the evening.

STATE OF IRELAND.

The Irish members have not been idle during the Easter holidays. Mr. Parnell, M.P., spoke on the Irish Land Bill in Glasgow on Monday night. He said the bill would not provide the slightest protection for small tenants, but would rather tend towards their destruction. The Irish race at home and abroad were too united and strong to submit any longer to trifling on this question. Up to the present the Liberal Party had used the Irish question for their own political purposes; and as Liberal England had engaged in a crusade for the autonomy of Bulgaria, he asked it now to turn its eyes to suffering Ireland. Mr. Parnell, M.P., and Mr. T. P. O'Connor, M.P., were present at a meeting held at Newcastle-on-Tyne last Saturday evening, at which resolutions were passed protesting against coercion, thanking Mr. Cowen for his Parliamentary action respecting Ireland, expressing satisfaction with the principle underlying the Land Bill, and declaring that the Government ought to take immediate steps to stay the hand of evicting landlords. Mr. Dillon, M.P., in addressing a meeting at Kanturk last Saturday, condemned the Land Bill as being calculated to raise the rents of tenants on some estates, and because it made no provision for the improvement of the condition of the labourers. He advised them to adhere to the principles of the Land League. Speaking at a Land Meeting in Donegal on Monday, Mr. Dillon openly dissented from the resolution he was asked to support, which declared the Land Bill an honest attempt to settle the relations between landlord and tenant. Instead of a reduction of rent, which the tenants wanted, he predicted that the effect of the bill would rather be to increase it. Mr. R. Power, M.P., at a meeting near Dungarvan, said if the Land Bill were left to him he would reject it. A meeting of Delegates of Tenant-right Associations in Ulster was held on Thursday week in Belfast to consider the Land Bill. Mr. T. A. Dickson, ex-M.P. for Dungannon, who presided, spoke strongly in favour of the principles of the measure, but desired amendments to free it from vexatious restrictions. Mr. C. Russell, M.P., though disclaiming that he was a Land Leaguer, gave credit to that body for having brought the tenant farmers of Ireland within sight of victory. Resolutions were passed urging that further facilities than those stipulated should be given to tenants for the acquirement of their holdings, and calling upon the Tenant-Right Associations in Ulster to send deputies to London to assist in urging the Amendments required in the bill. The Cork Land League on Tuesday discussed the provisions of the Land Bill, and there was a general concurrence of opinion that the measure was inadequate to satisfy the present demands.

The Duchess of Marlborough has nearly completed arrangements for the entire outfit of fifteen Irish families, who will be provided with free passages to Manitoba and located there in "neatly-furnished farmsteads."

There have been more arrests under the Protection of Life and Property Act. Mr. P. J. Gordon, one of the traversers in the late Crown prosecutions, was arrested on the 13th inst. under the Coercion Act, at Claremorris, on account, it is stated, of language used at the Ballintaffy land meeting. He was taken to Kilmainham Gaol, Dublin. Mr. James Daly, the proprietor of the Connaught Telegraph, was arrested on the 14th inst. on a warrant from the Lord Lieutenant, and was conveyed to Galway. Mr. Matthew Harris, one of the Connaught organizers of the Land League who was prosecuted during the State trials for advising the tenantry to shoot down landlords like partridges in September, was arrested last Saturday under the provisions of the Coercion Act and lodged in Galway Prison. Two other arrests were made on the same day. Two arrests have been made in Enniskowen, county Donegal. Patrick Crampsey, a prominent Land Leaguer and general organizer of the movement in that district, and a farmer named Dennis Diver, have been taken under the Lord Lieutenant's warrant and lodged in Derry Gaol.

The Dublin Gazette of Tuesday night contains a proclamation from the Lord Lieutenant declaring the barony of Garry Castle, in the King's County, a proscribed district under the Coercion Act.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

ITALY.

The Ministerial crisis is at an end. Signor Sella, it appears, advised the King that, as the reconciliation of the Left implied a retraction of its hostile vote of the 7th inst., the resignation of the Cairoli Cabinet should be declined. The King, acting on this advice, sent for Signor Cairoli on Monday morning, and told him that he had decided not to accept the resignation of the Cabinet. At a Cabinet Council held later in the day the Ministry agreed to remain in office, and will, therefore, present itself before Parliament after the Easter recess.

GERMANY.

The Earl and Countess of Dufferin during their stay at Berlin were, as usual, marked objects of Imperial favour. The noble Earl has twice conferred with Prince Bismarck. He had a long conference with Prince Bismarck on Monday, principally, it is said, concerning the state of affairs in Russia and the Greek frontier question. His Lordship was also received in a special audience by the Emperor William. Lord Dufferin left Berlin on Tuesday.

Prince Bismarck has submitted a motion to the Federal Council proposing that, in view of the increase in the population, amounting to nearly 2,500,000 persons, there shall be a further coinage of 15,000,000 silver mark pieces, the 339,000 lb. of silver bars in the possession of the Imperial Treasury to be devoted to this purpose.

The jury appointed to decide on the merits of the essays written on the subject of the cure of diphtheria in response to the offer of a prize by the Empress have decided that none is worthy of the reward.

AUSTRIA-HUNGARY.

The Crown Prince Rudolph has had a slight attack of fever in Palestine. His Imperial Highness has left Jerusalem, on his return to Austria.

The new Austrian Loan of fifty million florins, issued in order to supply the deficit in the Budget of the year, has (a Vienna telegram says) been subscribed for twenty-five times over, the amount actually offered being upwards of 1,250,000,000fl. Half the loan is reserved for savings banks and similar institutions. The interest will be at 5 per cent per annum. The real amount of the issue will be 54,347,800fl., the price being at 92.

In the Lower House of the Hungarian Diet, on the 12th inst., the Minister of Finance introduced the bill for the conversion of the Hungarian Six per Cent Gold Rente of 400,000,000fl. into a Four per Cent Rente. The redemption is to take place by instalments, and the entire operation of conversion is to be finished by the end of 1884 at latest.

A Vienna telegram in the Standard states that the Emperor has sanctioned the measure empowering the Cis-Leithan Ministry to raise a Five per Cent Loan of fifty millions of florins. The money is required to make up the deficit in the last Budget of this half of the Empire.

The town of Szegedin, in Hungary, is once more threatened with partial destruction by flood. The water has risen so high that a gale of wind would suffice to produce an inundation of the town, and to lay waste the surrounding country. It is also reported from Temesvar that several neighbouring villages are under water.

RUSSIA.

The Golos reports that the late Czar, Alexander II., has appointed as executors of his will the Grand Dukes Michael and Alexis and Prince Suwarrow. Forty-eight millions of roubles deposited with London bankers are distributed as follows:—Thirty millions to his successor, the present Czar, and the remainder to the Princess Dolgorouky.

Yesterday week Lord and Lady Dufferin took their departure from St. Petersburg. The whole of the diplomatic body, the Ministers, and several members of the Russian aristocracy were present at the railway station to bid them farewell. A large bouquet of flowers was presented to Lady Dufferin by a deputation of officers of the Imperial Guard.

General Skobeleff has forwarded a despatch to the Grand Duke Michael announcing the close of the expedition against the Tekke Turkomans.

Five out of the six persons condemned to death for the assassination of the late Czar were hanged yesterday week in the Semenoff-square. The execution of the woman Helfmann, the sixth prisoner, has been postponed until after her confinement. The prisoners were conveyed to the spot in two cars, and each had his hands tied to a board on which was the Russian word for regicide. On the scaffold each of the condemned kissed the crucifix which was presented by the priests in attendance. They were hanged one after the other, and, with the exception of one, who fainted, preserved a dauntless demeanour.

Six more Nihilists, who were arrested in January, are about to be tried by court-martial at Kieff.

Judgment was delivered yesterday week by the St. Petersburg University Court in the case of two hundred and four students charged with having violated the rules of the University. Eighteen of the accused were sentenced to be expelled, and seventy-one others to remain under arrest for periods varying from three to seven days, with an intimation that any repetition of the offence would subject them to expulsion. One hundred of the students received a reprimand, and the remaining fifteen were acquitted. The previous conduct of the students was taken into account by the Court in pronouncing judgment.

The authorities of the Moscow University have rusticated one hundred and forty students for one year, for holding a meeting which had been prohibited.

No male Russian subjects between the ages of ten and eighteen will in future be allowed to go abroad without a permit from the Imperial Government, which will require a statement of the reasons for which they leave the country.

A Commission has been decreed by the Czar to consider the question of the introduction of the Zemstvo among the Cossacks.

TURKEY AND GREECE.

The Ambassadors at Constantinople have prepared a new Identical Note, which is to be presented without delay to the Porte, asking its acquiescence in the changes made by the Powers in the proposals originally made by Turkey to Greece. They are said to be engaged upon a Turco-Greek Convention, which will arrange the time and method of the transfer of the ceded territory. Dervish Pasha, in command of a small Turkish army, has moved to meet the Albanians who are in arms; but, finding them too numerous to attack, he has applied to Constantinople for reinforcements. The Albanians are enrolling the able-bodied men in all the districts which have adhered to the League. The Porte sought to conciliate them by offering Ali Pasha the governorship of Prizrend, but he declined the post. In reply to the Bey of Tunis, the Premier has stated that, should the necessity arise, the Porte would feel bound to protect its rights as suzerain of Tunis.

All the Ambassadors at Constantinople proceeded on Tuesday to the Porte and delivered, it is said, an identical Note relative to the acceptance by Greece of the new line of frontier; and the representatives of the six Great Powers in Athens on Wednesday presented a Collective Note in reply to that of the Greek Government.

Several warlike resolutions against the acceptance of the frontier line offered by Turkey were on Sunday passed at a monster meeting held at Athens; and a resolution to the same effect has been passed by the Athens Town Council. A Royal decree calling on the whole arm-bearing population of the kingdom has been issued. Great public excitement prevails.

AMERICA.

In the Senate the political deadlock continues, both parties refusing to yield, and there is no present prospect of a solution of the difficulty. Meanwhile the President's nominations have not been acted upon.

The Senate has adopted a resolution requesting President Garfield to communicate any information in the possession of the Government touching Mr. Boyton's arrest.

It is officially declared that the number of iron and steel producing establishments existing last year in the United States was 1005, against 808 in 1870. The total capital invested is stated at 253,000,000 dols.

Mr. Frederick Grant, son of General Grant, has resigned his commission in the army, in order to accept a position on the Mexican Southern Railway.

Mr. Scott has resigned the presidency of the Texas Pacific Railroad, and Mr. Gould has been elected as his successor.

According to a return published by the Bureau of Statistics, 44,125 immigrants arrived in the United States during March last, of which number 4400 came from Great Britain, 3173 from Ireland, 8642 from Canada, and 19,397 from Germany.

CANADA.

The Nova Scotia House of Representatives has adopted, by 26 votes to 3, a resolution proposed by a member of the Government in favour of a conference with New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island regarding the abolition of the Legislative Councils of the three colonies. The Legislature has been prorogued.

The British Columbia Board of Trade has appointed a delegate for an International Tariff Convention in London.

THE CAPE COLONY.

The Opposition candidate has been elected by a large majority to the vacant seat in the House of Assembly for Oudtshoorn.

A telegram from Cape Town states that fighting has occurred at Leribe, in which the Basutos were defeated with heavy loss, the casualties on the colonial side being slight.

INDIA.

A telegram received at the India Office from the Viceroy states that Sirdar Hashim Khan, the Governor of Candahar, appointed by the Ameer, entered the city last Saturday. From Bombay we learn that the Ameer's infantry regiments will enter Candahar on the 21st, and take over the city from the British authorities.

The Candahar correspondent of the Times, telegraphing on Sunday, says that the evacuation of Candahar began on the 15th, when the 11th Foot and Major Crawford's heavy battery started for Quetta. The postponement, however, does not affect the date of the final evacuation, which remains fixed for the 22nd. The correspondent continues:—

> The troops are in high spirits at leaving, not that they dislike Candahar for itself, but that they are always glad of a move anywhere, and that they fail to appreciate having to put up with most of the discomforts of campaigning without getting any of its contingent advantages. The Ameer's governor, Sirdar Mahomed Hashim Khan, made a formal entry into the city yesterday (Saturday) morning. The streets were lined with troops, a guard of honour was drawn up in the courtyard of his house, and a salute of seventeen guns was fired as he entered the gate. Shortly after his arrival he paid Colonel St. John a visit, which was returned in the afternoon. Later on he rode out to the cantonments to see General Hume, who reciprocated the compliment this morning. The Sirdar is a loutish-looking youth of nineteen or twenty, with far worse manners than usual among Afghan nobles, however young. This may be accounted for by his having been brought up by his mother's tribe, the wild Turis of the Kuram Valley. Sirdar Shamsuddin Khan, the de facto governor, is an intelligent-looking man of forty-five. Crowds of people assembled in the streets to see the entry, but there was no enthusiasm such as was displayed on the arrival of Sirdar Shir Ali Khan, the ex-Wali, now nearly two years ago. The Cabul cavalry, about 1000 in number, marched past the city this morning on their way to occupy the outpost of Kokkaran, vacated by our cavalry yesterday. The infantry and guns are still at some distance, and will not enter the place till after our departure, on the 22nd, one regiment coming in a day before to take over the charge of the city gates and the citadel. It is openly announced that the Ameer himself will come to Candahar with more troops next month, and attack Herat at once. When he arrives it is probable that he will collect a considerable party here. Up to the present the attitude of the Durranis is simply very much what it was when he came here in January, 1879—that is to say, they are sullenly hostile or indifferent. From Herat all sorts of vague rumours continue to arrive, but it would seem that Ayoub is concentrating his entire force to guard against a threatened attack from Turkestan.

The court-martial on Colonel Malcolmson ended on Monday in the honourable acquittal of that officer. The cross-examination of the witnesses, it is stated, showed that Colonel Malcolmson did his duty. He expressed his disapproval of the position taken up before Maiwand, and urged the disarming of the Wali's troops two days before the mutiny. He contended that this had prejudiced General Burrows against him. The court acquitted him without hearing all the witnesses for the defence.

AUSTRALIA.

The joint committees of both Houses of the Victoria Parliament, which was formed recently in order to confer upon the reform of the constitution, has broken up owing to the failure of the members to come to an understanding with regard to the mode of election of the members of the Council. A telegraphic despatch has been received at the office of the Agent-General for Victoria from the Hon. Graham Berry, Premier of the colony, stating that in consequence of the prevalence of foot-and-mouth disease in England the introduction of stock is prohibited in the terms of section 5 of the Order in Council of July 7, 1879.

A telegram has been received by the Agent-General for South Australia, Sir Arthur Blyth, K.C.M.G., to the effect that, the House of Assembly having expired by effluxion of time, a general election has just taken place, all the Ministers having been re-elected. It has been decided by the committee of the Industrial Exhibition to be held at Adelaide in July and August next that the European entries shall not close till June 1.

The statistics of gold-mining in Australia furnished in the report of Mr. Hayter, statist to the Government of Victoria, continue to exhibit a remarkable decline. The quantity raised in all these colonies since deposits of that metal were first discovered in 1851 is estimated at 69,000,000 ounces, valued at £271,000,000. By far the largest proportion has come from Victoria, where the gold-fields in 1872 produced only 758,947 ounces, which is less than half the average annual yield of the same colony during the period 1870-9.

---

The Portuguese Government has resolved to suspend the new income tax, it being obnoxious to the people.

All the members of the Roumanian Ministry have tendered their resignation to King Charles.

The Agent-General for New South Wales has been informed by telegram of the arrival in Sydney of the ship Devon, which sailed from Plymouth with emigrants in December last.

The Khedive of Egypt intends to establish a school at Cairo for the education of girls of the higher classes.

A large petard was thrown before the door of the Church of Santa Maria, at Madrid, on Thursday week, while the building was still full of worshippers, among whom the explosion caused great alarm. Several ladies fainted. The door of the church was damaged, but no one was hurt.

The earthquake which visited the island of Chio on Monday week destroyed villages which escaped the earlier and more serious shock. It also extended to the mainland and occasioned further loss of life. According to the latest returns, the casualties are 8000 killed and 10,000 injured.

The Foreign Office has received a notice from her Majesty's Minister at Berne pointing out the necessity for all British subjects intending to reside in Switzerland to be provided with a passport or certificate of birth, in order to obtain the ticket of residence, without which no foreigner is allowed to remain in a Canton.

Advices from Cape Coast Castle state that the King of Ashantee declares that he is deserted by his allies and tributaries, that he is bankrupt, that he is unable to pay the balance of the indemnity of 1874, and that he has no idea of making a fresh war. He strongly disclaims all hostile intentions, and says he is prepared to accede to any terms.

News has been received of Mr. Suter, the English mine manager, who is in the hands of Greek brigands, in the province of Salonica. He is well treated, and in good health; but he expresses the hope that the ardour of some Albanian Volunteers who are pursuing the brigands may be checked, or he fears that he may be killed.

In consequence of the excitement caused by a statement published by a Greek newspaper, that the British Government intended ceding Cyprus to Greece, the High Commissioner announces that he is authorised to declare that there is no foundation whatever for the report. The Musselman population of the island appear to be reassured by this contradiction.

The first rough calculations of the population of the various provinces of the Indian Empire, founded on the recent census, are being gradually published. According to these, the numbers for the North-West Provinces are 32,400,000, and for Oude 11,200,000, being a total of 44,000,000 for the territory governed by Sir George Couper. The increase since 1872 has been about 5 per cent, but varies much in different districts. The grand total for the Punjaub is 22,610,163, of whom nearly 19,000,000 are British subjects and the remainder subjects of the native States. The increase since 1868 is about 6½ per cent.

Several items of Chinese news are telegraphed from San Francisco in anticipation of the Hong-Kong mail of March 23. Tseng-Kwo-Tsun, uncle of the Chinese Minister in England, has been appointed Viceroy on the north-west frontier, replacing Tse-Tsun-Tang, who is transferred to the post of President of the Board of War, besides receiving other high honours. These changes are regarded as indicating renewed vigour on the part of the Chinese Government, and as showing that the latter is determined to maintain the position which it has adopted in the Kuldja question. The railway scheme has been vetoed in the Imperial Council, and is shelved for the present. Material for the scientific fortification of the Gulf of Pechili is being largely imported by Li-Hung-Chang. The large coal measures to the north-west of Tientsin will be worked by the Chinese Government.

---

RESOURCES AND PROSPECTS OF QUEENSLAND.

At a meeting of the Royal Colonial Institute—Sir Charles Nicholson in the chair—Mr. T. Archer, from Queensland, read a paper on the history, resources, and prospects of Queensland.

He said that, though the youngest of the Australian colonies, Queensland bade fair to rival the most prosperous. Her seaboard of 2000 miles, studded with fine harbours; her rivers depositing large tracts of the finest alluvial soil, much of it fit in the south for producing all the fruits and cereals of temperate climes, and in the centre and north for most tropical products; her apparently inexhaustible deposits of minerals, ranging from gold to coal, and including rich deposits of tin and copper; her natural pastures, rivalling in fattening and wool-producing qualities any yet discovered in the world, combined to make Queensland one of the most promising fields for colonisation. The land laws had been rendered most liberal, the terms of purchase being so easy that the small capitalist and economical working man who had saved some of his earnings could acquire as much land as his capital could work, from the 40-acre homestead area to the 5120-acre holding, the largest quantity that could be lawfully held by one person. Queensland had the means to satisfy the land hunger of all the people that were likely to quit the shores of Great Britain and Ireland during the next generation. He hoped some means would be devised for transplanting a proportion of our suffering Irish fellow-subjects to this colony. Many Irish emigrants had become most prosperous in Queensland. People going out there would not be cut off from the ministrations of their clergy, or deprived of the means of education. The employments that the working man had to look to for making his living were numerous, and wages were good. A working man who chose to be industrious, frugal, and honest, could not but improve his position. It was only, however, the man accustomed to manual labour that he would advise to emigrate. All the so-called higher employments were sadly over-stocked. He who had no capital and could use no tool but the quill or pencil had better stay at home. Young women fit for service were in never-failing demand, especially if they entertained no rooted aversion to matrimony. As for the climate, though hot from three to four months of the year, it would, in point of healthiness, compare favourably with that of any newly settled country.

At the close of the paper there was some discussion, the Bishop of North Queensland, who is on a short visit to England, indorsing all Mr. Archer's statements.

---

Mr. R. Curtis, the Mayor of Poole, was last week invested by the Recorder with a gold chain of office. It is of Renaissance design, and bears on each massive link the name of the giver, who in every case, excepting the centre link given by the Recorder, is a past mayor or member of the family of some former mayor of Poole.

Dr. Richardson gave an address at a meeting of the Sanitary Institute of Great Britain on the subject of the best mode of dealing with smallpox and other infectious diseases. He condemned the existing large fever hospitals, and submitted various suggestions as to how contagious cases might be regularly recorded, and how they might be treated without danger to the community in hospitals not larger than sufficient to receive twenty-four persons at one time, and each to be constructed on the separate system for patients. A discussion which followed promised to be of such length as to necessitate an adjournment.

MUSICAL PUBLICATIONS.

Messrs. Novello, Ewer, and Co. have just made a highly valuable contribution to the library of classical music by their edition of the full score of Spohr's greatest oratorio, "The Last Judgment," beautifully engraved and printed. The exceptional merits of the composition have been so often commented on in reference to its frequent performances—by the Sacred Harmonic Society and at our provincial festivals—as to render any remarks thereon now unnecessary. It will be sufficient to call attention to this (we believe the first) publication of the full score, a masterpiece as a composition generally, and especially valuable as a study of the art of instrumentation, in which Spohr was so great an adept.

The same publishers have also brought out—likewise in full score—Spohr's beautiful cantata, "God, Thou art great," which will form another welcome addition to the library of classical music. The last-named work has been issued by the same firm, arranged by Mr. King Hall, for pianoforte and harmonium, by which combination a very effective realisation is obtained of the combinations of the vocal and orchestral score.

Dr. Grove's "Dictionary of Music and Musicians" (Macmillan and Co.) has now reached its thirteenth part, which has just been issued, and includes articles from Planché to Hans Richter, with many intermediate subjects of special interest. This most valuable work, unparalleled in the musical literature of England, will extend beyond the two volumes originally intended, the current number being the beginning of the third volume. No musical library will be complete without this dictionary, as it contains much information that can be found nowhere else.

"The Great Musicians" (Sampson Low and Co.). Under this title, a series of volumes is in course of publication (edited by Dr. Hueffer) in which the careers of eminent composers are treated of, biographically and critically. The first volume is by the editor, and is devoted to Wagner, whose characteristics are ably sketched. A subject of still greater importance and more enduring interest is the life of Weber, which has properly been confided to his favourite pupil, Sir Julius Benedict, who is peculiarly qualified—personally and artistically—for the task. The result is an interesting memoir of a remarkable man and great musician. The catalogue of works, and remarks thereon, appended to the biography, are especially valuable. In another volume of the series Mr. H. Sutherland Edwards treats of Rossini and his school in an interesting and anecdotical style—the remaining volume at present received being by Mr. H. F. Frost, who gives a concise yet comprehensive résumé of the life and works of Schubert. The series promises to be of interest and value to all who wish for handy, available summaries in the absence of larger volumes with more ample details. The forthcoming numbers are to treat of Mendelssohn, Marcello, and Purcell.

"The Language of the Flowers, Suite de Ballet," by F. H. Cowen (Metzler and Co.) We have, here, the six charming orchestral pieces, performed at one of Mr. Cowen's concerts at St. James's Hall (in November), arranged both for one performer and for two performers on the pianoforte; a shape in which they cannot fail to be widely welcome. Of their special merit we spoke when noticing their performance.

"Time Long Past" and "O Jerusalem"—songs (from the same publishers) are both composed by Maria E. H. Stisted. The first is a setting of words by Shelley, the melody being of a pleasing yet earnest character, with an appropriate although simple accompaniment. The other piece contains some flowing vocal writing, of a religious tone; with some well-contrasted effects for two solo voices and chorus.

"Romeo and Juliet," by Berlioz (Metzler and Co.). This is a new edition of the French composer's dramatic symphony which has just been brought out by the well-known firm in Great Marlborough-street, in a handy and inexpensive form, with the original text and an English adaptation by Dr. Hueffer. The work is for a grand orchestra, contralto, tenor, and bass solo voices, and chorus. Of its merits and characteristics we recently spoke in reference to its performance at St. James's Hall by the Philharmonic Society.

"Lyra Studentium" (Ashdown and Parry). This work consists of a series of extracts from the pianoforte works of the best composers, ancient and modern. At present it has extended to twelve numbers, each of which contains a piece of special value and interest. The work is edited by Dr. Westbrook, who has supplied some very useful and judicious fingering.

"Memories Sweet and Sad" (Duncan Davison and Co.) is a song, the words of which are by Mrs. Baines, the music being by Mr. W. H. Holmes. The verses have much graceful sentiment, and lend themselves readily to a melodious setting, such as they have received from the excellent pianist whose name stands on the titlepage as composer of the song, the pianoforte accompaniment of which, without being difficult, gives evidence of the artistic taste of the writer.

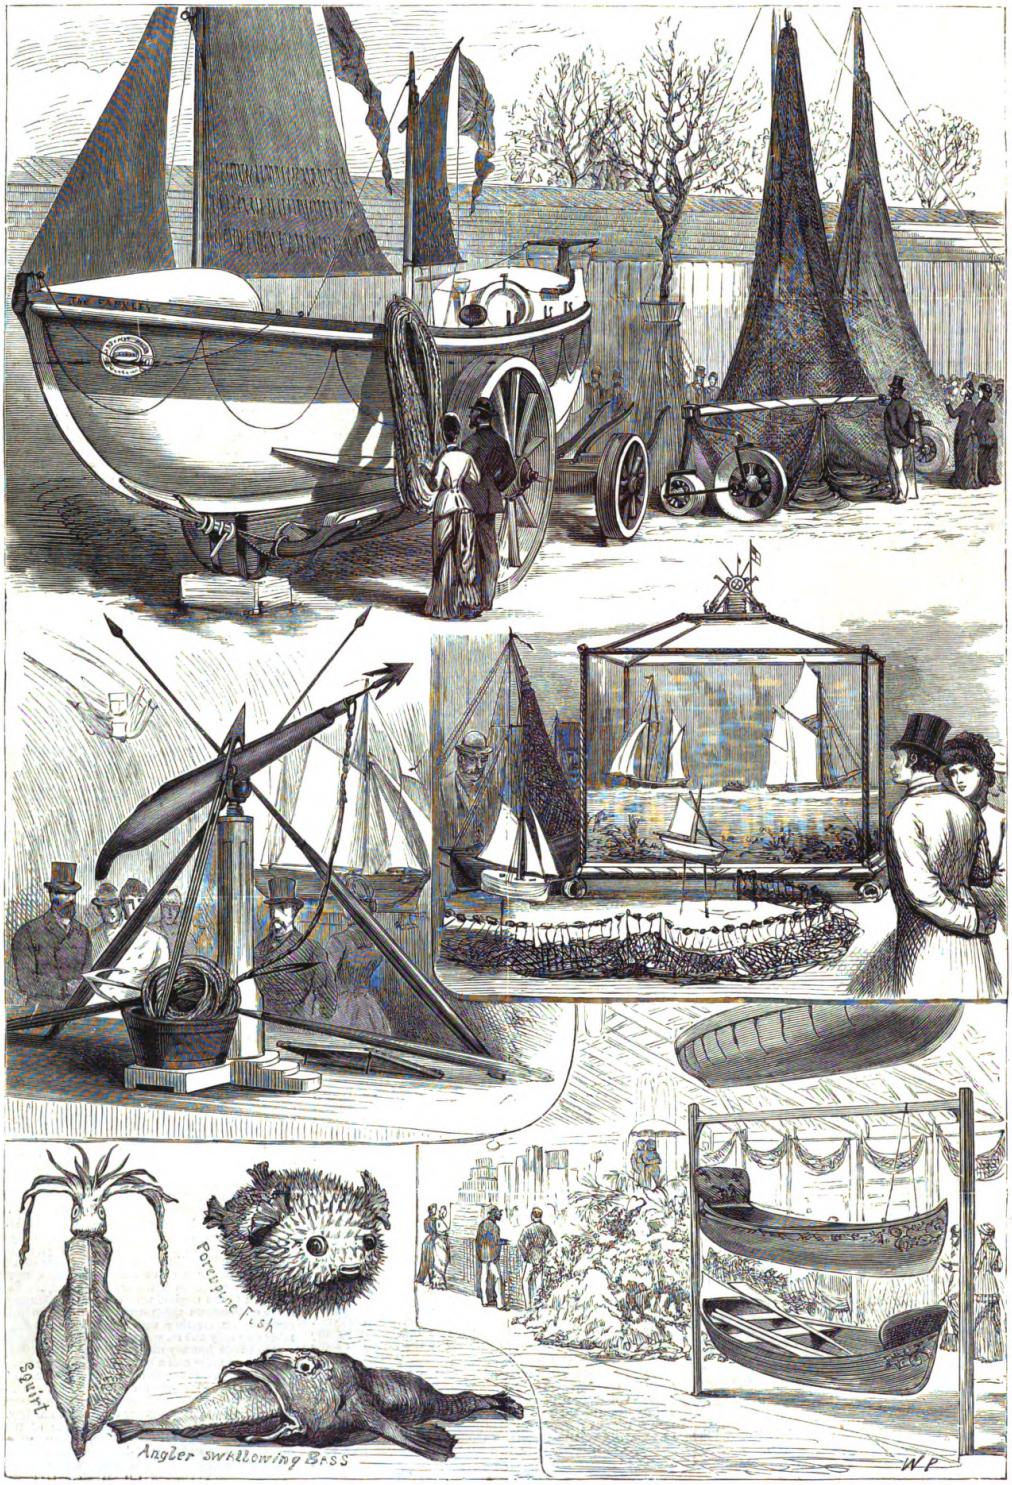
---

Her Majesty has for several years past annually placed at the disposal of the Royal Institute of British Architects a gold medal to be awarded to some distinguished architect, English or foreign, whom the council and the general body of members might deem deserving of the honour, either on account of his executed works or on account of literary or other services rendered to the profession at home or abroad. This year the council nominated as the recipient of the medal Mr. George Godwin, F.R.S., F.S.A., for the last thirty-six years editor of the Builder, and author of "The Churches of London" and of several works bearing on professional, sanitary, and social subjects. The nomination was unanimously ratified by the general body of members, and her Majesty has expressed her approval of the award.

A further trial of the Beaumont Compressed-Air Engine, which is expected to be adopted by the tramway companies in London, and now exhibited in various places, took place at Stratford on the 14th inst., in the presence of Colonel Beaumont, the patentee, and several gentlemen connected with the North Metropolitan Tramways Company. Two cars were attached to the engine, which made the journey to Leytonstone and back in thirty-two minutes. The pressure on the reservoir on starting was 930 lb. per square foot, and on returning only 260 lb. was used; 470 lb. of air was exhausted on the whole journey out and home, the distance travelled being three miles and a half. The passengers carried averaged 104 each way, and the time mentioned included a stoppage at the Plough and Harrow of thirteen minutes.——The first tramway in the country worked entirely by steam power was formally opened at Blackburn on the same day. It is four miles in length, and connects the towns of Blackburn and Over-Darwen. The cars are drawn by engines made by Messrs. Kitson and Co., of Leeds, which work almost noiselessly and emit no smoke. A large number of town councillors, in company with some of the directors of the company, were conveyed over the line, and afterwards sat down to luncheon in celebration of the event.

THE NATIONAL FISHERIES EXHIBITION AT NORWICH.

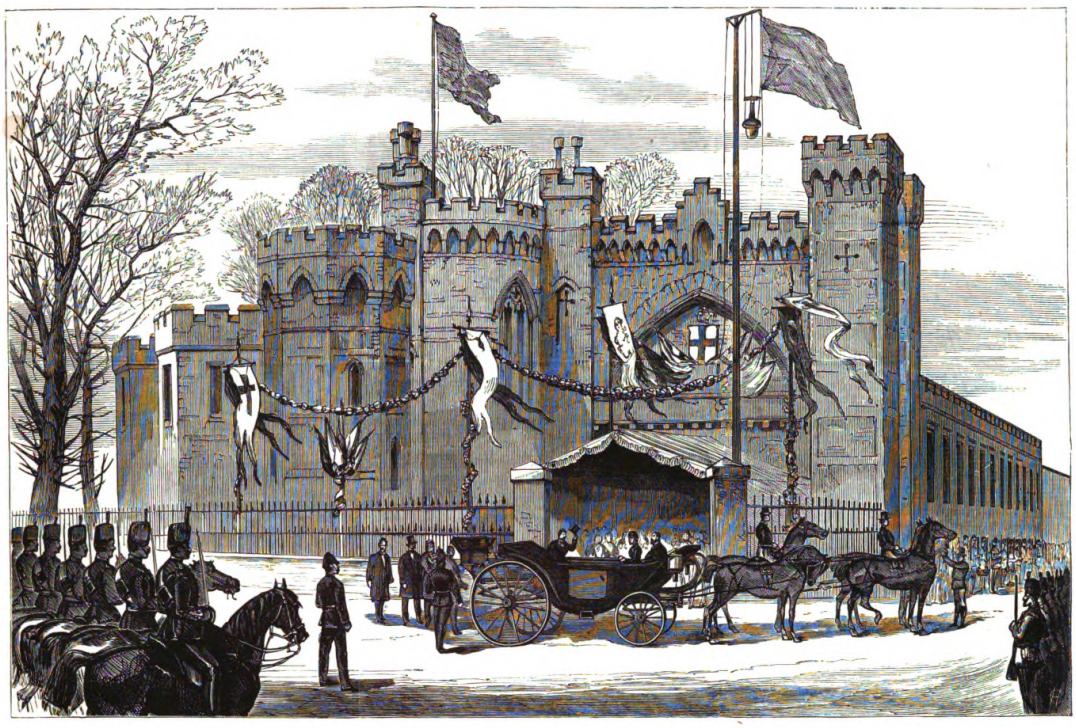
SEE PAGE 398.



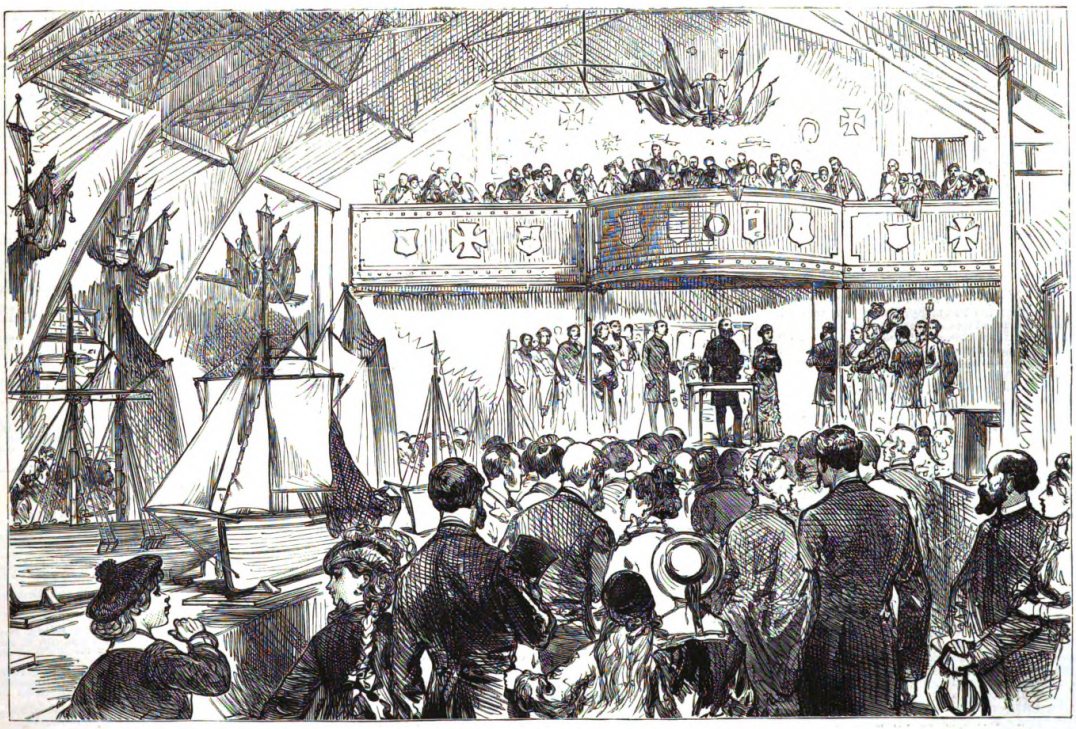
MODELS OF LIFE-BOAT, FISHING APPARATUS, ETC.

OPENING OF THE NATIONAL FISHERIES EXHIBITION AT NORWICH.

SEE NEXT PAGE.



ARRIVAL OF THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.



INTERIOR OF THE DRILL-HALL, NORWICH, WITH THE NATIONAL FISHERIES EXHIBITION.

THE NATIONAL FISHERIES EXHIBITION.

The Prince and Princess of Wales, at Norwich, on Monday, opened this instructive and interesting exhibition, which has been arranged with the co-operation of the Board of Trade, the Inspectors of Fisheries, the Fishmongers' Company, the Royal National Life-Boat Institution, and several local committees on the eastern coast.

The articles contributed to this exhibition are divided into six classes, as follows:—1. Pisciculture and shell-fish culture; 2. Models of trawling gear, drifting gear, canvas and ropes, and inland fishing tackle; 3. Life-saving apparatus, lamps, fog-horns and signalling; architectural plans, fish markets, fish-curing establishments, fish-vans, and fishermen's clothing; 4. Pictures illustrating the utilisation of condemned fish and fish refuse as a manure, and the cleansing of sewage polluted streams; 5. Dried, salted, smoked, and tinned fish; shell-fish, fish oils, manure, and disinfectants, aquatic flora and fauna, and birds which prey upon fish; 6. Collections sent on loan, which include a large number of cases of preserved fish; also, the plaster casts of fish that belonged to the late Mr. Frank Buckland, and pictures of fish by Mr. Wolf. In Class 2 are some beautifully-contrived models of fishing-smacks and trawlers, fitted up complete with sails, nets, and gear. Many of these are shown at work, with their nets out, and each exhibits some recent improvement or invention in competing for a special prize of £50, offered by Mr. Grant Duff, M.P., and other gentlemen. In Class 3 the Board of Trade exhibit a complete collection of life-saving apparatus, and have sent down men to manipulate them. The Duke of Edinburgh contributes models of two life-boats in silver presented to the Duke and Duchess on their marriage by the British residents at St. Petersburg. The Royal National Life-Boat Institution also exhibits models, in addition to a fully-equipped life-boat mounted on its transporting carriage, models of the three classes of life-boats used on our coasts, a safety fishing-boat, and specimens of life-boats, and various articles of life-boat equipment. The exhibition is in the Volunteer Drill-Hall, with an annexe built for this occasion.

The Prince and Princess of Wales travelled by special train from Sandringham to Norwich, accompanied by Prince Leopold and a distinguished party, comprising Earl and Countess Spencer, Sir W. V. Harcourt, M.P., and Lady Harcourt, Mr. Mundella, M.P., the Earl and Countess of Leicester, Lord Suffield, Lord and Lady Charles Beresford, Sir Cunliffe Owen, Mr. C. Hall, Count Danneskjold Samsoe, and his Excellency Count Frijs-Frijsenborg. The Royal visitors were received upon the platform by the Mayor (Mr. S. Grimmer), the Sheriff (Dr. Eade), the Town Clerk (Mr. H. B. Miller), and the Norwich Corporation officers. A guard of honour, composed of the 1st Norfolk Artillery Volunteers, under the command of Captain Coleman, was drawn up outside the station. The Royal party entered carriages, and proceeded through the gaily-decorated Prince of Wales-road, London-street, and St. Giles's-street, to the Drill Hall, the 3rd (King's Own) Hussars furnishing an escort, under the command of Captain Hopgood-Peckham and Lieutenant Freeman. Order was maintained along the route by the 1st Norfolk Rifle Volunteers. At the Drill-Hall, where a large number of ladies and gentlemen had assembled, another guard of honour, consisting of No. 5 Company of the 1st Norfolk Rifle Volunteers, was drawn up, under the command of Captain Fitch.

The Prince and Princess of Wales and Prince Leopold were received at the Drill-Hall by the President of the Exhibition (Mr. E. Birkbeck, M.P.), and were conducted to a dais, draped with crimson cloth, with the banner of the Fishmongers' Company, surmounted by a scarlet cloth canopy adorned with coats of arms. The walls of the building were covered with scarlet cloth, with groups of flags at intervals. When all had taken their places, Mr. Birkbeck read the address of the Exhibition Committee, to which the Prince of Wales made a suitable reply. His Royal Highness then declared the Exhibition opened, and the Royal party were conducted round the building and its annexe. After a stay of about an hour they drove to St. Andrew's Hall, where the Mayor had provided a déjeûner. In addition to the Royal party from Sandringham, above two hundred guests were present, including the High Sheriff of Norfolk (Mr. G. D. Bernay), the Bishop of Norwich, the Dean of Norwich, Mr. E. Birkbeck, M.P., and the Hon. Mrs. Birkbeck, Mr. J. J. Colman, M.P., and Mrs. Colman, Mr. J. H. Tillett, M.P., Sir W. Ffolkes, M.P., Sir R. J. Buxton, M.P., and Lady Buxton, Lord Hartismere, Lord Hastings, Sir W. and Lady Foster, Sir T. and Lady Beevor, Mr. Hornblower (Prime Warden of the Fishmongers' Company), Professor Huxley and Mr. Spencer Walpole (Inspectors of Fisheries), and Dr. Günther (of the British Museum). The Prince of Wales, speaking after the loyal toasts, commended the objects of the Exhibition. He remarked that, having had brought before them the great fishing interests of this country, and particularly the social condition of our fishermen, there should be formed some sort of society which would succour those who were in want, and at the same time help to assuage the grief and misery of the widows and orphans of fishermen. He felt sure that the Fishmongers' Company would indorse the suggestion he had made in reference to a Fishermen's Aid Society, and that something might be done in that direction if a committee were formed, say, at Norwich, and another in London. Before sitting down his Royal Highness said it afforded him the greatest pleasure to propose a toast—"Success to the National Fisheries Exhibition," coupled with the health of Mr. E. Birkbeck. That gentleman returned thanks for the toast. The company soon afterwards separated, and the Royal visitors returned to Sandringham.

---

About 150 feet of the Penzance promenade sea-wall, the foundation of which had been undermined by the sea, fell on Monday evening, carrying with it a portion of the promenade.

From particulars supplied to the reporter of a Chicago paper by a dealer in glass eyes in that city, it appears that there are a thousand wearers of these eyes in Chicago, and that from 600 to 800 eyes are sold there every year. The best eyes are made at Uri, the manufacture being favoured by the occurrence there of fine silicates and other minerals required. These eyes withstand the corrosive action of tears and other secretions better than those of France. At Uri are also made large quantities of eyes used in mounting animals, besides a superior quality of glass marbles, known to boys as agates. The artificial eye is a delicate shell or case, very light and thin, and concave, so as to fit over what is left of the eyeball. The shell is cut from a hollow ball or bubble of glass, the iris is blown in, and then the whole is delicately recoated. The trade in Chicago has undergone a curious change. Twenty years ago there were sold very many more dark eyes than light, but from that period on the sale of dark eyes has been perceptibly dying out. About twenty light eyes are now sold to one dark. In Boston the percentage is even larger—about thirty-five blue or light eyes to one brown; while, on the other hand, in New Orleans fifty brown or dark eyes are sold to one light.

HOME NEWS.

The sale of the Knox Library at Edinburgh realised £3100.

Lord George Hamilton, M.P., has accepted the post of Honorary President of the Gresham Angling Society.

Mr. G. A. Sala is to contribute to Punch a serial romance of modern society entitled "A Party in the City."

Selwyn Court, one of the largest and most historic mansions in Richmond, was partly destroyed by fire on Monday.

The state apartments at Windsor Castle will be closed on and after to-day (Saturday), until further orders.

The Lord Mayor will preside at the annual meeting of the open-air mission to be held next Tuesday afternoon in Sion College, London-wall.

The Lord Chancellor has issued a writ directing the election of a Representative Peer for Ireland in the room of the late Lord Dunboyne.

The Gazette contains the following:—The Queen has been pleased to appoint the Right Hon. John Campbell, Earl of Aberdeen, to be her Majesty's High Commissioner to the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland.

Lord Dufferin will, as has been already stated, succeed Mr. Goschen as Ambassador at the Sublime Porte; and it is probable that Sir Augustus Paget will take Lord Dufferin's place at St. Petersburg.

The twelfth annual session of the Grand Lodge of England of the Good Templars' Order at Southampton began on Monday. The Grand Chief Templar's report mentioned that there had been recently an increase of members.

Mr. James Tomkinson (Liberal) and Mr. H. J. Tollemache (Conservative) were on Saturday last nominated as candidates for the representation of West Cheshire; the polling to take place on the 22nd inst.

In opening a bazaar on Tuesday, at the English Congregational Church, Cefn, Ruabon, the Right Hon. G. O. Morgan, Judge-Advocate-General, said that England owed much to Nonconformity, but Wales owed all to it.

Colonel Everett has consented to continue the mastership of the South and West Wilts Hunt, in compliance with a request made at a meeting of the members at Warminster, under the presidency of Lord Pembroke.

Lord Derby has accepted the office of vice-president of the South-East Lancashire Liberal Association, and has promised £100 yearly in aid of its funds. The noble Lord had already contributed £500 towards the expenses of the general election.

In connection with the international exhibition of wool, woollen manufactures, and allied industries, arranged to take place at the Crystal Palace next autumn, the Clothworker's Company offer sixteen gold medals for specimens of cloths.

A series of drawing-room lectures under the auspices of the National Health Society, is to be given on Friday afternoons at 23, Hertford-street, Mayfair (by permission of Mr. Charles Matthews). The first, given this week, is by Professor Fleeming Jenkin, F.R.S., on "Sanitary House Inspection."

Abbotsford House, near Melrose, the well-known residence of Sir Walter Scott, has been let to Mr. Albert Grant. This will not, it is stated, interfere with the privilege hitherto enjoyed by the public of admission on certain days to the library and museum belonging to the residence.

The Lord Provost of Edinburgh called a representative meeting of the citizens of Edinburgh last week to appoint a committee to obtain subscriptions for painting a portrait of Mr. Duncan M'Laren, late M.P. for the city, to be placed in the council chamber. The subscriptions are limited to a guinea.

A scullers' race for £200 was rowed on Tuesday afternoon on Southampton Water between Edward Trickett, of Sydney, New South Wales, and W. Kirby, of Southampton, in 18-ft. coast-racing boats; and, after a splendid struggle for three parts of the course, ended in the success of the Australian. The distance was four miles in the flood tide.

Eight competitors took part in the race for the hundred-mile bicycle championship, which took place last Saturday at Leicester. Waller, of Newcastle, the long-distance champion, won in 6h. 43 min. 16 4-5 sec. Higham, of Nottingham, came in second, five yards behind; and Derkinderen, of Coventry, who fell a mile from the post, was third.

At the half-yearly meeting of the London Gaslight Company, Major Hawkins, who presided, pointed out with respect to the experiments with the electric light in the city that the cost would probably be four or five times that of gas. At present he thought they need not fear that the light would interfere with them, and if it did, there was an ample business for them.

The large conservatory of the Royal Horticultural Society at South Kensington was on Tuesday gay with a choice display of varieties constituting the National Auricula Society's annual show. Roses, rhododendrons, cinerarias, daffodils, pansies, an numerous other varieties were added to the exhibition in the ordinary course of the Horticultural Society's programme.

An analysis of the prospects of the cricket season of 1881 shows that it bids fair to be memorable for the number and importance of its benefits, the increase in the number of cricket-grounds, and the improved accommodation afforded to the cricket public. Some well-known names have fallen out of the lists; but, on the other hand, there are many young players of great promise, amateur and professional.

The barque Marmora, of Copenhagen, bound from Rochefort to Portheawl, South Wales, drifted on to the Skerweather Sands on the morning of the 12th inst., and was soon dismasted. The Portheawl life-boat, belonging to the National Life-Boat Institution, promptly went out, and found that the heavy ground seas were dashing completely over the stranded ship. The master and crew were rescued and landed in safety.

The Lord Mayor has filled the important appointment of Clerk of Arraigns at the Central Criminal Court, vacant by the death of Mr. Henry Avory, by the nomination of Mr. Edward James Read, who has been Deputy Clerk for many years. Mr. W. J. Soulsby (barrister), his Lordship's secretary, to whom it was offered, declined it, looking at the superior claims of Mr. Read.

A Competitive Examination will be held in London, Edinburgh, Dublin, Bristol, Leeds, Liverpool, Cork, and Belfast, on May 23 and following days, at which one candidate will be selected for a second-class clerkship in the Indian Office, and fifty-six for the lower division of the Civil Service (including those who may succeed in the limited competition under clause 11 of the Order in Council of Feb. 12, 1876).

The Savage Club opened their new club premises at Lancaster House, in the Savoy, on the 16th inst., with one of their delightful Saturday evening reunions, over which Mr. Charles Kelly presided. Mr. W. B. Tegetmeier, one of the oldest members, gave a lively sketch of the history of this popular literary and artistic club, of which Messrs. Sala, Brough, C. H. Bennett, and Andrew Halliday were the founders, and the members of which now comprise many of the foremost workers in art and in journalism. The Savage Club, now entertaining a Prime Minister and next entertained at the Mansion House, for the first time, occupy premises of their own. The decorations are the gifts of artists of mark belonging to the club, which we are glad to see flourishing under its present vigorous and prudent committee.

The weekly return of metropolitan pauperism shows that the total number of paupers on the last day of the second week in April was 92,312, of whom 51,125 were in workhouses and 41,187 received outdoor relief. Compared with the corresponding week in 1880, these figures show an increase of 3560. The number of vagrants relieved on the last day of the week was 806, of whom 611 were men, 164 women, and 31 children under sixteen.

The Lord Lieutenant of Ireland on Tuesday opened the new buildings of the Royal Dublin Society at Ballsbridge. Replying to an address, Earl Cowper expressed gratification that the disturbed relations of landlord and tenant in many parts of Ireland had not marred the success of the spring show there that day. While rejoicing that the foot-and-mouth disease had not appeared in Ireland, he had to report an increase of pleuro-pneumonia, which his Excellency said was accounted for by the unsatisfactory condition of many of the dairies.

Last month 6 tons 15 cwt. of fish unfit for human food (noted as being "an unusually small quantity") was seized at and near Billing-gate-market by the officers of the Fishmongers' Company and destroyed. It all came by land. The fish numbered 19,627, and included 600 fresh bream, 243 crabs, 420 haddocks, 17,100 herrings, 106 jack, 160 lobsters, 126 perch, 814 plaice, 17 salmon, 41 soles; and, in addition, one barrel of "clamps" and 24 of oysters, 3 bags of mussels, 3 of periwinkles, and 2 of whelks, 50 quarts of shrimps, and 20 lb. of eels.

Board of Trade returns show that during last month eighty ships left the Mersey, carrying 14,179 passengers. Of these 5144 were English, 195 Scotch, 1623 Irish, 6992 foreign (mostly Germans), and 225 whose nationality was not given. For the United States 13,487 were bound; and of the remainder 720 sailed for British North America, 13 Australia, 122 South America, 58 East Indies, 8 West Indies, 11 China, and 60 for the West Coast of Africa. Compared with February, the returns exhibit an increase of 3920, and they are 1116 in excess of March last year.

The first of the anniversary meetings for 1881 of the Baptist denomination was held on Tuesday night, when the Young Men's Missionary Association met in the Mission-House, Castle-street, Holborn, under the presidency of Mr. A. H. Baines. In the course of his address the chairman said that the income of the Baptist Missionary Society for the past year had been in excess of the income of any previous one. The report showed that the contributions derived from young men and Sunday-scholars throughout the country now amount to one-third of the society's income. After the report had been approved of, the meeting was addressed by the Rev. J. F. Guyton, who has just arrived from Delhi, on "Mission Work in India."

At the annual meeting on Monday of the North Wales Eisteddfod Society, held at Bangor under the presidency of Dr. Ellis, resolutions were unanimously passed declaring that the time had arrived for placing Wales on the same footing as other parts of the United Kingdom in respect of higher education, which could only be done by endowing a Welsh National University with affiliated colleges, and urging that the requirements of Wales should be recognised by establishing such a college at Bangor. It was decided to memorialise Lord Aberdare's Educational Commission to recommend the removal of Aberystwith College to Bangor, or the establishment of a separate college for North Wales in Bangor.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING APRIL 30.

SUNDAY, APRIL 24.

First Sunday after Easter.
Morning Lessons: Num. xiv. 1—39; 1 Cor. xv. 1—29. Evening Lessons: Num. xvi. 36 or xvii. 1—12; John xx. 24—30.
St. Paul's Cathedral, 10.30 a.m., Rev. R. Wheler Bush; 3.15 p.m., Rev. Canon Liddon; 7 p.m., Rev. Canon Hopkins.
Westminster Abbey, 10 a.m., Rev. T. J. Rowsell; 3 p.m., the Dean of Peterborough; 7 p.m., Rev. Canon Farrar.
St. James's, noon, Rev. Henry White, Chaplain of the Savoy.
Whitehall, 11 a.m.
Temple Church, 11 a.m., uncertain; 3 p.m., Rev. A. Ainger, the Reader.

MONDAY, APRIL 25.

St. Mark, Evangelist and Martyr.
The late Princess Alice born, 1843.
Actuaries' Institute, 7 p.m.
British Architects' Institute, 8 p.m. (Mr. J. Slater on Electric Lighting applied to Buildings).
Medical Society, 8.30 p.m.
Asiatic Society, 4 p.m. (Rev. S. W. Coelia—"Tartar or Turic?").
Philosophical Club, anniversary, 6.30 p.m.
Meeting of the House of Commons.

TUESDAY, APRIL 26.

Easter Law Sittings begin.
Gresham Lectures, 6 p.m. (Dr. Symes Thompson on Aches and Pains); and on the 27th, 28th, and 29th.
Art-Union of London, general meeting, noon.
Horticultural Society, 11 a.m.; promenade, 3 p.m.
Royal Institution, 3 p.m. (Professor Dewar on the Non-Metallic Elements).
Musical Union, 3.15 p.m.
Anthropological Institute, 8 p.m.
Civil Engineers' Institution, 8 p.m. (Mr W. R. Browne on the Relative Values of Upland and Tidal Waters in Promoting Scour).
Medical and Chirurgical Society, 8.30 p.m.
Hibbert Lectures, St. George's Hall, 5 p.m. (Mr. Rhys Davids on Buddhism).
Races: Epsom Spring Meeting; Punchestown.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 27.

London Institution, anniversary, noon.
Botanic Society, spring exhibition, 2 p.m.
Royal Society of Literature, anniversary, 4.30 p.m.
Society of Arts, 8 p.m. (Mr. E. Johnson on the Trade Marks Registration Acts).
Royal Albert Hall, 8 p.m. ("Judas Maccabæus"—first of Mr. Sims Reeves's farewell appearances).
Geological Society, 8 p.m. (papers by Mr. D. Mackintosh, Mr. E. Willett, Rev. J. F. Blake, and Mr. A. W. Wallis).
South Kensington Museum, 4 p.m. (Professor Balfour Stewart on the Connection between Solar and Terrestrial Phenomena); and on Friday.
Birmingham Shorthorn Cattle Show (two days).

THURSDAY, APRIL 28.

New Moon, 10.24 a.m.
Mansion House: meeting to celebrate Lord Shaftesbury's Eightieth Birthday.
Royal Institution, 3 p.m. (Professor Tyndal on Magnetism).
London Institution, 5 p.m. (Rev. H. R. Haweis on some American Humorists).
Royal Society, 4.30 p.m.
Inventors' Institute, 8.15 p.m.
Antiquaries' Society, 8.30 p.m.
Telegraph Engineers' Society, 8 p.m.
Society of Arts, 8 p.m. (Mr. G. S. Johnson on Impurities in Water).
Civil and Mechanical Engineers, 7 p.m. (Mr. E. Haughton on Rainfalls).
Races: Sandown and Thirsk Spring Meetings.

FRIDAY, APRIL 29.

London Institution, 5 p.m. (Rev. H. R. Haweis on some American Humorists).
Architectural Association, soirée, 7.30 p.m.
Zoological Society, anniversary, 1 p.m.
Society of Arts, 8 p.m. (General Maclagan on Indian Building Acts).
National Health Society, Mayfair Lectures, 4 p.m. (Dr. R. Farquharson on the Health of Public Schools).
Royal Institution, 8 p.m. (Professor J. S. Blackie on the Language and Literature of the Scottish Highlands, 9 p.m.).
Sacred Harmonic Society, 7.30 p.m. (Mendelssohn's "Elijah").

SATURDAY, APRIL 30.

Royal Institution, 3 p.m. (Professor H. Morley on Scotland's Part in English Literature).
Geologists' Association, excursion to Charlton, Blackheath, &c., Charing-cross, 1.40 p.m.
Schoolmasters' Society, anniversary, 2 p.m.

ART NOTES.

Mr. Walter S. Stacey and Mr. Samuel J. Hodson have been elected members of the Incorporated Society of British Artists. The exhibition was open free on Easter Monday.

The twenty-first Exhibition of the Belgian Society of Water-Colour Painters, at the Palais des Beaux Arts, was opened on Sunday by the Minister of the Interior.

The private view of the Exhibition of the Institute of Painters in Water-Colours is opened to-day (Saturday), and we are glad to announce that it will contain a "Study of a Head," by her Imperial and Royal Highness the Crown Princess of Germany, our Princess Royal, with other works of interest, to be hereafter noticed.

Lord Rosebery on Thursday week opened a loan exhibition of works of art at St. Jude's School-Rooms, Commercial-street, Whitechapel, held during the Easter Holidays for the benefit of the working classes of the East-End. Several well-known artists were induced by the Rev. Mr. Barnett—to whom the credit of the whole is due—to attend and explain to the holiday-makers the meaning and point of the different objects set out.

It is stated that Mr. Richard Redgrave has resigned his post as Royal Academician, to which he was elected in the year 1851. Mr. Redgrave's motive is, the Daily News believes, a desire to open the honours of the profession to younger artists, and his example might very properly be followed by some of his colleagues.

The second Exhibition of the City of London Society of Artists will be held at the hall of the Skinners' Company, Dowgate-hill, Cannon-street, and the exhibition will be opened by the Lord Mayor on the 27th inst.

SUBSCRIPTION TO
THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

AT HOME.

Twelve months (including Christmas Number) £1 9s. 3d. Christmas Half-Year, 15s. 3d.
Six months, 14s. Christmas Quarter, 8s. 3d.
Three months, 7s.

Copies will be supplied direct from the Office to any part of the United Kingdom and the Channel Islands, for any period, at the rate of 6d. for each Number, paid in advance.

ABROAD.

The yearly subscription abroad is 36s. 4d. (on thin paper, 32s.), with the following exceptions:—

To Aden, Borneo, Ceylon, India, Java, Labuan, Mozambique, Penang, Philippine Islands, Sarawak, Singapore, and Zanzibar, 41s. (thin paper, 34s.)

To the Hawaiian Islands, Madagascar (except St. Mary's), and Paraguay, 45s. (on thin paper, 36s. 4d.)

Subscribers are specially advised to order the thick paper edition, the appearance of the engravings in the thin paper copies being greatly injured by the print at the back showing through.

Newspapers for foreign parts must be posted within eight days of the time of publication, irrespective of the departure of the mails.

Subscriptions must be paid in advance, direct to the Publishing Office, 198, Strand, in English money; by cheque crossed the Union Bank of London; or by Post-Office Order, payable at the East Strand Post Office, to George C. Leighton, of 198, Strand, London.

JAY'S, Regent-street.

MOURNING.—Messrs. JAY'S Experienced Assistants travel to any part of the kingdom, free of expense to purchasers. They take dresses and millinery with them, besides patterns of materials, all marked in plain figures, and if the same prove not as if purchased at the Warehouse in Regent-street. Funerals of every description conducted in London or country. JAY'S, REGENT-STREET.

EVENING DRESSES, Black Net, Tulle, and Spanish Lace.—Messrs. JAY prepare for the season a variety of Black Evening Dresses, which they can confidently recommend both for correctness of fashion and economy in price. Designs and prices always free.
JAY'S, Regent-street.

DRESS.—Messrs. JAY respectfully invite their clientele to the choicer collection of Pattern Costumes of the Newest Type of Fashion, which are imported from Paris and Berlin.
JAY'S, Regent-street.

PEAU DE CHAMOIS COSTUMES.—A varied series of COSTUMES, made from Peau de Chamois Satin, are produced weekly during the season. Price 6½ guineas each, including sufficient satin to make a bodice.
JAY'S.
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
REGENT-STREET, W.

NICHOLSON'S
NEW SPRING SAMPLES.
Patterns post-free.
FRENCH CASHMERES, BEIGES,
SERGES, HERRING-BONE and MILAN STRIPES, and all the Newest Materials in the most beautiful colours.

NICHOLSON'S
NEW WASHING FABRICS.
Patterns post-free.
FRENCH SATTEENS, CAMBRICS,
OATMEAL CLOTH, BRILLIANTS, &c.
in every new and tasteful design.

NICHOLSON'S
NEW SILKS.
Patterns post-free.
PLUSHES, VELVETS, SATINS,
BROCHÉS, SATIN DE LYONS, and PLAIN LYONS GROS GRAIN,
in every fashionable shade.

D. NICHOLSON and Co.,
50 to 52, ST. PAUL'S CHURCHYARD, LONDON.
SOLE LESSEES OF THE COSTUME COURT, CRYSTAL PALACE.

HENRY GLAVE'S
NEW ARTISTIC SPRING AND SUMMER
FASHION-BOOK, "THE OLYMPUS."
NOTICE.—The above book, with all its original drawings, is registered as our exclusive property.
Sent post-free to any address.
Also Patterns of all Kinds of Black and Coloured Silks, Plain and Fancy Dresses, Bonnet Lustres, Imperry, or any other goods, of which our Stock is one of the Largest and Cheapest in London.
HENRY GLAVE,
534, 536, 538, 540, New Oxford-street.

LADIES' ELASTIC SUPPORTING BANDS, for use before and after Accouchement.
Instructions for measurement and prices on application to POPE and PLANTE, 4, Waterloo-place, Pall-mall, London.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

WILKIE COLLINS'S NEW NOVEL.
Now ready, in 3 vols., crown 8vo, at every Library.
THE BLACK ROBE. By WILKIE COLLINS, Author of "The Woman in White."

NEW NOVEL BY THE AUTHORS OF "READY-MONEY MORTIBOY."
Now ready, 3 vols., crown 8vo, at every Library.
THE CHAPLAIN OF THE FLEET. By WALTER BESANT and JAMES RICE.

MR. JAMES PAYN'S NEW NOVEL.
Now ready, 3 vols., crown 8vo, at every Library.
FROM EXILE. By JAMES PAYN, Author of "By Proxy," &c.

Crown 8vo, cloth extra, 7s. 6d.,
THE SUBURBAN HOMES OF LONDON: A Residential Guide to Favourite London Localities, their Society, Celebrities, and Associations. With Notes on their Rental, Rates, and House Accommodation.
CHATTO and WINDUS, Piccadilly, W.

Price One Shilling,
THE GENTLEMAN'S MAGAZINE
for MAY.
CONTENTS.
The Comet of a Season. By Justin McCarthy, M.P.
Facts of Family Nomenclature. By Edward Whitaker.
What Became of Clementi?
Oliver Surface. By Dutton Cook.
The Evolution of Insects. By Andrew Wilson, F.R.S.E.
The Curious Elizabeth. By James Forbes.
Some of Fanny's Friends. By John Dennis.
Science Notes. By W. Mattieu Williams.
Table Talk. By Sylvanus Urban.

Price One Shilling, Illustrated,
BELGRAVIA
for MAY.
CONTENTS.
Joseph's Coat. By D. Christie Murray. Illustrated by Fred. Barnard.
The Epicure in Jamaica. By J. Arbuthnot Wilson.
The Little Passion. By Mrs. Lynn Linton.
Behind the Scenes. By Percy Fitzgerald.
Recollections about Eton: V. By Alfred Rimmer. With Four Illustrations.
A Story of the White Czar. By J. Maclaren Cobban.
A Romance of the Nineteenth Century. By W. H. Mallock.
CHATTO and WINDUS, Piccadilly, W.

MR. HUBERT HERKOMER, A.R.A., has executed a large Design for a PICTORIAL ADVERTISEMENT (size 11 ft. 6 in. by 8 ft.), by reference to which an Article will appear in THE MAGAZINE OF ART for MAY, under the title of THE STREETS AS ART-GALLERIES.

THE MAGAZINE OF ART for MAY,
"The Symbol." From the Painting by Frank Dicksee, A.R.A.
Treasure-Houses of Art: The Collection of Mr. C. F. Matthews. With Five Engravings.
English Birds and their Haunts. With Five Illustrations.
Our Living Artists: W. Q. Orchardson, R.A. With Portrait and Two Engravings.
"Apple-Blossom." From the Painting by M. Beyle.
Children in Painting and Sculpture. With Four Engravings.
The Homes of our Artists: Mr. Millais' House at Palace Gate. With Five Illustrations.
The Future of Sculpture in London.
Decorative Iron-Work. With Six Illustrations.
The Streets as Art-Galleries. With Two Engravings.
Pictures of the Year. With Four Illustrations.
"Shepherds Discovering the Head of Orpheus." From the Bas-Relief by M. Combe-minier.
Art Notes.
CASSELL, PETTER, GALPIN, and Co., Ludgate-hill, London.

POPULAR EDITION OF THE DORE MILTON.
On April 25 will be published, PART I., price 7d. (to be completed in Twenty-five Parts), of MILTON'S PARADISE LOST. Illustrated by GUSTAVE DORÉ.
Prospectuses at all Booksellers, or post-free from CASSELL, PETTER, GALPIN, and Co., Ludgate-hill, London.

On April 25 will be published, PART I., price 2d., of THE NEW AND REVISED EDITION,
CASSELL'S HOUSEHOLD GUIDE.
"Cassell's Household Guide" is a book for every house-hold, and is recommended by the Queen with many others on a smaller scale, because it is, as the title says, a complete Encyclopædia of Domestic and Social Economy.
Prospectuses at all Booksellers, or post-free from CASSELL, PETTER, GALPIN, and Co., Ludgate-hill, London.

Just ready, price One Shilling,
SYLVIA'S BOOK OF
BAZAARS AND FANCY FAIRS.
How to Organise a Bazaar or Fancy Fair, Arrange Stalls, Prepare Articles, Mark Prices, with full details as to saleable novelties, and contains 75 Useful Illustrations.
London: WARD, LOCK, and Co., Salisbury-square, E.C.

Just ready, boards, price One Shilling,
THE LIFE OF LORD BEACONSFIELD.
Statesman and Author. A record of his Political and Literary Career.
London: WARD, LOCK, and Co., Salisbury-square, E.C.

THE CHEAPEST COMMENTARY EVER PUBLISHED.
In One Shilling Monthly Parts,
DR. ADAM CLARKE'S COMMENTARY
ON THE HOLY BIBLE. New Edition, with additional Notes, bringing the Work up to the present Standard of Biblical Knowledge.
UNABRIDGED EDITION, containing 4000 pages (each 8 inches by 5), in handsome volumes), with about 800 engravings.
Prospectus post-free on application.
London: WARD, LOCK, and Co., Salisbury-square, E.C.

WARD AND LOCK'S LONG-LIFE SERIES.
New Volume, Strongly Bound in cloth, price 1s.,
HEARING, AND HOW TO KEEP IT.
Also, ready in same series:—
1. LONG LIFE, AND HOW TO REACH IT.
2. THE PIPES AND THE VOICE.
3. EYE-SIGHT, AND HOW TO CARE FOR IT.
4. THE MOUTH AND THE TEETH.
5. THE SKIN IN HEALTH AND DISEASE.
6. BRAIN-WORK AND OVER-WORK.
7. SICK NURSING.
8. THE YOUNG WIFE'S ADVICE-BOOK.
9. SLEEP, HOW TO OBTAIN IT.
The "Saturday Review" says:—"It is not too much to say of them, as a series, that the shilling invested in them in each of them may be the means of saving many a guinea."
London: WARD, LOCK, and Co., Salisbury-square, E.C.

JUST PUBLISHED, post-free, 2 stamps,
DYSPEPSIA and the SEVERER FORMS OF INDIGESTION. A small pamphlet on these distressing complaints and their complete cure. Published by the Author, RICHARD KING, Esq., Staff-surgeon R.N., 23, Warwick-st., Rugby.

Eighth Edition, cloth, post-free, 33 stamps,
DR. BARR MEADOWS on Skin Disease.
Remarks on the Abuse of Arsenic, and specifics.
London: G. HILL, 154, Westminster-road.

Just published, post-free, Two Stamps,
FITS.—EPILEPSY, or FALLING SICKNESS.—SENSATIONS, GIDDINESS, FAINTS.—A Pamphlet on these distressing complaints, explaining their Treatment and complete Cure. By a Licentiate of the Royal College of Physicians. Published by Mr. WILLIAMS, 10, Oxford-terrace, Hyde Park, London.

Second Edition, price 4s. 6d., to be had of all Booksellers,
RESPIRATORY DISEASES, CONSUMPTION, BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, &c., and their Specific Cure, by Dr. JOHN FRANCIS CHURCHILL'S Discoveries of the Hypophosphites and Iodulants.
J. W. KNIGHT and SON, No. 2, Langham-place, London.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

"A PARTY IN THE CITY."
NEW NOVEL by
GEORGE AUGUSTUS SALA.
THE OPENING CHAPTERS of
GEORGE AUGUSTUS SALA'S
SERIAL ROMANCE of Modern Society and Civilisation.
WRITTEN EXPRESSLY for PAN, entitled
"A PARTY IN THE CITY"
appears in this week's Number.

PAN. A Novelty PAN.
PAN. in PAN.
PAN. Journalism. PAN.
PAN. Every Saturday. PAN.
PAN. Price Sixpence. PAN.
PAN. An Illustrated PAN.
PAN. Journal of PAN.
PAN. Gossip and Criticism. PAN.

"A PARTY IN THE CITY."
THE OPENING CHAPTERS of
GEORGE AUGUSTUS SALA'S
NEW STORY of LONDON LIFE
APPEARS in PAN for APRIL 23.

PAN.—Among the Contributors to PAN are:—
Sir FREDERICK LEIGHTON, P.R.A.
FRED. SANDYS.
DUTTON COOK.
GILBERT A'BECKET.
JOSEPH HATTON.
GEORGE AUGUSTUS SALA.
DAVID ANDERSON.
SUTHERLAND EDWARDS.
HAWLEY SMART.
OSCAR WILDE.
JAMES DAVIS.
FRANK MARSHALL.
E. C. GRENVILLE-MURRAY.
CLEMENT SCOTT.
Hon. LEWIS WINGFIELD.
F. H. COWEN.

PAN.—Of ALL NEWSAGENTS.

THE NEW AND POPULAR NOVELS.
Now ready, at all the Libraries, in 3 vols.,
HARRY JOSCELYN. By Mrs. OLIPHANT.
LOVE-KNOTS. By the Author of "Ursula's Love Story," &c.
BESIDE THE RIVER. By Mrs. MACQUOID.
HIS LITTLE MOTHER. By the Author of "John Halifax." 1 vol., 6s. cl.
SYDNEY. By GEORGIANA M. CRAIK. 3 vols. [April 29
HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

NEW NOVELS AT ALL LIBRARIES.
POLICY AND PASSION. By Mrs. CAMPBELL PRAED. 3 vols.
AN OCEAN FREE LANCE. By the Author of "The Wreck of the Grosvenor," &c. 3 vols.
A CHILD OF NATURE. By ROBERT BUCHANAN. Second Edition. 3 vols.
NEW AND CHEAPER EDITION OF
JOHNNY LUDLOW (Second Series). By Mrs. HENRY WOOD. Crown 8vo, price 6s.
RICHARD BENTLEY and SON, New Burlington-street.

On April 20 (One Shilling), No. 257,
THE CORNHILL MAGAZINE for MAY. With Illustrations by George Du Maurier and W. Small.
CONTENTS.
A Grape from a Thorn. By James Payn. (With an Illustration.) Chap. XIX.—The Lost Locket. Chap. XX.—Mr. Aird's Love-Story. XXI.—Illness in the Hotel. XXII.—The Invitation.
Batons and Sceptres.
A Bishop's Vocabulary.
"At Home" to the Poor.
Fancy Gentlemen.
One Year in a German Cookery School.
Love the Debtor. (With an Illustration.) Chap. XIII.—A Proposal. XIV.—Consolation. XV.—Mr. Robert Sagar.
London: SMITH, ELDER, and Co., 15, Waterloo-place.

HOUSEHOLD WORDS.
The New Family Journal of Fiction, and all Matters of Interest in the Household.
Edited by CHARLES DICKENS.
PRICE ONE PENNY.
No 1 will be published on APRIL 27.
Office: 24, Great New-street, E.C.

1d., Weekly; Monthly Part, 5d.,
GARDENING ILLUSTRATED. Villa, Suburban, Cottage, and Farm Gardening; Window Plants, Bees, Poultry. All Newsagents.
One Penny per post, 1½d. Vol. I., 7s. 6d.
37, Southampton-street, Strand, London.

MENDELSSOHN'S L'ANGE QUI CHANTE. Melodic Celeste. "A truly divine inspiration and angelic strain of heavenly purity."—Standard.
Piano Solo, Violin and Piano, Flute and Piano, Violoncello and Piano.
Each 3s. 6d. net.—W. CZERNY, 349, Oxford-street.

"MACNIVEN and CAMERON'S PENS are among the best products of British industry."—Birmingham Gazette.
The New Pens. Just out.
The BIG WAVERLEY PEN } 6d. and 1s. per Box.
The BIG "J." PEN }
"They are a treasure."—Standard. Sold by all Stationers.
Sample Box with all the kinds, by post, 1s. 1d.
Patentees of Pens and Penholders: Macniven and Cameron, 23 to 33, Blair-street, Edinburgh; EST. 1770.
Beware of the party offering spurious Imitations.

JOSEPH GILLOTT'S STEEL PENS.
GOLD MEDAL, PARIS, 1878.

LONDON SOCIETY for TEACHING the BLIND, Upper Avenue-road, Hampstead, opposite the Swiss Cottage Station.
State of the Poll at the Election of Free Pupils:—
WEDNESDAY, APRIL 13, 1881.
SUCCESSFUL CANDIDATES.
Boys.
Walter E. West .. .. .. .. .. 670
H. J. Peacock .. .. .. .. .. 621
Girls.
Lucy S. Holton .. .. .. .. .. 1129
Harriet E. Hobler .. .. .. .. .. 852
Elizabeth Bramley .. .. .. .. .. 467
UNSUCCESSFUL CANDIDATES.
Boys.
J. H. Johnson .. .. .. .. .. 420
H. D. Whitlock .. .. .. .. .. 18
Girls.
Louisa Marston .. 388 | Mary R. Grard .. .. 81
Alice Norman .. 220 | Edith Barwood .. .. 33
Gertrude Phillips 110 | Edith M. J. Jones .. .. 13
Edith S. Smithen 101 | Annie E. Hubbard .. .. 7
Annual subscribers are entitled to one vote for each half guinea subscribed, and donors or collectors to one vote during life for each five guineas given or collected.
HENRY SHARP (Hon. Chaplain), Chairman.
JAMES SANDER, Assistant-secretary.

MALVERN COLLEGE.
The NEXT TERM will BEGIN on TUESDAY, MAY 10.

DIRECTORS, AUDITORS, and SECRETARY required for a Limited Liability Company. Must undertake to introduce capital. Directors qualification, £200. Address by letter only, A. R., Messrs. Tongue and Bickford, 36, Southampton-buildings, London, W.C.

MESSRS. H. SALTER and SONS, Mortgage Brokers, desire to notify that their LONDON OFFICES are REMOVED from Pancras-lane to 27, Clement's-lane, Lombard-street, where communications respecting Loans on Mortgage or Funds for Investment should now be sent.

DEATH OF LORD BEACONSFIELD.
MEDALLION BROOCH, Registered, with Likeness and Date of Birth and Death encircled with a Wreath of Olive and Myrtle, surmounted with the Earl's Coronet. To be had of any Jeweller. Prices—Bronzed or Plated, 2s. 6d.; Solid Silver, 7s. 6d.; Gold, 17s. 6d. Designed for Ladies' or Gentlemen's wear. Specially constructed for the centre of a Bracelet. Ribbon Badge in Memoriam.—Wholesale Price-List (illustrated) of W. M. LISTER, Manufacturer, 41, Hockley-hill, Birmingham.

FOR ARMS and CREST send Name and County to T. MORING, Inns of Court Heraldic Offices, 44, High Holborn, W.C. Plain Sketch, 3s. 6d.; Coloured, 7s. 6d. Seals, Dies, and Diplomas. Illustrated Price-Lists post-free.

FOR FAMILY ARMS (Lincoln's-inn Heraldic Office) send Name and County. Sketch, 3s. 6d.; in colours, 7s. 6d. Arms Painted and Engraved on Seals, Dies, &c. PUGH BROTHERS, Great Turnstile, Lincoln's-inn, W.C.; and 56, Queen Victoria-street, E.C. Prize Medal, Paris, 1878.

WHAT IS YOUR CREST and WHAT IS YOUR MOTTO? Send name and county to CULLETON'S Heraldic Office, Plain Sketch, 3s. 6d.; Coloured, 7s. The arms of man and wife blended. Crest engraved on seals, rings, books, and steel dies, 7s. 6d. Gold seal, with crest, 20s. Solid Gold Ring, hall-marked, with crest, 45s. Manual of Heraldry, 400 engravings, 7s. 6d.—T. CULLETON, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

CULLETON'S GUINEA BOX of STATIONERY contains a ream of the very best Paper and 100 Envelopes, all stamped in the most elegant way with Crest and Motto, Monogram, or Address, and the engraving of steel Die included. Sent to any part of the world.—T. CULLETON, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

VISITING CARDS, by CULLETON. Fifty best quality, 2s. 6d., post-free, including the Engraving of Copper-plate. Wedding Cards, 50 each, 50 Embossed Envelopes, with Maiden Name, 12s. 6d.—T. CULLETON, Seal Engraver, 25, Cranbourn-street, St. Martin's-lane, W.C.

WHITE WOOD ARTICLES for Painting, Fern Painting, and Decalcomanie, Blotting-Books, Card Plates, Cigar-boxes, Screens, &c. New Patterns, Pierced Hat-free. WM. BARNARD, 129, Edgware-road, London, W.

ERARDS' PIANOS.—Messrs. ERARD, of 18, Great Marlborough-street, London, and 13, Rue de Mail, Paris, Makers to her Majesty and the Prince and Princess of Wales. CAUTION the Public that Pianofortes are being sold bearing the name of "Erard" which are not of their manufacture. For information as to authenticity apply at 18, Great Marlborough-street, where new Pianos can be obtained from 50 guineas.

ERARDS' PIANOS.—COTTAGES, from 50 guineas.
OBLIQUES, from 85 guineas.
GRANDS, from 125 guineas.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN PRINTER. The People's Printing Press, for Authors, Amateurs, the Army and Navy, &c. Prospectuses forwarded on application to D. G. BERRI, 36, High Holborn, London, W.C.

ROBERT ROBERTS AND CO.'S
CELEBRATED TEAS.
TWELVE POUNDS AND UPWARDS CARRIAGE PAID.
Samples and Price-lists free by post.
Queen Insurance-buildings, Liverpool. ESTABLISHED 1840.
No agents.
All communications and orders direct.

THE LONG TRYING WINTER, necessitating large fires, and living in a hot, dry atmosphere, has not been without effect upon the hair of most people, who will do well to use ROWLANDS' MACASSAR OIL during the Spring months if they desire the usual Spring growth of chevelure. Sold everywhere.

SPRING.—Cutaneous visitations now prevail, and render ROWLANDS' KALYDOR, for the Complexion and Skin, of peculiar value and importance. This unique botanical preparation allays all irritation and tenderness of the skin, removes cutaneous disfigurements, freckles, and tan, and imparts a healthy and blooming appearance to the complexion, and a delicacy and softness to the neck, hands, and arms. Sold in two sizes, by Chemists.

"KEATING'S POWDER" kills BUGS, Moths, Fleas, Beetles, and all Insects (perfectly unrivalled). Harmless to everything but Insects. Tins, 6d. and 1s.

UNITED STATES CONSULATE, Crefeld, Rhenish Prussia, Feb. 8, 1881.
"Gentlemen,—I find it impossible to obtain, in this part of Germany, the 'Pain Killer;' and I request you to send me the largest order. I desire this medicine for the purpose of giving it away to persons whose especial sufferings I know will be relieved by its use, and whose sufferings are needless, when this most efficient remedy can be obtained. I have known the 'Pain Killer,' in Massachusetts almost from the day it was introduced to the public, and, after long years of observation and use, I am satisfied it is positively efficient as a healing remedy for exterior wounds, bruises, and sprains, and is not less efficient in relieving the many inferior pains and troubles arising from colds and from imprudence and excesses in eating and drinking. I regard the 'Pain Killer' as an indispensable necessity, and when it is gone feel much as does the owner of a house in a dangerous neighbourhood after his policy of insurance has expired.
"I am, very truly yours,
"J. S. FOSTER, American Consul.
"To the Proprietors of the 'Pain Killer.'"
Every family should know that this remarkable medicine is sold by nearly all Chemists, and supplied in Bottles from 1s. 1½d. to 10s. 6d. Its price brings it within the reach of all. Wholesale Agent, JOHN M. RICHARDS, London.

SULPHOLINE LOTION.—An external Cure for Skin Diseases. There is scarcely any eruption but will yield to SULPHOLINE and fade away in a few days. Ordinary pimples, redness, blotches, scurf, roughness, vanish as if by magic; while old skin disorders, that have plagued sufferers for years, however deeply seated, Sulpholine will successfully attack them. It destroys the animalcule which cause these unsightly, irritable affections, and always produces a clear skin. Sulpholine Lotion is sold by Chemists. Bottles, 2s. 9d.

NEW MUSIC.

OLIVETTE. New Comic Opera. Enormous success at the Strand Theatre. Adapted by H. B. Farnie; Music by AUDRAN.
Vocal score .. .. .. .. 8s. net.
Abridged Edition of the Vocal Score, containing the Overture, Songs, &c. .. .. .. .. .. 4s. ..
Pianoforte Solo .. .. .. .. .. .. 2s. 6d. ..
All the Favourite Airs, arranged for the Violin .. 1s. 6d. ..
Lancers. D'Albert .. 2s. net. | Galop. D'Albert .. 2s. net.
Waltz. D'Albert .. 2s. .. | Nearest and Dearest Waltz. D'Albert .. 2s. ..
Polka. D'Albert .. 2s. ..
Boyton Smith's Fantasia .. .. .. 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

NEW AND POPULAR SONGS.

WELCOME. Lady ARTHUR HILL. 2s. net.
COEUR DE LION. H. J. STARK. Sung by Mr. Oswald. 2s. net.
AT THE PORTAL. N. FERRI. Sung by Madame Mary Cummings. 2s. net.
WHAT THE FIRELIGHT TOLD. J. L. ROECKEL. 2s. net.
ANGUS MACDONALD. J. L. ROECKEL. Sung by Madame Enriquez. 2s. net.
THE CHILDREN IN THE WOOD. ROECKEL. 2s. net.
WHERE THE PURPLE VIOLET GROWS. From "The Turquoise Ring." L. BENSON. 2s. net.
DINNA LEAVE ME. A. M. WAKEFIELD, Composer of "No, Sir." 2s. net.
THOUGHTS AT SUNRISE. Mrs. L. MONCRIEFF. 2s. net.
BEREAVED ("Moonlight falls o'er the Sea"). LUKE C. WHEELER. 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

NEW SONGS by Mrs. RONALDS.
IN SHADOW .. .. .. .. 2s. net.
WHY? .. .. .. .. 2s. net.
EVER NEAR .. .. .. .. 2s. net.
DIS MOI POURQUOI .. .. .. 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

CHARLES D'ALBERT'S NOVELTIES.
PIRATES OF PENZANCE LANCERS, WALTZ, QUADRILLE, POLKA, and GALOP .. each 2s. 6d. net
ADELINA WALTZ. Illustrated with beautiful Portrait of Madame Patti .. .. .. 2s. 6d. net
PORTIA WALTZ .. .. .. .. 2s. 6d. net
DRINK, PUPPY, DRINK! POLKA .. .. .. 2s. 6d. net
ODNGRESS LANCERS .. .. .. .. 2s. 6d. net
DISTANT SHORE WALTZ .. .. .. 2s. 6d. net
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

Now ready, Volume II. of
CHAPPELL'S OLD ENGLISH DITTIES.
Handsomely bound in cloth and gold.
Price 10s. 6d. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S THREE-YEARS' SYSTEM of HIRE of PIANOFORTES, HARMONIUMS, and AMERICAN ORGANS, by which the Instrument becomes the property of the Hirer at the end of the third year, provided each quarter's hire shall have been regularly paid in advance. Pianofortes, from 2 gs. Harmoniums, from £1 5s.; and American Organs, from £2 10s. a Quarter.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S PIANINOS, from 20 guineas.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S COTTAGES, from 27 guineas.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S GRANDS, from 75 guineas.

CHICKERING PIANOFORTES, from 120 guineas, with American discount.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ALEXANDRE HARMONIUMS, for Church, Schools, or Drawing-Rooms, from 6 to 150 guineas; or, on the Three-Years' System, from £1 5s. per quarter.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S IMPROVED AMERICAN ORGANS, combining Pipes with Reeds, Manufactured by Clough and Warren, Detroit, U.S.A. The immense advantages these instruments possess over the Organs hitherto imported have induced Messrs. Chappell and Co. to undertake the sole Agency of this eminent House. A large variety on view, from 18 to 250 guineas. Price-Lists on application to CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

CLOUGH and WARREN'S Favourite ORGAN. Compass, five octaves, ten stops, four sets of reeds, two of two and two thirds octaves and two of two and one third octaves, knee swell, elegant carved Canadian walnut case, price 27 guineas. With twelve stops, sub-bass octave coupler, and two knee pedals, 35 guineas. Illustrated Price-List free by post.
Sole Agents, CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

INSTRUMENTS by ALL MAKERS may be HIRED or PURCHASED on the Three-Years' System.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

A LARGE DISCOUNT TO PURCHASERS FOR CASH.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

PIANOFORTES for HIRE or for SALE, from 25 guineas upwards.—JOHN BROADWOOD and SONS, 33, Great Pulteney-street, Golden-square, W. Manufactory, 15, Horseferry-road, Westminster, W.

BROADWOOD'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on CRAMER'S Three-Years' System from £2 12s. 6d. per Quarter.

COLLARD'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on CRAMER'S Three-Years' System; in Black and Gold Cases, at £4 14s. 6d. to £5 5s., £6 6s., £7 7s., and in Special Early English Ebonised Case, £8 8s. per Quarter.

ERARD'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on CRAMER'S Three-Years' System, from £5 5s. per Quarter.

CRAMER'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on their Three-Years' System, from £1 11s. 6d. per Quarter. Detailed Lists post-free on application to Regent-street, W.; Bond-street, W.; Moorgate-street, E.C.; and 165, High-street, Notting-hill.

PLEYEL WOLFF and CO. Established 1807. Gold Medal, 1827, 1834, 1839, 1844, and 1878. Prize Medal, 1862. Medaille d'Honneur, 1855. Hors de Concours, 1849, 1867, 1875. The Sole Agents have every description of these admired PIANOS for SALE or HIRE. Special models in black wood.—170, New Bond-street, W.

£20 SCHOOL-ROOM PIANO (Co-operative price for cash). Seven octaves—strong, sound, and substantial. Adapted for hard practice. Carefully packed free, and sent to any part. Drawings gratis.
THOMAS OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street.

£35.—There is nothing in London—nor, in fact, in all England—to be compared to the elegantly carved DRAWING-ROOM TRICHORD COTTAGE PIANOFORTE, with Cabriole Truss Legs, which is sold for £35 by THOMAS OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, Portman-sq.

"steinway is to the Pianist what Stradaurius is to the Violinist."—Herr Joachim.
THE STEINWAY PIANOFORTES, GRAND AND UPRIGHT.
THE GREATEST PIANOFORTES IN THE WORLD.
The Steinway Pianofortes are the chosen instruments of the educated and wealthy classes in every nation throughout civilisation, and have by far the largest annual sale of any pianofortes in the world.
STEINWAY and SONS,
STEINWAY HALL,
LOWER SEYMOUR-STREET, PORTMAN-SQUARE, W.
(And at Steinway Hall, New York.)

NEW MUSIC.

MADAME PATEY'S NEW SONGS.
THE CHILDREN OF THE CITY. By S. ADAMS.
THE MERCHANT OF CHEAPSIDE. By LOUIS DIEHL.
2s. each.—BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

EDWARD LLOYD'S NEW SONGS.
MIGNONETTE. By SUCHET CHAMPION.
THE LOVE OF LONG AGO. By W. H. CUMMINGS.
2s. each.—BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

MARZIALS' NEW SONGS.
A SUMMER SHOWER. Sung by Miss Mary Davies.
HUGHESTER BELLS. Sung by the Composer.
THAT SWEET STORY OF OLD. Sacred Song.
2s. each.—BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

MOLLOY'S NEW SONGS.
THE BOATSWAIN'S STORY. Sung by Mr. Santley.
THE FIRST LETTER. Sung by Miss Mary Davies.
TWENTY-ONE. Sung by Antoinette Sterling.
2s. each.—BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

JOSEPH WILLIAMS'S LIST.
THE LATEST SUCCESS.
BILLEE TAYLOR. Comic Opera. By H. P. STEPHENS and E. SOLOMON.
VOCAL SCORE .. .. .. .. 6s. net.
SONGS .. .. .. .. 2s. net.
ALL ON ACCOUNT OF ELIZA. (Third Edition). 2s. net.
SELF-MADE KNIGHT (Second Edition). 2s. net.
THE MERTUOUS GARIBALDI. 2s. net.
FANTASIA FOR PIANO. CH. TOURVILLE. 1s. 6d. net.

PIANO SCORE (Complete). 2s. 6d. net. Now ready.
*QUADRILLES. By CHARLES COOTE. 2s. net.
*LANCERS. By ARTHUR GRENVILLE. 2s. net.
*WALTZES. By CHARLES GODFREY. 2s. net.
DANCE MUSIC, BILLEE TAYLOR, ready. Orchestra, 2s.; Septet, 1s. 6d.
* Beautifully Illustrated.

HENRY FARMER'S PIANOFORTE Author. 1000th Edition. 4s.
"Decidedly the best and most useful instruction book we have seen."—Musical Review.

THE LOVE OF OLD. ROECKEL'S charming New Song will be sung by Miss Damian at her forthcoming engagements. Post-free, 24 stamps.

PIANO DUETS.
C. REINECKE. Three Sonatas, Op. 129. Price 2s. each, net.

PIANO SOLOS.
W. KUHE. NEW SACRED TRANSCRIPTIONS.
Elli (Costa); Emanuel (Jewell); Hidero. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
TH. LACK. NEW PIECES.
Menuet, La Meurette, Hidero. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
H. ROUBIER. NEW PIECES.
Joyeuse Rentrée, Fête à Trianon, Parfait Bonheur. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
FRANZ HITZ. NEW PIECES.
Cavatelage (Caprice), Latin Rose, Le Regiment qui passe. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
JOYFUL MOMENTS. Ten Easy Pieces on Popular Subjects. Arranged by CH. TOURVILLE. Price 1s. each net.
OUR FAVOURITES. Ten Moderately Easy Pieces on Popular Subjects. Arranged by CH. TOURVILLE. Price 1s. 3d. each net.
THE PROGRESSIVE MUSIC SCHOOL.
Carefully Edited, Fingered, and Corrected from the Original Manuscripts by J. LEYBACH. First Series (very easy), 15 Numbers. Numbers 1 to 14, price 1s. 3d. each net. Number 15, price 1s. 6d. net.

VIOLIN AND PIANO DUETS.
S. JACOBY. Six Popular Airs (Easy). Price 1s. each net.
CH. TOURVILLE. Twelve Favourite Subjects (Moderate). Price 1s. 6d. each net.
H. FARMER. Popular Violin Solos (Brilliant), with Piano Accompaniment. Nine Numbers. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 24, Berners-street, W.; and 123, Cheapside, E.C.

SUNG BY ARTHUR ROBERTS.
THE GOOD YOUNG MAN WHO DIED.
An Æsthetic Lay. Words by H. P. Stephens; Music by E. SOLOMON. "He has left this world for a brighter sphere, There 's a neat little headstone o'er him, Telling how much we held him dear, And how deeply we mourn his loss." But that cannot tell how we miss his ways, Our friend, philosopher, and guide; For years to come we shall sing in praise Of the good young man who died." Post-free for 24 stamps.—London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 24, Berners-street; and 123, Cheapside.

ESPERANZA. Now Waltz. By L. NOVICIO. Published by WEEKES and Co., Hanover-street, London. Eminently dansante.

DEAR ENGLAND. Song. By LOUIS DIEHL. Signor Foli has selected this Song for his current provincial Concerts at Weymouth, Bournemouth, Southsea, Bristol, Plymouth, &c. "Both music and poetry appeal to the heart of every Englishman." Post-free for 24 stamps.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

TARRY, TARRY, ERE YE MARRY. Song. Written by Gordon Campbell; Music by A. S. GATTY. A highly successful setting to a most telling melody, in true Scotch rhythm. Post-free for 18 stamps.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

SUTTON'S THEORY OF MUSIC. Tenth Edition. "Is found most useful in schools and training colleges, where it has rapidly become a standard book." In cloth, price 2s.—London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

PRACTICAL HARMONY. By W. S. ROCKSTRO. Price 2s. "We can strongly recommend the book to all who want to become proficient in their musical studies."—Orchestra. "The manual is altogether admirable."—Nottingham Daily Guardian. "This is a thoroughly practical book."—Stamford Mercury. "There is not a subject of any note which is overlooked."—Nottingham Journal.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

THE GIPSIES' FESTIVAL. Descriptive Fantasia for the Pianoforte. By J. PRIDHAM. Illustrated Title. 4s.; post-free for 24 stamps.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

CIRO PINSUTI'S VOCAL DUETS.
SUNRISE. | SUNSET.
THE TIME OF YOUTH.
Post-free for 24 stamps each.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

ALL SHEET MUSIC promptly collected and sent post-free at half price to any part of the Kingdom. Messrs. ROBERT COCKS and CO. possess great facilities in this branch, and are in daily communication with all the leading publishers.—London: 6, New Burlington-street.

THE BUGLER. In D, F, and G. By CIRO PINSUTI. Words by F. E. Weatherly.
This very successful song has now reached the Tenth Edition.

THE LINNET'S ANSWER. In E and G. A charming tenor song by the same Composer.
Received with continuing favour.

THE CHALLENGE. For Bass and Baritone. By HUMPHREY J. STARK. Words by E. Oxenford. A bold and vigorous composition, and received always by great applause and repeated encores.

WEIT VON DIR (Far from Thee). Waltz. By OSCAR SEYDEL. "When she went back to the ball-room, Captain Winstanley followed her, and claimed his waltz. The band was just striking up the latest German melody. 'Weit von Dir,' a strain of drawing tenderness."—Vide Miss Braddon's "Vixen." Each of the above 2s. net.
B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster-row.

DEBAIN'S 42 guinea PIANO, new model, seven octaves, full trich-ord, tui-oblique, check action, metal bars, plinth with fluted consoles, gilt handles, sconces, and pedals, &c.—DEBAIN and CO., 41, Rathbone-place, London, W. Gold Medal, Paris, 1878.

NEW MUSIC.

MESSRS. NOVELLO, EWER, and CO. have the honour to announce that they have purchased the ENTIRE STOCK and COPYRIGHTS of the WORKS hitherto published by Messrs. NEUMEYER and Co., of Newmeyer Hall, including the whole of the valuable Compositions of HEINRICH HOFMANN, &c.

NOVELLO'S ORIGINAL OCTAVO EDITION of OPERAS. Edited and Corrected according to the Original Scores by NATALIA MACFARREN and BERTHOLD TOURS. The English Translations by Natalia Macfarren and the Rev. J. Troutbeck, M.A., &c.

| | s. | d. | | s. | d. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Fra Diavolo .. .. | .. 3 | 6 | Die Zauberflöte .. | .. 3 | 6 |
| Masaniello .. .. | .. 3 | 6 | Il Seraglio .. | .. 3 | 6 |
| Fidelio .. .. | .. 3 | 6 | Il Barbiere .. | .. 3 | 6 |
| Norma .. .. | .. 3 | 6 | Guillaume Tell | .. 5 | 0 |
| La Sonnambula .. | .. 3 | 6 | Il Trovatore | .. 3 | 6 |
| I Puritani .. .. | .. 3 | 6 | Rigoletto | .. 3 | 6 |
| Lucia di Lammermoor | .. 3 | 6 | La Traviata .. | .. 3 | 6 |
| Lucrezia Borgia .. | .. 3 | 6 | Ernani .. | .. 3 | 6 |
| La Figlia del Reggimento | 3 | 6 | Lohengrin .. | .. 3 | 6 |
| Martha .. .. | .. 3 | 6 | Tannhäuser | .. 3 | 6 |
| Iphigenia in Aulis | .. 3 | 6 | Flying Dutchman | .. 3 | 6 |
| Iphigenia in Tauris | .. 3 | 6 | Oberon .. | .. 3 | 6 |
| L'Etoile du Nord | .. 5 | 0 | Der Freischütz | .. 3 | 6 |
| Don Giovanni | .. 3 | 6 | Preciosa .. | .. 1 | 6 |
| Le Nozze di Figaro | .. 3 | 6 | (To be continued.) | | |

JUST PUBLISHED. ONE SHILLING EACH.
NOVELLO'S PIANOFORTE ALBUMS.
EDITED by BERTHOLD TOURS. Nos. 1 and 2, each containing Twenty Compositions by Bach, Nos. 4, 5, and 6, each containing Twenty-four compositions by Handel.
List of Contents may be had on application.
London: NOVELLO, EWER, and Co., 1, Berners-street, W.; and 80 and 81, Queen-street, E.C.

THREE NEW SONGS. By Lord HENRY SOMERSET. ONE MORE (in F and D). 2s.; DAWN, NOON, AND NIGHT (in F). 2s. 6d.; GOOD-BYE (in C minor and E minor); the Words by Major G. J. Whyte-Melville, 2s. 6d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER, and Co.

MISS WAKEFIELD'S NEW SONGS.
"YES, SIR!" A sequel to "No, Sir!" Words by W. M. Hardinge.
SWEET SALLY GRAY. A North Countrie Ballad. Words by the late Robert Anderson.
"NO, SIR!" Spanish Ballad. Also arranged as a Vocal Duet by Theo. Marzials.
A SERENADE. Words by Tom Hood.
Price 2s. each net.
PATERSON and SONS, 27, George-street, Edinburgh.

METZLER and CO.
35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

CHARLES HALLÉ'S PRACTICAL PIANOFORTE SCHOOL.
Section I.—No. 1, PIANOFORTE TUTOR.
Catalogue and all Particulars may be had from FORSYTH BROTHERS, London, 272a, Regent-circus, Oxford-street; Manchester, Cross-street and South King-street; and all Musicsellers.

HELLER'S TRANSCRIPTION for the PIANOFORTE of SCHUBERT'S SONGS, WANDERING, THE BUTTERFLY, THE HURDY-GURDY PLAYER.
Performed by Mr. Charles Hallé.
Price 2s. each.
Sold at half price and postage free.
FORSYTH BROTHERS, 272a, Regent-circus, Oxford-street, London; and Cross-street, South King-street, Manchester.

CHALLEN and SON'S IRON-FRAME PIANOS, require but little tuning, pure and powerful in tone, and more damp-resisting than those upon the old system of bracing. Their Gold Medal Pianofortes, from 25 guineas, have taken the highest award at any Exhibition. Illustrated List free.—20, Oxford-street.

MELBOURNE EXHIBITION, 1881.
HIGHEST AWARD.—CHALLEN and SON have been awarded the First Prize for their Iron-Frame Upright Pianos, a distinction not conferred upon any other English Firm. May be purchased on the Three-Years' Hire System.—20, Oxford-st.

CHALLEN and SON'S THREE-YEARS' SYSTEM of Purchase affords facilities for obtaining a first-class instrument by a series of twelve quarterly payments, after which the piano becomes the property of the hirer, without further payment. List and Terms free.—20, Oxford-street. Established 1808.

GENUINE DUBLIN WHISKY.
THE MOST WHOLESOME OF ALL SPIRITS.
DUBLIN WHISKY, Distilled by Messrs. JOHN JAMESON and SON, GEORGE ROE and CO., WILLIAM JAMESON and CO., and JOHN POWER and SON, can be obtained in Wood by wholesale merchants and dealers direct from their respective distilleries.

CHOCOLAT MENIER.
Awarded the GRAND DIPLOMA OF HONOUR.

CHOCOLAT MENIER, in ½lb. and ¼lb. Packets.
For BREAKFAST and SUPPER.

CHOCOLAT MENIER.—Awarded Twenty Eight PRIZE MEDALS. Consumption annually exceeds 18,000,000 lbs.

CHOCOLAT MENIER. Paris, London, New York.
Sold Everywhere.

FRY'S Gold Medal, Paris, 1878. — First Award, Sydney, 1879.
FRY'S CARACAS COCOA.
"A most delicious and valuable article."—Standard.

COCOA. PURE COCOA ONLY.
FRY'S COCOA EXTRACT.
"Strictly pure."—W. STODDART, F.I.C., F.C.S., Public Analyst, Norwich.
Thirteen Exhibition Medals.

SCHWEITZER'S COCOATINA.
Anti-Dyspeptic Cocoa or Chocolate Powder.
Guaranteed Pure Soluble Cocoa, with excess of Fat extracted. Four times the strength of Cocoa Thickened yet Weakened with Arrowroot, Starch, &c.
The faculty pronounce it the most nutritious, perfectly digestive Beverage for "BREAKFAST, LUNCHEON, or SUPPER." Keeps in all Climates. Requries no Cooking. A teaspoonful to Breakfast Cup, costing less than a halfpenny. Samples gratis.
In Air-Tight Tins, at 1s. 6d., 3s., &c., by Chemists and Grocers.
H. SCHWEITZER and CO., 10, Adam-street, London, W.C.

BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR
IS A WORLD-WIDE NECESSARY.

BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR
FOR THE NURSERY.

BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR
FOR THE FAMILY TABLE.

BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR
FOR THE SICK-ROOM.

BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR
HAS A WORLD-WIDE REPUTATION.

THE ESSEX FLOUR and GRAIN COMPANY, Liverpool-road, London, N., supply the best goods only. Flour: Whites for Pastry, per 2c lbs., 3s. 8d.; Households, for Bread making, 8s. 8d.; Whole Wheaten Meal (granulated), for Brown Bread, 8s.; Best Scotch Oatmeal for Porridge, per 14 lb., 3s.; Hominy, 2s.; Barley, Buck Wheat, Maize, and Mixed Corn for Poultry, per bushel, 5s.; Indian Corn, 5s.; Middlings, 2s.; Bran, 1s.; Pearl Split Peas, per pack, 3s.; Split Egyptian Lentils, 3s.; Meat Biscuits, per 14 lb., 2s. 8d.; Barley Meal, per 48 lb., 5s.; Lentil Flour, per 14 lb. tin, 3d.; per 14 lb., 6s. All other kinds of Grain and Seeds. Price-List on application. Special quotations for large orders. P.O. Orders and Cheques to be made in favour of George Young.

FURNISH THROUGHOUT.

SUBSTANTIAL ARTISTIC FURNITURE (Regd.)
OETZMANN & CO.,
HAMPSTEAD-ROAD,
NEAR TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD.

FURNISH THROUGHOUT.—OETZMANN and CO., 67, 69, 71, 73, 75, and 79, HAMPSTEAD-ROAD, near Tottenham-court-road. CARPETS, Furniture, Bedding, Drapery, Furnishing Ironmongery, China, Glass, Paper Hangings, Pictures, Bronzes, Clocks, Pianos, &c., and every other requisite for completely furnishing a house throughout. Lowest prices consistent with guaranteed quality.—OETZMANN & CO.

THE "CANTERBURY" EBONIZED CHIPPENDALE DRAWING-ROOM SUITE, SIXTEEN GUINEAS, consisting of a handsome Cabinet, with two bevelled plates in backs, and decorated panel on door; an Octagon Centre Table; Six Chairs and Two Arm-Chairs, with circular cushioned seats, covered in Silk Finish, Roman Satin, or Tapestry. Illustrations of this suite post-free on application.
OETZMANN and CO.

EARLY ENGLISH BRACKETS in BLACK and GOLD, or Walnut and Gold, with Decorated Panels, 9s. 9d.; Ebonised Chippendale Hanging Corner Whatnots, with four bevelled plates, 28s. 6d.; Richly-Decorated Early English Bracket Girandole, 3 ft. high, with plate-glass back, 37s. 6d.; and a large variety of Decorative Furnishing Items on view in the Show-rooms. Illustrations post-free.—OETZMANN and CO.

ARTISTIC BORDERED CARPETS, OETZMANN and CO., to meet the increasing taste for Artistic Furnishing, are introducing some very handsome readymade Bordered Carpets in every class of design, adapted to every style of furnishing and decoration, at greatly reduced prices, ranging from 28s. 6d. to 18 guineas. Price-List and Sketch-Plans of Rooms, as guides for measurements, are sent post-free on application. Small Indian Carpets, 8s. 6d. each.
OETZMANN and CO.

THE "QUEEN ANNE" BORDERED TAPESTRY CRETONNE CURTAINS.—A handsome Early English design in black and gold, dull red, peacock blue, sage, and other fashionable shades, lined throughout with Twilled Cretonne Lining, and bound with the new Cretonne Binding, 3 yards long by 30 inches wide, 9s. 9d. per pair; 3½ yards long, 10s. 11d.; 4 yards long, 12s. 6d.; 3 yards long by 42 inches wide, 14s. 9d.; 3½ yards long, 16s. 9d.; 4 yards long, 18s. 9d. Patterns sent post-free on application.—OETZMANN and CO.

FURNISHING IRONMONGERY DEPARTMENT.—Superior Electro-Plate Tea and Coffee Pots, Spoons, Forks, Cruets, &c. (quality guaranteed); best warranted Table Cutlery; handsome Coal Vases, from 3s. 11d. upwards; Dish Covers, Japanned Toilet Sets, Pail and Sponge Bath, pail, and can, various neat designs in colours, 8s. 11d. per set. Kitchen Ironmongery of every description. Mats, Matting, Brooms, Brushes, Pails, &c. Bronze Umbrella Stands, from 3s. 9d. Table Lamps, complete, good style, 3s. 11d.—OETZMANN and CO.

POSTAL ORDER DEPARTMENT. OETZMANN and CO.—Orders sent per post, whether large or small, receive prompt and careful attention. Those residing at a distance, or any to whom a personal call would be inconvenient, desirous of leaving the selection to the firm, may rely upon a faithful attention to their wishes and interests in the selection. This department is personally supervised by a member of the firm, and O. and Co. continually receive numerous letters expressing the greatest satisfaction with the execution of orders so entrusted. Persons residing in Foreign Countries and the Colonies will find great advantages by entrusting their orders to O. and CO. For further particulars please see page 379 in Catalogue, sent free on application.—OETZMANN and CO.

DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE, post-free.
OETZMANN & CO.,
HAMPSTEAD-ROAD.

HEAL and SON.
BED-ROOM FURNITURE.
DINING-ROOM FURNITURE.
DRAWING-ROOM FURNITURE.
HEAL and SON,
195 to 198, TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD, W.

GARDNER'S DINNER and TABLE GLASS SERVICES. Free, graceful, and original designs, of unequalled value. Dinner Services, from 21s. Table Glass Services, of the best Crystal, for twelve persons, complete, 65s. Cash discount, 15 per cent. Coloured Photographic Sheets and Illustrated Glass Catalogues post-free.
453 and 454, West Strand, Charing-cross.

ELKINGTON and CO.,
MANUFACTURING SILVERSMITHS,
PATENTEES OF THE ELECTRO-PLATE.

ELKINGTON and CO.
SUPPLY THE PUBLIC DIRECT.
PRICES TO SUIT ALL PURCHASERS.
Illustrated Catalogues post-free.
ELKINGTON and CO., 22, Regent-st.; or 42, Moorgate-st., City.

D. HULETT.—GASELIERS in CRYSTAL. GLASS and ORMOLU or BRONZE. Mediæval Fittings. A large Stock always on View. Every article marked with plain figures.—Manufactory, 35 and 36, High Holborn.

DIAMONDS. Mr. STREETER,
SAPPHIRES. 18, New Bond-street, W.
CATS'-EYES. INTRODUCER of 18-CARAT GOLD JEWELLERY and ENGLISH LEVER WATCHES, (MACHINE-MADE.)
OPALS.
EMERALDS. BRANCH ESTABLISHMENT, COLOMBO, CEYLON.

THE FINEST WATCHES MADE. SEWILL'S KEYLESS WATCHES, Prize Medals, London, Paris, and Philadelphia. Damp and Dust-proof, 18-carat cases, adjusted and compensated for all climates, £10 10s., £14 14s., and £25; Ladies', £7 7s., £10 10s., and £18 18s.; in silver cases, for Ladies or Gentlemen, £5 5s., £6 6s., and £8 8s. Forwarded on receipt of remittance.—J. Sewill, 20, Cornhill, London; and 61, South Castle-street, Liverpool.

WALKER'S CRYSTAL CASE WATCHES are superseding all others. Prize Medals—London, 1862; Paris, 1867. Silver Watches, from £4 4s.; Gold, from £6 6s. Price-Lists sent free.—77, Cornhill; 220, Regent-street; and 76, Strand.

NOVELTIES IN JEWELLERY. New Styles for 1881; Gold, Silver, and Gem Jewellery of all kinds. New "Pig," "Mouse," &c.; Artificial Diamond Jewellery; Norwegian, Italian, and Mauresque Filigree Jewellery; Ladies' Watches, &c. Price-List, 300 Illustrations post-free.—Jewellery Depôt, 57, Cambridge-street, Birmingham.

FOR SOUTH AFRICA.—How to get rid of your left-off clothes, jewels, furniture, antique lace, old gold teeth plates, &c. Why send them to the most respectable purchasers, who pay you ready money before taking them away.—Mr. and Mrs. PHILLIPS, Old Curiosity Shop, 31, Thayer-street, Manchester-square, London, W.

LONDON: Printed and Published at the Office, 198, Strand, in the Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middlesex, by GEORGE C. LEIGHTON, 198, Strand, aforesaid.—SATURDAY, APRIL 23, 1881.

The Late Lord Beaconsfield.

THE LATE RIGHT HON. THE EARL OF BEACONSFIELD, K.G.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

THE LATE LORD BEACONSFIELD.

The eminent politician who has so long held the leadership of the English Conservative party was of unmixed Jewish race. His grandfather, Benjamin Disraeli, after whom he was named, came to England from Venice, in the middle of the last century, and was a successful merchant or bill-broker in London before the Rothschilds achieved their great position in the world of finance. The father of Lord Beaconsfield was Isaac Disraeli, Esq., of Bradenham House, Bucks, and No. 6, Bloomsbury-square, who was not a man of business or man of the world, but "learned as a grammarian of the Middle Ages." Yet he was, to judge from his books, which used to be read and quoted, but which are now almost forgotten, a man of the eighteenth-century type of dilettante scholarship, with its rather narrow range of sympathies and its rather shallow critical philosophy. But the anecdotal and biographical lore of his "Curiosities of Literature," "Calamities of Authors," and "Quarrels of Authors" have furnished mild entertainment to a multitude of readers; and his fondness for historical paradoxes, more especially his vindication of the Stuarts and of arbitrary rule, was so little sustained by force of argument that it could do nobody any harm.

Lord Beaconsfield himself has made the acknowledgment, that in youth he was "trained by learned men, who did not share the prejudices or the passions of our political and social life." This is perfectly true, not only of his father, Isaac Disraeli, whose days were spent in his study or in the Library of the British Museum; but also of the worthy schoolmaster, to whose care the future brilliant statesman was consigned. The Rev. Eliezer Cogan, of Higham Hill, Walthamstow, is still remembered by a few surviving acquaintance as a respectable Dissenting minister and an erudite Greek scholar, whose proficiency in that study won the high commendation of the famous Rev. Dr. Parr, but who was the most guileless and unworldly of men. He was selected, probably in consequence of Dr. Parr's approval, communicated through Samuel Rogers, for the charge of tuition in the case of young Benjamin Disraeli at the age of thirteen. Isaac Disraeli, though he had separated himself from the religious communion of Judaism, having indeed written an essay of sceptical criticism setting aside the Mosaic traditions, was not disposed, as an uncompromising Voltairian freethinker, to place his son under the instruction of any English clergyman. It is true that the boy, in early infancy, had undergone the formal rite of baptism at St. Andrew's Church, Holborn; which was done at the request of his father's friend Rogers, in order to spare him any social disadvantage that might beset the unbaptised in the company of orthodox Churchmen. But it was far from the intention of Isaac Disraeli that his son should be compelled to learn the Church Catechism; and, that being in those days imposed at every public grammar-school and college, it followed that Eton, or Harrow, or Winchester, could be no place for young Benjamin Disraeli. The Presbyterian ministry of Mr. Cogan at Walthamstow was of that doctrinal type which its professors call Unitarian, and of which Dr. Priestley and Mr. Belsham were the most notable expounders. It would naturally be less repugnant to Mr. Isaac Disraeli than ordinary forms of theological belief in this country; and he might feel sure that no attempt would be made to imbue his son's mind with any dogmatic creed. Be this as it may, the classical instruction that fell to Benjamin Disraeli's lot was imparted by Mr. Cogan and his assistants in the Walthamstow private boarding-school, which about 1820 numbered sixty or seventy boys, all from respectable Dissenting middle-class families. And, since he was never at Oxford or Cambridge, he did not get the opportunity of contracting any of those school or college friendships with young noblemen, future Dukes and proprietors of pocket boroughs, to which other political aspirants of moderate fortunes have owed their early entrance into public life.

At the age of sixteen, having been born on Dec. 21, 1805, Benjamin Disraeli was placed as a pupil, though not regularly articled, in the office of a respectable firm of solicitors in the City. It was not, we believe, intended that he should practise that profession, though his only brother, Mr. Ralph Disraeli, was bred to the law as a barrister. There was an idea, among his father's friends or other family advisers, that some experience of an attorney's business would be the most useful preparation for managing his own property. Isaac Disraeli, though not very rich, had an independent estate, which Benjamin would some day inherit. He was able, in the mean time, to make his son an adequate allowance, with which, and by the favour of Isaac Disraeli's acquaintance with fashionable patrons of literature, he soon began to show himself in London society. It was the era of Byronism, when romantic affectations of high-flown sentiments, despising common life, and frequently attended with demonstrations of vehement and intense self-will, which seemed heroic expressions of a superior order of mind, were rife among the younger generation. This species of affectation, being thoroughly insincere, was quite compatible with a deliberate intention to play upon the follies and weaknesses of other people, and to subdue them to the service of one's personal ambition. A very decided perception of the means by which it was to be done, and an eager appreciation of the motives for so doing, were manifested in Benjamin Disraeli's first published writings, ere he had fully attained manhood. It was in 1826 that "Vivian Grey" came out; a novel which could have been produced only by a dangerously clever boy. A simply ingenuous, noble-minded, generous boy, clever as he might be, could not have written it.

We are not inclined, however, just now to dwell upon the ideal that is presented in "Vivian Grey," or to trace the correspondence of its maxims with some incidents of the early part of Mr. Disraeli's public career. Too much has been made of this by unfriendly critics; and it would better suit our present state of feeling, with regard to this eminent contemporary just departed, to refrain from any comments upon the tone of his youthful essays in romance. It will be sufficient, perhaps, to remark that if a correct historical judgment of his habits of mind is to be formed, the whole series of novels, "Vivian Grey," as well as "Contarini Fleming," and "Coningsby," "Sybil," and "Tancred," down to "Lothair" and "Endymion," will have to bear witness for and against their author, not merely in his literary, but also in his political capacity. They contain very little, if anything, that could ever deserve serious censure, but much that is unreal and unsound, and they lack the air of sincerity. It is not here needful to say more about them.

Mr. Disraeli, like the hero of his story "Contarini Fleming," was long divided in mind whether he should aspire to win the power of a successful politician, or the fame of a poet. In those days, by the example of Byron, many who had some genius were tempted to seek renown in the composition of epic or romantic verse. But to give this vocation its due effect, there must be sequestered travel, like Byron's, in Greece and the East. So Mr. Disraeli spent nearly two years, from 1829 to 1831, in a pilgrimage to the Levant, more especially to Albania and Syria, which produced "The Wondrous Tale of Alroy." He came back to display his exotic acquirements and far-fetched emotions in the London world, and figured as a minor literary lion in Lady Blessington's drawing-room, where Count D'Orsay and Prince Louis Napoleon passed for the types of social grace and honour.

Poetry, however, perhaps being conscious that Mr. Disraeli was only flirting with her, would not condescend to carry him far towards his goal. He took leave of her, turning his attention to politics as the alternative way of attaining distinction. But this change was significantly heralded by a "Revolutionary Epic;" which Shelley might have written, if Shelley had been a feeble, vapid, commonplace sort of poet with the same degree of political enthusiasm. In June, 1832, came the passing of the Reform Bill and the General Election. Mr. Disraeli then appeared as Radical candidate for the borough of High Wycombe.

This was Mr. Disraeli's earliest attempt, as a politician—then derided by some persons as a political adventurer—to set his foot upon the bottom step of the ladder of advancement in public life. He had, like Vivian Grey, determined to succeed, but we do not believe that he would, at any period of his career, have condescended to use the unworthy arts of sycophancy practised by Vivian Grey. With reference, indeed, to his opportunities at starting in life fifty years ago, for winning fame and power, it must be admitted that he had a fair chance of doing so by the exercise of his literary talents. There could be no prejudice against a novelist, satirist, or poet of manifest genius, on the score of his Jewish birth. Mr. Disraeli, however, as he almost explicitly avowed, would not content himself with the merely intellectual eminence of a successful author. He craved the prize of political ambition, the proud social distinction of a ruler and manager of his fellow-citizens. It is very true that, fifty years since in our country, it might have seemed impossible for the ablest of men, in his position, to acquire such a mastery of English Parliamentary influence. There is a tide in the affairs of mankind, by which, adroitly used, the dreams of individual ambition may sometimes be fulfilled. Apart from the conflicting interests of parties, nobody would be disposed to grudge Lord Beaconsfield his splendid feat of self-exaltation, unless it appeared that the country was injured. The merits of his public acts, or the acts of those whom he decried, opposed, and now and then supplanted, may be differently regarded by one and another school of opinion. His personality as a living statesman is as fairly entitled to respectful consideration as if he had been born in our hereditary aristocracy, claiming a ready access to the governing power. Liberals, at least of late years, have felt this remarkable example to be a sign in favour of one of their characteristic principles, La carrière ouverte aux talents. It is a triumph over the prejudiced exclusiveness of race and caste and religious or ecclesiastical bigotry. Mr. Disraeli, in fighting his own battle, helped to gain the victory for that ancient and interesting nationality, of which he could never be ashamed. He might easily have changed his Jewish name, either upon the occasion of his marriage to an English lady, or at some period before or after, but he would never desert the race of Israel. This is greatly to his honour, since we cannot but think, looking back half a century and remembering the former condition of social sentiment, that it would have smoothed his path to preferment.

It is not worth while to say much now concerning Mr. Disraeli's first attempts to get a seat in the House of Commons. That he was a Radical candidate in 1832, under the patronage of Daniel O'Connell and of Joseph Hume; that, having quarrelled with the Reform party, and exchanged personal insults with O'Connell, he went over to the Tories; and that he became M.P. for Maidstone in 1837 are matters of history notorious to all. Those public adventures were his political "wild oats," of which every man has some, be they more or less, who regards the world as his oyster, to be opened with the longest or the shortest sword.

This transition from Radicalism to a peculiar mixture of Democratic with Tory professions, which was his own patent invention, seems to have been accomplished in 1835. The Whig Ministry of the Reform Bill, as it had been formed by Earl Grey, then broke down, and it was doubtful whether that party, which resumed or continued under Lord Melbourne's Ministry its uncertain lease of office, could long maintain ascendancy. Mr. Disraeli, though he had been a vehement Radical, had never been a Whig. He had formed a set of principles or notions, which to him seemed perfectly clear and consistent, and upon which he based the fantastic project of a Neo-Tory "Young England" party, to reconcile the interests of patrician privilege with the domestic wants and real wishes, as he supposed, of the labouring classes. This imagined political alliance of the uppermost rank of English society with the humblest and most numerous, to the exclusion of the middle classes, who were then supporters of the Whig party, was always Mr. Disraeli's favourite idea. "The theory," as is remarked by the Daily News, "of a Monarchy resting upon a Democracy, of the Crown and of the people, each strengthening the other, without the control of Parliament, is stated in Mr. Disraeli's earliest works, in his novels, in his published letter to Lord Lyndhurst on the English Constitution, and in his electioneering speeches at High Wycombe, Taunton, and Marylebone. He did all that was practicable to give effect to it during his last tenure of office. On the death of the Prince Consort he expressed in private conversation with a friend his great regret for that event, on the ground that the Prince, if he had lived, would probably have succeeded in doing what George III. tried to do and failed; in establishing, that is to say, the personal power of the Monarch as the centre of our political system, restoring the authority and prerogative of the Crown, weakened and restrained by Parliamentary encroachments." Such was Mr. Disraeli's idea of a genuine Tory Democracy, and it was evidently borrowed from the study of Lord Bolingbroke's "Patriot King." It was one of the wildest dreams that could ever have been entertained by a speculative politician of mystical tendencies, and it never had a chance of gaining credence in the minds of any section of the real Parliamentary Conservative party. Its author, however, after repeated failures to get a seat for High Wycombe or Marylebone, in the first instance, as a Radical, or for Shrewsbury in April, 1835, contested the borough of Taunton on Conservative principles. He was again defeated, and in the same year he published his "Vindication of the British Constitution," addressed to Lord Lyndhurst, who was a warm admirer of the young and original politician, and in this essay he broached all those ideas on the subject of English history which were afterwards more fully developed in "Coningsby" and "Sybil." In 1836 he brought out his letters of "Runnymede," a series of attacks on the Administration of Lord Melbourne.

In the summer of 1837 the King died, and at the ensuing general election Mr. Disraeli was returned for Maidstone. One story of the way in which he obtained the seat has been recently told as follows. At the general election in 1835 Mr. Wyndham Lewis was the Conservative candidate, and, according to the practice of the day, bribery and promises of bribery were rife on all sides. Mr. Lewis was beaten; but, notwithstanding his defeat, he fulfilled all his engagements to the letter. This, and some causes of dissatisfaction with the successful candidates, rendered Mr. Lewis so popular in the borough that when, two years afterwards, the King's death caused another general election, the party felt that they were strong enough in Maidstone not only to return Mr. Lewis, but also a Conservative colleague. Mr. Disraeli was waited upon, and consented to stand, and in due course was returned.

The anecdote of his first appearance as a speaker in the House of Commons has often been related. He challenged O'Connell to a duel of Parliamentary invective, and ventured to include the whole Whig party in the attack. The Whigs resolved to crush the audacious assailant, and groans, hootings, and scornful laughter arose on all sides. Mr. Disraeli attempted for some time to make head against the torrent; but, finding his efforts fruitless, he sat down with these memorable words, "I am not at all surprised at the reception I have experienced. I have begun several times many things, and I have often succeeded at last. I will sit down now, but the time will come when you will hear me." Renewed derision greeted these words, which were then supposed to be the outburst only of mortified vanity. But this rough reception did not daunt him from presenting himself again to his audience even in the course of the same Session. He fixed on less exciting subjects, and in consequence gained more attention. The Chartist Riots of 1839 were the occasion of his first successful effort, and of his really gaining the ear of the House. Slowly but surely he established for himself a reputation in Parliament, and two years from the date of his entering it he was known as a prominent politician. He had made speeches on the subject of electoral reform, opposing Mr. Hume's familiar motion made year after year on behalf of Household Suffrage, and speaking with moderation but decision against Mr. Villiers's motion for the repeal of the Corn Laws. But early in the Session of 1841 he was selected to move the rejection of Lord John Russell's Poor Law Amendment Bill. When Sir Robert Peel in the same year succeeded to Lord Melbourne, Mr. Disraeli's name was not included in the list of the new Government. It has been said that Peel wished to offer Mr. Disraeli subordinate office, but that he was overruled by Lord Stanley, afterwards Lord Derby, who lived to regard his services as essential. Sir James Graham once stated in the House of Commons that he had strongly urged Mr. Disraeli's claims. We believe, says the Daily News' memoir this week, that Mr. Disraeli had been sounded by one of the managers of the Conservative party on behalf of Sir Robert Peel as to his willingness to take the post of Secretary of the Admiralty, and had intimated his readiness to do so. He was naturally disappointed and affronted when the matter went no further, and the new Conservative Government was formed without him. In 1842 Mr. Disraeli gave a general support to the Government of Sir Robert Peel. Speaking of himself in the third person in his "Life of Lord George Bentinck," he describes "a member who, though on the Tory benches, had been for two years in opposition to the Ministry." That would date his opposition from the end of 1843 or the beginning of 1844, and certainly by the latter year he had made up his mind, even if Peel himself had not, that the Premier would ultimately surrender the Corn Laws.

In two of his novels, "Coningsby" and "Sybil," published in 1844 and 1845, Mr. Disraeli is thought to have sketched the growth of what was then called, foolishly enough, "the Young England party," to which he attached himself, escaping thereby from an impotent isolation in the House of Commons. He had recently acquired a more assured social position by his marriage with Mrs. Wyndham Lewis, widow of his former colleague in the representation of Maidstone. To persons now middle-aged, who read "Coningsby" and "Sybil" thirty-five years ago, and who have watched the course of our political and social history, it is a curious retrospective crowd of associations that these faded names recall. Everything had turned out so completely different, so entirely opposite to what the author of those books predicted! and the realities of that period were so grossly misconceived by him! No pretensions to prophetic sagacity were ever more conspicuously falsified by a vast series of succeeding facts, in all the affairs of Great Britain and of Europe, from that day to this; and the first and perhaps mightiest of these facts, dating from 1846, was the Free Trade policy, to which Mr. Disraeli became the bitterest opponent.

We cannot find any justification for the extreme virulence of Mr. Disraeli's attacks on Sir Robert Peel when the former showed unmistakable symptoms of the intention to abandon his earlier attitude on the subject of Free Trade, and afterwards, in 1846, when he introduced his measure for the repeal of the Corn Laws. Mr. Disraeli's periodical assaults upon the Prime Minister of that epoch must still be in the memory of all who witnessed and heard them. He affected to treat Sir Robert Peel with scornful indignation as a betrayer of "the country party;" but Mr. Disraeli knew better, for he had, in one of his earlier speeches, most truly and forcibly described the position in which Sir Robert Peel now found himself. "The truth is," he said on that occasion, "a statesman is the creature of his age, the child of circumstance, the creature of his times. A statesman is essentially a practical character, and when he is called upon to take office he is not to inquire what his opinions may or may not have been upon this or that subject—he is only to ascertain the needful and the beneficial, and the most feasible manner in which affairs are to be carried on. I laugh at the objections against a man that at a former period of his career he advocated a policy different to his present one. All I seek to ascertain is, whether his present policy be just, necessary, expedient; whether at the present moment he is prepared to serve the country according to its present necessities."

There is, however, not the least need, at this time of day, to vindicate the conduct of Sir Robert Peel in 1846, any more than to dissect and expose the fallacies of the whimsical Young England party. Had the Corn Laws not been repealed, where would Young or Old England be now? The factory workpeople in "Sybil," the great industrial establishment of Mr. Millbank at Manchester, in "Coningsby;" also the great territorial property of the lords described in those novels, the funded riches and banking omnipotence of Sidonia, all the wealth of this nation and its domestic comfort, have been not only preserved but vastly augmented by the Free Trade policy. Yet it was by furious tirades against that policy, and by shooting envenomed sarcasms at the character of Sir Robert Peel, that Mr. Disraeli made himself leader of the English Conservative party. His personal victory in the contest of self-advancement, let us repeat, is not to be grudged him, but the true interests of his country were not rightly consulted in the line of action he pursued.

In the midst of these conflicts Mr. Disraeli (as we learn from the memoir above quoted) declared privately to a friend of his who is still living that he bore no malice to Peel, and that he considered him the greatest statesman of his time. "But," he added, "he has slighted and injured me, and I must do the best I can for myself." We do not vouch for the exact words, says the Daily News, but we vouch for their spirit and substance. It is not necessary here to discuss the moral aspect in which this language puts Mr. Disraeli's conduct. He afterwards—partially in public, and more fully in private—acknowledged that in the heat of party conflict he had been unjust to Peel, and after Peel's death he seemed glad of opportunities of meeting the relatives of the great Conservative statesman, and protesting to them his regard and admiration for him. Later in life, after he had had large experience in the art of managing a great party, he used to say that if Peel, when he decided on the repeal of the Corn Laws, had called the Conservative party together and taken them into his confidence, they would have reciprocated that confidence; the rupture in the party would not have taken place, and Peel would have continued to be its leader until his death.

In his memoir of Lord George Bentinck we have Mr. Disraeli's version of the events which ended by leaving him Leader of the Conservative Party in the House of Commons. The author has there left it on record that when his friend, on the assembling of Parliament in February, 1848, signified his determination no longer to be regarded as its official spokesman in the Lower House, it was his own wish "to stand or fall by him, to have followed his example, and to have abdicated the prominent seat in which the writer had been unwillingly and fortuitously placed." At the earnest request of Lord George, he desisted from his resolve, and when the country was shocked by the news of Lord George's sudden death, Mr. Disraeli by common consent occupied the post that had for some time been absolutely vacant. His claims were pre-eminent; and, as the Peelites still held aloof from both parties in the State, it may be said that he was without a rival. In 1849 he moved the amendment to the Address in answer to the Speech from the Throne; and from that moment there could be no question as to his actual position.

The death of Lord George Bentinck no doubt had hastened the moment of this personal distinction; but it can scarcely be doubted that it must have come sooner or later. For three years he was the soul of a broken and dispirited Opposition, and how arduous is such a task he has himself left on record. "There are few positions," he has said, "less inspiriting than that of the leader of a discomfited party. . . . He who in the Parliamentary field watches over the fortunes of routed troops must be prepared to sit often alone. Few care to share the labour which is doomed to be fruitless, and none are eager to diminish the responsibility of him whose course, however adroit, must necessarily be ineffectual. . . . Indoors and out of doors a disheartened Opposition will be querulous and captious." This language, penned at the moment of his accepting such a situation, has in the writer's instance the quality of foresight. It accurately represents his own fortunes for many succeeding years. Yet a gleam of hope came sooner even than he, courageous as he always was, could possibly have expected. The spring of 1852 saw once more a Conservative Cabinet, and Benjamin Disraeli, as Chancellor of the Exchequer, Leader of the House of Commons.

This new Government, in which Mr. Disraeli was at length a Cabinet Minister, began in a minority. A period of six years had now elapsed since the abolition of the Corn Laws; and though some extreme members of the party still muttered their discontent and their resolution to endeavour to effect a change, the great body of the party had long before withdrawn from the strife, and tacitly acquiesced in the inevitable. But the leadership of Lord Derby and Mr. Disraeli still lay under the imputation of a Protectionist policy. The machinery of the Anti Corn Law League was hastily resuscitated, meetings were held in the manufacturing towns, at which the leading Freetraders put down their names for large sums of money, in the event of the Government attempting to reverse the policy of the previous six years; and by these and similar means the country was stimulated to return a majority adverse to the Government. The decisive issue was taken on the Budget. It was the first effort of Mr. Disraeli as a Finance Minister, and considerable curiosity was felt as to the result. He did not disappoint the public expectation. In a speech which lasted five hours he took a masterly review of the financial position of the country. He proposed to render taxation more equal in its pressure; and, starting from the assumption that taxation and representation should go together, he proposed that the house duty should be carried down as low as the franchise, and laid upon houses of £10 value. He proposed a reduction of the malt duties; while, as a counterpoise, he suggested that they should deal in the same liberal spirit with the duties on tea. Such were the salient features of the Budget. In consequence, however, of the tactics of the Opposition, the financial statement of the Government was made in December, 1852, instead of in March, 1853, as would have been the usual course. By the latter date Mr. Disraeli was in the habit of asserting that the disappearance of agricultural distress would have enabled him to frame a Budget untainted by the slightest odour of Protectionist opinions. At the earlier date this was impossible; the Opposition knew this as well as he did, and forced his hand accordingly. A coalition took place between the Whigs, the Peelites, and the Radicals, and the result was that the Government were beaten by a majority of nineteen. The Conservative party, however, were, upon the whole, very well satisfied. They had held office with credit. They felt that their leaders had been tried, and not found wanting; and they waited a fresh opportunity.

That opportunity occurred in 1858, upon the fall of Lord Palmerston's first Government; and as the question of Parliamentary Reform had been revived by Lord John Russell, it was considered that the leaders of the Conservative party should endeavour to guide the movement, which they could not withstand. Mr. Disraeli, in the Sessions of 1858 and 1859, undertook this task, and in the debates upon this subject he dwelt on the defects of the first Reform Bill, on the injustice done to the counties in the distribution of seats, and on the wrong done to the working classes by the extinction of the scot and lot voters. At the same time he insisted that reform, to be beneficial, ought to be extended in a lateral rather than in a downward direction, and that any measure of enfranchisement ought to include all the intelligence and education of the country, and reach those classes of the community that were not to be found in the occupation of £10 houses. A Reform Bill in conformity with Mr. Disraeli's views was eventually determined on by the Government. This measure, however, was rejected. Lord Derby resigned, and the second Ministry of Lord Palmerston began, which lasted till his death, in October, 1865. The Government then fell into the hands of Earl Russell as Premier, with Mr. Gladstone as leader in the House of Commons. Then it was announced that the first measure of the reconstructed Liberal Ministry would be a new Reform Bill, with a £6 suffrage. The measure was opposed by the Conservatives, Mr. Disraeli taking up his old line, that this franchise put the government of the country into the hands of one class of the community, the lower middle class, and allowed no free play to the great variety of interests in the community.

In July, 1866, the failure of Lord Russell's Ministry with its Reform Bill let in the late Earl of Derby's second Government, and Mr. Disraeli was, of course, again Chancellor of the Exchequer. The popular agitation for Parliamentary Reform continued with such violence—to the alarming Hyde Park meeting, which broke down the railings—that Lord Derby was induced to undertake a measure for that purpose in the next Session. The Liberal party had a strong majority in Parliament. Mr. Disraeli prepared a series of resolutions to be proposed to the House of Commons, affirming that it would be "unconstitutional to give any one class or interest a predominating power," and that it was "expedient to supply representation to some places not now represented." But, along with these truisms, he would have pledged the House to a system of ratepaying qualification for the franchise, plurality of votes, and the method of voting by polling-papers. These resolutions were at once seen to be quite unacceptable; so, after a few days, Mr. Disraeli withdrew them, and submitted the sketch of a Reform Bill, which was never actually introduced. It would have based the franchise, in boroughs, on a £6 rating qualification, and in counties on one of £20; besides which, there were to be "fancy franchises," upon such conditions as having £30 in a savings bank, or £50 in the funds, or paying 20s. a year in direct taxes, or being a doctor, a lawyer, or a schoolmaster, or having a University degree. A few days passed, and it was already known that this bill would be abandoned, when three members of the Government—General Peel, Lord Carnarvon, and Lord Cranborne (now Marquis of Salisbury)—suddenly resigned. The cause of this was the determination of Lord Derby and Mr. Disraeli to bring forward a second Reform Bill, of a much more sweeping character, which would amount to household suffrage in the boroughs. After some further shuffling of the cards, Mr. Disraeli, on March 18, introduced his measure, which was immediately seized by Mr. Bright and the independent Reformers. Not that they liked it as it was, but they knew that, by large alterations in committee, they could make it what they pleased. The Opposition were really quite able to compel the Conservative Ministry, who meant to keep office upon any terms, to carry out an Ultra-Liberal policy. "One by one," says the historian Mr. Justin M'Carthy, "all Mr. Disraeli's cheeks, balances, and securities were abolished. The dual vote, for a borough ratepayer who also paid 20s. of assessed taxes, was laughed out of the bill. The voting-paper principle was abandoned. The fancy franchises were swept clean away. A lodger franchise was introduced. At last, it came to a struggle about the nature of the main franchise in boroughs. The bill fixed it that anyone rated to the relief of the poor in a borough should have the vote, provided that he had lived two years in the house. An amendment, reducing the two years of qualification to one, was carried in the teeth of the Government by a large majority. The Government, therefore, agreed to accept the amendment. At various stages of the bill, Mr. Disraeli kept announcing that, if this or that amendment were carried against the Government, the Government would not go any further with the bill. But, when the particular amendment was carried, Mr. Disraeli always announced that the Government had changed their minds after all, and were willing to accept the new alteration. At last, this little formality came to be viewed by the House as mere ceremonial."

It was in this not very dignified or authoritative manner that Mr. Disraeli achieved his work as a Parliamentary Reformer. But shortly after the bill was passed, speaking at an Edinburgh dinner, he alone claimed the credit of it all. "I had," he said, "to prepare the mind of the country, and to educate—if it be not arrogant to use such a phrase—to educate our party. It is a large party, and requires its attention to be called to questions of this kind with some pressure. I had to prepare the mind of Parliament and the country on this question of Reform."

The splendid audacity of such pretensions was about to gain its reward, even the office of Prime Minister. Lord Derby's severe illness in February, 1868, obliged him to resign, and Mr. Disraeli was summoned by the Queen to take his place. He made Lord Cairns the Lord Chancellor instead of Lord Chelmsford, put Mr. Ward Hunt in as Chancellor of the Exchequer, and effected several useful political improvements, one of which was to create a judicial tribunal for the trial of election petitions, instead of referring them to Committees of the House of Commons. The successful conduct of the Abyssinian war gave the Ministry some little éclat, and Mr. Disraeli made use of his peculiar style of rhetorical panegyric in moving a vote of thanks to Sir Robert Napier's army. "They had," he said, "brought the elephants of Asia to convey the artillery of Europe, to dethrone one of the kings of Africa, and to hoist the standard of St. George upon the mountains of Rasselas;" which was a feat worthy of the wondrous Alroy. But Mr. Disraeli's Chancellor of the Exchequer in 1868, like the Viceroy of India and Secretary of State in 1880, made an error of several millions sterling in the statement of the actual cost of the war. It was said to have cost five millions, when all was done, and it really cost nine millions and a half.

The Government headed by Mr. Disraeli was compelled to resign, at the end of the year, by the result of the General Election sustaining Mr. Gladstone's proposal to abolish the Protestant Church Establishment in Ireland. From 1869 to 1874, Mr. Disraeli was leader of the Opposition; and it is but fair to say that his Parliamentary conduct in that position was exemplary. He seemed to take his loss of power very coolly and quietly, amusing himself and a hundred thousand readers by the production of "Lothair." In that singular novel, as most people are aware, he plays with the fashionable fit of excitement about the rumoured conversions of the English aristocracy to the Roman Catholic Church. He also makes dramatic use of the Continental Secret Societies, the Carbonari, and of Mazzinian and Garibaldian movements in Italy. As a tale of incident and adventure, it is very superior to "Endymion," his latest published story.

In his political course during those years out of office, there was nothing very remarkable for originality. But he spoke, upon due occasion, against the Disestablishment of the Irish Church, against Mr. Gladstone's Irish Land Act of 1870, against the abolition of purchase of Commissions in the Army; and whenever he saw a proper opportunity to disparage the Liberal Government, he did so in a decorous Parliamentary way. Then came a change of demeanour. In the autumn and winter of 1873, after the exposure of the weak points in that Government by the affair of the Irish University Bill, Mr. Disraeli assumed a more alert attitude of aggressive hostility. He took to going round the country and making platform speeches against the Government, setting an example which was followed by Mr. Gladstone, on the other side, in the Midlothian speeches of 1879. Mr. Disraeli addressed large meetings in the Crystal Palace, in the Manchester Free-Trade Hall, and at the Pomona Gardens there, and at Edinburgh and Glasgow, denouncing the Liberal Ministry as having come in with "a policy of violence, of sacrilege, and of confiscation." But he said they were now burnt out, "like a row of extinct volcanoes."

He had declined to take office in 1873, when Mr. Gladstone resigned upon the defeat of the Irish University Bill. Mr. Disraeli had had disagreeable experience of conducting a Government with a Parliamentary minority, and preferred to wait a few months longer. In February, 1874, Mr. Gladstone's precipitous dissolution, with his fitful and bewildering attitude towards his own party, caused them to be utterly defeated at the General Election. Mr. Disraeli thereupon formed a new Conservative Ministry, to which the present Earl of Derby, the Marquis of Salisbury, and the Earl of Carnarvon, with Sir Stafford Northcote, Mr. R. Cross, Mr. W. H. Smith, and Mr. Gathorne Hardy (now Lord Cranbrook) brought much weight of personal ability and character. It was, in every way, beyond comparison the strongest Conservative Government since that of Sir Robert Peel before 1846. Mr. Disraeli was at the head of it; and the question was, "What will he do with it?"

Imperialism, whatever that may be, and whether good or bad, was not just then in question. We must say that nobody can pretend, looking at the state of affairs in February, 1874, that Mr. Disraeli was then summoned to hold power for the express purpose of saving the British Empire, the supposed interests of England or of India in Turkey or in Afghanistan, or in any part of the world, from the assaults and plots of our imaginary foreign enemies; because there never was a time of less apprehension on that score. If any such dangers have arisen, they did not come into view before the summer of 1875, when the insurrection of the Herzegovina and Bosnia re-opened the Eastern Question, and our Ministers then made very light of the matter. So that Mr. Disraeli was not at all expected—nor do we think he was at all prepared—to enter into a momentous contest, either diplomatic or military, with Russia or any other Great Power traditionally suspected of adverse intentions; and there is every reason to believe that he still considered, as he had said in Lord Palmerston's time, that Russian encroachment was a mere bugbear. He came into office, as a recent historian observes, without any pledge as to the course he would pursue in home or in foreign affairs. "The election had not turned on rival policies; it had scarcely turned even on rival persons; in mere weariness of the 'ins' the nation had called the 'outs' to power."

The Conservative Ministry of 1874 took office with everything made easy and smooth for them. Mr. Gladstone's financial management had bequeathed a surplus of above five millions. There was peace between this country and all foreign nations; its only foe of late, the barbarian King of Ashantee, had just been reduced to submission by a very moderate effort. The Session of 1874 produced little of important legislation beyond abolishing church patronage in Scotland; creating a legal tribunal for the regulation of church worship in England—that is, for the repression of Ritualist clerical vagaries; and passing a Merchant Shipping Bill which fell short of Mr. Plimsoll's demand for the protection of seamen. There was also a merely permissive and of course ineffective measure for the purpose, ostensibly, of enabling tenant farmers to get security that they shall not be deprived of the value of their outlay in permanent improvements on their farms. The Home Secretary, Mr. Cross, also passed a bill to enable the Local Boards and Town Councils to pull down unhealthy, ruinous, and overcrowded dwelling-houses, with a view to the erection of model buildings for the habitation of the working classes. Great indignation was roused in July, 1875, by one administrative act of the Government that year; the Admiralty circular forbidding British ships of war in foreign ports to afford refuge to any fugitive slave. This circular had to be withdrawn and explained away. We need scarcely touch upon some other incidents, which showed the Parliamentary impotence and insignificance of the new Government in the two Sessions of 1874 and 1875. The appointment of Lord Lytton, in January, 1876, to be Viceroy of India, immediately after the Prince of Wales's visit to that country, followed by the Queen's assumption of the title of Empress, seemed to mark a new departure in political enterprise of the most ambitious style. Every attentive observer who knows the tone of Lord Beaconsfield's writings and speeches must appreciate his taste for pompous Oriental regalities, and his confidence in their imposing effect upon the mind of Asiatic races. Lord Lytton, there can be little doubt, went out to India with a full understanding that he was to play an advanced Imperial part, and to develop those Asiatic schemes of glory which had been conceived by the romantic fancy of Mr. Disraeli long before. It was not then foreseen, probably, that their execution would be preceded by the European crisis of a renewed conflict between Russia and Turkey, occasioned by the revolt of the Slav provinces in the Sultan's empire, and the hideous cruelties practised in Bulgaria in the summer of 1876.

The last speech that Mr. Disraeli ever made in the House of Commons was at the end of the Session of 1876, in reply to Sir William Harcourt and Mr. Evelyn Ashley, who had blamed the Government and the Ambassador at Constantinople, Sir Henry Elliot, for neglecting to protest against the Bulgarian massacres. Mr. Disraeli took much pains to contradict the proposition that the British Government could be held at all responsible for whatever might happen in Turkey. He now assumed that peculiar tone which has since been characteristic of Lord Beaconsfield as the champion of the so-called English Imperial policy. "What may be the fate," he said, "of the Eastern part of Europe it would be arrogant for me to speculate upon; and if I had any thoughts upon the subject, I trust I should not be so imprudent or so indiscreet as to take this opportunity to express them. But I am sure that, so long as England is ruled by English parties who understand the principles on which our Empire is founded, and who are resolved to maintain that Empire, our influence in that part of the world can never be looked upon with indifference. The present is a state of affairs which requires the most vigilant examination and the most careful management. But those who suppose that England ever would uphold, or at this moment particularly is upholding, Turkey from blind superstition and from a want of sympathy with the highest aspirations of humanity are deceived. What our duty is, at this critical moment, is to maintain the Empire of England; nor will we ever agree to any step, though it may obtain for a moment comparative quiet and a false prosperity, that hazards the existence of that Empire." In these phrases, repeatedly uttered by Lord Beaconsfield at the crisis of the agony suffered by large populations among the Christian subjects of Turkey, but which were never accompanied by him with expressions of humane sympathy or of indignation against their oppressors, he seemed to renounce the principles of political morality as applied to foreign affairs. Such an attitude in the head of the British Government appeared really shocking to no small part of the English people.

It would be tedious here to repeat the narrative of all that took place between the different European Powers in consequence of the Bosnian insurrection and the Bulgarian massacres; or revert again to the terms of the Andrassy Note, the Berlin Memorandum, and the Protocol of the Conferences at Constantinople. The Secretary for Foreign Affairs at that time was Lord Derby, whose conduct, as since revealed to his countrymen, stands entirely free from reproach. He knew that "the three Emperors," or their astute Ministers of State, had certain designs of their own in the Berlin Memorandum. But the responsibility of declining to co-operate with the other Powers to force Turkey to adopt the needful reforms must be laid upon Lord Beaconsfield's Cabinet, and more especially upon its chief, not upon the Foreign Secretary, who has since taken up his own independent position. Lord Beaconsfield's speeches at Guildhall, and at the Aylesbury market dinner, in the autumn of 1876, were an ostentatious repudiation of sympathy with the victims of Turkish misrule, and had nearly committed the British Government to its support, not only against Russia

THE LATE LORD BEACONSFIELD.

MR. DISRAELI AT THE BUCKS ELECTION, 1847.

HUGHENDEN MANOR, HIGH WYCOMBE, THE SEAT OF LORD BEACONSFIELD.

THE LATE LORD BEACONSFIELD.

MR. DISRAELI ADDRESSING THE HOUSE OF COMMONS AS CHANCELLOR OF THE EXCHEQUER, 1867.

LORD BEACONSFIELD AT BERLIN, 1878.

but against all Europe. If it had so happened that a French or an Austrian Government had then been disposed and able, as Napoleon III. was in 1853, to take up arms on behalf of the Sultan's right to resist any foreign intervention between him and his unhappy subjects, Lord Beaconsfield's declarations would have obliged England to go to war for the maintenance of the existing state of the Ottoman Empire. This was the dangerous position into which he was bringing our country, at the time when Mr. Gladstone led the best portion of the Liberal party in an earnest and solemn appeal to the national conscience against so great an enormity. The St. James's Hall Conference, in December, was supported by hundreds of distinguished men who were no party politicians, but were men of science, authors, divines, scholars, and philosophers. It cannot be affirmed, with truth, that the denunciation of Lord Beaconsfield's attitude with regard to the Eastern Question was a mere party movement. There was great praise of Lord Derby, the Conservative Foreign Minister, and of Lord Salisbury, who was then going the round of the foreign Courts to arrange for concerted action to enforce reforms in Turkey. Everybody believed in those days that Lord Salisbury was quite at one with Lord Derby upon the whole Eastern Question. The wide difference between Lord Derby's views and those of the Prime Minister had not, indeed, been fully revealed. It was only known that Lord Derby had, from the first news of the Bulgarian atrocities, promptly and energetically addressed himself to get full information of the facts, and had then lost no time in sternly rebuking the Sultan's Government. He took the field in this cause of humanity, of justice and mercy, as early as Mr. Gladstone, but in official despatches which were not published until long after Mr. Gladstone's speeches and pamphlets had made the ears of the English people tingle with a voice of noble indignation. Lord Derby would not say much about it here either to deputations at the Foreign Office or in the House of Lords; but it was in July, when the subject was first mentioned in Parliament, that he ordered the British Ambassador and the Consul at Adrianople to institute a strict inquiry. It was on Sept. 5 that he wrote to Constantinople and gave the Turkish Government a distinct and solemn warning that by the outrages in Bulgaria it had utterly forfeited the support of England, and "that, in the extreme case of Russia declaring war against Turkey, her Majesty's Government would find it practically impossible to interfere in defence of the Ottoman Empire." Such was Lord Derby's attitude and language, as the English Foreign Secretary, three or four days before Mr. Gladstone spoke to the great meeting on Blackheath. It was not for Lord Derby to tell the Turkish Pashas that they must be driven out of Europe "bag and baggage;" still less for him, a Minister of the Crown, to talk of the British fleet in the Dardanelles and Bosphorus forbidding the Turkish troops to cross over from Asia and suppress the Bulgarian insurgents. Perhaps Mr. Gladstone ought not to have said these things, inasmuch as they could only have been carried into effect by a joint intervention of Russia, Austria, and Great Britain, with the consent of the other Powers, and it was probable that Russia and Austria would have demanded their shares in the spoil of the Turkish Empire. At any rate, Lord Derby considered himself bound to speak with greater reserve, while he felt equally with Mr. Gladstone the intolerable wickedness, the incorrigible viciousness, of the Turkish rule in its European provinces; he felt not less compassion for its victims, and a steady determination to obtain redress. But it seemed that, during a period of about eighteen months, from the rise of the agitation in England upon the Bulgarian massacres to Lord Derby's quitting the Cabinet in the spring of 1878, the Prime Minister was, in the tone of his personal utterances, working against Lord Derby. "The Turks knew they had a friend at Court more powerful than the Foreign Secretary, and they treated Lord Derby's remonstrances and suggestions with respectful indifference." This seems to be the true key to the whole course of the negotiations preceding the outbreak of the war between Russia and Turkey, including the proposed settlement of an armistice with Servia and Montenegro, the deliberations of January, 1877, at Constantinople, and the Protocol of March 31, signed by all the Powers, which Turkey refused to obey. The Sultan's Ministers of that period have notoriously asserted that they were encouraged to look for the material support of England in their war against Russia, notwithstanding the formal declaration of Lord Derby, as Foreign Minister, that England would give no such support. Turkey and the Sultan were thus unfairly treated. But when the war had been allowed to go on to its bitter end, when the Russian armies were at Adrianople and before Erzeroum, in January, 1878, Lord Beaconsfield had matured his purpose, which was then explained to his colleagues in the Cabinet. It was not to save or help the Turkish Empire, after all; but to resist any Russian settlement of its provinces, in order that Austria might take her slice out of them. This was the real motive of all that was done in the spring of 1878, upon the agreement which the two belligerents had come to by themselves. It was for this object, beyond doubt, that the British fleet was ordered to enter the Dardanelles on Jan. 23, and the vote of six millions for war preparations was brought forward in our Parliament. Lord Derby and Lord Carnarvon instantly tendered their resignation of office, but the former was induced to remain in the Ministry by countermanding the order to our fleet. He had said, two months before, to a deputation at his own office, "For my own part, believing that, unless war is a necessity, it is a crime, I think we ought to be most careful to do and say nothing which would tend to bring it on." It was the Ministerial resolution, on March 27, to seize the island of Cyprus and land our Indian troops in Syria, instead of entering the proposed Congress upon the Treaty of San Stefano, that drove Lord Derby out of the Beaconsfield Cabinet. He knew well that such an act would set the example of a general plunder and partition of the Turkish Empire; that Russia and Austria would speedily follow the example, and there would be the gravest danger of a European war. The annexation of Cyprus was, indeed, only deferred; but it was left to be procured by a secret Treaty with the Sultan, at the price of our undertaking, alone and without help from the other Powers, to defend his Asiatic dominions. This was the diplomatic triumph of Lords Beaconsfield and Salisbury in June, accompanied by the surrender to Russia and Austria, respectively, of all that they had wanted to get; and this was called "bringing home peace with honour."

The Conferences at Berlin, from June 13 to July 13, 1878, at which the Prime Minister of Great Britain, with the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, were present, allowed the display of his personality on a magnified scale, and upon the European stage of diplomatic negotiations. During those four weeks, says a Continental correspondent of the Times, Lord Beaconsfield never ceased for an instant to be the great attraction. None of the other Plenipotentiaries excited so much interest among a whole people. From the moment he crossed the German frontier he was the only subject of any ardent curiosity. At every station at which he stopped a crowd had assembled, and persons who did not know how to pronounce his name, and who were heard to call him "Israel," greeted with cheers that striking physiognomy, which responded so well to the popular imagination. At Berlin, at the doors of the Kaiserhof, it was he who was pointed out, and not only in the streets, but in the diplomatic drawing-rooms he was the centre of attraction. He had then already at times fits of lassitude, and, at a reception at Lord Odo Russell's, on a remark that the Congress must be very exhausting to him, he sadly replied, "Oh! no; it is time that tires me." At the Congress, however, he surprised everybody by the determined stand he made, and Prince Bismarck, not easily astonished, then said of him:—

"Schouvaloff and Beaconsfield are the two leading figures in this Congress, and I am delighted with watching them. Beaconsfield has wonderful presence of mind, is versatile and energetic, lets nothing excite him, and has admirably defended his cause. English pride is safe in his hands; and when the negotiations were broken off on June 21 he was manfully leading his country to war. It was then that I intervened. Both he and Schouvaloff have done their duty, and have served their countries from war. My only merit was bringing them together at a moment when they could not themselves make any advances."

To these remarks the Berlin correspondent adds a curious anecdote. A well-known diplomatist there was not long ago conferring with Prince Bismarck in the latter's private cabinet, when the conversation chanced to turn on the Berlin Congress and the conspicuous part which the chief Plenipotentiary of Great Britain had taken at it. "There," said the Chancellor, pointing to the wall, "there hangs the portrait of my Sovereign, there on the right that of my wife, and on the left there that of Lord Beaconsfield."

We cannot deny that Lord Beaconsfield's diplomatic expedition to Berlin gained him a vast amount of popularity in England, and seemed, for the time, to have secured him an abiding majority in Parliament. The freedom of the city of London was conferred on him and on Lord Salisbury; and their progress from Parliament-street to Whitehall, on their return from Berlin, was one continued triumph. In the speech which he delivered at the Knightsbridge banquet, the Prime Minister gave an exposition of what he himself considered to be the real import of the treaty. The apprehensions which had prevailed both in this country and in Europe he described as follows:—"That the balance of power in the Mediterranean might be subverted; that Russia might establish ports on the Ægean; that the restriction on the navigation of the Straits might be removed; that Asia Minor might be conquered; and the establishments and influence of Great Britain on the Persian Gulf might be seriously endangered;" and he claimed for the Treaty of Berlin that it had secured the best possible precautions against all these contingencies. Such were the supposed merits of his policy, in the eyes of the Conservative party, while foreign journals were quoted by Lord Beaconsfield's supporters as bearing reluctant testimony to the opinion "that, war or no war, the preponderance of English influence in Asia is henceforth secured. Egypt, with the Suez Canal and the maritime route to India, Asia Minor, with Arabia, as also Syria and the rich Euphrates district, Turkey on both sides the Bosphorus, together with the road over Persia to the vassal States of Central Asia, are now all under the powerful dominion of Great Britain." This second flattering to the national pride; but the private convention with the Porte was of doubtful advantage, and gave some handle to those who declared that it was intended as a salve to English vanity. As for the acquisition of Cyprus, it is difficult not to associate it with a passage in "Tancred;" and, at all events, the coincidence is curious. The passage runs thus:—"The English want Cyprus, and they will take it as compensation. The English will not do the business of the Turks again for nothing."

The Eastern Question, nevertheless, was by no means completely set at rest in 1878, and has caused much diplomatic embarrassment in the last two or three years. Lord Beaconsfield's diplomatic achievement soon lost some of its apparent lustre, and it was perceived, upon calm examination, that the dangers of Russian conquests on the shores of the Mediterranean and of the Persian Gulf had in reality never existed. They were too much like those creations of imaginative rhetoric which emanated from his earlier devotion to political romance. The English popular mind, however, not being very accurately acquainted, as Lord Salisbury once said, with "large maps," or with geographical and historical details concerning Western and Central Asia, was easily led to accept those views of the bearing of Russian wars upon the safety of our Indian Empire. And the consequence too soon followed, in a quarter very remote from the Bosphorus and the Dardanelles, by the institution of a war in Afghanistan, to provide India with "a scientific frontier," which has cost a military expenditure of twenty millions sterling, but which the Indian Government finds not worth keeping. This was the last important development of Lord Beaconsfield's foreign policy. Of domestic policy, in the way of administrative or legislative reforms, the year 1879 exhibited none at all.

The dissolution of Parliament, in the spring of last year, which might possibly have taken place with better results for his party at an earlier date, entirely destroyed Lord Beaconsfield's Parliamentary strength; and the Liberal party, again headed by Mr. Gladstone, returned to power. We are glad to record, however, that Lord Beaconsfield when he resigned carried into his retirement the personal respect of the most honourable of his political opponents. Nor can we do better than quote the expressions of Lord Hartington in one of his election speeches in North-East Lancashire:—"It may be said that Lord Beaconsfield is ambitious. I should like to know what man who has attained the position which he has attained in the political life of his country is not actuated by feelings of ambition. No one certainly can attribute any mean or unworthy feelings to Lord Beaconsfield. We disagree with his politics, but we must admire the genius and talent which the man has shown under the disadvantages he has laboured under. I firmly believe that Lord Beaconsfield has had in view what he believes to be the greatness of his country and the power of the Sovereign whom he serves."

With this generous tribute of regard from a leader of the Liberal party, we now take leave of Lord Beaconsfield's political career, which will long afford subject for serious reflection. The private life of an eminent contemporary and fellow-countryman does not come within our range of inquiry; but it may be affirmed of him, that not the slightest imputation of unworthy conduct in his domestic and social relations has ever been uttered. Few men were more deservedly beloved by their personal friends and intimate acquaintance, as he behaved to all, high and low, with unfailing courtesy and kindness.

Lord Beaconsfield's recent illness began on the 20th ult., and threatened at the close of the first week to prove fatal, but no doubt the noble Earl's life was prolonged by the care and attention which he received, and by the favourable circumstances under which he was placed. Unfortunately, the weather has been most unpropitious, a bitter east wind penetrating everywhere, notwithstanding the utmost precautions that could be taken. With its cessation in the middle of last week the patient's symptoms somewhat improved, and for a short time favourable hopes were indulged in by those around him; but with its return on Saturday last there came a further relapse. Since then not only was there no progress, but the malady took a more hopeless form, and those who read between the lines of the bulletins were prepared for the worst. As stated in these reports, his Lordship became more restless, took nourishment with more irregularity and less willingness, gradually weakened, and sank on Tuesday morning, when he died at half-past four o'clock, apparently entirely exhausted. There was no painful struggle at the last moment; he ceased to live as if in sleep, so gently that it was some few moments after death before those watching so anxiously around his couch were fully aware of the fact.

One of Lord Beaconsfield's medical attendants furnishes the following particulars of the Earl's last condition:—"The mere drowsiness, which had been apparent in the later part of Monday evening, gradually deepened towards midnight into a stupor, from which his Lordship was with difficulty aroused. He still, however, took nourishment up to half-past one in the morning. About two o'clock the stupor deepened into coma, or complete insensibility, and towards the hour of three the breathing became very much embarrassed. Dr. Kidd and Dr. Bruce at once applied all the usual restoratives for the breathing, but, for the first time during his illness, there was no response. Seeing the approach of death, Dr. Kidd immediately dispatched messengers to Lord Barrington, Sir Philip Rose, and Sir William Jenner. Lord Barrington was the first to arrive, and upon entering the sick-room he found Lord Rowton closely grasping the right hand of the distinguished patient, in which grasp Lord Barrington joined. The two noble Lords continued to clasp the right hand of Lord Beaconsfield until the last moment, his left being all the time held in that of Dr. Kidd. About five minutes before the breathing ceased Sir Philip Rose and Dr. Quain arrived. Then a most placid appearance came over his Lordship's face, which deeply moved all in the room. The distressing breathing ceased, and for about five minutes slow, gentle inspiration took its place, and all seemed over; but even after the breathing had stopped for four or five minutes, the heart's action kept up, and the pulse continued perfectly perceptible at the wrist. It was a most touching scene. As Lord Rowton, Lord Barrington, the three physicians, Mr. Baum, the young servant James, and the two nurses watched round the bed for a further period of ten minutes, perfect silence was kept, save for the weeping of some who were present, because even when the pulse ceased it was difficult to realise that he was dead. Thus, without suffering, without a struggle, Lord Beaconsfield's life slowly passed away."

During the progress of his illness Lord Beaconsfield displayed his usual fortitude. He was patient and reticent, speaking but little, as he found that the exertion of doing so fatigued him. When, however, he did converse, his remarks always showed his characteristic shrewdness, and it was evident to those with him that when silent he was often absorbed in a deep train of thought. He was never better for interviews with friends or others, and consequently did not encourage them—a course in which he was sustained by the advice of his physicians. Indeed, he hesitated for some two or three days to see Lord Rowton after his return from Algiers, fearing the excitement might be injurious; but, after the first interview, the latter was constantly with him, and Lord Beaconsfield derived the greatest possible comfort from his presence. With this exception, and on one or two occasions when Lord Barrington and Sir Philip Rose saw him, no one but his medical advisers and personal attendants were admitted to the sick-room.

Lord Beaconsfield's executors, under his will, are Sir Philip Rose and Sir Nathaniel Rothschild, for his estate and property, with Lord Rowton (formerly Mr. Montagu Corry, his private secretary) as literary trustee or executor. The first-named gentleman has stated that it was impossible yet to say whether the funeral will be a public one or not. In the event of the former being decided on, he thought it could not take place within less than ten or twelve days. On receiving news of the death, Mr. Gladstone telegraphed from Hawarden his desire that the honours of a national funeral and interment in Westminster Abbey should be accorded to the remains of Lord Beaconsfield. It is understood that the friends and relatives of Lord Beaconsfield would assent to a public funeral in Westminster Abbey, unless any directions are found of Lord Beaconsfield's to the contrary. On Tuesday morning Dean Stanley called at Curzon-street to ascertain what were the wishes of those most intimately connected with the deceased as to the funeral, but found that no decision had been arrived at. Lord Rowton went on Wednesday morning to Osborne, to ask the Queen her wishes upon this subject. It is known that before leaving Buckingham Palace her Majesty communicated to Lord Barrington her particular desire to visit the patient; but the reply of the physicians was that only complete quietude was likely to restore Lord Beaconsfield, and they begged the Queen, in the circumstances, not to carry out her desire.

It is announced in the Court Circular that the Queen received with feelings of the deepest sorrow the sad intelligence of the death of the Earl of Beaconsfield, in whom her Majesty loses a most valued and devoted friend and counsellor, and the nation one of its most distinguished statesmen.

The funeral arrangements have been placed in the hands of Messrs. Caswell, of King's-road, Chelsea, who superintended the interment of Lady Beaconsfield, at her death in 1872.

Our Illustrations comprise two portraits of Lord Beaconsfield, one of which, copied from an engraving published by Messrs. Colnaghi, was drawn nearly fifty years ago, representing the younger Mr. Disraeli of that time. Other Engravings show the scenes of his public life, at the Bucks county election, in the House of Commons, and at Berlin, with the visit of Prince Bismarck to the English Prime Minister at the Kaiserhof Hotel. We also give a view of his country house, Hughenden Manor. His style of living was comparatively simple, and at Hughenden, though he and Lady Beaconsfield took great delight in the beautiful woods which surrounded them, there were no appliances for field sports. Lord Beaconsfield neither kept hunters nor preserved game, leaving it to his tenants to supply him at their own discretion. But he felt a peculiar interest in the Chiltern Hills, and was fond of driving among them with an appreciative stranger, showing him Great Hampden and Chequers Court, and repeating anecdotes of the historical associations of those places.

A few hours after death Mr. Boehm, sculptor, took an excellent cast of Lord Beaconsfield's features. He was to have sat for his portrait to Mr. J. E. Millais, R.A., but this was prevented by his late illness.

---

Mr. Cecil Charles Balfour, second son of the late Mr. James Maitland Balfour, of Whittinghame, N.B., was killed on the 3rd inst., in New South Wales, by a fall from his horse. The deceased gentleman, who was in his thirty-first year, was brother of Mr. A. J. Balfour, M.P. for Hertford, and nephew of the Marquis of Salisbury and Mr. Beresford-Hope, M.P.

OBITUARY.

THE EARL OF BEACONSFIELD, K.G.

The Right Hon. Benjamin Disraeli, Earl of Beaconsfield and Viscount Hughenden, in the county of Bucks, K.G., P.C., LL.D., D.C.L., died, to the deep sorrow of large classes of the community, on the 19th inst., at his residence in Curzon-street. This great statesman, orator, and author, was born Dec. 21, 1804, and baptized in the parish Church of St. Andrew, Holborn, July 31, 1817, his father having previously severed his connection with the Jewish community. He was eldest son of Isaac Disraeli, D.C.L., F.S.A., of Bradenham Manor, the well-known author of "Curiosities of Literature," by Maria Basevi, his wife, sister of Mr. George Basevi, the eminent Jewish architect, and was grandson of Benjamin Disraeli, a London merchant, who came to England in 1746. This family of Disraeli was, prior to its settlement in England, established first in Spain and then in Venice. Young Disraeli, long before he gained distinction in politics, acquired considerable reputation as a popular writer of fiction. "Vivian Grey," published in 1825, was followed by various other works of imagination, "Henrietta Temple," "Contarini Fleming," "The Young Duke," "Alroy," &c. Later in life, amidst all the din of political strife, he produced "Coningsby," "Sybil," "Tancred," "Lothair," and "Endymion." His brilliant career in the House of Commons dates from the year 1837, when he was elected by the borough of Maidstone, which he continued to represent until 1841. From 1841 to 1847 he sat for Shrewsbury; and from 1847 to 1876 for the county of Buckingham. From March to December, 1852, from February, 1858, to June, 1859, and from June, 1866, to February, 1868, he held office as Chancellor of the Exchequer; and from February, 1874, to March, 1880, as First Lord of the Treasury. He was elevated to the Peerage Aug. 31, 1876, invested with the order of the Garter July 22, 1878, shortly after his return from the Congress of the European Powers at Berlin. He married, Aug. 28, 1839, Mary Anne, widow of Mr. Wyndham Lewis, M.P., of Greenmeadow, in the county of Glamorgan, only daughter of Captain John Viney Evans, R.N., of Bampford Speke, Devon, and niece and eventual heiress of General Sir James Viney, K.C.H., but had no issue. This lady was created, Nov. 30, 1868, Viscountess Beaconsfield, but died Dec. 15, 1872, when that title became extinct. Lord Beaconsfield having thus died childless, his Peerage honours also become extinct. His only surviving brother is Mr. Ralph Disraeli, Deputy Clerk of the Parliaments, who married, Aug. 15, 1861, Katherine, daughter of Mr. Charles Trevor, and has, besides three daughters, one son, Coningsby Ralph, born Feb. 25, 1867. Among his various other appointments, Lord Beaconsfield was Lord Privy Seal 1876 to 1878, Lord Rector of the University of Glasgow 1871 to 1877, a Trustee of the British Museum, one of the Committee of Council on Education, and an Elder Brother of the Trinity House.

SIR R. H. POLLEN, BART.

Sir Richard Hungerford Pollen, third Baronet, of Redenham, Hampshire, died at Clifton, on the 8th inst. He was born Oct. 19, 1815, the eldest son of Mr. Richard Pollen, of Lincoln's Inn, and of Rodbourne, Wiltshire, by Anne, his wife, daughter of Mr. Samuel Pepys Cockerell, of Westbourne, Middlesex, and succeded to the baronetcy at the death of his uncle, Sir John Walter Pollen, May 2, 1863. He received his education at Eton, and at Christ Church, Oxford, where he graduated in 1837; married, first, June 5, 1845, Charlotte Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. John Godley, of Killigar, county Leitrim, which lady died in 1860; and secondly, Sept. 29, 1870, Frances Mary, youngest daughter of the late Mr. W. B. Aird. By his first marriage he had two sons and six daughters; of the former, the elder, his successor, now Sir Richard Hungerford Pollen, fourth Baronet, born Oct. 6, 1846, married, June 8, 1875, Frances Anne St. Albyn, eldest daughter of the late Mr. William Savage Wait, of Woodborough, county Somerset.

LADY ROBARTES.

The Right Hon. Juliana, Baroness Robartes, died on the 12th inst., from the effects of the shock to her system caused by the burning the week previously of the family seat, Llanhydrock, where she was residing. Her Ladyship was daughter of the Right Hon. Reginald Pole-Carew, of East Antony, Cornwall, by Caroline, his second wife, daughter of William Henry, Lord Lyttelton. She was married, Jan. 8, 1839, to Thomas James Agar-Robartes, M.P. for East Cornwall, who was created Baron Robartes Dec. 13, 1869. Their only son, the Hon. Thomas Charles Agar-Robartes, now represents East Cornwall.

SERJEANT HERON.

Denis Caulfeild Heron, third Queen's Serjeant in Ireland, bencher of King's Inns, Dublin, and J.P. for the counties of Armagh and Down, died suddenly of an attack of apoplexy, with which he was struck while salmon-fishing at Galway on the 15th inst., aged fifty-six. Serjeant Heron,, the eldest son of Mr. W. Heron, of Newry, was educated at Trinity College, Dublin, where he gained the highest distinction, graduating a senior moderator in classics in 1844. In 1848 he was called to the Bar, and not long after appointed Professor of Jurisprudence in the Queen's College, Galway. In 1860 he became Q.C., in 1867 Law Adviser at Dublin Castle, and in 1880 third Serjeant, on the vacancy created by the death of Serjeant Armstrong. From 1870 to 1874 he represented, on extreme Liberal principles, the county of Tipperary in Parliament. As a nisi prius lawyer, Heron stood amongst the foremost advocates at the Irish Bar, and, as a cultivated scholar, had few equals. In the recent State prosecutions he appeared for the Crown, and was engaged in all the important cases of late years. Serjeant Heron married, in 1854, Emily, sister of the Right Hon. Mr. Justice J. D. Fitzgarald, of the Irish Bench.

We have also to record the deaths of—

Lady Wedderburn, widow of the late Sir John Wedderburn, recently, at Ovington-gardens, aged seventy-seven.

Major-General Richard Armstrong Roberts, late R.E., on the 12th inst., at Biarritz, in his fifty-fourth year.

Lady Jane Johnstone-Douglas, on the 15th inst., in Earl's Court-road, Kensington, aged seventy. She was fifth daughter of Charles, fifth Marquis of Queensberry, K.T., by Caroline, his wife, third daughter of Henry, third Duke of Buccleuch and Queensberry, K.G.; was married, Jan. 27, 1841, to her cousin, Mr. Robert Johnstone-Douglas, of Lockerbie, and was left a widow Nov. 12, 1866.

Major-General Edmund Wintle, late H.E.I.C.S., son of the late Mr. James Wintle, of the Bengal Civil Service, at Bath, on the 8th inst., aged eighty.

Lady Buller, the wife of General Sir George Buller, G.C.B., on the 18th inst., after a protracted illness. She was the daughter of the late General Sir John Macdonald, G.C.B., Adjutant-General of the Forces, and was married to Sir G. Buller in 1855.

Dr. Alexander Somers, a leading medical practitioner, at Salford, a very popular lecturer, and a much esteemed gentleman, on the 9th inst. He was only son of the late Mr. Alexander Somers, one of the firm of Conolly and Somers, brewers, of the city of Dublin.

Commander W. Hutchison, R.N., J.P., on the 8th inst., at his residence, 13, Crosthwaite Park, near Kingston, Dublin, aged eighty-seven. His services were numerous and important, and through his long life the improvement and well-being of the sailor was his constant aim.

Admiral William Cheselden Browne, in the Isle of Wight, a descendant of an ancient Leicestershire family, some of the members of which were High Sheriffs of the county in the reign of Henry VII. He was born in 1805, entered the Navy in 1816, on board the Minden, and, as midshipman of that vessel, was present at the battle of Algiers.

Mr. Reginald George Hanbury, eldest son of Mr. George Hanbury, of Blythwood, Maidenhead, Bucks, by Mary, his wife, eldest daughter of Captain Trotter, of Dyrham Park, and grandson of Mr. Robert Hanbury, of Poles, in Hertfordshire, one of the firm of Truman, Hanbury, Buxton, and Co. He was killed by a fall from his horse.

Dr. William Hardwicke, the Coroner for Central Middlesex, on the 15th inst., after a few hours' illness. After holding several inquests on Thursday Dr. Hardwicke was seized with a fit, which terminated fatally not long afterwards. He had held the position of Coroner for Central Middlesex for six years and a half, succeeding the late Dr. Lankester, under whom he served for twelve years as deputy-coroner.

Mr. James Daly, of Castle Daly, county Galway, J.P. and D.L., High Sheriff, 1853, at his residence, near Loughrea, on the 13th inst., aged seventy-three. He married, 1830, Margaret, daughter of Mr. Hubert Dolphin, of Turoe, and leaves issue. One of his daughters is married to Mr. Matthew D'Arcy, of Kilcroney House, Bray, late M.P. for the county Wexford.

The Rev. Richard Burgess, B.D., prebendary of St. Paul's, at Brighton, recently, in his eighty-fifth year. Dr. Burgess was Rector of Upper Chelsea from 1836 to 1869, when he was appointed to the rectory of Ickworth-with-Horringer, near Bury St. Edmunds, which he lately resigned. The prebendal stall of Tottenhall, in St. Paul's Cathedral, was conferred upon him in 1850.

Rev. William Morley Punshon, D.D., the well-known popular Wesleyan preacher, on the 14th inst., aged fifty-seven. During a residence of some duration in Canada, he was five times chosen President of the Canadian Conference, and the year after his return to England, in 1873, he was elected President of the Wesleyan Conference. Dr. Punshon was not only an eminent preacher, but also a poet and an antiquary. Mr. Punshon's portrait was given in our Number for Aug. 8, 1874, on the occasion of his being chosen President of the Wesleyan Methodist Conference.

The Rev. Jacob Ley, B.D., an old and distinguished member of Christ Church, Oxford, recently, at the age of seventy-eight. Mr. Ley graduated "double second class" in Michaelmas Term, 1825, and afterwards held the offices of Censor, Catechist, and Librarian, eventually becoming the Senior Student of Christ Church. In 1845 he was appointed Vicar of St. Mary Magdalen, Oxford, and thirteen years afterwards, on the valuable living of Staverton, in the diocese of Peterborough, becoming vacant, he was presented to it by the Dean and Chapter of Christ Church, and remained Vicar until his death.

Miss Jane Bewick, the eldest daughter of Thomas Bewick, the famous engraver on wood, on the 7th inst. The deceased lady had reached the great age of ninety-four, having survived her celebrated father more than half a century. Thomas Bewick left four children—three daughters and one son. The latter, Robert Elliot Bewick, died in 1849, aged sixty-one. The youngest daughter died in 1865. The last survivor is Miss Isabella Bewick. A few years ago the Misses Bewick announced their intention of leaving to the British Museum a complete collection of their father's works. When this purpose is fulfilled the inquiring student will be able to form a proper estimate of Bewick's original genius as an artist and his power and skill as a wood engraver. A few months ago the public had an opportunity, through the courtesy of his daughters, of inspecting a collection of his original drawings at the Fine Art Society's Galleries in New Bond-street. The lady just deceased edited a memoir of her father, written by himself, which, for some unexplained reason, was not published till thirty-four years after his death.

[In our obituary notice of the late Mr. Granville Somerset, Q.C., it was stated that he received his education at All Souls' College, Oxford. A correspondent supplements, and in some measure corrects, this information by saying that Mr. Somerset was educated, as most of his race had been, at Westminster School, whence he was elected student of Christ Church in 1841, and from that house was elected to All Souls' in 1845; and, having taken the degree of D.C.L. in 1853, was in that year appointed Deputy Professor of Civil Law in the University. Few persons ever attached more friends to himself by the warmth of his affections than Mr. Somerset; and throughout life he was always found ready to assist the place of his education and those who laboured in it or were connected with it or had been his friends there. One of his latest efforts was to speak on its behalf, though he was very ill.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The Irish probate granted at Dublin, Nov. 29, 1880, of the will (dated July 10, 1879) of the Right Hon. Frederick Mason, Baron Ashtown, late of Woodlawn, Galway, who died on Sept. 12 last at Clonadfoy Castle, county Limerick, to Thomas Frederick Cooke Trench, the Hon. Charles James Trench, the brother, and the Hon. Cosby Godolphin Trench, the son, the executors, has just been sealed in London, the aggregate personal estate within the jurisdiction of the High Courts of Justice in England and Ireland being sworn under £350,000. The testator leaves to his wife, Elizabeth, Lady Ashtown, all the moneys, stocks, shares, and securities appointed to him by a certain deed poll, and all his furniture, plate, effects, live and dead stock at Clonadfoy Castle; upon trust for his daughter, the Hon. Harriette Mary Trench, £10,000; upon trust for his grandson William Cosby Trench, £20,000; upon trust for his grandson Sydney Trench, £15,000; upon trust for his granddaughters, Charlotte Anne Trench and Sarah Mary Trench, £10,000 each; to his daughter-in-law, Lady Anne Trench, during widowhood, an annuity of £800; to his said son, the Hon. Cosby Godolphin Trench, his furniture, plate, and effects at Sopwell Hall, and he settles upon him certain lands in Tipperary; and some land at Summerville, Galway, is devised for the support of the Protestant Episcopal Church at Killiam. The residue of his real and personal property is strictly settled upon his grandson, Frederick Oliver Trench (now Lord Ashtown), the eldest son of his deceased son, the Hon. Frederick Sydney Charles Trench.

The Scotch confirmation, under seal of the Commissariot of the county of Edinburgh (dated March 9, 1881) of the will of the Right Hon. George Maule Ramsay, Earl of Dalhousie, of Kerington and Glenmark, who died on July 20 last, granted to John William Maule Ramsay, Earl of Dalhousie, the son, and the executor nominate, was sealed in London on the 4th inst., the inventory given in upon oath, of the personal estate in England and Scotland, amounting to upwards of £138,000.

The will (dated April 7, 1880) of Mr. William Oliver Jackson, late of Ahaneck, in the county of Cork, and of Dover-street, Piccadilly, who died on Feb. 9 last, was proved in London on the 21st ult. by Marlere John Brady, William Henry Sharman-Crawford, and Edward Barry Broadley, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £160,000. The testator gives £500 to his wife, Mrs. Milicent Anne Jackson; £150 to his daughter, Mrs. Cherry Roma Anne Sadleir; £100 each to his executors; his plate and jewellery (except two lockets, in which a previous life interest is given to his wife) are made heirlooms, to go with the settled estates; his furniture and effects to his son, Warren Edward Rowland Jackson; and twelve calendar months' wages to each of his domestic servants who have been ten years in his service. All his freehold, copyhold, and leasehold estates in England, Ireland, and Wales, and the residue of the personalty are settled to similar uses and upon similar trusts to the property settled by him and his said son in March, 1880.

The will (dated July 15, 1879) of Mr. James Hurnard, late of Lexden, Essex, who died on Feb. 26 last, was proved on the 22nd ult. by Mrs. Louisa Bowman Hurnard, the widow, Robert Harding, and Frederick Smith, the executors, the personal estate being affirmed under £120,000. The testator bequeaths to his executors, Mr. Harding and Mr. Smith, £200 each; to his wife £10,000 and his furniture, plate, household effects, horses and carriages; and an annuity to his father-in-law. All his real estate and the residue of the personal estate is to be held upon trust to pay the income to his wife until his son Samuel Fennel Hurnard attains twenty-one, and then for his said son.

The will (dated June 15, 1880) with two codicils (dated June 28, 1880, and Feb. 4, 1881) of Mr. John William Marshall, late of No. 32, St. George's-road, Eccleston-square, and of Patterdale Hall, Westmorland, who died on Feb. 11 last, at No. 40, Lowndes-street, was proved on the 23rd ult. by Christopher John Parker, the acting executor, the personal estate being sworn under £70,000. The testator gives his plate to his nephew, Edward Wilfrid Marshall; £1000 to his brother George Hibbert Marshall; his house in St. George's-road to his brother Francis Albert Marshall; his pictures, prints, and engravings to his sister-in-law, Mrs. Imogen Fitz-Inman Marshall, for life, and then to go as heirlooms with the Patterdale Hall estate; the furniture, effects, horses and carriages, at Patterdale Hall to the person who shall succeed at his decease to the estate; the furniture and effects at his residence in St. George's-road to his said sister-in-law; £8000 upon trust for her for life, and at her death for his said nephew; £3000 upon trust for his sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Spring Rice, and then for his nephew, Gerard Spring Rice; and the residue of his property, real and personal, as to two thirds for his nephew, the said Edward Wilfrid Marshall, and as to one third for his niece, Cecilia Marshall.

The will (dated Oct. 22, 1879) with a codicil (dated Sept. 9, 1880) of Mr. Robert Prowett, formerly of Spring-gardens and of Berkeley-square, but late of Park Gates, The Green, Richmond, who died on Feb. 28 last, was proved on the 18th ult. by Frederick Charles Colman and James Jephson, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £40,000. The testator leaves numerous legacies, several of considerable amount, to or upon trust for relatives, friends, executors, trustees, and servants; and the residue of his property, as to one fourth, between Richard William Bates and Alfred Prowett Bates, and one fourth each to James Prowett, Agnes Prowett, and Catherine Prowett.

The will (dated Feb. 8, 1873) with two codicils (dated Aug. 31 and Sept. 24, 1880) of Sir Alexander Palmer Bruce Chichester, Bart., late of Arlington Court, Devon, who died on Jan. 25 last, was proved on the 21st ult. by Gabriel Prior Goldney, the acting executor, the personal estate being sworn under £16,000. The testator leaves to his executor £200; to his wife, Dame Rosalie Amelia Chichester, his mansion house, East Down house, for life; subject thereto, all his freehold, copyhold, and leasehold estates are settled so as to pass with the family estates. The residue of the personalty he gives to his wife absolutely.

The will (dated Dec. 3, 1880) of Mr. Francis Trevelyan Buckland, Inspector of Fisheries, late of No. 37, Albany-street, Regent's Park, who died on Dec. 19 last, was proved on the 2nd inst. by William Henry Bennett, the sole executor, the personal estate being sworn under £10,000. The testator bequeaths his museum of economic fish culture to the Director and Assistant Directors of the South Kensington Museum, which, under the name of "Buckland's Fish Museum," is to be for ever devoted to the use of the nation, and to form part of the natural history museum at South Kensington for public instruction and enjoyment; to his executor £200; and to his wife £500 and his household furniture and effects. The residue of his real and personal estate he leaves upon trust for his wife for life; at her death £5000 is to be placed in the names of three trustees as an endowment fund for a professorship of economic fish culture, to be called "The Buckland Professor," under such regulations as may be approved of by the Vice-President of the Committee of Council on Education and the Director and Assistant Directors of South Kensington Museum; and the ultimate residue of his property is to go as his wife shall appoint.

The Scotch confirmation, under seal of the Commissariot of the county of Edinburgh (dated March 7, 1881) of the will of James St. Clair, Baron Sinclair, of Herdmanston, Haddingtonshire, Nisbet, Berwickshire, and Stonedge, Roxburghshire, who died at Constantinople on Oct. 24 last, granted to the Right Hon. Jane, Baroness Sinclair, the widow, Charles William, Lord Sinclair, the son, and to three others, the executors nominate, was sealed in London on the 15th ult., the personal estate in England and Scotland being sworn under £7000.

A French company has signed an agreement with the Porte for the construction of twenty-five lighthouses in the Red Sea, which will prove a great benefit to Indian commerce.

THE LATE LORD BEACONSFIELD.

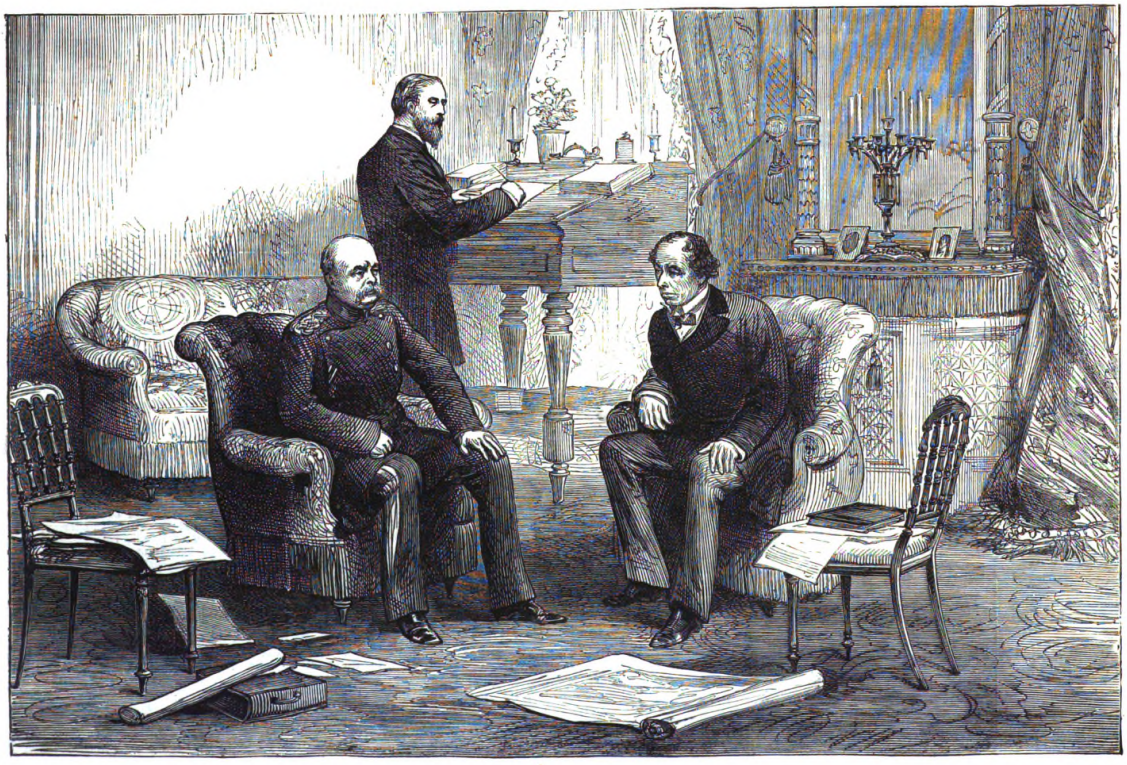
MR. DISRAELI FIFTY YEARS AGO.



VISIT OF PRINCE BISMARCK TO LORD BEACONSFIELD AT BERLIN, JULY, 1878.

THE TRANSVAAL WAR: SKETCHES BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.

SIR GEORGE COLLEY'S MIDNIGHT ASCENT OF MAJUBA HILL, FEBRUARY 26.

FACSIMILE OF A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

THE FIGHT ON MAJUBA HILL.

The Sketches published this week, being drawn by our Special Artist with the assistance of several eye-witnesses of this disastrous combat, show how the few British troops on the summit of the steep mountain above Laing's Neck were overpowered by the greatly superior force of Boers, who had climbed up to the assault, on Sunday, Feb. 27, the last action of that unfortunate campaign. The best account of it is that given by the Standard correspondent, Mr. Cameron, who was taken prisoner by the Boers, and was permitted at once to return to the British Camp at Mount Prospect, in order to send medical relief to the wounded the same evening.

This correspondent states that General Sir George Colley, who observed that the high peak which overlooked the right of the enemy's position, although held during the day by a Boer picket, was left unoccupied at night, had determined to seize and hold the point at once, fearing that if he delayed any longer the enemy might also discover its value, and intrench it as they had done with Laing's Neck. Boer working parties had been seen in close proximity to the top during the day, on Saturday, Feb. 26; so, to make possession a certainty, the order was given for 180 Highlanders of the 92nd Regiment, 148 men of the 58th, 150 Rifles, and 70 Bluejackets to assemble at half-past nine in the evening. They marched off in silence, reached Majuba Hill, three miles and a half from the British camp, and had a long and toilsome climb of three hours to the top. They got up there between four and five in the morning, before daylight. "We found ourselves," he says, "on a spacious plateau some thousand yards round, sloping gently downwards from the summit, where was an oblong hollow basin, about two hundred yards long by sixty wide, the rocky ridges of which, as it seemed to us, constituted a natural citadel that we fancied would prove impregnable." It was distant not more than two thousand yards from the nearest Boer intrenchments on Laing's Neck, and at an elevation of two thousand feet above them.

The British soldiers were posted all round, at intervals of ten paces, leaving the Naval Brigade and fifty men of the 58th Regiment as a reserve in the central hollow. When daylight came, they looked down on the Boers' encampment, laagers formed of waggons with tents inside. It was about seven o'clock when the Boers perceived that the British were on the top of the hill above them. This discovery at first seemed to excite great alarm and confusion among the Boers, who began to drive in their horses and cattle, and even prepared to remove their waggons. But their panic was apparently stopped by the authority of their commander, and some parties of them now came up the hill. Firing commenced at nine o'clock, on a part of the summit held by Lieutenant Hamilton, with only twenty men of the 92nd Highlanders. Commander Romilly, R.N., of the Naval Brigade, was killed by a chance shot early in the morning; but during the whole forenoon the casualties were not very numerous. The correspondent now goes on to say:—

"We had been exposed to five hours of unceasing fire, and had become accustomed to the constant humming of bullets, which at noon almost ceased, when the General, wearied with the exertions of the previous night, lay down to sleep. Communication by heliograph had been established with the camp, and confidence in our ability to hold our own had increased, rather than abated. Lieutenant Hamilton, however, who, with his few men, had been opposing the enemy alone throughout the morning, did not share in the general assurance. A little after twelve he came back from his position for a few minutes to tell us that, having seen large numbers of the enemy pass to the hollow underneath him, he feared that they were up to some devilment. Reinforcements were promised him and he returned to his post, but these did not reach him until it was almost too late.

"Shortly afterwards, Major Hay, of the 92nd, Colonel Stewart, Major Fraser, and myself were discussing the situation, when we were startled by a loud and sustained rattle of musketry, the bullets of which shrieked over our heads in a perfect hail. Lieutenant Wright, of the 92nd, rushed back, shouting out for immediate reinforcements. The General, assisted by his Staff, set about getting these forward, and then for the first time it dawned upon us that we might lose the hill, for the soldiers moved forward but slowly and hesitatingly. It was only too evident they did not like the work before them. By dint of some hard shouting and even pushing they were most of them got over the ridge, where they lay down, some distance behind Hamilton and his thin line of Highlanders, who, although opposed to about five hundred men at 120 yards, never budged an inch.

"It seems that the advance of the enemy had been thoroughly checked, when one of our people—an officer, I believe—noticing the Boers for the first time, ejaculated, 'Oh, there they are, quite close;' and the words were hardly out of his lips ere every man of the newly arrived reinforcements bolted back panic-stricken. This was more than flesh and blood could stand, and the skirmishing line under Hamilton gave way also, the retreating troops being exposed, of course, to the Boer fire with disastrous effect.

"I was on the left of the ridge when the men came back on us, and was a witness of the wild confusion which then prevailed. I saw MacDonald, of the 92nd, revolver in hand, threaten to shoot any man who passed him; and, indeed, everybody was hard at work rallying the broken troops. Many, of course, got away and disappeared over the side of the hill next the camp; but some hundred and fifty good men, mostly Highlanders, bluejackets, and old soldiers of the 58th, remained to man the ridge for a final stand.

"Some of the Boers appeared, and the fire that was interchanged was something awful. Three times they showed themselves, and three times they as quickly withdrew, our men, when that occurred, at once stopping their fire. I could hear the soldiers ejaculate, "We'll not budge from this. We'll give them the bayonet if they come closer," and so on, but all the time dropping fast, for Boer marksmen had apparently got to work in secure positions, and every shot told, the men falling back hit, mostly through the head.

"It was a hot five minutes, but nevertheless I thought at the time we should hold our own. I expected every minute to hear the order given for a bayonet charge. That order unfortunately never came, although I am sure the men would have responded to it. But our flanks were exposed, and the enemy, checked in front, were stealing round them; across the hollow on the side of the hill facing the camp we had no one, and as the men were evidently anxious about that point, frequently looking over their shoulders, Colonel Stewart sent me over to see how matters were going on. There I reported all clear, and, indeed, if the enemy had attempted to storm the hill on that face he would have been decimated by the fire of his own people aimed from the other side.

"We were most anxious about our right flank. It was evident that the enemy were stealing round it, so men were taken to prolong the position there. They were chiefly bluejackets, led by a brave young officer, and, as I watched them follow him up, for the third time that day, the conviction flashed across me that we should lose the hill. There was a knoll on the threatened point, up which the reinforcements hesitated to climb. Some of them went back over the top of the plateau to the further ridge, others went round.

"By-and-by there was confusion on the knoll itself. Some of the men on it stood up, and were at once shot down; and at last the whole of those who were holding it gave way. Helter skelter they were at once followed by the Boers, who were able then to pour a volley into our flank in the main line, from which instant the hill of Majuba was theirs. It was sauve qui peut. Major Hay, Captain Singleton, of the 92nd, and some other officers, were the last to leave, and these were immediately shot down and taken prisoners.

"The General had turned round the last of all to walk after his retreating troops, when he also was shot dead, through the head. A minute or two previously Lieutenant Hamilton, requesting the General to excuse his presumption, had asked for a charge, as the men would not stand the fire much longer. Sir George Colley replied, 'Wait until they come on, we will give them a volley and then charge;' but before that moment arrived it was too late.

"To move over about one hundred yards of ground under the fire of some five hundred rifles at close range is not a pleasant experience, but it is what all who remained of us on the hill that day had to go through. On every side, men were throwing up their arms, and with sharp cries of agony were pitching forward on the ground. At last we went over the side of the hill.

"The Boers were instantly on the ridge above, and for about ten minutes kept up their terrible fire on our soldiers, who plunged down every path. Many, exhausted with the night's marching and the day's fighting, unable to go further, lay down behind rocks and bushes, and were afterwards taken prisoners; but of those who remained on the hill to the very last probably not one in six got clear away. The Boers were everywhere assisting our disabled men. Dr. Landon, who, when the hill was abandoned by our panic-stricken troops, had steadily remained by his wounded, was lying on the ground with a shot through his chest. The Boers, as they rushed on the plateau, not seeing or not caring for the Geneva Cross, had fired into and knocked over both him and his hospital assistant; so there was only one, Dr. Mahon, left to look after a great number of very bad cases."

Our Illustrations, besides a Sketch Plan of the battle, drawn as seen from the hill above the Mount Prospect Camp, show Sir George Colley's midnight ascent of Majuba Hill and the final scene of the next day's conflict, as the last remaining men of the British troops were driven off the precipice. The portraits of Major Fraser and Mr. Cameron are drawn in two corners of a page of Engravings.

THE FAR WEST OF AMERICA.

The Dakotah Territory, belonging to the United States of America, was cut off by Act of Congress, in 1861, from the western portion of Minnesota, which latter had been organised as a State in 1858. Its northern boundary is the British frontier of the Canadian Dominion, and it has the State of Nebraska to the south, and the Idaho Territory, to the Rocky Mountains, on its west side. Its extent is 450 miles north to south, and 350 miles east to west, comprising 152,000 square miles. Its general aspect is that of an undulating plain, gradually rising, with some low terraces, towards the western mountains. The Upper Missouri and its chief tributary, the Yellowstone River, flow through Dakotah, and are navigable for small steam-boats in part of their course. The soil is very inferior to that of the North-West Territory of Canada, and the climate is said to be quite as severe; but there are some districts fit for agricultural settlement. For the grazing of cattle it is, perhaps, better adapted, like much of the Western prairie land. The only town of any importance is Yankton, near which are mines of iron and coal. The population consists of a few thousand white people and about as many Indians, who bring in furs, and skins of buffaloes, for sale. Our Sketches represent scenes on the railway lately constructed through Dakotah; the river steam-boats, one with the peculiar stern-wheel for its propulsion; the village of Bismarck, a settler's farmstead, and an Indian camp.

NEW BOOKS.

Wonderful things are related in each of the two volumes containing The Story of a Soldier's Life, by Lieutenant-General John Alexander Ewart, C.B. (Sampson Low and Co.), and there was certainly no reason to apologise for publishing what is, for all its excess of detail, a round, unvarnished tale of a career both interesting and distinguished. A gallant soldier who had served with honour and glory in the 35th Royal Sussex, as well as in the 78th and 93rd Highlanders, would be sure, however garrulous, to have something to say which would be read with avidity by a large circle of readers. He discourses of "peace, war, and mutiny;" and perhaps the most wonderful of his experiences, from a certain point of view, were some that befell him in time of peace. Three they are in number; and the burden of them, respectively, is how he was miraculously assisted upon a certain occasion to "meet a little bill;" how he fell in with a money-lender who behaved not only like a human being but positively like a gentleman; and how his regiment, or a detachment of his regiment, became popular with the inhabitants of some Irish place where he was quartered. Here is the story about "meeting a little bill," ingenuously told: "I had pledged my word," says the narrator, "to the repayment of the sum of fifty pounds at the end of six months, although I never expected to be called upon to do so. The day arrived, and with it an application for the amount. . . . I knelt down in the barrack-room, and prayed earnestly that help might be accorded me. Within a few days afterwards a letter arrived from my brother Charles, of the Royal Engineers, then quartered at Gibraltar, stating that the sum of fifty pounds was lying idle at his agent's, and if by any chance I was in want of any money, that it was quite at my service." We are evidently intended to understand that the means of "meeting the little bill" were provided by direct Divine interposition; but it is a question whether such doctrine have not a mischievous tendency, and do not savour a little of profanity. Probably the worthy narrator committed the common mistake of confounding the "post hoc" with the "propter hoc;" at any rate, it is likely that his example has been followed with a very different result in many other cases, or there would be less "bad paper" about. But the question is a very delicate one. As regards the humane and polite money-lender, the narrator says:—"Unfortunately, I had allowed my debts to accumulate . . . and, for the first and only time in my life, applied for help to a money-lender, whose advertisement in one of the newspapers had caught my eye. On calling at his house, I was shown into a handsomely furnished room, and found myself in the presence of a very gentleman-like man, who asked me the object of my visit. On my stating that I had come for the purpose of borrowing £200, he replied that he did not deal in such small sums, but that he could give me the address of someone who would lend it me. He then asked me if I had a father alive; and on my answering in the affirmative, he strongly advised my going to him and telling him the whole facts of the case; pointing out, in the kindest possible manner, that I was a very young man, that I should have to pay enormous interest for any money I might borrow, and that it would probably only lead me into still greater difficulties." Everybody must agree with the narrator when he remarks, "In seeking the aid of a money-lender, it was indeed fortunate that I fell into the hands of a gentleman." It may not occur to everybody, however, to wonder whether the money-lender would have displayed the same paternal and gentleman-like spirit if the transaction proposed had been more in accordance with the extensive scale upon which alone he was accustomed to do business. And now for the anecdote concerning the popularity acquired by the narrator and his men in Ireland. It appears that he and his detachment were eyed with disfavour by the "Tipperary boys," among whom he was quartered, until one day at ball-practice the detachment happened to shoot a policeman accidentally and wound him badly; after which, says the narrator with grim humour, "we were in high favour," and, "in fact, we became the most popular regiment that had ever been stationed at Borrisokane." The author is a soldier, the son of a soldier, the descendant of men who have done their country good service on sea and land, as combatants and diplomatists, and his pages are, as they naturally would be, full of attractive, if sometimes overminute, information. He commences with his experiences at Sandhurst and ends with an account of his undesired promotion to the rank of lieutenant-general in 1877, a promotion which necessitated his premature retirement, at a serious pecuniary loss, from his command in India. Meanwhile, he had served through the Crimean campaign and in the suppression of the Indian Mutiny, and he gives a very full and extremely interesting description of what he saw, did, and suffered, having lost an arm, in the course of the various duties he fulfilled. It is a little sad to find a pious gentleman, who was wont even to make his "little bills" a subject of special prayer, declaring that, after what he saw at Cawnpore, he was transformed into a creature as brutal almost as the unspeakable Nana himself: "All feeling of mercy or consideration for the mutineers," he says, "had left me; I was no longer a Christian, and all I wanted was revenge. In the Crimea I had never wished to kill a Russian, or ever tried to, but now my one idea was to kill every rebel I could come across." So that the Christian only wants sufficient provocation to become a demon; scratch the Christian deep enough, and you'll find something equal to the Mohammedan; expel nature with even a consecrated fork, yet will she return again. The Founder of Christianity might have held that the greater the provocation the more need of self-restraint; He might have whispered: "Forgive them; they know not what they do." But such excellence is too high for us at present; we cannot attain unto it. The book, by-the-way, has a useful index.

Exhaustive as has been the process applied to the elucidation of everything connected with the public and private history of our "four Georges," here we have yet another Life of George IV., by Percy Fitzgerald, M.A., F.S.A. (Tinsley Brothers), in two really huge volumes. No doubt the volumes contain the product resulting from the "labour of many years;" and, equally without doubt, the contents of the volumes are calculated to absorb the attention of any reader who either is unfamiliar with the general character of George IV., his relatives, his friends, his enemies, and his reign, or, though not unfamiliar, is desirous of going once more over the particulars of a very striking but by no means pleasing biography. Strange and incredible, too, as the statement may appear, there is reason to believe that the two new volumes offer an item, here and there, of hitherto unpublished or not universally known information, whether printed from a letter or other document, and present, here and there, a novel trait, or a novel interpretation, or a something old placed in a novel light. At any rate, the two volumes, for all their formidable bulk, may be cordially recommended to anybody, if anybody there be, who has not yet had enough of George IV., his letters and opinions, and longs for yet another "view of the men, manners, and politics of his reign." Besides, it must be remembered that generation follows generation, and that new books treating of old subjects may be better suited than the former works for the new generation of readers. The whole of the "first gentleman's" dirty linen appears to be conscientiously washed, and the whole of his by no means edifying career appears to be faithfully set forth in detail, from the time that a waxen model of his new-born form, "half a span long, lying upon a crimson cushion," was made for the gratification of his doting mother and "covered by a bell-glass," to that fatal 26th of June when, it is related, he turned suddenly to the friend at his side and exclaimed, as if under the influence of an instantaneous revelation, "My boy, this is death!" The book, it should be acknowledged, has an index, if not a very complete one.

Wanderings in Algeria, under the title of The New Playground, by Mr. Alexander Knox, make the subject-matter of a volume which Messrs. Kegan Paul and Co. have produced, furnishing the most recent information about the French North African Colony. Mr. Knox, being a convalescent invalid, passed the whole of the winter before last, accompanied by his wife, on that sunny shore of the Mediterranean, and made excursions both east and west along the coast, and inland over the Kabyle highlands, and to the Desert Oasis of Biskra, adorned with its groves of palm-trees and date-trees; and surveyed all places and classes of people with methodical exactness. He rather prides himself on being devoid of romantic sentiment; but his remarks show a good degree of shrewd English commonsense, and a fair amount of dry humour, which many readers will no doubt relish all the more for his colloquial familiarity of style. Algiers, upon the whole, seems not to be yet prepared with suitable accommodation for English visitors or residents in delicate health. The want of good hotels, boarding-houses, or lodging-houses, or villas of a moderate size and price, is a serious objection, except for the richest class of foreigners who can lease a costly mansion and bring their own complete household of servants. It is, moreover, a place that offers few social or public amusements to beguile a long sojourn there, and French society is out of the question. The interesting objects of a tour in several directions through the territory, which are referred to above, find ample notice in this volume; and it may be read with some advantage by those who are inclined to gain some acquaintance with a singular country and population, so close to Southern Europe.

The new Natural History Museum, at South Kensington, which was thrown open to the public on Monday, was visited by many thousand persons.

Mr. Creyke, M.P., on Monday opened the new recreation grounds at Goole, Yorkshire, and briefly referred to the good effects open-air exercise had had upon the physical condition of the people of this country. Athletic sports followed. A football-match between Goole town and Wakefield (St. John's suburb) was won by the former.

THE CHURCH.

PREFERMENTS AND APPOINTMENTS.

Atty, R. B., Curate-in-Charge of Claypole, to be Vicar of Priors Lee, near Shifnal.
Brierley, George H.; Curate of Penrith, Curate of Wetheral and Warwick.
Bubb, Osborne; Rector of Dauntsbourne Rouse.
Buckler, J. F.; Diocesan Inspector of Schools for Chester, Vicar of Bidston, near Birkenhead.
Chambers, William; Rector of Blandford Saint Mary, Dorset.
Cook, R. K.; Vicar of Sandbridge, Rector of Elwick Hall, near Castle Eden.
Cox, Alfred Vyvyan; Rector of Hopkinston, Ocea.
Edmundsoh, A. A.; Chaplain Mersey Mission to Seamen.
Hay-Chapman, W.; Vicar of Southborough, Kent.
Houghton, Charles Adams; Prebendary of Fordington and Writhlington, in Salisbury Cathedral.
Kendle, W. J.; Chaplain of the Dorset County Asylum.
Kendall, Archdeacon Leslie; Rector of Maxbury.
Thompson, Vicar of Datchet; Rural Dean of Burnham.
Turner, George Knapp; Vicar of Christ Church, Whitley, Berks.
Wilson, J. Allen; Rural Dean of the Western Division of the Deanery of Craven.—Guardian.

The Spring Conference of the Church Association will be held on May 11, at Willis's Rooms.

A tender for the restoration of the west front of the Abbey Church of St. Alban has been accepted by Sir Edmund Beckett, to whom the Diocesan Chancellor has granted a faculty. Messrs. Longmire and Burge, who have the contract for restoring the nave, are the firm to whom the work has been given.

Early yesterday week half of the old tower of St. John's Church, Chester, fell, bearing with it five of a very sweet peal of eight bells. The tower was 150 ft. high, and was detached from the church, portions of which date from Saxon times. The church escaped, but a beautiful porch was destroyed. Another portion of the tower fell on Tuesday.

A three-light east window has been placed in St. Peter's, Humshaugh-on-Tyne, to the memory of the Rev. Edward Brice, chaplain R.N., for thirty-six years Incumbent of the parish, and to that of Mary, his wife, by their son, the Rev. G. E. Brice. The execution of the work was intrusted Mr. Baguley, of Newcastle-on-Tyne.

The memorial to the late Prebendary Auriol having been some time under the consideration of the committee, it has been decided that it shall take the form of a painted window. The subject chosen is "Christ Blessing Little Children," the execution of which has been intrusted to Mr. W. G. Taylor, of Berners-street. The window will be placed on the south side of St. Dunstan's Church, where the late Prebendary was Rector nearly forty years.

An application was made to the Consistory Court of London on the 14th inst. for a faculty to make certain alterations in the Church of St. Mary-at-Hill, in the City. Sir Henry Peck, M.P., and other parishioners opposed, on the ground that it would be a wasteful expenditure of public money. Pending legislation resulting from the Royal Commission on the City Parochial Charities, the church might be pulled down, and the income of about £2200 a year applied to the spiritual destitution of the metropolis. Dr. Tristram granted the faculty.

On the Feast of the Annunciation Mrs. Olivier laid the foundation-stone of the new Church of St. Thomas, Derby, which is to be built as a memorial of her father, Archdeacon Hill. It is from designs by Mr. Peacock, and will accommodate 600 worshippers. It will be erected at the sole cost of Mrs. and the Rev. Alfred Olivier; and it is intended to accommodate a district in the parish of St. James, which was founded by Mrs. Olivier's husband, and in which £20,000 has already been raised for the church, schools, and parsonage. The schools are the largest in the county.

Last Saturday evening Baroness Burdett-Coutts, who was accompanied by Mr. Ashmead Burdett-Coutts, Bartlett, unveiled a memorial to the Rev. W. Tennant, late Vicar of St. Stephen's, Rochester-row, Westminster. The memorial consists of a bracket, surmounted by a bust, which is an admirable likeness of the late Vicar, executed by Mr. Richard Belt, a pupil in whose welfare and success Mr. Tennant took great interest. The bracket, which is of tasteful Gothic design, bears the following inscription:—"To the loving memory of the Rev. William Tennant, thirty years pastor of St. Stephen's Church, this monument was executed by an old pupil, and erected by Baroness Burdett-Coutts, in the year 1881."

Letters have been received from Norfolk Island describing the consecration of the memorial church to Bishop Patteson. About fifty friends came from New Zealand in the Southern Cross, and were received by Bishop Selwyn, who steered, coatless, the boat which landed them. On the morning of the consecration of the new church, dedicated to St. Barnabas, which has cost £5000, the islanders, in gala dress—the men in blue trousers, white shirts, and bright-coloured neckties, and the women in white jackets and fancy petticoats—breakfasted with the Bishop. The church was crowded at the consecration, and the offertory was £96. The Bishop of Waiapu was the afternoon preacher.

Judgment has been given by the House of Lords in the case of "Mackonochie v. Lord Penzance and Martin." It was an appeal from the decision of the Lords Justices setting aside a writ of prohibition issued by the Queen's Bench to prevent the execution of a sentence of Lord Penzance suspending the appellant as Incumbent of St. Alban's, Holborn, for three years, for contumacy in disobeying two monitions admonishing him to abstain from Ritualistic practices. Judgment was given, dismissing Mr. Mackonochie's appeal, with costs.——The rule nisi obtained by the Rev. S. F. Green, of Miles Platting, to show cause why a writ of habeas corpus should not be issued, with a view to his liberation from custody, was last week discharged by the Court of Appeal.

A handsome testimonial has been presented to the Rev. J. S. Northcote, who is leaving the curacy of St. Margaret's, Westminster, for the vicarage of Upton Pyne. The testimonial consisted of a large and handsome hall clock, a pair of candelabra, and four dessert dishes of a graceful design. Mr. Northcote had already received from the children, teachers, and Bible-classes of the parish china lamps and candelabra. His work has been universally appreciated. In the schools of the parish, among the young men and young women, and among the poor of the poorest districts, no less than in the pulpit, he has laboured in a manner which has secured the warm gratitude and affection of the parishioners. The contributors to these parting gifts were of all ranks, from the Premier down to some of the poor old widows.

THE UNIVERSITIES.

CAMBRIDGE.

The vacancy in the Mastership of St. John's College, caused by the death of the Rev. Dr. Bateson, has been filled by the election of the Rev. Charles Taylor, M.A., to the Mastership. Mr. Taylor graduated at St. John's in 1862, when he was ninth wrangler and seventeenth second-class classic. He held the Tyrwhitt University Hebrew Scholarship and the Crosse University Scholarship.

The following awards of open scholarships and exhibitions have been made at the colleges mentioned after competitive examination; the values stated being in all cases yearly:—

Queen's: Mathematics—Toms, Chared Grammar School, £50; Humphry, Middle School, City of London, £40; Murray, Tonbridge School, £40; Collinson, St. Peter's School, York, £30; Dawburn, private tuition, £30. Classics—Martelli, King's School, Ely, £60; Ramsale, King William's College, Isle of Man, £50; Paterson, Highgate School, £40; Purves, Perse Grammar School, Cambridge, £30.

Sidney: A. Anderson, Queen's College, Galway, £60; H. T. Lewis, Llandovery College, £60; W. H. Gundry, Blundell's School, Tiverton, £10; T. W. Keilett, New Kingswood School, Bath, £40; T. H. Bird, Gloucester Cathedral School, £40; A. M. Read, Blundell's School, Tiverton, £40; Pridham, Bristol Grammar School, Lovett Exhibition; S. R. Hart, Blackheath Proprietary School, Johnson Exhibition.

Emmanuel: Mathematics—J. H. Chapman, King Edward's School, Birmingham, £50; T. E. Marples, Derby School, £40; C. Roper, King's College School, £40. Classics—L. O. Aspleu, private tuition, £50; E. O. Barratt, New Kingswood School, £40; G. H. Westcott, Marlborough College, £40. Classics and Mathematics—J. S. Phillips, Merchant Taylors' School, £40. Natural Science—B. B. Dickinson, Newcastle Grammar School, £40.

Christ's: Cartmell, Rugby School, £70; W. A. Rice, Repton School, £50; A. C. Wraisdaw, Rossall School, £50; E. A. Douglas, St. Peter's School, York, £30; C. E. Marsh, St. Paul's School, £30; W. P. Richardson, Clifton College, £30. For Natural Science—T. C. Fitzpatrick, Bedford School, £50; E. Richardson, School of Mines, £50.

Pembroke: Mathematics—David, Llandovery School, £60; Eve, King Edward VI. School, Berkhampstead, £50; Moncton, City of London School, £40. Classics—Strachan, Aberdeen University, £70; Evans, Durham School, £50; Sikes, Aldenham School, £50; Baker, King Edward's School, Birmingham, £50; Maclagan, Haileybury College, £40; R. Barnard, Felstead School, £40.

St. John's: A. Pattinson, Manchester Grammar School; H. B. Stanwell, Shrewsbury, £70, Minor Scholarship; F. W. Crook, Perse Grammer School, Cambridge; E. H. Hensley, Sherborne School; H. S. Lewis (Hebrew), King's College School, £50 for three years; J. Fearnley, Birkenhead, private tuition, C. H. Innes, Chatham House, Ramsgate, £50 minor scholarship; E. J. Clarke, Shrewsbury, £40 for four years; A. Chadwick, St. Peter's School, York; A. G. Roby, Manchester Grammar School, and private tuition, £50 for two years; J. Kerr, Manchester Grammar School, £30 for four years: Kynaston, Cheltenham, £30 for three years; J. R. Murray, Lancashire Independent College, £20; H. Wilson, The Leys School, Cambridge, Natural Science Exhibition.

Gonville and Caius: Recommended for Natural Science Scholarship—Read, Tiverton School, Chemistry and Physics. Mathematical Scholar—C. Little, Aberdeen University, £60.

At Trinity the following distinguished graduates of the College have been elected honorary Fellows:—Lord Rayleigh, M.A., F.R.S., Professor of Experimental Physics; Mr. Henry Sidgwick, M.A., Prælector in Moral and Political Philosophy, the author of "The Method of Ethics;" Mr. Edward Herbert Bunbury, M.A., author of "A History of Ancient Geography," &c.; and Mr. William Henry Waddington, B.A., Member of the French Institute, late President of the Council and Minister of Foreign Affairs in France.

The successful competitors in the Newcastle examination at Eton are—Macnaghten, K. S. Scholar; Williams, K. S. medallist; and James, K. S. Divinity Prize.

The result of the examination for the Scholarships at Harrow has been announced, the following candidates being specially selected:—First, M. J. Rendall, recommended for the Gregory Scholarship; second, J. C. Hill; third, P. Holland, recommended for the Neeld Scholarship; fourth, C. E. Mallet; fifth, G. F. Platt; sixth, N. R. Ramsay; seventh, E. F. Every. A new scholarship recently founded by Mr. William Roundell, for the encouragement of modern studies, was competed for for the first time. The candidates specially selected were—first, F. C. Burkitt, recommended for the Scholarship; second, J. T. Best; third, G. P. Bidder; fourth W. H. Oulsow. The Neeld Medal for Mathematics was adjudged to M. J. Rendall; prize for Physics to Sir M. F. Montagu Pollock, and the prize for Chemistry to H. G. Walters.

The following scholarships have been awarded at Haileybury College:—Classical side—1, L. W. Hallward, W. R. C. King, equal; 3, F. B. Greenway. Honourably mentioned—O. C. Johnson, S. J. Murray. Modern side—P. T. Bourne.

The Easter Scholarships at Uppingham School have been awarded as follows:—Recommended for the Scholarships open to boys under fourteen years of age; for Scholarships of £50 each: Harman, Uppingham School; Cameron, Mr. Curteis' School, Godalming. For Scholarships of £30 each: Urwick, St. John's Wood School; Moon, Uppingham School. For Rutland Scholarships: Turner, Oakham School; John Hawthorn, Oakham School.

At the Scholæ Cancellarii, Lincoln, two Bursaries of the value of £45, tenable for two years, have been awarded to H. D. Dale and J. G. Trembeth. There were eleven candidates.

The Winter Session and also the first year's existence of the College of Agriculture came to an end yesterday week, when Earl Nelson presented the prizes won by the students.

The Church of England High School for Girls Company, emboldened by the success of the school which it founded at Marylebone three years ago, has opened another at Eaton House, 80, Coleshill-street, Eaton-square, where sound religious teaching for girls of the upper and middle class may be obtained. The opening proceedings took place on the 7th inst., in the presence of about fifty ladies and gentlemen, to whom the Rev. F. J. Holland, to whose exertions the success of the school in Upper Baker-street is mainly due, gave a cheering picture of the progress of the good work in hand.

THE SPRING ASSIZES.

The following is a complete list of the dates fixed for holding the Spring Assizes:—

Midland Circuit (Mr. Justice Lopez).—Aylesbury, Tuesday, April 26; Lincoln, Saturday, April 30; Derby, Friday, May 6; Warwick, Thursday, May 12.

Western Circuit (Mr. Justice Manisty).—Worcester, Tuesday, April 26; Taunton, Tuesday, May 3; Exeter, Monday, May 9; Winchester, Tuesday, May 17.

South-Eastern Circuit (Mr. Justice Hawkins).—Reading, Monday, April 25; Lewes, Tuesday, April 26; Cambridge, Thursday, May 5; Ipswich, Saturday, May 7; Hertford, Thursday, May 12.

North-Eastern Circuit (Mr. Justice Stephen and Mr. Justice Kay).—Newcastle, Tuesday, April 26; Durham, Friday, April 29; Leeds, Tuesday, May 3. Mr. Justice Kay will not join the Circuit until Leeds is reached.

Northern Circuit (Mr. Justice Williams and Mr. Justice Mathew).—Carlisle, Tuesday, April 26; Manchester, Friday, April 29; Liverpool, Saturday, May 7.

North and South Wales Circuits (Mr. Justice Cave).—Ruthin, Tuesday, April 26; Chester, Friday, April 29; Stafford, Wednesday, May 4; Swansea, Wednesday, May 11.

Prisoners only will be tried at these Assizes, except at Manchester, Liverpool, and Leeds, at which three places there will also be entries of civil causes.

The remains of the Rev. Rowland Hill have been removed from Surrey Chapel and reinterred at Christ Church, Westminster-road.

At a meeting of the Council of the Royal College of Surgeons, the Jacksonian prize was awarded to Mr. Cheyne, M.B. Edinburgh, F.R.C.S. England, Assistant Surgeon to King's College Hospital, for his essay on "The History, Principles, Practice, and Results of Antiseptic Surgery." Mr. Cheyne obtained the Boylston Prize and gold medal in 1880.

GOOD FRIDAY AND EASTER.

The Good Friday services at the principal churches in the metropolis were generally well attended. At St. Paul's, as is usual on all high festivals of the Church, there was a large congregation at the morning service. The sermon was preached by the Rev. Canon Fleming. At Westminster Abbey the preacher was Canon Farrar; at the Chapel Royal, St. James's, the Dean of Westminster; at the Chapel Royal, Whitehall, Canon Wilberforce. The extremely fine weather also attracted a large number of holiday-makers to the various places of popular resort in and around London. More than 25,000 persons passed the turnstiles at the Crystal Palace, and at the Alexandra Palace the attendance of visitors was almost equally numerous. The suburban traffic on the railways, however, was not very large, owing probably to the great number of persons who have taken advantage of the holidays to get away from town for a few days. The forty-first annual gathering of Sunday scholars and teachers in connection with the central district of the West London Auxiliary Sunday-School Union took place at Craven Chapel, Marshall-street; 216 teachers, 2170 children, and about 250 friends being present. The address was given by the Rev. R. H. Lovell, of Leytonstone. The thirty-fourth annual conference of the Lancashire, Cheshire, and Derbyshire Sunday-School Unions was held at Southport. The business of the conference began in Chapel-street Congregational Chapel, Mr. James Ashworth, of Rochdale, presiding; and a public meeting was held in the evening, Alderman Nicholson, of Southport, presiding. Amongst the quaint Good Friday customs observed in the City was one in Allhallows church, where, according to the terms of an old bequest, sixty Blue-coat boys were presented each with a new penny and a bag of plums. In another case, twenty-one old widows each received sixpence in the Church of St. Bartholomew, Smithfield, but they had to fulfil the ridiculous condition of picking the coin off the grave of the eccentric testatrix, and some of the claimants were so decrepit that they fell upon their hands in stooping. The annual wrestling matches of the Cumberland and Westmorland Wrestling Society took place at Lillie-bridge. There was a large attendance.

The scene at Covent-garden on Saturday testified to the increasing practice of decorating churches at Easter. St. Paul's Cathedral had magnificent bouquets on the altar on Easter Sunday, and immense congregations attended, especially in the afternoon, Canon Liddon's Easter sermon being one of the great attractions of the year. The grand peal of twelve bells was rung. There was a great wealth of primroses. In the majority of churches the decorations were mainly confined to the chancel and font, though in many instances the window-sills were effectively treated. Arums, eucharist flowers, camellias, azaleas, spiræas, and other choice products of greenhouses were to be found in abundance in the more favoured churches. St. Peter's, Notting-hill, was especially well treated, as was St. Mark's, Hamilton-terrace, which had its own special mode of decoration. St. Paul's, Wilton-place, and St. Peter's, Eaton-square, naturally had the command of some of the best flowers belonging to members of their congregations spending Easter in the country; but no church surpassed St. Matthew, City-road, where the Bishop of Ely was the preacher. A good word, too, must be said for the decorations and services at St. Clement Danes. There were celebrations of holy communion at six in many churches, and at almost every church before breakfast. The number of communicants in the London churches was very large. At St. John the Divine, Kennington, there were 976 communicants. Processional hymns are increasingly popular; anthems were attempted by the least ambitious of choirs; and there is an increasing practice, while having no afternoon services, to have portions of oratorios at evensong.

The delightful weather on Easter Monday was fully taken advantage of by holiday-makers. The open spaces in or near London were crowded, Hampstead-heath being visited, according to one estimate, by fully 100,000 persons. Heavy trains left for places of resort at a greater distance, and to Brighton especially there was an unusually large traffic. More than 8000 visitors went over the state apartments at Windsor Castle. 25,000 passed the turnstiles at the Alexandra Palace; and at the Crystal Palace there were nearly 48,000 visitors. The admissions to the Zoological Society's Gardens numbered 33,614, as compared with 30,680 last Easter Monday; 28,000 persons entered the South Kensington Museum, and 12,246 the Horticultural Gardens; while the new Natural History Museum drew a very considerable number to inspect its collections. At least 20,000 visited the British Museum, and about 6000 passed through the Tower. The customary banquet was given at the Mansion House in celebration of Easter Monday. The Lord Mayor presided, supported by the Lady Mayoress. There were three hundred guests. The Easter Monday Hunt was celebrated at High Beech, the meet, as usual, being at the Robin Hood. Mr. Frederick Chilton was the huntsman, and the hind, which was obtained from Lord Petre's paddocks, Dacre Park, was uncarted in a glade a little below the King's Oak, in the centre of a dense crowd. Springing bodily into the centre of the mob, it speedily cleared itself a passage, and pointing its head eastwards, with a strong breeze behind it, soon left its pursuers well in the rear. The meet with her Majesty's staghounds was, as usual, at Maidenhead Thicket, there being a large field, including most of the usual followers of these hounds. The first deer which was turned out, after giving an unsatisfactory run, was killed. A second deer was then uncarted, which was eventually left outlying at Harleyford. The day being exceedingly fine, there were numerous spectators to witness the turn-out. The Royal Buckhounds met at noon at Maidenhead Thicket on Tuesday, in order to finish the season.

According to custom on Easter Tuesday the Bluecoat Boys paid their annual visit to the Mansion House, and received from the hands of the Lord Mayor the usual Easter gifts of new coin. The ceremony took place in the saloon, in the presence of the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress, the Sheriffs, Under-Sheriffs, and officers of the Corporation. The number attending was 710. Each lad wore on his breast the motto, "He is Risen." To fourteen Grecians the Lord Mayor gave a guinea each, to nine junior Grecians half a guinea, to forty-four monitors half a crown each, and to 643 of the rank and file a new shilling each. On leaving each boy was offered, and most of them accepted, a glass of wine and two hot-cross buns. At the close of the ceremony the Lord Mayor and the rest of the civic dignitaries went to Christ Church, Newgate-street, where the second Spital Sermon was preached by the Rev. Canon Fleming.

With a view to practise our troops in firing at moving objects from unknown distances and under the conditions of real warfare, the War Office has directed that ten additional rounds of ammunition shall be served to every man at all stations where field firing is practised, to be used when skirmishing in firing at dummy troops under cover from unknown distances. A defect to which some partly attribute the defeat at Majuba Hill will, it is hoped, thus be remedied.

THE FAR WEST OF AMERICA.

SKETCHES IN THE DAKOTAH TERRITORY.—SEE PAGE 410.

THE TRANSVAAL WAR: SKETCHES BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.

THE SCENE AS THE LAST OF OUR MEN RETREATED FROM MAJUBA HILL, FEBRUARY 27.—SEE PAGE 410.

THE HEATH IN SPRING.

To those who do not thoroughly well know the heath, it must appear a barren and desolate wilderness; and, indeed, at first sight, there is little to attract in the long stretching brown expanse, which to the stranger presents few, if any, charms; and, seeing it for the first time, one is apt to turn away, little caring if one never sees it again. But to those who know it thoroughly it has perpetual changes, perpetual beauties. In the Spring a soft blue haze lies all along it, not dense enough to be called mist, that gives colour where otherwise it would be conspicuous by its absence. To-day the little hollows in the hills are full of this haze, and the heath shades from brown at one part to blue a little distance off, and ends in a deep purple on the far distance, where it hangs about the tree-tops like a silvery veil. Away to the left rise tiny hillocks, crowned here and there with a clump of red-stemmed blue-green fir-trees, and again rise out of the moor barrows that mark the passage of the war-wave that swept the South of England in the old, old times, silent monuments of brave lives that were never heard of beyond their little day, that was so long ago that nothing definite is known of any of them. To the right we see the sad, slow river meandering quietly to the sea, and note how it gleams dully amid the heath, that here and there is flecked with the grey-white lichen that is now growing profusely amid it. And as we wander up the little line that leads to the clay-pits, that look like gigantic mole-heaps turned out at the foot of the hills, we note how the golden furze is springing in the more sheltered of the hollows.

Now rises the melancholy sound of the peewit, as, disturbed by our dogs, she flies up and down, trying to draw them away from her nest. "Pee-eeewit, pee-ewwit," cries she; but it is no use: we see the round hole in the ground, and cruelly rob her of two of her four dark-speckled eggs, as we have a weakness for them. In the far distance a couple of snipe fly about, with their curious note, that earns for them their local name of heather-bleater; and, indeed, all the birds seem out in twos to-day, for out of the bushes fly innumerable tit-larks and chaffinches in pairs, and we doubt not that our dogs have caused a flutter in many a nest, for they are possessed with inquiring minds, and pass few of the clumps of furze without fully investigating them in hopes of disturbing a stray hare or so lying hid among them. Here, where the heath rises in a sandy slope, we note the rabbits have been at work, and see where the doe has carefully scratched the sand over her "step," and we then discover the round fur-lined nest full of the ugly little babies.

Away in the swamp there, where the dogs are sending up the water like flourishes of a mop, breed the wild-fowl, and as we watch carefully we catch sight of a duck flying close to the ground, trying, like the peewit, to lead us away from her nest: as it is almost surrounded by water we do not trouble her, and proceed on our walk through mire that looks like the scrapings of an artist's palette, for we are close now to the clay that is pink and yellow and red when trodden in with the ironstone that abounds just here, and makes the next pond we come to look like blood, and presently colours the high road which crosses the heath the same tint. Just now my companion draws my attention to a small bird dancing up and down vigorously in the face of a placid red cow, that shakes her head solemnly at the bird when she comes too near, but otherwise takes small account of her vagaries, going on quietly with her meal off the new grass which is springing greenly in the bog where she is feeding. The tiny bird seems to get wilder: she flies at the cow's eyes, flaps her wings vigorously at her, uttering little shrill cries as she does so: at last the big creature moves away; and by this time we are near enough to see that the moor-hen has been defending her nest, and that a step more in her direction would have resulted in a thorough "break up" of her establishment; but she has conquered, and we leave her settling quietly down on her nest.

The turf banks to the side of the railway on which we are walking are covered with moss; yellow, green, and red-tipped lichen; fern-moss, shading from emerald to gold; and solid cushion-moss, that you cannot move without taking half the bank too; the hardy polypodium puts out her pointed fronds, and in many places the honeysuckle is out in leaf and climbing about the hedges, as if the spring were really here. Standing solitary in the middle of a bog is a willow so full of palms that it looks exactly as if it were one mass of pink apple-blossoms; for, seen in the distance, the grey palm shades into pink at first, before the yellow comes upon it; but as we go on the clay becomes yet more apparent, and soon we are in the very midst of the "works"—and very white and sticky they are.

As we leave the pits, we pass through a pine-wood, where the wind is ceaselessly sighing, and we note how far spring has advanced. The regular coo-coo of the wood-pigeon strikes on our ear, and we see, too, that in one or two nests the rooks are already sitting, while others are in active course of formation. As the rook flies back with some of his building material in his beak, an aged one, sitting on the branch beside the half-built nest, gives him hoarse directions how to place the stick: when this is done, the builder seats himself, or rather perches, just beside the old one, and both regard it for some moments with their heads on one side: then ensues an animated caw-cawing, after which a third often comes and joins the council, and they all talk together; and then sometimes the piece of stick is altered twenty times before it is finally left, and the builder goes off in search of more. The old rook never moves or does anything, but evidently is regarded by the rest as an authority, and as such is constantly consulted by them.

The leaves, dead and brown, still cling to the oak and beech trees among the firs, and the wood is carpeted by dead leaves and pine needles, that shine like polished bronze under the afternoon sun: the tree-trunks are covered with bright mosses and lichens, and the ivy climbs all over. Here is an old oak just beginning to lose the blackness of winter in the faint brown tint of the swelling buds, and in its forked arm grows a pert young holly-tree, every leaf glittering in the sunshine; and here and there, too, the irrepressible polypodium springs in every crook of another oak that stands a little forward from the rest. The silvery birches look yet more silvery and ladylike than ever, and seem pondering over their new dresses; and the chestnuts, with their big burly sticky buds, look as if a very few more days would bring out their leaves. Out in the furze-bushes we hear the chip-chip of the black-cap, called here the fúz-acker—i.e., furze-hacker—his monotonous cry exactly like striking two stones together, and a lark springs up into the air, and begins to sing as only a lark can. The ditches even teem with life, and seem full of algæ; and everywhere the staid elder is in leaf, and ready for anything. As the sun sets the soft mist grows deeper, and floats about between us and the heath, almost hiding the hills; then it lifts, and discloses the moor in a flush of radiance under the sunset, that broadens and broadens until all is one scarlet glow. The sky becomes red, then fades into saffron and emerald, settling down into a dense blue, in which sails lazily a pale moon, and a few stars begin to gleam. J. E. P.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

All communications relating to this department of the Paper should be addressed to the Editor, and have the word "Chess" written on the cover/ope.

F J (Broadmayne).—Your numerous emendations of your problem have produced much confusion. Please to send amended diagram, with solution appended, without reference to those sent previously.

E H (Rawtenstall).—We shall be pleased to examine and report upon any games you may send us; but we fear, from your question about the plurality of the Queens, that your play is not up to the standard of publication. There can be two or more Queens on the board at the same time.

R T (Clifton).—You can procure diagrams of the chess-board from W. Morgan, 23, Great Queen-street, London, W.C.

X Y Z.—Please accept our cordial thanks for the games. We shall avail ourselves of both very shortly.

D W K (Brighton).—The competitors in the last Inter-University chess-match were not all undergraduates.

T H (Camden Town).—Like most inexperienced solvers of problems, you think every one you cannot solve is impossible of solution, and every one you can solve too easy.

Hereward, Smutch, and J W.—The continuation after 1. P to K 8rd is 2. Kt to Kt 6th (ch) and 3. Q to B 4th (checkmate). Surely such a minor variation should present no difficulty to you.

W Biddle and L N P.—Your problems shall receive our best attention.

Correct Solutions of Problems No. 1929, 1930, and 1931 received from William Pocock, of Cape Town.

Correct Solutions of Problem No. 1936 received from Hereward, Espanol, May Bank, Fred Carroll, F Schwartz, J M (San Remo), James Atkinson, and Duke.

Correct Solutions of Problem No. 1937 received from A Chapman, C Edmundson, Espanol, Smutch, Cant, Pierce Jones, W J Eggleston, J M (San Remo), and James Atkinson.

Correct Solutions of Problem No. 1938 received from H B, Shadforth, East Marden, J Perez Ventoso, Dr F St, C Edmundson, D W (Guernsey), Hereward, B H Brooke, James Dobson, Cholwell, J A De Landtsheer (Anvers), Nerina, W Hillier, D Templeton, L Sharwood, Ernest Sharwood, Ben Nevis, H Barrett, R T Kemp, T H Holdron, Elsie, An Old Hand, F Ferris, R Jessop, G W Law, N Harris, F G Parslow, Robert Tweddell, L L Greenaway, C Oswald, Otto Fulder (Ghent), R Gray, H Blacklock, D W Keil, M O'Halloran, W J Rudman, G Fosbrooke, E Elsbury, C S Coxe, T Greenbank, E Casella, B Wood, Aaron Harper, R J Vines, Portobello, Leslie Lachlan, Matthew Hendrie, G A (Bonchurch), Fire Fly, Lulu, E L G, Theodor Willink, Semaj, J W W, H W Mornington, Smutch, William Miller, G Michal, Cant, John Balfour, Julia Short, W Biddle, Fred Carroll, W J Eggleston, Pierce Jones, Frank Littleboy, E Louden, Duke, E Holt, Norman Rumbelow, and Z Ingold.

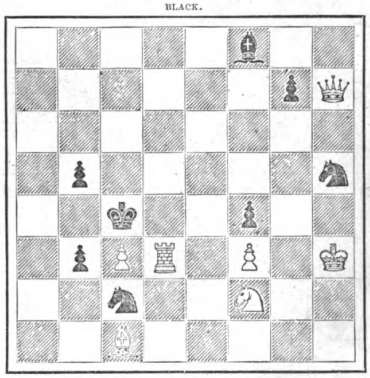
SOLUTION OF PROBLEM No. 1937.

| WHITE. | BLACK. |
|---|---|
| 1. Kt to Kt 4th | B takes Kt |
| 2. R to Q 5th (ch) | K to B 6th |
| 3. Q takes P. Mate. | |

PROBLEM No. 1940.

By D. W. Clark (Siberia).

BLACK.



WHITE.

White to play, and mate in three moves.

The following highly interesting Game occurred in the Match, recently concluded, between Messrs. Blackburne and Gunzberg. The games were contested on even terms, but Mr. Blackburne yielded the odds of two points out of seven.

(Sicilian Defence.)

| WHITE (Mr. G.) | BLACK (Mr. B.) |
|---|---|
| 1. P to K 4th | P to Q B 4th |
| 2. Kt to K B 3rd | Kt to Q B 3rd |
| 3. P to Q 4th | P takes P |
| 4. Kt takes P | P to K 3rd |
| 5. Kt takes Kt | |

This continuation leads to simple positions, and is not so effective a line of attack as 5. Kt to Q Kt 5th.

| | |
|---|---|
| 5. | Kt P takes Kt |
| 6. B to Q 3rd | Kt to B 3rd |
| 7. Castles | P to Q 4th |
| 8. P to K 5th | Kt to Q 2nd |
| 9. P to K B 4th | Kt to Q B 4th |
| 10. K to R sq | B to K 2nd |
| 11. Kt to Q B 3rd | Kt takes B |
| 12. Q takes Kt | Castles |
| 13. R to K B 3rd | P to K B 3rd |
| 14. R to R 3rd | P to K Kt 3rd |
| 15. B to Q 2nd | R to Q Kt sq |
| 16. P to Q Kt 3rd | R to K B 2nd |
| 17. R to K sq | P takes P |

| WHITE (Mr. G.) | BLACK (Mr. B.) |
|---|---|
| 18. P takes P | P to Q B 4th |
| 19. Kt to K 2nd | B to K B sq |
| 20. Kt to Kt 3rd | B to Kt 2nd |
| 21. Kt to K 4th | B to Q R 3rd |

A resource that at once frustrates the plan of attack to which White has committed himself.

| | |
|---|---|
| 22. Kt to B 6th (ch) | B takes Kt |
| 23. Q takes B | B takes P |
| 24. R takes B | |

An unfortunate mistake, which loses the exchange on the move and the game eventually. His best course, apparently, was to continue with 24. Q takes K P, to which Black may reply with 24. Q to Q 3rd, when, as the Bishop cannot be taken with either Queen or Rook, there is no advantage on either side.

| | |
|---|---|
| 24. | Q to Q 3rd |
| 25. Q to Q 3rd | Q takes R |
| 26. P to Q B 3rd | P to Q B 5th, and White resigned. |

Played between Messrs. Maude and Hellwig at the Moscow Chess Club.

(King's Knight's Gambit.)

| WHITE (Mr. M.) | BLACK (Mr. H.) |
|---|---|
| 1. P to K 4th | P to K 4th |
| 2. P to K B 4th | P takes P |
| 3. Kt to K B 3rd | P to K Kt 4th |
| 4. B to B 4th | B to Kt 2nd |
| 5. Castles | P to K R 3rd |
| 6. P to Q B 3rd | P to Q 3rd |
| 7. P to Q 4th | Kt to K 2nd |

7. Q to K 2nd is recommended by the books, but it has been lately shown that the continuation 8. Kt to R 3rd gives White some advantage.

| | |
|---|---|
| 8. Kt to R 3rd | Kt to Kt 3rd |
| 9. P to K Kt 3rd | P to Kt 5th |
| 10. Kt to K sq | P to B 6th |
| 11. Kt takes P | |

White gets three Pawns for his piece, and is enabled to develop his forces with rapidity.

| | |
|---|---|
| 11. | P takes Kt |
| 12. Q takes P | Castles |
| 13. B takes P (ch) | K to R 2nd |
| 14. P to K 5th | |

Apparently the best move, as it forces Black to capture the Bishop with Rook, thus sacrificing the exchange.

| | |
|---|---|
| 14. | R takes B |
| 15. Q takes R | P takes P |
| 16. B to K 3rd | Q to K 2nd |
| 17. Q to Kt 3rd | |

The exchange of Queens would have been no disadvantage to White in this position, but the move in the text is probably more embarrassing to the adversary

| | |
|---|---|
| 17. | P takes P |
| 18. B takes P | Kt to K 4th |

This and the following move of Black are well designed to get rid of the formidable Bishop.

| | |
|---|---|
| 19. R to B 4th | P to B 4th |
| 20. B takes Kt | Q takes B |
| 21. Kt to B 4th | Q to K 7th |
| 22. Kt to Q 6th | B to Q 2nd |
| 23. R to K 4th | Q to Q 6th |
| 24. R to Q sq | P to B 5th |
| 25. R takes Q | P takes Q |
| 26. P takes P | Kt to R 3rd |
| 27. R to K 7th | B to Q B 3rd |
| 28. R to B 8th | R to K Kt sq |
| 29. R to Q 6th | K to R sq |
| 30. Kt takes R P | R to K B sq |
| 31. R to B 7th (ch) | K to Kt sq |
| 32. Kt to Q 8th | R to B 3rd |

These exchanges are all to White's advantage, and he ultimately wins through his superiority in Pawns.

The British Chess Magazine improves each month in quality and quantity. The April number contains forty-two pages of matter, comprising games with notes by Messrs. Wayte, Ranken, and Long, twenty problems on diagrams, reviews of new books, and the home and foreign news of the chess world.

Mr. Edward Marks, who has recently commenced a series of chess articles in Society, announces that he is preparing for the press a collection of end-games under the title of "Chess Tactics." The book will contain 250 diagrams, with solutions. Intending subscribers should address Mr. Marks, Broadway-chambers, London, S.W.

A match is being arranged between a representative team from the Oxford University Chess Club and the fourth-class players of the City Club.

COLIN CAMPBELL, LORD CLYDE.

Shakspeare, who has supplied so many quotations appropriate to so many occasions, unconsciously provided the best epitaph for the monument of him whose career is set forth in the two volumes containing The Life of Colin Campbell, Lord Clyde, by Lieut.-General Shadwell, C.B. (William Blackwood and Sons), two large volumes, which might have been twice as large, without diminishing the interest. "O, farewell, honest soldier," says Marcellus to the sentry in the opening scene of "Hamlet," and those simple words would have formed a very suitable and expressive inscription for the stone placed over the last resting-place of a British hero whose chief characteristic it was to be an honest soldier. The life of Colin Campbell, Lord Clyde, is, professionally regarded, the very best example, perhaps, that young officers, without money or interest to aid them, can keep before their eyes for their imitation and encouragement. He certainly had an iron constitution to work upon, and that is a natural gift which is not conferred upon everybody; and he had probably a greater share of personal gallantry than falls to the lot of most mortal men. But it was neither to his iron constitution nor to his gallantry, nor to a combination of the two, that he owed his bâton of Field-Marshal and his tomb in Westminster Abbey; those qualities would, in any case, have availed him much, but the chief causes of his success are to be surmised from the motto he assumed for the guidance of his conduct. This motto was found written on the fly-leaf of a memorandum-book belonging to him, and thus it ran, in German: "Durch die Geduld, Vernunft, und Zeit, Wird möglich die Unmöglichkeit." This encouraging hint inspired him and supported him until, in his case also, the impossible became a possibility and a reality; until, by dint of patience, sound sense, and long service, not, of course, without conspicuous daring and skill, the carpenter's son, the penniless subaltern, who had accomplished the incredible feat of living upon his bare pay, rose to the rank of a Field-Marshal and a Peer, of whom it was truly recorded that he died "lamented by the Queen, the Army, and the People." Indeed, it is doubtful whether any British soldier, or any British sailor, save Nelson, was ever more popular than he; for he was honourably known as in a special manner the friend of the private soldier, whom he did not regard as a mere instrument to be used for the furtherance of his own glory and the promotion of his own fortunes. His first care was for his men; and the over-caution with which he was sometimes charged was due in no small degree to his regard for them.

It may seem a little late in the day to write the life of Lord Clyde, some seventeen or eighteen years after his death; but his own modesty, for which he was always noted, is partly responsible for the delay, and, on the other hand, the delay itself is rather an advantage than a disadvantage, for it is well that the memories of such men should be revived long after their good swords are rust, their bones are dust, and their souls are with the saints, we trust. And of such revival there is less chance when all that is known about them is printed and published immediately after their death, hastily perused and speedily forgotten.

The tale of Lord Clyde's services may be summed up in a few words. Fifty years' hard work, with an accompaniment of wounds, fevers, ague, and other maladies, from the date of his presence at the battle of Vimiero, or Vimiera, in 1808, to that of the pacification of India, in 1858. In the meanwhile he had led the forlorn hope at St. Sebastian, faced the pestilence that stalketh at noonday for seven years in the West Indies, resisted the temptation of "loot" in China, in 1842, contributed not a little to secure the ultimate triumph of the British arms against the dangerous Sikhs in the Indian campaign of 1848-9, commanded the Highland Brigade at the ever memorable battle of the Alma, and during the whole of the Crimean expedition, up to the appointment of Sir William Codrington to the chief command, and, above all, had proceeded at a moment's notice to India, and won the title, if he had chosen to assume it, not only of Lord Clyde, but Lord Clyde "of Lucknow."

Many stories have been current about Lord Clyde's origin, and about his real name; and to them, as usual, the proverb may be applied which says that "there's no smoke without fire." Lord Clyde's name, it appears, was not Colin Campbell, but Colin Macliver. His mother's name, however, was Campbell; and when his uncle, Colonel John Campbell, introduced him to the Duke of York, the Commander-in-Chief at the Horse Guards, to have his name put down for a commission, the Duke remarked that he supposed the boy was "another of the clan," and entered his name as "Colin Campbell," which name he always afterwards bore. Lord Clyde, it seems, was never married; he had a sister, however, and the anxiety he showed to secure her independence is not a little to his honour. Indeed, he had two sisters, but only one, Marjory Alicia, is mentioned with any frequency in the volumes. He was the eldest of four children born to John and Agnes Macliver, and grandson of a gentleman who lost his estate in consequence of being "out in the '45," and who afterwards removed with his family to Glasgow, "where John, Lord Clyde's father, who followed the trade of a carpenter, settled after marriage." The ancestry, however, of such a man as Lord Clyde, are of little importance; he might have said, as Marshal Lannes said to the French nobleman who displayed ancestral portraits with great pride, and with a view of overawing the Marshal, "Ah! that is all very well, but I am an ancestor."

His qualities were not brilliant, but solid; and he so far resembled the "Iron Duke" that he set duty and discipline before everything else. He was nicknamed, half derisively and half admiringly, "Old Kuberdar-Take care," but the name goes to prove that "he was a master of his art." We are bidden to remember that "he was successful in all he undertook," and that "all his plans were laid with deliberate care, so that when the blow fell it fell heavily." He clearly won the greatest respect from his French comrades, General Vinoy and others, in the Crimea, and the Prussian General von Blumenthal bears the highest testimony to his military sagacity, and owns to having "profited a great deal by his conversation."

Lord Clyde, moreover, knew how to win the heart of the private soldier; witness the request he made to Lord Raglan, after the battle of the Alma, in presence of the Highland Brigade, that he might be allowed to wear the Highland bonnet during the rest of the campaign. Witness also his meeting with the old discharged soldier whom he recognised, whose name and even number he remembered, after all the years that had elapsed since they lay wounded, side by side, at St. Sebastian, and who deprecated any pecuniary present, saying: "No, Sir Colin, that's not what I want, Sir; but you'll be going to Shorncliffe to inspect the dépôt there. I have a son in the Inniskillings quartered at that station, and if you will call him out, and say that you knew his father, that is what I could wish." An anecdote equally creditable to the old soldier and to Sir Colin, illustrative of the perfect understanding and mutual respect which always appear to have existed between Lord Clyde and those who served under him.

An excellent portrait embellishes the first of the two volumes, which, by-the-way, are liberally provided with very useful maps.

THE NEW FASHION-BOOK.
SPRING SEASON, 1881.
Now ready, post-free for 12 stamps.

"MESSRS. DEBENHAM and FREEBODY, of Wigmore-street, and Scarborough, announce a new edition of their New Fashion-Book, which is not only twice its original size, but contains twice the number of skilfully-executed illustrations of ladies' dress in its various departments, and is in every respect of very greatly enhanced value. It contains an elaborate and exhaustive article on the fashions of the present season. The articles on silks, dress materials, lace, embroideries, and made-up lace, costumes, evening dress, fancy ball costumes, mantles, millinery, marriage trousseaux, infants' clothing, improved corsets, &c., will be read with the attention to which they may fairly lay claim. Almost endless details of materials and made-up articles, with prices attached, will be found in the work, which is altogether of exceptional merit, and ladies who wish to be au courant with the frequent changes of fashion, to ascertain at their leisure at what cost any particular article they may fancy can be obtained, who desire to ensure careful attention to their wishes, and punctuality in their fulfilment, cannot do better than commit the new fashion-book of Messrs. Debenham and Freebody."—Morning Post.

THE NEW FASHION-BOOK.
SPRING, 1881.

"MESSRS. DEBENHAM and FREEBODY, of Wigmore-street, publish, in APRIL and OCTOBER, an edition of their biennial Fashion-Book. The manual for the current season has just appeared, and will prove useful to ladies who desire to be au courant with the latest modes. The illustrations comprise walking, evening, dinner, reception dresses, millinery, and children's frocks, in which last department this firm is particularly strong. There are exhaustive articles on the season's fashions, describing not only the new and accepted materials, but all minor accessories, such as gloves, hosiery, corsets, &c. Boys' suits and ladies' riding habits are not neglected, but each has a special department of its own."—The Queen.

THE NEW FASHION-BOOK.
Price One Shilling.

"TWICE a year Messrs. DEBENHAM and FREEBODY publish a Book of Fashions for the ensuing six months, and the present number is quite equal to its predecessors. Few houses have such good opportunity for judging what will really be worn of all that is introduced by manufacturers, and the styles which the public will take up. The book is compiled bi-annually, and is thoroughly reliable in its information, as well as an excellent visual guide to those devoid of the power of conjuring up a mental picture from written description alone. All the models are numbered, the materials named of which they are composed, and the articles priced, so that anything can be ordered with a full knowledge of what the appearance and what the cost will be."—Exchange and Mart.

THE NEW FASHION-BOOK is now ready.

THE NEW FASHION-BOOK just issued by Messrs. DEBENHAM and FREEBODY, Wigmore-street and Welbeck-street, W., contains a vast deal of valuable information to ladies on the important subject of dress. The character of the materials, and the varied style of dresses, adapted for the present season of the year, are fully described, and with such a valuable guide ladies will have no difficulty in procuring whatever their taste and fancy dictate. Every article of dress, such as gloves, hosiery, &c., suitable for present wear, receives due attention, and, as the prices are quoted, ladies will find this book exceedingly useful when making their purchases. The illustrations are numerous, and are artistically executed, every kind of costume being given suitable for walking, evening dress, or fancy balls. Ladies will do well to possess—at an outlay of one shilling—a copy of this excellent fashion-book."—Court Circular.

DEBENHAM and FREEBODY,

WIGMORE-STREET and WELBECK-STREET, LONDON, W.

AND ALL BOOKSELLERS.

"FANCY DRESSES DESCRIBED; or, What to Wear at Fancy Balls." By ARDERN HOLT. Second Edition. Illustrated. In paper covers, 2s. 6d.; cloth, 3s. 6d.

"EVERY SEASON Fancy Balls are on the increase, yet the world in general finds the choice of a costume on such occasions no easy matter. Where expense is no object most people have recourse to a costumier, but not always with the most satisfactory results. A little knowledge of how to appear in several characters would, in nine cases out of ten, enable the wearer to select something far more becoming. A little book, entitled 'Fancy Dresses Described; or, What to Wear at Fancy Balls,' by Ardern Holt, which is published by DEBENHAM and FREEBODY, of Wigmore-street and Welbeck-street, W., and can be obtained of all booksellers, furnishes minute and practical directions for some 500 characters, accompanied by a series of illustrations, which are not only pretty pictures, but so correct in detail that the dresses can be easily produced. The writer has evidently been present at many of the fancy balls given of late years, and has arranged a very practical information obtained thereby in dictionary form."—Morning Post.

FANCY DRESSES DESCRIBED. By ARDERN "HOLT."

"WHAT TO WEAR at a Fancy Ball is often a question of momentous interest, and it is answered in every particular by a little book called 'Fancy Dresses Described,' by Ardern Holt. Not only is an alphabetical catalogue of eligible costumes arrayed in tempting order, but practical hints are given, as, for instance, how best to suit complexions and ages, how to avoid incongruities, how to improve dresses for home occasions, and how to arrange hair-dressing with or without powder. In short, all that can be desired in the way of information, besides a great deal which, not being looked for, comes with the agreeable surprise of novelty, will be found in this concise and judicious manual."—Daily Telegraph.

WHAT TO WEAR AT FANCY BALLS.
Sixty-four Illustrations. In paper cover, 2s. 6d.; cloth, 3s. 6d.

"OUR reason for noticing the Second Edition of this volume is that it has been illustrated and enlarged to a considerable extent, and consequently much more valuable than on its first appearance. Fancy-Dress balls are being constantly given, and the question of 'What to wear' daily crops up as a puzzling problem. To solve such knotty queries, Arden Holt has compiled this small handbook in a most practical manner. She gives, in alphabetical order, a descriptive list of suitable costumes for matrons, young ladies, as well as for girls and boys. Suggestions are offered for historical characters, for elderly ladies, for sisters, for brunettes and blondes, and many valuable hints are given on powdering the hair and hairdressing generally. The illustrations are extremely pretty and graceful; they include the most popular personations, so that there is abundant choice for selection."—The Queen.

DEBENHAM and FREEBODY,
WIGMORE-STREET and WELBECK-STREET, LONDON, W.

AND ALL BOOKSELLERS.

PETER ROBINSON'S
COURT AND GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
REGENT-STREET.

FAMILY BEREAVEMENTS.
Upon Receipt of Letter or Telegram

PETER ROBINSON'S EXPERIENCED DRESSMAKERS and MILLINERS TRAVEL to ALL PARTS of the COUNTRY (no matter the distance) FREE OF EXPENSE TO PURCHASERS, with Dresses, Mantles, Millinery, and a full assortment of MADE-UP ARTICLES of the best and most suitable description. Also Materials by the Yard, and supplied at the same VERY REASONABLE PRICES as if Purchased at the Warehouse in "REGENT-STREET."

Mourning for Servants at unexceptionally low rates, at a great saving to large or small families.

Funerals Conducted in Town or Country at Stated Charges.

Address 256 to 262, Regent-street, London.
PETER ROBINSON'S.

THE BEST CRAPES,
THAT WILL NOT SPOT WITH RAIN.

Special qualities finished by the manufacturer in this desirable manner solely to the order of PETER ROBINSON. Good qualities from 1s. 6d. to 2s. per yard. Others, not finished by this process, from 1s. 6d. to 4s. 6d.

A SPECIAL PURCHASE.
300 PIECES OF
RICH BLACK BROCADED SILKS,
very fashionable now for Costumes and Mantles,
2s. 9d., 3s. 11d., 4s. 3d., 4s. 9d., 5s. 11d., 6s. 6d.

100 PIECES OF
BLACK SATIN IMPERIAL,
a New Make of Satin,
Rich in appearance,
and wears better than any other silk.
5s. 6d., and up to 10s. 3d.

BLACK SATIN MERVEILLEUX,
new this Season,
3s. 6d., 4s. 11d., 5s. 9d., 6s. 6d.

BLACK SATIN DE LYON,
a good useful Silk, for Hard Wear,
3s. 6d., 4s. 11d., 5s. 11d., 6s. 6d.

BLACK DUCHESS SATIN,
at 5s. 6d., 6s. 6d.;
Magnificent qualities at 7s. 6d. and 10s. 6d.

BLACK SATINS (Cotton Backs),
1s. 11d., 2s. 6d., 2s. 11d., 3s. 11d.

BLACK BROCADED VELVETS,
5s. 3d., 6s. 11d., 8s. 9d., 10s. 9d.

BLACK TWILLED SILKS, for Summer Wear, at 3s. 6d., and above.

BLACK SURAT SILKS, with White Floral Designs, 2s. 11d., 3s. 6d., 3s. 11d.

COSTUMES in SILK, SATIN, and BROCADE.
Facsimiles of Expensive Paris Models
at £4 guineas and up to 20 guineas.
Materials for Both included.
For Patterns of the above,
Please address to—
PETER ROBINSON'S, REGENT-STREET,
Nos. 256 to 262.

TEENS that young ladies are in no hurry to get out of—
"LOUIS" VELVET-TEENS.

THE "LOUIS" VELVETEEN
IS SIMPLY UNIQUE.
Do not be induced by persuasion to take any other.

LOUIS
AN EXTRA PROFIT TO YOUR LOSS
may be speciously made if you accept, under whatever name offered, an inferior quality of Velveteen.
"THE LOUIS"
has established its reputation so widely that even a slight inferiority would injure its repute, which constitutes
A TEST OF MERIT,
and guarantee of
UNSURPASSED QUALITY.
Be sure you find the words
THE "LOUIS" VELVETEEN
on every yard,
or you have not the
GENUINE "LOUIS,"
notwithstanding all assertions to the contrary.

LOUIS
Wholesale London Agent, J. H. FULLER, 92, Watling-street, who will send on inquiry, post-free, the names of the nearest Drapers from whom the genuine LOUIS VELVETEEN can be obtained.

LADIES IN THE COUNTRY
are requested to write for Patterns of
NEW SPRING SILKS, including
Surahs, Merveilleux, Duchesse Satins, Brocades, Figured Velvets, Black Silks, Satin de Lyon, Gros Grains, Fancy Silks, &c.
All to be had in Black, White, and the Eighty-seven New Shades of Colour.
Cash Prices. Parcels free.
PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON.

LADIES IN THE COUNTRY
are requested to write for patterns of
NEW SPRING DRESSES, including
Angola and Camel Hair Beige, Cashmir Foulé, Cachemire de Paris, Mixed Wool and Silk Damassé, Cashmere Merino Drap d'Italie, Fine Vigogne, New shades of Black and Coloured Rich Velveteens, New Pompadour and Plain Satins, Percales, &c.
All the New Colours and Designs.
Cash Prices. Parcel free.
PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON.

NEW COSTUMES for SPRING.
Success, a rich Satin Costume, 4½ guineas.
Paletine, stylish Silk Costume, 3 guineas.
Cora, rich Satin de Lyon Costume, 5½ guineas.
Patterns and Illustrations (just out) post-free.

PETER ROBINSON, Oxford-street, W.

NEW SPRING DRESSES.—Now Heather Tweed Beiges, 7½d.; New Mouté Merveilleux, 6½d. Patterns free.—JOHN HOOPER, 22, Oxford-street, W.

NOVELTIES for LADIES' MORNING DRESSES.—French Patterns, 8½d.; Pompadours, 7½d.; Prints, 6½d.; Linen Lawns, 3½d. Patterns free.
JOHN HOOPER, 22, Oxford-street, W.

PRATT'S WATER PAD TRUSSES are the
MOST EFFECTUAL CURE FOR RUPTURES.
PRATT'S ELASTIC STOCKINGS,
for VARICOSE VEINS, &c.
J. F. PRATT,
Surgical Mechanician to St. Bartholomew's Hospital,
429, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON

ALLEN and HANBURYS'
"PERFECTED"
COD-LIVER OIL.

"It is so pure and tasteless that when oil will agree at all this is sure to do so."—On Loss of Weight, Blood-Spitting, and Lung Disease," by HORACE DOBELL, M.D., Consulting Physician to the Royal Hospital for Diseases of the Chest.

ALLEN and HANBURYS'
"PERFECTED"
COD-LIVER OIL.

"Many to whom the taste of the oil has hitherto been an obstacle will doubtless be able to take it."—Lancet.
"Has almost the delicacy of salad oil."—British Medical Journal.

ALLEN and HANBURYS'
"PERFECTED"
COD-LIVER OIL.

"No nauseous eructations follow after it is swallowed."—Medical Press.
"A Pharmaceutical product which is in its way unrivalled."—London Medical Record.
"It is a great boon to get such an oil."—Practitioner.

ALLEN and HANBURYS'
"PERFECTED"
COD-LIVER OIL.

This Oil is manufactured FROM FRESH AND SELECTED LIVERS, at ALLEN AND HANBURYS' OWN FACTORY in NORWAY. It is prepared by an entirely new and distinct process, and presents in the most effective condition all the valuable properties of the remedy.

ALLEN and HANBURYS'
"PERFECTED"
COD-LIVER OIL.

It is the ONLY OIL which does not "repeat." All who take Cod-Liver Oil will appreciate this. INSIST ON HAVING ALLEN AND HANBURYS' "PERFECTED" OIL, AND DO NOT BE PERSUADED TO ACCEPT CHEAP SUBSTITUTES WHICH ARE PERSISTENTLY OFFERED.

ALLEN and HANBURYS'
"PERFECTED"
COD-LIVER OIL

Sold only in capsuled bottles, bearing ALLEN and HANBURY'S SIGNATURE, and the TRADE MARK (a PLOUGH). Imperial quarter-pints, 1s. 3d.; half-pints, 2s. 6d.; pints, 4s. 9d.; quarts, 9s. Of all Chemists; and of
ALLEN and HANBURYS',
Plough-court, Lombard-street, London, E.C.

TAMAR INDIEN GRILLON,
For CONSTIPATION, BILE, HEADACHE.

TAMAR INDIEN GRILLON,
AN EFFECTIVE AND REFRESHING FRUIT LOZENGE,
UNIVERSALLY PRESCRIBED BY THE FACULTY.

TAMAR INDIEN GRILLON.
2s. 6d. per Box, post-free.
Sold by all Chemists and Druggists.
Wholesale—E. GRILLON, 69, Queen-street, London, E.C.

DINNEFORD'S MAGNESIA.
The best remedy for Acidity of the Stomach, Heartburn, Headache, Gout, and Indigestion, and safest aperient for delicate constitutions, Ladies and Children. Of all Chemists.

BLAIR'S GOUT PILLS,
THE GREAT
REMEDY FOR GOUT AND RHEUMATISM.
Sold by all Chemists, at 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. per Box.

"THEY HAVE NO EQUAL."
This is the universal opinion of everybody who has tried
DR. SCOTT'S BILIOUS and LIVER PILLS, for bilious and liver complaints, indigestion, wind, spasms, foul breath, nervous depression, irritability, heartburn, loss of appetite, dyspepsia, heartburn, giddiness, dizziness of the eyes, &c. Being as mild and tonic in their action as they are certain in their curative effects.—Prepared by W. Lambert, 173, Seymour-place, London, W., in Boxes, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d., and sold by all Chemists. The genuine are in square green packages. Take no other.

"FOR THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE."
CLARKE'S HERBAL-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE is warranted to cleanse the Blood from all impurities, from whatever cause arising. For Scrofula, Scurvy, Skin and Blood Diseases, its effects are marvellous. In Bottles, 2s. 9d. each, and in cases, containing six times the quantity, 11s. each, of all Chemists. Sent to any address for 30 or 132 stamps, of the Proprietor, J. J. CLARKE, Chemist, Lincoln.

COLDS CURED BY
DR. DUNBAR'S ALKARAM, or Anti-Catarrh Smelling-Bottle.
ALKARAM. COLDS.
ALKARAM. COLDS.
ALKARAM. COLDS.
IF inhaled on the first symptoms, ALKARAM will at once arrest them, and cure severe cases in half an hour. Sold by all Chemists, 1s. 9d. a Bottle. Address, Dr. Dunbar, care of Messrs. F. Newbery and Sons, 1, King Edward-st., E.C.

HOOPING COUGH.
ROCHE'S HERBAL EMBROCATION.
THIS celebrated effectual Cure without internal medicine. Sole Wholesale Agents, W. EDWARDS and SON, 157, Queen Victoria-street (formerly of 67, St. Paul's-churchyard), London, whose names are engraved on the Government stamp.
Sold by most Chemists. Price 4s. per Bottle.

TOOTHACHE.
INSTANT CURE.
FORMS A STOPPING.
SAVES THE TOOTH.
J. Hounsell, Esq., Surgeon, Bridport, writes:—"I consider DUNN'S NERVINE a specific for Toothache. Very severe cases under my care have found instantaneous and permanent relief."
Of Chemists, 1s., 1s. 9d. per Packet.

"DR. LOCOCK'S PULMONIC WAFERS I have always found give relief in attacks of Asthmatical Coughs and Consumption."—(Signed) J. SPENCER, M.P.S., 225, Great College-street, Birmingh'm.

ELECTRICITY IS LIFE.
PULVERMACHER'S "GALVANISM,
NATURE'S CHIEF RESTORER OF IMPAIRED VITAL ENERGY."
In this Pamphlet the most reliable proofs are given of the vast and wonderful curative powers of Pulvermacher's Patent Galvanic Chain-Bands, Belts, &c., in Rheumatic, Nervous, and Functional Disorders. Sent post-free for three stamps on application to
J. L. PULVERMACHER'S GALVANIC ESTABLISHMENT, 194, Regent-street, London, W.

TRELOAR and SONS' LUDGATE-HILL.
MATS. FLOORCLOTH.
LINOLEUM. LINOLEUM.

TRELOAR and SONS, 69, Ludgate-hill, were established 1832. They are the only firm in London who deal exclusively in Floor Coverings. They have been awarded seven Prize Medals, including one at Paris, 1878. The Fine Arts Galleries at the International Exhibitions of 1851, 1851, 1855, 1862, 1865, 1869, and 1878, were covered with matting specially manufactured by them.

CHUBB'S SAFES FOR JEWELS,
DEEDS, PLATE, BULLION, &c.

CHUBB'S LOCKS AND LATCHES,
CHESTS, BOXES, &c.

CHUBB'S ILLUSTRATED PRICE-LISTS
POST-FREE.

CHUBB and SON, 128, Queen Victoria-street, E.C.; and 68, St. James's-street, London.

EPPS'S COCOA.
GRATEFUL and COMFORTING.
"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operation of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.
JAMES EPPS and CO., HOMŒOPATHIC CHEMISTS.
Also, EPPS'S CHOCOLATE ESSENCE, for Afternoon Use.

CARSON'S ANTI-CORROSION PAINT,
PAINT FOR EXTREMES OF CLIMATE.
Patronised by her Majesty, the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Edinburgh, and 1200 of the Nobility, Gentry, and Clergy, for every description of outdoor work, has been established upwards of eighty years, and has the reputation over every part of the habitable globe of being the best Preserver of Iron, Wood, Stone, Brick, or Compo.
It stands any extreme of climate, and seems only to harden with exposure. It is sold in all Colours.—Prices, patterns, and full particulars of free delivery, cash discount, with flattering testimonials; also list of Oils, Varnishes, Brushes, &c., can be had upon application to
WALTER CARSON and SONS,
La Belle Sauvage-yard, Ludgate-hill, London;
21, Bachelor's-walk, Dublin.

CARSON'S ANTI-CORROSION PAINT is used by all the leading horticulturists for their conservatories and hot-houses, and has stood par actical test of upwards of eighty years.

MRS. S. A. ALLEN'S
WORLD'S HAIR RESTORER

THE ADMIRATION OF THE WORLD. Mrs. S. A. Allen's World's Hair Restorer is perfection for its wonderful life-giving properties to faded or failing hair, and quickly changing grey or white hair to its natural youthful colour and beauty. It is not a dye. It requires only a few applications to restore grey hair to its youthful colour and lustrous beauty, and induce luxuriant growth, and its occasional use is all that is needed to preserve it in its highest perfection and beauty. Dandruff is quickly and permanently removed. Sold by all Chemists and Perfumers.

FLORIMEL OF PALM.
A white and delicate hand is the first attribute of beauty and civilisation. "The hand," says Sir Charles Bell in the "Bridgewater Treatise," "distinguishes man from the brute; he is fearful of it, for in polite society it is an index not only of the body but of the mind."
The Florimel of Palm being rubbed over the skin is to be removed with a little water, then dried with a soft towel. Once using will convince the most sceptical that, if daily applied, too much cannot be said in favour of Florimel of Palm for rendering the skin or hands white, delicate, soft, and fair.
Sold in Jars, 2s. 6d. each.
PIESSE and LUBIN, 2, New Bond-street, London.
May be obtained of any Chemist or Perfumer in the world.

TURKISH PASTILS.
"Through all my travels few things astonished me more than seeing the beauties of the harem smoking Naughtiés at Stamboul. After smoking a sweet aromatic lozenge or pastil is used by them, which is said to impart an odour of flowers to the breath. I have never seen these breath lozenges but once in Europe, and that was at PIESSE and LUBIN'S shop in Bond-street."—Lady W. Montagu.
In Boxes, 2s.; by post, 2s. 3d.
2, NEW BOND-STREET, LONDON.

SWEET SACHETS.
PIESSE and LUBIN compose every variety of Sachet Powder the same odours as their many perfumes for the handkerchief. Placed in a drawer, etui, or travelling-bag, they impart a grateful and pleasing perfume without being too pungent. Piesse and Lubin also have, on demand, Dried Odoriferous Flowers, Spices, and Odoriferous Gums. Per ounce, 1s. 6d.; per lb., 21s.
2, NEW BOND-STREET, LONDON.

NUDA VERITAS.—GREY HAIR restored by this valuable specific to its original shade, after which it grows the natural colour, not grey. Used as a dressing, it causes growth and arrests falling. The most harmless and effectual restorer extant. One trial will convince it has no equal. Price 10s. 6d., of all Chemists and Hairdressers. Testimonials post-free.—R. HOVENDEN and SONS, London.

GOLDEN HAIR.—ROBARE'S AUREOLINE produces the beautiful Golden Colour so much admired. Warranted perfectly harmless. Price 5s. 6d. and 10s. 6d., of all Perfumers. Wholesale, HOVENDEN and SONS, 5, Great Marlborough-street, W.; and 93 and 95, City-road, E.C.

VALUABLE DISCOVERY for the HAIR.
If your hair is turning grey, or white, or falling off, use "The Mexican Hair Renewer," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White Hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots where the glands are not decayed. "The Mexican Hair Renewer" is sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere, at 3s. 6d. per Bottle.

FLORILINE. For the Teeth and Breath.
Is the best Liquid Dentifrice in the world; it thoroughly cleanses partially-decayed teeth from all parasites or living "animalculæ," leaving them pearly white, imparting a delightful fragrance to the breath. The Fragrant Floriline removes instantly all odours arising from a foul stomach or tobacco smoke, being partly composed of honey, soda, and extracts of sweet herbs and plants. It is perfectly harmless, and delicious as sherry. Sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere, at 2s. 6d. per Bottle.

THE SKIN.—The glory of woman, the pride of man. It contains the delicate lines of beauty and constitutes all that we term "Loveliness;" yet how many thousands have their skins ill-misled by the use of the irritant soaps. Carbolic, Coal Tar, Glycerine, and the coarse common soaps, caustic with alkali and made of putrid fats. The more delicate the skin the quicker its ruin. The ALBION MILK AND SULPHUR SOAP is the purest, the whitest, and most purifying of all soaps, by its purifying action taking away and preventing all pimples, blotches, and roughness. It is recommended by the entire Medical Profession as the most elegant preparation for the Skin that is known. By all Chemists. In Tablets, 6d. and 1s. THE ALBION SANATORY SOAP COMPANY, 2, Cecil-street, London.

THROAT AFFECTIONS and HOARSENESS.—All suffering from Irritation of the Throat and Hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES. These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable Chemists in this country, at 1s. 1½d. per Box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government stamp around each box.—Prepared by JOHN I. BROWN and SONS, Boston, U.S. European Depôt, 83, Farringdon-road, London.

THE TRANSVAAL WAR: SKETCH PLAN OF THE BATTLE OF MAJUBA HILL, AS VIEWED FROM THE HILL ABOVE MOUNT PROSPECT CAMP, BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.—SEE PAGE 410.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

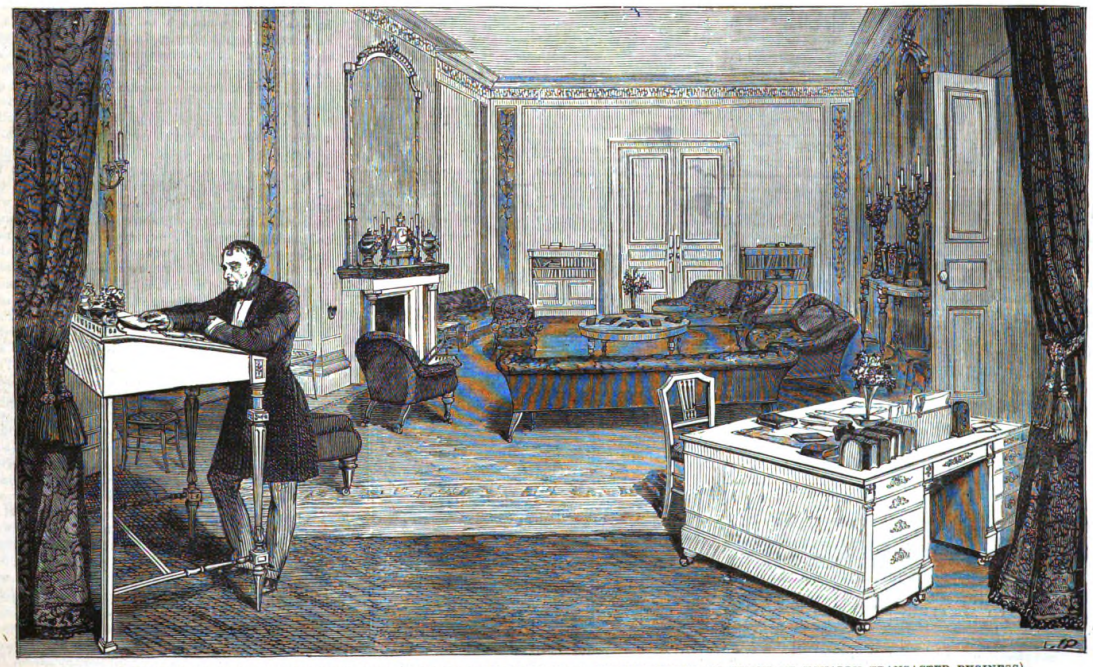
REGISTERED AT THE GENERAL POST-OFFICE FOR TRANSMISSION ABROAD.

No. 2189.—VOL. LXXVIII. SATURDAY, APRIL 30, 1881. WITH TWO SUPPLEMENTS | SIXPENCE. By Post, 6½d.

HUGHENDEN CHURCH, WITH THE GRAVE OF LORD BEACONSFIELD.—SEE PAGE 422.



THE ROOM IN WHICH LORD BEACONSFIELD DIED (BACK DRAWING-ROOM AT 19, CURZON-STREET, IN WHICH HE USUALLY TRANSACTED BUSINESS).

BIRTHS.

On the 21st inst., the wife of Herbert E. B. Green, of Beechfield, Farnham Royal, Slough, of a son.

On the 15th inst., at Ruddington, Notts, the wife of the Hon. Evelyn Pierrepont, of a son.

On the 23rd inst., at Sotterly, Lady Constance Barne, of a daughter.

MARRIAGES.

On the 20th inst., at St. John's Church, Edinburgh, by the Rev. D. F. Sandford, LL.D., Canon of St. Mary's Cathedral, Thomas Spowart, Esq., of Broomhead, to Catherine Eliza, youngest daughter of the late William Millie, Esq., Pathhead House, Fife.

On the 27th inst., at the Church of St. Michael and All Angels', Paddington, by the Rev. M. Seymour Edgell, assisted by the Rev. W. Sweet Escott and the Rev. G. F. Prescott, Vicar, Major R. J. Bond, Royal Engineers, to Florence Annie, daughter of W. B. Eastwood, Esq., of Kingswood, Englefield-green, Surrey, and 17, Gloucester-square, Hyde Park.

On the 21st inst., at St. Mary's Church, Battersea, by the Rev. H. Tristram Valentine, and the Rev. C. R. Lloyd Ernestus, Charles Allen Clark, of Bagdeaux, to Susie Ellen, only surviving daughter of William Henry Muggeridge, R.N., of 3, Sisters-avenue, Clapham Common. No cards.

On the 21st inst., at St. Peter's Church, Eaton-square, Lord Alexander Kennedy, second son of the late Marquis of Ailsa, to Beatrice, eldest daughter of the late George Toulmin Gordon, Esq., of Cuckney, Notts, and stepdaughter of Captain Henry Trollope, Royal Navy.

On the 20th inst., at Harrow, the Rev. Thomas Collinswood Hughes, Rector of Little Billing, Northamptonshire, to Mary Agnes Winwood, elder daughter of Sir William Smith, Bart.

On the 19th inst., at St. John's Episcopal Church, Edinburgh, Charles Kincaid Mackenzie, Esq., B.A. Oxon, to Lily, daughter of the Right Hon. George Young.

On the 21st inst., at Kilrea, county Londonderry, the Rev. John R. Lane, Vicar of Morhanger, Bedfordshire, to Nura Norman, second daughter of Sir William Holmes, the Manor House, Kilrea.

DEATHS.

On the 23rd inst., at 29, Coleshill-street, London, Jane, daughter of the late Right Hon. Edward Pennefather, Lord Chief Justice of Ireland.

On the 21st inst., at Birkwood, John Gregory M'Kirdy, Esq., of Birkwood, Lanarkshire, N.B.

On April 18, at Belmont Villa, Mary, the eldest daughter of the late Captain Archibald H. Roberton, R.A., aged 82.

On Feb. 14, at Maryborough, Queensland, of typhoid fever, George R. Maclean, late 19th Regiment, youngest son of the late Sir George Maclean, K.C.B., in his 34th year.

On the 18th inst., in Bruton-street, after a long illness, Henrietta, the beloved wife of General Sir George Buller, and daughter of General Sir John Macdonald, G.C.B., late Adjutant-General of the Forces.

On the 22nd inst., at West Malvern, the Hon. Adela Mary Bootle Wilbraham, aged 46.

On the 21st inst., at 9, Church-road, St. Leonard's-on-Sea, in the 86th year of his age, John Spry Morris, Esq., late Commissioner of Crown Lands, Surveyor-General and Judge of the Probate Court, Halifax, Nova Scotia, eldest surviving son of the late Hon. Charles Morris.

On the 21st inst., at Stackpole Court, Pembrokeshire, the Countess of Cawdor, aged 67.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, or Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE KEW OBSERVATORY OF THE ROYAL SOCIETY.

Lat. 51° 28′ 6″ N.; Long. 0° 18′ 47″ W. Height above Sea, 34 feet.

| DAY. | DAILY MEANS OF Barometer Corrected | Temperature of Air | Dew Point. | Relative Humidity. | THERMOM Amount Maximum read at 10 p.m. | Minimum read at 10 a.m. | WIND. General Direction. | Movement in miles at 10 a.m. and 10 p.m. | Rain in 24 hours, ending 10 a.m. next morning. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| | Inches. | ° | ° | % | ° | ° | | Miles. | In. |
| 17 | 29·951 | 52·0 | 40·3 | 67 | 5 | 64·9 | 39·6 | ENE. | 289 | 0·000 |
| 18 | 29·995 | 48·2 | 33·1 | 59 | 5 | 66·9 | 38·4 | ENE. ESE. | 533 | 0·000 |
| 19 | 29·956 | 48·4 | 37·7 | 69 | 10 | 62·4 | 36·6 | NE. ENE. | 571 | 0·000 |
| 20 | 29·893 | 50·0 | 39·0 | 81 | 10 | 61·8 | 35·5 | ESE. S. | 275 | 0·010* |
| 21 | 29·741 | 48·0 | 39·7 | 75 | 8 | 65·8 | 29·1 | S. SSW. | 188 | 0·006 |
| 22 | 29·886 | 46·8 | 31·1 | 71 | 7 | 66·3 | 35·9 | NNE. NNW. | 167 | 0·000 |
| 23 | 29·586 | 43·8 | 34·9 | 73 | 7 | 55·6 | 32·8 | ESE. NW. W. | 210 | 0·165 |

* Sleet.

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at ten o'clock a.m.:—

| | | | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Barometer (in inches) corrected .. | 29·991 | 29·928 | 29·874 | 29·850 | 29·755 | 29·755 | 29·863 |
| Temperature of Air .. | 54·8 | 52·0 | 50·4 | 50·3 | 50·1 | 49·0 | 48·0 |
| Temperature of Evaporation .. | 49·0 | 45·8 | 44·1 | 45·0 | 47·1 | 38·2 | 36·0 |
| Direction of Wind .. .. | ENE. | NE. | NE. | N. | S. | S. | NW. |

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE FOR THE WEEK ENDING MAY 7.

| Sunday. | Monday. | Tuesday. | Wednesday. | Thursday. | Friday. | Saturday. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| h m / h m | h m / h m | h m / h m | h m / h m | h m / h m | h m / h m | h m / h m |
| 3 39 / 4 7 | 4 7 / 4 35 | 4 43 / 5 0 | 5 20 / 5 40 | 6 2 / 6 25 | 6 50 / 7 15 | 7 47 / 8 20 |

ENGRAVER.—A First-class ENGRAVER, accustomed to Newspaper Work, is WANTED for one of the Colonies.—Apply to A. B., care of Mr. Thomas, "Graphic" Office, London.

DRAWING and PAINTING, KING'S COLLEGE, LONDON.—SCHOOL of PRACTICAL FINE ART for LADIES and GENTLEMEN, conducted by Prof. DELAMOTTE. For Prospectus apply to J. W. Cunningham, Esq., Secretary.

THE GROSVENOR GALLERY.—SUMMER EXHIBITION.—Will OPEN on MONDAY, MAY 2. Admission, One Shilling. Season Tickets, Five Shillings.

SOCIETY OF BRITISH ARTISTS.—FIFTY-EIGHTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION NOW OPEN, at the SUFFOLK-STREET GALLERIES, Pall-mall East, from Nine to six daily. Admission, One Shilling.
THOMAS ROBERTS, Secretary.

THE SOCIETY OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS. The SIXTY-FIFTH EXHIBITION is NOW OPEN, 5, Pall-mall East, from Ten till Six. Admittance, 1s.; Catalogue, 6d.
ALFRED D. PARRY, Secretary.

THE SEVENTEENTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION of CABINET PICTURES, by ARTISTS of the BRITISH and FOREIGN SCHOOLS is NOW OPEN at THOMAS M'LEAN'S GALLERY, 7, Haymarket (next the Theatre). Admission on presentation of address card.

INSTITUTE OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS. The FORTY-SEVENTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION is now OPEN from Nine till Seven. Admission, 1s.; Catalogue, 6d.
H. F. PHILLIPS, Secretary.
Gallery, 53, Pall-mall.

FRENCH GALLERY, 120, PALL-MALL.—The Twenty-Eighth ANNUAL EXHIBITION of PICTURES, by Artists of the Continental Schools, including Portraits of the Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone, Prince Bismarck, Count Moltke, Dr. Dollinger, and other works by Franz Lenbach, is NOW OPEN. Admission, 1s.

ROSA BONHEUR'S celebrated PICTURES, ON THE ALERT, and A FORAGING PARTY, which gained for the artist the Cross of the Legion of Honour in 1867, at the Antwerp Academy, 1875. Also the complete and grand works of Rosa Bonheur, including the well-known "Horse Fair," now on EXHIBITION at L. H. LEFEVRE'S GALLERY, 1a, King-street, St. James's, S.W. Admission, One Shilling. Ten to Five.

DORÉ'S GREAT WORKS.—"ECCE HOMO" ("Full of divine dignity."—The Times) and "THE ASCENSION." "CHRIST LEAVING THE PRETORIUM," "CHRIST ENTERING JERUSALEM," with all his other great Pictures.—DORÉ GALLERY, 35, New Bond-street. Daily, 10 to 6. 1s.

BRIGHTON. — PULLMAN DRAWING-ROOM CAR TRAINS leave Victoria for Brighton every WEEKDAY at 10.0 a.m. and 4.30 p.m., and Brighton for Victoria at 9.45 a.m. and 2.40 p.m. Also from Victoria on Sundays at 9.0 a.m. and from Brighton at 5.30 p.m.
EARLY SUNDAY.—A Cheap First-Class Train from Victoria at 10.45 a.m., calling at Clapham Junction and Croydon. Day Return Tickets, 10s.

THE GRAND AQUARIUM AT BRIGHTON.—EVERY SATURDAY, Cheap First-class Trains from Victoria at 10.35 a.m. and 11.50 a.m., and London Bridge at 9.0 a.m. and 12.0 noon, calling at Clapham Junction and Croydon. Best Picture Face—First Class. Re-Exhibition including Admission to the Aquarium and the Royal Pavilion Picture Gallery, Palace, and Grounds, available to return by any Train the same day, except the Pullman Car Train.
(By order) J. P. KNIGHT, General Manager.

THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS,

A NEW JOURNAL FOR THE YOUNG.

The Proprietors of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS issued the first Illustrated Weekly Newspaper for Boys, price ONE PENNY, on Wednesday, April 6, 1881. THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS is a Journal full of Entertainment and Information for Youth; and, at the same time, a Paper which Parents can with confidence place in the hands of their children.

CAPTAIN MAYNE REID'S "LOST MOUNTAIN." A New Romance in the best style of this famous Author, commenced in THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS for April 6.

THE LOST MOUNTAIN. Captain MAYNE REID'S New Romance, is the Best Story for Boys now being published.

"THE ROYAL MIDDIES," being Portraits of the Prince of Wales's Sons, is the title of the supplement presented Gratis with the First Monthly Part of THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS. Price Sixpence; Post-free, Eightpence.

BOYS' SPORTS; BOYS' NEWS; and the Comic Serial Story for Boys, "Squire Biffkin;" Pastime Illustrations; The Male's Stories for Sea, Travel, Voyage, and Adventure; Natural History; Britain's Heroes; and other features of Interest for Boys will be found in the First Monthly Part of THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS.

"DOLPH'S RUSE." A Performing Seal's Story by JOHN LATEY, jun., forms a complete tale in THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS for April 27.

BOYS' MEMOIR of LORD BEACONSFIELD; being a Pen and Pencil Sketch of the late Earl. See THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS for April 27. One Penny; Post-free, 1½d.

A MONTHLY PART of THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS is now being published, containing the first four Numbers, attached in a coloured wrapper, and with "The Royal Middies" Supplement. Price Sixpence; Post-free, Eightpence.
THOMAS FOX, 10, Milford-lane, Strand, London.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION FOR THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.
UNITED KINGDOM:
Three Months, 1s. 8d.; Six Months, 3s. 3d.; Twelve Months, 6s. 6d.
ABROAD:
Post-free to any part of Europe, United States of America, Canada, and Egypt, for One Year, 6s. 6d.; to India, Japan, China, and Japan, for One Year, 10s. 10d. Elsewhere Abroad, One Year, 8s. 8d.
All subscriptions to be paid in advance direct by Post-office order, payable at the East Strand Post-office, to THOMAS FOX, 10, Milford-lane, Strand, London.

GRAND GERMAN OPERA SEASON.

HERR HERMANN FRANKE has the honour to announce a Series of WAGNER'S OPERAS. — Twelve Performances in DRURY LANE THEATRE. Mr. Augustus Harris, Lessee.

MAY and JUNE, 1882.

HERR HANS RICHTER will CONDUCT all the PERFORMANCES.

THE TERMS for the SERIES will be as follows:—
Boxes on the pit tier, for eight persons, 80 guineas; for four persons, 45 guineas. Boxes on the grand tier, for ten persons, 100 guineas. Boxes on the first tier, for eight persons, 70 guineas; for four persons, 40 guineas. Boxes on the second tier, for six persons, 35 guineas; for four persons, 25 guineas. Orchestra Stalls, each, 10 guineas. Grand Circle (reserved), each, 7 guineas. Dress Circle (reserved), each, 5 guineas, which can now be secured at the office of Herr Franke, 2, Vere-street, London, W., and all the principal Agents in London. Acting Manager, Mr. N. Vert.

ST. JAMES'S HALL, PICCADILLY.
THE MOORE and BURGESS MINSTRELS'
EASTER HOLIDAY PROGRAMME,
replete with musical gems, sparkling conundrums, and humorous sketches, will be regularly sustained until the end of the present month.
EVERY NIGHT AT EIGHT.
MONDAY, WEDNESDAY and SATURDAY at THREE and EIGHT.
FIFTY ARTISTES,
including the Juvenile Choir, the Statuesque Dancers, and powerful Phalanx of Comedians.
Fauteuils, 5s.; Sofa Stalls, 3s.; Area, 2s.; Gallery, 1s.
No Fees.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Irving. On MONDAY, WEDNESDAY, and FRIDAY, MAY 2, 4, and 6, at Eight o'clock, OTHELLO.—Othello, Mr. Irving; Iago, Mr. Irving; Desdemona, Miss Ellen Terry. On TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY, MAY 3, 5, and 7, at 7.45, THE CUP and THE BELLE'S STRATAGEM.—Mr. Irving and Miss Ellen Terry.

SANGER'S AMPHITHEATRE.—MOHAWK MINSTRELS. MONDAY NEXT, MAY 2, and Every Evening at Eight, for Five Weeks only, the great MOHAWK MINSTRELS from the Agricultural Hall. The Best Minstrel Entertainment in the World. Entire Change of Programme every Monday. Price, from 5s. to Five Guineas.
E. MOWBRAY, Manager.

MASKELYNE and COOKE, EGYPTIAN HALL, give their popular entertainment EVERY AFTERNOON, at THREE and on the EVENINGS of TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY, at EIGHT. The programme includes the original scene, entitled WILL, THE WITCH, AND THE WATCH, the Marvellous Cabinet Illusion, Mr. Maskelyne's celebrated Box Feat, and the almost miraculous "Metamorphosis" of human beings. W. MORTON, Manager.

MR. and MRS. GERMAN REED'S ENTERTAINMENT. A New First Piece, MANY HAPPY RETURNS, by Gilbert A'Beckett and Clement Scott; Music by Lionel Benson. A New Musical Sketch, OUR INSTITUTE, by Mr. Corney Grain; and ALL AT SEA, by Arthur Law; Music by Corney Grain. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday, at Eight; Thursday and Saturday at Three.—ST. GEORGE'S HALL, Langham-place. Admission, 1s., 2s.; Stalls, 3s., 5s. No fees. Booking-Office open from 10 to 6.

BANK OF NEW ZEALAND
(Incorporated by Act of General Assembly, July 29, 1861).
Bankers to the New Zealand Government.
Capital authorised and paid up, £1,000,000.
Reserve Fund, £555,000.
Head Office — Auckland.
BRANCHES AND AGENCIES.
In Australia—Melbourne, Sidney, and Newcastle.
In Fiji—Levuka.
In New Zealand—Auckland, Blenheim, Christchurch, Dunedin, Invercargill, Napier, Nelson, New Plymouth, Picton, Wellington, and at eighty-two other towns and places throughout the Colony.
The Bank Drafts on all their Branches and Agencies, and transacts every description of banking business connected with New Zealand, Australia, and Fiji on the most favourable terms.
The London Office RECEIVES FIXED DEPOSITS of £50 and upwards, rates and particulars of which can be ascertained on application.
F. LARKWORTHY, Managing Director.
No. 1, Queen Victoria-street, Mansion House, E.C.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, APRIL 30, 1881.

On Tuesday the grave closed over the mortal remains of the Earl of Beaconsfield. Though reverential regard for his own wishes forbade the formal public funeral which was considered to be the due of the deceased statesman, the obsequies were really public, and far more unique and appropriate than would have been any pageant in Westminster Abbey. The solemn and picturesque scene in and around Hughenden churchyard fitly reflected the national sorrow. Instead of the stately trappings of woe, there were the spontaneous and more touching and beautiful signs of affection and esteem which state ceremonials are apt to stifle, and they were as varied in form as were the phases of Lord Beaconsfield's career. Rarely, indeed, has so great and touching a funeral been improvised by public sympathy. His Lordship's executors provided the bare framework of a ceremonial which was left to shape itself. In this reverential task all classes assisted. The presence of three Princes of the Blood in that village churchyard was an unprecedented proof of the profound personal regard entertained for the illustrious deceased by her Majesty and the Royal Family. Ministers and ex-Ministers—all party distinctions obliterated before the open grave—ambassadors from almost every civilised Court, peers and magnates of every grade, political supporters and intimate friends, hosts of unknown personal admirers, servants and tenants, working men and labourers, from far and near, constituted that mixed, but truly representative throng which on Tuesday afternoon followed the remains of Lord Beaconsfield to their last resting place by the side of his devoted wife. It was no ordinary magnetic influence that drew them to the spot. England is from time to time called upon to mourn over the loss of great statesmen, warriors, authors, philosophers, and philanthropists; but how few of them, although they may have been as worthy—even more worthy—of homage have aroused so keen and absorbing an interest as the many-sided genius whose attributes and career have been so exceptionally fascinating?

The secret of this electric and universal posthumous popularity is to be found in the man himself rather than in the trappings that surround him. That he was a Prime Minister, a great peer, a matchless party leader, a Court favourite, the controller of the House of Lords, and the admiration of European Cabinets, is less taken into account than his remarkable, brilliant, and mysterious idiosyncracies. Lord Beaconsfield was a great personality. He was endowed with almost every quality that strikes the imagination. His public life was one continued and triumphant struggle with obstacles that to ordinary men are impossibilities. The copious biographical details which have been furnished during the last fortnight have brought into light and proportion this wonderful career—the iron resolution, never-failing patience, and charming suavity of the man, his magnetic influence over his fellows, his facility in correcting mistakes, his breadth of nature, his superiority to jealousy and morbid animosity. His falls and failures—and they were many—were but stepping-stones to ultimate success. That Lord Beaconsfield was an enigma was part of the fascination that encircled him. That the sentimental novelist, who made so many stilted stage heroes and heroines—the creatures of an unreal world—pass before us, should have been a man of simple tastes, strong affections, a lover of nature, a despiser of fashionable frivolities, an enemy of pretence, and with a sympathetic concern for all about him, piques curiosity and baffles experience. None but a man of so genuine a character could have drawn up his remarkable will—the last, and not least, striking of his productions.

The statesman who moulded his party to modern requirements—who tried to reconcile the obsolete pretensions of Toryism with the imperative demands of progress, is no more. The consummate skill and educational adroitness which he expended on that marvellous enterprise—are they to become a tradition, or to yield permanent results, now that the guiding rod of the great magician can no longer point the way? Whether the loss to the Conservatives is irreparable time will show. No one appears above the political horizon who possesses the sagacity, power of adaptation, cool audacity, and, perhaps we may add, the flexibility of conscience, which characterised their late experienced leader. If the Conservatives make a new departure, its indications have yet to be traced. It is a striking homage to Lord Beaconsfield's pre-eminence that his position is, and is likely to remain, absolutely vacant. The respective claims of Lord Cairns, Lord Salisbury, the Duke of Richmond, and Sir Stafford Northcote—neither of whom combines the needed qualifications—are, for the present at least, in abeyance. A leader with equal authority in either House is rather a temporary expedient than a solution of the problem.

When on Monday week the Prime Minister will propose a grant of public money for a monument to be erected in Westminster Abbey in memory of the deceased statesman the House of Commons and the public will be in a calmer and more judicial mood for gauging the political career of Lord Beaconsfield. The tide of natural and creditable sympathy will be somewhat slackened; the glamour thrown around an unprecedented and brilliant career will be more subdued. For so exceptional an honour there should be exceptional and national service. His foreign policy was the great characteristic of the ex-Premier's last Administration. Whether right or wrong, it was distinctly condemned by the constituencies a year ago; and it is hardly possible that the subject will escape criticism when Mr. Gladstone proposes thus to commemorate his former rival. Claims to this species of canonisation which the majority of the nation has disallowed cannot with propriety be urged; while the landmarks of the late Conservative leader's domestic policy are, sooth to say, not very distinct or numerous. But the generosity and ingenuity of the Prime Minister will, no doubt, avail to make out a case; and those who ten years hence will, perchance, stand before the Beaconsfield monument in the national mausoleum, may be able to recall his unswerving patriotism, those unique qualities that changed the drift of political life, intermixed with good sense and temper, that subdued the asperities of party strife, without showing any admiration for, or hankering after, the revival of those Imperialist aspirations that are too much identified with the name of the deceased statesman whose ashes repose in Hughenden churchyard.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

"How oft," exclaims Friar Laurence in "Romeo and Juliet," "have my old feet stumbled at graves." These feet of mine have been stumbling, more or less professionally, at graves these forty years past. I should have been an undertaker's man. In old Egypt I might have done tolerably well as an embalmer; and, indeed, there is one curious point of contact between ancient embalmers and modern journalists. According to Herodotus, when the makers of mummies had completed their work, the relatives of the deceased were accustomed to kick them out of the house; and the crowd outside received them with the salutation of sticks and stones. When the Marquis of Carabas wants anything he can be very civil to journalists. When his Lordship doesn't want anything he is apt to speak of the Slaves of the Reading Lamp as "confounded penny-a-liners."

I have been a witness, my readers have more than once been told, of many famous funerals. The second interment of Napoleon the Great at Paris in 1840; the obsequies of Arthur Duke of Wellington at St. Paul's in 1852; those of Lord Macaulay and George Stephenson in Westminster Abbey; the entombment of the Prince Consort in St. George's Chapel at Windsor; the burial, in the tiny Roman Catholic chapel at Chiselhurst, first of Napoleon III., and afterwards of the Prince Imperial; then the burial of the King of Hanover, at Windsor, again; and, only the other day, the grand processional translation, lying in State, and final consignment to our Mother Earth in the fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul at St. Petersburg, of the remains of the murdered Tsar, Alexander II. Grand, showy, gloomily impressive, sometimes august, but generally wearisome, were the majority of these pageants. Beyond them, with one exception, I do not remember to have witnessed a more touchingly beautiful ceremony than the simple and unadorned funeral of Benjamin Disraeli, first Earl of Beaconsfield, to which I went on Tuesday last.

I have a horror of crowded railway stations, densely-packed special-trains, and extortionate country flymen on occasions of ceremonial importance; and was very glad to avail myself of the offer of a friend abounding in horses and vehicles to drive me down to High Wycombe on the day of Lord Beaconsfield's funeral. The journey was a matter of some four-and-thirty miles from where I live. We started about half-past nine in the morning; baited at Uxbridge, and were at the Red Lion, High Wycombe, at ten minutes past one p.m. Miss Frances Power Cobbe may be interested to learn that our cattle were not in the least distressed, and that our coachman might just as well have been unprovided with a whip. For he never used that weapon, once.

The exquisitely pretty villages that we passed through between Uxbridge and Wycombe! I remember one—was it Wycombe Marsh?—through which, on one side the street, runs, close to the doorsteps of the houses, a shining mill-stream crossed by numbers of tiny bridges. What do our painters of outdoor subjects mean by neglecting Wycombe Marsh? It is as quaint as, and ten times prettier than, the famous Clean Village of Brock, near Amsterdam.

In all the villages within ten miles this side of Wycombe the shops were wholly or partially closed, and the window-blinds of the dwelling-houses were drawn down. From the steeples of the village churches the union jack floated, half-mast high.

It may frankly be admitted, and it was the most natural thing in the world, that the aspect of the High-street, High Wycombe, and of the approaches to Hughenden Manor, up to the very gateway of the churchyard, would, but for the fact that many ladies in deep mourning and gentlemen with black cloth bands round their hats were walking about, have led you to the conclusion that a fair, or a county race meeting, or a volunteer review, was taking place. Do not let us be greater humbugs than is absolutely necessary, if you please. Everybody regrets that Lord Beaconsfield, at a ripe old age, has paid the debt of nature; but Tuesday afternoon down in Buckinghamshire was delightfully genial and sunny, and, quite naturally, the afternoon became a holiday. The county families, in open carriages, in broughams, and dog-carts or on horseback, came driving or riding into Wycombe. The array of ladies on horseback was prodigious; and it is scarcely, I think, while a lady is arraying herself en Amazone that she thinks about donning sackcloth or placing ashes on her head. The day, I repeat, was delightfully fine; oranges, toys, and photographs of the late Earl were being vended by the roadside; the arrival of Royalty was anxiously expected, and the crowds of people of every degree scattered about seemed to enjoy their outing thoroughly. Two valiant bestriders of bicycles either closely preceded or followed us all the way from the Marble Arch to High Wycombe. They wore crape badges on their left arms, but otherwise did not seem to be overwhelmed with grief. Come; let us see whether we cannot be a little candid and write fewer columns of turgid bombast and "gush," about inextinguishable grief, irreparable losses, and so forth. "No man's loss is irreparable," quoth Napoleon the Great. "No man is necessary. Nor I, nor Cæsar, nor Alexander. The world must go on."

And the world went on at High Wycombe on Tuesday. Serried ranks of unhorsed carriages drawn up before the hotels and in the market-place. The inn yards full of grooms and ostlers, coachmen and whippers-in, all in the liveliest condition. The coffee-rooms crowded with gentlemen from town and gentlemen from the country, clergymen and farmers, regaling themselves heartily with cold roast loin of lamb and cold beef—aye, even with salmon and cucumber. The flowing bowl flowing very copiously indeed. On the doorsteps, cigars and cigarettes cheerfully smoked. "And," quoth a jovial landlord, quite enthusiastically, "now that the Earl 's buried, I hope some gent will start a coach from town to Wycombe. Hughenden will be a sort of pilgrimage-place, specially for Americans. Wouldn't the coach pay!" A candid man, this genial landlord.

But, when I went up to Hughenden Manor, and through the trimly-kept grounds, and so through the house on to the terrace, and gazed on the lovely landscape prospect beyond the lawn, I found another world—a world of hushed quietude and repose. By-and-by there was a great gathering in the library, and on the terrace and the lawn, of notable personages; some of them princes in the land; and among the guests was a certain Ambassador who but a few weeks since I had seen at the Tsar's funeral in his grand diplomatic uniform, with his broad ribbon and star of St. Patrick, and his crimson collar of the Grand Cross of the Bath. Not a star nor a ribbon, not a cross nor a medal, not a military nor civil uniform among all the princes and grandees on Tuesday.

You have read the accounts of the funeral itself, in the most extensive of extenso, in the papers of Wednesday. I am not about to inflict upon you even the most briefly epitomised recluauffé of the published accounts. Only this I will say, that the funeral of the Earl of Beaconsfield owed much of its deeply affecting beauty to the entire absence from the ceremony of the ghastly mummeries of the undertaker. Scarves and cloaks, mutes and "pages," trays of feathers and velvet trappings, were altogether absent. There were no pall-bearers; and, indeed, there was no pall. But, on the other hand, there was around the coffin one of the most sumptuous floral displays that I have ever seen. Lord Beaconsfield was buried in the flowers which he loved so well—a wreath of primroses from the Queen, with a touching inscription in her Majesty's autograph, among them.

Yes; it was, with one exception, the most beautiful and the most touching funeral that I have beheld. And the exception? It was at Rome, many years ago; and the funeral was that of a young American sculptor, much beloved by the members of the English-speaking community in the Eternal City. You know the old Protestant burial-ground at Rome. I have not been there for eleven years; and I hear of a new Protestant cemetery there; but I hope they have left the old God's Acre intact. I can see it now, with the antique wall of Aurelian and the great pyramid of Caius Cestius towering in the distance. And the graves of Shelley and Keats, Wyatt, and Gibson and John Bell? There are few graveyards in the world that appeal so irresistibly to the heart as does that ancient plot of land hard by the Porta San Paolo. Lord Beaconsfield's will, of which the full text has been published, is, like most other things in his life, a marvel. What an Oriental exuberance of language there is revealed under the ostensibly drily legal phraseology of the following clause:—

> Provided always, and I hereby expressly declare it as my wish, although I abstain from attaching any penalty to the non-performance of this direction, that every person who under this my will shall become entitled as tenant for life or as tenant in tail male to the actual possession or to the receipt of the rents and profits of the said premises hereinbefore devised in strict settlement and who shall not then use and bear the surname of Disraeli shall, within one year after he or she shall become so entitled, and also that every person whom any woman so becoming entitled shall marry shall within one year after such woman shall so become entitled or shall marry, whichever of such events shall last happen (unless in the said respective cases any such person shall be prevented by death), take upon himself or herself and use in all deeds and writings which he or she shall sign and upon all occasions the surname of Disraeli only, and not together with his or her own family surname.

Supposing his Lordship had written, "I should wish every person who may in succession inherit my estates to assume, in addition to his own proper name, the name of Disraeli; but such inheritors may do what they please in the matter." Would that have been sufficient? What is the shortest will on record? Is there any testament briefer than the one worded, "Everything to my Brother Tom"?

I have seen the first number of the revival of "'Household Words,' edited by Charles Dickens." The poet's dictum to the contrary notwithstanding, there is often very much, and sometimes virtually everything, in a name; and such a title as "Household Words," and such an editorial cognomen as Charles Dickens, should at once secure for the new journal a very extensive circulation. But a couple of centuries hence the bookworm antiquaries may be disputing as to whether "Hard Times" was published in the second "Household Words," or whether the anonymous story of "Fragoletta" originally appeared in the first "Household Words."

The "new old" periodical is handsomely printed, and abounds even to copiousness with fiction. There are pleasant editorial notes on passing events, and there is the inevitable picture page of the Fashions, and some woodcuts of fancy caps, young ladies' coiffures, butterfly cravats, and Mother Hubbard parasols. Mother Hubbard, it will be remembered, always carried a peach-coloured satin parasol, bordered with old Point lace, whenever

> She went to the Bishop's to buy him some ale,
> And when she came back he was roasting his tail.

The couplet just quoted was added to the original Hubbardian text by Mr. Thackeray. Altogether, what with more woodcuts of ladies' workbags and bassinette covers; articles devoted to housekeeping, family doctoring and household gardening; some puzzles for prizes, and a Corner for Young People, "Household Words the Younger" seems a highly entertaining journal, and might slightly astonish, could it be possible for him to see it, Charles Dickens the Elder.

One of the liveliest and usefullest pages in the revived "H. W." is the page contributed by Miss Mary Hooper on Cookery. This lady has the advantage—very rare among feminine writers on cookery—of possessing considerable practical knowledge of the craft (cookery is neither a science nor an art) about which she writes. The majority of lady scribes on culinary matters are either unblushing plagiarists; or they give you a cookery-book of which about one tenth is devoted to the serious business of cookery, while the remaining nine tenths are padded with recipes for making sweet puddings and biscuits. On fish soups, and on white potato soup Miss Mary Hooper is very eloquent; and with regard to the last-named esculent she tells an amusing story of a Belgian lady who observed to her that in Belgium if they only cooked a potato they would serve the broth as well. Culinary economy has gone even farther than that. My mother used to sing an old West India plantation negro ditty, one of the verses in which ran—

> My massa good man; but my missis she cross O;
> She boil 'um two eggs and she gib me de broth O!

Try egg-shell soup, Miss Mary Hooper.

A valued correspondent, "A. G. S.," writes, referring to the Earthquake of Scio, that "the inhabitants of Chio have a substantial claim on our charity, not alone in virtue of their present unfortunate condition, but because civilisation is indebted to their ancestors for a very important manufacture, mentioned by so old a writer as Pliny—to wit, the production of starch from wheat. "It is no secret," adds my correspondent, "among chemists several eminent specialists are now working upon wheat starch as a possible base for the synthetical production of cane sugar."

A lady correspondent, "C. S. P.," who is the proud and happy mamma of a little boy to whom his papa at his baptism gave the Christian name of Ralph, wishes to know the correct pronunciation of the name in question. In her simplicity, she modestly adds, she pronounced Ralph as it is spelt; but some kind friends declare that she is in error, and that she must pronounce "Ralph" either as "Rarf" or as "Rafe," unless she wishes to be numbered among the Philistines. She prefers, she adds, the manly sound of Ralph to the others, which sound to her weak and un-English.

Well; what is the correct pronunciation of any name, or, for the matter of that, any word in that wonderful English language, which is not entirely my native tongue—in which I do not habitually think; and which, although I have been reading and writing it for a great many years, I shall never be able to speak or write correctly. What is the correct pronunciation of St. John as a secular name? It is fashionable to pronounce it "Sinjin;" but in the list of subscribers to the first edition of Dryden's Virgil the name is spelt "Saintgeon." In that same subscribers' list I find, on different pages, "Lewson Gore" and "Levison Gower." Which is correct? Tell me, my Lord Ronald. It is fashionable to call Mr. Mainwaring "Mr. Mannering;" but do we write Sir Walter Scott's "Guy Mainwaring?" Why "Chumley" for Cholmondely, "Marchbanks" for Majoribanks, "Keys" for Caius, and "Maudlin" for Magdalen? These are mysteries; but pray, is there any profounder mundane mystery than Fashion herself?

The advocates of "Rarf" as against Ralph have, some people may contend, Butler on their side. See "Hudibras," Canto I., verse 457-8:—

> A Squire he had whose name was Ralph,
> That in th' adventure went his half.

And again, Sheridan, in his epitaph on the Baronet's lady's lapdog, wrote—

> Poor Jim!
> Sorry for him.
> I'd rather by half
> It had been Sir Ralph.

But how do we know that in Butler or even Sheridan's time "half" was pronounced in its broadest form as "harf;" in its semi-broad form, with diæresis on the a, haf as in laugh, or, as most Americans pronounce it, "hāaf"? Pope makes "tea" rhyme with "tay;" but it is only very unfashionable people nowadays who speak of "a cup of tay." As for "Rafe," I remember it as a fashionable affectation when I was quite a little boy; such a pronunciation is, I take it, no more defensible than "Hahyet," instead of "Harriet." Georgina or Georgiana is a moot point, I believe.

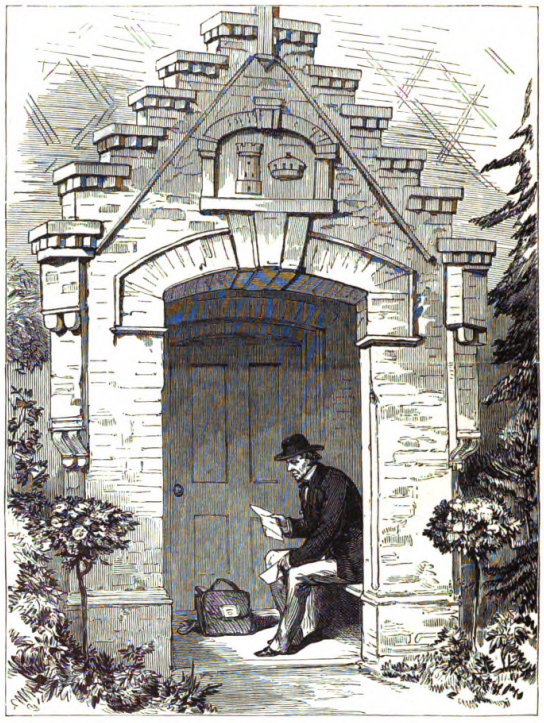
I went to Drury-Lane on Monday night to see the first appearance in London of the justly celebrated American actor Mr. John M'Cullough. The play was Sheridan Knowles's fine old crusted tragedy of "Virginius"—about as wearisome a play as any that I am acquainted with—and the Roman Father was, of course, played by the American tragedian. It was a very clever performance; and, to judge from the demonstrations of the audience, a highly successful one. Mr. M'Cullough was admirably supported by Mr. John Ryder as Dentatus, and by Mrs. Arthur Stirling as Servia; and Miss Lydia Cowell (the inimitable "Bunch") was very pathetic as that most interesting and shockingly treated of schoolgirls, Virginia. I shall have a sufficiency to say about all three, ladies and gentlemen, next week in the "Playhouses;" but this present week, what with the Earl of Beaconsfield's funeral and the Private Views of the Royal Academy and Grosvenor Galleries, I may say "ditto" to the French lady who wrote to a female friend, "Don't come to dinner this week, for I have had to discharge my cook for intemperance; I am having the drawing-room re-carpeted; my daughter has eloped with a Parsee law-student; my husband has broken his leg; I have just received a telegram to state that Aunt Judy is not expected to live; et enfin je ne suis plus sur quel pied danser." Virginius was admirably placed on the stage. That almost "goes without saying" in a theatre which is under the management of Mr. Augustus Harris.

G. A. S.

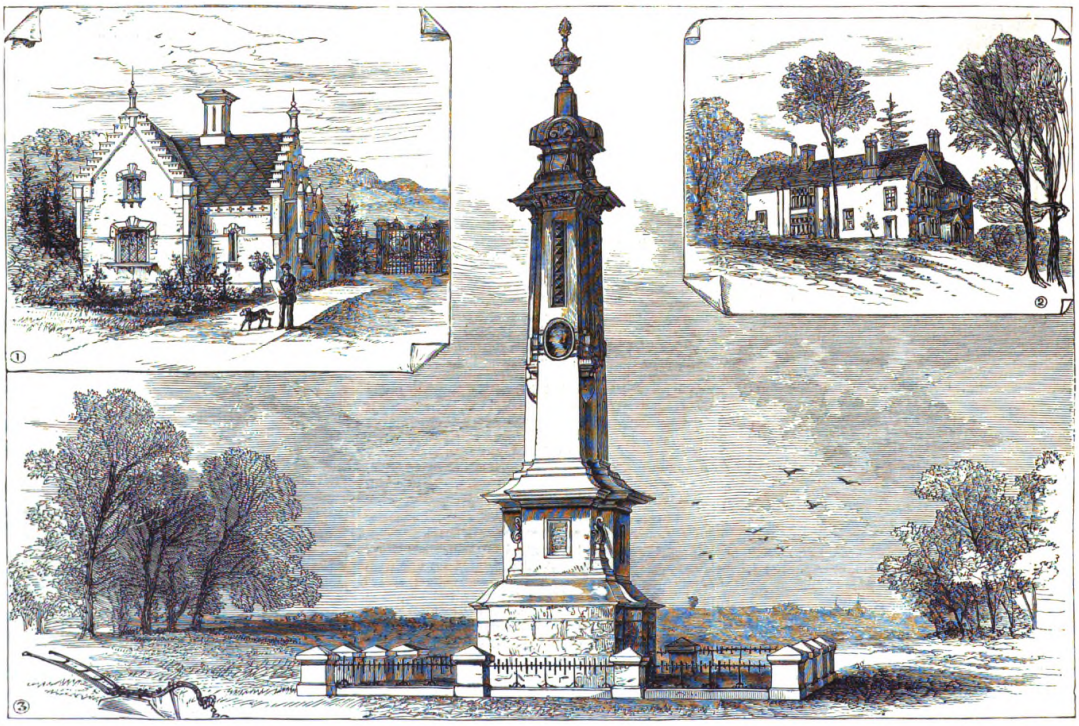
---

Mr. Hugh Shield, M.P., of the North-Eastern Circuit, and Mr. Whitehorne, Mr. W. W. Karslake, Mr. J. Rigby, and Mr. R. Romer, of the Chancery Bar, have been appointed Queen's Counsel.

LORD BEACONSFIELD AT CHURCH.

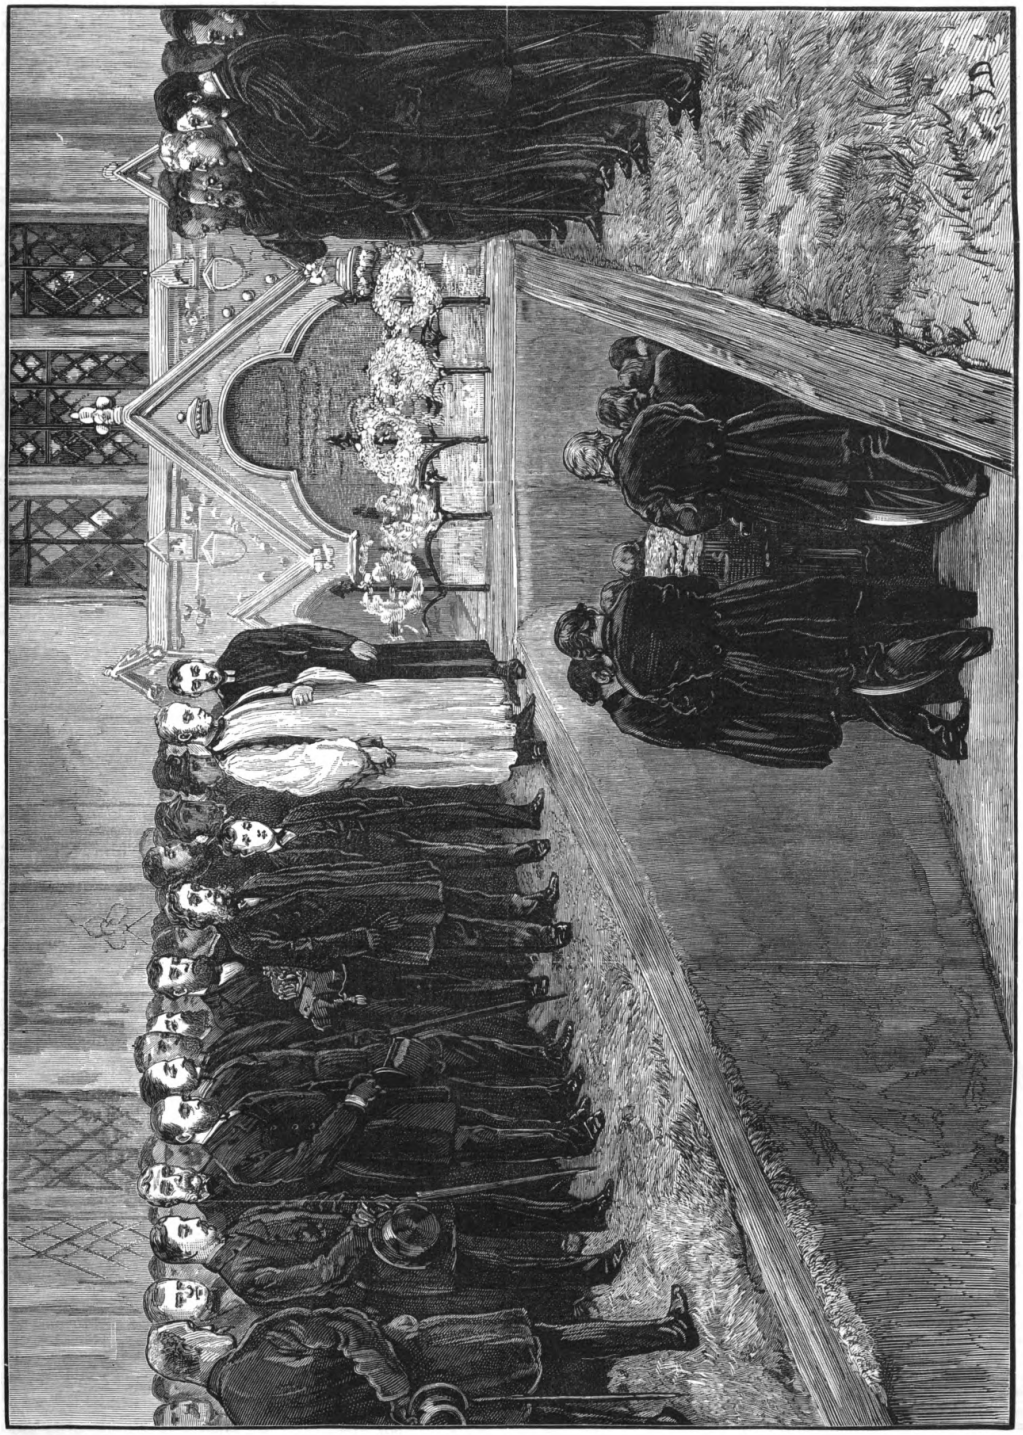


THE PORCH, HUGHENDEN LODGE: LORD BEACONSFIELD READING HIS LETTERS.



1. LODGE GATE, HUGHENDEN. 2. THE VICARAGE, HUGHENDEN.

3. MONUMENT IN HUGHENDEN PARK TO THE MEMORY OF ISAAC DISRAELI AND VISCOUNTESS BEACONSFIELD.



FUNERAL OF LORD BEACONSFIELD AT HUGHENDEN CHURCH, HIGH WYCOMBE.

FUNERAL OF LORD BEACONSFIELD.

The mortal remains of the late Earl of Beaconsfield were interred on Tuesday afternoon in the churchyard of Hughenden, close to his country house, two miles from High Wycombe. It was not till after his marriage that Lord Beaconsfield became by purchase Lord of the Manor of Hughenden, although it is usual to associate his possession of this ancient hereditament in Buckinghamshire with his father's residence at Bradenham, in the same immediate neighbourhood. Isaac D'Israeli, who married during the lifetime of the elder Benjamin Disraeli, his father, lived for many years chiefly in London, but removed to Bradenham House in 1830. The house was then in Chancery, and had been let to various tenants. Hughenden is an adjoining manor, partly in the same hundred of Desborough, and, partly in Aylesbury hundred. It has a distinguished history of its own, which has been illustrated at great pains by the antiquary John Norris, who preceded Lord Beaconsfield in his occupation of the manor-house. Remains of a Roman burying-place were found upon the manorial demesne in 1828. The name "Deadman-Dane's bottom" applied to one of the deep valleys between two clay-covered chalk hills which form the undulating scenery of the neighbourhood, is traditionally said to record a great battle between Saxons and Danes, in which a company of Britons on the march gave their assistance to the Saxon churls and helped them to defeat the invaders. By prescriptive right, for which this legend was perhaps framed to account, the Welsh drovers, on their way with cattle from the principality to the London markets, long claimed to depasture their herds freely on the heath or common land, Wycombe-heath and Penwood, near the valley. The manor is mentioned in Domesday Book, and the tenure as that which Queen Edith had holden before the Conquest, when for all dues (in the Confessor's time) it was rated at £7. In Henry I.'s time the manor, then called Hychenden, was in the hands of Geoffrey de Clinton, King's Chamberlain, and in the same reign was held by Nigel di Albini, from whose family it passed by marriage to the Earls of Arundel (Fitz Alans), and from them, in the time of Henry VI., through Ursula, daughter of Bartholomew Collingridge, heir-general of Arundel, to Geoffrey Dormer, of West Wycombe, in right of whom it became an appanage of the Lords Dormer. Another manor in the parish was owned in the eighteenth century by the last John Hampden, twenty-fourth hereditary lord of Great Hampden, a famous Buckinghamshire name perpetuated by the Trevors, Viscounts Hampden. The interest of the Dormers in Hughenden was confirmed and augmented by a grant from Henry VIII. of the manor and the rectory, described as late parcel of the possessions of the Monastery of Kenilworth. In 1707, on the death of the Earl of Carnarvon, the manor of Hughenden passed with his eldest daughter Elizabeth in marriage to Philip Stanhope, Earl of Chesterfield, a descendant of whom sold it to Charles Savage, merchant of London, who was High Sheriff of Bucks in 1742, from whom it came by inheritance to the first John Norris, nephew of Samuel Savage, brother of Charles, in 1775, and so through Ellen, Countess of Conyngham, niece of the Savages, to the second John Norris, the antiquary.

Hughenden Manor House, which stands at the head of finely-timbered slopes, high above the Wycombe valley, is a modernised edifice, uniformly whitened on all sides, but suggesting, by the forms of its architecture, that some parts of the building may be older than the rest, and that originally the brick and stone work would have presented some variety of colour. It is a square building, with two square wings, which stands on a hill sheltered by well-grown plantations, with younger plantations of firs in the park. Great patches of white anemones, violets, and primroses diversify the terraces in which the grounds descend. Through the park a swift stream races to join the Wye; and in the park itself stands St. Michael's Church, two or three minutes' walk from the house, just outside the walls of which the lord of the manor is now buried. In approaching from High Wycombe, the first conspicuous object which strikes the eye is the obelisk erected on a neighbouring hill by the late Viscountess Beaconsfield to the memory of Isaac Disraeli, her husband's father. An inscription in memory of her now occupies one slab at its base, another slab records the fame of the author of the "Curiosities of Literature," and there are still two sides vacant. This is in a clear space between two woods on the estate called Great and Little Tinkers; another height is crowned by the Millfield-wood. The road to the house goes through the park for some distance up the hill; that to the church enters it about a hundred yards from the sacred building by a lodge kept by an old woodman and his wife pensioned off in this cottage by the late Earl.

The principal front of the mansion, looking to the west away from the town of High Wycombe, is approached by a carriage drive, that sweeps round well-planned plots of landscape gardening. On this side of the house, in front of which the Prince of Wales planted a tree during his two days' visit, last year, is the drawing-room, containing more than one gracious memorial of the Queen. The library side, or east front, of the mansion, with a broad, conservatory-like porch of ironwork and glass, adorned with statuary and shrubs, and with a trailing Wisteria, looks upon a beautiful terrace, with a central flight of steps, descending to the lawn. On the lawn here are the two fir-trees, planted respectively by the Queen and Princess Beatrice, on the occasion of her Majesty's visit to the Earl in December, 1877. Peacocks, for which the park and lawns of Hughenden are famed, strut and scream in this precinct of the domain. From the principal front, on the west, to the terraced side of the house, passing along by the north wing, the path lies through an archway, cut in a screen of box-trees, and trimmed with all the formal precision of Dutch gardening. The glass porch gives entrance to a light and spacious hall, which communicates both with the library and the drawing-room.

The interior of the library is shown in one of our illustrations. A strong personal interest belongs to the library, the room which the Earl of Beaconsfield, when he had finished his morning's work in his study in the upper part of the house, inhabited for the rest of the day; the room in which he knew the place of every volume on the shelves, and could pick out any book he wanted. It is more gaily decorated than libraries often are, with yellow furniture, a Dresden cabinet of china, and a luxurious sofa and easy-chairs, and it opens on a delightful lawn. The library is chiefly rich in historical works, but contains also a good collection of ancient classical and French literature. The French Revue des Deux Mondes was always carefully studied by the late statesman, with the current English reviews and newspapers. Only a portion of the 5000 volumes selected by the late Earl from his father's collection of 25,000 are to be found in this library. The walls are decorated only with two drawings, in Indian ink, of the late Earl's reception at the University of Glasgow, of which he was installed Lord Rector in 1873. They were executed by the wife of one of the Professors, and contain clever portraits of Lord Beaconsfield. Another portrait of the late Earl as a young man, very similar to Maclise's etching of Disraeli the Younger, hangs in the hall just outside, and close to it is the portrait of the Marquis of Salisbury, Lord Beaconsfield's companion at the Congress of Berlin. On the opposite wall hangs the portrait of the late Earl of Stanhope, with an open book in his hand, as befitted the historian and president of the Society of Antiquaries. The hall and staircase are thickly studded with other portraits of the friends of the late statesman—Earl Cairns, the late and the present Earl of Derby, Sir Stafford Northcote, Lord Orford, Napoleon III., George Smyth (Lord Strangford), James Clay, and the first Lord Lytton, whose portrait was presented by his son. Here also are the painted bust of Lady Blessington, a portrait of the present Lady Derby, and one of the late Lord Lyndhurst, by Count D'Orsay, presented to its late owner by the Carlton Club. Count D'Orsay's own portrait hangs in the hall, and at the foot of the stairs is the portrait of Lord Byron, near that of Mr. Montagu Corry, now Lord Rowton. Lord Ossington, Lord Bradford (Lord Chamberlain under the late Administration), and many others are also represented on the walls.

The drawing-room, which is opposite to the library, contains a half-length portrait of her Majesty, a Royal gift to Lord Beaconsfield on his seventieth birthday. A bronze statuette of her Majesty sitting at her spinning-wheel—the implement being a minutely accurate working model—was wont to be displayed in this room, also another of the Queen's gifts, a large volume of Goethe's "Faust," in a cover of oxydised silver, bearing in relief scenes and figures in illustration of the poem. In the panel of the chimney-piece is a portrait of Viscountess Beaconsfield, the oval frame of which is surmounted by her coronet.

There is no village of Hughenden, but there is one row of cottages within the park gates; and the parish comprises hamlets on Nap Hill, and several farm-houses. The church presents just now a somewhat modern appearance, for, with the consent of the late Earl, it was rebuilt, at a cost of about £6000, by Mr. James Scanlight, the father-in-law of the present Vicar. When restored, in 1874, the sacred building was enlarged on the north side, by the removal of its ancient tower, with walls 4 ft. thick. The new belfry is at the north-west corner of the church, and accords fairly with the character of the building, which, however, retains but little of its Norman and Early English origin. There are within the ancient walls and under the modern roof many convincing evidences, however, of the venerable character of the original structure. Here is the stone effigy of the Crusader, Richard de Montfort, son of the famous Baron who may be called the author of the Magna Charta. Here, too, are the hewn, time-worn stone images of warriors of the reigns of Edward III., Henry VI., and some upon whose tombs the inscriptions have been obliterated by relentless Time. The Rev. H. Blagden, the Vicar, believes that the old church was reared at the time of the Conquest. The windows, some with stained glass in them, others plain, are all new. One is a memorial gift to the church. It commemorates a young soldier, Sir William Young, killed in the Crimea. On his death, at the age of twenty-one, the baronetcy reverted to his brother George, a youth of nineteen; and he, too, fell shortly after in the same campaign, and is commemorated in the second division of the window. It is by the hand of the third brother, and present Baronet, Sir Charles Young, that the pious memorial is raised. Their father's tomb is in the churchyard. Our Illustration shows the seat within the choir which was regularly occupied by the late Earl when he was in residence at Hughenden.

The family vault of Lord Beaconsfield, in which his body was laid on Tuesday, is at the east end of the church, and outside the building, in the churchyard. The grassy slope overlying it has been railed off; and built against the church wall there are three red granite slabs, two small ones, and a large one between them. On the central slab is inscribed, in letters of gold, the following:—

"In memory of Mary Ann Disraeli, Viscountess Beaconsfield in her own right, for thirty-three years the wife of the Right Hon. Benjamin Disraeli, Lord of this Manor, Ob. Dec. 15, 1872." On the slab to the right is the following:—

"In memory of James Disraeli, Esq., one of her Majesty's Commissioners of Inland Revenue, and third son of Isaac Disraeli, Esq., of Bradenham, in this county, author of 'Curiosities of Literature,' Ob. Dec. 3, 1863." On the left-hand slab are the words:—

"In memory of Sarah Brydges Willyams, relict of James Brydges Willyams, of Carnanton, in the county of Cornwall, and Colonel of the Royal Cornish Militia. She died at Torquay 11th Nov., 1863, and was buried, at her desire, in this vault."

On Saturday night, at an hour when any popular gathering was impossible, Lord Beaconsfield's body was removed from his London house, 19, Curzon-street, Mayfair, and was conveyed to High Wycombe. Throughout the whole of Saturday a crowd had waited before the house, but by midnight it had gradually dispersed, and then the opportunity was taken. It was a quarter to one o'clock on Sunday morning when a plain hearse, drawn by a single horse, drew up at the door of the deceased Earl's residence, and the coffin it contained was taken within doors. After a short interval, another vehicle, to which a pair of horses were harnessed, arrived at the house, and the coffin, containing the shell, was carried out and placed inside. It was covered with plain black cloth, and bore the brief inscription engraved on the inner shell. A few minutes later the attendants brought out the floral offerings which had lain beside the body, since the Tuesday of his death, and deposited these on the coffin. The hearse drove off to the Paddington terminus of the Great Western Railway, followed by a cab containing Baum, the deceased Earl's confidential servant. The procession went by Park-lane, Edgware-road, and Praed-street to the railway station, where a special train was in waiting. Without delay the hearse was placed on a carriage-truck, and the train left for High Wycombe at twenty-five minutes past two. Only a small knot of people witnessed the removal from Curzon-street, and as the hearse passed along the streets few among the spectators were made aware that it contained the remains of the deceased statesman. At High Wycombe, when the special train arrived, there were at the station two or three representatives of the newspaper press, a few necessary officials of the railway, Mr. Hunt, the undertaker, and not a single inhabitant of Wycombe besides. The funeral horses were soon harnessed to the sombre carriage, which proceeded without loss of time to complete its journey to Hughenden. Lord Rowton and the two executors, Sir Philip Rose and Sir Nathaniel Rothschild, had preceded the coffin and its attendant party, and had reached Wycombe the evening before at about six o'clock. At four o'clock on Sunday morning, the coffin was brought into Hughenden House, and was placed in the large drawing-room or saloon, already described.

At the Sunday morning service in the church, which was attended by Lord Rowton and the two executors above named, there was a full congregation. The Easter decorations, supplied by plants from Lord Beaconsfield's garden, were still unchanged. White hyacinths flowered round the font; green ferns, marguerites, and white cyclamens stood in pots on the window-sills; the altar was flanked by white and rose-coloured blossoms. The texts, in white letters on red ground, affixed to the plain white walls all told the Easter lesson of the immortality of the soul. The Vicar, the Rev. H. Blagden, chose for his sermon a verse which illustrates the same doctrine—"That which thou sowest is not quickened except it die" (I. Corinthians xv. 36). The organ was played by Mrs. Blagden, the Vicar's wife. The Kyrie chosen by her for this occasion was Schubert's No. 2; and the Credo was by Marbeck. Two hymns were sung, which, like the second Lesson, the fifteenth chapter of St. Paul's First Epistle to the Corinthians, bore specially on the event that was in all minds. The first hymn was the 140th, which is founded on the verse of Revelations, "I am he that liveth and was dead; and behold I am alive for evermore." The second was that beginning, "Days and moments, quickly flying, blend the living with the dead."

Preparations for the interment in the churchyard were continued on Monday, and the vault was opened, but without removing the grass above it, or the low cast-iron railing. An inclined plane, about 5 ft. wide, had been cut for a length of 20 ft., till, on reaching the front of the vault, which is on a level with that part of the churchyard, the trench was 8 ft. deep. Two slabs had closed the vault; and, these being removed, the three coffins which have been at different times deposited within could now be seen. That of Viscountess Beaconsfield is on the right hand. The flowers heaped upon it on that rainy day of December, 1872, when she was borne thither with all the simplicity of a village funeral, remained there, withered, but perfectly recognisable, leaf for leaf, and bloom for bloom, as what they were when freshly placed upon the lid. The Right Honourable Mary Anne Disraeli, Viscountess Beaconsfield, in the county of Bucks, a peeress in her own right, having been raised to that honour by her Majesty, in 1868, was the only daughter of Captain John Viney Evans, R.N., of Bramford-Speke, near Exeter, and niece of General Sir James Viney, K.C.B., of Taynton Manor, Gloucestershire. She was married, first, to Mr. Wyndham Lewis, and secondly to his colleague and successor in the representation of Maidstone, the late Earl of Beaconsfield, then, and throughout his wife's life, Mr. Disraeli. On the left-hand of the vault are two coffins, the lower containing the remains of Mrs. Brydges Willyams, for whom the vault was first made. This lady, it is well known, was an ardent admirer of Mr. Disraeli's writings and speeches, and testified her esteem by the bequest to him of all her property, amounting to £40,000. Above reposes the body of Mr. James Disraeli; and the space on the floor of the vault, between these coffins, on the one hand, and Lady Beaconsfield's remains on the other, has now been filled by the coffin of Lord Beaconsfield. The works in the graveyard have been duly carried out, under the directions of Mr. Lewis Broughton, of High Wycombe.

In the meantime, other hands were busy in preparing the interior of the church for the funeral ceremony. Large quantities of choice flowers had been sent from London by a great benefactor of the parish of Hughenden, Mr. Scarisbrick, of Lancaster-gate, father of the Vicar's wife. The Easter decorations, which had faded, were removed to make way for the fresh and rare blooms that had reached the vicarage. Many beautiful wreaths had been brought thither, as well as to the manor-house.

THE FUNERAL CEREMONY.

On Tuesday, between three and four in the afternoon, Lord Beaconsfield's body was solemnly deposited in the vault, after the reading of the burial service in the church, in the presence of a large congregation, which included many illustrious and distinguished persons. Amongst these were their Royal Highnesses the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Connaught, and Prince Leopold; several of the Foreign Ambassadors, including the French, Russian, and German Ambassadors, and Musurus Pasha; the Duke of Richmond, the Marquis of Salisbury, Earl Cairns, Earl Lytton, Sir Stafford Northcote, and other leading members of the last Conservative Ministry; the Duke of Norfolk, the Duke of Somerset, the Duke of Beaufort, the Duke of Portland, the Duke of Marlborough; the Marquis of Exeter, the Marquis of Abergavenny; the Earl of Derby, Earl Stanhope, the Earl of Malmesbury, the Earl of Bradford, the Earl of Dalkeith, Earl Percy, Earl Beauchamp, the Earl of Rosebery, Lord Carrington, and many other peers; the Speaker of the House of Commons; the Marquis of Hartington and Sir William Harcourt, two of the present Cabinet Ministers, with other members of Parliament, Sir Frederick Leighton and Mr. J. E. Millais, of the Royal Academy. The Queen was represented by Prince Leopold, with her Private Secretary, General Sir H. Ponsonby, and Lord Bridport. On behalf of the Duke of Edinburgh, of Prince and Princess Christian, Princess Louise, and the Duke of Cambridge, the funeral was attended by their equerries or other gentlemen of their household. Mr. Gladstone had intended to be present, but was, at the last hour, before the special train started from London, detained by important official business. Earl Granville and the Earl of Carnarvon were prevented, by passing ill health, from attending the funeral.

The Prince of Wales, who had been expected to leave town by the Royal train at 1.20, started earlier in a saloon carriage which was attached to the 12.45 special train. His Royal Highness was attended by the Marquis of Hamilton and Colonel Teesdale. He was accompanied by the Duke of Connaught, upon whom Captain Alfred Egerton was in attendance; and by Prince Leopold, who was attended by Captain Waller; Lord Colville of Culross, representing the Princess of Wales.

At High Wycombe their Royal Highnesses were received by Lord Carrington and Mr. Wheeler, Mayor of Wycombe, and conducted by them and the Hon. Rupert and William Carrington to Wycombe Abbey, where they stayed to luncheon, driving thence the two miles to Hughenden Manor, which was reached soon after three. Meanwhile the Royal special left Paddington at 1.20, conveying the representatives of foreign and English Princes and the greater number of the statesmen and public personages who took part in the ceremony.

When they entered Hughenden Manor House, they found that the coffin had been brought out of the saloon into the corridor, and the white pall in which it had stood from Sunday was removed. Instead of the pall, it was covered with white flowers, roses, camellias, eucharis, gardenias, stephanotis, and great arum lilies, with a few azaleas and white orchids. The Princes first set the example of laying upon the coffin additional offerings of floral beauty.

The Queen had testified her regret and esteem for Lord Beaconsfield by sending a wreath of wild primroses, such as he delighted to see blooming on the grassy banks of Hughenden Park. On a card affixed to this wreath was written, in her Majesty's own handwriting, "His favourite flowers; from Osborne, a tribute of affection and regret from Queen Victoria." The wreath was placed upon the coffin by Prince Leopold on behalf of her Majesty. The flowers had been gathered that morning in the beautiful lawns of Osborne, and the wreath was sent by special messenger. Her Majesty gave also another wreath, but this one of everlasting flowers and bay-leaves. On the ends of the white satin bow with which this wreath was tied were a few words embroidered in gold—on one, "From Queen Victoria," on the other, "A mark of true affection, friendship, and regret." The Prince of Wales placed with his own hands upon the coffin two wreaths of white roses and camellias, saying as he did so, "This is from myself, and this from the Princess of Wales." The Prince of Wales's wreath bore the inscription, "From his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales—a tribute of friendship and affection," and the writing was that of his Royal Highness. The Duke of Connaught laid upon the coffin a wreath from the Duchess of Connaught, on which a few violets showed their scented petals, among white camellias and eucharis. It bore the inscription, "A token of regret and respect from her Royal Highness the Duchess of Connaught." Prince Leopold offered on his own part a wreath bearing the words, "A mark of friendship and respect from Leopold." Also upon the coffin there was laid an immortelle of pure white flowers, inscribed, "A mark of respect from Beatrice." Other wreaths from the Royal family were—one which bore a card on which the words were written, "A mark of esteem from her Royal Highness the Duchess of Cambridge;" a wreath from Prince and Princess Christian, inscribed, "A token of deepest respect, gratitude, and affection from Prince and Princess Christian;" from the Duke and Duchess of Teck, marked, "A last tribute of affection, regret, and admiration from Mary Adelaide." The Baron von Pawel Rammingen attended the funeral, and brought a wreath from his wife, Princess Frederica.

When these floral offerings had been laid on the coffin the funeral procession was formed, to walk from the house, a short distance through the garden and park, to the church. First came the valet Baum, bearing upon a crimson cushion the coronet of the deceased Earl, the Garter and the collar of the Garter shining in gold and enamel, and the jewel of the Order. Next followed the coffin, with its wreaths, upon a bier, wheeled by nine labourers from the estate, directed by the undertaker's men. The chief mourners followed next. They were, first, Mr. Ralph Disraeli, Deputy Clerk of the Parliament, sole surviving brother of the deceased, with Master Coningsby Disraeli, his son, a Charterhouse boy of fourteen years old, upon whom the Manor of Hughenden is entailed by the late Earl's will. Lord Rowton, the literary trustee of Lord Beaconsfield; and Lord Barrington, his faithful companion during the last illness and his colleague in office, came next, preceding Sir Nathaniel Meyer de Rothschild, M.P., and Sir Philip Rose, his executors.

After the chief mourners, came the Princes of the Royal family. The Prince of Wales had on his right the Duke of Connaught and on his left was Prince Leopold. They were immediately succeeded by Sir Henry Ponsonby and Lord Bridport, of her Majesty's household. Next came Colonel the Hon. W. J. Colville, representing the Duke of Edinburgh; Captain the Hon. C. G. C. Eliot, Captain Collins, Colonel Tyrwhitt, Lord Colville of Culross, Lord Hamilton, Colonel Teesdale, Captain the Hon. Alfred Egerton, and Captain Waller, who completed that part of the procession which started from the north or front of the house. From the south terrace, passing under the arch of closely set foliage at the side of the mansion, came the large assembly of noblemen and gentlemen, headed by Musurus Pasha, conspicuous in his fez, who walked side by side with Count Münster, the Ambassador of Germany. A number of the Hughenden tenantry, and most of the deceased's servants also took part in the procession.

When the hedge which flanks a part of the garden had been passed, the way was bordered by the Buckinghamshire Volunteers in dark green uniform. Behind them stood, on the sloping sides of the path, several rows of spectators all bareheaded, as those who walked in the procession were. Men and boys had clambered into the trees on each side to see over the rest of the people. The procession passed in silence into the churchyard, where many residents in the neighbourhood were collected. Here the Wycombe Volunteer Fire Brigade kept the ground, though little was needed to restrain the throng, which was orderly and reverent.

The procession entered the church, where, on the north side of the chancel, where the late Earl by right as the lord of the manor used to sit, the chief mourners sat, but leaving his place vacant. Nearest the congregation were Mr. Ralph Disraeli and his son; opposite were the Princes of the Royal Family. On the vacant seat of the late Earl was laid a wreath of gardenias and maidenhair fern, and a cross, formed of the eucharis, leant against the back of the seat. Beneath the ground glass of the main east window the gold cross of the altar gleamed, having on each side of it a row of glass vases with a single eucharis in each, and above them white medallions formed of eucharis and lilies of the valley, inclosing crosses of gardenias, stephanotis, and camellias. A violet altar-cloth replaced in part the crimson and elaborately worked cloth which adorns the little church; but some of the decoration of the brighter cloth was allowed to be visible at the sides. The chancel was in gloom, but the sun threw coloured lights upon the seats of the Ambassadors through the stained glass of the first south window. The low rails of the screen were adorned with flowers and ferns.

In the middle of the chancel the coffin, covered with its snow-white blooms, rested on its bier. The two churchwardens, holding staves in their hands, stood motionless at the screen as the service proceeded; and the church was chiefly filled by those who had followed in the procession. At the west end were a few ladies seated near the font, which was thickly set out with white hyacinths, lilies of the valley, French fern, and green maidenhair.

The organ, played by Mrs. Blagden, softly gave Beethoven's Funeral March of a Hero as the coffin was borne up the centre of the church. The Rev. H. Blagden, the Vicar, read the order for the burial of the dead, and when he ended the first part with the solemn words, "Our labour is not in vain in the Lord," the music of "O rest in the Lord!" rose slowly in sounds of gradually augmenting volume while the bearers raised the coffin and bore it into the open air.

The bier was now placed in the churchyard, opposite the entrance to the vault. The turf above the vault was entirely covered with white wreaths and crosses, at the head one sent by the Junior Carlton Club, with the words, "Respectful memory from the Junior Carlton Club." Another cross had attached to it the motto, now in a new sense applicable to the life of the statesman who has found repose, "Peace with honour." The bier being wheeled down the inclined plane, Mr. Blagden uttered the final sentences, and the body of Lord Beaconsfield was laid side by side with that of his wife. The Prince of Wales, the Duke of Connaught, and Prince Leopold had stood by the side of the open grave while the concluding portion of the ceremony was being performed. They now advanced down the steps to the opening of the vault and stood a little while gazing into it. After they had turned away, many others took a last view of the coffin. The Queen's wreath having been brought out the vault was closed, and the process of filling again with earth the trench which had given access to it was commenced.

A solid silver casket, weighing about two pounds and a half, and long in the possession of the Disraeli family, was placed in the coffin. It contains a likeness (coloured) of the late Earl. The casket was sent to Sheffield in order that it might be soldered and then covered with a strong plate of nickel silver. The latter preserves the silver and renders it practically indestructible. The casket is devoid of ornament. On the lid is the following inscription:—"This casket contains a recent likeness of the late Right Hon. Earl of Beaconsfield. April, 1881." The casket is placed between the inner and outer shells of the coffin.

The company then returned to the house. In the saloon where the coffin had been placed the Prince of Wales and his Royal brothers, and the chief mourners, including the executors, with a few others, assembled to hear the will read. Mr. P. F. Rose, the solicitor of the late Earl, gave a summary of its provisions.

Their Royal Highnesses were conducted through the principal apartments by Lord Rowton, and saw many interesting memorials, including the gallery of portraits. They drove away to catch the 5.30 special train, accompanied by all the mourners, and leaving no one but servants in Hughenden Manor.

LORD BEACONSFIELD'S WILL.

In this will, which is dated Dec. 16, 1878, the late Ear bequeaths all his personal estate, including the copyright of his works, to his executors upon trust that they shall convert it into money, and, after the payment of his debts and funeral expenses, apply the residue in the manner subsequently directed. The Manor of Hughenden, with the mansion-house, grounds, and appurtenances, the advowson of the church, and all his landed property in the county of Bucks, are bequeathed to Coningsby Ralph Disraeli, son of Mr. Ralph Disraeli: after Coningsby's decease, to his sons; with remainder to the other sons of Mr. Ralph Disraeli, who may be hereafter born; and failing them, successively to the three daughters, Dorothy, Sybil Isabella, and Marguerite Katherine, of his brother Ralph, and their children. Whoever becomes possessed of Hughenden under this will shall take the name of Disraeli only. The trees on the estates are not to be cut down. The mansion and estate may be let during the minority of the heir, which extends to the age of twenty-six years, and the rents applied for the permanent improvement of the property. If they grant leases the trustees are to reserve "the best yearly rent that can reasonably be gotten without taking any premium." The trustees may sell any portion of the estate, except Hughenden Manor and its grounds, and with the proceeds purchase other freehold or copyhold hereditaments, or discharge any mortgages. A discretion is given them to make a selection from the contents of Hughenden House of articles to be held as heirlooms. The bequest of the papers of the late Earl to Lord Rowton is in the following terms:—

"I give and bequeath to my friend and private secretary, Montagu Corry, Esq., all the letters, papers, and documents, whether of a private or of a public character, and whether in print or in manuscript; and also the manuscript of any writings published or composed by me of which I shall die possessed; and also all the manuscripts and papers of my late father, Isaac Disraeli, Esq., upon the trusts hereinafter declared concerning the same. I hereby request the said Montagu Corry, with all convenient speed after my death, to collect, or aid in collecting, the said documents; and I hereby, relying on the discretion of the said Montagu Corry, do authorise and request him to destroy any of the said documents, or any part thereof, as he in the absolute exercise of such discretion shall think ought to be destroyed. I give to the said Montagu Corry full discretion with regard to the publication of all or any of such documents, leaving to him to decide as to the time and mode of publication. And as many of the said documents are connected with my official and public life, and contain matters bearing on the character and conduct of contemporary statesmen, and on affairs which it may be of importance to the public interest should not be prematurely or indiscreetly disclosed, I give the above discretion to the said Montagu Corry, in the full assurance that he will scrupulously respect every confidence reposed in me, and will cause or allow nothing to be published calculated to do injury to the public service, or to inflict needless pain on the living or on the families of the dead. And I especially and expressly desire and direct that no portion of my correspondence with her Majesty Queen Victoria shall be published or made known until the said Montagu Corry shall have ascertained and shall have satisfied himself that no objection is entertained to such use of the said correspondence on the part of her Majesty herself during her life, or after her death on the part of those who may, in the belief of the said Montagu Corry, be likely to be conversant with her wishes and opinions on the subject."

---

Our Illustrations this week comprise one of the back drawing-room of Lord Beaconsfield's town-house, No. 19, Curzon-street, the room in which he died, and where he had been accustomed to transact private business; and several views at Hughenden, the Manor-house, the Church, and the Vicarage; and the Monument erected by Lady Beaconsfield to the memory of Isaac Disraeli. The interior of the Library at Hughenden, with Lord Beaconsfield sitting there, a letter in his hand, in an attitude of meditation, is the subject of our larger Engraving. He was in the habit also of walking to the the Lodge at the Park Gate to meet the servant who brought his bag of letters from the post, when Lord Beaconsfield would often sit down in the porch to open his letters, as shown in one of our Illustrations. Another represents him, with Lord Rowton, occupying his own seat in the church of Hughenden.

---

The Polytechnic Institution is not to be closed, as has been suggested. A new board of directors has been formed, and Mr. S. Morley, M.P., is to be the chairman. There are to be Saturday afternoon readings; and Mrs. Stirling, Miss Glynn, and others have been engaged.

At a meeting of the South Wales Institute, held at Cardiff on the 21st inst., a paper on the Ironstone of South Wales was discussed, and the meeting came to the conclusion that the native ironstone of Wales was practically a thing of the past, and that foreign hematic iron ores rendered the present and future use of the ore impossible.

The question of compensation to agricultural tenants was discussed at a crowded meeting of the members of the Devonshire Club, held at Exeter yesterday week, and presided over by Sir John Kennaway, M.P. The speakers included Sir Thomas Acland, who explained the bill he introduced into the House of Commons for securing compensation to agricultural tenants. It was generally admitted that legislation on the lines of the measure would be most desirable in the interests of all concerned.——Lord Brabourne stated at a meeting of the Farmers' Alliance at Canterbury last Saturday that he meant to become a member of that body. He sympathised with most of its objects, but advised that great caution was necessary to steer its way correctly. He held that certain burdens should be removed from the land, seeing that they were imposed when the farmers were specially favoured by the Legislature, and that now they were no longer specially favoured.

PARISIAN SAYINGS AND DOINGS.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Paris, Tuesday, April 26.

About Tunis and the Bey and Tabarka you probably know more in London than we do here. The French journals have made a great fuss about the correspondents that they have sent to the seat of war, and one of the provincial journals announces that it has secured the invaluable services of a Kroumir chief, a former friend of the editor in his roving days. Generally I have observed that a French war correspondent's despatches contain, first of all, an announcement that the news previously sent by other correspondents is all false, then an announcement that he has been admitted to the officers' mess, and is on the best terms with the big-wigs and the commander-in-chief. The correspondent concludes by promising to send full details of everything the following day, signs his name and "fizzles out," never to be heard of again. Under such conditions it is not easy to obtain news. Besides, the staff of the French army has compelled the newspaper correspondents to sign a declaration that they will not transmit any information to their journals without submitting it to the commander of the expedition, under penalty of court-martial. The only thing left for the Parisians to do is to make fun of General Farre. Meanwhile, it appears that operations have begun in earnest on the Tunisian frontier. Yesterday the French ironclad Surveillante bombarded and destroyed the Tunisian fort on the island of Tabarka. The French troops occupied the island this morning.

For the moment the Parisians have turned their attention from Tunis, the abuses of the War Office, and questions such as that of the nature of patriotism, which have of late been much discussed, to other and lighter topics. Last night the notabilities of politics and literature were summoned to the Théâtre Français to hear the first performance of a new prose comedy, in three acts, by M. Ed. Pailleron, entitled "Le Monde où l'on s'ennuie." As regards plot and situations, this comedy is not of transcendent merit, but it is very witty both in conception and dialogue. It is a stinging satire on the manners of the day; and, above all, many of the characters can be readily identified with living models, a fact which always helps the success—at least, the ephemeral success, of a book or a play, thanks to the omnipotence of gossip and papotages. The section of society where boredom and ennui flourish in all their forms is the salon of Philaminte, Countess de Céran. In her salon the savant Saint-Rémult discourses upon the Vedas, poets read their five-act tragedies, and the incomparable Trissotin-Bellac, the ladies' philosopher, the darling of the fair sex, holds forth to an admiring audience on the transcendent theory of pure love. It is terribly tiresome, but nevertheless the Countess de Céran keeps the key of the Academy and smooths the way for aspiring diplomatists and ambitious sub-prefects. In real life, I need hardly say, the Countess de Céran is called Madame Edmond Adam, and in Trissotin-Bellac it requires no great sorcerer to see that the eclectic philosopher, M. Caro. I will not push indiscretion further.

M. Pailleron has presented us with a nineteenth century edition of Molière's "Femmes Savantes." On the first night the piece was received with enthusiasm, and it promises to be a complete success.

The Princess de Sagan, whom the Prince of Wales never fails to visit when he comes to Paris, gave a dinner and a grand fête on Sunday last for the first time this season. The Princess has been in a bad state of health all the winter, and her hôtel, one of the last houses of the high aristocracy that has retained its former splendour, has been closed. Amongst the guests last Sunday were Lord and Lady Lytton.

On Thursday last M. Gambetta made a speech at the Trocadéro at the closing sitting of the Educational League, an organisation founded by M. Jean Macé, for the diffusion of unsectarian and non-political instruction. M. Gambetta highly eulogised the League, and spoke hopefully of the prospects of the Republic, which would obtain its full development only by the enlightment of the nation. The great necessity for France was more schools. The education to be dispensed ought, said M. Gambetta, to be entirely secular and subject to the influence of no dogma. This purely positive and scientific education was to be supplemented by moral teaching, which could be best imparted by women.

The annual session of the Councils General opened throughout France to-day. It is expected that a great number of them will before closing give their opinion on the scrutin de liste.

M. Léon Say and the chief engineer of the Northern of France Railway Company inspected the works connected with the Channel Tunnel at Calais on Sunday, and expressed their satisfaction at the progress made in the undertaking.

At an election on Sunday at Bar-sur-Seine, in the department of the Aube, M. Dayen, a Republican, was elected deputy by 7403 votes against 5380 polled by the candidate of the Right.

During the week, indeed, a certain amount of attention has been given to educational questions, owing to the annual meeting of the pedagogic congress at the Sorbonne. This congress is composed of delegates elected by all the primary schoolmasters, two for each department. In addressing the schoolmasters, M. Jules Ferry spoke in the same strain as M. Gambetta. The State, he said, wished the schoolmaster and the priest to live in peace and to respect each other's frontiers. The schoolmaster ought to observe neutrality in politics as in religion. The congress unanimously voted a resolution hoping that the law on compulsory and secular education would be voted.

I call the attention of English bibliophiles to the splendid works that are now being issued by the printer and publisher A. Quantin. I have before me the first two parts of a new quarto edition of "L'Art du Dix-Huitième Siècle," by Ed. and Jules de Goncourt, illustrated with heliographic plates. The paper, the illustrations, the typography, the disposition of the page and margins, and the general artistic "get up" of the work are, as in all Quantins's books, admirable. I may also mention the appearance of the fifth volume of the "Chansonnier Historique" (Paris. A. Quantin), a beautiful book, indispensable to the lovers and students of the eighteenth century.

We are still waiting patiently for the approach of summer. During the past fortnight the weather has been cold and windy. This afternoon a few claps of thunder have been heard, and while I am writing a violent hailstorm is raging outside. This state of affairs is becoming serious, for it is the habit of the Parisians to begin to live in the open air before the end of April. T. C.

---

A crowded assemblage of Italians resident in London met at the Holborn Townhall on Monday for the second annual distribution of prizes to the Italian evening and Sunday school of St. Peter's, Hatton-garden. On the platform were Chevalier Catalani, secretary of the Italian Embassy, and the members of the committee.

LORD BEACONSFIELD IN HIS

LIBRARY AT HUGHENDEN.

ROYAL ACADEMY EXHIBITION.

An inspection of the contents of the first three rooms at Burlington House give promise of an exceptionally good exhibition this year. Successive hanging committees—acting upon the principle that first impressions are deepest—have always placed a large proportion of the best works of the year in these first rooms, but this time the disparity seems greater than ever. The sanguine expectations at first raised are, therefore, rather rudely disappointed by the succeeding part of the gathering. The remainder of the exhibition, though containing here and there very notable works, and hung with more regard to relative merit than we sometimes see, landscape art having its due share of consideration—thanks, we conclude, to the accession at length of a landscape-painter par excellence (Mr. Vicat Cole) to the full honours, and therefore to active powers—yet strikes us as discordant and unsatisfactory. Various reactionary influences seem to be in operation on English art. Certain recent fashions in art have, like fashions in other things, had their day. Even the over-wrought weaklings, and the morbidly vain who have lately attracted attention, appear to have been laughed out of their "æsthetic crazes" and affected conceit—to probably become subject to some other forms of mental aberration. At the moment, too, there is, if we except Mr. Millais in portraiture, not a single British painter leading the way with any considerable following—though the public taste is probably turning once more towards the renaissance and the classical. Thus we are brought almost to a stand-still—temporary only, let us hope. The current has ebbed out, and till the return of the tide we shall make little progress, if not run aground. This is the explanation—at all events it is the only one we can offer—for, taken as a whole, a disappointing Academy Exhibition: such being the general impression of it, and our own.

It is only by courtesy, or for convenience, that the pictures now at Burlington House can be called the productions of a school. They are a heterogeneous assemblage of works by men more or less self-taught, working almost alone and unaided. No man attains a higher level from another's shoulders; there is little or no progress because everyone diverges into his own bypath; there is no impulsion forward, because there is no mass to give the momentum in a given direction. And this state of things must remain till at least the foreign custom for eminent artists to open their studios to a number of pupils be introduced. The variety (on a low level) we gain, or are supposed to gain, by our solitary system, and the preservation of the artists' personality, supply no sufficient compensation for the want of a higher collective result. The history of every school proves that no great development of art ever took place under the conditions that now obtain in England. It is every year more evident that we must not look to the Royal Academy to take the initiative in a better direction, or even to so far sacrifice its vested interests as to furnish a fair field for outside rivals. Where space is notoriously and confessedly insufficient to represent the general body of British artists, the Academicians and Associates still maintain the right of each to eight of the best places, and this though they can only hang a few hundred out of the thousands of pictures annually offered. The number of paintings at the French Salon are this year greatly reduced; yet they must still be in the Champs Elysées as three or four to one with us, notwithstanding that the painters, hors concours, and the greatest artists of France are only allowed two works each. Experience proves that a committee of selection and hanging, composed of artists alone (it matters little who they are), is a narrow, prejudiced, fallible tribunal; hence it happens that where, from insufficiency of space, only one out of about eight works offered can be accepted and hung, a very large number of works, and many of them equal to most of those admitted, indeed, not unfrequently superior to the productions of some of the judges themselves, are excluded. We hear, as usual, of numerous hard cases of the rejection of works by artists in their prime, who have had prominent places at Burlington House for years. We are told of the rejection of a single admirable picture by an artist of whom the Academy itself recently bought an exhibited work from the Chantry fund! But this is not more self-stultifying than the case related of a former hanging committee having to send into the cellars for the rejected works of a newly-elected Associate whose contributions had by accident been confounded with those of the common herd. Where and when we are to look for reform in the national administration of art matters it is hard to say. It is time, however, to address ourselves to the immediate duty of noticing the principal works in the present display.

Mr. Millais, then, again takes—in virtue of a painter power at once strong and subtle, and that we must go back to the old masters to parallel—the foremost place. To all his contributions this year he has given unwonted care and completeness; the splendid audacity of his execution in some recent works—"strong meat for babes"—no longer presents, with its summary indications, a stumbling block to untrained eyes. Nothing more exquisite has left that cunning hand than the little "Cinderella" (270), seated by her kitchen hearth, the bellows by her side, turning her sweet, engaging, still childlike face towards us, as she holds a besom in one hand and a peacock's feather in the other, that seems, while mocking the ashen and black hues about her, to furnish a contrasting emblem of her own future splendour—a picture painted for this Journal, and to be reproduced for a Christmas Number. Then the artist's portraits are all alike masterpieces of characterisation and consummate painting—whether the noble full-length of Lord Wimbourne, in the Lecture-Room (972); or the smaller portrait of Dr. Caird (262), standing, with something of Scotch rigidity, in his robes as Vice-Chancellor of the University of Glasgow; or the genial-looking Sir John Astley, cigar in hand (107); or the benevolent and mild Bishop of Manchester (1366); or handsome young Captain James, of the Scots Greys (who married a daughter of the artist). Still greater interest, however, attaches to the half-length of Lord Beaconsfield, which—left uncompleted at the statesman's death, has been "finished" and sent here by command of her Majesty—is hung on a screen in the Great Room, with a rail before it. Though the final sittings promised to "Apelles" were, alas! never to be given, in the three actually secured the painter obtained a likeness, which, allowing for the fewness of sittings and the peculiar difficulties presented by the physiognomy of the deceased, is most interesting and valuable (though, it must be admitted, less successful than those of Gladstone and Bright); the evidences of suffering in the pallid face and of an exhausted physique are, moreover, touchingly pathetic. The difficulty of the subject may be estimated by a glance at another portrait of Lord Beaconsfield (235) which hangs within eyeshot, comparatively speaking a decided failure (the head being too narrow, the colouring almost morbid), albeit by an able Belgian painter, Van Havermaet.

Mr. Watts's portraits are, we need hardly say, noble and dignified in treatment, if sacrificing some of the freshness of natural colouring for the sake, it would seem, of obtaining the grave tone of the old masters. The seated half-length of Sir Frederick Leighton (484), in his official robes, is the most important; and artistic appreciation is displayed by the selection of the effectively accented profile of the President for presentment. But excellent, also, are the portraits of Matthew Arnold (156), Mr. S. Pepys Cockerell, and Mr. C. A. Ionides (279). There are, likewise, able and faithful portrait-pieces by Messrs. Ouless, Holl, Wirgman, Collier, Sant, H. Gibbs, W. R. Symonds, and others. But these we shall notice on a future occasion.

The President himself is represented in his most manly acceptable manner in a picture (49) of "Elisha raising the Son of the Shunamite" (49). The bronzed face of the Prophet furnishes a fine pictorial contrast to the deathly pallor of the child; the colouring is appropriately sober, the execution simple and broad. Sir Frederick's more peculiar style reappears in "Idyll" (197) and "Whispers" (585). The first is a large picture of a swain seated, his nude back towards us, playing to two maidens, in pseudo-classic draperies, who listen recumbent in drowsy languor under a tree branch, and form an exquisite though quite conventional mass of colour. The landscape is a nondescript no-man's land of winding river, bay, and distant hills. The second presents a couple of lovers, similarly classic in type and generic in character of drapery, the man whispering with a kind of flaccid passion in the willing ear of the girl as, enamoured, she lowers her eyelids. The group, enveloped in a delicious shadow tone, is foiled by a golden glory of evening sky. The President has never done anything finer within its intention than this. But we feel constrained to ask before these pictures, despite the charm of their classic fancy and rare skill—does not the sense of beauty and grace here become too arbitrarily paramount; does not ideality pass into artificiality; is not this waxen smoothness, and are not these lovely unbroken tones of colour too far removed from nature to furnish a quite wholesome guide to students who would, as did the Greek, reach the ideal without misinterpreting the real? No, it may be said, if these works are judged simply as art-exercitations; but yes, surely, if we find the same treatment applied to the representation of nature, and especially if a portrait representation—as in the half-length from the same accomplished hand of Mrs. Stephen Ralli (412). For, these evanescent glazes of ultramarine, and lake, and faint yellow are like no living complexion. Unfortunately, the artist has not adopted his more robust manner in the portrait of himself (119), painted for the collection of portraits of artists by themselves in the Uffizzi, Florence. That the president's head admitted of a more masculine rendering is evident from Mr. Watts's portrait of him already mentioned—the two works affording a singular contrast to each other.

Mr. Alma Tadema was never more felicitous than in his single contribution, "Sappho" (269). The poet Alceus is shown reciting one of the odes that derive their name from him to the accompaniment of his lute. Sappho, seated fronting him, with a wreath of bays lying on a bronze table before her, and attended by other maidens disposed on the grades of a marble exhedra, listens with passionate admiration to his chanted measures. Beyond, through interspaces of olives, is seen the deep blue Ægean, and sunlight, marvellously rendered, irradiates the scene. The artist's imagination transports us at once to ancient Greece, its poetic life and glorious sunshine; nor are there any unnecessary or obtrusive accessories to disturb the illusion.

In a large picture, "Diana or Christ" (97), Mr. Long once more shows his dramatic conception, and power of re-animating the distant Past. The scene is the precincts of the great temple of Diana at Ephesus. Before the altar of the goddess of many mammæ (doubtless of Indian, not Greek, origin), whose silver effigy surmounts the altar, and before a judge ready to confirm, and guards waiting to execute, sentence, stands a Christian maiden, condemned to martyrdom in the arena of the neighbouring amphitheatre (it being assumed that the Ephesian stadium served as such), the eager spectators of which are seen through the centre of the picture, crowding the vast ovoid tiers of seats. But a final opportunity for abjuring her faith by—in token thereof—sprinkling incense on the altar is afforded her, and love adds its persuasion to fear, for by her side stands imploringly her Pagan lover. It would be hard to imagine a more sensational situation, with more pictorially effective surroundings, and if the execution were quite equal to the conception, composition, and archæology, this would be a very great work. But so much can hardly in truth be said; more of artistic "quality," may be fairly desiderated; some passages are obviously faulty or slurred; the pretty heroine is slightly theatrical, the vestals may all have been painted from one model. After all deductions, however, this is one of the most remarkable pictures of the year. Mr. Long has, of course, consulted Mr. Wood's account of his discoveries at Ephesus—as appears, for a single instance, in the introduction of sculptured reliefs as drums to the lower part of the shafts of the columns—a questionable embellishment, derived from exuberant Oriental taste, not elsewhere found in classic remains.

For the first time a decorative element appears prominently in the Exhibition. A brilliant decorative work by Mr. Calderon occupies the post of honour in the Great Room; near it is a noble picture of St. George, the Princess, and the wounded dragon, by Sir John Gilbert, which should fill a panel in some national edifice. Mr. Armitage shows an elaborate scheme of mural embellishment illustrative of "Christian Charity," suitable for ecclesiastical decoration; Mr. Storey has a charming design for an "Ivory Door," with painted panels and medallions illustrating music: the "Idyll," and "Whispers" of the President himself are strictly decorative; and if acknowledged as such would be irreproachable. It is at length understood that art should be emancipated from the regulation exhibition gilt frame—should have some relation to its surroundings—should, indeed, be made part of the house and all its belongings, as it was of yore. And we trust that the Decorative Art Exhibition to open next month in the new galleries in Bond-street will aid in the good work.

The picture just mentioned, by Mr. Calderon, called "Flowers of the Earth" (161), is to form part of the decoration of a dining-room, and will have as supporters, so to say, the effective single figures illustrating "The Vine" and "The Olive," already exhibited. This equally appropriate central composition represents the preparations for an al fresco banquet; the table, in course of being spread by maidens, is seen above a balustraded terrace, and through marble columns—the motive of the composition recalling the decorative works of Paul Veronese. In the immediate foreground other girls, with baskets of roses, are arranging additional bouquets for the feast, one of them staying, however, to playfully place a wreath of the flowers on her brow. The bevy of charming damsels, the floral wealth, the stately architecture, the blue sky over all, form a gay, riant, splendid ensemble.

---

The prize for the best poem on Calderon, offered by the Spanish Government, has been adjudged to Dr. Edmond Dorer, of Zurich.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

The Newmarket Craven Meeting was more remarkable for miserable weather and for the success of favourite after favourite than for the quality of the sport, which had very little bearing upon future events. It required a good deal of pluck to lay odds upon Tunis for the Newmarket Biennial, the race in which Robert the Devil was beaten last year, sharing the fate of many another crack before him. On this occasion, however, the opposition was very weak, and Mr. Rothschild's colt, who is rather a commoner in appearance, but was trained to the hour, won easily from the uncertain Montrose, Great Carle, and four others. It is generally understood that Tunis is decidedly inferior to his stable-companion Brag, and, in any case, we feel sure that he need not be thought of in connection with any of the classic races. The Craven Stakes brought out a larger field than the Biennial, and was fought out between Cameliard and Golden Plover, the former winning a severe struggle by half a length. We saw very little of the wonderful improvement that was reported to have taken place in Golden Plover, who ran much in his last year's form, and would certainly have succumbed to Lemnoxlove, Lord Falmouth's second string, had they met again upon even terms. Monarch, of whom great things were also expected, ran very badly in this race, and again in a minor affair upon the last day; and though Cameliard, who is a son of Cremorne and Lynette, and had never run previously, has been backed at a comparatively short price for the Two Thousand Guineas, we do not fancy him at all. Turning to the two-year-olds, Corky was very lucky to beat Myra, with whom it was generally considered that Cannon waited too long; but, as the filly was decidedly above herself, it is probable that he had received orders to ride her as tenderly as possible. The crack juvenile of the week was undoubtedly Whitechapel, a slashing son of Cremorne and White Lady, who made a successful début in the Double Trial Plate; Bulbul and eleven others were behind him, and, as he is susceptible of considerable improvement, and won very easily indeed, though only by a neck, he is likely to bring a little luck to Mr. Savile's terribly unfortunate colours. Isabel, the first of the Plebeians that has won a race, ran in something like the form that she has always exhibited in private; still, victory in a Maiden Plate was little compensation for her defeats in the Brocklesby and Althorp Park Stakes. Perhaps the most interesting event of the four days was the reappearance of Robert the Devil. The great horse has thickened and improved wonderfully during the recess, and, though not half fit yet, made Muriel and Dr. Tanner very tired long before they had galloped the whole of the severe D. I. course. "Robert" will doubtless be cherry ripe at Ascot, and, now that Isonomy has retired, what is there to oppose him for the cups? The crack jockeys, as usual, had a rare time at Newmarket, especially on the Thursday, when Cannon and Fordham won seven out of the eight races, leaving one for Archer.

Heavy hailstorms, agreeably varied by thunder and lightning, were the chief weather characteristics of the first day at Epsom, when the attendance was remarkably small for such an essentially popular meeting. Nimble, by Blair Athol or Prince Charlie—Miss Foote, fully justified her private reputation by running away from the Zara colt and four others in a Maiden Plate; and then a very large field turned out for the Great Surrey Handicap. Veto (7 st.) cut up badly, but Hackthorpe (9 st. 7 lb.), in spite of his welter weight, ran very prominently until reaching the distance, when Eastern Empress (6 st. 10 lb.) came out full of running, and won in a canter. Schoolboy (6 st. 10 lb.) was made favourite for the Great Metropolitan Stakes, in which he once more ran a slow, muddling horse, and the head victory of Brown Bess (6 st. 7 lb.), who has previously shown herself partial to this course, gave the bookmakers a much-needed turn. Apollo (7 st. 11 lb.) made such a bold bid for victory that the City and Suburban claims of Ambassadress were considerably enhanced, and Mistake (7 st. 12 lb.), a very consistent performer, also ran well. Victor Chief at last lost his maidenhood, but he has performed so miserably this season that no one could fancy him, and Jubilee went so short in her preliminary canter for the Westminster Stakes, that many of her intending backers supported Corky instead. We believe that Mr. Craven's youngster is superior to Convert and Scotch Whiskey, and, galloping freely enough in the race, she won pretty easily.

The City and Suburban on Wednesday was won by Bend Or (9 st.), who beat Foxhall (6 st. 7 lb.) by a length, the same distance dividing the American colt from Post Obit (7 st.)

The return sculling-match between Trickett and Kirby will take place at Southampton to-day (Saturday). On this occasion the Australian is, by the terms of the articles, to use a fixed seat; but, if the water is pretty smooth, he will probably have little trouble in winning again.

An interesting spot-hazard barred billiard handicap on the American principle will be begun at the Royal Aquarium, Westminster, this (Saturday) afternoon. The champion, Shorter, F. Bennett, Richards, and other celebrated players are to take part in it, and a silver cup and £70 will be given in prizes.

---

Mr. Smiles is despondent of the prospect of English authors ever getting their copyright respected in America, but not more so, perhaps, than the facts warrant. The only chance for them, in his opinion, is to emigrate and become citizens of the great Republic; for why should American readers pay 6s., or perhaps 20s., for an English book, when they can get it in New York for 6½d.?

George Brine, known as the "King of the Vagrants," died recently in the union workhouse at Sherborne, Dorsetshire, of which he had been an inmate about ten years. He boasted that he had been in every gaol and workhouse in England, and in a sketch of his life said he had been in gaol more than one hundred times, but that he had never been convicted of felony or larceny.

The polling for West Cheshire took place yesterday week, when Mr. Tollemache, the Conservative candidate, was returned by a majority of 382 votes, Mr. Tollemache polling 4799 and Mr. Tomkinson 4417. The Conservative candidate polled 27 more than the highest Conservative vote at the last general election, and the liberals polled 409 more than they did on that occasion, when the Conservative majority was 761. Sir Philip Egerton, the late member, was a Conservative.

Dr. Andrew Wilson, F.R.S.E., of Edinburgh, lectured on Saturday night before the Ascham Society on "Science Culture in Common Education"—Dr. W. B. Richardson occupying the chair. Dr. Wilson advocated science instruction as an essential part of a liberal education, and detailed his opinions of the best methods of instruction.—Mr. J. A. Froude will preside at the next meeting of the Ascham Society, at the Marlborough Rooms, 307, Regent-street, next Wednesday evening, when Mr. Boyd Carpenter, Vicar of Christ Church, Lancaster-gate, will read a paper, By-Thoughts on Education.

THE COURT.

Lord Rowton had an interview with the Queen shortly after the death of Lord Beaconsfield, when he communicated the particulars of the last hours of her Majesty's valued friend; at whose funeral Prince Leopold represented the Queen.

Princess Louise of Lorne left Osborne yesterday week on her return to Kensington Palace. Prince Leopold arrived at Osborne.

On Sunday her Majesty, Princess Beatrice, the Duke of Edinburgh, and Prince Leopold attended Divine service at Whippingham church, the Rev. Canon Prothero officiating.

Prince Alfred and Princesses Marie, Victoria, and Alexandra of Edinburgh left Osborne on Monday, with Prince Leopold, for London.

The Court has returned to Windsor.

Her Majesty has appointed the second Saturday in May for the Volunteer Review, in Windsor Great Park.

The presentation by the Queen of colours to the 66th Regiment, now stationed at Parkhurst, Isle of Wight, has been postponed till the return of the Court to the island in August.

Her Majesty has been recommended to confer upon the Thakur of Bhaunagar the Grand Cross of the Star of India, in recognition of the loyalty and public spirit evinced by him in carrying through and providing funds for the Katiawar State Railway.

The Hon. Amy Lambart has succeeded the Hon. Evelyn Moore as Maid of Honour in Waiting.

Percy Edmund Leopold Cust, Esq., is appointed Page of Honour to her Majesty, vice the Hon. Victor A. F. C. Spencer, resigned.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Easter recess has at Sandringham been passed in quietude, exclusive of the Prince's public duties at Norwich. The Royal family, as customary, attended Divine service on Sunday at their church in the park, the Rev. F. Hervey and the Rev. T. Teignmouth Shore officiating. The Prince came to town on Monday for the purpose of attending Lord Beaconsfield's funeral at Hughenden on Tuesday, on which day his Royal Highness lunched with Lord Carrington at Wycombe Abbey. Lord Colville of Culross (Chamberlain to the Princess) represented her Royal Highness at Lord Beaconsfield's funeral.

---

Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein visited the Royal School of Art Needlework a few days since, and spent some time in the exhibition of ancient needlework.

The Duke of Edinburgh, in the Lively, has been on a tour of inspection of the Coastguard establishments from Swanage to the westward. The ships of the reserve squadron will leave England towards the end of June, the Duke of Edinburgh, Admiral, in command. The squadron will proceed to Russia, moving up as far as St. Petersburg. His Royal Highness will hoist his flag on the Hercules, which is to become the permanent flag-ship of the squadron. Captain Algernon Heneage, her Majesty's ship Warrior, has been transferred to the command of the Hercules, acting as captain of the fleet to the Duke. The Duchess of Edinburgh has returned from St. Petersburg.

---

FASHIONABLE MARRIAGES.

The Earl of Essex and Louisa Charlotte Trefusis Caroline Paget, widow of General Lord George Paget, were married on Monday at St. Saviour's Church, Upper Chelsea, the Vicar officiating. The Earl and Countess left town for Cassiobury.

The marriage of Mr. W. Fuller Maitland, M.P. for Brecknockshire, and the Hon. Evelyn Coulstoun Gardner, younger daughter of Lord and Lady Gardner, was solemnised on Monday at St. George's, Hanover-square, by the Rev. Thomas Garnham Luard, Vicar of Stansted-Mountfitchet, Essex.

On Tuesday, at St. Peter's, Eaton-square, the Hon. and Rev. Alberic E. Bertie, second son of the Earl of Abingdon, was married to Lady Caroline Elizabeth M'Donnell, eldest daughter of the late and sister of the present Earl of Antrim.

Lord Desart's marriage with Miss Bischoffsheim took place on Wednesday; and Mr. Darby, of Adcott, Shrewsbury, and Miss Arthur, only daughter of Lady Elizabeth Arthur and the late Colonel Sir Fredrick Arthur, Bart., were married on Thursday afternoon at St. Paul's Church, Knightsbridge.

The marriage of Lord Brooke, M.P., and Miss Maynard, daughter of the Countess of Rosslyn, will take place, by special license, at Westminster Abbey, to-day (Saturday), at half-past three; and the marriage of Mr. Edward S. Hope to Miss Constance Leslie, second daughter of Sir John and Lady Leslie, is fixed for June 2.

HOME NEWS.

Nine public and fourteen local Acts have been passed in the present Session.

A steam-car began to run on the tramway line between Edinburgh and Portobello last Saturday.

Mr. Russell Lowell, the United States Minister, will take the chair at the next anniversary dinner of the Literary Fund, which is to held at Willis's Rooms next Wednesday.

Mr. J. A. Raemaekers, sculptor, of Pimlico, has completed a marble bust of Lord Beaconsfield for the private gallery of Lord Clancarty, Garbally, Ballinasloe, Ireland.

Trade is so bad at Bradford that factory operatives are emigrating at the rate of fifty per week, most of them going to the United States.

Wales is about to be the seat of a new invasion. Forty-four missionaries have left Utah, and are on their way to the land of the Cymry.

The Rev. Donald M'Leod, M.A., of Jedburgh, has been made minister-elect of the Scotch Church, Crown-court, Covent-garden, in succession to the Rev. Dr. Cumming.

In London last week 2397 births and 1600 deaths were registered. Allowing for increase of population, the births were 174 and the deaths 68 below the average numbers in the corresponding week of the last ten years. There were 84 fatal cases of smallpox in London last week.

To obviate the danger arising from the sudden egress of a large audience, there have recently been constructed at the Royal Victoria Music-Hall four additional exits. There are now four doors of admission from stone staircases and nine doors of exit.

A Board School, situated in the Waterloo-road, Lambeth, near the Victoria Coffee Music-Hall, was opened yesterday week by Mr. E. H. Buxton, chairman of the London School Board. Board Schools were opened on Monday night in Berwick-street, Soho, by Mr. Robert Freeman; and in Cator-street, Peckham, by Mr. James Stiff.

Eight diamond rings, two gold watches, three silver watches, a chain, a gold pin, a £5 note, six sovereigns, six bottles of spirits, and a quantity of tea are now lying at the Thames Police-station awaiting the owners, the property having been found in the possession of a Mr. and Mrs. Dove, who were unable to give a satisfactory account of it. Dove was a labourer at a bonded warehouse in the Minories.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

ITALY.

The King has given 6000f. from his privy purse to the fund for the relief of the sufferers by the Chios earthquake.

The Chamber of Deputies assembled on Thursday.

In reply to an address, the Pope, on Sunday, inveighed against the Liberal press, and urged all Catholics to watch over the education of the young.

The opening of the Milan Exhibition has been fixed for May 5. It will take place in presence of the King and the Royal family.

SPAIN.

The Government has decided to dispatch reinforcements to the Sulu Islands, and will require the new Sultan to recognise the protectorate of Spain over the Archipelago.

PORTUGAL.

A Royal Decree partially abolishes the income tax.

The King gave audience on the 20th to Prince Odowsky, who was the bearer of an autograph letter from the Russian Emperor announcing his accession to the throne.

An English engineer has discovered two gold-mines.

SWITZERLAND.

M. Vessaz, of the canton of Vaud, has been elected Vice-President of the National Council, in place of M. Ruchonnet, who has been elected a member of the Federal Council.

HOLLAND.

The King has conferred the Grand Cross of the Netherlands Lion upon the Duke of Brunswick.

The Ministerial bill for imposing a tax on Dutch Government Securities has been withdrawn.

GERMANY.

The Emperor William is now able to resume his accustomed drives in the Thiergarten in an open carriage.

General Von der Tann, who commanded the First Bavarian Army Corps in the Franco-German war in 1870-1, died on Tuesday at Meran, in the Austrian Tyrol. He took a prominent part in the battles of Wörth and Sedan, and also led the march from before Paris against the French forces at Artenay and Orleans, which latter city he captured. He was in his seventy-sixth year.

Dr. Bernhard Schmitz, Professor of Modern Philology in the University of Greifswald since 1852, has died at the age of sixty-two. He was one of the most eminent students of this branch of learning in Germany, and, besides other works, has published an "Encyclopædia of the Philological Study of the Modern Languages."

AUSTRIA-HUNGARY.

The Crown Prince Rudolph arrived at Vienna yesterday week on his return from his Eastern tour. The Emperor was at the station to receive his son, and was accompanied by the Archduke Carl. The Crown Prince was received with hearty cheers by a large crowd which had assembled. The Official Gazette publishes the Court ceremonial for the Crown Prince's wedding. The marriage ceremony will be performed by Cardinal Prince Schwarzenberg, Archbishop of Prague, at the church of the Augustine Friars. According to the latest arrangements the Crown Prince will not go to Brussels, but will meet his bride in Salzburg on May 5.

The spring parade of the troops before the Emperor on Tuesday was witnessed by the Empress on horseback, the Prince of Bulgaria, the German and Italian Ambassadors, all the military Attachés, and a number of other distinguished personages.

A large dinner party was given at the palace last Saturday, in honour of Prince Alexander of Bulgaria.

The Emperor has presented Baron Haymerle with the Grand Cross of the Order of St. Stephen, seizing the opportunity of expressing in highly flattering terms his gratitude for the services rendered by the Minister of Foreign Affairs.

Field Marshal Benedek, the Austro-Hungarian Commander-in-Chief in the Austro-Prussian war of 1866, died on Wednesday morning at Gratz.

TURKEY.

Neither Turkey nor Greece had answered the last Collective Note of the Powers at the time we went to press with our early edition.

A great battle has been fought between 10,000 Turkish troops under Dervish Pasha and 15,000 Albanians, who attempted to stop his march. After several hours' fighting between Pristina and Prizrend, the Turkish commander continued his march; but he is said to have sent an urgent request for more reinforcements. Dervish Pasha has made his entry into Prizrend, and the Albanian League has been dissolved, not, however, before another engagement was fought.

Four persons, formerly employed as domestic servants in the Imperial Palace at Constantinople, have been arrested on the charge of having assassinated the late Sultan Abdul Aziz. They confess to having suffocated his Majesty, after which they opened the veins in his arms, in order to make it be believed that the Sultan had committed suicide.

GREECE.

It is now confirmed that M. Mavromichaelis, the Minister of War, has resigned. M. Valtinos has been appointed his successor, and was present at the Cabinet Council which was subsequently held to consider the terms of the reply to be made to the last Note of the Powers.

Military demonstrations in favour of war are reported from several places on the Greek frontier. At Chalcis on Sunday one of the regiments encamped near that town entered it, headed by their non-commissioned officers, and "made noisy demonstrations in favour of war." Some sergeants who made speeches were arrested. The Times correspondent at Athens says that the position "is evidently an uncomfortable one for the Ministry; but public opinion in Athens is in favour of the acceptance of the position without needless delay." The Ora, the organ of M. Tricoupis, strongly advocates the policy of a tranquil acceptance of the situation made by the Ministry, and of returning to a state of peace as soon as possible.

AMERICA.

A bronze statue of Admiral Farragut was unveiled at Washington on Monday by President Garfield, in the presence of the members of the Cabinet, many army and navy officers, and a large assemblage of troops, sailors, and civilians. Mr. Horace Maynard and Senator Voorhees spoke. Mrs. Farragut attended the ceremony, being the President's guest at the White House.

Mdlle. Sarah Bernhardt gave six performances in New York last week, the receipts being 17,660 dols.

The death of Mr. James T. Fields, the well-known publisher of Boston, is announced.

All the Sioux Indians who have taken refuge in Canadian territory during the last four years have surrendered to the United States authorities, with the exception of Sitting Bull and a few of his followers. It is believed, however, that the latter will give themselves up shortly.

SOUTH AFRICA.

The Times correspondent at Durban telegraphs that the Upper Chamber at the Cape has shelved the address to the Queen approving of the terms of peace by the casting vote of the Acting President. The debate in the Assembly continues.

In a sitting last week of the House of Assembly, the Premier stated in reply to a question that the Basuto chief Lerothodi had offered to place himself unconditionally in the hands of the Cape Government and to order his people to lay down their arms.

Telegrams from the Transvaal state that there is much opposition among the Boers to the provision in the terms of peace for the cession of a portion of the Transvaal territory. A petition has been largely signed warning the Triumvirate that the Boers will not submit to any decision of the Commission involving a loss of territory, and the Standard's correspondent says that it is evident they mean fighting unless the obnoxious provision is expunged. Mr. Joubert disapproves of the petition, and expresses confidence in the Commission.

INDIA.

The evacuation of Candahar was completed at noon of the 21st inst. without disturbance or trouble of any sort. The union jack was hauled down from the citadel under a salute of thirty-one guns. In their march from the city the British troops were accompanied part of the way by the deputy-governor and some of the officials. A telegram from the Viceroy states that the rear column reached Abdul Rahman, all well, on Saturday last.

According to intelligence brought by caravan to Candahar from Herat all was quiet there, and the reports of mutiny of troops and defection of Sartip untrue.

Bombay telegrams announce that the Wazaris are submitting to British authority, and that it is believed there will be no fighting.

---

M. Emile de Girardin died in Paris on Wednesday morning.

A strong shock of earthquake was felt at Paola, in Calabria, last Saturday morning.

Mr. Clement Courtney Knollys, Auditor-General for the Island of Barbadoes, and Mr. Oswald Jones have been appointed members of the Legislative Council of that island.

Buenaventura, on the Pacific coast, has been almost destroyed by fire. The loss of property is estimated at 1,000,000 dols., and 1500 persons have been rendered homeless.

Rome kept its 2613rd birthday on the 21st by illuminations and music in the streets; and the Colosseum was lighted with Bengal and electric lights.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING MAY 7.

SUNDAY, MAY 1.

Second Sunday after Easter.
St. Philip and St. James, Apostles.
The Duke of Connaught born, 1850.
Morning Lessons: Num. xx. 1—14, or Isaiah lxi.; John i. 43. Evening Lessons: Num. xx. 14—xxi. 10, or Zech. iv.; Col. iii. 1—18.
St. Paul's Cathedral, 10.30 a.m., Westminster Abbey, 10 a.m.
St. James's, noon, Rev. Daniel Moore.
Whitehall, 11 a.m. and 8 p.m., Rev. V. H. Stanton.

MONDAY, MAY 2.

Royal Academy Exhibition opens.
Grosvenor Gallery Exhibition opens, British Institute closed for a week.
Royal Institution, anniversary, 2.
London Anti-Vivisection Society, annual meeting, Willis's Rooms, 3.
Medical Society, Annual Oration by Mr. A. Durham; conversazione, 8.
Victoria Institute, 8 p.m. (Rev. W. D. Ground on Mr. Herbert Spencer's Philosophy).
Surveyors' Institution, 8 p.m. (Mr. G. M. Freeman on Land Reform).
Musical Association, 5 p.m. (Mr. H. C. Banister on Structure in Musical Composition).
Society of Engineers, 7.30 p.m. (Mr. J. Standfield on Floating Docks).
Society of Arts, Cantor Lecture, 8 p.m. (Mr. Alan S. Cole on Lace-making).
Anniversaries: Home and Colonial School Society (Earl of Chichester in the chair), 1.30 p.m.; National Temperance League, Exeter Hall, 6.30 p.m.
Church of England Temperance Society, Choral Service at St. Paul's Cathedral, 7.30 p.m., the Bishop of Bedford; annual meeting at Lambeth Palace, Tuesday, 2 p.m.; Public Breakfast, St. James's Hall, Wednesday, 9 a.m.; Total Abstinence Section, Exeter Hall, Wednesday, 7 p.m.

TUESDAY, MAY 3.

Christian Knowledge Society, 2 p.m.
The Queen's Drawingroom, Buckingham Palace, 3 p.m.
Royal Institution, 3 p.m. (Professor Dewar on the Non-Metallic Elements).
Civil Engineers' Institution, 8 p.m. (Discussion on Scour by Upland and Tidal Waters).
Pathological Society, 8.30 p.m.
Zoological Society, 8.30 p.m.
Biblical Archæology Society, 8.30 p.m. (Mr. Ernest de Bunsen on the date of Menes, &c.).
Hibbert Lectures, St. George's Hall, 5 p.m. (Mr. Rhys Davids on Buddhism).
Anniversary: Church Missionary Society, Exeter Hall, 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.
University College, 3 p.m., first Barlow Lecture by Professor Farinelli, on Dante—(in Italian)—free.
Somerville Evening Meeting (Mr. H. R. Fox Bourne on Royalty in England).
Gresham Lectures, 6 p.m. (Mr. J. E. Nixon on Rhetoric); and on the 4th, 5th, and 6th.
German Hospital, Dalston, annual dinner, Willis's Rooms, 6.30 p.m.
Races: Newmarket First Spring Meeting.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 4.

Botanic Society, promenade, 3.30.
Anniversary: British and Foreign Bible Society, Exeter Hall (Lord Shaftesbury in the chair), 11 a.m.
National Rifle Association, general meeting, United Service Institution, 3 p.m. (the Duke of Cambridge in the chair).
British Archæological Association, anniversary, 4.30 p.m.
Literary Fund, anniversary dinner, Willis's Rooms, 6.30 p.m. (the Hon. J. Lowell, U.S. Minister, in the chair).
Entomological Society, 7 p.m.
Royal Society, the President's conversazione, 9 p.m.
Obstetrical Society, 8 p.m.
Iron and Steel Institute, annual meeting at Civil Engineers' Institution (three days).
Society of Arts, 8 p.m. (Professor Bonamy Price on Buying and Selling).
South Kensington Museum, 4 p.m. (Mr. Norman Lockyer on Spectroscopy in Relation to Solar Chemistry); and on Friday.
Albert Hall, evening (Mr. Sims Reeves, "The Creation," &c., &c.
South African War Relief Fund, evening concert at St. James's Hall.
Marylebone Cricket Club, annual meeting, Lord's, 5 p.m.

THURSDAY, MAY 5.

Meeting of the House of Lords.
Archæological Institute, 4 p.m.
Royal Society, 4.30 p.m.
Linnean Society, 8 p.m.
Chemical Society, 8 p.m. (ballot for Fellows; papers by Messrs. E. W. Prevost, R. T. Plimpton, L. D. Thorne, and T. Purdie).
Inventors' Institute, 8.15 p.m.
Royal Institution, 3 p.m. (Professor Tyndall on Magnetism).
Antiquaries' Society, 8.30 p.m.
Dialectical Society, 8 p.m. (Mr. J. Rum on the Justification of Evil).
Civil and Mechanical Society, anniversary, 7 p.m.
Morpeth Races.

FRIDAY, MAY 6.

Moon's first quarter, 10.44 a.m.
London Institution, 5 p.m. (Rev. H. R. Haweis on some American Humorists).
Royal Institution, 8 p.m. (Hon. G. Brodrick on the Land-Systems of England and Ireland, 9 p.m.).
British Architects' Institute, opening of General Conference of Architects, 8 p.m.
Botanic Society, lecture, 4 p.m.
Geologists' Association, 8 p.m.
Philological Society, 8 p.m. (Mr. Russell Martineau on the Rhæto-Romanic Dialect).
City of London Hospital for Diseases of the Chest, anniversary festival, Cannon-street Hotel, 6.30 p.m.
Governesses' Benevolent Asylum, general court, Willis's Rooms, noon (Lord Harrowby in the chair).
Anniversary: Religious Tract Society, Exeter Hall (Earl of Aberdeen in the chair), 6.30 p.m.
Wharfdale Agricultural Society, Otley (two days).
Girls' Laundry Home, reading by Mr. Brundram at the Speaker's House, Westminster, 3.30 p.m.; and on Saturday.
National Health Society, Mayfair Lectures, 4 p.m. (Mr. C. N. Cresswell on Sanitary Relations of Local Self-Government).
Epworth Poultry and Dog Show.

SATURDAY, MAY 7.

Royal Institution, 3 p.m. (Professor R. Morley on Scotland's Part in English Literature).
Botanic Society, opening of Rose Exhibition.
Dr. Moffat and other Missionaries entertained by the Lord Mayor.
Royal School of Mines, Athletic Sports, Stamford-bridge.

THE TRANSVAAL WAR.

Among the officers recently killed in South Africa was Lieutenant Robert Hamond Elwes, of the Grenadier Guards, Aide-de-Camp to Sir George Pomeroy-Colley. He was the eldest son of the late Mr. Robert Elwes, of Congham House, King's Lynn, in the county of Norfolk, by his union with Mary Frances, daughter of the Rev. Richard Lucas, Rector of Edith Weston, Rutland. He had but just attained the age of twenty-four, having been born on Dec. 1, 1856. He was educated at Eton; and entered the Army as a Lieutenant from the militia on Nov. 11, 1876, his first appointment being to the 22nd (Cheshire) Regiment. On Jan. 31 following he was transferred to the Grenadier Guards as a Lieutenant; and on Nov. 4, 1880, was appointed Aide-de-Camp to the Brigadier-General commanding the forces in Natal and the Transvaal. Lieutenant Elwes was lord of the manor of Congham. This young officer was killed on Jan. 28 at the Battle of Laing's Neck, whilst most gallantly leading, with Colonel Deane, the charge of the 58th Regiment against the Boer position. The following account of his death was written home by an eye-witness of the battle:—"Poor Elwes fell among the 58th. He shouted to another Eton boy (Adjutant of the 58th), 'Come along, Monck! Floreat Etona! We must be in the front rank!' And he was shot immediately."

Lieutenant Cornwallis Jasper Trower, R.N., who is also among those killed, entered the Navy as a cadet in April, 1868, was gazetted a midshipman in October, 1869, and obtained his first commission in April, 1874. He was gazetted a Lieutenant in April, 1876, receiving his promotion through obtaining three first-class certificates. He served in the Naval Brigade on land under Sir George Colley. He was killed on Feb. 27, at the fight on Majuba Hill.

ROYAL ACADEMY NEW ASSOCIATES.

WILLIAM BURGES.

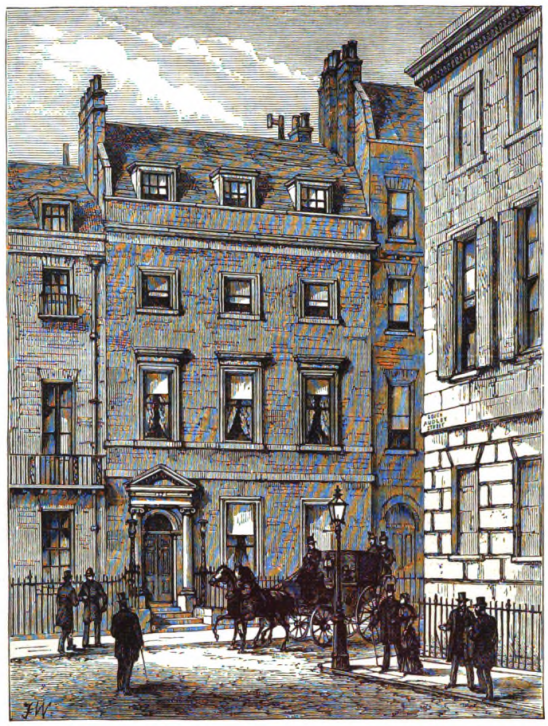
For the first time within our long experience, we have to record the painful incident of the death of an artist, newly elected into the Academic body, before we had presented to our readers his engraved portrait. Mr. Burges, though in good health a few days previously, died on Wednesday of last week from a paralytic attack. Mr. Burges had long been appreciated highly in the Architectural world for his intimate knowledge of the early Gothic and Feudal styles, to which all his sympathies tended. It is now a good many years since we illustrated his restoration of Waltham Abbey. Unlike, however, the other artists of whom we here give biographical notes, and who were elected with him or a little before, Mr. Burges did not receive the honour of the Associateship of the Royal Academy till he had arrived at middle age. He was born about the year 1828, and was the son of Mr. Alfred Burges, of Worthing. Beside his labours at Waltham Abbey, among his principal works may be named Cork Cathedral; Worcester College Chapel; Trinity College, at Hartford, Connecticut, United States of America; the reconstruction of Castle Coch, Glamorganshire; the churches of Studley Royal and Skelton, in Yorkshire; some warehouses in Thames-street; and his own residence in Melbury-road, Kensington, where he died. But of late years he was chiefly employed by the Marquis of Bute; and the artist's works at Cardiff Castle (Lord Bute's Welsh residence) are very considerable, and have been illustrated by a series of drawings exhibited at the Royal Academy. The massive and severe tower that he added to Cardiff Castle, and which is now its dominant feature, may doubtless be regarded as one of his most important and successful works.



LORD BEACONSFIELD'S HOUSE AT 19, CURZON-STREET, MAYFAIR, WHERE HE DIED.

FRANCIS BERNARD DICKSEE.

Mr. "Frank" Dicksee, as he is always called, like the two remaining associates, may be said to have been cradled in art. His father, Mr. T. F. Dicksee, has been long known as a painter with a delicate sense of beauty and of finished execution. The subject of our notice was born in London in 1853, and from an early age occupied himself diligently with drawing and painting, and gave promise of more than ordinary ability. Seeing that his son was bent on devoting himself to art, the father gave him encouragement and instruction preparatory to his entering (at the age of seventeen) as a student of the Royal Academy. In 1872 young Dicksee there obtained the silver medal in the Antique school; and three years later carried off the gold medal for the best historical painting, the subject being "Elijah Reproving Ahab." The picture was exhibited at the Academy the following year. The next year the picture entitled "Harmony" appeared at Burlington House, and had a great success. It was purchased by the Academicians as trustees of the Chantrey Fund: it has been etched by Waltner, and is now, with the other works purchased from the Chantrey Fund, at the South Kensington Museum. In 1878 the artist did not exhibit, having been much occupied designing illustrations for magazines, &c. But in the following year his "Evangeline" more than confirmed the favourable impression he had already produced; and this was well supported last year by "The Housebuilders," containing portraits of Sir William and the Hon. Lady Welby-Gregory. Thus it will be seen that he appeared on the walls of the Royal Academy only four times previously to his election as A.R.A.

ANDREW J. GOW

was born in London in 1848, of Scotch parents. From his father, Mr. J. Gow, one of the most estimable members of the Society of British Artists, he received his early instruction in art, and also studied at Mr. Heatherley's School of Art in Newman-street. As early as 1868 he was elected a Member of the Institute of Painters in Water Colours, and from then till now has been a very constant exhibitor at the gallery in Pall-mall. The artist first exhibited at the Royal Academy in 1870—his oil picture, "A Suspicious Guest." This was followed in succeeding years by "Introduction of Lady Mary Wortley Montague to the Kit-Kat Club," "Sophy Baddeley at the Pantheon," "The Relief of Leyden" (1876), "The Tumult in the House of Commons" (1877), "A War Despatch at the Hôtel de Ville" (1878), "No Surrender!" and "A Musical Story by Chopin" (1879), and the fine historical picture of last year, "The Last Days of Edward VI."

HAMO THORNYCROFT

was born in London in 1850, and is the son of Mr. Thomas and Mrs. Mary Thornycroft, both sculptors well known to the public. At twelve years of age he entered London University College School. In 1868 he commenced studying art in the British Museum, and in the following year became a student of the Royal Academy, where, the next year, he gained two silver medals for sculpture in the Antique school. Two years later he again carried off two silver medals in the Life school. One of these was for drawing—an award that has seldom, if ever, been won by a sculptor. A good deal of time was thereafter spent in his father's studio assisting in the execution of some large public works. In 1871 he visited several of the galleries of Italy, and the same year modelled a bust of Professor Sharpey, which now stands in University College, and was the first work he exhibited at Burlington House. The young sculptor subsequently modelled three of the figures for the Poet's Fountain, in Park-lane. In 1875 he gained the gold medal and scholarship at the Academy for the group "A Warrior and Wounded Youth," which appeared in the next year's Exhibition. During 1876 he was occupied, in conjunction with his father, on an equestrian statue of Lord Mayo; and the next year executed several portraits, together with the statue "Lot's Wife," which attracted considerable attention when exhibited at the Academy in 1878. Then followed the marble group "Stepping Stones," executed for Mr. David Wallace, of Glassingall, Perthshire. The statue of "Artemis," which we spoke of in high terms when exhibited last year, is to take its place in the drawing-room of the Duke of Westminster at Eaton Hall; and with this was exhibited a bronze statuette of an athlete "Putting the Stone," which, by-the-way, is an old classic game.

We present the portraits of the four gentlemen above

THE LATE LIEUTENANT TROWER, R.N.

THE LATE LIEUTENANT R. H. ELWES, GRENADIER GUARDS.

NEW ASSOCIATES OF THE ROYAL ACADEMY.

MR. A. C. GOW, A.R.A.

MR. FRANK DICKSEE, A.R.A.

MR. HAMO THORNYCROFT, A.R.A.

THE LATE MR. W. BURGES, A.R.A.

named; those of Mr. Dicksee, Mr. Gow, and Mr. Thornycroft, from photographs by Mr. Charles Watkins, of Torriano Avenue, Camden-road; that of the late Mr. Burges, from one taken by Mr. Van der Weyde's Electric Light apparatus, in Regent-street. The fifth newly-appointed Associate of the Royal Academy is Mr. Brett, whose "distaste for personal notoriety," as he says, prevents us from giving his portrait.

THE SILENT MEMBER.

The rather by-the-way reference to the death of Lord Beaconsfield on the reassembling of the House of Commons on Monday may well have seemed disappointing to those of the public who regard current events through the magnifying lens of the daily press. In a House far from full, Lord Richard Grosvenor, in the unavoidable absence of Mr. Gladstone, simply gave notice that a motion would be made to adjourn till eight o'clock instead of four on Tuesday; but the Liberal "Whip" prefaced this announcement with the declaration (greeted with cheers) that a fortnight thence the Prime Minister would move an address to the Queen in favour of erecting a monument of the Earl of Beaconsfield in Westminster Abbey. Though the formal tribute of Parliament to the memory of the ex-Premier is thus postponed for some days, the House rendered silent homage to the illustrious statesman on the day of the funeral, which was attended by many members of both political parties.

The Conservative crusade against the Irish Land Bill was led off on Monday by Mr. Gibson, who, rising from about the centre of the front Opposition bench, and encouraged by Sir Stafford Northcote, Sir Richard Cross, and Mr. W. H. Smith (all in mourning), delivered an animated and unsparing attack upon the Ministerial measure. The late Attorney-General for Ireland (sketched as he energetically emphasises his arguments) has come to be regarded as the most powerful debater in the foremost rank of the Opposition. Of commanding height (rather over than under six feet), Mr. Gibson is also gifted with a strong, clear voice, which he manages with skill. He is prone to indulge in that emphatic style of delivery which some are willing to accept as a sign of ability, but which is not unseldom to be found in those who grasp one side of a question only. This one-sidedness was conspicuous in Mr. Gibson's speech, whose main argument, that the bill proposed to confiscate the property of Irish landlords, was answered without difficulty later in the evening by Mr. Forster.

It was observed that, whilst Mr. Gibson stood at the table fulminating against the Government, Mr. T. P. O'Connor (represented as he sat, hatless, next his chief, Mr. Parnell) appeared to relish exceedingly the indignant eloquence of the landlord's advocate. The silence and semi-satisfaction of the Home Rulers, indeed, lauded the Ministry in a temporary difficulty. The Secretary for Ireland was not ready to reply on the spur to Mr. Gibson; and this unreadiness was quickly taken advantage of by Sir Stafford Northcote, Mr. Gorst, and Mr. Chaplin to complain of the reticence of the Government, whom Mr. Gladstone, however, speaking with ironic keenness, had no difficulty in defending. As it was, Mr. Forster, rising towards the close of the sitting, sturdily maintained that the bill would do no injustice to landlords, whilst it would bring about fair rents, free sale, and security of tenure. It should be mentioned, in passing, that Lord Lymington made an effective speech in favour of the measure.

A rock ahead was noticeable at the opening of Monday's sitting in the person of Mr. Bradlaugh, who held a small levée as he sat with habitual composure on the bench below the bar to the right of the Speaker. Presently, Greek joined Greek, foreshadowing the tug of war on the morrow. Now, scrutinising Mr. Bradlaugh as he chatted with Mr. Labouchere—both limned as they sat under the gallery—it would have been hard to decide which was the cooler—the junior or the senior member for Northampton, the shoemaking constituency of which borough certainly so far proves true to the old adage that they cling to their last—choice, with unrelenting fidelity.

The Bradlaugh dilemma! This was the nice sea of troubles the House was landed in on meeting at nine o'clock in the evening of Tuesday after Lord Beaconsfield's funeral. The pertinacious and imperturbable member for Northampton, easily distinguished from his clean-shaven face of a somewhat Mongolian cast, and his flowing locks, having been re-elected during the recess, presented himself at the table to take the oath. He was introduced by Mr. Labouchere and Mr. Burt. Sir Erskine May having handed him the book, Mr. Bradlaugh was apparently about to take the oath in the usual way—when Sir Stafford Northcote, amid Conservative cheers, rose to demur. The Speaker, however, blandly remarked that, "having regard to former resolutions of the House—(cheers)—and the reports of Select Committees in reference to this matter, I cannot withhold from the House the opportunity of expressing its judgment upon the new conditions under which the oath is now proposed to be taken." Mr. Bradlaugh then withdrew below the bar; and Sir Stafford Northcote pointed out that on June 22 last the House decided that the gentleman in question should not be allowed "to take the oath or make affirmation," the latter part of the resolution with regard to affirmation being afterwards rescinded, and a subsequent motion carried to permit any member claiming to affirm so to do, subject to any proceedings that might be taken in a court of law. Mr. Bradlaugh did affirm; proceedings were taken; and the result was the hon. member was declared to be unentitled to affirm by law. The Leader of the Opposition now objected to Mr. Bradlaugh's taking the oath on the score of his expressed opinion that an oath would not be binding to his conscience; and the right hon. Baronet moved a resolution to prevent him from "repeating the words of the oath." The majority was with Sir Stafford Northcote. It was in vain Mr. Horace Davey introduced an amendment framed to remove the impediment. Vainly did Mr. Labouchere inveigh with logical directness against the injustice sought to be done to Northampton and to his colleague. Equally thrown away was the earnest appeal of Mr. Bright in favour of tolerance; the fearless speech from the bar of Mr. Bradlaugh; and the persuasive eloquence of Mr. Gladstone himself, who held firmly by his opinion of last year that the legality or illegality of any member's affirmation or oath should be left to be decided by a court of law. Sir Hardinge Giffard and Sir Henry James spoke without throwing additional light on the question. The House then divided. Consciousness of victory was stamped on the face of that eminently respectable Conservative "Whip," Mr. Rowland Winn (whose radiant features are here traced) when he approached the table with his brother tellers; and it was with the firm dignity which characterises his jaunty bearing that Mr. Winn received from the clerk the paper containing the figures, which proclaimed Sir Stafford Northcote's resolution successful by a majority of 33—208 to 175 votes. But Mr. Bradlaugh was not thus easily to be disposed of. The ever-courteous Speaker called upon him to withdraw. "The resolution of the House is against the law; and I respectfully refuse to withdraw," stoutly maintained Mr. Bradlaugh. Nor did Captain Gossett (Sir Stafford Northcote's new motion that Mr. Bradlaugh should withdraw having been agreed to), nor several of the Serjeant-at-Arms's janitors, prove equal to the task of removing the lusty and broad-shouldered member for Northampton. But Sir Stafford Northcote would not proceed to the extremity of moving his committal to the clock-tower. And the difficulty for the time being was got over by the House, on the motion of Mr. Joseph Cowen, adjourning at a quarter past two in the morning.

Wednesday saw the House calmer. Mr. Bradlaugh again walked up to the table, and requested to be allowed to take the oath; but was again politely desired by the Speaker to withdraw behind the bar. Eventually, Mr. Labouchere's reasonable suggestion that facilities should be granted him to reintroduce his measure permitting any member to affirm, though not directly yielded to by Mr. Gladstone or Sir Stafford Northcote, was strongly supported by Mr. Bright, and at last tacitly agreed to as the best way out of the difficulty. Mr. Gladstone then announced that the contemplated dealing with the silver duties would be abandoned; and the House adjourned.

MUSIC.

ROYAL ITALIAN OPERA.

We recorded last week the opening of a new season of this establishment on the Tuesday with a performance of Verdi's "Aïda," including successful first appearances by Mdlle. De Reszké and M. Vergnet. The opera was repeated on the following Thursday; and on Saturday Madame Sembrich appeared, for the first time this season, in the character in which she was first heard here last season. Again, as the heroine in "Lucia di Lammermoor," the brilliant soprano voice and rare upper range possessed by Madame Sembrich, and her excellent powers of bravura singing, were splendidly displayed in the cavatina in the first act, in the music of the contract-scene, and especially in the elaborate scena of delirium. The singer was enthusiastically received. As Enrico Ashton, Signor Sante Athos made a very successful first appearance. He possesses a good stage presence, a voice of fine quality, and sings artistically. We shall doubtless soon again have occasion to speak of his merits. Signor Marini as Edgardo sang with great effect; and the cast included Signori I. Corsi and Silvestri respectively as Arturo and Raimondo. Signor Bevignani again conducted.

On Tuesday Rossini's "Guglielmo Tell" was given, the performance having included the return of Mdlle. Valleria as Mathilde and the first appearance in England of Signor Mierzwinsky as Arnoldo. The lady was specially applauded after the delivery of the important scena at the beginning of the third act, and the gentleman achieved a genuine success, particularly in the great trio with Tell and Walter, and still more in Arnoldo's declamatory solo, "Corriam," with which, as usual, the opera concluded. Signor Mierzwinsky possesses a powerful tenor voice, with a high range of chest notes; he declaims well, and his stage action and gestures are good. The cast was efficiently completed by Signori Cotogni (Tell), De Reszké (Walter), Ragner (Melchtal), I. Corsi (the Fisherman), Silvestri (Gessler), Mdlle. Velmi (Jemmy), Mdlle. Ghiotti (Edwige), and Signori Fille and Manfredi in subordinate parts. The incidental Divertissement was well sustained by Mdlles. Viale, and L. and H. Reuters. The Overture was brilliantly played, and the "Allegro" had to be repeated. The opera was very ably conducted by M. Dupont (from Brussels), the new conductor engaged (in place of Signor Vianesi), to co-operate with Signor Bevignani.

"La Sonnambula" was announced for Thursday, with Madame Sembrich as Amina, and "Rigoletto" for this (Saturday) evening, with Madame Albani's first appearance this season, as Gilda. Mr. Gye's company has gained an accession of strength by the engagement of Madame Trebelli since the issue of his prospectus of the season.

OPERA COMIQUE.

The new work by Mr. Arthur Sullivan and Mr. W. S. Gilbert was produced at this theatre on Saturday evening, with great success. The title of the piece is "Patience, or Bunthorne's Bride;" and the purpose of the book is to ridicule the modern æsthetic school of art and poetry. It is only right to state that Mr. Gilbert's share in the work was finished in November last, before the recent plentiful expenditure of satire on the same subject. How wittily it is treated in the present instance may easily be imagined by those who have made acquaintance with the previous productions of the same author. The character of Patience is that of an unsophisticated dairy-maid, offering an amusing contrast to the group of "rapturous maidens" (æsthetic ladies) with whom she is thrown in contact; another such contrast being that between a pair of poets—Reginald Bunthorne, a despairing transcendentalist (who admits, in an aside, that he is "an æsthetic sham"), and Archibald Grosvenor, a sentimentalist of the Idyllic school. These varieties are opposed by the robust military element embodied by some officers of the 35th Dragoons who arrive in the village, and a series of love-making scenes between the principal characters, with the changing preferences of the ladies, are conveyed in dialogue and verse with a constant succession of satirical witticisms—full of fun and point, but never transgressing the bounds of good taste—that keep the audience in almost continual laughter.

Mr. Sullivan has contributed some charming music to the two acts of which the piece consists, the style being more often refined and graceful than burlesque, although there are some touches of genuine musical humour, as in the mock-heroic recitative of the strong-minded Lady Jane, with its caricature of the old-fashioned Italian "recitativo parlante" and the scraping accompaniment for bass stringed instruments. Her following song bewailing the departure of her youth in humorous verse is, however, rather sentimental than comic, the latter effect being heightened by the singer leaning on a violoncello (or rather double bass), on which she is supposed to accompany herself. Other touches of musical humour are in the capital songs—"If you want a receipt" (for the Colonel), the recitative and air for Bunthorne; in the first act: the song, "A magnet hung" (for Grosvenor); the duet, "So go" (for Bunthorne and Jane); the comic trio (for the Duke, the Colonel, and the Major); and the duet, "When I go out of door" (for the two poets).

These pieces—good as they are of their kind—depend much, of course, on stage situation and manner of delivery. In a different and better style, and of far more permanent value, are Patience's song, "I cannot tell;" her ballad, "Love is a plaintive song;" the graceful duet, "Long years ago" (for Patience and Angela), that for Patience and Grosvenor, "Prithee, pretty maiden;" the unaccompanied sestet in the first act, and the quintet in the second act.

Some of the choral music for the rapturous maidens is sweetly melodious, particularly the opening movement, "Twenty love-sick maidens we;" and the choruses, "In a melancholy train" and "Let the merry cymbals sound."

The choral pieces for the soldiers are full of bold rhythmical effects; and there are some well-wrought climaxes, especially in the scene of the ladies' rejection of the officers, and at the close of the first act.

The piece was extremely well acted and sung: Miss Leonora Braham was, in every respect, a charming representative of the simple-minded Dairy-maid; the principal group of "Rapturous Maidens," the Ladies Angela, Saphir, Ella, and Jane, having been very satisfactorily realised by Misses J. Bond, J. Gwynne, Fortescue, and A. Barnett. Mr. G. Grossmith was richly comic, in make-up and manner, as the atrabilarious Bunthorne; Mr. Rutland Barrington having thoroughly succeeded in the opposing portraiture of the tender sentimentalist. Mr. R. Temple made a dashing Colonel Calverley, and sang his music well; and the parts of the Major, and Lieutenant the Duke of Dunstable were satisfactorily filled by Mr. F. Thornton and Mr. D. Lely. The gestures and actions of these three gentlemen, when singing the comic trio, dressed in Mediæval costume, had evidently been highly studied, and offered a rich caricature of pre-Raphaelite grotesqueness. The costumes throughout are rich and appropriate, and the stage action and grouping have been largely benefited by the personal superintendence of Mr. Gilbert. The orchestra and chorus were very efficient—two nicely-painted scenes have been provided by Mr. J. O'Connor, and all the details are in excellent keeping.

Mr. Sullivan conducted, and he, Mr. Gilbert, and the principal performers were called forward amid enthusiastic applause. There is every prospect of a long and successful career for "Patience."

The final Crystal Palace Saturday Concert of the twenty-fifth series took place last week, and is to be supplemented this week, as usual, by a special performance for the benefit of Mr. Manns, the conductor.

The Musical Union began a new season (the thirty-seventh) on Tuesday afternoon—again at St. James's Hall—M. Lasserre having become the director in lieu of Mr. John Ella, the founder, who retires after a long and active career. The first concert brought forward M. Reisenhauer, a young pianist who made a very successful first appearance, his solo performance having been Schumann's "Carnaval;" besides which he sustained the principal part in Rubinstein's pianoforte trio in B flat. String quartets by Haydn (in G, op. 54) and Beethoven (No. 1, in F) were well played by MM. Viardot, Wiener, Waefelghem, and Lasserre.

Next week (on Saturday) Mr. Mapleson begins his new season at Her Majesty's Theatre. We have already given an outline of the arrangements for the forthcoming performances.

An evening concert is to take place at St. James's Hall on Wednesday, May 4, under the patronage of the Queen, in aid of the South African Relief Fund.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

THE LATE LORD BEACONSFIELD.

MESSRS. SAMPSON LOW, MARSTON, and CO. will have ready by MAY 2 a Revised and Cheap Edition, in One Volume, of

THE PUBLIC LIFE of the RIGHT HON. BENJAMIN DISRAELI, EARL OF BEACONSFIELD, K.G. By FRANCIS HITCHMAN. (Now ready, 800 pages, 8vo, 9s. 6d.

With a Photographic Portrait, by W. and D. Downey, of his Lordship, taken when in Office as Prime Minister in attendance on the Queen at Balmoral.

THE TIMES, in a Review of the two following Works, says: "These remarks are suggested by the two remarkable records of travel just published by Messrs. Sampson Low and Co., to be followed shortly, we believe, by a third—the narrative of Mr. Joseph Thomson. A unique phenomenon both in the annals of publishing and of African exploration."

MAJOR SERPA PINTO'S HOW I CROSSED AFRICA: from the Atlantic to the Indian Ocean through Unknown Countries, Discovery of the Great Zambezi Affluents, &c. Two vols., demy 8vo, with 20 Full-page and 118 Half-page and smaller Illustrations, 13 small Maps, and 1 large one, cloth extra, 42s. [Ready.

DR. EMIL HOLUB'S SEVEN YEARS IN SOUTH AFRICA: Travels, Researches, and Hunting Adventures (1872 to 1879). Translated by ELLEN E. FREWER. Translator of Schweinfurth's "Heart of Africa," &c. 2 vols., demy 8vo, with 200 Illustrations and Map, cloth extra, 42s. [Ready. London: SAMPSON LOW, MARSTON, SEARLE, and RIVINGTON.

Just published, crown 8vo, price 3s. 6d. cloth (postage 3d.), THE LADIES' MULTUM IN PARVO FLOWER GARDEN AND AMATEURS' COMPLETE GUIDE. By SAMUEL WOOD, Author of "Good Gardening," &c. With numerous Illustrations. "Sound common-sense instruction in the management of small gardens."—Florist. "We recommend the book to anyone desirous of becoming a gardener."—English Mechanic. CROSBY LOCKWOOD AND CO., 7, Stationers'-hall-court, London, E.C.

Now ready, price 1s.; post-free, 1s. 2d., BOSWELL AND JOHNSON: Their Companions and Contemporaries. By J. F. WALLEN, LL.D. Being Vol. III. of Cassell's Monthly shilling Library. (Also published in cloth, 2s.) N.B.—The First Edition of this Work having been exhausted on the day of publication, a Second Edition has been prepared, which is now ready. CASSELL'S MONTHLY SHILLING LIBRARY. Vol. I. consists of History of the Free Trade Movement in England. By A. Mongredien. Third Edition, 1s. Vol. II. consists of the Scottish Covenanters. By the Rev. J. Taylor, D.D., F.R.S.E. Second Edition, 1s. CASSELL, PETTER, GALPIN, and CO., Ludgate-hill, London.

WITH PORTRAIT, FROM A PAINTING BY SAMUEL LAURENCE, demy 8vo, price 21s. THE LIFE OF WILLIAM WHEWELL, D.D., late Master of Trinity College, Cambridge; and Selections from his Correspondence By Mrs. STAIR DOUGLAS. "The volume before us aims at giving us the man not so much in his literary aspects as in his relations to his family, his College, and his University; and it succeeds, as might have been expected, in telling a most interesting story."—Times. London: C. KEGAN PAUL and Co., 1, Paternoster-square.

MACMILLAN'S MAGAZINE. No. 270, for MAY. Price 1s. CONTENTS OF THE NUMBER. 1. The Portrait of a Lady. By Henry James, Jun. Chaps. XXIX.—XXXIV. 2. Memory's Songs. By A. Mathewon. 3. Old Mythology in Modern Poetry. By Andrew C. Bradley. 4. Lord——. 5. Sir Donald Stewart's March from Kandahar to Kabul. 6. The English Communists in Iowa. By Robert Benson. 7. A Short Plea for Scientific Agriculture and for Agricultural Education. MACMILLAN and Co., London.

Now ready, for MAY, MRS. HENRY WOOD'S MAGAZINE, THE ARGOSY. CONTENTS:—1. Court Netherleigh, by the Author of "East Lynne," Chaps. 13—15; Illustrated by M. Ellen Edwards. 2. Sweet May. 3. The Short-Up Houses. 4. Madame de Pumpadour. 5. The Barrister's Clerk. 6. A Devonshire Combe. 7. Wanted a Cook. 8. Red and Blue. "'The Argosy' is a standard of literary excellence at all times."—Western Daily Mercury. "Full of amusing fiction."—Halifax Times. Sixpence Monthly. RICHARD BENTLEY and SON, 8, New Burlington-street, W.

BLACKWOOD'S MAGAZINE for MAY, 1881. No. DCCLXXXVII. Price 2s. 6d. CONTENTS. THE SWORD. A FRENCH SPECULATION. SHORT SERVICE AND ITS SUPPORTERS. THE PRIVATE SECRETARY. Part VII. AUTOBIOGRAPHIES. No. III.: MARGARET, DUCHESS OF NEWCASTLE. MR. GLADSTONE'S ELEVENTH BUDGET. THE MAGIC TOW W. S. THE NEW NOSTRUM FOR IRELAND. THE EARL OF BEACONSFIELD. WILLIAM BLACKWOOD and SONS, Edinburgh and London.

KITH AND KIN. A New Novel by the popular Author of "The First Violin," and "Probation," is continued in the MAY NUMBER of THE TEMPLE BAR MAGAZINE. In which Number is also continued THE FREERES: a New Novel, By Mrs. Alexander, Author of "The Wooing o't." Now ready, at all Bookstalls, Miscellaneous. "One can never help enjoying 'Temple Bar.'"—Guardian.

WELDON'S MAGAZINES for MAY. WELDON'S LADIES' JOURNAL. A Grand Panorama, size 18 in. by 36 in., is given away with MAY Number, containing sixty Illustrations of Latest Novelties and Thirty-two pages of Letterpress. Price 3d. Monthly; post-free, 4½d. WELDON'S PENNY DRESSMAKER contains a Coloured Supplement, Forty Illustrations and Sixteen pages of Letterpress. Price 1d. Monthly; post-free, 1½d. WELDON'S BAZAAR OF CHILDREN'S FASHIONS contains a Coloured Supplement, Fifty Illustrations, and Sixteen pages of Letterpress. Price 1d. Monthly; post-free, 1½d. WELDON and Co., 9, Southampton-street, Strand.

1d., Weekly; Monthly Part, 5d., GARDENING ILLUSTRATED. Villa, Suburban, Cottage, and Town Gardening; Window Plants, Bees, Poultry. All Newsagents. Copy, by post, 1½d. Vol. I., 7s. 6d. 37, Southampton-street, Strand, London.

PRACTICAL LESSONS IN PAINTING ON CHINA, PORCELAIN, EARTHENWARE, &c. By Madame la Baronne DELAMARELLE. From the French by GUSTAVE A. BOUVIER. Fourth Edition. Price 1s.; post-free, 1s. 1d. London: LECHERTIER, BARBE, and Co., 60, Regent-street.

JUST PUBLISHED, post-free, 2 stamps, DYSPEPSIA and the SEVERER FORMS OF INDIGESTION. A small pamphlet on these distressing complaints and their complete cure. Published by the Author, RICHARD KING, Esq., Staff Surgeon R.N., 23, Warwick-st., Rugby.

Eighth Edition, cloth, post-free, 33 stamps, DR. BARR MEADOWS on Skin Disease. Remarks on the Abuse of Arsenic, and specifics. London: G. HILL, 186, Westminster-road.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

WILKIE COLLINS'S NEW NOVEL. Now ready, in 3 vols., crown 8vo, at every Library. THE BLACK ROBE. By WILKIE COLLINS, Author of "The Woman in White."

NEW NOVEL BY THE AUTHORS OF "READY-MONEY MORTIBOY." Now ready, 3 vols. crown 8vo, at every Library, THE CHAPLAIN OF THE FLEET. By WALTER BESANT and JAMES RICE.

MR. JAMES PAYN'S NEW NOVEL. Now ready, 3 vols., crown 8vo, at every Library, FROM EXILE. By JAMES PAYN, Author of "By Proxy," &c. CHATTO and WINDUS, Piccadilly, W.

NEW WORKS OF FICTION AT ALL LIBRARIES. AN OCEAN FREE LANCE. By W. CLARK RUSSELL. 3 vols. POLLY AND PASSION. By Mrs. CAMPBELL PRAED. 3 vols. A CHILD OF NATURE. (Second Edition.) By ROBERT BUCHANAN. 3 vols. JOHNNY LUDLOW. (Second Series.) By Mrs. HENRY WOOD. 3 vols., crown 8vo, 6s. RICHARD BENTLEY and SON, New Burlington-street.

IN MEMORIAM. THE DEATH of LORD BEACONSFIELD. THE MEDALLION BROOCH (Registered), with Likeness and Dates of Birth and Death, encircled with a wreath of Olive (Peace) and Myrtle (Honour), surmounted with the Earl's Coronet. Prices, Bronze or Plated, 2s. 6d.; Solid Silver, 7s. 6d.; Gold, 17s. 6d. Specially constructed for the centre of a rosette or badge. Address—Messrs. HUMPHREYS and CO., Wholesale Jewellers, 15, London-road, Liverpool.

THE LATE LORD BEACONSFIELD. Now ready, boards, price One Shilling, THE LIFE OF LORD BEACONSFIELD; Statesman and Author. A Record of his Political and Literary Career. With Portrait. London: WARD, LOCK, and Co., Salisbury-square, E.C.

Now ready (One Shilling), No. 257, THE CORNHILL MAGAZINE for MAY. With Illustrations by George Du Maurier and W. Small. CONTENTS. A Grape from a Thorn. By James Payn. (With an Illustration.) Chap. XIX.—The Lost Locket. XX.—Mr. Aird's Love-Story. XXI.—Illness in the Hotel. XXII.—The Invitation. Ballad Science. A Bishop's Confession. "At Heaven's Door." by the Poor. Franz Grillparzer. One Year in a German Cookery School. Love the Debt. (With an Illustration.) Chap. XIII.—A Proposal. XIV.—A Guardian. XV.—Mr. Robert Sagge. London: SMITH, ELDER, and Co., 15, Waterloo-place.

THE EARL OF BEACONSFIELD. A BIOGRAPHICAL MEMOIR. By EDWARD WALFORD, Esq., M.A., Editor of "County Families," &c. Price 1s., sewed; 6d., cloth gilt. F. WARNE and Co., Bedford-street, Strand.

THE BIJOU GAZETTEER OF THE WORLD. Briefly describing, as regards Position, Area, and Population, every Country and State, their Subdivisions, Provinces, Counties, Principal Towns, Villages, Mountains, Rivers, Lakes, Capes, &c. By W. H. ROSSER. 3,000 References. Price in cloth gilt; or roan, pocket-book style, 2s. 6d. F. WARNE and Co., Bedford-street, Strand.

BENJAMIN DISRAELI, EARL OF BEACONSFIELD. VOLUME I. EDITED BY THE LATE S. O. BEETON. Cloth, crown 8vo, price 10s. 6d. From the Athenæum:—"The biography of Lord Beaconsfield, of which the first volume has lately been published, by Mr. Beeton, is as interesting a volume as has appeared for many years, and leaves us no room for doubt that, when the book has been completed, it will be of the greatest value to politicians and historians. The writer has a strong animus against the subject of his book, but the utility of the facts and of the documents which he has collected cannot be destroyed by the opinions of the writer, and we never met with any book which displayed a greater amount of research into a subject and care for accuracy. Even those who most strongly disapprove of the author's views will find his book instructive and amusing." IN THE PRESS. VOLUME II. By ALGERNON FOGGO, M.A., Cantab. Price 10s. 6d. GOUBAUD and SON, 30 and 40, Bedford-street, Covent-garden.

MYRA'S JOURNAL; MAY. Price 6d.; by post, 8d. MYRA'S GRAND PANORAMA of SPRING and SUMMER FASHIONS. NEW BONNETS. NEW MANTLES. MYRA'S JOURNAL of Dress and Fashion. The Novelties for MAY are:— 1. Coloured Panorama Fashion Plate, showing fourteen new Costumes and Costumes for Ladies and Children. 2, 4. Diagram Sheet containing patterns of the Gyrienne Mantle, Dressy Paisne, the Cornwallis Corsage, and the Phyllis Matinée. 3. Dress and Fashion in Paris. 4. Spinnings in Town, by the Silkworm. 5. Myra's Answers on Dress, Novelties in Coiffure, Health, and Personal Attention, Furniture and Furnishing, the Cuisine, Books and Authors, Music, Etiquette, Miscellaneous. 6. The Latest from Paris. 7. Illustrations of the newest Models in Costumes and Toilettes, Indoor, Walking, and Evening Dresses, Mantles, Paletots, Chapeaux, Coiffures, Lingerie, &c. 8. Models of Spring Costumes, Mantles, and Chapeaux from Les Grands Magasins du Louvre. 9. Needlework: Designs for Embroidered Jardinière and Work-bag. 10. Patterns in Berlin Wool-work, Lace, Crochet, Tricoter, &c. MYRA'S JOURNAL is a Complete Guide to Ladies upon the care of Children's Wardrobes. Subscriptions: Yearly, 8s.; Half-yearly, 4s. GOUBAUD and SON, 30 and 40, Bedford-street, Covent-garden

COURT COURT COURT COURT LE JOURNAL DES MODES, MAY, 1881. TRAINS. TRAINS. TRAINS. TRAINS. Coloured Designs for Court Trains. Coloured Designs for all the Newest Fashions for Brides, Bridesmaids, Indoor, Walking, and Evening Dresses. Cut Pattern of a Dress-Body, with gathered Plastron. Price 1s. 8d.; post-free. S. MILLER, 37, Tavistock-street, Covent-garden, W.C.

TO THE READERS of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.—Seventy-two Volumes (Half-Yearly), from 1855, wholly unsoiled, gilt-edged, nicely bound, of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS are offered for SALE. A rare chance; a singularly unique and picturesque record of the last thirty-six years.—Apply Mr. STEWART, 13, Great Winchester-street, London, E.C.

SCRAPS for SCREENS and SCRAP-BOOKS (Coloured).—Immense variety of Flowers, Figures Birds, and Landscapes, from 1s. per sheet: 6 dozen assorted, 10s. 6d. LAURIE, WM. BARNARD, 119, Edgware-road.

JOSEPH GILLOTT'S STEEL PENS. GOLD MEDAL, PARIS, 1878.

TO CHESS ADMIRERS.—The ALEXANDERSEN CHESS CLUB, ANDERTON'S HOTEL, Fleet-street, now MEETS EVERY EVENING at six o'clock. Visitors welcome. Instruction free to members. Subscription £1 1s. per annum. Address to H. F. BIRD, Accountant, 5, Copthall-buildings, E.C., author of "Three Masterpieces" (Vienna and Paris, 1878), "Chess Openings" (Canada and America, 1878-9), and also (now in press), "Practical Analysis of Openings from Chess Masterpieces."

SUN FIRE-OFFICE, Threadneedle-street, E.C.; Charing-cross, S.W.; Oxford-street (corner of Vere-street), W. Established 171 years. Home and Foreign Insurances effected. Sum insured in 1880, £912,785,653. FRANCIS B. RELTON, Secretary.

MALVERN COLLEGE. The NEXT TERM will BEGIN on TUESDAY, MAY 10.

SMART'S WRITING INSTITUTION, 97B, Quadrant, Regent-street (entrance in Swallow-street). Open from Ten till Nine daily. Persons of all ages received privately, and taught at any time suiting their own convenience. Lessons one hour each. No classes. No extras. Improvement guaranteed in eight to twelve easy lessons. Separate rooms for ladies. Apply to Mr. Smart, as above.

THE ART-FURNISHERS' ALLIANCE, Limited, 157, New Bond-street, London, W., IS NOW OPEN, as a medium for producing the best Art-effects in all branches of House Furnishing and decoration at the least possible outlay. The Public is invited to inspect the Original Assortment of Furniture and other specially selected objects of domestic use and decorative art, now on sale, and described by the "Whitehall Review" of April 16 as "the most superb collection of artistic furniture and accessories ever brought together." Every article has its price affixed. Those intending to build, alter, or redecorate their houses, should inspect the examples now on Sale at THE ART-FURNISHERS' ALLIANCE, LIMITED, 157, New Bond-street, W. CHRIS. DRESSER, Ph.D., F.R.S., Art Adviser. EDWARD LEE, Knt., F.S.A. Scot., Secretary and Manager.

ALFRED B. PEARCE, 39, Ludgate-hill, INVITES INSPECTION of all that is new and beautiful in useful and ornamental CHINA and GLASS, including Dinner services (" Cottage "), 50 pieces ... ... ... 13 6 Dinner services for 12 persons (the "Ivy") ... ... ... 2 0 China Dessert services for 12 persons, Gilt, 17s., Ungilt ... 14 0 Gilt China Tea services, 40 pieces, 12s. ... ... 29 pieces 6 6 China Breakfast Sets for 6 persons, 11s. ... ... for 4 persons 3 6 Toilet Services (for washstands), 6s. 6d., 3s. 6d., and ... 3 9 White Stone Jugs, "The Grecian," ... ... ... set of three 1 6 All really excellent patterns. Quart Decanters, good cut glass, 4s. per pair ... ... plain 4 0 Claret Decanters (with handle), 4s. each ... ... and 3 0 Plain light Claret Glasses, well made, 4s. per doz. ... and 4 6 Wine Glasses, plain or cut, Ports and Sherries, per doz. 1 9 Engraved Wine Glasses ... do. ... do. 3 0 Hock Glasses, thin bowl, 6s. per doz. ... green bowl 3 0 Tumblers, cut, 3s. 3d.; plain, 2s. 3d., moulded, per doz. 1 6 Plain light Finger-Glasses, large shape ... per doz. 2 6 Other articles proportionately cheap. Descriptive Catalogue post-free. ALFRED B. PEARCE, 39, LUDGATE-HILL. Established 1760.

JOHN BRINSMEAD and SONS' PATENT SOSTENENTE PIANOS have gained the highest awards at all the recent International Exhibitions, including the two First Prizes, Melbourne, 1880; the First Prize, Sydney, 1880; the two First Special Prizes, Sydney, 1880; the Legion of Honour, Paris, 1878, &c. For SALE, HIRE, and on the Three Years' System.—18-20, Wigmore-st., London, W. Illustrated Lists free. JOHN BRINSMEAD and SONS' Pianos for SALE, HIRE, and on the Three-Years' System.—18, 20, Wigmore-street; and the Brinsmead Works, Grafton-road, N.W. Lists post-free.

MELBOURNE EXHIBITION, 1881. HIGHEST AWARD.—CHALLEN and SON have been awarded the First Prize for their from-Frame Upright Pianos, the jury having adjudged them a higher number of good points than any other English Firm.—20, Oxford-street.

WHAT IS YOUR CREST and WHAT IS YOUR MOTTO? Send name and county to CULLETON'S Heraldic Office. Plain Sketch, 3s. 6d.; colours, 7s. The arms of man and wife blended. Crest engraved on seals, rings, books, and steel dies, 7s. 6d. Gold seal, with crest, 25s. Solid Gold Ring, 18-carat, Hall-marked, with crest, 42s. Manual of Heraldry, 400 engravings, 3s. 9d.—T. CULLETON, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

CULLETON'S GUINEA BOX of STATIONERY contains a Ream of the very best Paper and 500 Envelopes, all stamped in the most elegant way with Crest and Motto, Monogram, or Address, and the engraving of Steel Die included. Sent to any part for P.O. order.—T. CULLETON, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

VISITING CARDS, by CULLETON. Fifty best quality, 2s. 6d. post-free, including the Engraving of Copper-plate. Wedding Cards, 50 each; 25 Inscribed Envelopes, with Maiden Name, 13s. 6d.—T. CULLETON, Seal Engraver, 25, Cranbourn-street, Leicester-square, W.C.

WEDDING and BIRTHDAY PRESENTS at RODRIGUES', 14, Piccadilly, London. SETS FOR THE WRITING-TABLE AND BOUDOIR, IN POLISHED BRASS, ORMOLU, SERVES CHINA. BRONZE, and OXIDIZED SILVER, from ... ... £10 TRAVELLING DRESSING BAGS ... ... ... 50s. to £50 DRESSING CASES ... ... ... ... 21s. to £20 DESPATCH BOXES ... ... ... ... 21s. to £10 TOURISTS' WRITING CASES ... ... ... 4s. 6d. to £3 ENVELOPE CASES and BLOTTING BOOKS.. 10s. 6d. to £3 INKSTANDS ... ... ... ... ... 3s. to £5 CANDLESTICKS (per pair) ... ... ... ... 7s. 6d. to £3 WORK BOXES ... ... ... ... ... 12s. to £5 THE NEW "TANTALUS" LIQUEUR STAND ... 10s. to £10 THE "TANTALUS" SODA and BRANDY STAND, 45 12s. 6d. And a large and choice assortment of Ivory Goods, VIENNESE, and PARISIAN NOVELTIES, from 5s. to £5.

PORTRAIT ALBUMS at RODRIGUES', with Patent Leather Guards, 4s. 6d. to £5. Floral Albums, Scrap Albums, Presentation and Regimental Albums. Albums of every description made to order.—12, Piccadilly.

RODRIGUES' MONOGRAMS, ARMS, CORONET, CREST, and ADDRESS DIES Engraved as Gems from Original and Artistic Designs. NOTE-PAPER AND ENVELOPES, brilliantly illuminated by hand in Gold, Silver, Bronze, and Colours. BEST RELIEF STAMPING, any colour, 1s. per 100. All the New and Fashionable Note-Papers. A VISITING CARD PLATE, elegantly Engraved, and 100 Superfine Cards printed, for 4s. 6d. BALL PROGRAMMES, BILLS OF FARE, GUEST CARDS, WEDDING CARDS, and INVITATIONS in every Variety. HENRY RODRIGUES, 42, Piccadilly, London.

FOR FAMILY ARMS (Lincoln's-inn Heraldic Office) send Name and County. Sketch, 3s. 6d.; in colours, 7s. 6d. Arms Painted and Engraved on Seals, Dies, Rings, Brasses, Hatchments, Carved Tablets, &c. 44, Lincoln's-inn, W.C.; and 76, Queen Victoria-street, E.C. Prize Medal, Paris, 1878.

TEENS that young ladies are in no hurry to get out of— "LOUIS" VELVET-TEENS.

THE "LOUIS" VELVETEEN IS SIMPLY UNIQUE. Do not be induced by persuasion to take any other. LOUIS AN EXTRA PROFIT TO YOUR LOSS may be speciously made if you accept, under whatever name offered, an inferior quality of Velveteen. "THE LOUIS" has established its reputation so widely that even a slight inferiority would injure its repute, which constitutes LOUIS A TEST OF MERIT, and guarantee of UNSURPASSED QUALITY. Be sure you find the words THE "LOUIS" VELVETEEN on every yard, or you have not the LOUIS GENUINE "LOUIS," notwithstanding all assertions to the contrary. Wholesale London Agent, J. H. FULLER, 92, Watling-street, who will send on inquiry, post-free, the names of the nearest Drapers from whom the genuine LOUIS VELVETEEN can be obtained.

MADAME ELLIOT makes up DRESSES stylishly and fits elegantly. 8, Great Portland-street, Oxford-street.

MADAME ELLIOT'S CORSETS. Splendid Shape. French and English make, 5s. 6d., 10s. 6d., 15s. 6d., 21s. 30s., 42s. To avoid delay, send size of waist and P.O.O. for the amount. Corsets changed if not approved. Corsets made to order.—8, Great Portland-street, Oxford-street.

CHUBB'S SAFES FOR JEWELS, DEEDS, PLATE, BULLION, &c. CHUBB'S LOCKS and LATCHES, CHESTS, BOXES, &c. CHUBB'S ILLUSTRATED PRICE-LISTS POST-FREE. CHUBB and SON, 128, Queen Victoria-street, E.C.; and 68, St. James's-street, London.

EPPS'S COCOA. GRATEFUL and COMFORTING. "By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operation of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette. JAMES EPPS and CO., HOMŒOPATHIC CHEMISTS, Also, EPPS'S CHOCOLATE ESSENCE for Afternoon Use.

TRELOAR and SONS' LUDGATE-HILL. MATS. FLOORCLOTH. LINOLEUM. CARPETS. TRELOAR and SONS, 69, Ludgate-hill, were established 1832. They are the only firm in London who deal exclusively in Floor Coverings. They have been awarded seven Prize Medals, including one at Paris, 1878. The Fine Arts Galleries at the International Exhibitions of 1851, 1862, 1865, 1872, 1873, 1874, 1875, 1876, 1878, were furnished with matting specially manufactured by them.

GENUINE DUBLIN WHISKY. THE MOST WHOLESOME OF ALL SPIRITS. DUBLIN WHISKY, Distilled by Messrs. JOHN JAMESON and SON, GEORGE ROE and CO., WILLIAM JAMESON and CO., and JOHN POWER and SON, can be obtained in Wood by wholesale merchants and dealers direct from their respective distilleries.

SCHWEITZER'S COCOATINA. Anti-Dyspeptic Cocoa or Chocolate Powder. Guaranteed Pure Soluble Cocoa, with excess of Fat extracted. Four times the strength of Cocoa Thickened yet Weakened with Arrowroot, Starch, &c. The faculty pronounce it the most nutritious, perfectly digestive Beverage for "BREAKFAST, LUNCHEON, or SUPPER." Keeps in all climates. Requires no cooking. A teaspoonful to Breakfast Cup, costing less than a halfpenny. Samples gratis In Air-Tight Tins, at 1s. 6d., 3s., &c., by Chemists and Grocers. H. SCHWEITZER and CO., 10, Adam-street, London, W.C.

CHOCOLAT MENIER. Awarded the GRAND DIPLOMA OF HONOUR. CHOCOLAT MENIER, in ½lb. and ¼lb. Packets. For BREAKFAST and SUPPER. CHOCOLAT MENIER.—Awarded Twenty Eight PRIZE MEDALS. Consumption annually exceeds 18,000,000 lbs. CHOCOLAT MENIER. Paris, London, New York. Sold Everywhere.

FRY'S Gold Medal, Paris, 1878. First Award, Sydney, 1879. FRY'S CARACAS COCOA. "A most delicious and valuable article."—Standard. PURE COCOA ONLY.

COCOA. FRY'S COCOA EXTRACT. "Strictly pure."—W. STODDART, F.I.C., F.C.S., City Analyst, Bristol. Thirteen Exhibition Medals.

HORNIMAN'S TEA for Forty Years has commanded a large sale, because it can always be relied on for strength, flavour, and cheapness. It is the best tea imported. Sold only in Packets.

ROBERT ROBERTS AND CO.'S CELEBRATED TEAS. TWELVE POUNDS AND UPWARDS CARRIAGE PAID. Samples and Price-lists free by post. Queen Insurance-buildings, Liverpool. ESTABLISHED 1860. No agents. All communications and orders direct.

NUBIAN BLACKING. The most economical. One application lasts a week. NUBIAN BLACKING. Especially recommended for Military Men. NUBIAN BLACKING is a Liquid Preparation which does not rub off or soil Ladies' Skirts. NUBIAN BLACKING is perfectly waterproof, and will retain its lustre in all weathers. NUBIAN BLACKING preserves the leather, and is entirely free from acid. NUBIAN BLACKING is easily applied with a sponge attached to the Cork. NUBIAN BLACKING gives a brilliant elastic polish, and will not crack, and can be used on the most delicate shoes. NUBIAN BLACKING polishes instantly, without brushing. NUBIAN BLACKING is suitable for Ladies', Gentlemen's, and Children's boots and shoes of every description. For Patents superior to varnish. Also for harness, purses, and military accoutrements, &c.

BLAIR'S GOUT PILLS, THE GREAT REMEDY FOR GOUT AND RHEUMATISM. Sold by all Chemists, at 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. per Box.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS and OINTMENT. The Pills purify the blood, correct all disorders of the liver, stomach, kidneys, and bowels. The Ointment is unrivalled in the cure of bad legs, old wounds, gout, and rheumatism.

SULPHOLINE LOTION.—An external Cure for Skin Diseases. There is scarcely any eruption but will yield to SULPHOLINE and fade away in a few days. Ordinary pimples, redness, blotches, scurf, roughness, vanish as if by magic; while old skin disorders, that have plagued sufferers for years, however deeply rooted, Sulpholine will successfully attack them. It destroys the animalcule which cause these unsightly, irritable affections, and always produces a clear skin. Sulpholine Lotion is sold by Chemists. Bottles, 2s. 9d.

NEW MUSIC.

SULLIVAN AND GILBERT'S NEW OPERA.

PATIENCE; or, Bunthorne's Bride. An Æsthetic Opera. Written by W. S. Gilbert; composed by ARTHUR SULLIVAN. Produced on Saturday, April 23, at the Opera Comique, with enormous success.

In the Press.

The Complete Vocal Score .. .. .. .. 5s.
Pianoforte Score .. .. .. .. .. 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

OLIVETTE. New Comic Opera. Enormous success at the Strand Theatre. Adapted by H. B. Farnie; Music by AUDRAN.

Vocal Score .. .. .. .. .. 8s. net.
Abridged Edition of the Vocal Score, containing the Overture, Songs, &c. .. .. .. .. 4s. ,,
Pianoforte Solo .. .. .. .. .. 2s. 6d. ,,
All the Favourite Airs, arranged for the Violin 1s. 6d.

| | |
|---|---|
| Lancers. D'Albert .. 2s. net. | Galop. D'Albert .. 2s. net. |
| Waltz. D'Albert .. 2s. ,, | Nearest and Dearest |
| Quadrille. D'Albert.. 2s. ,, | Waltz. D'Albert .. 2s. ,, |
| Polka. D'Albert .. 2s. ,, | |

Boyton Smith's Fantasia .. .. .. 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

NEW AND POPULAR SONGS.

WELCOME. Lady ARTHUR HILL. 2s. net.
CŒUR DE LION. H. J. STARK. Sung by Mr. Oswald. 2s. net.
AT THE PORTAL. N. FERRI. Sung by Madame Mary Cummings. 2s. net.
WHAT THE FIRELIGHT TOLD. J. L. ROECKEL. 2s. net.
THE CHILDREN IN THE WOOD. ROECKEL. 2s. net.
WHERE THE PURPLE VIOLET GROWS. Ferdinand Thrane. "The Turquoise Ring." L. BENSON. 2s. net.
DINNA LEAVE ME. A. M. WAKEFIELD. Composer of "No, Sir." 2s. net.
THOUGHTS AT SUNRISE. Mrs. L. MONCRIEFF. 2s. net.
THE LAST I LOVE. OLIVER CRAMER. 2s. net.
LOVE FOR LOVE. OLIVER CRAMER. 2s. net.
DIS MOI TOUJOUR. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

NEW SONGS by Mrs. RONALDS.

IN SHADOW .. .. .. .. 2s. net.
WHY? .. .. .. .. .. 2s. net.
EVER NEAR .. .. .. .. 2s. net.
DIS MOI TOUJOUR .. .. .. 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

CHARLES D'ALBERT'S NOVELTIES.

PIRATES OF PENZANCE LANCERS, WALTZ, QUADRILLE, POLKA, and GALOP. 2s. 6d. net
ADELINA WALTZ. Illustrated with beautiful Portrait of Madame Patti .. .. .. .. 2s. net
PORTIA WALTZ .. .. .. .. .. 2s. net
DRINK, PUPPY, DRINK! POLKA .. .. .. 2s. net
CONCESSA LANCERS .. .. .. .. 2s. net
DISTANT SHORE WALTZ .. .. .. .. 2s. net
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

Now ready, Volume II. of

CHAPPELL'S OLD ENGLISH DITTIES.

Handsomely bound in cloth and gold. Price 10s. 6d. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S THREE-YEARS' SYSTEM of HIRE of PIANOFORTES, HARMONIUMS, and AMERICAN ORGANS, by which the Instrument becomes the property of the Hirer at the end of the third year, provided each quarter's hire shall have been regularly paid in advance. Pianofortes from 7gs. Harmoniums, from £1 5s.; and American Organs, from £2 10s. a Quarter.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S PIANINOS, from 20 guineas.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S COTTAGES, from 27 guineas.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S GRANDS, from 75 guineas.

CHICKERING PIANOFORTES, from 120 guineas, with American discount.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ALEXANDRE HARMONIUMS, for Church, Schools, or Drawing-Rooms, from 8 to 150 guineas; or, on the Three-Years' System, from £1 5s. per quarter.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S IMPROVED AMERICAN ORGANS, combining Pipes with Reeds, Manufactured by Clough and Warren, Detroit, U.S.A. The immense advantages these instruments possess over the Organs hitherto imported have induced Messrs. Chappell and Co. to undertake the sole Agency of this eminent Manufactory. A large variety on view, from 18 to 250 guineas. Price-Lists on application to CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

CLOUGH and WARREN'S Favourite ORGAN. Compass, five octaves, ten stops, four sets of reeds, three of two and two thirds octaves and two of two and one third octaves, knee swell, elegant carved Canadian walnut case, price 35 guineas. With twelve stops, sub-bass octave coupler, and two knee pedals, 35 guineas. Illustrated Price-List free by post.
Sole Agents, CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

INSTRUMENTS by ALL MAKERS may be HIRED or PURCHASED on the Three-Years' System.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

A LARGE DISCOUNT TO PURCHASERS FOR CASH.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

BROADWOOD'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on CRAMER'S Three-Years' System from £2 12s. 6d. per Quarter.

COLLARD'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on CRAMER'S Three-Years' System; in Black and Gold Cases at £4 14s. 6d. to £5 5s., £6 6s., £7 7s., and in Special Early English Ebonised Case, £8 8s. per Quarter.

ERARD'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on CRAMER'S Three-Years' System, from £5 5s. per Quarter.

CRAMER'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on their Three-Years' System, from £1 11s. 6d. per Quarter. Detailed Lists post-free on application to Regent-street, W.; Bond-street, W.; Moorgate-street, E.C.; and 145, High-street, Notting-hill.

"Steinway is to the Pianist what Stradivarius is to the Violinist."—Herr Joachim.

THE STEINWAY PIANOFORTES, GRAND AND UPRIGHT.
THE GREATEST PIANOFORTES IN THE WORLD.
The Steinway Pianofortes are the chosen instruments of the educated and wealthy classes in every nation throughout civilisation, and have by far the largest annual sale of any pianofortes in the world.

STEINWAY and SONS,
STEINWAY HALL,
LOWER SEYMOUR-STREET, PORTMAN-SQUARE, W.
(And at Steinway Hall, New York.)

£20 SCHOOL-ROOM PIANO (Co-operative price for cash). Seven octaves—strong, sound, and substantial. Adapted for hard practice. Carefully packed free, and sent to any part. Drawings gratis.
THOMAS OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street.

£35.—There is nothing in London—nor, in fact, in all England—to be compared to the elegantly carved DRAWING-ROOM TRICHORD COTTAGE PIANOFORTE, with Cabriole Truss Legs, which is sold for £35 by THOMAS OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, Portman-sq.

PIANOFORTES for HIRE or for SALE, from 2s guineas upwards.—JOHN BROADWOOD and SONS, 33, Great Pulteney-street, Golden-square, W. Manufactory, 45, Horseferry-road, Westminster, W.

NEW MUSIC.

THE BOATSWAIN'S STORY. Mr. Santley's last success. By MOLLOY. Sung at the last four Ballad Concerts, and always encored. To be sung at the Morning Ballad Concert, May 7. Price 2s.—BOOSEY and Co.

THE VIKING'S SONG. By STEPHEN ADAMS. Sung by Signor Foli at all his concerts in the present and last week in the province. 2s. net.
BOOSEY and Co.

MISS WAKEFIELD'S NEW SONG, THE LITTLE ROUNDHEAD MAID. By the Composer of "No, Sir." To be sung by Miss Clara Samuell at the Morning Ballad Concert, May 7.—BOOSEY and Co.

A BASKET OF LOVES. By MARZIALS. Sung everywhere by Mrs. Osgood.
BOOSEY and Co.

ALL IN ALL. JOSEPH MAAS' Successful New Song. By F. H. COWEN. Sung at the Ballad Concerts and the Albert Hall, and encored on each occasion. To be repeated at the Morning Ballad Concert, May 7.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

THE ROYAL EDITION OF OPERAS, for Voice and Pianoforte, in the most perfect form ever published. Edited by ARTHUR SULLIVAN and J. PITTMAN.

ITALIAN, FRENCH, AND ENGLISH WORDS.

| | s. d. | | s. d. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Giallo in Maschera (Un).. | 3 6 | Huguenots (Les) .. .. | 5 0 |
| * Barbiere di Siviglia (Il) | 3 6 | Lucia di Lammermoor .. | 3 6 |
| Crown Diamonds (The).. | 3 6 | Lucrezia Borgia .. .. | 3 6 |
| Hamlet .. .. | 3 6 | Martha .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Domino Noir (Le).. .. | 3 6 | Masaniello .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| * Don Giovanni .. .. | 3 6 | Mireille .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Don Pasquale .. .. | 3 6 | Norma .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Elisir d'Amore (L') .. | 3 6 | Porter of Havre (The) .. | 3 6 |
| Faust .. .. .. | 3 6 | Puritani (I) .. .. | 3 6 |
| Favorita (La) .. .. | 3 6 | Rigoletto .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Fidelio .. .. .. | 3 6 | Robert le Diable .. .. | 5 0 |
| * Figaro .. .. .. | 3 6 | Semiramide .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Figlia del Reggimento (La) | 3 6 | Sonnambula (La) .. .. | 3 6 |
| Flauto Magico (Il) .. | 3 6 | Traviata (La) .. .. | 3 6 |
| Fra Diavolo .. .. | 3 6 | Trovatore (Il) .. .. | 3 6 |
| Guillaume Tell .. .. | 5 0 | Vascello Fantasma (Il) .. | 3 6 |

* The unaccompanied recitatives of these operas are printed as dialogue, also with music.

ITALIAN, GERMAN, AND ENGLISH WORDS.
Freischütz (Der) .. .. .. 3 6 | Lohengrin .. .. .. 3 6

GERMAN AND ENGLISH WORDS.
Fliegende Hollander (Der). 3s. 6d.

GERMAN, FRENCH, AND ENGLISH WORDS.
Walter Lance (The) .. .. .. 3s. 6d.

FRENCH AND ENGLISH WORDS.

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Fille de Madame Angot (La) | 3 6 | Tre aux Clercs (Le) ..... | 3 6 |
| Grand Duchess (The) .. .. | 3 6 | Zampa ..... | 3 6 |
| Medecin Malgre Lui (Le) .. | 3 6 | | |

ENGLISH WORDS.

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Bohemian Girl (The) .. | 3 6 | Satanella .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Lily of Killarney (The) .. | 3 6 | Siege of Rochelle (The) .. | 3 6 |
| Mountain Sylph (The) .. | 3 6 | | |

Also in cloth, gilt edges, 1s. 6d. and 2s. 6d. each extra.

BALLAD OPERAS.

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Beggar's Opera .. .. | 1 0 | No Song, no Supper .. | 1 0 |
| Love in Village .. .. | 1 0 | Rosina .. .. .. | 1 0 |

BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

BOOSEY'S SHILLING PIANOFORTE ALBUMS in the MUSICAL CABINET.
212. BOOSEY'S MARCH ALBUM. (30 Marches.)
203, 210, 213. RUBINSTEIN'S THREE ALBUMS. (26 pieces.)
206. RUBINSTEIN'S SIX MELODIES.
207. RUBINSTEIN'S SIX PRELUDES.
204. ROBERT SCHUMANN'S ALBUM ALBIATTER. (20 pieces.)
205. BACH'S PIANOFORTE ALBUM. (13 pieces.)
208. BRAHMS' WALTZ ALBUM. (17 pieces.)
199. FIELD'S NOCTURNE ALBUM. (10 Nocturnes.)
114. BEETHOVEN'S WALTZ ALBUM. (45 Waltzes.)
117. CHOPIN'S WALTZES, complete.
143. CHOPIN'S MAZURKAS, complete.
171. CHOPIN'S NOCTURNES, complete.
80. HELLER'S TWELVE SHORT PIECES.
83. HELLER'S PROMENADES D'UNE SOLITAIRE.
101. HELLER'S PETIT ALBUM. (10 pieces.)
100. SCHUMANN'S KINDERSCENEN, &c.
22. OVERTURES (1st book), including Figaro, Fra Diavolo, Crown Diamonds, William Tell, Freischutz, Zampa.
211. OVERTURES (2nd book), including Masaniello, Oberon, Gazza Ladra, Euryanthe.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S MINIATURE PIANOFORTE. Price 17 Guineas. Size, 41 inches high, 59½ inches wide, 24 octaves; has an excellent quality of tone, and is strongly recommended as an attractive and good piano. Prospectus on application to BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

THE MUSICAL TIMES for MAY contains: "Verdi's Otello." "Simon Boccanegra," at the Scala of Milan—The Music of Dvorak—The Great Composers: Berlioz—Mr. Peppa the Musician, by F. Hueffer.—"Past Hours"—Modern Popular, Crystal Palace, and Bach Choir Concerts.—The Royal Italian Opera—Occasional Notes, Foreign and Country News, Reviews, &c. Price 3d.; post-free, 4d.; annual subscription, 4s., including postage.

THE MUSICAL TIMES for MAY contains: "The Son of God goes forth to war" (St. Ann's tune), by ARTHUR SULLIVAN; and "God so loved the world," Anthem, by Sir JOHN GOSS. Price 1½d.

MESSRS. NOVELLO, EWER and CO. have the honour to announce that they have purchased the ENTIRE STOCK and COPYRIGHTS of the WORKS hitherto published by Messrs. SCHUBERTH and CO., of Newmeyer Hall, including the whole of the valuable Compositions of HEINRICH HOFMANN, &c.

NOVELLO'S ORIGINAL OCTAVO EDITION of OPERAS. Edited and Corrected according to the Original Scores, by NATALIA MACFARREN and BERTHOLD TOURS. The English Translations by Natalia Macfarren and the Rev. J. Troutbeck, M.A., &c.

| | s. d. | | s. d. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Fra Diavolo .. .. | 3 6 | Die Zauberflöte .. .. | 3 6 |
| Masaniello .. .. | 3 6 | Il Seraglio .. .. | 3 6 |
| Fidelio .. .. | 3 6 | Il Barbiere .. .. | 3 6 |
| Norma .. .. | 3 6 | Guillaume Tell .. .. | 5 0 |
| La Sonnambula .. | 3 6 | Il Trovatore .. .. | 3 6 |
| Il Puritani .. .. | 3 6 | Rigoletto .. .. | 3 6 |
| Lucia di Lammermoor .. | 3 6 | La Traviata .. .. | 3 6 |
| Lucrezia Borgia .. | 3 6 | Ernani .. .. | 3 6 |
| La Figlia del Reggimento | 3 6 | Tannhauser .. .. | 3 6 |
| Martha .. .. | 3 6 | Lohengrin .. .. | 3 6 |
| Ipsifenia in Aulis .. | 3 6 | Flying Dutchman .. | 3 6 |
| Ifigenia in Tauris .. | 3 6 | Oberon .. .. | 3 6 |
| L'Elisir del Nord .. | 3 6 | Der Freischütz .. .. | 3 6 |
| Don Giovanni .. .. | 3 6 | Freciosa .. .. .. | 1 6 |
| Le Nozze di Figaro .. | 3 6 | (To be continued.) | |

JUST PUBLISHED. ONE SHILLING EACH.

NOVELLO'S PIANOFORTE ALBUMS. Edited by BERTHOLD TOURS. Each Album contains Twenty Compositions by Bach, Neu, 4, 5, and 6, each containing Twenty-four compositions by Handel.
List of Contents may be had on application.

NOVELLO, EWER, and CO.'S COMPLETE CATALOGUES.
1. Organ and Harmonium Music.
2. Sacred Music with English Words (Anthems, Church Services, &c.)
3. Music printed in separate Vocal and Orchestral Parts, &c.
4. Pianoforte.
5. Secular Music (Songs, Part Songs, &c.).
6. Sacred Music, with Latin Words.
Post-free on application.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and CO., 1, Berners-street, W., and 80 and 81, Queen-street, E.C.

THREE NEW SONGS. By Lord HENRY SOMERSET. ONE MORE (in F and D), 2s.; DAWN, NOON, AND NIGHT (in F), 2s. 6d.; GOOD-BYE (in G minor and E minor); the Words by Major G. J. Whyte-Melville, 2s. 6d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER, and Co.

MISS WAKEFIELD'S NEW SONGS. "YES, SIR!" A sequel to "No, Sir!" Words by W. M. Hutchison.
SWEET SALLY GRAY. A North Countrie Ballad. Words by the late Robert Anderson.
"NO, SIR!" Spanish Ballad. Also arranged as a Vocal Duet by Theo. Marzials.
A SERENADE. Words by Tom Hood. Price 2s. each net.
PATERSON and SONS, 27, George-street, Edinburgh.

METZLER and CO.
35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

MENDELSSOHN'S L'ANGE QUI CHANTE. Mélodie Célestе. "A truly angelic song of heavenly peace. Artistically conceived, highly effective, and easy."

| | |
|---|---|
| Piano Solo. | Violin and Piano. |
| Flute and Piano. | Violoncello and Piano. |

Each 18 stamps, post-free.—DERRY, 369, Oxford-street.

NEW MUSIC.

JOSEPH WILLIAMS'S LIST.

THE LATEST SUCCESS.

BILLEE TAYLOR. Comic Opera. By H. P. STEPHENS and E. SOLOMON.
VOCAL SCORE .. .. .. .. 6s. net.
SONGS, .. .. .. .. .. 2s. net.
ALL ON ACCOUNT OF ELIZA (Third Edition). 2s. net.
SELF-MADE KNIGHT (Second Edition). 2s. net.
THE VIRTUOUS GARDENER. 2s. net.
FANTASIA FOR PIANO. CH. TOURVILLE. 1s. 6d. net.

PIANO SCORE (Complete). 2s. 6d. net. Now ready.
*QUADRILLES. By CHARLES COOTE. 2s. net.
*LANCERS. By ARTHUR GRENVILLE. 2s. net.
*WALTZES. By CHARLES GODFREY. 2s. net.
DANCE MUSIC, BILLEE TAYLOR, ready. Orchestra, 2s.; Septet, 1s. 6d.
* Beautifully Illustrated.

HENRY FARMER'S PIANOFORTE TUTOR, considerably Enlarged and Fingered by the Author. Tenth Edition. "The best and most useful instruction book we have seen."—Musical Review.

THE LOVE OF OLD. ROECKEL'S charming New Song will be sung by Miss Damian at her forthcoming engagements. Post-free, 24 stamps.

PIANO DUETS.
C. REINECKE. Three Sonatas, Op. 139. Price 2s. each, net.

PIANO SOLOS.
LOUIS KUHE. NEW SACRED TRANSCRIPTIONS.
Eli (Costa), Naaman (Costa). Price 2s. each net.
TH. LACK. NEW PIECES.
Menuet, La Mousette, Bolero. 1 rice 1s. 6d. each net.
H. ROTHER. NEW PIECES.
Joyeuse Union, Fête à Trianon, Parfait Bonheur. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
FRANZ HUTZ. NEW PIECES.
Cavatetge (Caprice) Lutin Rose, Le Regiment qui passe.
JOYFUL MOMENTS. Ten Easy Pieces on Popular Subjects. Arranged by CH. TOURVILLE. Price 1s. each net.
OUR FAVOURITES. Ten Moderately Easy Pieces on Popular Subjects. Arranged by CH. TOURVILLE. Price 1s. 3d. each net.

THE PROGRESSIVE MUSIC SCHOOL.
Carefully Edited, Fingered, and Corrected from the Original Manuscripts by J. LEYBACH. First series (very easy), 15 Numbers. Numbers 1 to 14, price 1s. 3d. each net. Number 15, price 1s. 6d. net.

VIOLIN and PIANO DUETS.
S. JACOBY. Six Popular Airs (Easy). Price 1s. each net.
CH. TOURVILLE. Twelve Favourite Subjects (Moderate). Price 1s. 6d. each net.

H. FARMER. Popular Violin Solos (Brilliant), with Piano Accompaniment. Nine Numbers. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 24, Berners-street, W.; and 123, Cheapside, E.C.

SUNG BY ARTHUR ROBERTS.

THE GOOD YOUNG MAN WHO DIED. An Æsthetic Lay. Words by H. P. Stephens; Music by E. SOLOMON. "He has left this world for a brighter sphere, There's a neat little headstone o'er him. Telling how much we held him dear. And how deeply we deplore him. But that does not tell how we miss his ways, Our friend, philosopher, and guide; For years to come we shall sing in praise of the good young man who died." Post-free for 24 stamps.—London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 24, Berners-street; and 123, Cheapside.

THE BUGLER. In D, F, and G. By CIRO PINSUTI. Words by F. E. Weatherly. This very successful song has now reached the Tenth Edition.

THE LINNET'S ANSWER. In E and G. A charming tenor song by the same Composer. Received with continuing favour.

THE CHALLENGE. For Bass and Baritone. By HUMPHREY J. STARK. Words by E. Oxenford. A bold and vigorous composition, and received always by great applause and repeated encores.

WEIT VON DIR (Far from Thee). Waltz. By OSCAR SEYDEL. "When she went back to the ball-room, Captain Winstanley followed her, and claimed his waltz. The band was just striking up the lately German melody, 'Weit von Dir,' a strain of drawing tenderness."—Vide Miss Bradon's "Vixen." Each for the above is net.
B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster-row.

THE BORDERER'S CHALLENGE. A good new stirring song for contralto or baritone, by HUMPHREY J. STARK. Post-free for 18 stamps.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

TARRY, TARRY, ERE YE MARRY. Song. Written by Gordon Campbell; Music by A. S. GATTY. A highly successful setting to a well-selling Melody, in true Scotch rhythm. Post-free for 18 stamps.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

IN SHADOWLAND. Song. By CIRO PINSUTI. No. 1, in E minor; No. 2, in G minor. The popularity of this Song continues unabated.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

DEAR ENGLAND. Song. By LOUIS DIEHL. Signor Foli has selected this Song for both his town and provincial engagements. "Both music and poetry appeal to the heart of every Englishman." Post-free for 24 stamps.—London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

O SANTA MELODIA (Donizetti).—This beautiful Theme effectively Transcribed for the Piano by BRINLEY RICHARDS. Post-free for 18 stamps.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

VALLEY ECHOES. Six elegant Morceaux for the Pianoforte. Composed by WILLIAM SMALLWOOD. Effectively and appropriately Illustrated.

| | |
|---|---|
| 1. Valley of the Rhine. | 4. Ehrenin. |
| 2. The Tyrol. | 5. Festining. |
| 3. Bonea, Naples. | 6. California. |

3s. each; post-free at half price in stamps.
"There is no doubt that the series will be much sought after."—Orchestra.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

LES CHEVALIERS. Marche Militaire. A thoroughly good and pleasing march. By J. DUVAL. 3s.; post-free for 18 stamps.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

LANGTON WILLIAMS' NEW PIECES.
ON PARADE! March movement.
GOLDEN SUNBEAMS.
MARCH OF THE ELVES.
W. WILLIAMS and Co., 221, Tottenham-court-road.

CHARLES HALLÉ'S PRACTICAL PIANOFORTE SCHOOL.
Section I.—No. 1, PIANOFORTE TUTOR.
Catalogue and all Particulars may be had from FORSYTH BROTHERS, London, 272a, Regent-circus, Oxford-street; Manchester, Cross-street and South King-street; and all Musicsellers.

HELLER'S TRANSCRIPTION for the PIANOFORTE of SCHUBERT'S SONGS. "WANDERING, THE BUTTERFLY, THE HURDY-GURDY Performed by Mr. Charles Hallé. Price 2s. each.
Sold at half price and postage free.
FORSYTH BROTHERS, 272a, Regent-circus, Oxford-street, London; and Cross-street, South King-street, Manchester.

ESPERANZA. New Waltz. By L. LUCIO. Published by WEEKES and Co., Hanover-street, London. Eminently danzante.

PIANINOS, £36.—DEBAIN'S NEW MODEL. Seven Octaves, trichord treble, check action, metal bar, plinth and consoles, &c.—DEBAIN and CO. (Gold Medal, Paris, 1878), 41, Rathbone-place, Oxford-street, W.

PLEYEL WOLFF and CO. Established 1807. Gold Medal, 1827, 1834, 1839, 1844, and 1878. Prize Medal, 1862. Medaille d'Honneur, 1855. Hors de Concours, 1869, 1867, 1873. The sole Agents have every description of these admired PIANOS for SALE or HIRE. Special models in black wood.—170, New Bond-street, W.

FURNISH THROUGHOUT.

SUBSTANTIAL ARTISTIC FURNITURE (Regd.)

OETZMANN & CO.,
HAMPSTEAD-ROAD,
NEAR TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD.

FURNISH THROUGHOUT.—OETZMANN and CO., 67, 69, 71, 73, 77, and 79, HAMPSTEAD ROAD, near Tottenham-court-road. CARPETS, Furniture, Bedding, Drapery, Furnishing Ironmongery, China, Glass, Paper Hangings, Pictures, Bronzes, Clocks, Pianos, &c., and every other requisite for completely furnishing a house throughout. Lowest prices consistent with guaranteed quality.—OETZMANN & CO.

THE "CANTERBURY" EARLY ENGLISH DINING-ROOM SUITE, 20 Guineas, in solid American Walnut or Oak, consisting of a Sideboard with two drawers and cupboards, with bevelled plate-glass back; an extending Dining-Table, Six Chairs, and Two Arm-chairs, seats stuffed, all hair, and covered in leather or Tapestry. Illustrations of this Suite post-free on application.—OETZMANN and CO.

OETZMANN and CO.'S FIVE-GUINEA "NONPAREIL" BEDSTEAD and BEDDING is a marvel of quality and economy combined—consists of a 4 ft. 6 in. wide handsome Brass and Iron French Bedstead, one of O. and Co.'s patent Pallio Mattresses, and a good Wool Upper Mattress, good Feather Bolster, and Two Pillows. Everyone about to furnish should see this excellent set on view in the Show-Rooms. Also, to suit the above, two fine Linen Sheets, one ditto Bolster-case, two ditto Pillow-cases, fine superior quality Blankets, and handsome white Marsella Quilt, for 7ss. 6d. the set.
OETZMANN and CO.

LINOLEUM. — OETZMANN and CO. LINOLEUM.—Warm, soft, carpet-like in appearance, and very durable. Only the best makes sold. Granite (pattern imbedded and ineffaceable) and all the NEW DESIGNS for the Season are now in Stock. A yard of inspection solicited. Prices will be found below those usually charged for this favourite floor-covering. Patterns sent into the country free on application. The Trade supplied.—OETZMANN and CO.

LINEN DEPARTMENT. — Fine White Linen Damask Table Cloth, 2 yards long, 3s. 11d.; 2½ yards long by 2 yards wide, 5s. 11d.; 3 yards by 2½ yards, 8s. 11d.; 3½ yards by 2½ yards, 12s. 6d.; 4 yards by 2½ yards, 15s.; Breakfast Cloths, from 1s. 11d.; strong Linen Kitchen Table Cloths, 1s. 11d. each; stout Huckaback, from 4½d. per yard; Glass Cloths, 4½d. per yard; stout White Calico Sheeting, 76 in. wide, 1s. per yard; 8s in. wide, 1s. 6d. per yard; White Linen Sheeting, 76 in. wide, 1s. 11d.; 86 in. ditto, 2s. 6d. per yard; superior quality ditto, 8s in. wide, 2s. 11d. per yard; Horrocks's Longcloths and Sheetings at the Manufacturer's wholesale prices. Ladies should write for patterns and compare price and quality.
OETZMANN and CO.

CHINA and GLASS DEPARTMENT. Beatrice Pattern Toilet Services (ewer, basin, &c., complete) 5s. 6d.; Cleopatra ditto, 8s. 6d.; Richly-Cut Decanters, 7s. 6d. per pair; Cut Wines, from 2s. 6d. per dozen; superior ditto richly cut, reduced to 4s. 9d. per dozen; Handsome Drawing-Room and Dining-Room Clocks, from 18s. 9d. upwards; Cottage Clocks, from 5s. 9d. each; Elegant Vases, Figures, &c.

POSTAL ORDER DEPARTMENT. OETZMANN and CO.—Orders sent per post, whether large or small, receive prompt and careful attention. Those residing at a distance, or any to whom a personal visit would be inconvenient, desirous of leaving the selection to the firm, may rely upon a faithful attention to their wishes and interests in the selection. This department is personally supervised by a member of the firm, and O. and Co. continually receive numerous letters expressing the greatest satisfaction with the execution of orders so entrusted. Persons residing in Foreign Countries and the Colonies will find great advantages by entrusting their orders to O. and CO. For further particulars please see page 379 in Catalogue, sent free on application.—OETZMANN and CO.

DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE, post-free.

OETZMANN & CO.,
HAMPSTEAD-ROAD.

ELKINGTON and CO.
ELECTRO PLATE.
SILVER PLATE.
CLOCKS and BRONZES.

ELKINGTON and CO.
TESTIMONIAL PLATE.
CUTLERY, &c.
Illustrated Catalogues post-free.
ELKINGTON and CO., 22, Regent-st.; or 42, Moorgate-st., City.

GARDNER'S DINNER and TABLE GLASS SERVICES. Free, graceful, and original designs, of unsurpassed value. Dinner Services, from 21s. Table Glass Services, of the best Crystal, for twelve persons, complete, 65s. Cash discount, 15 per cent. Coloured Photographic Sheets and Illustrated Glass Catalogues post-free.
453 and 454, West Strand, Charing-cross.

D. HULETT.—GASELIERS in CRYSTAL, GLASS and ORMOLU or BRONZE. Medieval Fittings. A large Stock always on View. Every article marked with plain figures.—Manufactory, 55 and 56, High Holborn.

JEWEL ROBBERIES PREVENTED. J. TANN'S RELIANCE SAFES have never failed to resist the attempts of the most determined burglars. Fire-Resisting Safes, £5 5s. Lists free.—1, Newgate-street, E.C.

DIAMONDS.
SAPPHIRES.
CATS'-EYES.
OPALS.
EMERALDS.
Mr. STREETER,
18, New Bond-street, W.
INTRODUCER of 18-CARAT GOLD JEWELLERY and ENGLISH LEVER WATCHES, (MACHINE-MADE.)
BRANCH ESTABLISHMENT, COLOMBO, CEYLON.

WALKER'S CRYSTAL CASE WATCHES are superseding all others. Prize Medals—London, 1862; Paris, 1867. Silver Watches, from £4 4s.; Gold, from £10 10s. Price-Lists sent free.—77, Cornhill; 220, Regent-street; and 76, Strand.

DENT'S WATCHES, CLOCKS, and CHRONOMETERS.—Illustrated Catalogue sent free.—Apply to 61, Strand, or 34, Royal Exchange, London.

THE FINEST WATCHES MADE. | SEWILL'S KEYLESS WATCHES, Prize Medals, London, Paris, and Philadelphia. Damp and Dust-proof, 18-carat cases, adjusted and compensated for all climates, £14 14s., and £25; Ladies', £7 7s., £10 10s., and £18 10s.; in silver cases, for Ladies or Gentlemen, £5 5s., £6 6s., and £8 8s. Forwarded on receipt of remittance.—J. Sewill, 30, Cornhill, London; and 61, South Castle-street, Liverpool.

NOVELTIES IN JEWELLERY. New Styles for 1881, Gold, Silver, and Gem Jewellery of all kinds. New "Pig," "Mouse," &c.; Artificial Diamond Jewellery; Norwegian, Italian, and Mauresque filigree Jewellery; Ladies' Watches, &c. Price-List, 300 Illustrations post-free.—Jewellery Depot, 57, Cambridge-street, Birmingham.

FOR SOUTH AFRICA.—How to get rid of your left-off clothes, jewels, furniture, antique lace, old gold teeth plates, &c. Why send them to the most respectable purchaser, who has paid money for the last fifty years? Before taking them away.—Mr. and Mrs. PHILLIPS, Old Curiosity Shop, 31, Thayer-street, Manchester-square, London, W.

LADIES' ELASTIC SUPPORTING BANDS, for use before and after Accouchement. Instructions for measurement and prices on application to POPE and PLANTE, 4, Waterloo-place, Pall-mall, London.

LONDON: Printed and Published at the Office, 198, Strand, in the Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middlesex, by GEORGE G. LEIGHTON, 198, Strand, aforesaid.—SATURDAY, APRIL 30, 1881.

THE NEW CONSTABLE OF THE TOWER.

General Sir William Fenwick Williams, G.C.B., on whom her Majesty has been pleased to confer the post of Constable of the Tower of London, is the only surviving son of the late Mr. Thomas Williams, of Nova Scotia, and was born in December, 1801. He was educated at the Royal Military Academy, at Woolwich, and entered the Royal Artillery in 1825. He was British Commissioner in Turkey in 1840-3 at the Conferences which preceded the signing the Treaty of Erzeroum, for settling the Turco-Persian frontier, in 1848; and acted as Times' Correspondent with the Turkish forces in 1855. He held the command of the Turkish Army during the siege of Kars, for the defence of which city he was nominated a Knight Commander of the Order of the Bath, created a Baronet, and awarded a pension of £1000 a year, besides being made an Honorary D.C.L. of Oxford, and admitted a freeman of the City of London. He was appointed Commander of Woolwich Garrison in 1856, and Commander of the Artillery in Canada in 1859. He held the Lieutenant-Governorship of Nova Scotia from 1865 to 1869, and commanded the garrison of Gibraltar from 1870 to 1876. From 1856 to 1859 he represented the borough of Calne in Parliament in the Liberal interest. He was promoted to the rank of full General in 1868, and was placed on the retired list in 1877.

The Portrait is from a photograph by Messrs. Maull and Fox.

GENERAL SIR W. FENWICK WILLIAMS, OF KARS, G.C.B., THE NEWLY APPOINTED CONSTABLE OF THE TOWER.

THE CONSPIRACIES IN RUSSIA.

Particulars of the trial and execution of the Nihilists at St. Petersburg found guilty of the conspiracy that effected the assassination, on March 13, of the late Emperor Alexander II., were related in the last three weekly Numbers of this Journal. Our Special Artist who was at St. Petersburg furnishes the two Illustrations that are given this week—the first representing the condemned prisoners on their way to the place of execution, the Semenoffsky Plain, near the Tsarskoe Selo railway station; and the second, their appearance on the scaffold immediately before they were hanged. The portraits of these wretched criminals, which were on the front page of our last publication, had been drawn by our Special Artist during the sittings of the Court, held on Thursday, the 7th inst., and two following days. It was presided over by Prince Peter of Oldenburg, chief judicial member of the Imperial Privy Council, whose portrait we have also given: he was assisted by several members of the Senate and Ministers of State. The verdict and sentence were agreed upon at an early hour of Sunday morning, the 10th, and the sentence was formally announced in Court next day, and was carried into execution on the Friday morning, the 15th inst., about nine o'clock. The six prisoners arraigned, found guilty, and condemned to death were Nicholas Sheliaboff, aged thirty, the manager of the plot; Nicholas Reesakoff, aged twenty-one, who threw one of the bomb-shells; Kibaltchik, a mining engineer, by whom they were manufactured; Gabriel Michaeloff, who carried a bomb-shell to waylay the Emperor in another street; and two women—namely, Sophie Peroffskaya, aged twenty-seven, daughter of an officer of rank; and Hessy Helfmann, a Jewess, who was captured in the house where the bomb-shells and other apparatus of the conspirators were kept. The execution of Hessy Helfmann was postponed, on account of her being with child; but the other five were all hanged at the appointed hour, in the sight of a crowd of fifteen thousand people.

The dismal performance was superintended by General Baranoff, who had a strong guard of Cossacks and infantry of several regiments, and mounted gendarmes. The prisoners were conveyed from the Citadel, or Fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul, in two carts, which are shown in our first Illustration. One cart bore Sheliaboff and Kibaltchik, seated in high iron chairs upon a platform, with their backs to the horses; their arms were tightly pinioned, and their bodies were strapped to the upright iron posts or rods of the chairs. Each was dressed in a black gown, with a flat cap, and had a black board tied to his breast, with the words in large white letters, "Assassin of the Czar." The second cart brought three prisoners, the woman Peroffskaya seated between Reesakoff and Michaeloff, all fastened to their seats in the same manner, but her dress was rather different. Surrounding them was a strong escort of Cossacks and infantry, with drums and fifes playing a lively tune, and preceded by mounted gendarmes. The prisoners were unbound and led up the steps on to the scaffold by the executioner and his assistants. With the exception of Reesakoff, who seemed very feeble, they all showed remarkable firmness and resignation. The woman appeared the calmest of all, and it was noticeable that she even retained a slight colour in her cheeks to the last. Five priests in purple caps mounted the scaffold and presented a cross, which all the prisoners reverently kissed, showing that all sense of religion had not been obliterated by their subversive theories and crimes. This action is shown in our Artist's second sketch of the melancholy affair. The prisoners were then allowed to kiss each other. A word or two passed between them; but the beating of the drums, which now began and lasted till the execution was finished, effectually drowned every other sound. The prisoners were placed under the beam, and each had his head covered with a white hood attached to a kind of sack. Each one, beginning with Kibaltchik and ending with Recsakoff, was led to the top of a small stool with steps; the rope was then drawn tight round one of the supporting beams, and the culprit was left to strangle by the stool being withdrawn from under him. All the prisoners remained firm and imperturbable till the last moment. Recsakoff alone appeared to faint before the stool was taken away. In the case of Michaeloff, the rope broke twice, apparently, before the hangman completed the task. It is said, however, that the executioner was drunk, and that he has been punished with a severe flogging.

THE CONSPIRACIES IN ST. PETERSBURG: THE NIHILISTS CARRIED TO EXECUTION.

"ACADEMY NOTES."

The sketches that occupy a page of this week's publication may as well borrow this title from a recognised budget of art-criticism which usually accompanies the opening of the Burlington House Exhibition in the first week of May. But they pretend only to give a few humorous suggestions of the various experiences of artists and their friends, from the different reception accorded by "the Hanging Committee"—an awful tribunal with a dreadful name—to the pictures which have been sent in for exhibition. Partial glimpses of some official notes and circulars appear in the corners of the page; these are from the secretary of the Royal Academy writing in the name of the President and Council, either to signify their acceptance of the picture in question, and to invite the joyful artist, if he thinks it needful, to do the varnishing, or to add some finishing touches; or else—to Mr. Smudge and Mr. Vandyke Brown a horrible alternative—informing those gentlemen that the Council do not appreciate their works, and requesting that they may be fetched home "as soon as convenient." Those solitary figures in their lonely apartments—the one who is suffering great anxiety because he feels his chance is "doubtful," the other deep in despair, already knowing his picture to be "rejected"—will not in vain appeal to the sympathy of the gentle reader. But even among the more fortunate or more deserving "accepted," who have been admitted within the stately saloons of Burlington House for the preliminary inspection of their own works and others displayed on the walls, there are sometimes, it is to be feared, real occasions of discontent, from the exigencies of space making it impossible to do equal justice to all. One will be "skied," another will be "floored," being suspended either too high or too low for conveniently looking at it, and possibly deprived of its due effect as a composition by the improper point of view. The artist and his particular admirers, in such a case, including perhaps the owner of the picture, if it should have been painted to order, will naturally be inclined to think that the Royal Academy Exhibition of this year is "not a good Exhibition." On the other hand, in the opinion of any gentleman or lady painter whose work is placed "on the line," confronting the eyes of the spectator at a direct level, the selection and arrangement of the whole Exhibition will seem to have been most judiciously managed.

THE EARTHQUAKE IN CHIOS.

Some accounts of the terrible calamity that befell the island of Chios, or Scio, near the coast of Asia Minor, by the earthquake on Sunday, the 10th inst., have appeared in this Journal, with views of different places there, to which are now added four sketches, by a correspondent there, showing the ruins of the houses destroyed; the principal street and market-place, called Aploteria; the square in front of the Turkish Governor's Palace; and the quay, with distressed people, some days afterwards, watching for the arrival of a vessel to bring them relief; also a religious procession of the rural peasantry, with their priests, going to pray for Divine help in their great affliction.

A witness of the disaster at the seaport town of Castro says he had finished dinner, and was without his coat, just about to take a nap, when hearing an awful booming sound, and feeling the house, which was one story high, beginning to shake, he placed himself in a doorway. The walls fell down, and the roof, which was a flat terrace, opened, and through the cloud of dust which rose he dimly saw the open heavens above him. Disengaging himself from the stones and mortar, which reached nearly to his knees, he clambered up on to the top of the ruins of his dwelling. No sooner had he emerged than a girl called to him, "Come, Sir, do come, and help me save my mother." Yielding to the entreaties of the girl, who rushed in over the ruins of the next house; he followed her, and saw the mother with her feet fastened down, her head covered with dust and dirt, and feebly moving her hand in the effort to rise. Telling the girl to take her mother's hand, he disengaged the feet, and together they dragged her out, and washing her face revealed frightful bruises. While waiting upon her a father came up with his two children, one of whom was dead and the other apparently so, though a little cold water dashed on his face brought him to his senses. All this happened in ten minutes from the first shock. A second booming sound was heard, and the downfall of other houses and walls, tottering in consequence of the first shock, was seen. The narrator made his way to the Quarantine Office, running up and down over ruins of houses piled in the street, meeting only one fugitive like himself. Here he remained some little time, until a third shock occurred, when he, with others, got a boatman to take him on board a small steamer then in the roadstead. While in the steamer the awful roaring continued, and for a few minutes a cloud of smoke burst from the slope at the back of the town and then ceased. The captain of a Greek tug which was preparing to leave happened to be at the Custom-house. He describes the buildings as veering first one side and then the other, and then he felt a violent upheaving of the ground. He ran towards the sea, and in passing saw a balcony fall from a house and kill a woman and child, who were running away. Heavy iron pipes which were lying at the Custom-house were knocked against each other by the vibrations of the heaving ground. Thick clouds of dust rose from the ruins, from out of which could be heard cries for help—"Save me, save me; I am not dead." Those who succeeded in getting clear ran towards the seashore, jumping into boats and small craft which were near. Others dashed down the road leading to the outskirts, scrambling over stones and ruins, from which shrieks were still proceeding, and passing on the way bodies of the wounded and dying.

The greatest damage has been done in the southern part of the island, some of the villages having suffered even more than the town. It is thought that the killed and injured amount to at least five thousand, two thousand in the town, and the rest in the villages.

It was reported at a meeting of the executive committee of the Chios Relief Fund, held at the Mansion House on Monday, that the fund announced by the Lord Mayor amounted to £16,850, of which £10,000 had already been remitted. This was exclusive of collections being made at the Stock Exchange, the Baltic, and other commercial centres. The Prime Minister had written for information, and on receipt of it had contributed £50 personally and £200 from the Royal Bounty Fund.

RECENT AFRICAN TRAVELLERS.

Dr. Emil Holub, who was received in London by the Royal Geographical Society with some acclamation, relates the experiences and discoveries of his Seven Years in South Africa; and the English translation, by Miss Ellen Frewer, fills two volumes just published by Messrs. Sampson Low and Co. In July, 1872, this enterprising and scientific medical man arrived at the Diamond-Fields of West Griqua Land; but, finding small practice for his professional skill, soon set off to explore the interior wilderness. He went up through the country west of the Transvaal, among the Batlapins and Barolongs and the Bamangwato farther north, visiting King Sechele and King Khame, the sons of Sekhomo, of whom we have heard from Captain Parker Gilmore, as well as from our lamented friend Thomas Baines. A second journey from Dutoitspan northward brought Dr. Holub far past Shoshong and the Bamangwato people, to the great river Zambesi, in about the eighteenth degree of south latitude, above the wondrous Victoria Falls. We were, indeed, already somewhat acquainted with that region and with its inhabitants, the Makalaka, from the information given long ago by Dr. Livingstone, and Mr. Baines. There is little positively new ground of exploration in Dr. Holub's field of travel; but he is a competent observer, a naturalist, and botanist, and was enabled to gain much acquaintance with the native tribes, who are chiefly of the Bechuana race. The two volumes are illustrated with a great number of wood engravings from the author's drawings of various scenes and objects of curiosity; whilst the style of writing, as preserved in this translation, is agreeably smooth and simple.

A higher degree of importance belongs to the geographical explorations of Major Alexander Serpa Pinto, the renowned Portuguese traveller, whose achievements vie with those of Mr. H. M. Stanley and Captain V. L. Cameron in traversing the breadth of "the Dark Continent" between the Atlantic and the Indian Ocean. How I Crossed Africa (Sampson Low and Co.) is not the title of the author's own choice for these volumes; and we do not think it in the best taste, reminding us, as it does, of "How I Found Livingstone;" but its purport is exactly what Major Serpa Pinto did. "Across Africa" would have answered quite as well, but that Cameron had used this title before. Major Serpa Pinto at first meant to call his book "The King's Rifle," having dedicated it, with sincerely patriotic and soldierly loyalty, to his Majesty Dom Louis of Portugal, in whose service he was proud to bear arms, as an officer of the 12th and 4th Chasseurs; but he was advised that such a title, for London book-publishing and advertising, would be too enigmatical. His work, having been written in Portuguese, is now first published in English, being translated from his manuscript by Mr. Alfred Elwes. We are sure that it will be perused with great interest by all readers who care for African geography. His first African experience was in 1869, in military duty on the Zambesi and the Mozambique coast. In 1877, he went out again from Portugal, but this time to the east coast of Lower Africa, to the provinces of Angola and Benguella, with an appointment to conduct an exploring expedition thence to the Zambesi. He arrived just in time to meet Mr. H. M. Stanley, of the Daily Telegraph and New York Herald, who had then effected his memorable journey from Zanzibar in the opposite direction, finding the true course of the Congo, and following it down to the Atlantic. Major Serpa Pinto, who greeted Mr. Stanley with enthusiastic admiration, soon began his own remarkable performance of inland travel. It led him up the country from Benguella, by successive rising terraces of uplands, crossing several tributary streams, to Bihé, of which Cameron has told us; then onward to the Liambai and other great affluents of the Zambesi, which had not previously been explored. Some of his personal adventures were sufficiently interesting. Among the Ambuellas, for example, a people of rather wild notions concerning domestic points of honour, the Major had much difficulty, as he says, in escaping from the amorous persecutions of the king's daughters. It was a very odd chance, again, that made him find in the coat-pocket of an old Portuguese uniform, worn by a negro prince of Central Africa, a billet doux bearing the name of one of his own friends at home, upon which he indulges in a little pleasantry. The title first proposed for his narrative is explained by relating how, when robbed and deserted by his servants, he luckily preserved a rifle which the King of Portugal had given him, and by which, having powder and lead, he could kill game for his support. He met with two English naturalists, Dr. B. F. Bradshaw and Alexander Walsh, near Luchuma, on the river Cuando, where he was hospitably entertained by a French missionary, M. François Coillard, whose wife and niece likewise most kindly took care of the sick and destitute stranger. This place is in the neighbourhood of the Great Zambesi Falls, which are named Mosi-oa-Tunia in the language of that country, and of which the author gives a minute description. He made his way southward, through the land of the Manguato or Bamangwato, noticed above in Dr. Emil Holub's book, to the recently annexed province of the Transvaal. With the Boers, or Dutch farmers of that country, to whom the British Government has been so mistakenly and disastrously opposed, Major Serpa Pinto had a great deal of friendly intercourse. He speaks very well of their character and behaviour, and indignantly protests against "those who systematically slander them." A Portuguese military officer, with many personal acquaintances of high position in English and colonial society, and bearing only goodwill to the British Government, is likely to be an impartial witness in favour of the Boers. We take leave of Major Serpa Pinto with thanks for the instructive entertainment he has provided in these volumes. They are furnished with fifteen sectional maps and about 130 illustrations, and with geodetical and meteorological tables.

The perplexing relations of different races of the population in South Africa have, within three or four years past, brought an enormous amount of trouble, expense, and bloodshed, with no small discredit, to the British Government and nation. Public opinion in this country is still far from a correct understanding of that "three-cornered problem," as Mr. F. Reginald Statham calls it, which is expounded in his bright and clever book, a volume published by Macmillan and Co., entitled Blacks, Boers, and British. With reference to the first term of this alliterative title, it is scarcely needful to remark that the Zulus and most of the Kaffirs are not exactly "blacks;" but that common term, or sometimes even its contemptuous equivalent, "niggers," has long been currently applied to all native African people. It may also be objected to the third term, "British," that it fails to include some considerable parts of the European colonial community. Not to speak of many French and Germans, there are among the Dutch inhabitants of the Western Province numerous families whose urbane condition and habits of life would seem to distinguish them from the Boers. The truth is, that the Cape Colony is extremely mixed, putting the Kaffirs and other native races aside; and it is chiefly in a few commercial towns, along the eastward seacoast or at some inland centres of traffic, that the British residents prevail. The South African agricultural interest, to a large extent, remains in the possession of the Dutch, whose political and social importance may be expected to increase rather than diminish. This is not, in so many words, the express verdict of Mr. Statham, but it is a judgment much confirmed by the incidental observations to be noticed in his interesting book. We would commend it to the serious reflection of those who are just now inclined to censure Mr. Gladstone's Government for the easy mess with which it has concluded the pacification of the Transvaal. Entire freedom to manage their own affairs, whether separately or in a confederation of their own choice and device, but with an Imperial "suzerainty" of the British Crown for the mere purpose of excluding any other Great Power, must henceforth be allowed to each of the European communities in South Africa—to the Cape Colony, as well as to the Orange Free State and the Transvaal, though Natal is in a different position. The less the Colonial Office has to do with them, the better for them and for us, though Mr. Statham's denunciation of that Office as "the Curse of South Africa," strikes the English reader as somewhat too harsh and severe. We should say, however, that the worst errors it has committed, or rather permitted, of late years, such as the Zulu War and the Annexation of the Transvaal, arose from the absence of Foreign Office action in that part of the world. The relations of our Government with King Cetewayo, and with the independent Republic administered by President Burgers, ought to have been treated by our Foreign Department, which should have employed its own political and consular agents in both those countries. Where the Colonial department has restricted its activity to the ordinary superintendence of what are really British provinces, its functions have, in most instances, been for some time past fairly performed. Apart from this ground of exception, we are disposed to accept Mr. Statham's views of South African politics as nearer the truth than any to be met with in recent books and magazine articles. He was, during two or three years, from 1877 to 1879, editor of the Natal Witness, and strongly opposed to the proceedings of Sir Bartle Frere, who arrived there in September, 1878. But the author has further had an opportunity of making personal acquaintance with the people and affairs of Capetown and the Western Province. His descriptions also of the local scenery about the Cape, of Table Mountain, and the neighbouring farms and vineyards, as well as the aspects of the shore at Port Elizabeth and Port Natal, and the experiences of passengers landing there, are written in a lively and entertaining style.

Our latest book of African travel is a volume by Mr. Alexander W. Mitchinson, The Expiring Continent; A Narrative of Travel in Senegambia (W. H. Allen and Co.). Let us hope that Africa is not quite in so bad a plight as to deserve this unpropitious title. It is, perhaps, not fair to judge of the general prospects of the whole Continent by what lies between the Senegal and the Gambia; but we believe that Mr. Mitchinson has also visited some other parts. His European experiences, as he frankly admits, were gained in an eastern province of Russia, which may account for his adopting a different standard, in his estimation of the state of a country, from that of ordinary Englishmen. But he is a thoughtful and benevolent observer of the habits of mankind, and he deplores the terrible waste of life in West Africa from neglect of the laws of health in Europeans, and from their want of humane consideration for the negro races. The French and English settlements in that region do not seem to be in a condition altogether creditable to the civilising influences of European colonisation and commerce. There is but too much ground for the complaint that the country and the native population are getting rather worse than better. If the author had called this book "The Expiring Colonies," more especially referring to the British establishments on the Gambia and at Sierra Leone, he would have had some justification. We invite the reader who feels due concern in this serious problem, and who seeks information about Senegambia, to peruse the statements of Mr. Mitchinson, which appear well worthy of attention. The volume has a map of his route and a few other illustrations.

THE CENSUS.

The day Census for the City began to be taken on Monday, and the enumeration continued for five days. About one hundred enumerators have been engaged on the work, under the superintendence of the ward clerks, and during the five days every house in the City has been canvassed, except a few public buildings specified in the schedule. All persons "engaged, occupied, or employed" in the City have been reckoned. In the instructions to the ward clerks and other enumerators it is particularly stated that—"The day Census is intended to comprise every person, male or female, of all ages, residing, engaged, occupied, or employed in each and every house, warehouse, shop, manufactory, workshop, counting-house, office, chambers, stable, wharf, &c., and to include all persons of both sexes and all ages on the premises during the working hours of the day, whether they sleep or do not sleep there. As the Imperial Census gathers every person on the premises during the night, it is the object of this Census to enumerate every person, male and female, young and old, upon the premises during the day.

Some of the present returns have reached us. The population of Hull is 153,353, an increase of 31,461 over that of 1871; Wolverhampton numbers 75,576, as compared with 68,279 at the last Census; Southampton has a population of 52,541, an increase of 4999; the population of Leicester has increased from 95,220 in 1871 to 122,351 in 1881; Barrow-in-Furness contains a population of 47,002, against 19,000 in 1871; the population of Coventry is 45,199, in 1871 it was 40,109; that of Preston is 96,855, an increase of 11,098 as compared with the preceding Census; Eastbourne has increased to 21,510, from 10,342; Faversham has now a population of 9433, an increase of 1512; Reigate, including Redhill, has increased from 15,900 to 18,650; and Wolverhampton has 75,576, being 7297 more than in 1871.

The result of the Census in Scotland, so far as the chief centres of population are concerned, has been made public. Out of 160 burghs and populous parishes there is an increase of population in 125, and a decrease in 35, and the total gain amounts to 243,000. In Edinburgh the population is set down at 225,435, being an increase of 28,447 since 1871. In Glasgow it is 555,289; Dundee, 140,463; Aberdeen, 105,818; Greenock, 67,427; Leith, 60,033; Paisley, 55,587; Perth, 29,853; Kilmarnock, 25,816; Arbroath, 21,700; Ayr, 20,819.

Professor Huxley and Mr. Spottiswoode will give the evening discourses at the meeting of the British Association at York. Mr. Huxley will speak of the Rise and Progress of Palæontology on Sept. 2; and Mr. Spottiswoode on the Electric Discharge, its Forms and its Functions, on Sept. 5.

The Charity Commissioners, in their report for the year 1880, just issued, state that the total sum of stocks and investments held by the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds on Dec. 31, 1880, amounted to £9,589,258, divided into 10,638 separate accounts. The total number of charities now recorded on the register is 9154. The Commissioners dwell on the necessity for a revision of charitable trusts.

FINE ARTS.

INSTITUTE OF PAINTERS IN WATER-COLOURS.

The exhibition of the junior water-colour society suffers from the absence of Messrs. Herkomer, Gow, and other leading members, and is scarcely of average interest. Only a very moderate proportion of the works would satisfy requirements more severe than those of amateurs and amateur critics. Insufficient training, the lack of serious study, the superficiality and conventionality which the facilities afforded by water-colours are apt to foster, are but too generally apparent. However we may vaunt our so-called "national art," such defects and deficiencies, at all events, are not presented in the productions of French painters in oil, who occasionally turn to water-colours as a délassement—a fact of which we were forcibly reminded the other day when inspecting the Exhibition of the New Society of Aquarellistes at Paris.

There are, however, a few works here—one especially by E. J. Gregory—which would well bear comparison, on their own ground, with the thoroughly studied and accomplished productions of the Leloirs, Vibert, and other artists of the Rue Lafitte. The picture (for it is this in every sense) by Mr. Gregory, to which we refer, represents an artist holding palette and brush, poising himself backward in his chair before a painting (already framed, to judge of its final effect), to which with almost painful critical deliberation he is giving the "Last Touches" (144). The usual artistic properties are scattered about the room; the model, a pretty girl in a low dress, now at length dispensed with, stands behind before the fire-place. Drawing, foreshortening, colour, tone, execution, are all equally soignés, and the result is a harmonious completeness that we rarely see, even in cabinet oil-pictures, in the English school. Careful thoroughness and artistic qualities of colour and tone will also be found in two costume single figures by J. D. Linton, of which, however, that called "Janet Foster, from 'Kenilworth'" (137), is by far the preferable. It is free from the customary blackness; the costume is less obtrusive and cumbrous than usual; with no story to tell, we have not to note any failure of dramatic conception; and the face is exquisitely modelled. "Behind Time" (44), by C. Green—a lean old prig, extensively got up in a costume of the Directory, waiting, with offended dignity, in vain at a rendezvous—is likewise painstakingly finished, but not without hardness—to say nothing of the tendency to caricature. Careful, again, though technically rather inferior, is Townely Green's little drawing (67) of a young woman "talking over" an obstructive papa.

The two distinguished draughtsmen for the wood engraver, William Simpson and John Tenniel, are represented, and advantageously. Mr. Simpson (to whom this Journal owes so much) is, we suppose, the greatest traveller of the age; the fruits of travel he has made doubly his own by archæological studies, and all his rare lore he is now bringing to the illustration of themes so much out of the beaten track as "Herodotus Consulting with the Priests of Vulcan, or Ptah, at Memphis" (28), and "Mani, or, 'Praying Wheel' (or—as the artist tells us, the cylinder turned by the priests before the image of Buddha would more correctly be described—'Praising Wheel'), Soonum, Himalayas" (156)—both of which will be found full of interest to the learned in Egyptian and Indian mythologies. If, with the artist's very adequate faculty of colour, he continues thus to embody pictorially his stores of out-of-the-way knowledge, he will yet add largely to the instruction and delight of the public. Mr. Tenniel is quite at home in his amusing illustration of Gil Blas—showing how the conceited young hero "arrayed himself in the blue velvet" (178), and the colouring is in an agreeable key. C. J. Staniland, another of the many illustrators of periodicals and books in this society, works the vein of humour he had already struck in a drawing of an old superior of a monastery, who evidently deems himself sufficiently burdened with his own fat, leading homewards a string of his brethren heavily laden with faggots, as he moralises on the proverb that "Labour is Worship" (172). A very pleasing drawing is Mary L. Gow's figure of a little girl sitting wistfully over the book containing the lesson she has to "learn by heart" (185). Very nice, too, is E. Bale's little fair girl in black (149); but "Enid" (68), by the same artist, is spoiled by apparently aiming to reproduce the colour combination of a passing fashion. H. Carter does not lose his individuality this time in that of Israels; and his "Qui-est-ce?" (79), a mother holding a looking-glass before her child, is more than usually acceptable. Imagination is a faculty so rarely displayed by our painters that attention is due to Mr. H. J. Stock's attempts to deal with legendary, mystical, and allegorical romance—see his scenes from "Undine" (121), "Faust" (142), &c.—especially when accompanied, as is the case in this instance, by low, rich, mellow harmony of colouring. Proportionately to the elevation of aim, however, must the test be raised; and at present the artist's conceptions are too matter-of-fact, and essentially, therefore, hardly imaginative. He has to beware of the narrow limit between the sublime and the ridiculous, and to remember that often in the treatment of such themes the part is greater than the whole. There are artistic qualities in G. Clausen's "Gaywood Almshouses, King's Lynn" (31); W. Small's "Low Tide" (38)—the colour, however, lacks refinement; and L. Smythe's "Carol Singers" (130), though, we must add, a trifle disappointing, as also is T. Walter Wilson's "Latest Novel" (90). No. 158, by F. W. W. Topham, is a replica of one of the artist's pictures in last year's Academy. It will suffice to mention Louis Haghe's large drawing of the "Christening of the Prince of Wales" (52), which the artist has often far surpassed; lifesize female heads by W. L. Thomas and Miss Emily Farmer; "The Game Bag" (81), by J. Hardy; and figure contributions by several of the elder members. The Princess Imperial of Germany (Princess Royal) has sent a study of a male head, smoothed with a cowl of mediæval shape (95), frank and vigorous in execution, and altogether an advance on last year's study.

Turning to the landscapes—in which the display of the Institute is in all senses less important than that of the Old Society—Mr. H. G. Hine still maintains the foremost place with his favourite subjects, mostly from the southern counties—in virtue of their reposeful breadth of treatment and their tenderness of aerial effect—qualities so estimable that we hesitate to say that a little less monotony, a little more accentuation of touch, especially in the foreground, a little more, in short, of the artistic charm that accompanies a less impassive—that is to say, a spontaneous and autographic expression of a painter's personal impressions and emotions, may be desiderated. Mr. Harry Hine is making marked progress, and in the direction in which his father has led the way. The view of Durham (33) and other of his drawings are very happy in their atmospheric effects. J. Aumonier's panoramic view of "Chelsea from Battersea Park" (24) is not a little admirable for its broad treatment of the effect of serene slightly veiled sunlight. "The Gate Tower of Bodiam Castle" (98), relieved against a twilight sky, by R. K. Penson, despite a rather amateur-like air in the workmanship, strikes us as possessing true sentiment—which can be said of too little professional work. Several drawings of river and coast scenes, by Walter W. May, well deserve notice, though from the modesty of their merit they may have to be sought for; the "Calm on the Scheldt" (92) being particularly felicitous.

By T. Collier there is an extremely powerful, dashing view on a heath, called "Carting Gravel" (148)—owing, of course, its inspiration to David Cox, though just missing the beauty of colour and tenderness that usually reconciles the eye to the most "blottesque" exploits of Mr. Collier's model. Other followers in the same path—to wit, J. Orrock—who, though less forcible, has a nicer sense of gradation—J. W. Wymper, and E. M. Wimperis, are also fairly represented, though we may (as their drawings do not seem to demand detailed notice) simply commend them to the visitor. And in the same general commendation must—in view of failing space—be included the marine pieces, not less spirited than usual, of E. Hayes, the very effective, if somewhat conventional landscapes of J. Syer; E. Hargitt's masculine Scotch drawings—best of them perhaps No. 176, with deer on the hill top sniffing the "East Wind" that throws an ominous haze athwart the sun; J. Mogford's calm radiant "Summer Morning, Lochfyne" (126); and bit of sentiment (a rare thing with him) styled "Au Clair de Lune" (206); Harry Johnson's pleasing drawing of "Narni;" "Harrowing in Normandy" (124), with a well foreshortened team, by R. Beavis; W. Wild's views in Venice and Algiers; J. Fahey's "Whitby" (104), the best drawing we have seen by this artist for some time; J. Fulleylove's studies at Nismes and in Italy (which have, however, prompted a sad fiasco in the shape of a composition somewhat à la Turner—No. 75); Mrs. E. Murray's "Old Palace, Venice" (113); contributions by Messrs. Leitch, Vacher, Mole, and Philp; flower-pieces by Mr. Duffield, and still-life by J. Sherrin.

---

The usual art-exhibition will not take place at Lowther Lodge this year.

The private view of the Grosvenor Gallery Exhibition is appointed for to-day, Saturday. The public will be admitted next Monday.

The members of the Royal Academy will meet on the evening of the 5th prox. in order to elect two Royal Academicians and a Royal Academician Engraver.

The Clothworkers' Company have offered to the School of Practical Fine-Art, King's College, London, three prizes of the value of ten guineas, the particulars of which may be obtained of Professor Delamotte or the secretary.

The second exhibition of the City of London Society of Artists is now open at the hall of the Skinners' Company, Dowgate-hill. The collection is an improvement on that of last year—fairly creditable as the first exhibition was to all concerned.

The Skinners' Company have voted a subscription of £500 per annum in aid of the funds of the City and Guilds of London Institute for the Advancement of Technical Education. All the "twelve" companies have now joined the association except the Grocers and Merchant Taylors'.

A new exhibition, which is likely to attract members of Parliament, lawyers, and other busy men about Westminster, as well as some of the inhabitants of Lambeth, is to be opened in May, by the St. Stephen's Art Society. It will be held annually in a large room facing Westminster Hall. The subscribing members (250 in number) will occasionally change their pictures and will exhibit portfolios of sketches.

The Richmond Industrial and Fine-Art Loan Exhibition, which was opened at the spacious assembly rooms of the Castle Hotel, Richmond, last week by Princess Mary Adelaide, is certainly one of the largest and most successful of its kind ever held in the suburbs of London, and has been visited by an immense number of people resident in the neighbourhood. The subscriptions and entrance money will enable the committee to award a number of valuable prizes, for which there is a keen competition in the classes of the industrial section.

Among the many excellent illustrated works issued by the enterprising publishers of America, The Native Flowers and Ferns of the United States must take a high place. It is a work in two handsome volumes, well printed on good paper, the illustrations being beautifully executed by chromolithography. While it will satisfy the scientific botanist, it cannot fail to interest and delight all who love the beautiful works of nature as found in the wonderful variety of form and colour of flowers. The London agents for the book are Messrs. Ackerman, 191, Regent-street.

Mr. Vernon Heath invites public attention to a collection, with many new additions, of his photographs of landscapes and sylvan scenery, obtained from "enlargements" by the autotype permanent process, now on view at his rooms in Piccadilly. Bearing in mind the extraordinarily large dimensions of many of these photographs, their union of clearness and force, with range and delicacy of gradation, is worthy of the highest praise; all things considered, they are the finest landscape photographs we have seen, and probably photography under its present conditions cannot be carried farther.

The Magazine of Art for May is certainly the most striking number that has yet been issued. The engravings are excellent; and among them is a very remarkable design by Mr. Herkomer, being a small version of a gigantic picture that may now be seen upon the London hoardings. The attempt to introduce good art into advertising posters is, no doubt, laudable; but if the aim of a posting-bill is to attract the attention of the passer-by, that end, we fear, is oftener attained by a loud and startling picture, wholly wanting in artistic merit. Mr. Herkomer's design is too good for the purpose.

The annual general meeting of the members of the London Art-Union was held on Tuesday at the Adelphi Theatre, under the presidency of Mr. Godwin, F.R.S. The report of the council for the past year showed that the subscriptions amounted to £11,940. There had been allotted for prizes £4317; for providing works of art for accumulated payments, £584. The drawing for the prizes subscribed for last year was proceeded with, and it was subsequently announced that Mr. W. G. Chovill, of Chetwynde-road, was entitled to the original of the picture of the year, "The Loss of the Revenge;" and the £200 prize was won by Mr. C. B. Hall, of Quebec.

At Mr. Lefèvre's, King-street, St. James's, are on view the two large important pictures by Mdlle. Rosa Bonheur, for which the artist received the Order of Leopold from the King of the Belgians. Both subjects are drawn from the Forest of Fontainebleau, Mdlle. Bonheur's favourite residence. The one entitled "On the Alert" represents a noble stag in a glade of beeches, drawn up to his full height, with distended eye-balls, sniffing the air. The other, called "A Foraging Party," shows a huge wild boar and his mate (with another boar in the middle distance) forcing their resistless way through the ferns, and birch-stems, and among the grey rocks, and tall oak-trunks, characteristic of the famous forest. These pictures, the latter especially, well support the artist's great reputation, and the engravings of them, which are to be produced by Mr. Lefèvre, will doubtless prove worthy both of the painter and the publisher.

A MAY GARLAND.

There are not many, now, of our pretty country maids to whom May Day is the "maddest, merriest day" of all the glad New Year—that is, in the Laureate's meaning of the words. The May-games that delighted the hearts of our forefathers no longer find favour in what used to be called "Merrie England." There is no time in this practical age of ours to keep up old customs. The high pressure of the nineteenth century laughs to scorn such primitive nonsense as dancing round garlanded poles on village greens: at any rate, on the village greens near London. The rural festival of the First of May which, through a long line of centuries, was wont to be kept up, year after year, with music, song, and dance, with feasting and high revel, has dwindled into a feeble attempt at gaiety by some town chimney-sweeps.

But in out-of-the-way corners of the country, we may still find girls so simple and unsophisticated as to care about being made "queens o' the May," and having their brows encircled by floral diadems. How lovely are these May garlands!—and how charmingly they become the fresh young faces of the crowned! Well may the rustic queens be proud of their election, since they must be fair indeed to be counted worthy of wearing coronets composed of some of Flora's choicest gifts. For are not some of the flowers with which the queens o' the May are crowned the sweetest and daintiest blossoms of all the year?

In addition to the violets and primroses which have been blooming all through tearful April, we have now, on the very threshold of May, some charming wildings that are even more suggestive of green lanes and dewy glades. For, though there is no flower of spring or summer more universally beloved than our sweet-scented violet and pale primrose, these darling heralds of the spring are common to our gardens as well as to the whole country-side: whereas some of the bells and flores now in bloom are rarely seen away from their rural haunts. Primroses, of course, deck every May-queen's crown; but there are also flowers in that spring chaplet that one must go right away from towns to find; some of which we shall find in pastures and meadows, some on the lane-banks beneath the green hedges, some in the woods that are at last becoming tinged with verdure, and some by the river-side.

First, let us see what they get for their garlands in the meadows, which April rains have made so fresh and green. Cowslips, you may be sure; for what spring chaplet would be complete without these pretty yellow things, whose very name is at once suggestive of luxuriant meadows, and stiles, and days of childhood: those happy days when we really believed that tiny Ariels slept in the cowslip bells at night, and that the dewdrops we found hanging there like pearls in the morning had been placed there by the elfin sprites for their morning ablutions! The pale lilac blossoms of the "lady's smock," or cuckoo-flower, and perhaps the pinky pendant flowers of the columbine, attract our attention in the meadows, and the prim little yellow "mouse-ear," and the star of Bethlehem; but, in the pasture lands, it is unquestionably the cowslip which is prime favourite.

On the lane-banks violets are sure to greet us; but not those little perfumed things which Shakspeare says are "sweeter than the lids of Juno's eyes, or Cytherea's breath." It is getting too late in the spring to find the sweet-scented variety; but the dog-violets, which are larger and handsomer than the sweet-scented, are now in flower, "gleaming like amethysts in the dewy moss." But though the bluer, more transparent-looking flowers of the dog-violets surpass in appearance their congeners of the early days of Spring, they have no fragrance, and so, after all, seem but a poor exchange. However, the primrose, that sweet companion of the early Spring violet, is still in bloom, and its pale sulphur petals are such a pretty contrast to the blue of the dog-violets, that we forget the latter have no scent, and, twining them in our chaplet, let them borrow fragrance from our primroses and cowslips and other blossoms which we have still to pick. There are many pretty little modest flowers on the lane-banks so hidden amid other plants, under shelter of the hedges, as almost to escape our notice; but we can scarcely overlook the starlike, pure white blossoms of the stellaria, or the heavenly blue of the little speedwell, or the pink, rose-tinted flowers of "ragged robin," which latter, growing in loose panicles at the extremity of their long stems, are as suspicious almost as the primroses themselves. And in the lane-sides, we are sure to notice the pink stem, beautifully cut leaves, and pink-veined corollas of the pretty cranesbill, or herb-Robert.

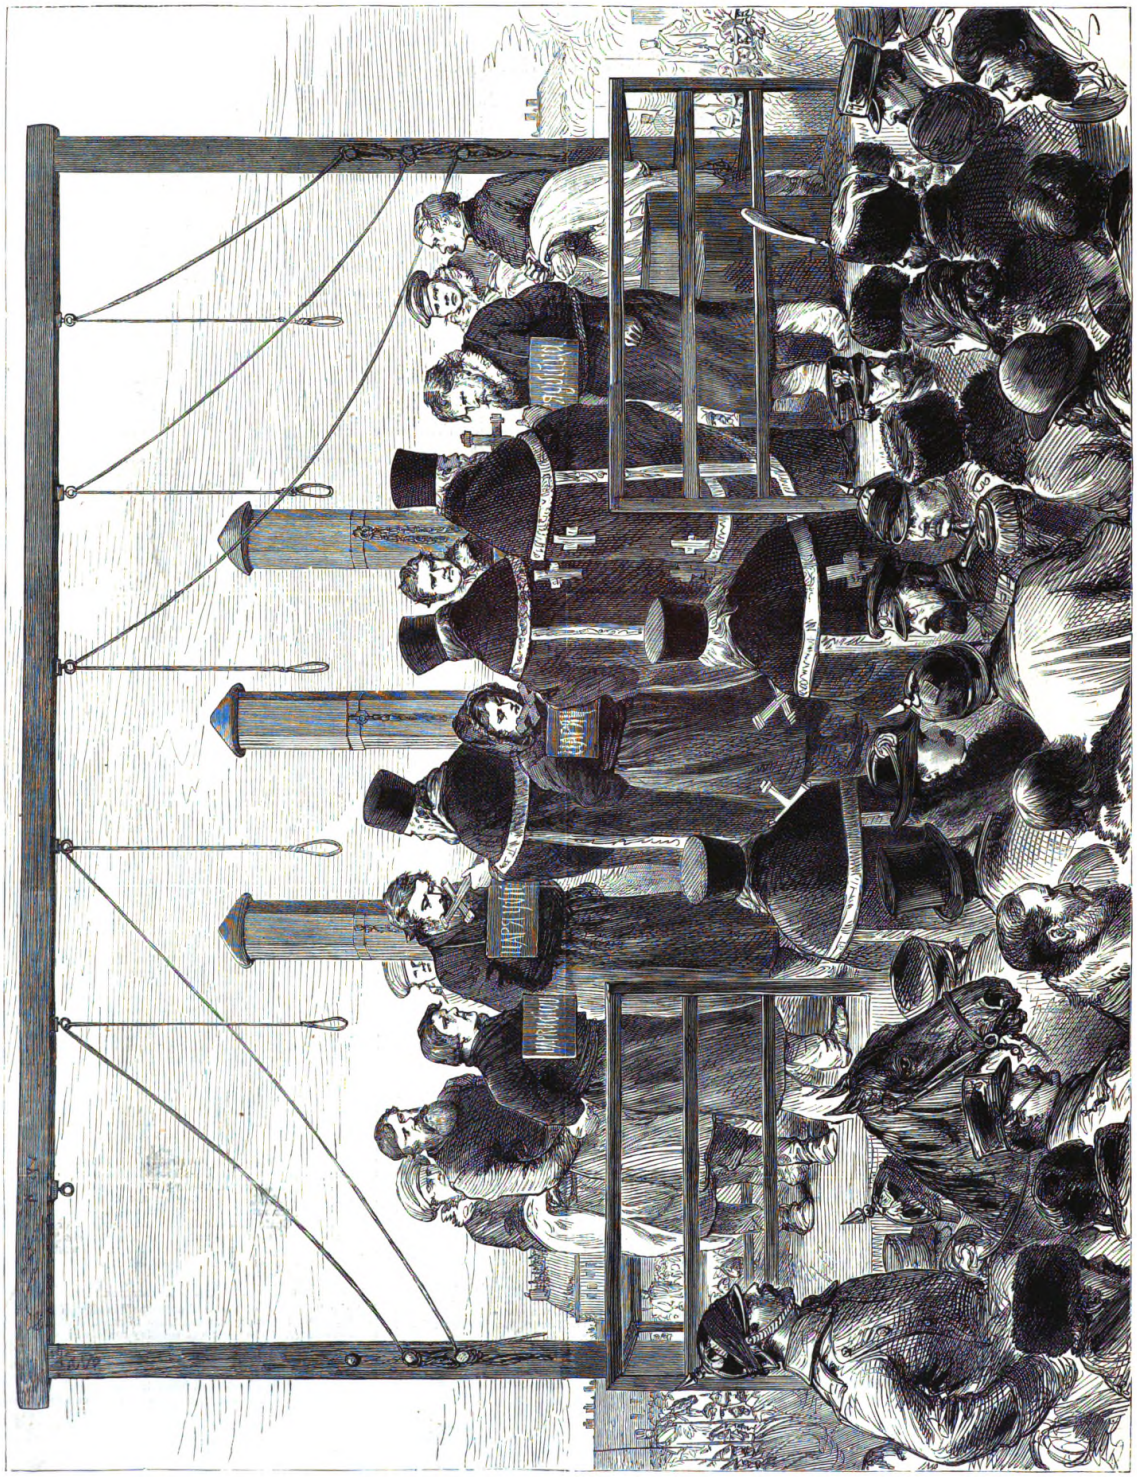
Now, when most of our trees are bursting into leaf, there are, perhaps, none of Nature's haunts so refreshing as the woods; and nowhere shall we find sweeter flowers than in the forests, groves, copses, dells, and thickets of our English woodlands. Many of the flowers that greeted us on sloping banks and in the lanes and meadows, again smile upon us as we enter the woods, in whose outskirts we are almost sure to meet once more with primroses, cowslips, violets, and pansies; but go deeper into the wood, and we find flowers not seen elsewhere. One of the first blossoms we meet with is the wood-sorrel; sweet modest thing, how prettily it nestles among the rich moss that gathers about the roots of aged oaks and elms, and how exquisitely pure are its transparent, white-veined, drooping bells! How prettily, too, those white pendant blossoms of the wood-sorrel contrast with its bright green trefoil leaves, which are more vividly green than even the tender verdure on the elms overhead! And we are sure to meet with the little woodruff, with its whorled scented leaves, and small white flowers clustering at the extremity of its angular stems. And, though it does not bloom long after April is over, we are also sure to meet with another white flower—the delicate but beautiful wood-anemone or wind-flower: a flower so enamoured of the sun that she "hangs her head and weeps" immediately he sinks in the west,

> And shrouds her sweetness up, and keeps
> Sad vigils, like a cloister'd nun,
> Till his reviving ray appears,
> Waking her beauty as he dries her tears.

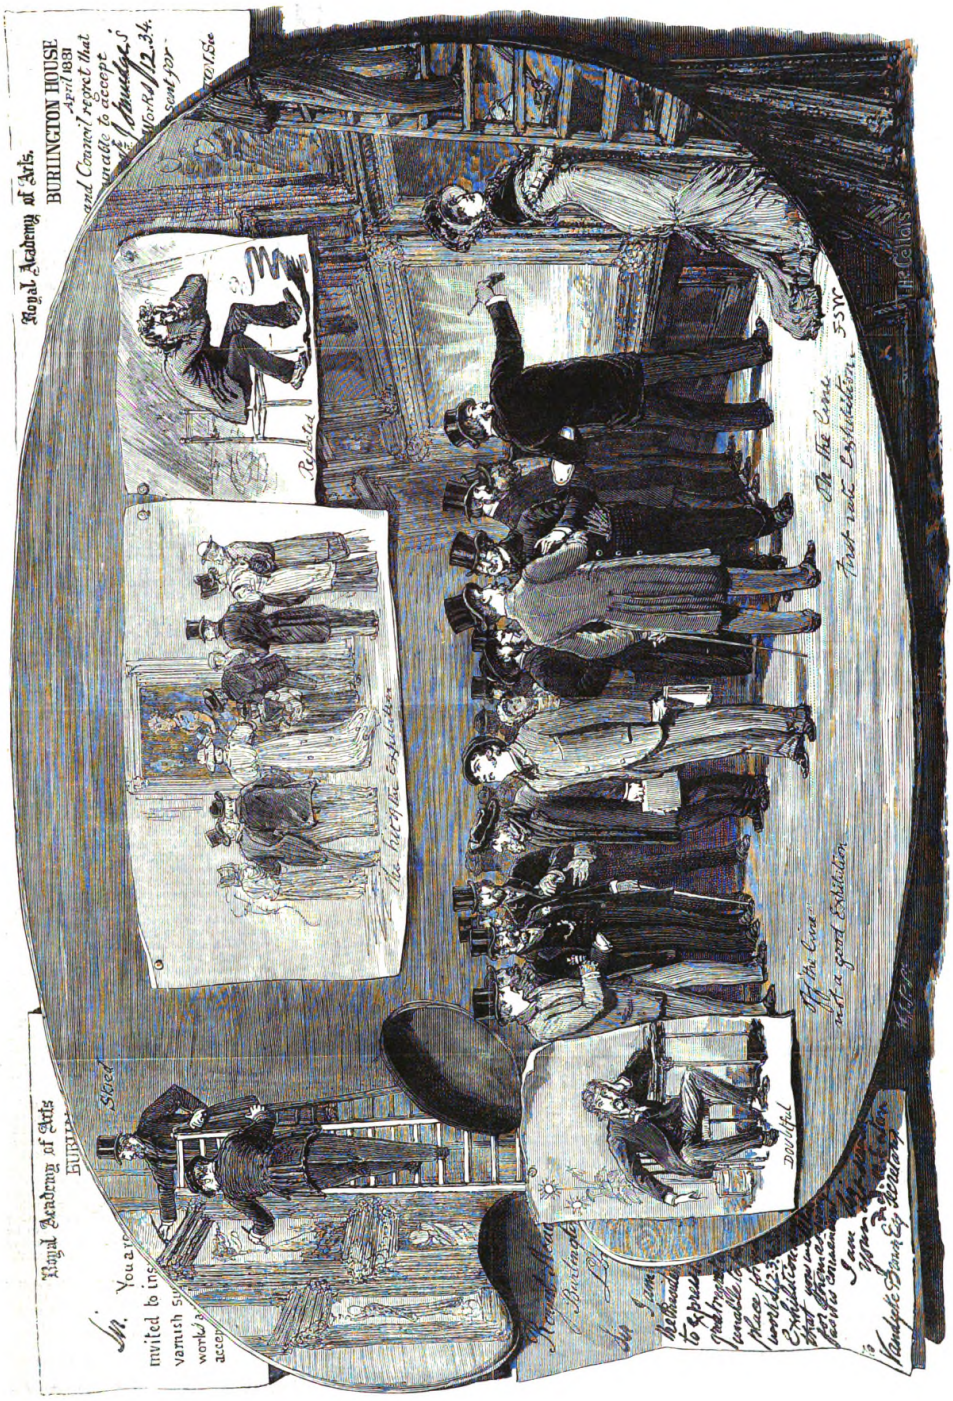
But the "dew-cup of the frail anemone" is often closed in the day as well as at night, when there is much humidity in the atmosphere. The queens of the May could scarcely find more becoming flowers for their garlands than the chaste white blossoms of the three last-named flowers.

And those who live near a sheltered copse or thicket—especially where the copse or thicket is invaded by a stream or rippling rill—will be sure to entwine in their chaplets the richly perfumed bells of the blue-bell hyacinth. The haunts of the blue-bell are just the spots to sit down in and arrange their wreaths; and having gathered all they want, seated on the shaded mossy bank of a woodland stream, the village maids are serenaded by the choicest of our sylvan choristers: for where the greenwood trees are greenest and freshest, and where the wildest flowers bloom, there sing the nightingale and blackcap "and ever sweetest where the sweetest grows."

The May-blossom is not yet in bloom, nor the sweet wild rose; but even a rose can be dispensed with in a wreath wherein are primroses, blue-bells, and wood-anemones.



THE CONSPIRACIES AT ST. PETERSBURG: THE NIHILISTS ON THE SCAFFOLD.



ACADEMY NOTES.—SEE PAGE 434.

OBITUARY.

THE EARL OF FINGALL.

The Right Hon. Arthur James, tenth Earl of Fingall, Baron Killeen, of Killeen Castle, county Meath, in the Peerage of Ireland, and third Baron Fingall, of Woolhampton Lodge, Berks, in the Peerage of the United Kingdom, died on the 24th inst., at his Castle, near Tara, after a lingering illness. He was born at Naples, May 10, 1819, the eldest son of Arthur James, ninth Earl, K.P., P.C., Lord Lieutenant of Meath, by Louisa Emilia, his wife, only daughter of Mr. Elias Corbally, of Corbalton Hall; was educated at Prior Park, near Bath, and represented one of the most ancient and distinguished Catholic families in Ireland, the Plunketts, of Killeen, on whom the earldom of Fingall was conferred in 1628. In early life, he entered the 8th Hussars, was A.D.C. to his Excellency the Earl of St. Germans, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, and served in the Crimea, taking part in the expedition to Kertch, and at the Siege of Sebastopol. He retired from the Army in 1857. He married, Feb. 12, 1857, Elise, daughter of Monsieur F. A. Rio, and leaves by her (who died near Pau, France, Nov. 25, 1862) one son, Arthur James, Lord Killeen, now eleventh Earl of Fingall, born at Rome, April 1, 1859, and two daughters, Lady Mary Plunkett, born June 3, 1860, and Lady Henrietta Plunkett, born Dec. 23, 1861. The late Lord Fingall was J.P. and D.L. for Meath, and was High Sheriff in 1845. He succeeded to the family honours at the death of his father, April 22, 1869.

MR. FOLEY, OF ERSHAM AND WISTOW.

Mr. Henry Foley, of Ersham House, Kent, and Wistow, in the county of Huntingdon, J.P. and D.L., died on the 21st inst., in his seventy-seventh year. He was elder son of Major-General Richard Harry Foley, of Tetworth Hall, Huntingdonshire, and derived from a junior branch of the noble family of Foley, being descended from Philip Foley, M.P., of Prestwood, Staffordshire, younger brother of Paul Foley, of Stoke Edith Court, Herefordshire, the famous Speaker of the House of Commons. He was educated at Sandhurst, and was formerly Captain 6th Foot. He married, June 2, 1831, Elizabeth, eldest daughter of Mr. Edward Curteis, of Glenburne, and had one son, Harry Richard Stanhope, 42nd Regiment, and seven daughters.

MR. LAUDERDALE MAITLAND.

Mr. Lauderdale Maitland, of Eccles, Dumfriesshire, died at Loreburn Park, in that county, on the 19th inst., in his seventy-second year. He was eldest son of the late Mr. John Bushby Maitland, of Eccles, J.P. and D.L., M.P., who was son of Mr. John Bushby, by Grizell, his wife, daughter of Mr. Charles Maitland, of Eccles, the representative of an ancient cadet of Maitland, of Lethington. He married, Nov. 9, 1843, Mary Catherine, eldest daughter of Dr. Gillespie, and leaves an only child, Lina Mary.

---

We have also to record the deaths of—

Mrs. Kerrison Harvey (Eliza), wife of Mr. Kerrison Harvey, of Bath, and Thorpe, in Norfolk, and daughter of the late Sir Edward Knowles Lacon, Bart, M.P., aged seventy-five.

Mr. Henry West, Q.C., late County Court Judge and Chairman of the county of Wexford, at his residence, Loughlinstown House, in the county of Dublin, on his seventy-third birthday, on the 21st inst.

Mr. William Burges, an eminent architect and an Associate of the Royal Academy, on the 20th inst., at Melbury-road, Kensington. A notice of his chief works is given in connection with his portrait, in another page.

Mr. Robert Heysham Mounsey, of Castletown, Cumberland, on the 20th inst., aged fifty-two. He was eldest son of the late Mr. George Gill Mounsey, of Castletown (who died 1874), by Isabella, his wife, second daughter of John Heysham, M.D.

The Rev. Christopher Wybergh, M.A., Rector of Scrayingham, Yorkshire, on the 8th inst., at Montreux, Switzerland. He was paternally descended from the very ancient family of Wybergh, of Clifton Hall, Westmorland, and maternally from Dr. Goodenough, Bishop of Carlisle.

The Rev. Richard Burgess, B.D., Prebendary of St. Paul's, late Rector of Ickworth and Horringer, and formerly Rector of Upper Chelsea, on the 12th inst., at Brighton, in his eighty-fifth year. He was author of "The Topography and Antiquities of Rome," published in 1831; "Greece and the Levant," in 1835, and of several educational and religious pamphlets.

The Rev. James Barrow, formerly Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge, and late Rector of North Wingfield, Derbyshire, on the 12th inst., at Southwell, Notts, aged eighty-seven. He was youngest son of the Rev. Richard Barrow, of Southwell, by Mary, his wife, daughter of Mr. George Hodgkinson. He married Louisa, daughter of Sir C. Malet, Bart., and leaves issue.

Mr. John Gregory M'Kirdy, of Birkwood, Lanarkshire, J.P. and D.L., at his seat, near Lesmahago, on the 21st inst. He was born in 1806, the eldest son of Mr. John M'Kirdy, of Birkwood, by Mary, his wife, eldest daughter of Mr. David Elliot, of Liddlesdale, in the county of Lanark. He married, first, 1841, Augusta, eldest daughter of Captain James Brad-haw, R.N., M.P., which lady died in 1865; and secondly, Aug. 6, 1873, Clementina, daughter of Sir Norman Macdonald-Lockhart, Bart., of Lee and Carnwath, which lady died on Dec. 12, the year of her marriage.

The Right Hon. Sarah Mary, Countess Cawdor, on the 21st inst., at Stackpole Court, Pembrokeshire, aged sixty-seven. Her Ladyship was second daughter of the Hon. Henry F. Compton Cavendish, uncle of the present Duke of Devonshire; was married, June 28, 1812, to John Frederick Vaughan, Earl Cawdor, and had issue three sons—Frederick Archibald Vaughan, Viscount Emlyn; Captain the Hon. Ronald Campbell, killed in the Zulu War; and the Hon. Alexander Francis Henry Campbell, of the Scots Guards—and four daughters, Lady Victoria Lambton, Lady Muriel Boyle, Lady Evelyn Campbell, and Lady Rachel Stafford Howard.

[In our Obituary notice of the late Earl of Beaconsfield it was stated that his mother was "sister of Mr. George Basevi, the eminent Jewish architect." This, we learn, is incorrect. Mr. Isaac Disraeli's wife was sister of Mr. George Basevi, of Brighton, Deputy Lieutenant of the county of Sussex, the father of Mr. George Basevi, the eminent architect.]

---

We understand that the Commissioners of the Board of Works will recommend a grant of £10000 towards the improvements suggested in the precincts of Westminster Abbey.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

All communications relating to the Chess Column of the Paper should be addressed to the Editor, and have the words "Chess" written on the envelope.

J P V (Bedford-place).—After your move—1. Q takes P (ch), K to K 4th; 2. B to Q 7th, if Black now play 2. R to K 8th—there is no mate on the third move.

J T (Chester).—Only the correct solutions are noted.

Sidney.—There is ingenuity in the construction of your problem; but the position of the White King's Bishop, coupled with the threatened check by 1. Q takes P, indicates the solution too clearly. We shall be glad to hear from you again.

A Constant.—The reply to 1. Kt to Q B 3rd is 1. R to K B 8th.

H F (Squatton Chess Club).—If you send your proposed solution, we shall be pleased to comply with your request.

E J P (Preston).—We have not had time to reexamine the position; but, taking your own analysis, we observe that after 1. R to Q B 3rd, B takes Kt; 2. B to B 6th (ch), K interposes; there is no mate by 3. Q to K 6th because of the reply, 3. Kt takes Q. Look at No. 1927 more carefully. It is a study as correct as it is finely conceived.

G A (Beachcroft).—Not without promise; but Black has not sufficient resource to make the problem interesting.

H R (Paris).—We know of but one position wherein White is required to mate nine Kings simultaneously, and that is the composition of Mr. C. H. Waterbury. As it is amusing we quote it for you, appending the solution:—

Black.—K at Q R 2nd; Q at K B sq; R's at Q B 5th and K Kt 6th; B's at Q B sq and K B 7th; Kt's at Q B 5th and K 3rd; Pawns at Q R 6th, Q Kt 5th and 7th, K 2nd and 6th, K Kt 2nd and 5th, and K R 2nd. (Sixteen pieces.)

White.—The nine Kings are to be placed as follows:—Q R 4th, Q Kt sq, Q Kt 3rd, Q Kt 5th, Q 3rd, Q 5th, K 2nd, and K R 6th; Kt at K 4th; R at K B sq; Pawns at Q R 5th and 6th, K 5th, K Kt 2nd and 5th, and K R 3rd (Seventeen pieces). The following is the solution, White playing first:—1. Q to R 2nd (ch), P to Kt 4th (best); 2. P takes P (ch), K to R 4th; 3. Kt to Kt 4th (dis. ch), P to K 8th; 4. B takes K P (ch), K to K 5th; 5. R to B 8th (ch), K to R 2nd; 6. Kt takes Kt, P takes P; 7. B to Q B sq, P to Kt 8th; 8. B to K B 4th, K to B 4th; 9. P to K 4th (ch), K takes P; 10. Q to B 2nd (ch), K to Q 5th; 11. Kt to B 6th, checkmating all the Black Kings. We are not surprised at your failure to solve it.

Problems received from T M Manickum (secunderabad) and J B Rapp (Munich).

Correct Solutions of Problems No. 1930 and 1931 received from T M Manickum (Secunderabad), and of No. 1936 from D A Spoletti (Alexandria) and Chorlton.

Correct Solutions of Problem No. 1937 received from J J Heaton, Norman Rumbelow, Emile Frau, and J M (San Remo).

Correct Solutions of Problem No. 1938 received from Emile Frau, E J Patterson (Preston), E S (Haywaster), W J Eggleston, J M (San Remo), Sidmouth, Espanol, B A Davidson (Llanelly), A C (Staines), Alpha, W T H, E Ridgway, H F (Spartan Chess Club), Stuart Berkeley, W F K (Clevedon), N M Carrig, H Stebbing, Rev. W F Clements, and F S (Haywaster).

Correct Solutions of Problem No. 1939 received from H B, D A Davidson, East Marden, Z Ingold, Shaftesbury, E L G, E Louden, Fire Plug, Her Majesty's Consul, W F K, A Dawlow, Dr F St, J W W, H F (Spartan Chess Club), Leslie Lacon, W Hillier, R Tweddell, F Ferris, C W Milsom, F G Parslow, R J Vines, Aaron Harper, C Darragh, G L Mayne, L Sharwood, Ernest Sharwood, B Gray, H K Awdry, An Old Hand, E Elsbury, G S Coxe, M O'Halloran, R Ingersoll, E Casella, J Templeton, Jupiter Junior, D W Keil, Ben Nevis, R Jessop, S Farrant, B R Wood, T H Holdron, L Falcon (Antwerp), A Kentish Man, H Noyes, J N Wastell, J J Hudson, Smutch, J Alois Schmucker, James Dobson, Chelwell, S Hoare, W H Ridgway, Theseler Willink, Lulu, J Perez Ventoso, Norman Rumbelow, James A Brown, Isaac Balch, R B Duff, Sidmouth, J M (San Remo), Emile Frau, Semaj, Portebelin, J E Rapp (Munich), and Frank Littleboy.

Note.—Our solvers will please note that this Problem cannot be solved by 1. P takes P, 1. Kt takes R, or 1. Kt takes Kt, Black having a good reply to any of these moves in 1. Kt to Q 4th. The answer to 1. R to Q 2nd, or 1. Q to B 3rd is in each case 1. Kt to K B 4th.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM No. 1938.

| WHITE. | BLACK. |
|---|---|
| 1. Q to K R 2nd | Kt to Q 4th |
| 2. R takes P (ch) | B takes R |
| 3. P to K 4th. Mate. | |

The variations should present no difficulty to the student.

PROBLEM No. 1941.

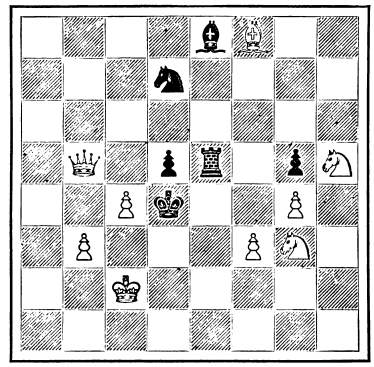
By J. T. Parker (Ipswich).

BLACK.



WHITE.

White to play, and mate in three moves.

Game in the Match recently concluded between Messrs. Blackburne and Gunzberg.—(French Defence.)

| WHITE (Mr. B.) | BLACK (Mr. G.) |
|---|---|
| 1. P to K 4th | P to K 3rd |
| 2. P to Q 4th | P to Q 4th |
| 3. P takes P | P takes P |
| 4. Kt to Q B 3rd | Kt to K B 3rd |
| 5. Kt to K B 3rd | B to Q 3rd |
| 6. B to Q 3rd | Castles |
| 7. Castles | P to K R 3rd |
| 8. Q Kt to K 2nd | P to Q B 3rd |
| 9. P to Q B 3rd | R to K sq |
| 10. R to K Kt 3rd | R to K Kt 5th |
| 11. Q to B 2nd | B takes Kt |
| 12. P takes B | R to R sq |
| 13. K to R sq | Q Kt to Q 2nd |
| 14. Kt to K B 5th | Q to K 2nd |

White's last move has not improved his game. If R to K Kt sq seems to be the strongest continuation after the exchange of Knight for Bishop, Black has the best of the position.

| | |
|---|---|
| 15. Kt takes B | Q takes Kt |
| 16. B to K 3rd | K Kt to K R 4th |
| 17. Q to Q 2nd | Q to B 3rd |
| 18. B to K 2nd | P to K Kt 4th |
| 19. R to K Kt sq | R to K Kt sq |
| 20. R to K Kt 2nd | Kt to K B sq |
| 21. P to K R 4th | P takes P |
| 22. R takes R (ch) | K takes R |
| 23. B takes P | Kt to K 3rd |
| 24. Kt to K Kt sq (ch) | K to R sq |
| 25. B to Kt 5th | Q to K B 4th |
| 26. R to Kt 4th | R to K Kt sq |
| 27. B takes P | K Kt to B 5th |

The Knights have now assumed a very threatening position, and the manœuvres which follow, leaving the White King to the field, are capitally conceived by Mr. Gunzberg.

| | |
|---|---|
| 28. K to R 2nd | Q to K B 4th |
| 29. K to Kt 3rd | P to K B 4th |
| 30. R takes R (ch) | K takes R |
| 31. B to K B sq | Q to Kt 3rd (ch) |
| 32. K to B 2nd | Q to K R 3rd |

Winning a clear piece. White cannot defend the Bishop by 33. K to Kt 3rd, because of the reply, 33. Kt to R 4th (ch) and 34. Q takes Q, &c.

| | |
|---|---|
| 33. Q to K sq | Q takes B (ch) |
| 34. K to Kt sq | Q to Kt 4th (ch) |
| 35. K to R 2nd | Q to R 4th (ch) |
| 36. K to Kt 3rd | Q to R 8th, |
| and White resigned. | |

---

The twenty-sixth annual meeting of the West Yorkshire Chess Association, which comprises the chess clubs of Dewsbury, Halifax, Huddersfield, Leeds, Sheffield, and Wakefield, was held on Saturday last at the Queen Hotel, Huddersfield. Although it was not so successful as some of the earlier gatherings of the association in the same town, the meeting was of a very interesting character. On the evening before the meeting Herr Zukertort, who was specially engaged, played eight games sans voir and simultaneously, and, after an adjournment to the following day, succeeded in defeating all his opponents. The German master was announced to play twenty games simultaneously; but only eight adversaries presented themselves, in the result he won all the games except one, which was scored by Mr. Hussey, of Leeds. There were eight competitors for the association prizes—Messrs. Dyson, Rowley, Robertson, Whiteley, Eddison, Whittaker, Woodhead, and Jordan; and their games were carried off by Messrs. Eddison and Woodhead in the order named. The play was adjourned at six o'clock for tea, at which Mr. John Watkinson presided. Mr. Yates moved a vote of thanks to the Huddersfield Chess Club for the kind reception given to the visitors, and for the manner in which they had been entertained, and stated that he was authorised to invite the association to hold their next meeting at Dewsbury.

A match between the Bermondsey and Athenæum Chess Clubs was played on Saturday last, the 23rd inst., at the rooms of the latter association in Camden-road. There were fifteen players on each side, and Bermondsey won with a score of 11½ to 7½.

In our announcement last week of the proposed match between one of the University Clubs and the City of London, Oxford was mentioned in error. It is the Cambridge Club with which the negotiations are in progress.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will (dated Oct. 11, 1880) of Mr. James St. George Burke, Q.C., late of The Auberies, near Sudbury, Essex, who died on Feb. 25 last, was proved on the 2nd inst. by Robert Samuel Grubbe, Edward Walter Grubbe, and Arthur Horsendon Henry, the acting executors, the personal estate being sworn under £270,000. The testator devises all his real estate (except that in the parish of Sible Hedingham, Essex) to the use of his eldest son, Hubert Plunkett, for life, with remainder to his first and other sons successively, according to seniority in tail male; his chattels, real and presentation plate, he settles upon similar trusts; he leaves to his said son the remainder of his plate and all his furniture, pictures, household effects, horses, carriages, and farming stock, and a pecuniary legacy of £2000; to his son Walter St. George, £25,000; to his son Ulick John his real estate at Sible Hedingham, certain shares, and £15,000; to his son Francis Eustace, £20,000; to his son Harold Arthur, £19,000; to his son Charles Carrington, £23,000; upon trust for his unmarried daughters such sum as will produce £1800 per annum and a residence, with furniture; to his only brother, if he survive him, an annuity of £200; to Miss Naomi Walton an annuity of £100; to St. Leonard's Hospital, Sudbury, £100; to his executors one hundred guineas each; and £250 to be divided between his domestic and other servants and labourers who have been seven years in his service. The residue of the personalty is to be laid out in the purchase of land, to be settled in the same manner as the real estate devised to his eldest son.

The will (dated April 19, 1854) of Mrs. Eliza Gray Gunnell, late of No. 12, Duchess-street, Portland-place, who died on the 5th ult., was proved on the 28th ult. by George Tierney, the sole executor, the personal estate being sworn under £60,000. The testatrix gives to her friend, Mrs. Martha Frayne, £500; and the residue of her estate and effects to the said George Tierney for his own absolute use and benefit.

The will (dated July 1, 1878) with a codicil (dated June 28, 1880) of Mr. Edward John Wood Waterhouse, late of Holly Bank, Lindley, Huddersfield, coal-owner and fire-brick manufacturer, who died on Nov. 26 last, was proved on the 24th ult. by Mrs. Hannah Waterhouse, the widow, John Edward Crossley, and the Rev. Robert Gill Irving, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £35,000. The testator leaves to his wife his furniture, household effects, and the live and dead stock at his residence, his residence for life or widowhood, and an annuity of £600 for life, to be reduced to £300 in the event of her marrying again; upon trust for his son James Cartledge Waterhouse £2000 Railway Stock; to his executors £50 each; and the residue of his real and personal estate upon trust for all his children, except the said James Cartledge.

The will (dated Nov. 20, 1880) of Mr. Edward Loyd Entwisle, formerly a Captain in the 1st Royal Dragoons, and late of No. 32, St. James's-street, who died on Jan. 16 last, was proved on the 28th ult. by Thomas Gale Mills, the acting executor, the personal estate being sworn under £30,000. The testator bequeaths to his wife his furniture, plate, household effects, wines and stores, but he makes no other provision for her, as she is already provided for by settlement. The residue of his property he leaves upon trust for all his children, and in default of children, between his brother Richard Entwisle and his sister, Mrs. Friederica Frances Swinburne.

The will (dated Jan. 25, 1878) of Lieutenant-Colonel Alfred Goodlad Daubeny, 7th Foot (Royal Fusiliers), late of No. 30, Gloucester-square, Hyde Park, who died on Nov. 21 last at Candahar, was proved on the 2nd inst. by Walter Augustus Daubeny, the brother, and George Walters Daubeny, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £25,000. The testator devises his farms, Northwick and Redwick, near Henbury, Gloucestershire, to the use of his first and other sons successively, according to seniority in tail male; to his wife, Mrs. Emma Mackenzie Daubeny, he leaves £500, all his furniture, plate, jewellery, and household stores and effects, and £600 per annum for life. The residue of his real and personal estate is to be held upon trust for all his children, and in default of children for his said brother.

The will (dated April 1, 1868) of Mr. Edwin Guest, LL.D., F.R.S., formerly Master of Gonville and Caius College, Cambridge, and late of Sandford Park, Oxfordshire, who died on Nov. 23 last, was proved at the Oxford district registry on the 3rd ult. by Robert Ferguson and Edward Chance, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £16,000. The testator bequeaths to his wife, Mrs. Anne Guest, £2500, and his wines, liquors, consummable stores, horses and carriages; and to his executors £100 each; all his freehold, copyhold, and leasehold property he gives to his eldest son; if he should leave no son, then to his daughters, and, if no daughters, upon trust for his wife for life or widowhood, with remainder to his godson, Edward Ferguson Chance; his plate, pictures, household furniture and effects are to go to the person who shall first become absolutely entitled to the said estate. The residue of the personalty is left to all his children, except the son who succeeds to his estates, and, if no children, then upon trust for his wife for life or widowhood, and afterwards for the said Edward Ferguson Chance. The deceased was a Justice of the Peace for the county of Oxford, and also for the borough of Cambridge.

The will (dated July 11, 1873) with a codicil (dated June 24, 1876) of Mr. Robert Bullock Marsham, D.C.L., Warden of Merton College, Oxford, and of Caversfield House, Bucks, who died on Dec. 27 last, was proved at the Oxford district registry on the 28th ult. by Charles Jacob Bullock Marsham and Robert Henry Bullock Marsham, the sons, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £10,000. The testator leaves his real estate to his wife, Dame Janet Carmichael Anstruther, for life, and then to his son Charles Jacob. After appointing certain funds in settlement among his children and giving a few legacies, the residue of the personalty is directed to be held upon trust for his wife for life; at her death some further legacies become payable, including one to his gardener, and the ultimate residue is given to his said son Charles Jacob.

The will (dated Dec. 2, 1878) with a codicil (dated June 13, 1879) of the Hon. George Charles Grantley Fitzhardinge Berkeley, formerly of Alderney Manor, near Poole, but late of Dursley House, Poole, Dorsetshire, who died on Feb. 23 last, was proved on the 11th inst. by Lady Caroline Fitzhardinge Maxse, the sister and sole executrix, the personal estate being sworn under £5000. The testator bequeaths to his faithful servant Matilda Leversuch, if in his service at his decease, his little terrier dog "Jack," and an annuity of £60, so long as "Jack" shall live; on "Jack's" death he gives her an annuity of £30 for her life, and to such person as she shall leave it to at her decease for his or her life; there are bequests to some of his other servants; and the residue of his property he gives to his said sister.

The will (dated Oct. 6, 1877) of Mr. John Prescott Knight, R.A., late of No. 24, Maida-hill, who died on the 26th ult., was proved on the 8th inst., under a nominal sum, by Miss Clarissa Susannah Knight, the daughter and sole executrix, to whom he gives, devises, and bequeaths all his property.

WHO ARE

THE REALLY GREAT and SUCCESSFUL

MEN in this WORLD?

HUXLEY wisely says:—"Those who take honours in nature's university, who learn the laws which govern men and things and obey them, are the really great and successful men in this world. . . . Those who won't learn at all are plucked; and then you can't come up again. Nature's pluck means extermination." The simple meaning is, when ailing pay no attention to the regulation of your diet, exercise, or occupation; attempt no conformity to the laws of life, or when you have drawn an overdraft on the bank of life, &c., avoid the use of ENO'S FRUIT SALT and you will be surprised to learn of the help what

A FRAIL and FICKLE TENEMENT it is,

WHICH, LIKE the BRITTLE GLASS

THAT MEASURES TIME,

IS OFTEN BROKE, ere half

ITS SANDS are RUN.

ENO'S FRUIT SALT.—Errors of eating or drinking; or how to employ or cause good food to agree that would otherwise disorder the digestive organs, and cause biliousness, sick headache, skin eruptions, impure blood, pimples on the face, giddiness, fever, feverishness, mental depression, want of appetite, soulness of stomach, constipation, vomiting, thirst, and other disastrous diseases.

USE ENO'S FRUIT SALT.—Or as a health-giving, refreshing, cooling, invigorating beverage, or as a gentle laxative and tonic in the various forms of indigestion, use ENO'S FRUIT SALT.

ALSO GOUTY or RHEUMATIC POISONS from the blood, the neglect of which often results in apoplexy, heart disease, and sudden death.

USE ENO'S FRUIT SALT, prepared from sound, ripe fruit.—What every travelling-trunk and household in the world ought to contain—a bottle of ENO'S FRUIT SALT. Without such a simple precaution, the jeopardy of life is immensely increased.

"All our customers for Eno's Salt would not be without it upon any consideration, they have received so much benefit from it.

"Wood Brothers, Chemists, Jersey."

IMPORTANT to TRAVELLERS.

"Clifton Down Hotel,
Near Bristol, Gloucestershire,
Feb. 10, 1881."

"Sir,—Having travelled a great deal in my life, and having suffered a great deal from Poisoned Blood and Want of Appetite, I was induced by a friend to use your WORLD-FAMED FRUIT SALT. I was immediately relieved, and am once more hale and healthy. I shall never be without a bottle again on my travels. I am too pleased to repay you in some way for your wonderful invention by giving you full use of my testimony to the above.

"Sir, I am, yours gratefully,
"Dr. J. Hanson, M.A.

"To J. C. Eno., Esq."

TORPID LIVER.

"Thornhill, Hampshire, March, 1881.

"For three years I have suffered from an enlarged and torpid liver; could not sleep on either side, digestion bad; in fact, my whole system was out of repair. I tried all the German waters to no effect, and after great suffering for three years the use of ENO'S FRUIT SALT was suggested to me, and I am happy and thankful to be able to state that, after three months' use of your Fruit Salt, at bedtime and in the morning, I am perfectly restored to my usual robust health. Again I thank you for your infallible discovery."

"H. M. Dillon, J.P."

HEADACHE and DISORDERED STOMACH.

"After suffering for nearly two and a half years from severe headache and disordered stomach, and after trying almost everything, and spending much money without finding any benefit, I was recommended by a friend to try ENO'S FRUIT SALT, and before I had finished one bottle I found it doing me a great deal of good, and now I am restored to my usual health; and others I know that have tried it have not enjoyed such good health for years.—Yours most truly, Robert Humphreys."

"Post Office, Barrasford."

CHRONIC DYSPEPSIA.

"A gentleman called in yesterday. He is a constant sufferer from chronic dyspepsia, and has taken all sorts of mineral waters. I recommended him to give your salt a trial, which he did, and received great benefit. He says he never knew what it was to be without pain until he tried your Salt, and for the future shall never be without it in the house.

"M. Beral, 18, Rue de la Paix, Paris."

DRAWING an OVER-DRAFT on the BANK OF LIFE.—Late hours, fagged, unnatural excitement, breathing impure air, too rich food, alcoholic drink, gouty, rheumatic, and other blood poisons, biliousness, sick headache, skin eruptions, pimples on the face, want of appetite, sourness of stomach, &c., use ENO'S FRUIT SALT. It is Pleasant, Cooling Health-giving, Refreshing, and Invigorating. You cannot overrate its great value in keeping the blood pure and free from disease.

HOW to AVOID the INJURIOUS EFFECTS of STIMULANTS.—The present system of "living-poisoning" on tea, coffee, sugar, saccharine, and fatty substances, alcoholic drinks, and an insufficient amount of exercise—frequently deranges the liver. I would advise all bilious people, unless they are careful to keep the liver acting freely, to exercise great care in the use of alcoholic drinks; avoid sugar, and always dilute largely with water. Experience shows that porter, mild ales, port wine, dark sherries, sweet champagne, liqueurs, and brandies are all very apt to disagree; while light white wines, and gin or whisky largely diluted with seltzer water will be found the least objectionable. ENO'S FRUIT SALT is peculiarly adapted for any constitutional weakness of the liver; it possesses the power of repairing when digestion has been disturbed or lost, and places the invalid on the right track to health. A world of woes is avoided by those who keep and use ENO'S FRUIT SALT; therefore no family should ever be without it.

TO EMIGRANTS, or Anyone Leaving Home for a Change.—ENO'S FRUIT SALT is one of the greatest aids to enjoyment, not only in preventing sea-sickness, &c., but as a means of keeping the blood healthy under the ever-varying conditions to which he may be exposed.

TO EUROPEANS who propose VISITING HOT CLIMATES, ENO'S FRUIT SALT is absolutely necessary to the preservation of health.

DIRECTIONS in SIXTEEN LANGUAGES, HOW to PREVENT DISEASE

SUCCESS IN LIFE.—"A new invention is brought before the public and commands success. A score of abominable imitations are immediately introduced by the unscrupulous, who, in copying the original closely enough to deceive the public, and yet not so exactly as to infringe upon legal rights, exercise an ingenuity that, employed in an original channel, could not fail to secure reputation and profit."—Adams.

CAUTION.—Legal Rights are protected in every civilised country.—Examine each bottle and see the capsule is marked ENO'S FRUIT SALT. Without it, you have been imposed on by worthless imitations. Sold by all Chemists. Price 2s. 9d. and 4s. 6d.

PREPARED ONLY at ENO'S FRUIT SALT WORKS, Hatcham, London, S.E., by J. C. Eno's Patent.

PETER ROBINSON'S
COURT and GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
REGENT-STREET.

FAMILY BEREAVEMENTS.
Upon Receipt of Letter or Telegram

PETER ROBINSON'S EXPERIENCED DRESSMAKERS and MILLINERS TRAVEL to ALL PARTS of the COUNTRY, no matter the distance, FREE OF EXPENSE TO PURCHASERS, with Dresses, Mantles, Millinery, and a full assortment of MADE-UP ARTICLES of the best and most suitable description. Also Materials by the Yard, and supplied at the same VERY REASONABLE PRICES as if Purchased at the Warehouse in "REGENT-STREET."

Mourning for Servants at unexceptionally low rates, at a great saving to large or small families.

Funerals Conducted in Town or Country at Stated Charges.

Address 256 to 262, Regent-street, London.
PETER ROBINSON'S.

THE BEST CRAPES,
THAT WILL NOT SPOT WITH RAIN.

Special qualities finished by the manufacturer in this desirable manner solely to the order of PETER ROBINSON.
Good qualities from 2s. 6d. to 12s. 9d. per yard. Others, not finished by this process, from 1s. 6d. to 4s. 6d.

A SPECIAL PURCHASE.
300 PIECES OF
RICH BLACK BROCADED SILKS,
very fashionable now
for Costumes and Mantles,
3s. 9d., 3s. 11d., 4s. 3d., 4s. 9d., 5s. 11d., 6s. 6d.

100 PIECES OF
BLACK SATIN IMPERIAL,
a New Make of Satin,
Rich in appearance,
and wears better than any other silk.
5s. 6d., and up to 10s. 3d.

BLACK SATIN MERVEILLEUX,
new this Season,
3s. 6d., 4s. 11d., 5s. 3d., 6s. 6d.

BLACK SATIN DE LYON,
a good useful Silk, for Hard Wear,
3s. 6d., 4s. 11d., 5s. 11d., 6s. 6d.

BLACK DUCHESS SATIN,
at 5s. 6d., 6s. 6d.;
Magnificent qualities at 7s. 6d. and 10s. 6d.

BLACK SATINS (Cotton Backs),
1s. 11d., 2s. 6d., 2s. 11d., 3s. 11d.

BLACK BROCADED VELVETS,
5s. 3d., 6s. 11d., 8s. 9d., 10s. 9d.

BLACK TWILLED SILKS, for Summer Wear, at 3s. 6d., and above.

BLACK SURAT SILKS, with White Floral Designs, 2s. 11d., 3s. 6d., 3s. 11d.

COSTUMES in SILK, SATIN, and BROCADE.
Facsimiles of Expensive Paris Models
at 14 guineas and up to 20 guineas.
Materials for Bodices included.
For Patterns of the above,
Please write to—
PETER ROBINSON'S, REGENT-STREET,
Nos. 256 to 262.

CHAPMAN'S, NOTTING-HILL, W.

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY CHEAP SILKS.

| | | | | £ s. d. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| A Black Corded Silk Dress | .. | .. | 12 yds. | 1 0 0 |
| A Black Corded Silk, superior quality | .. | .. | „ | 1 5 0 |
| A Black Gros Grain Silk Dress | .. | .. | „ | 1 6 0 |
| A Rich Black Brocade Silk Dress .. | .. | .. | „ | 1 0 0 |
| A Colour Silk Dress .. | .. | .. | „ | 1 10 0 |
| A Gros du Monde Silk Dress .. | .. | .. | „ | 1 10 0 |
| A Black Satin Dress | .. | .. | „ | 1 0 0 |
| A Black Satin Dress | .. | .. | „ | 2 0 0 |

CASHMERES, One Hundred Shades, 1s. 6¾d.

CASHMERES, One Hundred Shades, 1s. 11¾d.

CASHMERES, One Hundred Shades, 2s. 11¾d.

MERINOS, One Hundred Shades, 1s. 6¾d.

MERINOS, One Hundred Shades, 2s. 11¾d.

"SPECIALITE."
KASHMYR HEADDOUL.
Beautifully soft and supple, as only Indian Cloths are, this new make of Kashmyr recommends itself to all for its modest price and general wear qualities. Ladies should bear in mind that this class of Foreign Goods is superior in every way to ordinary Cashmere, being woven from the finest and purest wools; and, although the dyes are not always as clear as in the French makes, the colours are sounder and the cloth more durable. They are 1s. 11¾d. and 2s. 11¾d. per yard, the width 48 inches.

NEWMARKET CHECKS.
These are reversible, each side representing a clearly distinct fabric, so that whichever is selected to form the principal part of the costume, the reverse side can be used as a trimming, forming a very unique, lady-like, and inexpensive costume. In new Spring Shades of Greys, Browns, and Slates, 7¾d. per yard, 24 inches wide.

SCOTCH TARTAN GINGHAMS.
It is many years since a Gingham Dress was fashionable, but this summer it will be destined to make this once-esteemed material a more popular favourite than ever. All kinds of fancy plaids, as well as Clan Tartans, will be worn. But the great charm about real Scotch Ginghams is their marvellous washing qualities; do what you will with them, scrub them, if you like—nay, boil them—nothing seems to harm them; they look as well as ever after being subjected to the severest treatment. For children's use, are unrivalled. Cool, durable, and most moderate in price. 30 inches wide, 1s. 1¾d. per yard.

PATTERNS FREE.

CHAPMAN'S, NOTTING-HILL, W.

HENRY GLAVE'S
NEW ARTISTIC SPRING AND SUMMER FASHION-BOOK, "THE OLYMPUS."
NOTICE.—The above book, with all its original drawings, is registered as our exclusive property.
Sent post-free to any address.
Also Patterns of all kinds of Black and Coloured Silks, Plain and Fancy Dresses, Household Linens, Drapery, or any other goods, of which our Stock is one of the La gest and Cheapest in London.
HENRY GLAVE,
534, 535, 536, 537, New Oxford-street.

GLOVES AT WHOLESALE PRICES.
The New Detailed Price List for Spring, 1881, is now ready, and will be forwarded post-free upon application.—THE LONDON GLOVE COMPANY, 45a, Cheapside, E.C.

PRATT'S LADIES' BELTS AND ABDOMINAL SUPPORTS
ARE CONFIDENTLY RECOMMENDED AS THE MOST COMFORTABLE AND EFFICIENT EVER MADE
Apply to the Ladies' Attendant,
J. F. PRATT,
420, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON, W.

PETER ROBINSON,
103 to 108, OXFORD-STREET.
NEW SPRING GOODS
In all Departments.
ILLUSTRATIONS AND PATTERNS FREE.

LADIES IN THE COUNTRY
are requested to write for Patterns of
NEW SPRING SILKS,
Including
Surats, Merveilleux, Duchesse Satins, Brocades, Figured Velvets, Black Silks, Satin de Lyon, Gros Grains, Fancy Silks, &c.
All to be had in Black, White, and the Eighty-seven New Shades of Colour.
Cash Prices. Parcels free.

PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON.

LADIES IN THE COUNTRY
are requested to write for patterns of
NEW SPRING DRESSES, including
Angola and Camel Hair Beige Cashmir Foulé,
Cachemire de Paris, Mixed Wool and Silk Damassé,
Cashmere Merino Drap d'Italie, Fine Vigogne,
New Shades of Black and Coloured Rich Velveteens.
New Pompadour and Plain Satines, Percales, &c.
All the New Colours and Designs.
Cash Prices. Parcel free.

PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON.

NEW COSTUMES for SPRING.
Success, a rich Satin Costume, 4½ guineas.
Palestro, stylish Silk Costume, 5 guineas.
Cora, rich Satin de Lyon Costume, 6½ guineas.
Patterns and Illustrations (just out) post-free.

PETER ROBINSON, Oxford-street, W.

JAY'S, Regent-street.

MOURNING.—Messrs. JAY'S Experienced Assistants travel to any part of the kingdom, free of expense to purchasers. They take dresses and millinery with them, besides patterns of materials, all marked in plain figures, and at the same price as if purchased at the Warehouse in Regent-street. Funerals at stated charges conducted in London or country.
JAY'S, REGENT-STREET.

EVENING DRESSES, Black Net, Tulle, and Spanish Lace.—Messrs. JAY prepare for the season a variety of black Evening Dresses, which they can confidently recommend both for correctness of fashion and economy in price. Designs and prices postage-free.
JAY'S, Regent-street.

DRESS.—Messrs. JAY respectfully invite their clientèle to the choice Collection of Pattern Costumes of the Newest Type of Fashion, which are imported from Paris and Berlin.
JAY'S, Regent-street.

PEAU DE CHAMOIS COSTUMES.—A varied series of COSTUMES, made from Peau de Chamois Satin, are produced weekly during the season. Price 4½ guineas each, including sufficient satin to make a bodice.
JAY'S,
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
REGENT-STREET, W.

CAUTION.—MARK YOUR LINEN.
Latest Telegram, Melbourne Exhibition.—BOND'S CRYSTAL PALACE GOLD MEDAL MARKING INK, prepared by Daughter late John Bond, GRAND FIRST AWARD, three Great Awards (Sydney, Queen Land, and Melbourne) in one year. No heating required. 2s. 6d.—75, Southampton-row, London. Ask for "Crystal Palace Ink." Refuse imitations.

PIESSE and LUBIN.
Opoponax, Jockey Club, Patchouy, Frangipanni, Kiss-Me-Quick, White Rose, and 100 others from every flower that breathes a fragrance. 2s. 6d. each, or Five Bottles in a Case, 12s. The above Sweet Scents in Sachet Powder, 1s. 6d. each, can be forwarded by post. Sold by the fashionable Druggists and Perfumers in all parts of the world.
2, NEW BOND-STREET, LONDON.

TURKISH PASTILS.
"Through all my travels few things astonished me more than seeing the Inmates of the Harem smoking Narghiles at Stamboul. After smoking, a sweet aromatic fragrance or pastil is used by them, which is said to impart an odour of flowers to the breath. I have never seen these breath odorgens but once in Europe, and that was at PIESSE and LUBIN'S shop in Bond-street."—Lady W. Montagu.
In Boxes 2s. 6d.; by post, 2s. 9d.
2, NEW BOND-STREET, LONDON.

NUDA VERITAS.—GREY HAIR restored by this valuable specific to its original shade, after which it grows the natural colour, not grey. Used as a dressing, it causes growth and arrests falling. The most harmless and effectual restorer extant. One trial will convince it has no equal. Price 10s. 6d., of all Chemists and Hairdressers. Testimonials post-free.—R. HOVENDEN and SONS, London.

GOLDEN HAIR.—ROBARE'S AUREOLINE produces the beautiful Golden Colour so much admired. Warranted perfectly harmless. Price 5s. 6d. and 10s. 6d., of all Perfumers. Wholesale, HOVENDEN and SONS, 5, Great Marlborough-street, W.; and 91 and 93, City-road, E.C.

THE LONG TRYING WINTER, necessitating large fires, and living in a hot, dry atmosphere, has not been without effect upon the hair of most people, who will do well to use ROWLAND'S MACASSAR OIL during the Spring months if they desire the usual Spring growth of chevelure. Sold everywhere.

SPRING.—Cutaneous visitations now prevail, and render ROWLANDS' KALYDOR, for the Complexion, and ODONTO, of peculiar value and importance. This unique botanical preparation allays all irritation and tenderness of the skin, removes cutaneous disfigurements, freckles, and tan, and imparts a healthy and blooming appearance to the complexion, and a delicacy and softness to the neck, hands, and arms. Sold in two sizes, by Chemists.

VALUABLE DISCOVERY for the HAIR.
If your hair is turning grey, or white, or falling off, use "The Mexican Hair Renewer," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White Hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots where the glands are not decayed. "The Mexican Hair Renewer" is sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere, at 3s. 6d. per Bottle.

FLORILINE. For the Teeth and Breath.
Is the best Liquid Dentifrice in the world; it thoroughly cleanses partially-decayed teeth from all parasites or living "animalcules," leaving them pearly white, imparting a delightful fragrance to the breath. The Fragrant Floriline removes instantly all odours arising from a foul stomach or tobacco smoke, being partly composed of honey, soda, and extracts of sweet herbs and plants. It is perfectly harmless, and delicious as sherry. Sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere, at 2s. 6d. per Bottle.

BREIDENBACH'S
SACHETS.

Wood Violet, White Rose, Stephanotis, Maréchale, Eau Bouquet, Musk, Ylang Ylang, Opoponax, Millefleurs, Chypre. In paper envelopes, 1s. each; in silk bags, 1s. each; in satin cushions, 2s. 6d. each. Sold by all Perfumers and Fancy Dealers, or post-free from the Makers, 157a, New Bond-street, London, W.

THE SKIN.—The glory of woman, the pride of man. It contains the delicate lines of beauty and constitutes all that we term loveliness; yet how many thousands have their skins blemished by the use of the irritant soaps, Carbolic, Coal Tar, Glycerine, and the coarse coloured soaps, caustic with alkali and made of putrid fats. The more delicate the skin the quicker its ruin. The ALBION MILK AND SULPHUR SOAP is the purest, the whitest, and most purifying of all Soaps, by its purifying action taking away and preventing all pimples, blotches, and roughness. It is recommended by the entire Medical Profession as the most elegant preparation for the skin that is known. By all Chemists, in Tablets, 6d. and 1s. THE ALBION SANATORY SOAP COMPANY, 232, Oxford-street, London.

"ELECTRICITY IS LIFE."
PULVERMACHER'S IMPROVED PATENT
GALVANIC CHAIN-BANDS, BELTS, BATTERIES, &c., approved by the Académie de Médecine, Paris, and by eminent Medical and Scientific Authorities in England and abroad.

CORROBORATIVE EVIDENCE, with a trace from whence it emanates, being the only reliable proof of curative efficacy, Mr. Pulvermacher invites the attention of sufferers to the CLOSE SCRUTINISATION of the DATES of the following Testimonials of cures, which must convince the reader of the extraordinary efficacy of PULVERMACHER'S GALVANIC CHAIN-BANDS. The frequent recurrence of written evidences of the vast curative properties of these appliances is so remarkable that it will repay the trouble of scrutinising their bond-fide nature. Mr. Pulvermacher will consider it a pleasing duty to show the originals to any inquirers for their inspection.

The bulk of these testimonials, too numerous to be inserted here, are published in a pamphlet, entitled "Galvanism: Nature's Chief Restorer of Impaired Vital Energy," post-free.

MR. PULVERMACHER would call attention to the following among the many eminent scientific and other TESTIMONIALS to the value of his inventions, signed by the élite of the medical profession, as a recognition of these great improvements:—

"We, the undersigned, have much pleasure in testifying that J. L. Pulvermacher's recent improvements in his Voltaic Batteries and Galvanic Appliances for Medical Purposes are of great importance to scientific medicine, and that he is entitled to the consideration and support of every one disposed to further the advancement of real and useful progress.—Dated this 9th day of March, 1868.

"Charles Locock, Bart., F.R.C.P., Physician to H.M. the Queen.
"Wm. Fergusson, Bart., F.R.S., late Surgeon to H.M. the Queen.
"Henry Holland, Bart., M.D., F.R.S., Physician to H.M. the Queen.
"J. Ranald Martin, Bart., C.B., M.D., F.R.S., &c.

DR. ONIMUS, Lauréat de l'Académie de Science et de Médecine, Paris, in his handbook, "Guide Pratique d'Electrotherapie," states, pp. 125 and 126 (1877):—

"There are cases in which the patients can themselves apply the electric currents, although not conversant with medical science; hence it is desirable to place in their hands an appliance which gives a moderate electric current, the action of which can be of sufficient duration, without inconvenience. In such cases Pulvermacher's Chains constitute, after all, the best apparatus, especially since their recent improvements.

"These Chains, in fact, possess the advantage of easy handling and instantaneous action. The current furnished by them is of a moderate, though quite sufficient, intensity, and is produced by a large number of small elements of feeble mechanical action, and, what we most prefer, of considerable tension. For permanent currents it evidently approaches nearest the conditions which one endeavours to obtain in ordinary apparatus.

"Considering the nature of the current, as well as its practical and convenient character, Pulvermacher's Chains are preferable to all other batteries in such cases where it is desirable to make use of permanent currents."

GALVANISM v. SLEEPLESSNESS.

"Sir,—I am pleased to be able to state that I have received much benefit from your appliances since wearing them. I have not had one sleepless night before doing so I had many. I also have had no return of the pain that on which I suffered.

"Yours truly,
"H. A. Dyer."

FOR FURTHER TESTIMONIALS, both Medical and Private, see Pamphlet, "GALVANISM: NATURE'S CHIEF RESTORER OF IMPAIRED VITAL ENERGY," post-free on application to

J. L. PULVERMACHER'S GALVANIC ESTABLISHMENT,
194, REGENT-STREET, LONDON, W.
(nearly opposite Conduit-street).

SPECIAL NOTICE.—Mr. Pulvermacher supplies Hospitals and all Charitable Institutions with his Patent Galvanic Chain-Bands at a considerable reduction off his regular prices.

UNITED STATES CONSULATE, Crefeld, Rhenish Prussia, Feb. 8, 1881.

"Gentlemen,—I find it impossible to obtain, in this part of Germany, the 'Pain Killer;' and I request you to send me the second order. I desire this medicine for the purpose of giving it away to persons whose especial ailings and distress I know will be relieved by its use, and whose sufferings are needless, when this most efficient remedy can be obtained. I have known the 'Pain Killer' on Massachusetts's utmost from the day it was introduced to the public, and, after long years of observation and use, I am satisfied it is positively efficient as a soothing remedy for external wounds, bruises, and sprains, and is not less efficient in relieving the many interior pains and troubles arising from colds and flu, from imprudence and excesses in eating and drinking. I regard the 'Pain Killer' as an indispensable necessity, and when it is gone feel such as does the owner of a house in a dangerous neighbourhood after his policy of insurance has expired.

"I am, very truly yours,
"J. S. Potter, American Consul.

"To the Proprietors of the 'Pain Killer.'"

Every family should know that this remarkable medicine is sold by nearly all Chemists, and supplied in Bottles from 1s. 1½d. to 4s. 6d. Its price brings it within the reach of all. Wholesale Agent, John M. Richards, London.

COLDS CURED BY
DR. DUNBAR'S ALKARAM, or Anti-Catarrh Smelling-Bottle.
ALKARAM. COLDS.
ALKARAM. COLDS.
ALKARAM. COLDS.

IF inhaled on the first symptoms, ALKARAM will at once arrest them, and cure severe cases in half an hour. Sold by all Chemists, 2s. 9d. a Bottle. Address, Dr. Dunbar, care of Messrs. F. Newbery and Sons, 1, King Edward-st., E.C.

TAMAR INDIEN GRILLON,
For CONSTIPATION, BILE, HEADACHE.

TAMAR INDIEN GRILLON,
A LAXATIVE AND REFRESHING FRUIT LOZENGE,
UNIVERSALLY PRESCRIBED BY THE FACULTY.

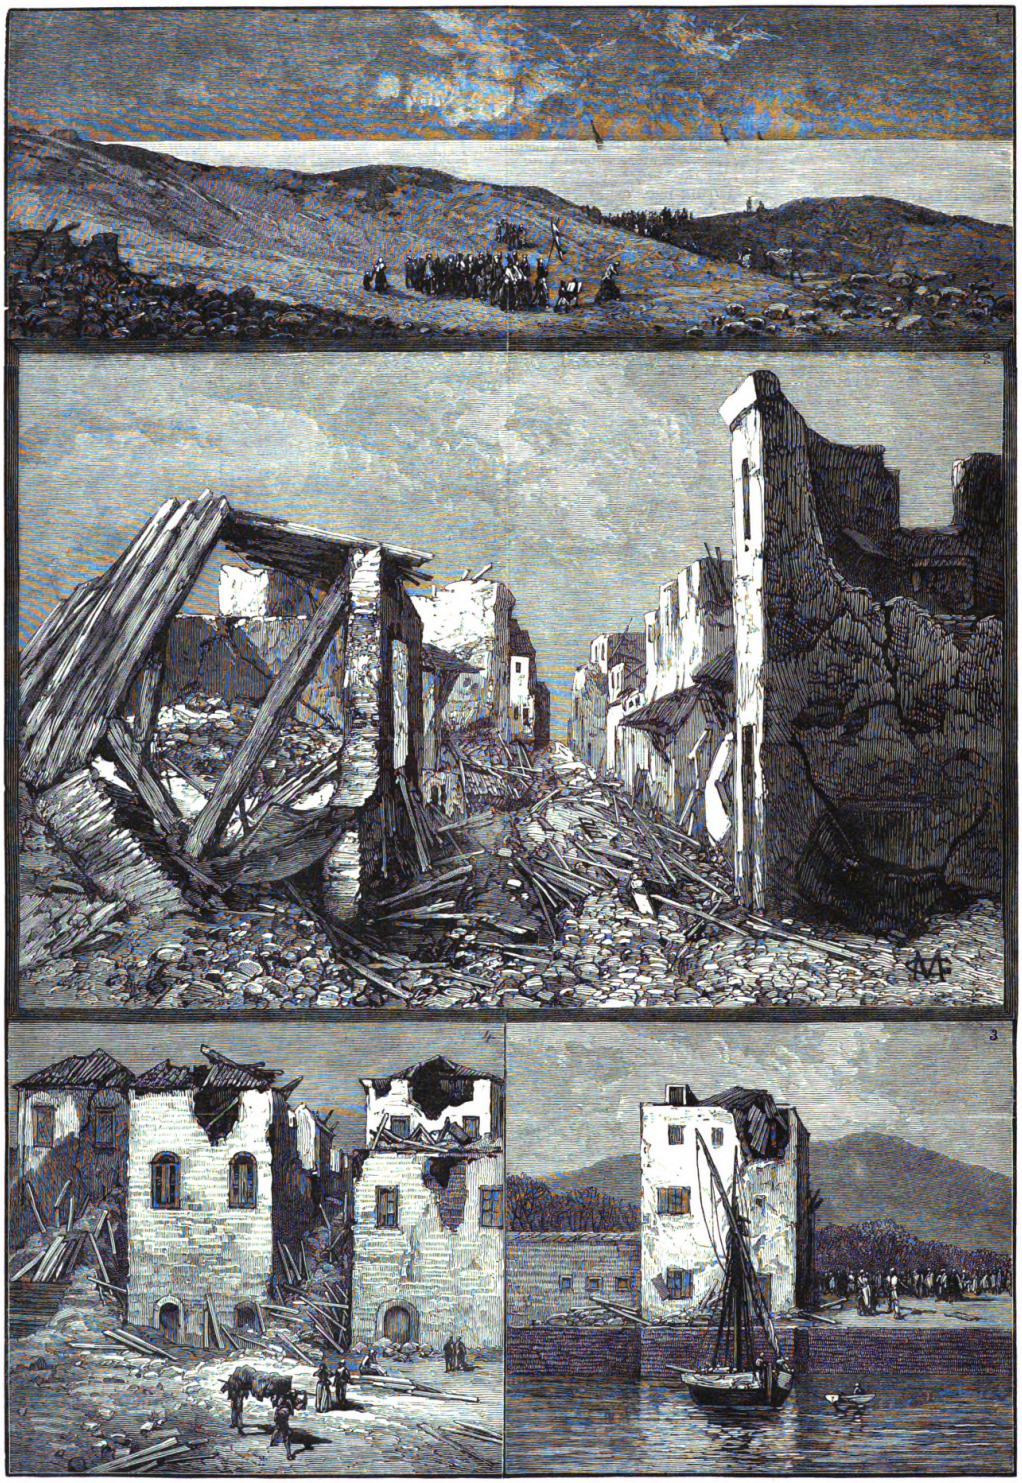
TAMAR INDIEN GRILLON.
2s. 6d. per Box, stamp included.
Sold by all Chemists and Druggists.
Wholesale—E. GRILLON, 83, Queen-street, London, E.C.

"FOR THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE."
CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE is warranted to cleanse the Blood from all impurities, from whatever cause arising. For Scrofula, Scurvy, Skin and Blood Diseases, its effects are marvellous. In Bottles, 2s. 9d. each, and in cases, containing six times the quantity, 11s. each, of all Chemists. Sent to any address for 30 or 132 stamps, of the Proprietor, F. J. CLARKE, Chemist, Lincoln.

HOOPING COUGH.
ROCHE'S HERBAL EMBROCATION.
THIS celebrated effectual Cure without internal medicine. Sole Wholesale Agents, W. EDWARDS and SON, 157, Queen Victoria-street (formerly of 67, St. Paul's-churchyard), London, whose names are engraved on the Government stamp.
Sold by most Chemists. Price 4s. per Bottle.

THROAT AFFECTIONS and HOARSENESS.—All suffering from Irritation of the Throat and Hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES. These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable Chemists in this country, at 1s. 1½d. per Box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government stamp around each box.—Prepared by JOHN I. BROWN and SONS, Boston, U.S. European Depôt, 33, Farringdon-road, London.

"KEATING'S POWDER" kills BUGS, Moths, Fleas, Beetles, and all Insects (perfectly unrivalled). Harmless to everything but Insects. Tins, 6d. and 1s.



1. Religious procession of peasants to invoke aid of the Saints.
2. Aplotaria, the principal street and market-place of the town.
3. On the quay, waiting for arrival of provisions.
4. In front of the Governor's Palace.

RUINS IN CHIOS AFTER THE LATE DISASTROUS EARTHQUAKE.—SEE PAGE 434.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

REGISTERED AT THE GENERAL POST-OFFICE FOR TRANSMISSION ABROAD.

No. 2190.—VOL. LXXVIII. SATURDAY, MAY 7, 1881. WITH TWO SUPPLEMENTS | SIXPENCE. By Post, 6½D.

MARRIAGE OF LORD BROOKE AND MISS MAYNARD AT WESTMINSTER ABBEY.—SEE PAGE 457.

BIRTHS.

On the 2nd inst., at South Eaton-place, Lady Catherine Clive, of a daughter.

On the 30th ult., at Rûg, Corwen, N.W., the wife of the Hon. Charles H. Wynn, of a daughter.

On the 1st inst., at Brussels, the wife of Baron Charles Greindl, of a daughter.

MARRIAGES.

On the 30th ult., at Ramsden-road Chapel, Balham, by the Rev. B. C. Partridge, Fritz Hvoslef, of St. Leonard's, Balham, and Mark Lane, to Maude, eldest daughter Russell Pontifex, of the Chestnuts, Balham, and granddaughter of Russell Pontifex, Sandyway, Newent, Gloucestershire.

At St. James's Church, Delhi, by the Rev. E. Bickersteth, R. E. Seymour Smyth, Captain 15th Sikhs, to Georgina Masson, daughter of Surgeon-Major C. E. Wikeley, Army Medical Department.

On the 26th ult., at St. Peter's Church, Eaton-square, by the Very Rev. the Dean of Llandaff, the Hon. and Rev. Alberic E. Bertie, third son of the Earl of Abingdon, to Lady Caroline Elizabeth McDonnell, eldest daughter of the late and sister to the present Earl of Antrim.

DEATHS.

On the 28th ult., at Mawley, Sir Edward Blount, Bart., aged 86. R.I.P.

On the 2nd inst., at Bournemouth, the Hon. Maria Wrottesley, in her 73rd year.

On the 2nd inst., at Ashburnham House, Southsea, Jane Louisa, the beloved wife of General John Charles Hope Gibsone, of Pentland, county Midlothian.

On the 29th ult., at Munich, the Countess de Montcelas, daughter of the late J. Watts Russell, Esq., of Ham Hall, Staffordshire.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, or Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING MAY 14.

SUNDAY, MAY 8.

Third Sunday after Easter.
Morning Lessons: Num. xxii; Luke xxiv. 13. Evening Lessons: Num. xxiii. or xxiv.; 1 Thess. v.
St. Paul's Cathedral, 10.30 a.m., Rev. H. C. Shuttleworth, Minor Canon; 3.15, Rev. Canon Stubbs; 7 p.m.
St. James's, noon, Rev. Francis Garden, Sub-Dean of the Chapels Royal.
Westminster Abbey, 10 a.m., Rev. H. Aldrich Cotton; 3 p.m., Canon Prothero; 7 p.m., the Bishop of Carlisle.
Whitehall, 11 a.m., Rev. W. F. Erskine Knollys; 3 p.m., Rev. Dr. Thornton (Boyle Lecture).
Savoy, 11.30 a.m., Rev. Henry White, the Chaplain; 7 p.m., Rev. Prebendary Leathes.

MONDAY, MAY 9.

Royal Institution, general monthly meeting, 5 p.m.
Half-Quarter Day.
British Architects' Institute, anniversary, 8 p.m.
Society of Arts, Cantor Lecture, 8 p.m. (Mr. Alan S. Cole on Lacemaking).
Geographical Society, 8.30 p.m. (Mr. E. Whymper on the Andes of Ecuador).
British Museum reopens.
Victoria Hospital for Children (French comedy, at Cromwell House, 9.30 p.m.).
Anniversaries: British and Foreign School Society, noon (Lord Aberdare in the chair); Ragged School Union, Exeter Hall, 6 p.m. (Lord Shaftesbury in the chair).

TUESDAY, MAY 10.

City and Guilds of London Technical College, foundation to be laid by Prince Leopold, 3 p.m.
Horticultural Society, 11 a.m.; promenade, 4 p.m.
Royal Institution, 3 p.m. (Professor Dewar on the Non-Metallic Elements).
Actuaries' Institute, 7 p.m.
Medical and Chirurgical Society, 8.30, p.m.
Musical Union, 3.15 p.m.
Anthropological Institute, 8 p.m.
Civil Engineers' Institution, 8 p.m. (Mr. J. I. Thornycroft on Torpedo Boats, &c.).
Photographic Society, 8 p.m.
Dialectical Society, 8 p.m.
Colonial Institute, 8 p.m. (Sir Charles Nicholson on the Boundaries and Divisions of Colonies).
Society of Arts, 8 p.m. (Mr. W. Westgarth on Trade Relations between Great Britain and her Dependencies).
British Architects' Institute, conference (two days).
Hibbert Lectures, St. George's Hall, 5 p.m. (Mr. Rhys Davids on Buddhism).
Hospital for Nervous Diseases, bazaar at Kensington Townhall (two days).
Gresham Lectures, 6 p.m. (Dean Burgon on Divinity); and on the 11th, 12th, and 13th.
Races: Chester and Windsor.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 11.

University of London, presentation, 2 p.m.
Literary Fund, 3 p.m.
Botanic Society, promenade, 3.30, Conference on the City Parochial Charities at the Mansion House.
Society of Arts, 8 p.m. (Mr. H. J. Powell on the Manufacture of Glass for Decorative Purposes).
Public Analysts' Society, 8 p.m.
Microscopical Society, 8 p.m.
Amateur Mechanical Society, anniversary, 8 p.m.
Geological Society, 8 p.m.
South Kensington Museum, 4 p.m. (Mr. Norman Lockyer on Spectroscopy in relation to Solar Chemistry); and on Friday.
Asclum Society, 8.30 p.m. (Professor Henry Morley on the Place of English in a Liberal Education).
St. Mary's Hospital, annual festival, Willis's Rooms, 6.30 p.m. (Earl Granville in the chair).
Governesses' Benevolent Institution, annual dinner, Willis's Rooms.

THURSDAY, MAY 12.

Easter Law Sittings end.
Easter Term ends.
Royal Institution, 3 p.m. (Professor Tyndall on Magnetism).
Westminster Abbey, musical festival for School for Daughters of Military Officers; sermon by the Dean, 3.30 p.m.
Royal Society, 4.30 p.m.
Antiquaries' Society, 8.30 p.m.
Telegraph Engineers' Society, 8 p.m.
Mathematical Society, 8 p.m.
Inventors' Institute, 8.15 p.m.
British Architects' Institute, conversazione, 8 p.m.
Philharmonic Society, 5th concert, 8.
St. Paul's Cathedral, London Church Choir Association, special evening service: the Bishop of Bedford.
Great International Horse Show, Manchester (four days).
Anniversaries: London Missionary Society, Exeter Hall, 10 a.m. (the Earl of Aberdeen in the chair); British and Foreign Bible Society, Exeter Hall, 7.30 p.m.; Society for Propagation of the Gospel, St. James's Hall, 2.30 p.m. (the Archbishop of Canterbury in the chair).
Ipswich Races.

FRIDAY, MAY 13.

Old May Day; Full Moon, 10.24 p.m.
Astronomical Society, 8 p.m.
Quekett Microscopical Club, 8 p.m.
United Service Institution, 3 p.m. (Capt. J. C. R. Colomb on Naval Intelligence and the Protection of Commerce in War).
London Institution, 5 p.m. (Rev. H. R. Haweis on some American Humorists).
Royal Institution, 8 p.m. (Mr. Francis Galton on Mental Images and Vision, 9 p.m.).
British Medical Association, Conversazione; South Kensington Museum, 9 p.m.
Botanic Society, lecture, 4 p.m.
Clinical Society, 8.30 p.m.
Architectural Association, 7.30 p.m. (Mr. W. Burges on Queen Anne Architecture).
New Shakspeare Society, 8 p.m. (Mr. F. J. Furnivall on the Cruxes in Shakspeare's Early Comedies).
National Health Society, Mayfair Lecture, 4 p.m. (Mr. Henry Power on Care and Education of the Eye).
Society of Arts, 8 p.m. (General Sir Arthur Phayre on Burmah).
Newark Agricultural Show (two days).
Races: Halifax and Alexandra Park.

SATURDAY, MAY 14.

The Illustrated London News first published, 1842.
Royal Institution, 3 p.m. (Professor H. Morley on Scotland's Part in English Literature).
Botanic Society, 3.45 p.m.
Geologists' Association, excursion to Grays, Fenchurch-street, 2.27 p.m.
Physical Society, 3 p.m.
Artists' Benevolent Institution, anniversary dinner, Willis's Rooms, 6 p.m. (Lord Rosebery in the chair).

CORPORATION OF LIVERPOOL.—AUTUMN EXHIBITION OF MODERN PICTURES IN OIL AND WATER COLOUR, 1881.

NOTICE TO EXHIBITORS.

The above Exhibition will OPEN in the WALKER ART-GALLERY, on MONDAY, SEPT. 5. The days for receiving Pictures are from Aug. 1 to 13, both inclusive.

Cards of Particulars, and all information may be obtained on application to Mr. Charles Dyell, Curator, Walker Art-Gallery, Liverpool, to whom all Works of Art intended for exhibition should be addressed.

London Agent, Mr. James Bourlet, 17, Nassau-street, Middlesex Hospital.

JOSEPH RAYNER, Town Clerk, Honorary secretary.

HORSE SHOW, AGRICULTURAL HALL, ISLINGTON. Entries close MAY 23. SHOW OPEN JUNE 4, 6, 7, 8, 9, and 10. Prize-Lists and Forms of Entry may be had on application to the Office, Barford-street, N. By order, S. SIDNEY, Secretary and Manager. Agricultural Hall Company, Limited.

BRIGHTON. — PULLMAN DRAWING-ROOM CAR TRAINS leave Victoria for Brighton every WEEKDAY at 10.0 a.m. and 4.50 p.m., and Brighton for Victoria at 9.45 a.m. and 5.45 p.m.; also from Victoria on Sundays at 10.45, and from Brighton at 8.30 p.m.

EVERY SUNDAY.—A Cheap First-Class Train from Victoria at 10.45 a.m., calling at Clapham Junction and Croydon. Day Return Tickets, 10s.

THE GRAND AQUARIUM AT BRIGHTON.—EVERY SATURDAY, Cheap First-Class Trains from Victoria at 10.55 and 11.50 a.m., and London Bridge at 9.30 a.m. and 12.0 noon, calling at Clapham Junction and Croydon. Day Return Fare—First Class, Half-a-Guinea (including admission to the Aquarium and the Royal Pavilion Picture Gallery, Palace, and Grounds); available to return by any Train the same day, except the 5.45 p.m. Pullman Car Train.

(By order) J. P. KNIGHT, General Manager.

THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS,

A NEW JOURNAL FOR THE YOUNG.

The Proprietors of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS issued the first Illustrated Weekly Newspaper for Boys, price One Penny, on Wednesday, April 6, 1881. THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS is a Journal full of Entertainment and Information for Youth; and, at the same time, a Paper which Parents can with confidence place in the hands of their Children.

CAPTAIN MAYNE REID'S "LOST MOUNTAIN." A New Romance in the lead-style of this famous Author, commenced in THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS for April 6.

THE LOST MOUNTAIN. Captain MAYNE REID'S New Romance, is the Best Story for Boys now being published.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS' RACQUET-MATCHES at Messrs. Prince's will be found specially illustrated in "Phil Holiday's" Notes for Wednesday, May 4.

"SQUEE BIFFEN" GOES UP IN A BALLOON in No. 5 of THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS, May 4. This humorous serial story of a Boy's Adventures will be fully illustrated in the No. for May 11.

TRAVEL, VOYAGE, ADVENTURE.—Captain MAYNE REID'S Manilla Storiette is concluded in THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS for May 4.

"BROWN BESSIE." A Complete Storiette of our first Afghan War, by JOHN LATEY, Jun., appears in THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS for May 4.

HORACE DAVENPORT, Five Years England's Amateur Champion Swimmer, is portrayed in the No. for May 4.

A MONTHLY PART of THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS is now being published, containing the first four Numbers, stitched in a coloured Wrapper, and with "The Royal Middies" Supplement. Initial Chapters of "THE LOST MOUNTAIN," and "Squee Biffen," with Memoir of Lord Beaconsfield's Schooldays, Jottings from a Middy's Journal, and the Sports and News of the Month.

Price Sixpence: Post-free, Eightpence.

THOMAS FOX, 10, Milford-lane, Strand, London.

ADVERTISERS are requested to send their announcements early in advance for THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS.

SOCIETY OF BRITISH ARTISTS.—FIFTY-EIGHTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION NOW OPEN, at the SUFFOLK-STREET GALLERIES, Pall-mall East, from Nine to Six daily. Admission, One Shilling.

THOMAS ROBERTS, Secretary.

THE ANNUAL SPRING EXHIBITION OF HIGH-CLASS PICTURES by BRITISH AND FOREIGN ARTISTS, including Professor Leopold Carl Muller's picture "An Encampment Outside Cairo," is Now Open at ARTHUR TOOTH and SONS' Gallery, 5, Haymarket. Admission, One shilling.

HERBERT EXHIBITION.—THE JUDGMENT OF DANIEL, Painted for the House of Lords, and other Works by J. R. Herbert, R.A., will be ON VIEW at the HANOVER GALLERY, 47, New Bond-street, on and after MONDAY, the 9th inst.

DORÉ'S GREAT WORKS.—"ECCE HOMO" ("Full of divine dignity."—The Times) and "THE ASCENSION;" "CHRIST LEAVING THE PRÆTORIUM;" "CHRIST ENTERING JERUSALEM," with all his other Great Pictures.—DORÉ GALLERY, 35, New Bond-street. Daily, 10 to 6. 1s.

ROSA BONHEUR'S celebrated PICTURES, ON THE ALERT, and A DISHEARTENING PARTY, which gained for the artist the Cross of the Order of Leopold of Belgium, at the Antwerp Academy, 1878. Also, the complete engraved works of Rosa Bonheur, including the well-known "Horse Fair," now on Exhibition at L. H. LEFEVRE'S GALLERY, 14a, King-street, St. James's, S.W. Admission, One Shilling. Ten to Five.

ST. JAMES'S HALL, PICCADILLY.

THE MOORE and BURGESS MINSTRELS' EASTER HOLIDAY PROGRAMME, replete with musical gems, sparkling conundrums, and humorous sketches, will be repeated until the end of the present month.

EVERY NIGHT AT EIGHT.
MONDAY, WEDNESDAY, and SATURDAY at THREE and EIGHT.
FIFTY ARTISTS,
including the Juvenile Choir, the Serpent Dancers, and powerful Phalanx of Comedians.
Fauteuils, 5s.; Sofa Stalls, 3s.; Area, 2s.; Gallery, 1s.
No fees.

BERLIOZ'S Symphonic Fantastique, ÉPISODE DE LA VIE D'UN ARTISTE.—Owing to the enthusiastic reception at Mr. Ganz's First Concert, this great work will be repeated, by general desire, on SATURDAY AFTERNOON NEXT, MAY 14, at Mr. GANZ'S SECOND CONCERT, at ST. JAMES'S HALL, at Three. Tickets, 10s. 6d., 7s., 5s., 3s., and 1s., at the usual places, and of Mr. Wilhelm Ganz, 125, Harley-street, W.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Irving. On MONDAY, WEDNESDAY, and FRIDAY, MAY 9, 11, and 13, at Eight o'clock, OTHELLO—Othello, Mr. Irving; Iago, Mr. Bavin; Desdemona, Miss Ellen Terry. On TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY, MAY 10, 12, and 14, at 7.45, THE CUP and THE BELLE'S STRATAGEM—Mr. Irving and Miss Ellen Terry.

MR. and MRS. GERMAN REED'S ENTERTAINMENT. A New First Piece, MANY HAPPY RETURNS, by Gilbert A'Beckett and Clement Scott; Music by Lionel Benson. A New Musical Sketch, OUR INSTITUTE, by Mr. Corney Grain; and ALL AT SEA, by Arthur Law; Music by Corney Grain. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday, at Eight; Thursday and Saturday at Three.—ST. GEORGE'S HALL, Langham-place. Admission, 1s., 2s.; Stalls, 3s., 5s. No fees. Booking-Office open from 10 to 6.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, MAY 7, 1881.

With the opening of May the London season fairly begins. The West-End is becoming crowded; the two Opera-Houses are both opened; the art-galleries have unfolded their doors, including the Royal Academy, the members of which ate their annual dinner last Saturday with the Prince of Wales and the Prime Minister as their chief guests; concerts tempt the public with bewildering excellence and frequency; the never-failing May anniversaries crowd upon each other and fail not to attract their votaries; the stream of fashionable gaiety flows stronger; and the pulse of metropolitan life, in its endless varieties, is beginning to beat quicker. The success of the London season depends greatly on the weather. There seems to be the alternative of bright skies and treacherous east winds, or a cloudy atmosphere and warm showers; or a compromise between them. We can at least be thankful for such vernal influences as seem to be the foretaste of genial weather, and rejoice that, in spite of chilling breezes and leaden skies, agricultural prospects were never brighter at this period of the year.

Parliament—or rather the House of Commons, for the Peers have hardly as yet exhausted their Easter holidays—divides its interest between Mr. Bradlaugh, who at present vainly knocks at the door of entrance, while the Government are trying to legislate for his admission, and the Irish Land Bill, which is being carefully discussed, and is not likely to pass its second reading this week. When the bill goes into Committee, the Opposition will, no doubt, be prepared to take up a more definite position, and the Parnellites to show their hand. At present the thoughts of the Irish members wander to their native land, where Mr. Dillon, M.P., their too independent representative, has at length been committed to Kilmainham Gaol for open incitements to defiance of the law and rioting, which has had the effect of paralysing the Land League. Simultaneously the Irsih Executive, which has thus far been very forbearing in the use of its exceptional powers, has proclaimed the city of Dublin under the provisions of the Protection of Life and Property Act, owing to a recent and aggravated murderous attack, instigated, it is believed, by some secret society. This prompt action of the Lord Lieutenant, while likely to check the growing spirit of lawlessness in the Irish capital, will probably have some effect upon the fortunes of the Land Bill, by provoking Mr. Parnell and his colleagues to have recourse to obstructive tactics, or at least to withdraw their support from the measure on the second reading.

In neither of the two questions that excite European anxiety is the outcome very clear. The indirect acceptance by the Hellenic Government of the frontier line marked out by the Porte continues to create discontent, though somewhat subdued, among the subjects of King George. But in proportion as Greece shows readiness to put up with the compromise, Turkey holds back. First on one side, then on the other, the Powers apply pressure. But, as the Porte has gone so far as to draught the Convention relative to the surrender of the ceded territory, the end may not be far off, unless the Greek army on the frontier, already in a feverish state, should lose patience, and precipitate hostilities.

The French military officers in Northern Africa are showing some skill in their campaign against the Khroumir tribes, whose country they have almost entirely invested, and who will have to fight or submit. The Tunis General, Ali Bey, has shown his strategic capacity by avoiding the invaders, while part of his troops are supposed to have deserted to the frontier natives. The poor Bey is at his wit's end. His invocation of the Sultan has resulted only in an able despatch from the Porte, while the French columns are converging to a point within thirty miles of his capital. Soon it will be imperative that he should succumb to the French and accept a disguised Protectorate, or resist them without any prospect of success. Tunis may not be swallowed whole, but seems destined, like the artichoke, to be eaten leaf by leaf. It has splendid harbours and a fertile soil, and Prince Bismarck nods approval to a scheme of annexation which may recompense his French neighbours for the loss of Alsace-Lorraine, forgetful perhaps that they are gaining military experience and practical organisation which will serve them elsewhere besides Northern Africa.

It is to be hoped that tranquillity is about to be restored throughout the whole of South Africa. Various circumstances, including the possibility of a defeat in the Legislature, have brought the Cape Government to a reasonable frame of mind. Mr. Spriggs and his colleagues having accepted the mediation of her Majesty's High Commissioner, Sir Hercules Robinson has arranged terms of peace with the Basuto chiefs, which have been accepted on both sides. Under cover of a license tax of a pound per annum on guns, the demand for general disarmament is abandoned; there is to be a complete amnesty; and, above all, no confiscation of property is demanded, but only a fine of 5000 cattle. It is probable that the Basutos would have accepted these terms before this hapless war, which has cost the colony more than a million and a half, was began. One great ground of satisfaction at home with this settlement is that the Imperial troops will not now, as was at one time feared, be called upon to intervene.

Sir Hercules has a far more difficult problem to solve further north. The members of the Transvaal Commission, including his Excellency and President Brand of the Free State, are commencing their deliberations; and Mr. Gladstone reasonably asks Sir M. Hicks-Beach to postpone his motion of censure till the knotty questions at issue between the British Government and the Boers have been discussed. The instructions sent out by Lord Kimberley to the English members of the Commission include the recognition of British "suzerainty" in the Transvaal—that is, the control of external relations through the agency of the British Resident and High Commissioner; protection to the natives, in whose favour the Convention against slavery is to be reaffirmed, and their right to hold land and to enjoy free movement; full security of person and property for all loyal inhabitants; and freedom of trade for all British subjects. Lord Kimberley suggests, rather than demands, in the interests of Dutch settlers, the severance of districts principally inhabited by natives. This is the most "burning" question of the whole. The Boers are at issue among themselves; in fact, they have at present no properly organised Government. But their more sagacious leaders, aided by President Brand, will probably prevent a failure in the negotiations, and bring about a satisfactory compromise, which ought to result in what that enlightened ruler hopes will be "a lasting peace."

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

Persons of either sex (and in their right minds) who were privileged to be present at the Private Views of the Royal Academy and of the Grosvenor Gallery can scarcely fail to have been stricken with amazement and horror at the sight of the preposterous fashion and outlandish colour of the raiment worn by a small proportion of the ladies present. I noticed some in flannel bed or bathing gowns, all bursting out in frills and reaching to the feet. These fearful gabardines were either of a salmon or a brick-dust colour. Another lady in a pillow, or, rather, a bolster-case of mauve silk much distressed me; and a shriek of consternation nearly broke from me when I beheld a poor little maiden of fourteen, who ought to have been permitted to look as pretty as nature had made her, but who had been forced by her "stern parients" into a kind of (seemingly) canvas flour-sack with orifices at the bottom for her little feet to peep in and out: the bag itself being adorned with bows of green and red ribbon. She could not help herself, poor thing. Where are we to look for another Elizabeth Barrett Browning to re-echo "The Cry of the Children" uncouthly dressed by vain and silly parents?

I am always mindful of the indignant remonstrance of the spinster to Mr. Spectator:—"Sir, what have you to do with our petticoats?" But this is no case of paniers or crinoline. It is a case of whether public exhibitions of Guys are to be tolerated, save on the fifth of November. Pray do not udduce the attenuated maidens of Mr. E. Burne Jones as an apology for the public appearance of the dismal sisterhood at whom I have glanced. Mr. Burne Jones, however much some of us may dissent from his canons of proportion, is always graceful and refined. Miss Ellen Terry as Camma, in "The Cup," is only one of Mr. Burne Jones's nymphs who has stepped out of the canvas, say, of "the Golden Stairs," and has been endowed with Galatea-like vitality. Moreover, Mr. Jones is consistently mediæval. He does not give us a Hebe in a Mother Hubbard cloak and Psyche in a Tam o'Shanter cap. The frightful folk who glide like phantoms about the picture-galleries are as inconsistent as they are absurd. They jumble up the modes of the sixteenth, the eighteenth, and the nineteenth centuries into one pot pourri of grotesque ugliness.

I have the honour to know all our really great æsthetic painters; indeed, their Archimago, Gabriel Dante Rossetti, is one of the oldest and most warmly esteemed friends I have; but I do most indignantly protest against these conceited or crazy folk in the flannel bathing-gowns and the mauve silk bolster-cases being in any way identified with the æsthetic movement. They have no more to do with that movement than the lady from the circus who is occasionally engaged to parade a white palfrey through the streets of Coventry at show-time has to do with the Godiva of Edwin Landseer's picture, of Thomas's noble ceramic, and of Tennyson's deathless verse.

Let us be just. Among the half-score of fashion-books which I take in every month, and which I have bound at the end of the year, I find one, the Ladies' Gazette of Fashion, which has been lately giving "Fashions for Art-Folk"—boldly and tastefully drawn transcripts of feminine costume from Sandro Botticelli, Andrea Mantegna, and other Old Masters. But these were all indoor costumes. A lady, I take it, has an indefeasible right to assume indoors the costume which she thinks suits her best. At a dinner-table or at a reception I like to see ladies whose dress reminds me now of Anne Boleyn and now of Amy Robsart, now of Queen Berengaria and now of Alice Bridgenorth, now of Henrietta Maria and now of Jane Shore. Scores of the garments in Cesare Vecellio's "Habiti Antichi e Moderni" and Jost Amman's "Frauentrachtenbuch"—both sixteenth-century guides to the toilette—might be almost exactly copied, and with superb effect as dinner dresses. But I do most seriously object to our public thoroughfares and picture-galleries being pervaded by ladies who look like walking caricatures of Madge Wildfire, Mary the Maid of the Inn, Mother Shipton, the Witch of Endor, and a Charity Girl gone mad. I have a theory about the "Guy" æsthetics. A dark suspicion crosses my mind. Mr. Burnand, it is well known, is a very occult man. He appears to wear his heart on his sleeve; but he is in reality "as deep as a draw well." Can it be that the Sad Sisterhood are only so many lady contributors to Punch, bound by secret vows to wear their grim garb in places of public resort in order to carry out the delusion propagated by their Moody Chief, backed by the Machiavellic Mr. Du Maurier, that the "Æsthetes" really form an integral portion of cultivated English society.

By-the-way, I wonder if the clever dramatist whose "Colonel" is droll enough to make Democritus crack his sides with laughter ever read a two-act comedy called "Taste," by Samuel Foote, Esq., which was produced at the Theatre Royal in Drury Lane in the year 1765. I have not read much of the "British Aristophanes" lately; but happening, the other day, to take up a volume of Foote, I lighted on "Taste." A glance at the dramatis personæ will give a sample of the quality of the play. Carmine, a painter and picture dealer; Puff, an art-auctioneer; Alderman and Lady Pentweazel, vulgar nouveaux riches, ambitious to purchase taste "ready made, for cash only;" Brush, an art-impostor; and Lord Dupe, a silly nobleman who buys new daubs for old paintings, are the principal characters. Palmer, Yates, and Shuter are, among the actors, the names most familiar to me; and Lady Pentweazel is played by Mr. Worsdale. Is this a printer's blunder; or was Mr. Worsdale an adept in female parts? Perhaps Mr. Dutton Cook, most erudite of commentators on the "Bill of the Play," may know. "Taste" is a vivacious satire on the mania for more or less spurious classical antiquities and paintings ascribed to the Old Masters; and Foote, in fine, only amplified the lines of trenchant satire against pretenders in art laid down by Hogarth. The prologue was written by Garrick, and spoken by him "in the character of an auctioneer." The following lines from the prologue show that the satire of a hundred and fifteen years ago has not yet lost its force and direction.

> 'Tis said Virtù to such a height is grown,
> All arts are now encouraged—but our own.
> Be not deceived, I here declare on oath
> I never yet sold goods of foreign growth.
> Ne'er sent commissioners out to Greece or Rome.
> My best antiquities are made at home.
> I've Romans, Greeks, Italians, near at hand
> True Britons all, and living in the Strand.
> I ne'er for trinkets rack my pericranium,
> They furnish out my rooms from Herculaneum.
> But hush!
> Should it be known that English are employ'd
> Our manufacture is at once destroyed.

The book-post brings me two lively, interesting, and useful books mainly dealing with the culinary craft; and, for some reason inscrutable to me, the editor of one and the author of the other book have chosen to veil their names under not the most felicitous of aliases. In the first, the new carefully and sympathetically revised edition of "Original" Walker's "Aristology, or the Art of Dining" (London: G. Bell and Sons), purports, on the titlepage, to be "edited by Felix Summerly." Now, "Felix Summerly's" delightful art handbooks were deservedly popular some seven and thirty years ago; but the present generation may be to a very considerable extent unaware that "Felix Summerly" was the nom de plume of a gentleman who has long enjoyed world-wide celebrity as a promoter of international exhibitions, and a benefactor to the cause of technical education, Sir Henry Cole, K.C.B. Why should he shrink from putting his name as editor to a work which is almost a culinary classic?

The second book (Chatto and Windus) is entitled the "Cupboard Papers," and which profess to be "a series of reflections on the Art of Living." The little work treats of all kinds of dinners and dinner giving; but why does the author, Mr. Blanchard Jerrold, call himself, on the titlepage, "Fin Bec?" Who is Fin Bec?—I mean, to the million. A comparatively limited number of persons may be aware that under the pseudonym in question Mr. Jerrold has produced several highly interesting culinary compilations of the "Almanach des Gourmands" order; but to the general public "Fin Bec" is caviare. One must, moreover, be an adept in Parisian French to understand the mere meaning of the word. Why be ashamed of having written a most entertaining series of essays, Mr. Blanchard Jerrold?

Pity the sorrows of a wretched "Echoist." "C. W." writes me from Keighley a letter beginning thus:—

> Dear Sir,—Before proceeding with this letter, I may as well explain its object and introduce its writer. I am seventeen years of age, and, having of late had occasion to review different callings with a view of coming to an opinion as to their relative suitability as a means of livelihood, I have been strongly attracted towards journalism.

And after this, my esteemed correspondent goes on for seventeen mortal octavo pages of manuscript. I must really run away. I must go round the world, or go on the stage as "first heavy old man." I really cannot stand correspondents who write letters seventeen octavo pages long at seventeen years of age. Whatever will my correspondent be like in the letter-writing line by the time he is thirty-five!

That was a useful paragraph in the Times from a correspondent at Odessa, who pointed out not only that the wretched Sofia Perovskaya was the only woman who has ever been judicially hanged in Russia; and, in fact, the only woman judicially put to death at all in the Czar's dominions since the year 1719, in which year a governess, named Mary Hamilton, was publicly decapitated at St. Petersburg for the murder of her three children.

In 1734 capital punishment was altogether judicially abolished by the Tsarina Elizabeth, daughter of Peter the Great. But, like the majority of things Russian, this so-called abolition of the death penalty was never more than a transparent sham—a mockery, a delusion, and a snare. Whenever it has been thought expedient to execute political offenders in Russia, the criminals have either been tried by court-martial or by such a special High Court of the Senate as that before which the Perovskaya and her accomplices were arraigned. As regards murderers and bandits, nothing was easier, within a few years since, than to put them to death. The crime of murder usually entailed, prior to the assassin's deportation to Siberia, the infliction of the punishment of the knout, and the executioner could without difficulty kill the victim with six and sometimes three blows with his instrument, or by so contriving matters that the struggling wretch bound to the post dislocated his own neck.

The new permanent art-exhibition which is shortly to be opened in St. Stephen's Hall, Westminster, is likely to prove an attractive lounge for members of Parliament, lawyers, and engineers—and why not to Parliamentary agents and witnesses just released from cross-examination, who wish to "change the current of their thoughts" for a few minutes, by the contemplation of pictures and water-colour drawings? Among the provisional committee of the St. Stephen's Art Society I note the names of Lord Bury, Lord Alfred Paget, Messrs. H. S. Marks, R.A., E. W. Godwin, F.S.A., W. G. Wills, W. B. Knight, R. C. Woodville, and Professor Richmond.

Sir Garnet Wolseley has written a letter full of sound common sense to the Grantham Temperance Association, in reply to a communication congratulating him on his recent visit to that borough. "Nearly all the crime in our Army," writes Sir Garnet, "can be traced to intoxication; and I have always found that, when with any army or body of troops in the field there was no issue of spirits, and when their use was prohibited, the health as well as the conduct of the men were all that could be wished for."

General Sir Garnet Wolseley (he was on the staff in Canada in 1863-4) might also have told his correspondents at Grantham that the tremendous army raised by the North to combat Secession, and which, when Richmond fell, and the Confederate cause "went up," was nearly a million strong, was, so far as the private soldiers were concerned, wholly and entirely a teetotal army. No spirits, no wine, not so much as a glass of lager beer, could the privates licitly obtain. That, I can vouch for from personal observation, was the case with the Grand Army of the Potomac.

The officers, on the other hand, could procure pretty well what they liked in the way of stimulants, from champagne down to the brisk and beaming cocktail. Occasionally cunning devices were resorted to for the smuggling of whisky into camp. The spirits were sometimes contained in a square tin can, disguised with calf sides and back and gilt sides and lettering as a hymn-book; but these alchoholic hymnals were, as a rule, discovered and confiscated by the Provost-Marshal and his assistants; and, "O! Sir," wrote a bereaved private to a Washington newspaper, "it's hard—it is, indeed, to see the stuff we're longing for staggering about with a pair of shoulderstraps on." Shoulder-straps were the distinctive badge of officers' rank in the Federal army.

My purpose in drawing attention to this little item of history is a double-barrelled one. I wish to point out that, not only was there no alcohol allowed to the soldiers of the Grand Army of the Potomac, but there was no flogging. On the other hand, there was a peculiarly severe and, as I thought, a very cruel corporal infliction known as "tying up." The delinquent was tightly bound, with his arms extended horizontally, to the wheel of a gun or of a cart, and left there, with his head uncovered, often beneath a blazing sun, for so many hours, according to the nature of his offence. I have seen, too, soldiers convicted of theft and other disgraceful offences, dressed in scavenger's attire, and, with a chain with a cannon-ball at one end riveted round one ankle, compelled to do scavenger work about the camp. In Washington City itself, the Provost sometimes caused violent shower-baths to be administered in the morning to soldiers who had been guilty of disorderly conduct, and who had been locked up in the black hole all night. But there was no flogging. Oh dear, no.

Mem.: I see my Lord Denman has a bill in the Peers by which delinquent soldiers are to be permitted the option of receiving five-and-twenty lashes as an equivalent to so many months' imprisonment and hard labour. I should say that the men who elected to be flogged were precisely the kind of men who deserved to be flogged—that is to say, brutal, case-hardened fellows, utterly dead to all chivalrous or honourable feeling. It would be as well to add a rider to Lord Denman's proposal, that after the voluntary "floggee" had received his twenty-five lashes it should be at the option of his commanding officer to give him another twenty-five stripes, well laid on, for luck, and then to have him drummed out of the regiment.

A valued correspondent, "H. L.," Chelsea, speaking of the rapid increase of English idioms now in use in Parisian society, and notably in Parisian journalism, quotes the following from the Paris Figaro of the twenty-seventh of April last. In the sporting intelligence (which, by-the-way, is edited by "Robert Milton," and under the heading "Courses de Bordeaux," it is stated that "Brigand a fait valkower (walk over) dans le prix des Pavillons."

It happens, oddly enough, that only the other day, at dinner at the Tartar Traktir, at St. Petersburg, I was talking to M. Périvier, the experienced and intelligent Secretary of the Rédaction of the Figaro, who had come northward on special correspondence bent in connection with the Tsar's murder, on precisely this English idioms subject. He told me of at least fifty, of the interpolation of which into French I was more or less unaware. "Bookmaker;" "poule" for pool; "laounch" for lunch; "skating" for skating rink; "gentleman rider" "outsider," "Velchorre" for Welsher; "cab;" "drague" for drag, or even "foreinhan" for four-in-hand. The entente cordiale, this, with a vengeance.

But the very drollest idiomatic importance I have yet noticed was in a novel, by M. Alexis Bouvier, called "La Belle Grêlée." The author says of his heroine, "Après avoir pres son tob——" "Son tob!" M. Bouvier, however, requires to be told that the English Aphrodite takes a bath, and that "tubbing" is a masculine exercitation.

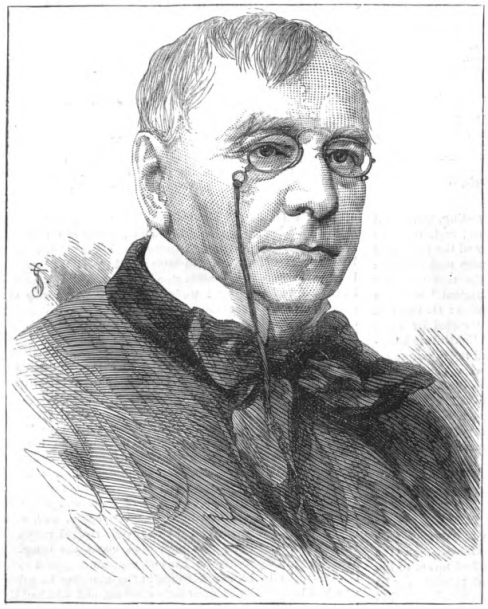
I read in Punch, apropos of some funeral sermons lately preached, the following quotation as "Lord Beaconsfield's epigram" from "Endymion":—

> "Sensible men," said Waldershare, "are all of the same religion."
> "And pray what is that!" inquired the Prince.
> "Sensible men never tell."

This is, of course, in "Endymion;" but the epigram is no more Lord Beaconsfield's than was his famous funeral panegyric on the Duke of Wellington, which was "lifted" from oraison funèbre on the French Marshal Gouvion de St. Cyr. Lord Beaconsfield, like Molière, and, in degree, like Alexander Dumas the Elder, took his property wheresoever he found it; and that property lay loose in a great many literary pockets. As for the "men of sense" epigram, it has been credited to the arch-schemer Lord Shaftesbury, to Fontenelle, to St. Evremond, and to at least twenty more sceptical wits of the seventeenth century. I have grown to be positive about nothing in the way of the original sayers of witty things; I fancy that most of them must have been said by that grand old gardener Adam; but I am positive that the "men of sense" story was in print at least a hundred and fifty years before Lord Beaconsfield was born. G. A. S.

---

The Bank rate of discount has been reduced to 2½ per cent.



THE LATE EMILE DE GIRARDIN.

THE LATE MR. EDWARD MIALL.—SEE PAGE 446.

THE LATE EMILE DE GIRARDIN.

This well-known French journalist and politician, who died last week in Paris, was born in Switzerland, in 1806. He was the illegitimate son of General de Girardin, his mother being a Madame Dupuy, and he at first bore the name of Lamothe, but afterwards, coming to Paris, assumed his father's name. In 1828 he obtained an appointment as Inspector of Fine Arts, but some years afterwards established a Democratic journal, La Presse, which he conducted till 1866, for some time with great success. His fatal duel with Armand Carrel, of the National, was the most tragic event of his life; Armand Carrel was killed on the spot. Emile de Girardin became a member of the Chamber of Deputies, in the time of King Louis Philippe; he bore a conspicuous part in the Revolution of February, 1848, and under the Empire of Napoleon III., but was generally on the Opposition side. He married Delphine Gay, a lady of some literary talent and celebrity, but after her death took for his second wife the daughter (by a morganatic marriage) of a German Grand Duke. He was to have been made a Senator, but for the sudden overthrow of the Empire in 1870.

The Portrait is from a photograph by G. Moretti, of Paris.

ROWLAND HILL'S CHAPEL.

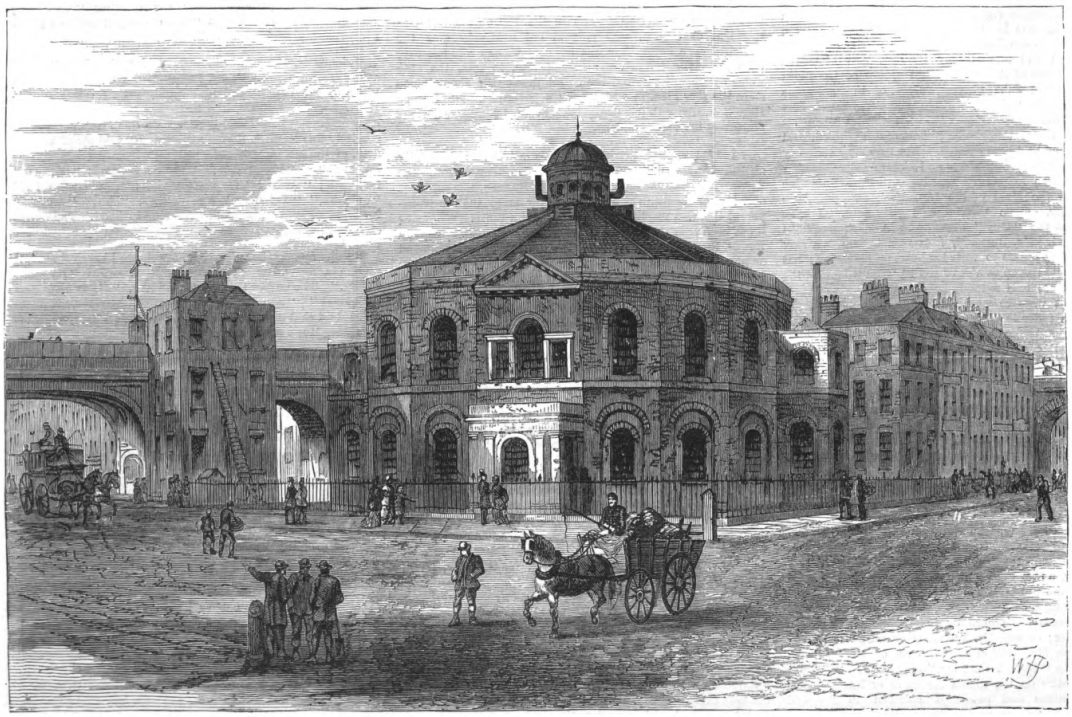
The demolition of the well-known circular meeting-house, or Dissenting Chapel, in Blackfriars-road, Southwark, removes another familiar landmark of London social and religious history. We therefore give an Illustration of the old building. It was opened as a free church by the Rev. Rowland Hill on June 8, 1783. He continued to minister in it during fifty years, and died, at the age of eighty-eight, in the adjoining parsonage. He was frequently assisted by eminent ministers both of the Established and Nonconformist connections. The worship was a modified form of the Anglican Liturgy. Surrey Chapel was never identified with any denomination, but was a sort of neutral ground for all Christians. Rowland Hill's body was interred under the pulpit. Lord Hill, his nephew, then Commander-in-Chief, was chief mourner. After an interval of four years the Rev. James Sherman was appointed the minister. He was followed after seventeen years by the Rev. Newman Hall, who was the pastor nearly twenty-seven years. In anticipation of the expiration of the lease, the congregation, aided by contributions from outside, purchased a freehold site in West-



SURREY CHAPEL, BLACKFRIARS-ROAD (ROWLAND HILL'S CHAPEL).

THE FRENCH EXPEDITION TO TUNIS: OUTPOST OF IRREGULARS.

minster Bridge-road, and erected the present "Christ Church" with its adjoining "Hawkstone Hall," so named from the birthplace of the first founder, and the Lincoln Tower, commemorative of the abolition of American slavery. The total cost was £64,000, and the new chapel was opened for worship July 4, 1876, when the congregation of Surrey Chapel, with their minister, migrated to it. Surrey Chapel has since been occupied by the Primitive Methodists. Rowland Hill introduced a variety of philanthropic agencies, which are now in enlarged operation. The almshouses for twenty-three poor women are well maintained. The Sunday-schools, which at Mr. Hill's death had 2400 children, now instruct 5800, by 433 teachers. The number of communicants, which was 500, is now 1150. The Benevolent Society visits annually 500 of the sick poor without regard to religious opinions, and above £500 is distributed among the poor. Secular lectures and entertainment are provided for working men. Temperance and clothing societies and penny banks promote their temporal welfare. Upwards of 1500 services especially for the poor are held annually in lodging-houses, mission-rooms, and the open air. The sum raised for religious and philanthropic purposes, exclusive of the pastor's salary, amounts to £2500 annually. This varied work, now perpetuated at Christ Church, owes its origin to the devoted zeal of the founder, who "being dead yet speaketh."

THE FRENCH EXPEDITION TO TUNIS.

The invasion by the French of the territory of the Bey of Tunis, a vassal of the Turkish Empire, is ostensibly justified by the necessity of punishing an unruly frontier tribe, called the Khroumirs, who have committed some acts of violence across the border of Algeria. We present views of the small island and fort of Tabarka, and of a Tunisian fort on the neighbouring mainland coast, which the French have seized for the base of their military operations; also, two sketches of the outposts of Chasseurs d'Afrique and irregular troops of the French army.

The Regency of Tunis occupies nearly the centre of the northern shores of Africa to the east of the French Algerine dominion, beyond Philippeville and Bona. The country is inhabited from 100 to 250 miles from the sea, is sufficiently well watered, and possesses, besides the capital, many large and important towns. The soil is peculiarly fertile; there is abundance of mineral wealth, and the majority of its inhabitants, estimated at two millions, are peaceable and industrious. The northern coast of Tunis is within sight of the island of Pantellaria, an Italian possession, and the width of the channel between Cape Bon and the western extremity of Sicily hardly exceeds ninety miles. Two hundred miles to the east lies the British island of Malta. The export trade of Tunis is chiefly confined to oil, esparto grass, wool, and cereals, and its imports consist chiefly of colonial produce and manufactured goods. In both, British interests are largely concerned. Many of the Italian residents are wealthy and influential, and among them may be found some of the chief mercantile and banking firms of the Tunisian capital. Several Italians are large landowners, and the first railway established in the country now belongs to an Italian company. Mohammed es Sadok, Bey of Tunis, is about seventy years of age. He succeeded his brother in September, 1859. In his youth he became acquainted with a French merchant residing in Tunis, and was initiated into new ideas. As soon as he ascended the throne he did away with the harem and lived in European fashion with one wife. He granted a constitution and assembled a Parliament; but, curiously enough, his subjects obliged him to recall the Constitution in 1864. The Bey has three daughters, but no sons. His brother, Si Amrud, is heir to the supreme power of the Regency.

The two border tribes, the Khroumirs and the Ooshtettas, occupy a wild and hilly debatable ground which lies on the eastern frontier of Algeria, and extends from within some forty miles of the Mediterranean down to the confines of the Sahara.

The island of Tabarka, as we have seen, is to serve as the base of the operations for the attack of the Khroumirs from the north. It is about half a mile from the Tunisian coast, opposite the territories of the Khroumir tribes, and is about eight miles to the eastward of the Algerine frontier, and fifteen miles from La Calle. It has a high ridge running from one end to the other; but its southern point finishes in a narrow sandbank on a level with the water, and extending to the Oued Kebir, the first river to be crossed when moving from the frontier. The island, which is three quarters of a mile long, was formerly a flourishing Genoese colony, containing over 7000 inhabitants. An old castle, a church, a Consular residence, a wall, and two jetties—the whole of them in ruins—is all that remains of the place, which is almost deserted. The castle is built on the north end of the island, overlooking the sea. The church and Consular residence are on the west coast. Opposite them are the anchorage for small vessels, the wharf, and the remains of a jetty, which was about two hundred metres in length. The roadstead and anchorage for large vessels are to the westward of the island. There is also good anchorage to the eastward, protected against north or north-westerly winds. Opposite the island, on one of the summits of the ridge of the Khroumir coast, is the Bordj Djedid, a fort lately occupied by a detachment of the Tunisian troops, which have now been driven out of it, as well as from the castle on Tabarka Island.

In our view of Tabarka, the French gun-boat Hyène appears lying at anchor just below the old castle, and one of her boats is taking soundings close to the rocky shore. Three gun-boats, the Hyène, the Chacal, and the Léopard, each carrying two large guns, one fore and one aft, were employed in a preliminary demonstration. The commander of the Hyène, Lieutenant Cluze, attempted negotiations with the commandant of the Tunisian garrison, who hoisted the Turkish flag and refused to surrender. On Monday week, the ironclad frigate Surveillante, which had meantime arrived, bombarded the fort of Bordj Djedid, on the mainland, killing about sixty men, and entirely destroying the old building. The garrison left it that night, and a French force of 1500 marines took possession of the island, which had likewise been abandoned by its defenders. At the same time, three brigades of French troops commanded, respectively, by General Vincendon, General Gaillaud, and General Ritter, marched across the frontier from Algeria, entering the Khroumir highlands, and moving rapidly eastward, while General Logerot, with a considerable force, advanced to the inland town of Kef, which yielded to him without resistance. This town is twenty-five miles from the French frontier, and is not within the Khroumir district. The port of Biserta, on the seacoast, was seized last Monday; it is an excellent harbour, with a town of four thousand people. Three French ironclads and a gun-boat menaced the town and compelled its surrender. The military and naval preparations seem far to exceed those which would be needful for the mere chastisement of border tribes. The Bey of Tunis protests against the entry of the French troops on Tunisian territory without previous notice, and while peace and friendly relations reigned between France and Tunis. Such an act, as he says, is contrary to all the rules of International Law. This protest is made in the name of Tunis and the Ottoman Empire, of which Tunis forms part.

THE LATE MR. EDWARD MIALL.

Mr. Edward Miall, late M.P. for Bradford, the founder and editor of the Nonconformist newspaper, and for many years well known as the leader of the movement in favour of religious equality, died at his residence, Sevenoaks, on Friday night last, after a fortnight's illness, almost free from suffering, within a few days of completing his seventy-second year. The hon. gentleman sat for Rochdale from 1852 to 1857, when, like Mr. Cobden, Mr. Bright, Mr. Fox, and other advanced Liberals, he lost his seat owing to his opposition to the Chinese war. While member for that borough he proposed a resolution condemnatory of the Irish Church, but the House of Commons was not yet ripe for so drastic a proposal. Afterwards, at the invitation of the then Conservative Government, he became a member of the Duke of Newcastle's Commission on Education, the labours of which extended over three years, and its report and evidence in 1861, to which Mr. Miall gave a qualified assent, furnished a mass of information, which, though not of immediate service, cleared the way for the legislation of 1870. Subsequently, when member for Bradford, he successively moved two resolutions in reference to disestablishment, which secured about 100 votes. He also took an active part in securing the abolition of church rates and University tests, and, later on, in throwing open the parish burial grounds to Dissenters. In the House he was generally respected for the force and moderation with which he advocated his opinions, and his fairness and amiable qualities. During an active public life he made many friends, and exercised great influence as a leader of advanced opinions. In 1863 his services to the Free Churches were recognised by the presentation of £5000; and ten years later, when about to retire from public life, the sum of £10,000, subscribed mostly by friends in Yorkshire and Lancashire, was put in trust for the benefit of himself and family. Two years ago Mr. Miall was presented with a congratulatory address on his seventieth birthday by a deputation, which included his old colleagues the Right Hon. John Bright and Mr. Richard, M.P. Amongst his many books was one entitled "Bases of Belief," which is in use as a text-book in many Nonconformist colleges.

The annual general meeting of the National Rifle Association was held on Wednesday afternoon at the Royal United Service Institution—the Duke of Cambridge, president, in the chair. A letter from Mr. J. A. Mullens was received inclosing a cheque for £2500 in founding a prize to stimulate the practice of firing at moving targets at unascertained distances. Certain alterations of the rules were passed after considerable discussion. The Duke of Cambridge was re-elected president by acclamation. The next Wimbledon meeting will begin on the second Monday in July, the camp being ready for occupation on the previous Saturday.

PARISIAN SAYINGS AND DOINGS.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Paris, Tuesday, May 3.

News from Tunis is eagerly read here, but arrives slowly and in very small doses. The military operations have been very much interfered with by the rain, which converts the ravines into torrents, and renders the country where the French troops now are impracticable. The state of the weather accounts for the slowness with which the three columns are advancing, and the small practical results hitherto obtained. The most important operation of the week has been the occupation of Bizerta, a port on the northern coast of Tunis, to the east of Tabarka, and forty-five kilomètres distant from the station of Djedeida, which will be next occupied. Meanwhile, the Bey continues to protest against the invasion of his territory.

The Parisians like to make a little parade in everything they do. Modest and anonymous charity is not much in favour amongst them; they like to hear plenty of drum-beating, and to beat their own drums too. The Parisian newspapers are never weary of talking of the "pretty Parisiennes," although a "pretty" face is not so common in Paris as it is in London. But what has beauty to do with charity? I read in a leading Parisian paper that some of the leaders of society have formed a volunteer ambulance corps, "and twelve of our prettiest society-women (nos plus jolies mondaines) have asked General Farre for authorisation to follow our army on African soil." There is not much danger of General Farre granting the request of these pretty mondaines. The General does not believe in the admixture of the civil element in military affairs. The pretty mondaines will therefore be free to continue to adorn the Grand Stand at Longchamps and the "tour du Lac," to the greater delight of the fashionable gazetteers.

The jolies mondaines came out in great force on "varnishing day" at the Salon last Sunday. In spite of their Republicanism and their vaunted "liberty, equality, and fraternity," there is no civilised creature on the face of the earth who adores privilege so much as the Parisian. He will submit to almost any humiliation in order to be present at the first representation of a new play—not so much to see the play as to be able to say, "I was there; I saw X and shook hands with Z." And so he gives himself airs and flatters himself that he belongs to the mysterious and super-excellent entity known as "tout Paris." This year the committee of artists who have managed the Salon were very severe in restricting admission to the Salon on "varnishing day." Indeed, it would seem as if these gentlemen, having, like all Frenchmen, been victims of bureaucratic tyranny all their lives, themselves became bureaucratic tyrants as soon as an opportunity presented itself. I have not to deal with the Salon as an art exhibition; I only mention it as the unique topic of conversation for the moment, and the fashionable afternoon resort of Paris mondain.

Madame Edmond Adam, the muse of the Franco-Athenian Republic, appears to have incurred the wrath of the Nihilists, unless indeed she has been the victim of a hoax. During the past fortnight, she has received several letters informing her that her defence of the late Czar in the Nouvelle Revue had brought down the wrath of the Nihilists upon her head, and that she would be killed if she did not repent immediately. Madame Adam took no notice of these missives, but on Saturday she received by post a little box containing a bottle full of a "yellowish greasy liquid." The wiscaeres of the police were then called in, and an inquiry has been begun.

Emile de Girardin died last Wednesday morning, aged somewhere about seventy-eight, the date of his birth being unknown. This brilliant journalist's claim to posterity is that he revolutionised the French press, and acclimatised cheap newspapers. Before he founded La Presse, at 40f. a year, in 1836, French journals had never cost less than 80f. a year, and their size was about the same as four pages of the Illustrated London News. M. de Girardin introduced the large newspaper sheet, depending for support not on subscribers but on advertisers; and then, in order to secure a large circulation, he invented the roman-feuilleton, or sensational novel cut up into slices, "to be continued in our next," a contrivance which made the newspaper indispensable to a large class of female readers, cooks, dressmakers, duchesses, and the wives and daughters of concierges. M. de Girardin's funeral on Saturday attracted very little attention. The working classes looked upon him as a faiseur in politics as well as in finance.

The Marquis de la Valette died yesterday, at the age of seventy-five. M. de la Valette was a diplomatist of the old school. He began his career under Charles X., and during the Empire he was successively Ambassador at Constantinople (1851-3), at Rome (1860-2), Minister of the Interior (1865-7), Minister of Foreign Affairs in 1869, and Ambassador at London in 1870. Death has lately been thinning the ranks of the men of 1830.

A terrible accident occurred here this morning in front of the ruins of the Printemps, lately burnt down. An immense prop, which was being erected as one of the supports of the demolition scaffolding, slipped and fell on the top of a passing cab, crushing two gentlemen which it contained—M. Daguin, formerly President of the Tribunal of Commerce, and M. Pascal, formerly director of the Crédit Foncier, and now director of the Banque d'Escompte. M. Pascal died a few hours afterwards. M. Daguin, who is likely to recover, was a Reactionary candidate for Paris in 1877. J. C.

A linen exhibition, or fair, is to be held at Kesmark, in Hungary, from July 15 to 17.

Lord Carrington on Tuesday presided over a Council meeting of the Central Associated Chambers of Agriculture, at which a resolution was passed protesting against the increasing charge borne by local ratepayers for the maintenance of main roads, and suggesting that while the county rate contributed one half the cost, the remaining expenditure should be met by contributions from existing Imperial taxation.

In the absence, owing to indisposition, of Count Münster, the German Ambassador, Baron H. Von Schröder presided on Tuesday evening at the thirty-sixth anniversary festival in aid of the German Hospital (Dalston), held at Willis's Rooms. About 200 guests sat down. The chairman gave the usual loyal toasts; Baron von Bunsen proposing "The foreign Sovereigns and Princes, protectors and patrons of the institution, and their representatives," to which Count Bylandt replied. "Success to the German Hospital" was given by the chairman, who stated that last year 1476 in-patients, of whom 380 were cases of accident, were admitted to the institution, the out-patients and dental cases numbering 10,453. The receipts amounted to £9195, and the expenditure to £8738. They were dependent upon that festival for a sum of £3000, and he trusted that for the lack of funds they would not allow the efficiency of the hospital to deteriorate. The Earl of Aberdeen gave "The Health of the Chairman," and Mr. Russell Sturgis proposed "The Health of the Duke of Cambridge," president of the institution. Subscriptions to the amount of £4307 were announced.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

While confessing to the greatest partiality for Sandown Park and everything connected with it, we feel bound to record our opinion that the end of April is far too late for the "jumpers," and that the meeting would have been greatly improved by the omission of one day, and the elimination of all the hurdle-races and steeplechases. Falls were frequent, and though no one was seriously injured, yet I'Anson had a very narrow escape, and was carried away in a state of insensibility. Indeed, the ground was very hard even for flat-racing, and it was not fair, either to men or horses, to ask them to jump. Chevronel, who is quite "i' the vein" just now, scored another victory for Sir John Astley; and then a capital field turned out for the Esher Stakes. Valour (10 st. 11 lb.) had run so well at Lincoln that he had the call of everything at the start, but Philammon (9 st. 10 lb.) beat him fairly and squarely in a hard-fought finish, and it is plain that the Irish horse has never been half so good as he is this season. The County Hurdle-Race fell to Torpedo (10 st. 8 lb.), and it was in this event that Northfleet (11 st. 9 lb.) and I'Anson came to grief, owing to the old horse catching one of his legs in a swinging hurdle which one of the leaders had displaced. On the Friday, the crack hunters, Humphrey and Sirdar, both succumbed to Hollyhock, who, however, had a great pull in the weights. Lord Clive (11 st. 12 lb.) was made a very strong favourite for the principal hurdle-race of the meeting; but, after pulling so hard that Adams had a very uncomfortable ride for more than half the journey, he bolted right out of the course, and left Dunmow (10 st. 6 lb.), the outsider of the party, to dispose of his two opponents very cleverly. The last day of the meeting was entirely devoted to illegitimate sport. Highland Mary (10 st. 10 lb.), who has had a very hard time of it of late, beat Cock Robin (11 st. 2 lb.) and four others for the Claremont Steeplechase; and Bend Or II., formerly known as Tadcaster, and one of the heroes of the sensational Bend Or objection, came out as a hunter, and won a hurdle-race, though he is probably the very worst jumper ever seen, and simply galloped through his hurdles in the most devil-me-care style imaginable. The International Steeplechase was quite a Grand National in miniature, as Woodbrook (12 st. 7 lb.) and Regal (12 st. 3 lb.), the first and second at Liverpool, both took part in it. The former looked very well, but of course his weight was very different from his former impost, and, moreover, the hopes of the Irish division were evidently centered in Torpedo (10 st. 7 lb.). It is very probable that he would have pulled them through had not his jockey lost a stirrup nearly a mile from home, and this, besides placing him in the rear of everything at the time of the accident, prevented him from giving the horse any material assistance at the finish, and Regal just beat him by a neck, the gallant little black thus securing this valuable stake for the second successive year.

The opening day of the Second Spring Meeting at Newmarket was quite devoid of more than passing interest, and, as none of the running had any bearing upon future events, we may safely pass on to Wednesday, which, as usual, was big with the fate of the Two Thousand. Fourteen comprised the starters for the big event on Wednesday, and the result was a great surprise for the talent, as the winner was quite a "dark" horse, whilst long odds could have been had about the second and third. It was a good race till about three furlongs from home, when, however, Mr. Norman's Peregrine, by Pero Gomez—Adelaide, had the race in hand, and, striding along, won in a canter by three lengths, followed by Mr. P. Lorillard's Iroquois, and Mr. J. R. Keene's Don Fulano. Lord Rosebery's Cameliard was placed fourth, beaten a head.

The members of the London Athletic Club held their second meeting this season last Saturday afternoon at Stamford-bridge. Nothing very noteworthy was accomplished, but the victory of S. H. Baker in the Half-Mile Challenge Cup was very popular, as he has not enjoyed the best of luck up to the present. The annual meeting of the Lacrosse Clubs will take place at the same ground next Saturday, when an interesting programme will be run through.

Trickett and Kirby sculled their second match at Southampton on Saturday last, and the Australian scored another victory with great ease. He seemed quite at home on a fixed seat, and held the lead from start to finish.

The billiard handicap (spot barred barred) which is now taking place at the Aquarium will doubtless draw large numbers of spectators in the last three or four days. At the time of writing the best form has been shown by D. Richards, who may win more games than the champion, and take the first prize.

ROYAL NATIONAL LIFE-BOAT INSTITUTION.

A meeting of this institution was held on Thursday at its house, John-street, Adelphi. Mr. Richard Lewis, the secretary, having read the minutes of the previous meeting, rewards amounting to £130 were granted to life-boat crews for services rendered during the past month.

The Porthcawl life-boat saved eight men from the wrecked barque Marmora, of Copenhagen. The Theddlethorpe life-boat rescued the crew of five men from the fishing-smack Shamrock, of Hull, the Ramsgate and Ballywalter life-boats respectively did good service in saving the distressed schooner Aldebaran, of Lauwig, Norway, and the Bell Buoy boat. The Lossiemouth life-boat saved the crew of the schooner Cavalier, of that port; and the Palling No. 1 life-boat five men from the fishing-smack Catherine, of Ramsgate.

Rewards were granted to the crews of shore-boats for saving life from wrecks on our coast, and payments amounting to £3000 were made on some of the 271 life-boat establishments of the institution.

The Swedish and Norwegian Minister at the Court of St. James's had requested that the thanks of his Government might be conveyed to the coxswain of the crew of the Nairn life-boat in recognition of their noble and humane conduct in rescuing the crew of the schooner Anne Marie, of Krageroe, on Jan. 20 last.

The late Mrs. A. P. Fortune, of Liverpool, had left the institution a legacy of £200.

A communication was read from the Marquis de Rubalcana, president of the Spanish Life-Boat Society, calling attention to the establishment of that society, and expressing a hope that it might rival in usefulness the National Life-Boat Institution of England.

Reports were read from the five district inspectors of life-boats to the institution on their visits to different life-boat stations.

The National Association of British and Irish Millers will hold an international exhibition of flour-mill machinery and bread-making and baking machinery, in the Agricultural Hall, Islington, from the 10th to the 14th inst. inclusive.

It is stated that Mr. Fawcett intends to make an experiment in the General Post Office which will be watched with great interest by the public. He has decided to give employment to a number of deaf and dumb persons in the department devoted to the sorting of newspapers.

THE PLAYHOUSES.

At the National Theatre, so admirably conducted by Mr. Augustus Harris, as well as at the Lyceum, under the tasteful and generous management of Mr. Henry Irving, an American tragedian has found a cordial welcome from his brother artistes, and enthusiastic acceptance from crowded and delighted audiences.

The immense throng at the Lyceum on Monday night to witness "Othello," with Mr. Edwin Booth as the Moor, Mr. Henry Irving as Iago, and Miss Ellen Terry as Desdemona, was made up of two very opposite but, as it happened, not conflicting elements. The boxes, private and dress, and especially the stalls, were full of pre-eminently "first night" people, artists, authors, journalists, judges, and aficionados, or amateur experts and volunteer critics, among whom there were many who were, doubtless, personal friends or sympathetic admirers of the English or of the American tragedians. Add to the Boothians and the Irvingites a distinct section of intensely enthusiastic Terryites—for Camma is something else besides a graceful, refined, and tenderly emotional actress. She has the pre-Raffaellite facial angle, the pre-Raffaellite chest bones, the pre-Raffaellite eyes and lips. She is the embodiment of the ideal of Frederick Sandys in his Medea, as well as of the Priestess of Artemis, in Alfred Tennyson's "Cup." Miss Ellen Terry is justifiably dear to the dramatic, but she is doubly dear to the æsthetic heart. These formed the first element that thronged the aristocratic portions of the house; but the popular parts of the theatre, upper boxes, pit, and gallery, were just as densely crowded, and their occupants were just as uproariously enthusiastic. I have rarely heard such a unanimous and such tumultuous applause as that which greeted justly, as well as generously, all the leading characters in "Othello" on Monday night.

Mr. Edwin Booth's "Othello" is a known impersonation which has long since been duly stamped with the hall-mark of public approbation. But if there were no differences of opinion there would be no opinion worth having; and if there were no candour in the avowal of opinion, the quality of Honesty would very swiftly "Unawares Exspire;" as, according to Mr. Pope, Morality does in the "Dunciad." I ardently admire Mr. Edwin Booth as a ripe scholar, a deep and earnest student in his art, and the possessor of elocutionary powers almost unsurpassed in their clearness and purity. I think he is the finest Bertuccio, and, next to Macready, the finest Lear and the finest Richelieu that I have seen; and I am convinced that he is a fine—a very fine—Iago. But I own that, in its entirety, I like his Othello no more than I liked his Hamlet. It is altogether too didactic, stagey, and artificial. Nor does he look the part. His dresses have an antique guise, both in fashion and colour; and his appearance in amour—after what one remembers of Salvini and Mario, both in their degree splendid Othellos—was exceptionally unlucky. For the rest, his interpretation of the Mauritanian free lance who had done the State of Venice some service had in it many fine passages. His delivery of the address to the Senate, and, indeed, the whole of his work in the first act, were superb. Passages as fine were scattered through the remaining acts; but they were not numerous, and more than once the actor was wearisome. I hope that I shall not be thought hypercritical if I point out that Mr. Booth does not pronounce the name of Desdemona properly. It is an Italian name; but the commonly accepted English pronunciation of the name is quite correct, except that the Italians dwell a little longer on the o, and pronounce the final a more largely as ah than English people do. Occasionally in England we hear the pretty lady spoken of as "Desdemoner." But Mr. Booth goes further than this. A dozen times on Monday night did I hear him pronounce Desdemona as "Desdermoner." This is not to be tolerated. I do not know whether this is an Americanism; but it is certainly wrong.

Mr. Irving's Iago was a magnificent performance. It is not Mr. Irving's fault if the Bard of all Time has put into the mouth of the most consummate villain his genius ever conceived some expressions and jeux de mots so exceedingly droll that gentle and simple cannot help roaring with laughter at them; and that Iago's colossal duplicity, when he appears at the window in the scene where Roderigo is killed and Cassio is wounded, provoked a general titter; but these quips and cranks—inimitably true, as we may learn from Boccaccio, to the comic or burlesque side of the Italian character—were all the more consummately skilful foils to the exposition of Iago the scoundrel, Iago the swindler, Iago the murderer, Iago the man-tiger. With incomparable care and grace Mr. Irving dwelt on every phase of light and shade of Iago's part, on every line, and it may almost without exaggeration be said he had bestowed elaborate and oft-renewed study. Nor did his thoroughly artistic nature fail to grasp one feature essentially requisite to the completion of the poet's ideal. Mr. Irving presented us with an Iago handsome in mien and splendidly attired. That, depend upon it, was the real Iago. He was good-looking, chivalric in bearing, gay of manner; and loved fine clothes and high living. He must have done something with the money and jewels out of which he cozened Roderigo. My word for it, he squandered his substance in riotous living; and it was for his gay doublets and hose all glistening with golden 'broidery, his good looks and dashing dare-devil manners, that Emilia bore with him so long. She calls him her "wayward" husband. He flouted, gibed at, bullied her—beat her, very likely; but she liked and admired the scamp, and probably loved him, and was slow and loth to believe in his immeasurable villany. I hold that, in thus bringing forward into high relief the personal and individual Iago Mr. Henry Irving has added greatly to the understanding of a sometimes inexplicable character. Miss Ellen Terry as Desdemona was lovely and lovable in every sense of the terms; fascinating as a Venetian bride, exquisitely pathetic, tenderly submissive in the scenes where the Moor's jealousy takes the form of brutal insult and outrage, and, in her death, lovely and lovable still. Mr. E. Terriss was a very handsome, manly, and capable Cassio; and Mr. T. Mead as Brabantio, and Miss Pauncefoot as Emilia, gave fresh proof of their long-tried and much-admired efficiency in these characters. The scenery, dresses, and appointments in this triumphantly-successful "Othello" were, it is almost unnecessary to say, models of magnificence and refined taste.

At Drury Lane, M. John McCullough continues his highly successful career as Virginius in Sheridan Knowles's tiresome but occasionally powerful tragedy of that name. Mr. John McCullough has a singularly noble and commanding presence, free and natural action, animated delivery, and, in passionate utterance, he frequently raises the audience to genuine enthusiasm. He does not economise the resources of his voice as well as he might do; and in his lower tones is sometimes feeble and indistinct. I am very anxious to see him in some Shakspearean rôle, in which he will be able to do justice to the evidently fine qualities which as a tragedian he possesses. His Othello I heard everywhere spoken of in the United States as an impersonation equally grand and touching.

At the Court Theatre, this instant Saturday, the enchanting Madame Modjeska appears in Mr. W. G. Wills' new and original play of "Juana." May I be there to see.

G. A. S.

Their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, and Princess Louise (Marchioness of Lorne), attended by Major Teesdale and Dr. Holtzman, were present at the performance of the new æsthetic opera "Patience," on Monday evening, at the Opera Comique.

The Mohawk Minstrels began on Monday a short season at Sanger's Amphitheatre, Westminster Bridge-road. The amphitheatre was crowded; and the entertainment, which consisted of the usual ballads, comic songs, sketches, and dances, created as much amusement on the south side of the Thames as it has for some years past caused on the north.

A new spectacular piece, "Marmion; or, Flodden Field," has been produced with remarkable brilliancy and success at the Canterbury Theatre of Varieties, which is thriving under its new management. "Marmion" consists of a series of picturesque tableaux; the stirring scenes being particularly effective, owing to the spirit with which a little army of children, in Scottish garb, go through their manœuvres. A tasteful ballet at Holyrood Palace gives variety to this unique entertainment, which concludes with an animated representation of the disastrous day on Flodden Field. Messrs. Grieve's beautiful panorama of Scottish scenery is also deserving of warm praise.

MUSIC.

ROYAL ITALIAN OPERA.

Madame Albani made her first appearance this season on Saturday last as Gilda in Verdi's "Rigoletto." Her reception was enthusiastic throughout, and her singing was as admirable as ever for brilliant execution, purity of style, and intense expression, as specially evidenced in the two duets with Rigoletto and the aria "Cara nome." Madame Scalchi was again the Maddalena, and Signor Marini the Duke; the new baritone, Signor Sante Athos, having confirmed the favourable impression made in his début here by his artistic singing and acting in the part of the Court Jester, Rigoletto.

On the previous Thursday "La Sonnambula" was given, with Madame Scalchi as Amina, the music of which part was rendered with the same brilliancy as in last year's performances, the Dresden prima donna having again achieved a great success. Other features of the cast call for no comment.

For Monday, a repetition of "Lucia di Lammermoor" was announced, cast as recently noticed—Signor Bevignani having conducted the three performances now alluded to.

On Tuesday "Faust" was the opera, with the fine performance of Madame Albani as Margherita, in which character that lady sang with a brilliancy, refinement, and pathos that produced fully as powerful an impression as on any former occasion. Madame Trebelli received a warm greeting on her first appearance here, and was, as usual, encored in both of Siebel's songs. M. Vergnet, as Faust, sang effectively, and Signor Sante Athos was an excellent Valentine; M. Gaillhard's Mephistopheles having been the same meritorious performance as last season. M. Dupont conducted.

For Thursday, a repetition of "Guglielmo Tell" was announced, and this (Saturday) evening, "I Puritani" is to be given, with Madame Albani as Elvira.

As previously stated, Mr. Mapleson begins his new season of Italian operatic performances at Her Majesty's Theatre this (Saturday) evening, "Il Barbiere" being announced, with Mdlle. De Belocca as Rosina, Signor Ravelli as the Count, Signor Del Puente as Figaro, and the first appearance of Signor Corsini as Doctor Bartolo.

MR. GANZ'S ORCHESTRAL CONCERTS.

The first of the new series of these interesting concerts took place at St. James's Hall last Saturday afternoon, when there were two special features in the programme—the first (entire) performance, in London, of Berlioz's "Symphonie Fantastique," entitled "Episode de la Vie d'un Artiste;" and the first appearance here of Madame Sophie Menter, a pianiste who has recently gained much renown abroad.

The symphony is one of the most elaborate and representative works of its composer, the score being of the fullest dimensions, comprising four bassoons, four harps, and four drums. The work consists of five divisions—"Rêverie-Passions," "Un Bal," "Scène aux champs," "Marche au Supplice," and "Songe d'une nuit de Sabbat." As in all of Berlioz's most ambitious productions, there is a constant alternation of passages of real musical interest and even beauty, with others in which effort and exaggeration are more apparent. Its exceptional difficulties received a very efficient rendering by the excellent band conducted by Mr. Ganz, who, we believe, will repeat its performance at the second concert of the series.

Madame Menter achieved a triumphant success by her splendid performance of Liszt's Pianoforte Concerto in E flat, and unaccompanied solos by Scarlatti, Tausig, and Liszt. The lady possesses rare executive powers, unlimited command of the greatest technical difficulties and of every shade of tone; a firm and certain touch, and an evident appreciation of various styles of music. We shall soon have again to speak of her fine performances.

The remainder of Saturday's programme consisted of Beethoven's overture to "Egmont" and Nicolai's to "The Merry Wives of Windsor," and vocal pieces very effectively rendered by Mdlle. Pyk.

CRYSTAL PALACE.

The twenty-fifth series of Saturday afternoon concerts was supplemented (as usual) by a special performance, last week, for the benefit of Mr. Manns, the conductor. On this occasion Brahms's two new overtures were performed for the first time in England. One of these works is based on several German student-lieder, which are treated in a highly skilful and effective way. The other work, entitled a "Tragic Overture," is very amply developed, its pervading tone being serious, with intervening passages of demonstrative passion. Both are scored with masterly skill, and they will undoubtedly be soon heard again.

Mdlle. Lobach made a very successful first appearance, and was much applauded in her performance of Vieuxtemps' "Ballade" and "Polonoise" for violin (with orchestra); Mr. F. Rummel played Beethoven's Pianoforte Concerto in E flat; vocal pieces were contributed by Mdlle. Mantilla, Miss Hope Glenn, and Signor Perugini; and the orchestral selection included Mozart's overture to "Le Nozze di Figaro," the "Love Scene," and Queen Mab "Scherzo" from Berlioz's "Romeo and Juliet" symphony, and a light "Polka Chinoise," a posthumous piece by Rossini. Mr. Manns received the usual tributes of applause.

The first of Mr. Sims Reeves's farewell performances in oratorio took place at the Royal Albert Hall last week in Handel's "Judas Maccabæus," the other principal solo vocalists were Mesdames Christine Nilsson and Trebelli, and Mr. Santley. Although Mr. Reeves was suffering from sore throat, he sang admirably in the air "Call forth thy pow'rs," and some recitative passages, having afterwards been efficiently replaced by Mr. Cummings in the airs "How vain is man" and "Sound an alarm."——Owing to indisposition, Mr. Sims Reeves was replaced by Mr. Lloyd in Wednesday evening's performances, which consisted of Haydn's "Creation" and Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise."

"Elijah" was given by the Sacred Harmonic Society yesterday (Friday) week, with Misses A. Williams, J. Jones, and M. Hancock, Madame Patey, Mr. Shakspeare, and Mr. Santley as the principal vocalists.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Clare gave a morning concert at Steinway Hall last Saturday afternoon.

The annual concert of that stirling pianist Miss Agnes Zimmerman is always an interesting event. It recurred on Thursday. Of the performances we must speak next week.

The fifth season of Messrs. Ludwig and Daubert's excellent chamber concerts began on Monday evening at the Royal Academy of Music, the programme having comprised string quartets by Dvorak and Beethoven, Grieg's sonata for piano and violin, rendered by Messrs. Dannreuther and Ludwig; and vocal pieces by Mr. Thorndike.

Mdlle. Gabrielle Vaillant gave on Wednesday evening, at the Royal Academy of Music concert-room, the first of three concerts of chamber music. She was supported by several good artists. Her two remaining concerts are to be given on May 18 and June 1.

Mr. George Gear has announced his annual concert for Friday (yesterday) afternoon, with a good array of artists.

Mr. Charles Hallé has announced his twenty-first series of Pianoforte Recitals (eight), beginning yesterday (Friday) afternoon. The programmes consist of Beethoven's solo sonatas, and Bach's forty-eight Preludes and Fugues.

For this (Saturday) afternoon Mr. John Boosey has announced a ballad concert, to take place at St. James's Hall, the solo vocalists named being Misses Mary Davies and C. Samuell, Mesdames Antoinette Sterling and Patey, Mr. Edward Lloyd, Mr. Joseph Maas, Mr. Santley, and Mr. Maybrick.

Next Monday evening a new series of Richter concerts begins at St. James's Hall, the programme including Beethoven's choral symphony.

Miss Madelina Cronin will give a pianoforte recital at the Royal Academy of Music next Tuesday evening, assisted by Miss José Sherrington, Signor Isidore de Lara, and Signor Pezze.

Sir Julius Benedict's forty-sixth annual concert is announced to take place on June 29, at St. James's Hall.

ART NOTES.

Last Saturday evening the anniversary dinner of the Royal Academy took place at Burlington House—Sir Frederick Leighton, the President, in the chair. The principal speakers were the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Cambridge, the Earl of Northbrook, Mr. Gladstone, Mr. Justice Grove, Mr. Matthew Arnold, General Sir F. Roberts, and the Lord Chancellor. The President gave a summary of the revision and extension of the scheme of education of the Royal Academy, which includes the institution of new prizes for the encouragement of the study of special branches of art.

Lord Derby opened on Wednesday week the new School of Art which has been erected in Manchester, at a cost of about £25,000. He commended the practice of wealthy men collecting works of art and bequeathing them to the public. Expressing regret at the new institution beginning with a debt of £7000, he offered to do his part to wipe it off if the people of the city would do theirs. His Lordship gave an address in the evening, speaking of the development of the love of art in this country during the last half century, and pointing out that art had beneficial influences to counteract the gradual disappearance of the beauties of nature in our country, and our tendency towards excessive Industrialism. Mr. W. F. Grafton, M.P., president and treasurer of the school, presided at the luncheon, and the Earl of Derby at the conversazione.

The arrangements for the proposed Art and Industrial Exhibition at Cardiff, to be held next August and September, are progressing satisfactorily. A first-rate loan of paintings, china, and statuary, from the Science and Art Department, South Kensington, has been secured, and many offers have been received from local gentlemen of works for exhibition. A special feature will be made of pictures, paintings, sketches, and etchings relating to Wales, by celebrated artists; and the committee are soliciting contributions with this object in view.

All the artists, painters, sculptors, and architects who took part in the construction or decoration of the buildings for the Paris Universal Exhibition of 1878 have received a diploma with a gold, silver, or bronze medal.

There has been in Constantinople a highly creditable exhibition of paintings by modern local artists, held in the kiosk of the municipal gardens at Pera. Among the 220 paintings England is ably represented.

The City of London Society of Artists hold a conversazione next Wednesday in the hall of the Skinners' Company.

It is stated that the portrait of Lord Beaconsfield by Mr. Millais, which is on exhibition at the Royal Academy, has been bought by Mr. W. H. Smith, M.P., for £2000.

Messrs. Dalziel Brothers are printing at their Camden Press an Edition de Luxe of Birket Forster's "Pictures of English Landscape," which will be limited to one thousand numbered copies. The pictures will be printed from the original woodblocks, on fine India paper, mounted, and bound in parchment. The verses, by Tom Taylor, will be given as in the earlier editions of this popular work. It will be issued by Messrs. G. Routledge and Sons.

According to the report on general statistics submitted at the meeting of the Synod of the United Presbyterian Church at Edinburgh on Tuesday the church membership is 173,982—a slight decrease on last year. Within the past two years there has been a decrease in over seventeen presbyteries of the Church. The total income had been £383,004, being £46,000 more than last year.

It is reported by the Cambridge University Syndicate, having the regulation of local examinations and lectures, that the former were held in December last at 106 centres for boys and eighty-seven for girls. The total number of candidates entered in 1880 were 6770. The Royal Geographical Society's medals for political and physical geography respectively have been awarded to Frederick G. Harris, York, and George F. Tinney, Plymouth. The prize (for girls only) for political economy has been given to J. T. Griffiths, Regent's Park; and that for girls in mathematics to Blanche Hewett, Launceston. The Albert Scholarship, for candidates at the Liverpool centre, is awarded to A. E. Forster.

THE FRENCH EXPEDITION TO TUNIS.

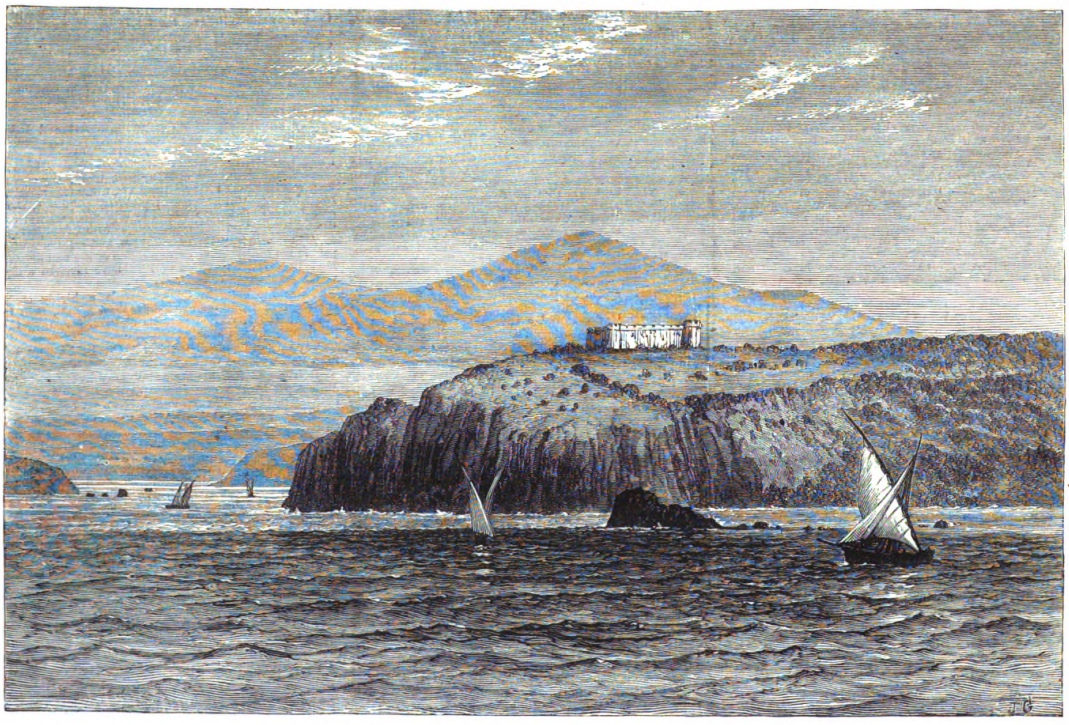
THE ISLAND AND FORT OF TABARKA, BOMBARDED BY THE FRENCH.



FORT ON THE MAINLAND, OPPOSITE TABARKA.

THE FRENCH EXPEDITION TO TUNIS: OUTPOST OF CHASSEURS D'AFRIQUE WATCHING THE SIGNAL FIRES OF THE KHROUMIRS.

THE COURT.

The Duchess of Bedford, the Rev. Canon and Mrs. Prothero, and Lieutenant-Colonel Hogge, commanding the troops at Parkhurst, dined with the Queen the evening before her departure from Osborne; and Princess Christian visited her Majesty upon her arrival at Windsor Castle.

Lord Ribblesdale kissed hands on his appointment as Lord in Waiting yesterday week; and the Queen's dinner party included Princess Christian, Princess Beatrice, the Dowager Duchess of Athole, the Dowager Marchioness of Ely, the Earl and Countess of Dufferin, Lord Ribblesdale, Lord Charles Fitzroy, Lieutenant-General the Right Hon. Sir Henry Ponsonby, and the Master of the Household.

Last Saturday her Majesty and Princess Beatrice drove through Rayner's Park, the residence of Sir Philip Rose, to Hughenden church, where they were received by Lord Rowton and the Rev. Henry and Mrs. Blagden, who conducted them to the tomb of the late Earl of Beaconsfield, where they placed a wreath and cross of flowers. The Queen afterwards proceeded to Hughenden Manor, and drove back to Windsor through High Wycombe. Princess Louise of Lorne and the Duchess of Connaught arrived at the castle early in the evening; and the Duke of Connaught and Prince Leopold arrived after attending the Royal Academy dinner.

Sunday was the thirty-first anniversary of the Duke of Connaught's birthday, which was celebrated with due honours, the choir of St. George's Chapel serenading his Royal Highness beneath his windows early in the morning. The Royal salutes were deferred until the next day. Divine service was performed in the private chapel of the castle by the Rev. Canon Barry, D.D., at which her Majesty, Princess Louise, Princess Beatrice, the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, and Prince Leopold were present. The Queen and the Princesses drove out in the afternoon; and the Royal dinner circle with her Majesty consisted of Princess Christian, Princess Louise of Lorne, Princess Beatrice, the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and Strathearn, Prince Leopold, the Dowager Duchess of Athole, the Dowager Marchioness of Ely, Lord Ribblesdale, Colonel Sir John Carstairs M'Neill, and Captain A. M. Egerton.

The Duke of Connaught and Princess Louise of Lorne left early on Monday for town, the Duchess of Connaught remaining until the afternoon. Princesses Victoria and Louise of Schleswig-Holstein lunched with the Queen. Her Majesty held a Council, at which were present Prince Leopold, Earl Spencer, Earl Sydney, Lord Carlingford, and the Right Hon. Sir William Vernon Harcourt. Lord Carlingford took the oath and kissed hands on his receiving the seal of Lord Privy Seal. Earl Spencer and the Right Hon. Sir William V. Harcourt had audiences of her Majesty; and Mr. Justice Kay was knighted. Lord and Lady Harlech and the Hon. Emily Ormsby Gore dined with her Majesty.

The Queen and Princess Beatrice came to London on Tuesday, and her Majesty held a Drawingroom in the afternoon. The Queen also held a Drawingroom on Thursday. The Duchess of Edinburgh, with her children, visited the Queen upon her arrival at Buckingham Palace.

Princess Beatrice and Prince Leopold went to the Strand Theatre on Tuesday evening.

THE QUEEN'S DRAWINGROOM.

Her Majesty's Drawingroom on Tuesday was attended by the Prince and Princess of Wales, the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, Princess Beatrice, the Duke of Connaught, Prince Leopold, the Duke of Cambridge, and the Duchess of Teck. Upwards of 150 presentations were made to the Queen.

Her Majesty wore a dress and train of black silk trimmed with silk embroidery and crape and a black tulle veil surmounted by a diadem of jet. Her Majesty also wore jet ornaments, the ribbon and star of the Order of the Garter, the Orders of Victoria and Albert, the Crown of India, Louise of Prussia, St. Catherine of Russia, Marie Louise of Spain, St. Isabelle of Portugal, and the Saxe-Coburg and Gotha family order.

The Princess of Wales wore a dress of black tulle over black poult de soie, veiled in jet embroidery and looped with jet leaves. Corsage to correspond. Train of black embossed velvet, lined in black satin, and bordered in jet. Head-dress, a tiara of diamond, feathers, and veil; ornaments, pearls and diamonds. Orders, Victoria and Albert, the Crown of India, St. Catherine of Russia, and the Danish family order.

Princess Beatrice's dress was of Venetian satin trimmed with bead embroidery, and a corsage and train in a darker shade of Venetian satin. Head-dress, feathers, veil, and diamonds; pearl and diamond ornaments, and the Orders of Victoria and Albert, the Crown of India, and the Saxe-Coburg and Gotha family order.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince and Princess of Wales have taken up their residence at Marlborough House for the season. The Princess and her daughters went to the private view of the Royal Academy, and the Prince was at the annual dinner. Their Royal Highnesses were at the marriage of Lord Brooke and Miss Maynard. On Sunday their Royal Highnesses attended Divine service, and the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh lunched with them. On Monday the Prince and Princess visited the exhibition of paintings by M. J. Aivazovsky, at the Pall-mall Gallery; and the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and Princess Louise of Lorne dined with the Prince and Princess. The Royal party afterwards went to the Opéra Comique. The Prince and Princess attended the Queen's Drawingroom on Tuesday, and in the evening went to the Royal Italian Opera, Covent Garden, the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and Princess Louise of Lorne being with them. His Royal Highness left for Vienna on Wednesday, in order to be present at the nuptials of the Crown Prince of Austria with the Princess Stéphanie, daughter of the King and Queen of the Belgians.

The Prince has taken St. Leonard's House, near Windsor, for the Ascot week.

His Royal Highness will preside at the ninth triennial festival of the Royal Cambridge Asylum for Soldiers' Widows, at Willis's Rooms, on June 23; the Duke of Connaught presiding at the annual meeting on the 21st inst.

---

The Duke of Edinburgh, as Admiral-Superintendent, has communicated to Admiral Robertson, chairman of the Metropolitan Asylums Board Committee for the Exmouth training-ship, his complete satisfaction at the arrangements of this vessel and the appearance of the 577 boys now under training.

A bazaar on behalf of the Aldershott Soldiers' Homes and the Chatham Soldiers' and Seamen's Home and Institute was opened on Tuesday at the Cannon-street Hotel by the Duchess of Connaught.

Princess Louise of Lorne visited the Victoria Hospital for Children last week.

Prince Leopold visited the Industrial and Fine-Art Loan Exhibition at Richmond last week. His Royal Highness will lay the foundation-stone of the City and Guilds of London Institute for the Advancement of Technical Education in Finsbury on the 10th inst.; and the Nottingham University building will be opened on June 30 by the Prince.

The Duke of Cambridge returned to Gloucester House, Park-lane, yesterday week, from attending, by request of the Queen, the celebration of the jubilee of the Duke of Brunswick's accession to the dukedom at Brunswick.

The Duchess of Teck presided yesterday week at the annual united sale of work from charitable institutions in connection with the Society for Promoting Female Welfare, held at the Royal Albert Hall.

The King and Queen of Sweden arrived at Bournemouth on Monday; they having left Copenhagen the previous Wednesday, travelling via Hamburg, Cologne, and Belgium to Calais, where they embarked by mail-boat on Sunday night for England.

FASHIONABLE MARRIAGES.

Lord Brooke was married to Miss Maynard last Saturday. The ceremony is illustrated and described in the present Number.

The Hon. Alfred J. F. Egerton, late Grenadier Guards, youngest son of the late, and brother of the present, Earl of Ellesmere, was married to Miss Gorges, only daughter of the late Mr. Hamilton Gorges, of Kilbrew, county Meath, on the 27th ult., at St. Peter's Church. The bridesmaids were Ladies Mabel and Beatrice Egerton, daughters of the Earl and Countess of Ellesmere, and nieces of the bridegroom; Miss Webster, Miss Kathleen Webster, Miss Corisande Astley, and Miss Ruth Parker. The bride was dressed in white satin and brocade trimmed with fringes of orange-flowers; and over a wreath of natural orange-blossoms a veil of Brussels lace. She wore a diamond tiara and pearl and diamond earrings. The bridesmaids wore dresses of cream Surah foulard, trimmed with cream lace, and blue satin and cream lace hats, with pale-blue feathers. After the breakfast the Hon. Alfred Egerton and his bride left town for Burwood House, Esher, the residence of the Dowager Countess of Ellesmere, for the honeymoon.

On the same day the marriage of Captain Norman Macleod, C.M.G., late of the 74th Highlanders, and eldest son of Macleod of Macleod, of Dunvegan Castle, Isle of Skye, and Miss Emily Isham, daughter of Sir Charles and Lady Isham, of Lamport Hall, took place in the village church of Lamport. The presents, included a silver dessert service from the Macleod tenantry, and gifts from the household servants, villagers, and neighbouring friends of every degree. The bride and bridegroom drove to Northampton, en route for the Isle of Wight.

A marriage is arranged between Mr. Gerald Fitzgerald, C.M.G., Director-General of Public Accounts to the Khédive of Egypt, and the Hon. Amicia Milnes, elder daughter of Lord Houghton.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

ITALY.

On April 28, the Parliament reopened after the Easter recess. Signor Zeppa and Prince Odescalchi asked for further information respecting the settlement of the recent Ministerial crisis. They maintained that the continuance of the Ministry in power after an adverse vote of the Chamber was unconstitutional and unprecedented. Signor Cairoli and Signor Depretis said that the Cabinet remained in office in deference to the will of the Crown, and trusted it would succeed in gaining the confidence of the House. Two motions hostile to the Government were then brought forward, and a debate ensued. In the Chamber on Saturday a motion of Signor Mancini, expressing confidence in the Government, was adopted by 262 votes to 1. All the members of the Right and some of the Left abstained from voting, on the ground that the Chamber could not reverse its decision of April 7.

The Chamber held two sittings on Monday. At the early one the bill relating to the expenditure on extraordinary public works was discussed, and at the later sitting the debate on the Electoral Reform Bill was resumed.

Sir A. Paget, the British Ambassador, has returned to his post at Rome.

SPAIN.

The King and Queen on Monday attended a religious service held in commemoration of the establishment of Spanish independence.

GERMANY.

The Duchess of Edinburgh arrived at Berlin on the morning of the 28th ult. from St. Petersburg. Her Royal Highness was received at the station by the Crown Prince, Lord Ampthill, and the Russian Ambassador, M. de Saburoff. She proceeded to the Crown Prince's Palace, and at eleven o'clock was visited by the Emperor. On the same day the Emperor William, who expressly delayed his departure for Wiesbaden for the purpose of welcoming the Duchess, received her Royal and Imperial Highness with great cordiality.

The Emperor and Empress, accompanied by their respective suites, left Berlin on the evening of yesterday week for Wiesbaden, where they arrived the following morning. Her Majesty, after a short stay, proceeded to Baden-Baden, whence, after a visit of a week or two to her daughter, she will proceed, as usual, to her favourite residence at Coblentz for the summer.

The best accounts reach us from Wiesbaden as to the health of the Emperor, who is devoting himself as usual to State business, and taking daily drives with his daughter, the Grand Duchess of Baden.

The Crown Princess has accepted the position of patroness of the Sanitary Association, presided over by Doctor Falk, the former Minister of Public Worship.

The German Parliament last week passed the third reading of the Coasting Trade Bill in the form proposed by the Government. The House subsequently agreed to a motion, proposed by Professor Virchow, for the participation of Germany in the international scheme of Arctic exploration.

AUSTRIA-HUNGARY.

In the Lower Chamber of the Austrian Reichsrath last week the President referred to the approaching Imperial marriage, and a motion that a deputation should present the congratulations of the Chamber to the Crown Prince and his intended bride was carried by acclamation. The Hungarian House has decided to send a deputation of thirty members to Vienna to attend the marriage festivities and to present an address to their Imperial Highnesses in the name of the country.

The Lower House of the Austrian Reichsrath concluded last Saturday the general debate on the Budget. During the sitting the Minister of Finance made a speech of two hours' duration, in which he refuted the arguments of the Opposition, and expressed a hope that the deficit would be gradually made to disappear by the improvement in the economical condition of the country in conjunction with the introduction of useful financial measures. The House began on Monday the discussion of the clauses of the Budget, and agreed to the first six without amendment, including the Secret Service Fund.

In the sitting of the Lower House of the Hungarian Diet yesterday week the bill for the conversion of the Hungarian Gold Rente was adopted by an overwhelming majority after a speech had been delivered in support of it by the Minister of Finance; and the Upper House passed the bill without amendment on Monday.

The Government on Monday presented to the Lower House the bill authorising the construction of the Pesth-Semlin Railway and its branches.

RUSSIA.

The Duchess of Edinburgh, accompanied by the Grand Dukes Sergius and Paul, left St. Petersburg on the 26th ult.

The Czar has written a letter to Prince Gortschakoff, congratulating him upon his jubilee, and recalling the services he has rendered to Russia, and the advances she has made during his Chancellorship. Portraits of the Czar and his father, set in diamonds, accompany the letter.

The Czar on the 28th ult. held a reception of military officers at Gatschina.

It is stated by a Moscow paper that the Nihilists on Sunday circulated their last proclamation rolled up in Easter eggs.

TURKEY.

The reply of the Porte to the Note communicating the acceptance of the new frontier by Greece was delivered at the Embassies on Monday evening. It accepts the conditions proposed by the Ambassadors, and appoints delegates to sign the convention for the transfer of the ceded territory.

The inquiry concerning the death of Abdul Aziz is producing some curious disclosures. The two brothers-in-law of the Sultan, Mahmoud Pasha and Mouri Pasha, who have been arrested on suspicion of having been among the chief instigators of the crime, have begun to incriminate each other, and very full details of the manner in which the crime was committed are now published. The conspirators, it is also stated, at one time intended to destroy all the members of the Imperial family with the exception of the then reigning sovereign, Murad. A banquet was organised, to which all the Imperial Princes were invited, with the intention of murdering them. The reigning Sultan, then the heir to the throne, suspecting treason, declined the invitation, and induced other Princes to keep away. The details of the conspiracy are said to have been discovered through the revelations of a lady in Mahmoud Damad's harem, who was dissatisfied either because of neglect or ill-treatment.

The Vienna Presse publishes a telegram from Cettinje, which states that on Saturday 6000 Albanians attacked three tabors of Turkish troops near Prisrend. The Turks were being hardly pressed when Dervish Pasha came up with four tabors of Nizams and totally defeated the Albanians. The loss on both sides was 1800 killed and wounded.

CANADA.

The Quebec Legislature was opened on April 29 by the Lieutenant-Governor, the Hon. Theodore Robitaille. In his speech, after calling attention to the increasing prosperity of the province, he alluded to the Crédit Foncier system as tending to develop the resources of the country, to reduce the rates of interest, and enhance the value of real estate. His Excellency added that a new line of steamers would shortly be established between Canada and France, and that the prospects of emigration were very promising.

It is announced that the Welland Canal will be opened for navigation on May 2.

Six hundred Chinese have arrived at Victoria (British Columbia) in order to work as railway labourers.

SOUTH AFRICA.

The Cape House of Assembly, after a debate lasting ten days, has rejected, by thirty-seven to thirty-four, the vote of want of confidence in the Government brought forward by the Opposition. The Standard's correspondent says it is expected that the Ministry will either resign or dissolve Parliament.

The Attorney-General has resigned, on the ground of inability to support the native policy of the Hon. Gordon Sprigg's Government.

A preliminary sitting of the Transvaal Commission was held at Newcastle yesterday week, at which the surrender of Potchefstroom was discussed. The Boer leaders agreed to call Cronjes, the commander of the besieging force, to account.

The Session of the Volksraad of the Orange Free State has been closed. President Brandt made a pacific speech on the occasion, in which he expressed the hope that a lasting peace would be arranged between England and the Transvaal, and asked permission to attend the sittings of the Commission at Newcastle, which was granted by the House. The President therefore proceeds at once to Newcastle to take part in the deliberations.

The telegrams from Newcastle and Durban continue to speak of the bitter feeling of the English population at the terms of peace, of reported murders and outrages by Boers, and of the excitement which prevails among the natives. A Standard telegram says that Zwartzboy, a native chief in the district of Pretoria, has given notice that if the Boers again assume the government of the country he shall fight to the last, and he intends, with several other chiefs, to appear and make his protest before the Commission. The Newcastle correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says:—"I have substantial reasons to believe that the Boers will only accept the decision of the Royal Commission if pleasing and suitable to them. They are preparing to fight again vigorously." A Times telegram mentions a rumour that Lord Kimberley insists on a responsible Government on the Cape pattern instead of a Republican Government.

The Daily News special correspondent at Durban telegraphs the substance of the address of Vice-President Kruger to the specially summoned Volksraad at Heidelberg in the Transvaal. Referring to the Treaty of Peace, he said it was a proof of England's noble and magnanimous love of right and justice. He believed that the Royal Commission would thoroughly and honourably complete the work so nobly commenced, and earnestly hoped that all feelings of hostility would for ever cease between the Boers and the British.

The Cape Ministry and the Basutos have agreed to accept the terms proposed by Sir Hercules Robinson, acting as arbitrator between them. The Disarming Act is nominally in force; but all Basutos who can be safely intrusted with arms may retain their guns on paying a license of £1 yearly. The Basutos are to pay a fine of 5000 cattle, and to compensate loyal natives and traders who have suffered by the war. On the other hand, there is to be a general amnesty, and no confiscation of land.

---

A telegram from the Viceroy of India states that the evacuation of Southern Afghanistan was completed on Wednesday week. The march from Candahar was uneventful.

The Agent-General for New South Wales has been informed by telegram of the arrival in Sydney of the ship Blairgowrie, which sailed from Plymouth with emigrants in January last.

A Reuter's telegram from Lisbon announces the death of the Duke d'Avila, President of the House of Peers and life member of the Council of State.

The importation of fresh meat from Australia is making rapid progress, and a company has already been formed in London, called the Australian Company, Limited, for the further development of this trade. Mr. Alderman Cotton, M.P., the Senior Member for the City of London, is the chairman.

Tuesday's Gazette contains the official despatches concerning the engagement at Majuba Hill on Feb. 27. Sir Evelyn Wood, in transmitting the account written by Major Fraser, R.E., the senior effective officer remaining from those engaged, pays a high compliment to that officer and to Captain Macgregor, 92nd Highlanders. He adds:—"From independent sources I have heard much of the conspicuous gallantry displayed by Lieutenant Lucy, 58th Regiment; by Lieutenant Hamilton and Second Lieutenant M'Donald, 92nd Highlanders; by Corporal Farmer, Army Hospital Corps; and by No. 1865, Private John Murray, 92nd Highlanders. I recommend Corporal Farmer to favourable consideration for the Victoria Cross, and Private Murray for Distinguished Service Medal. Corporal Farmer showed a spirit of self-abnegation and an example of cool bravery which cannot be too highly commended. While the Boers closed with our troops near the wells, Corporal Farmer held a white flag over the wounded, and when the arm holding the flag was shot through, he called out that he had 'another.' He then raised the flag with the other arm, and continued to do so until that also was pierced with a bullet." Major Fraser's report is illustrated by sketches of the Majuba height, showing the route and positions taken by the column which he led.

News of a terrible disaster to an English man-of-war has been received from Montevideo. The Doterel, a steam-sloop carrying six guns, and probably about 150 men, has been blown up at Sandy Point, in the Strait of Magellan, and only seventeen persons are reported to have been saved; eight officers and 135 men being killed. The survivors are—Evans, Commander; Stokes, Lieutenant; Colborne, paymaster; Walker, engineer, Garnet; Baird, carpenter; Pengelly, gunner's mate; Trout, quartermaster; Ford, caulker's mate; Walker, shipwright; James Smith, ordinary; Turner, stoker; Summers, marine, discharged; Inlis, clerk; Miggeridge, sick bay man; Hayes, Private; Motton, A.B.; John Ellery, A.B., deserted. The ship was under the command of Captain Richard Evans, who is one of the survivors; and the cause of the explosion which brought about this frightful catastrophe is at present entirely unknown. Even the precise numbers of those who have perished is left in uncertainty. In the "Royal Navy List" the Doterel is described as a "composite steam-sloop" of 1124 tons burden, and with engines of 900-horse power.

THE PARIS SALON OF 1881.

In spite of the rather backward spring the avenues of the Champs Elysées are bosky with greenery, and pyramids of flowery whiteness rise multitudinously from every chestnut-tree. The Salon, in short, is once more open, and the impatiently curious must, as usual on this Monday, the first public day, lay on the metal table of the money-taker a five-franc piece before they enter. To-morrow, and for the rest of the season, the iron turnstile will revolve freely on the production of a franc.

Our readers may remember that last year the exhibits reached the unprecedented total of 7289; in the current year this number is reduced by nearly one half; and, when the second edition of the catalogue appears, it will be found that the entire sum, including public monuments, will not exceed 4960. This very palpable reduction arises from the fact that the Exhibition of the current year is not under Government administration, but entirely in the hands of "The Society of French Artists." What the success of their management may be remains to be seen. In the meantime not a few complaints have been heard of works having been excluded whose authors in former years were accustomed to occupy prominent places on the line. But such slips occur in all exhibitions, and too much importance need not be attached to them.

In an exhibition so extensive and so representative of the various schools and phases of European art, it would be idle in speaking of it to adopt other than merely general terms; but these we shall endeavour to make as suggestive as possible. There are very few battle-pictures of importance this year; but among those few George Bertrand's "Patrie" (171), hanging in the Salon Carré, as one enters, is by far the most triumphant in design, colour, and execution. It represents a wounded officer upon a wounded horse being led down a hill by his companions, while he clasps to his breast the colours he has defended so well. We should not be surprised if this work carried off the prix du Salon. Opposite this hangs "The Distribution of the Colours" (721), by Edward Detaille. This artist is only known to the English public by very minute works; but the canvas before us is one of the largest in the exhibition. The colouring in some parts of the picture is scarcely equal to the artist's reputation, and the coup d'œil generally, as is the case with most officially commissioned pictures of this class, is not pleasant. Jules Garnier has the same subject in another room (943), only on a much smaller scale, and both in colour and composition it struck us as being the better of the two. Of a very different stamp to either of these is Neuville's large picture of the defence by the French troops of "The Cemetery of Saint Privat on Aug. 18, 1870." Exceedingly stirring though this picture undoubtedly is, it lacks, we think, the concentrated interest of the famous "Le Bourget" picture, exhibited two years ago. For the next two years the cemetery picture will be exhibited in all the principal cities of Europe. The artist's other work, the arrest by the German soldiery of a disguised French officer bearing despatches (1724), goes to Mr. Knoedler, of New York. This city will possess, through the wise discrimination of Mr. Avery, the beautiful "Aurora" (266) of Bouguereau; and to M. Schauss will go the artist's "La Vierge aux Anges" (265).

A painter whose name has lately become familiar to English ears is Jules Bastien-Lepage. His "Prince of Wales" in the Academy exhibition, his "Sarah Bernhardt" and other works in that of the Grosvenor, will readily occur to our readers; and those who visited the Salon last year will have a pleasing recollection of his "Joan of Arc" communing with the spirit world in the garden of her early home. This year he sends a small portrait of M. Albert Wolf, the keen art-critic of the Figaro, seated in his study; and a large picture, in the same grey key as his "Joan of Arc," only much firmer, stronger, and altogether better painted, representing an old mendicant leaving the cottage where he has received a dole, which he is placing with trembling hands in his wallet, while the movement is being watched with a kindly sympathetic eye by the little girl of the homely household, as she leans her head against the doorpost. The simplicity, directness, and spontaneity of this work constitute it one of the pictures of the year, and make everything round it look artificial and painty. We are glad to think that the London public will have an opportunity of judging of this remarkable work for themselves in the French Gallery next winter.

In portraiture the Salon is particularly strong, and among those who excel in this important branch of art we are inclined to regard Léon Bonnat as facile princeps. His portraits of "Léon Cogniet" (236) and of "The Countess P." (237) are simply triumphs of limning. There are many others equally impressive, although, perhaps, in a different way; but we need not burden our readers with a mere list of names. At the same time we may be permitted to say that among the younger men John S. Sargent, an American, is an artist of the highest promise. Another gifted American is D. R. Knight, whose group of washerwomen on the banks of the Seine, "Après un Déjeûner" (1255), is as pleasing a picture as one could wish to possess. Not so "The Village Hatmaker" (1266), whom we see, with his two boy assistants, stripped to the waist plying with proverbial industry their vocation; but in technical qualities and force of representation it is as noticeable a picture as any in the exhibition. Another coming man is Pantaléon Szyndler, a young Polish artist, whose "Prayer of the Seraglio" (2213)—a beautiful young lady in a Turkish apartment holding out her hands appealingly to Heaven—is in tone, colour, and execution as fine a bit of work as one could wish to possess. His portrait, too, of "M. S." (2214) is full of well-sustained vigour.

Turning to our own country, it is gratifying to find that W. H. Bartlett has a picture on the line which fully bears out the promise of last year. It is called "The Neighbours" (93), and represents the interior of a studio whose window looks across a narrow court. The occupants of the former are two young painters, and the charm of the picture consists in the subtle way in which the artist expresses their consciousness of the presence of a pretty girl at the opposite window watering her flowers. In manner Mr. Bartlett has much of the simplicity and quiet directness of Bastien-Lepage. J. E. Buland is another coming man of marked individuality. His "Annunciation" (332) is painted in a very light pale key, and is remarkable for its originality and refinement.

A. N. Morot, the young artist whose "Good Samaritan," supporting on his own ass the man who fell among thieves, carried off the great prize last year, contributes to the present Salon, besides a masterly portrait of a lady (1676), a "Temptation of St. Anthony" (1677), which is treated with consummate good taste and feeling, which may almost be called religious. The dallying of the Siren, we can see, will have no power over the venerable and horrified Saint, and we accordingly look upon the picture, not only without a touch of repulsion, but with absolute satisfaction. We wish we could say as much for all the pictures dealing with the nude, and they abound this year as much as ever. Benjamin Constant, by-the-way, has given us a conception of "Herodias" (517), with which we are greatly pleased, and from which we are at the same time repelled. A young semi-nude girl, chin on hand and elbow on knee, sits brooding on a skin-covered couch against a dark-purplish background. The face is at once supercilious, cruel, and sensual, and it is this blended expression which gives the picture its peculiar value; and, though we admire the magnificent workmanship and the wonderful introspection of the author, we feel uneasy in presence of the creature he has created, and are convinced she would be capable of any wickedness.

The pictures of still-life and of fruit and flowers are many and, we may add, magnificent. It is only French and Belgian artists who can produce glorious colour and composition out of old helmets, tapestries, pots and pans, and make of unconsidered trifles of bric-à-brac a picture whose possession Princes might envy. Among those who excel in this department we would name Francis Martin (1539), Paul Forêt (903), and Eugène Claude (475). Some of the large canvases which blaze with gorgeous flowers belong to such men as Eugène Gilbaut (988), George Jeannin (1214), and E. L. Minet (1639). But, although French artists are as alive to the beauties of Nature in her guyer moods as it is possible for them to be, they have a curiously morbid side to their imagination, and will often paint the horrible with the utmost deliberation and the most religious representation of details. We will name two of these pictures as being very emphatically representative of the class of subject to which we allude. The first represents a lovely young girl lying across a railway, her red parasol tossed lightly aside, while the train comes thundering on with irresistible speed, and we feel that no power on earth can save the poor creature from being "in pieces par moreaux" (1123). The author is E. E. Heill, a distinguished pupil of Cabanel's. The other work is more revolting still, and represents a poor man bound fast by the neck in his seat with his feet slowly roasting above a fire which burns at the hither side of the stocks through which they are securely passed. A row of inquisitors sit calmly contemplating the agony of the man, waiting patiently to see if their tortures will elicit anything. The realism of this picture is terrible, and the subject, in our opinion, beyond the province of art; but painters have their own convictions and impulses about such matters. The gifted realiser of this repulsive scene is D. F. Langée.

There are many landscapes in the exhibition both by French and other artists; also cattle-pieces and sea-views, whose size and importance call for special mention; but our space is already more than occupied. On the whole, the Salon is up to its usual mark, but does not, in our opinion, go beyond it. There are many large works of an allegorical and official kind; but scarcely so many covetable cabinet pictures as we have been accustomed to see. We have passed over many famous painters in order that younger men might have their names recorded. We are not insensible to the merits of the masters, or to the distinction which their works give to the exhibition; and no one sooner than they will pardon our giving prominence and a helping hand to the young strugglers who may one day become their successors.

J. F. R.

THE IRISH LAND LEAGUE.

The arrest of Mr. John Dillon, M.P. for Tipperary, and the proclamation of Dublin as a district to be put under the provisions of the recent Act for the summary repression of seditious practices and other attacks on the public peace, have been among the remarkable events of the past week. We regret also to notice the continued perpetration of murderous crimes, in the capital as well as in the rural parts of Ireland, connected with the agitation kept up by the Land League.

It appears that three warrants were issued for Mr. Dillon's arrest on Saturday night. One was given in charge of the Dublin metropolitan police, to be executed if he arrived in Dublin by the morning mail from Tipperary; another was sent to Carrick-on-Suir, so that he might be apprehended there; and a third warrant was sent down the line to be executed wherever Mr. Dillon might appear. Telegrams were sent at various times on Sunday and Monday, inquiring Mr. Dillon's whereabouts. No one believed that he would deliberately leave Ireland for the purpose of avoiding arrest; but it was stated, early on Monday morning, that he and Mr. Leamy had gone viâ Waterford to England, for the purpose of attending in the House of Commons. The police in Dublin were confident that their intended prisoner had not left Ireland. The telegraph wires were brought into requisition; every station from Dublin to Cork was called upon for information, and Mr. Dillon was arrested on Monday evening at Portarlington upon a warrant signed by the Lord Lieutenant, charging him with "inciting persons to forcibly oppose and resist the execution of processes of the law for giving possession of land, to riot, and assault." Mr. Harrington, of Tralee, one of the organisers of the Land League, was with him at the time. Mr. Dillon had left Carrick-on-Suir at noon, and alighted at one of the stations between that place and Clonmel. Thence he started at four o'clock for Dublin, and was met by Inspector McBride with a party of police at Portarlington, and there arrested. The police took on their prisoner by the same train to Dublin, where he arrived at ten o'clock at night, and was forthwith lodged in Kilmainham gaol. Mr. Dillon was treated with personal civility and indulgence, consistent with his safe custody.

There are forty or fifty Land League prisoners now in Kilmainham Gaol, having been arrested by the Irish Government under the Peace Preservation Act. It is the Dublin county gaol, in a suburb of the metropolis, and Mr. Dillon has frequently been there to visit his captive friends. The prison cells are airy, and each is well lighted from a small window, which can only be reached by climbing. The height of each cell is about 14 ft., and the length about 10 ft. They have whitewashed walls and boarded floors, and are warmed with hot-air pipes, which can be regulated by the occupants. They are provided with beds, slung like hammocks, with sacking bottoms, and good bedclothes. Some of the prisoners, however, do not like these, and the Prison Board has ordered bedsteads for them. The cells are furnished by the board with plain tables and chairs, but the Land League have provided for many of them looking-glasses and other articles of furniture. The prisoners are also allowed knives and forks, spoons and delf ware, instead of the tin pannikins and bone spoons in ordinary prison use. They rise at half-past six o'clock in the morning and breakfast at eight o'clock. They are allowed to provide themselves with anything they choose to order for breakfast. The League have acted liberally by the prisoners up to the present. They pay 3s. a day each for dinner for them. The prisoners are allowed half a pint of wine or a bottle of stout if they desire it, but no whisky or brandy is allowed unless as medicine, and none of them have complained of illness on this account. They dine at one o'clock. All their meals are taken in their cells. During the breakfast and dinner hours the prison looks like an hotel, the warders, like waiters, carrying trays to and fro, laden with dishes and decanters. The prisoners occupy the two upper floors of the building, and from the lower one there is a door communicating with two rooms in which they associate during the intervals of meals. These rooms are provided with chairs and tables by the prison board. Books and newspapers are read, and the prisoners fill up the time with conversation. There is also a large yard, in which they meet after breakfast for exercise. It would be agreeable enough if the sun were not excluded by its aspect and its high walls. There are cane-seated chairs in it for the prisoners' accommodation, and they have the privilege of smoking under special rules. They are not interfered with, but two warders overlook the yard from the top of a flight of stone steps. They re-enter their cells at one o'clock for dinner, and at two return to the yard, where they remain until four o'clock, when they proceed to the association-room, and remain there until five o'clock. They have supper between half-past five and six o'clock, and at eight o'clock they return to their cells for the night and the gas is turned off. They have given no trouble to the prison officials. Six additional warders have been brought into the gaol and a head warder to attend to them, and nothing is omitted which can contribute to their health and comfort. They are attended by a medical gentleman specially appointed by the Land League, and are also under the charge of the ordinary physician of the prison.

Among those confined at Kilmainham, besides Mr. Dillon, M.P., are Messrs. Boyton and Sheridan, leading members of the Land League, but most of the prisoners are rather obscure persons, and there are a few of the peasant or small farmer class. In the case of some of these, who have left their farms in Mayo or Connemara, a demonstration of sympathy has been got up by assembling numbers of people, men and women, as shown in our Artist's Sketch, to dig and plant in their fields; the season for putting in potatoes being in March or April, and rather late this year.

The renewed prevalence of fierce outrages in Connemara has excited serious apprehensions. The murder of John Lyden, a caretaker in the service of Mr. Francis J. Graham, at Letterfrack, was a most shocking crime. On the night of Sunday, the 24th, nine armed men broke open the door of Lyden's house, dragged him and his son, Martin Lyden, out of bed, in the presence of his wife and young children, took them outside the house, and then fired a volley of bullets into the unfortunate old man, and finished by battering him with heavy stones; they then fired at his son, who fell, they thought, dead, with four bullets in his body; but he is still alive. The surgeons have no hope of his recovery. Two men, named Joyce and Walsh, have been arrested on the charge of taking part in this murder. At another place a bailiff, named King, was seized by a gang of these villains, and was roasted over a fire till his whole body was covered with blisters and the hair burnt off his head. At Deergrove, near Castlebar, and at Ballyhean, houses were attacked last week, in the night, and shots were fired in at the windows. In several instances bailiffs or hinds of the landlords have been savagely beaten and stoned, and cattle and horses have been cruelly mutilated.

In the city of Dublin, last Sunday evening, two young men named Farrell and Kelly, whilst walking down Cumberland-street, Dublin, in which they lived, were attacked by two men armed with revolvers. Two shots were fired. Farrell was seriously wounded in the neck and his companion in the arm. The wounded men were conveyed to the hospital, where Farrell lies in a precarious state. Their assailants were pursued, and one of them was arrested by a policeman. The motive for this attempted assassination is stated to be that Farrell gave information that arms were concealed in his father's house, from which some days ago several guns were taken by the police.

The Roman Catholic Bishops of Ireland have sent to the Prime Minister their views on the Land Bill. They enumerate eighteen material alterations in the bill, which they consider are necessary to make it a satisfactory measure. These include the granting of fixity of tenure to future tenants, the extension of the protection of the bill to tenants in arrears with their rent, the removal from the bill of the emigration clause, and the provision of a comprehensive scheme for the purchase, reclamation, and partition of waste lands in Ireland, as well as for arterial drainage.

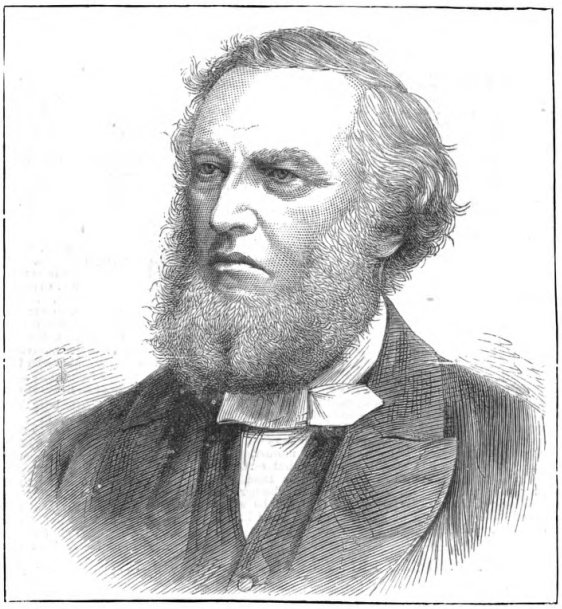
A festival dinner in aid of the funds of the Middlesex Hospital will be held at Willis's Rooms, next Friday, May 13, at which the Earl of Derby has consented to preside.

The friends of the Governesses' Benevolent Institution will dine together at Willis's Rooms next Wednesday—Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, Bart., in the chair; this being the thirty-seventh anniversary dinner of the institution.

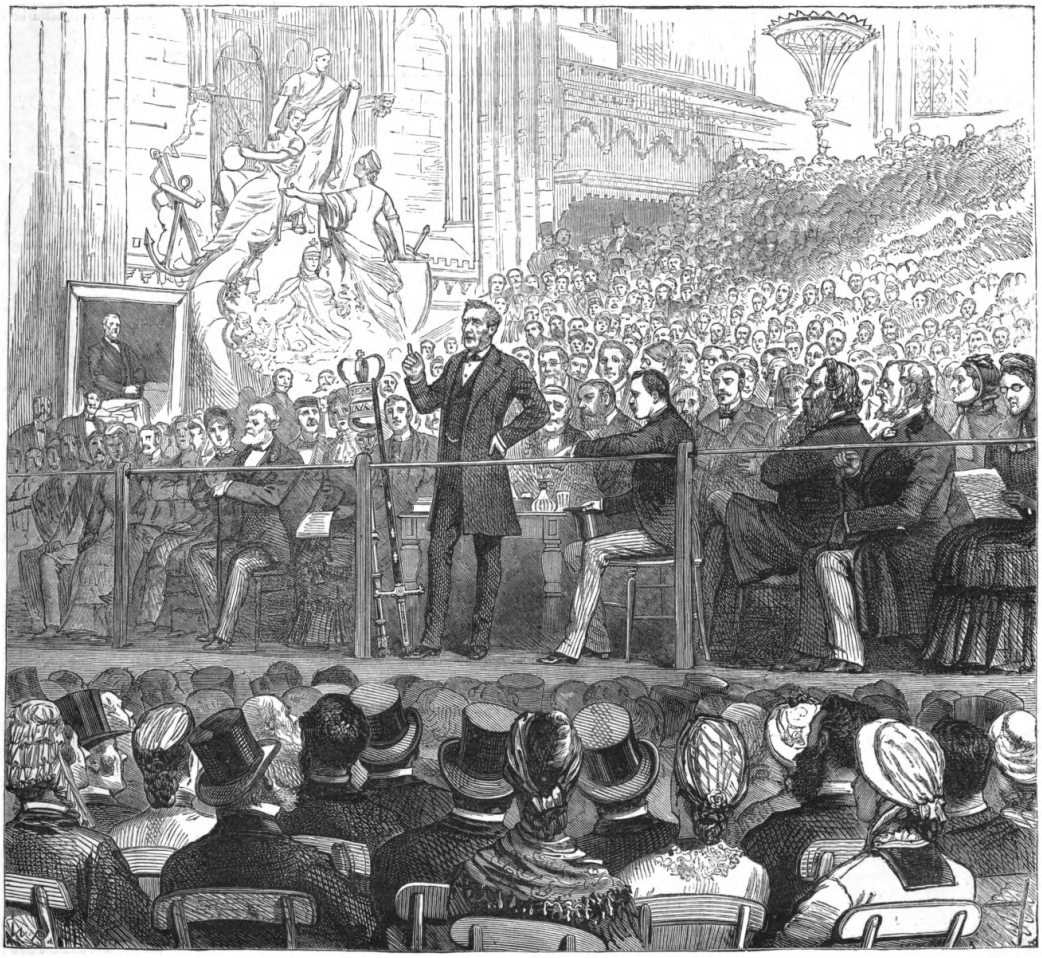
Last month the officers of the Fishmongers' Company seized at Billingsgate Market over forty-nine tons of fish as unfit for human food. Of this all but three hundredweight arrived by land. The fish numbered 6336, and included 29 cod, 183 cod sounds, 16 crabs, 1180 haddocks, 87 lobsters, 44 mackerel, 1000 perch, 419 plaice, 9 salmon, 53 skate, 1316 smelts, and 2000 whiting; and, in addition, 54 bags of cockles, 23 of escallops, 502 of mussels, 3 of oysters, and 6 of periwinkles; 5 barrels of herrings, 177 gallons of shrimps, and 17 bushels of sprats. The whole quantity was destroyed.

THE STATE OF IRELAND: TILLING THE FARM OF AN IMPRISONED LAND LEAGUER.—SEE PAGE 451.

THE RIGHT HON. LORD CARLINGFORD, THE NEW PRIVY SEAL.—SEE NEXT PAGE.



THE REV. DR. JELLETT, PROVOST OF TRINITY COLLEGE, DUBLIN.—SEE NEXT PAGE.



COMMEMORATION OF THE EIGHTIETH BIRTHDAY OF THE EARL OF SHAFTESBURY AT GUILDHALL.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

The Extra Supplement.

AN OLD-TIME MELODY.

The pensive tenderness of expression that animates this lady's face, while she softly touches the keys of her instrument and wakens to audible sound the notes of a piece of music inscribed on the page before her, seems to betray her fond remembrance of past days in early youth, perhaps in childhood, associated with that simple strain of melody, now heard again in the solitude of her retired boudoir. She is, we may suppose, a wife of some few years' experience, but without maternal joys or cares, and too often left alone, brooding over the mingled regretful memories and doubtful hopes and present anxieties of life, for the duties of which she is sometimes inclined to fear her strength of mind, in default of vigorous inspiration or regular training, may prove to be insufficient. Such, at least, is the interpretation of her character that a physiognomist would be led to adopt from the abstracted look of her countenance, which bespeaks high sensibility and moral refinement, but a certain lack of courage and decision, and a tendency to dreamy repose of mind, fostered by the absence of positive occupations. It is natural enough that her thoughts should now turn to the pleasing incidents of her girlhood, either in her parents' home, where she first learnt to play a little on the pianoforte by the instruction of a family governess, or at the young ladies' boarding-school, with a friend of her own age and class, when they received the lessons of a noted local professor of the tuneful art. Some easy, but ever beautiful and delightful melody—one of the Scottish songs, for example, "Highland Laddie," or "Auld Robin Gray;" or a bit of Mozart or Rossini, one of the "Magic Flute" airs, or "Di Tanti Palpiti"—has met her eye in the old practice book; and as the fingers of one hand run instinctively over the ivory keys, she listens to what she has scarcely heard for several years past, but which used to be very familiar to the ear and mind. The friends of her youth, the schoolfellows—if girls can be fellows—the sisters, the father and mother, probably also the uncle and aunt and cousins, but certainly the governess who taught her first to play this tune, will arise once more to meet her, and will ask her whether she is really a happy woman. And then, whether she be so or not, she will bury her face in her handkerchief and have a regular good cry; and much good may it do her!

THE NEW LORD PRIVY SEAL.

On Monday last, at Windsor Castle, the Queen received Lord Carlingford, the newly appointed Lord Privy Seal, who kissed hands upon this occasion. He succeeds the Duke of Argyll, and will take charge of the Irish Land Bill in the House of Lords. As Mr. Chichester Fortescue, he was formerly Chief Secretary for Ireland, and held a seat in Mr. Gladstone's first Cabinet as President of the Board of Trade. He is a younger son of the late Lieutenant-Colonel Chichester Fortescue, by his marriage with Martha, daughter of the late Mr. Samuel Hobson, and is a brother of Lord Clermont. He was born in January, 1823, and was educated at Eton, and at Christ Church, Oxford, where he obtained first-class classical honours in Michaelmas Term, 1844, and subsequently gained the Chancellor's prize for an English essay. In 1847 he entered Parliament in the Liberal interest, as one of the members for the county of Louth, and held that seat down to the general election of 1874, when he was defeated, and was forthwith raised to the peerage as first Baron Carlingford. He was successively a Lord of the Treasury, Under-Secretary of State for the Colonies, Chief Secretary for Ireland, and President of the Board of Trade. His Lordship is Lord Lieutenant of Essex, a Deputy Lieutenant for the county of Louth, and a magistrate for Somerset. In 1863 he assumed the name of Parkinson, and in the same year married Frances, daughter of the late Mr. John Braham, and widow of the seventh Earl Waldegrave, but was left a widower in 1879.

Our Portrait is from a photograph by the London Stereoscopic Company.

TRINITY COLLEGE, DUBLIN.

The newly appointed Provost of Trinity College, Dublin, to fill the place of the late Rev. Dr. Humphrey Lloyd, is the Rev. John Hewitt Jellett, D.D., whose portrait we present to our readers this week. He has, for some years past, been a member of the Governing Council of the University of Dublin, and one of the Senior Fellows of Trinity College, his Fellowship dating from 1840, and he also held the appointment of Senior Lecturer, and was one of the University Preachers nominated last year. The total number of Fellows of Trinity College is thirty-two; seven of whom are in the senior rank; and sixteen of the Fellows are laymen.

The Portrait is from a photograph by Mr. Chancellor, of Dublin.

LORD SHAFTESBURY'S BIRTHDAY.

The eightieth birthday of this veteran Christian philanthropist, on Thursday, April 28, was commemorated by presenting him with a testimonial at Guildhall, City of London. This celebration was originated by the Committee of the Ragged-School Union, whose chairman, Mr. H. R. Williams, superintended the arrangements. The Lord Mayor presided over an afternoon meeting which filled the great hall, while there was a large gathering of people outside. Some girls connected with the Flower-Girls' Mission and that of the Water-Cress Sellers were on the platform, neatly dressed, with baskets of flowers and greenery. In Guildhall-yard there were a number of costermongers, with their barrows, and with donkeys gaily decorated for this festive occasion; also the boys of the Shoeblack Brigade, and representatives of other benevolent institutions under Lord Shaftesbury's patronage.

The platform was crowded with ladies and gentlemen, amongst whom were the Earl and Countess of Aberdeen, Lord Ebury, Lord and Lady Mount-Temple, Lord Kinnaird, Lady Burdett-Coutts and her husband, the Right Hon. W. E. Forster, M.P., Sir Bartle and Lady Frere, Lord Claud Hamilton, Mr. S. Morley, M.P., Mr. Samuel Gurney, and many clergymen and Dissenting ministers. Lord Shaftesbury was accompanied by his daughter, Lady Harriet Ashley.

The Earl of Aberdeen moved a resolution bearing testimony to the philanthropic services of Lord Shaftesbury, during more than half a century, in improving the condition of the labouring classes, and especially bringing the neglected and depraved juvenile population of London, to the number of at least 300,000, under humane and Christian influences. The Right Hon. W. E. Forster, M.P., in seconding this resolution, dwelt upon the acts of Lord Shaftesbury in the advocacy and passing of the Factory Acts. He contrasted the beneficial influence exercised by his Lordship on the working population of the north with the conduct of agitators who, even if their objects were good, pursued them, he maintained, in a manner which was calculated to produce bad social results. Mr. Forster also testified to the great national value of the noble Earl's more recent labours in connection with ragged schools and other benevolent movements, and paid a warm tribute to him for having sacrificed the political fame, which he might have attained as a statesman, to his devotion to works of Christianity and philanthropy.

The resolution having been carried by acclamation, Mr. H. R. Williams read, on behalf of the Ragged-School Union, an address congratulating Lord Shaftesbury that he was still spared to carry on the works of benevolence with which his name was associated. Alluding to leading departments of the work of the Union, the address stated that in addition to the 192 schools established in London many others were established throughout the country; and that every large town and many of the smaller ones now had schools and refuges for the destitute poor.

A lifesize portrait of the noble Earl, which had been hung on the wall to be presented to him, was unveiled amid loud cheers. It had been paid for by ragged-school children and teachers, aided by a few friends, in sums ranging from a farthing to a guinea. This portrait was painted by Mr. B. S. Marks, of Fitzroy-square, whose name was suggested for the purpose by his Lordship. The illuminated address was inclosed in a handsome morocco case, with chasings dipped in gold, made by Mr. Charles Montague, a member of the committee of the Union.

The Lord Mayor, in presenting these gifts on behalf of the meeting, praised Lord Shaftesbury's example and services, and wished that his life might be spared for many happy years to come, applying to him what a Christian poet of the last century addressed to Wilberforce—

> Enjoy what thou hast won, esteem and love
> From all the just on earth and all the blessed above.

The Earl of Shaftesbury, who, on rising, was met with a very cordial greeting, in acknowledging the testimonial, alluded in grateful terms to the vast assistance which he had received in ragged-school work from a multitude of self-denying teachers, many of whom had passed away; glanced at some of the leading features of the work, and urged the necessity of continuing it with unabated zeal.

On the same day a deputation of the Bible Society, headed by Mr. Joseph Hoare, the treasurer, waited on Lord Shaftesbury, and presented him with a handsomely bound Bible, as a testimonial of esteem, and of thanks for his aid as president of the Bible Society during the past thirty-two years.

We present an Illustration of the meeting at Guildhall.

THE SILENT MEMBER.

The disappearance of one of the most brilliant stars from the Parliamentary System has naturally thrown a gloom over the House of Lords that could hardly have escaped notice on the day their Lordships reassembled. Indeed, the absence of Lord Beaconsfield on Thursday was an absence that was felt in a marked degree. There remained one consolation. Though the voice of the late leader of the Conservative Party is hushed for ever, the insensible influence of his style may long prevail in the Chamber, into which he sedulously sought to infuse new life and vigour from the moment he was enrolled an Earl of the realm.

The unsavoury Bradlaugh episode having been for the moment disposed of by the Attorney-General's introduction on Monday of a measure to sanction the affirmation in lieu of the oath of allegiance, the Irish Land Bill of the Government has been the main topic of debate in the Commons. Lord Elcho followed up his unsparing and epigrammatic attack on the measure by moving on Monday the following amendment to the motion for the second reading:—

> That this House, while willing to consider any just measure founded upon sound principles that will benefit tenants of land in Ireland, is of opinion that the leading provisions of the Land Law (Ireland) Bill are in the main economically unsound, unjust, and impolitic.

These few words may be accepted as a fair summary of his Lordship's exhaustive speech on Thursday week, when he was forcibly answered from the Ministerial side by Mr. Charles Russell and the Attorney-General for Ireland. Allowed an evening away from Ireland on the Friday, the House took up for recreation the right of the colonies to declare war, and the subject of the opium traffic. Two humanitarian members, Mr. Richard and Mr. Pease, achieved a certain success with these themes, Mr. Richard's motion adverse to the right of the Colonies to declare war being negatived by the narrow majority of 72 to 64 votes, and Mr. Pease's condemnation of the opium trade with China being well supported, albeit the Marquis of Hartington protested that at present India could not surrender this source of revenue.

Lord Elcho provoked Ministerial laughter on Monday, when he expressed preference for his own amendment over Lord John Manners's on the score of the vagueness of the latter. These were the terms, it may here be remarked, of Lord John's amendment:—

> That this House, while anxious to maintain and secure the full efficiency of the customs of Ulster and other analogous customs of Ireland to remedy the proved defects of the Land Act of 1870, is disposed to seek for the social and material improvement of the country by measures for the development of its industrial resources rather than by a measure which confuses, without settling on a just and permanent basis, the relations of landlord and tenant.

Now, Mr. W. H. Smith, in his business-like and unimaginative speech, did not stay to balance the merits of the rival resolutions. The right hon. gentleman who lately ruled supreme at the Admiralty (represented as he expounds an argument in his practical, commercial manner) contented himself with a plain but forcible statement of the many objections raised by landlords to the bill of the Government. Mr. Smith's speech was, in fine, a solid contribution to the debate; in tone, admirably calm and judicial; in style, terse and argumentative. Mr. Shaw-Lefevre, who has made a special study of the Irish land problem, enlightened Mr. Smith on the points he did not appear to think just; and insisted upon the urgent necessity of proceeding farther in the path sanctioned by the Land Act of 1870. It remained for one of the most eloquent of the Irish members, Mr. P. J. Smyth, to rise above dry detail, and to give a flesh-and-blood clothing to a powerful argument in warm favour of the bill as a means of restoring prosperity to Ireland and concord between Ireland and England.

Mr. Parnell, rising later in the evening, commented on the "strange irony in the fact that while one member for Tipperary was extolling her Majesty's Government, the other was an inmate of a prison." The Home-Rule leader, however, was precluded from animadverting further on the arrest in Ireland of of Mr. John Dillon. His colleague, Mr. Justin McCarthy, on Tuesday, however, gave the signal of a Milesian storm by reading a resolution condemnatory of the arrest and of the action of the Government in placing Dublin in a state of siege.

Mr. Gladstone, having caught cold, deemed it prudent not to appear in the House on Tuesday. The sitting was not eventful. It was occupied mainly with a debate on Mr. Blennerhassett's "distress" motion, approved by the Home Secretary, and eventually agreed to:—

> That, in the opinion of this House, it is desirable to abolish the power of levying distress for the rent of agricultural holdings in England, Wales, and Ireland.

Mr. Gladstone was well enough to be in his place on Wednesday, when Mr. Trevelyan had the melancholy duty of corroborating the report of the terrible loss of life through the destruction by explosion of H.M.S. Doterel. The Speaker's formal announcement of Mr. Dillon's arrest led Mr. T. P. O'Connor and Mr. Biggar to sound the note of Irish dissatisfaction. The Prime Minister spoke in favour of Mr. Roberts's bill for closing public-houses in Wales on Sundays; and the measure was read the second time by 163 to 17 votes. Little more business was done afterwards than the withdrawal by Mr. Anderson of his Banking Laws Amendment Bill, after a fruitless endeavour to get it read the second time. Lord R. Grosvenor did not secure the appointment of his Select Committee on the River Conservancy and Floods Bill, the matter being adjourned. But Mr. Chamberlain just managed to bring in a bill to abolish the compulsory pilotage of the Thames, and to deal otherwise with the navigation of the Thames.

MR. DILLON IN DUBLIN.

The arrivals of live stock and fresh meat at Liverpool last week from the United States and Canada show a slight increase in live stock and a decrease in fresh meat on those of the preceding week, the total being 1540 cattle, 1027 sheep, 7226 quarters of beef, 601 carcases of mutton, and 188 pigs.

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE KEW OBSERVATORY OF THE ROYAL SOCIETY.

Lat. 51° 28′ 6″ N.; Long. 0° 18′ 47″ W. Height above Sea, 34 feet.

| DAY. | DAILY MEANS OF Barometer Corrected. | Temperature of the Air. | Dew Point. | Relative Humidity. | Amount of Cloud. | THERMOM. Maximum, read at 9 P.M. | Minimum, read at 9 A.M. | WIND. General Direction. | Movement in 24 hours, read at 9 A.M. next morning. | Rain in 24 hours, read at 10 A.M. next morning. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| | Inches | ° | ° | | 0-10 | ° | ° | | Miles. | In. |
| April. 24 | 30·008 | 48·0 | 37·1 | ·68 | 7 | 57·9 | 42·0 | NNW. WNW. W. | 230 | 0·000 |
| 25 | 29·863 | 54·7 | 43·4 | ·75 | 9 | 60·5 | 45·9 | WSW. WNW. | 363 | 0·015 |
| 26 | 29·944 | 46·1 | 36·9 | ·73 | 6 | 55·5 | 40·3 | WSW. WNW. | 301 | 0·105 |
| 27 | 30·097 | 48·1 | 36·8 | ·67 | 9 | 57·1 | 39·8 | WSW. NW. | 111 | 0·000 |
| 28 | 30·118 | 47·7 | 39·7 | ·76 | 6 | 58·9 | 38·3 | NW. WSW. S. SSW. | 111 | 0·000 |
| 29 | 30·075 | 51·6 | 47·2 | ·86 | 10 | 59·7 | 46·1 | SSW. WSW. | 268 | 0·080 |
| 30 | 29·721 | 53·2 | 42·2 | ·69 | 7 | 63·7 | 48·2 | WSW. SSW. SW. | 346 | 0·030 |

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at ten o'clock A.M.:—

| | | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Barometer (in inches) corrected .. | 29·991 | 29·888 | 29·911 | 30·134 | 30·234 | 30·136 | 29·838 |
| Temperature of Air .. | 60·2° | 54·3° | 48·5° | 50·6° | 50·6° | 54·3° | 57·3° |
| Temperature of Evaporation .. | 44·4° | 50·5° | 45·2° | 44·8° | 46·2° | 51·1° | 49·7° |
| Direction of Wind .. | N. | WSW. | WSW. | NW. | NW. | WSW. | SW. |

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE

FOR THE WEEK ENDING MAY 14.

| Sunday. | | Monday. | | Tuesday. | | Wednesday. | | Thursday. | | Friday. | | Saturday. | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| M | A | M | A | M | A | M | A | M | A | M | A | M | A |
| h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m |
| 8 03 | 9 33 | 10 6 | 10 37 | 11 10 | 11 35 | 12 0 | — | 0 22 | 0 55 | 1 6 | 1 26 | 1 48 | 2 3 |

HOME NEWS.

The ship Peterborough sailed from Plymouth for Sydney yesterday week with 395 emigrants.

Mr. James Stirling, of the Equity Bar, has been appointed Junior Equity Counsel to the Treasury, in succession to Mr. John Rigby, Q.C.

An interment took place at Sheffield on Tuesday of the remains of a deaf mute, and the twelve mourners were also deaf and dumb. The service was conducted entirely by sign.

The donations to the proposed University College in Liverpool have reached £100,000. Lord Derby has accepted the presidency of the governing body.

It was stated in the Irish Church Synod on Thursday week that after the last of the existing annuitants has died out there will be £3,000,000 remaining to the credit of the Church.

A public meeting was held at the new Board schools in Duncombe-road, Upper Holloway, last week, in connection with the opening, Mr. E. North Buxton, presiding.

Dr. Habershon, the president of the metropolitan branch of the British Medical Association, has issued cards for a conversazione at the South Kensington Museum next Friday.

Mrs. Alexander M'Arthur, the Lady Mayoress, will hold receptions at the Mansion House on the afternoons of the second and fourth Tuesdays in May, from three to five.

The banquet to Dr. Moffatt, the eminent African missionary, which is to be given by the Lord Mayor to-day (Saturday), promises to be an event of exceptional interest.

A proposal has been made by the Bulgarian Government to Servia for the session of the town of Pirot to Bulgaria for the sum of 5,000,000, francs.

The Hon. Baron Pollock will preside at the forty-ninth anniversary festival of the United Law Clerks' Society, which will be held in the Middle Temple Hall on June 2.

Arrangements are being made for the laying of a new independent telegraph cable between a point near Land's End and America.

The Iron and Steel Institute held their annual meeting on Wednesday and two following days, in the Hall in Great George-street, Westminster, lent for the occasion by the President and Council of the Institution of Civil Engineers.

The instructions issued by the Colonial Office to the Royal Commissioners for the settlement of affairs in the Transvaal have been published as a Parliamentary paper. The commission has been opened at Newcastle, in Natal.

Sir Massey Lopes has offered £1000 to the new building fund of the South Devon and East Cornwall Hospital, requesting that one of the wards may be named, after his residence, Maristow Ward.

Arrangements have been completed by Mr. and Mrs. Richardson Gardner with the Italian authorities for the visit of the accomplished blind pupils of the Milan Institute. They will arrive in London in time to give the first concert at 41, Grosvenor-square, on Tuesday, the 17th inst., and the second on Saturday, the 21st.

A full meeting of the Victoria (Philosophical) Institute took place on Monday at its house, 7, Adelphi-terrace, when a paper upon Philosophy as Advocated by Mr. Herbert Spencer was read by the Rev. W. Ground. The aim of the paper was to show that the philosophy in question is hopelessly illogical, the "analysis" in direct contradiction to the "synthesis."

The thirty-second session of the General Medical Council was held last week at the hall in Oxford-street. Dr. Acland, in his presidential address, pointed out that the main object of the meeting was to consider certain questions affecting education, and the examinations of schools and colleges throughout the country.

The twelfth annual meeting of the Charity Organisation Society took place on Wednesday at the Mansion House—the Lord Mayor in the chair. The speakers included Prince Leopold, Sir Richard Cross, Mr. Bryce, M.P., Mr. G. C. T. Bartley, and Mr. H. Geary. Votes of thanks to Prince Leopold and the Lord Mayor concluded the proceedings. Two conferences were also held on Thursday at Exeter Hall, at eleven a.m. and three p.m.

There were 2829 births and 1550 deaths registered in London last week. Allowing for increase of population, the births exceeded by 182, whereas the deaths were 35 below, the average numbers in the corresponding week of the last ten years. Seventy fatal cases of smallpox were registered.

Dr. George Edward Paget, F.R.S., Regius Professor of Physic in the University of Cambridge, has been elected to a fellowship at Caius College. Dr. Paget, late President of the Council of Medical Education, was eighth wrangler in 1831, and the following year was elected to a fellowship, which he vacated by marriage, according to college statutes then existing.

Several May meetings have been held this week. At that of the Wesleyan Missionary Society, held in Exeter Hall on Monday, the Lord Mayor presided, and dwelt upon the urgent necessity for increased funds for missionary work. A subscription of a thousand pounds from his Lordship was afterwards announced, "in loving memory of Dr. Punshon," towards liquidating the debt of the society.——The annual meeting of the Church Missionary Society was held on Tuesday at Exeter Hall, Lord Chichester in the chair. There had been received during the year for the objects of the society £207,508. Lord Shaftesbury and the Bishop of Norwich were the principal speakers.——The seventy-seventh annual meeting of the British and Foreign Bible Society was held on Wednesday morning in Exeter Hall—the Earl of Shaftesbury presiding. Among those on the platform were Lord Cairns, the Bishop of Rochester, the Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol, the Bishop of Liverpool, and the Bishop of Sodor and Man. The annual report showed that the free income of the society for the year ending March 31, 1881, amounted to £114,382, while the sum received for Scriptures sold, both at home and abroad, has been £90,015, making, with £121 received on account of the Roxburgh Fund for Indian colportage, a total of £209,519. The expenditure, including £3091 2s. 2d. for the Roxburgh Fund, has been £190,043. The issues of the society for the year were 2,846,029 copies of Bibles, Testaments, and portions. Earl Cairns moved the adoption of the report, in the absence of the Archbishop of Canterbury.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

THE NEW AND POPULAR NOVELS.
Now ready, at all the Libraries, in 3 vols.,

HARRY JOSCELYN. By Mrs. OLIPHANT.
SYDNEY. By GEORGIANA M. CRAIK.
LOVE-KNOTS. By Author of "Ursula's Love Story."
BESIDE THE RIVER. By Mrs. MACQUOID.
HIS LITTLE MOTHER. By the Author of "John Halifax." 1 vol., 10s. 6d.
THE FUTURE MARQUIS. By CATHARINE CHILDAR.
CHEAP EDITION of LORD BRACKENBURY. By AMELIA B. EDWARDS. 6s., bound and illustrated.
HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

POPULAR NOVELS AT ALL LIBRARIES.
TWO PRETTY GIRLS. By Miss M. A. LEWIS. 3 vols.
AN OCEAN FREE LANCE. By the Author of "A Sailor's Sweetheart." 3 vols.
POLICY AND PASSION. By Mrs. CAMPBELL PRAED. 3 vols.
A CHILD OF NATURE. By ROBERT BUCHANAN, Third Edition. 3 vols.
RICHARD BENTLEY and SON, New Burlington-street.

MISS BRADDON'S LATEST NOVEL.
New Edition, price 6s., uniform with "Just as I Am,"

ASPHODEL. The Latest Novel. By the Author of "Lady Audley's Secret," "Vixen," &c.
London: J. and R. MAXWELL, Milton-house, shoe-lane, E.C.

THE EARL OF BEACONSFIELD.
A BIOGRAPHICAL MEMOIR.
By EDWARD WALFORD, Esq., M.A., Editor of "County Families," &c. Price 1s., sewed; 1s. 6d., cloth gilt.
F. WARNE and Co., Bedford-street, Strand.

THE BIJOU GAZETTEER OF THE WORLD. Briefly describing, as regards Position, Area, and Population, every Country and State, their Subdivisions, Provinces, Counties, Principal Towns, Villages, Mountains, Rivers, Lakes, Capes, &c. By W. H. ROSSER. 30,000 References. Price 1s. 6d., cloth gilt; or roan, pocket-book style, 2s. 6d.
F. WARNE and Co., Bedford-street, Strand.

1d., Weekly; Monthly Part, 5d.,
GARDENING ILLUSTRATED. Villa, Suburban, Cottage, and Town Gardening; Window Plants, Bees, Poultry. All Newsagents.
Copy, by post, 1½d. Vol. I., 7s. 6d.
37, Southampton-street, Strand, London.

Second Edition, price 10s. 6d.,
ARBORICULTURE; or, a Practical Treatise on Raising and Managing Forest Trees. By JOHN GRIGOR, Forres, N.B.
"We know no book on the subject of planting so exhaustive in proportion to its size."—Saturday Review.
Edinburgh: OLIPHANT, ANDERSON, and FERRIER.

MESSER'S BRITISH WILD FLOWERS. A New and Rapid Method of studying Wild Flowers by Analytical Illustrations. "We cordially recommend it."—Journal of Horticulture. Cloth, 10s. 6d.
D. BOGUE, 86, Martin's-place, W.C.

PRACTICAL LESSONS IN PAINTING ON CHINA, PORCELAIN, EARTHENWARE, &c. By Madame la Baronne DELAMARDELLE; from the French by GUSTAVE A. BOUTIER. 4th Edition. Price 1s.; post-free, 1s. 1d.—London: LECHERTIER, BARBE, and Co., 60, Regent-street.

Eighth Edition, cloth, post-free, 33 stamps,
DR. BARR MEADOWS on Skin Disease. Remarks on the Abuse of Arsenic, and specifics.
London: G. HILL, 194, Westminster-road.

JUST PUBLISHED, post-free, 2 stamps,
DYSPEPSIA and the SEVERER FORMS OF INDIGESTION. A small pamphlet on those distressing complaints and their complete cure. Published by the Author, RICHARD KING, Esq., Staff Surgeon R.N., 23, Warwick-st., Rugby.

Second Edition, 1s., or 13 stamps by post,
SKIN DISEASES TREATED HOMŒOPATHICALLY. By WASHINGTON EPPS, L.R.C.P. 200 cases, including 40 distinct varieties of skin diseases.—JAMES EPPS and Co., 48, Threadneedle-street; and 170, Piccadilly.

New Edition, 8vo. pp. 224, cloth, 3s. 6d., or 45 stamps,
HORSES ILL AND WELL; Homœopathic Treatment of Diseases and Injuries, and Hints on Feeding, Grooming, Conditioning, Nursing, Horse-buying. By JAMES MOORE, M.R.C.V.S.
JAMES EPPS and Co., 170, Piccadilly; and 48, Threadneedle-st.

Third Edition, price 1s., post-free,
THE New Electrolytic Treatment of Cancer and of Simple Tumours. By G. EDGELOW, M.D., NELSON and Co., 23, Duke-street, Grosvenor-square, W.

PHOTOGRAPHS OF EARL BEACONSFIELD'S TOMB.
With all the Wreaths and Floral Crosses
As arranged on the Grave,
Hughenden Manor, Church, &c.
One Shilling Each.
Free by post.
HENRY W. TAUNT and Co., Photographers, Oxford.

WHITE WOOD ARTICLES for Painting, Pen Painting, and Decalcomanie, Blotting-Books, Card Plates, Clear-Case Screens, &c. New Patterns. Priced List free WM. BARNARD, 119, Edgware-road, London, W.

JOSEPH GILLOTT'S STEEL PENS.
GOLD MEDAL,
PARIS,
1878.

THE BUGLER. In D, F, and G. By CIRO PINSUTI. Words by F. E. Weatherly.
This very successful song has now reached the Tenth Edition.

THE CHALLENGE. For Bass and Baritone. By HUMPHREY J. STARK. Words by E. Oxenford. A bold and vigorous composition, and received always by great applause and repeated encores.

WEIT VON DIR (Far from Thee). Waltz. By OSCAR SEYDEL. "When she went back to the ball-room, Captain Winstanley followed her, and claimed his waltz. The band was just striking up the latest German melody, 'Weit von Dir,' a strain of pleading tenderness."—Vide Miss Braddon's "Vixen." Each of the above 2s. net.
B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster-row.

JOHN BRINSMEAD and SONS' PATENT SOSTENENTE PIANOS have gained the highest awards at all the recent International Exhibitions, including the two First Prizes, Melbourne, 1881; the First Prize, Queensland, 1880; the two First Special Prizes, Sydney, 1880; the Legion of Honour, Paris, 1878, &c. For SALE, Hire, and on the Three Years' System.—18, 20, Wigmore-st., London W. Illustrated Lists free.

JOHN BRINSMEAD and SONS' PIANOS for SALE, Hire, and on the Three-Years' System.—18, 20, Wigmore-street; and the Brinsmead Works, Grafton-road, N.W. Lists post-free.

FOR FAMILY ARMS (Lincoln's-inn Heraldic Office) send Name and County. Sketch, 3s. 6d.; in colours, 7s. 6d. Arms painted on seals, Dies, &c. PUGH BROTHERS, Great Turnstile, Lincoln's-inn, W.C.; and 76, Queen Victoria-street, E.C. Prize Medal, Paris, 1878.

FOR ARMS and CREST send Name and County to T. MORING, Inns of Court Heraldic Offices, 323, High Holborn, W.C. Plain Sketch, 3s. 6d.; Coloured, 7s. 6d. Seals, Dies, and Diplomas. Illustrated Price-Lists post-free.

WHAT IS YOUR CREST and WHAT IS YOUR MOTTO? Send name and county to CULLETON'S Heraldic Office. Plain Sketch, 3s. 6d.; colours, 7s. The arms painted and wife's blended. Crest engraved on seals, rings, books, and steel dies, 8s. 6d. Gold seal, with crest, 5s.; Gold Gold Ring, 18-carat, Hall Mark, with crest, 42s. Manual of Heraldry, 400 engravings, 3s. 8d.—T. CULLETON, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

CULLETON'S GUINEA BOX of STATIONERY contains a Ream of the very best Paper and 500 Envelopes, all stamped in the most elegant way with Crest and Motto, Monogram, or Address, and the engraving of Steel Die included. Sent to any part for P.O. order.—T. CULLETON, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

VISITING CARDS, by CULLETON. Fifty best quality, 2s. 8d., post-free, including the Engraving of Copper-plate. Wedding Cards, 50 for 7s. 6d. Embossed Envelopes, with Maiden Name, 1s. 6d.—T. CULLETON, Seal Engraver, 25, Cranbourn-street, St. Martin's-lane, W.C.

WEDDING and BIRTHDAY PRESENTS at RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly, London.
SETS FOR THE WRITING-TABLE AND BOUDOIR, IN POLISHED BRASS, ORMOLU, SEVRES CHINA, BRONZE, and OXIDIZED SILVER, from .. .. .. 21s. to £10
TRAVELLING DRESSING BAGS .. .. .. 85s. to £50
DRESSING CASES .. .. .. .. .. 21s. to £50
DESPATCH BOXES .. .. .. .. .. 21s. to £10
PORTFOLIOS, WRITING CASES .. .. .. 4s. 6d. to £5
ENVELOPE CASES and BLOTTING BOOKS .. 10s. 6d. to £5
INKSTANDS .. .. .. .. .. .. 6s. to £5
CANDLESTICKS (per pair) .. .. .. .. 7s. 6d. to £5
WORK BOXES .. .. .. .. .. .. 15s. to £5
THE NEW "TANTALUS" LIQUEUR STAND .. 10s. 6d. to £10
THE "TANTALUS" SODA and BRANDY STAND, £5 15s. 6d.
And a large and choice assortment of ENGLISH, VIENNESE, and PARISIAN NOVELTIES, from 3s. to £5.

PORTRAIT ALBUMS at RODRIGUES', with Patent Leather Guards, 6s. 6d. to £5. Floral Albums, Scrap Albums, Presentation and Regimental Albums.
Albums of every description made to order.—42, Piccadilly.

RODRIGUES' MONOGRAMS, ARMS, CORONET, CREST, and ADDRESS DIES Engraved as Gems from Original and Artistic Designs.
NOTE-PAPER AND ENVELOPES, brilliantly Illuminated by hand in Gold, Silver, Bronze, and Colours.
BEST RELIEF STAMPING, any colour, 1s. per 100.
All the New and Fashionable Note-Papers.
A VISITING CARD PLATE elegantly Engraved, and 100 Superfine Cards printed, for 4s. 6d.
BALL PROGRAMMES, BILLS OF FARE, GUEST CARDS, WEDDING CARDS, and INVITATIONS in every variety.
HENRY RODRIGUES, 42, Piccadilly, London.

CHROMOPHOTOGRAPHY.
(KRAUS' PROCESS.)
The New Art (enabling any person without previous knowledge of either Painting or Drawing) to Colour Photographs in Oil, Chromatic Photographs, Crayon, and Enamel Painting. Boxes containing every requisite, 26s. and 42s. Particulars post-free. Specimens shown on application at the Sole Agents, J. J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street, London, W.

VITREMANIE, superseding Diaphanie. An easy and inexpensive method of decorating windows in churches, public buildings, and private houses, by which may be produced the rich colouring and beautiful designs equal in appearance to real stained glass. Handbook of Designs and full instructions, 1s. 1d. Boxes, comprising designs, &c., at 21s., 31s. 6d., 42s. Particulars post-free. Sole Inventors, J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street, London, W.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN PRINTER. The People's Printing Press, for Authors, Amateurs, the Army and Navy, &c. Prospectuses forwarded on application to D. G. BERRI, 36, High Holborn, London, W.C.

GENUINE DUBLIN WHISKY.
THE MOST WHOLESOME OF ALL SPIRITS.
DUBLIN WHISKY, Distilled by Messrs. JOHN JAMESON and SON, GEORGE ROE and CO., WILLIAM JAMESON and CO., and JOHN POWER and SON'S can be obtained in Wood by wholesale merchants and dealers direct from their respective distilleries.

A GRAND BAZAAR, under the especial Patronage of H.R.H. the PRINCESS LOUISE (Marchioness of Lorne),
H.R.H. the PRINCESS BEATRICE,
H.R.H. and I.H. the DUCHESS of EDINBURGH,
H.R.H. the DUCHESS of CONNAUGHT,
H.R.H. the DUCHESS of CAMBRIDGE,
H.R.H. the PRINCESS FREDERICA of HANOVER.
H.R.H. the PRINCESS MARY ADELAIDE, Duchess of York), will be held at the DUKE OF WELLINGTON'S RIDING SCHOOL, Knightsbridge, on TUESDAY, Wednesday, and Thursday, MAY 17, 18, and 19, in Aid of the BUILDING FUND for the Extension of the NATIONAL HOSPITAL FOR THE PARALYSED AND EPILEPTIC, Queen-square, Bloomsbury.
H.R. and I.H. the Duchess of Edinburgh has graciously consented to Open the Bazaar at Two o'clock on Tuesday, May 17.
STALL HOLDERS.
The Marchioness of Abergavenny, the Marchioness Dowager of Waterford and Lady Cecily Gathorne Hardy, the Marchioness of Camden and the Marchioness of Waterford, the Lady Blanche Morris, the Lady Sarah Spencer, the Lady Victoria Spencer, and Miss D'Denin; the Lady Anne Sherson, Mrs. Reeves, Mrs. John Fred Boyes, Mrs. Spencer Brunton, Mrs. Ferrier, the Misses Hinde, Mrs. Mercer, Madame Modjeska, Mrs. Rose, Mrs. Pastour, the Countess de Pourtales, Mrs. Porter, Mrs. Schofield, Mrs. Edward Salwa, Mrs. Ernest Villiers, Mrs. Wheeler, Mrs. Alfred Wheeler, and the Members of the Ladies' Committee.
The Band of the Royal Artillery will attend, under the direction of Mr. Albert Mansfield, bandmaster.
Entertainments will be given by Miss Jessie Bond, Mr. F. Thornton, Mr. R. Temple, and Mr. R. Barnes, of the Comique Theatre, assisted by Mr. Dundas Gardiner and other distinguished amateurs.
Admission on the first day from Two until Three o'Clock, 5s.; after Three o'Clock, 2s. 6d. second and third days, Two o'Clock, 1s. Children and their attendants half price.
EDWARD H. CHANDLER, Hon. Sec.,
43, Albany-street, Regent's Park.

PARIS. GRAND HOTEL. PARIS. 35, BOULEVARD DES CAPUCINES.—12.
Most carefully reorganised under New Management. Seven Hundred Rooms and Salons, from 5 francs.
Reduction in prices: Luncheons, from Eleven to One o'Clock, 5 francs, inclusive wine, coffee, and cognac.
Dinners, with Orchestra, at Half-past Six o'Clock, 8 francs, inclusive wine.
Cafe and Restaurant opening into the Court of Honour.
Cafe, Divan, Billiards, Smoking-Room, Newspapers of all countries, Post and Telegraph Offices and Booking to the Theatres, Bath-Rooms.
For a prolonged sojourn, reduced terms, as per agreement.

WILDBAD (in the Black Forest, Würtemberg Railway station) lies in the charming valley of the Enz, in a beautifully pine-scented air, with its celebrated hot springs (30 deg.—99 deg. F.), unique of their kind. It is accordingly distinguished from all others of the same name as THE WILDBAD par excellence.
Imposing bath establishment, public and private baths (immediately over the springs), with constant stream of water through them, warm'n'd cold douches, newly-erected Trinkhalle, a work of art situate in pleasure-grounds of remarkable natural beauty, cold river baths, excellent milk and whey, natural and artificial mineral waters, electric and orthopædic treatment, sanatorium for children, bath hospital, &c.
The principal affections treated are:—Chronic rheumatism and gout, all forms of paralysis (especially of the spinal cord), cramp, neuralgia, and anæsthesia, metallic poisoning, loss of vital power from over-exertion or severe illness, results of injuries, especially gunshot wounds, affections of the bones and joints, scrofula, rachitis, chronic indigestion, diseases of the air passages and of the urinary organs, female disorders. Comfortable hotels and private lodgings, famous orchestra, handsome concert-room, ball-room, well-appointed reading-room, balls, réunions, shooting and fishing, beautiful excursions. Protestant, Catholic, and Anglican churches. Advantageous opportunities for education.
Average number frequenting the Baths about 7000. Casual visitors twice that number. Season opened May 1.
All further information can be obtained from the Municipality.
Prospectus of Wildbad may be had, free of charge, from RUDOLF MOSSE'S International Advertising Agency, 15, Cheapside, London; and any of the Continental Branch Offices.

WANTED.—TO VOCALISTS, PIANISTS, VIOLINISTS, desiring introductions. Amateurs eligible. The LONDON CONSERVATOIRE Directors offer FREE TUITION for the encouragement of talent. No fees per centage off salaries). Candidates address,
J. SKULL, Secretary, 37, Abbey-road, N.W.

SMART'S WRITING INSTITUTION, 97a, Quadrant, Regent-street (entrance in swallow-street), Open from Ten till Nine daily. Persons of all ages received privately, and taught at any time suiting their own convenience. Lessons one hour each. No classes. No extras. Improvement guaranteed in eight to twelve easy lessons. Separate room for ladies. Apply to Mr. Smart, as above.

DIAMONDS. SAPPHIRES. CATS'-EYES. OPALS. EMERALDS.
Mr. STREETER,
18, New Bond-street, W.
INTRODUCER of 18-CARAT GOLD JEWELLERY
ENGLISH LEVER WATCHES, (MACHINE-MADE.)
BRANCH ESTABLISHMENT, COLOMBO, CEYLON.

WALKER'S CRYSTAL CASE WATCHES are superseding all others. Prize Medals—London, 1862; Paris, 1867. Silver Watches, from £4 4s.; Gold, from £6 6s. Price Lists sent free.—77, Cornhill; 230, Regent-street; and 76, Strand.

THE FINEST WATCHES MADE. SEWILL'S KEYLESS WATCHES, Prize Medals, London, Paris, and Philadelphia, Damp and Dust Proof, and Perfect Timekeepers, recommended for all climates, £10 10s., £14 14s., and £25; Ladies', £7 7s., £10 10s., and £15 15s.; in silver cases, for Ladies or Gentlemen, £5 5s., £6 6s., and £8 8s. Forwarded on receipt of remittance.—J. Sewill, 20, Cornhill, London; and 91, South Castle-street, Liverpool.

FOR SOUTH AFRICA.—How to get rid of your left-off clothes, jewels, furniture, antique lace, old gold teeth plates, &c. Why send them to the most respectable purchasers, who pay you ready money before taking them away.—Mr. and Mrs. PHILLIPS, old-Curiosity Shop, 31, Finsbury-street, Manchester-square, London, W.

JAY'S, Regent-street.

MOURNING.—Messrs. JAY'S Experienced Assistants travel to any part of the kingdom, free of expense to purchasers. They take dresses and millinery with them, besides patterns of materials, all marked in plain figures, and at the same price as if purchased at the Warehouse in Regent-street. Funerals at stated charges conducted in London or country. JAY'S, REGENT-STREET.

EVENING DRESSES, Black Net, Tulle, and Spanish Lace.—Messrs. JAY prepare for the season a variety of black Evening Dresses, which they can confidently recommend both for correctness of fashion and economy in price. Designs and prices postage-free.
JAY'S, Regent-street.

DRESS.—Messrs. JAY respectfully invite their clientèle to the choice Collection of Pattern Costumes of the Newest Type of Fashion, which are imported from Paris and Berlin.
JAY'S, Regent-street.

PEAU DE CHAMOIS COSTUMES.—A varied series of COSTUMES, made from Peau de Chamois Satin, are produced weekly during the season. Price 6½ guineas each, including sufficient satin to make a bodice.
JAY'S,
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
REGENT-STREET, W.

TEENS that young ladies are in no hurry to get out of—
"LOUIS" VELVET-TEENS.

THE "LOUIS" VELVETEEN
IS SIMPLY UNIQUE.
Do not be induced by persuasion to take any
LOUIS
AN EXTRA PROFIT TO YOUR LOSS
may be speciously made if it upon, under whatever name offered, an inferior quality of Velveteen.
"THE LOUIS"
has established its reputation so widely that even a slight inferiority would injure its repute, which constitutes
LOUIS
A TEST OF MERIT,
and guarantee of
UNSURPASSED QUALITY.
Be sure you find the words
THE "LOUIS" VELVETEEN
on every yard,
or you have not the
GENUINE "LOUIS,"
notwithstanding all assertions to the contrary.
LOUIS
Wholesale London Agent, J. H. FULLER, 92, Watling-street, who will send on inquiry, post-free, the names of the nearest Drapers from whom the genuine LOUIS VELVETEEN can be obtained.

NEW SPRING DRESSES.—New Heather Tweed Reigns, 7½d.; New Granit Merveilleux, 6½d. Patterns free.—JOHN HOOPER, 62, Oxford-street, W.

NOVELTIES for LADIES' MORNING DRESSES.—French Satteens, 8½d.; Pompadours, 7½d.; Prints, 5½d.; Linen Lawns, 9½d. Patterns free.
JOHN HOOPER, 62, Oxford-street, W.

AEGIDIUS. — The only non-shrinking Flannel Shirt. Warm as wool, soft as silk, and very elastic. Patterns and self-measure free.
R. FORD, 41, Poultry, London.

PRATT'S WATER PAD TRUSSES are the
MOST EFFECTUAL CURE FOR RUPTURES.
PRATT'S ELASTIC STOCKINGS,
for VARICOSE VEINS, &c.
J. F. PRATT,
Surgical Mechanician to St. Bartholomew's Hospital, 420, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON.

"AND TEETH LIKE ROWS OF PEARLS."
JEWSBURY and BROWN'S Exquisite Compound,
THE ORIENTAL TOOTH-PASTE.
The celebrated original and only genuine Oriental Tooth-Paste is signed "JEWSBURY and BROWN, Manchester, Established 30 years." PEARLY WHITE and SOUND TEETH, healthy gums, firm and bright of colour, no essential beauty and fragrant breath, are all insured by the use of this most perfect Dentifrice. Pots, 1s. 6d.; double, 2s. 6d. All Perfumers and Chemists. Only the ORIGINAL ORIENTAL TOOTH-PASTE is signed JEWSBURY and BROWN, Manchester, and each pot bears their Trade Mark, J. and B. in a double triangle.

THE COURT HAIR DESTROYER. The newly-discovered, quite harmless, only effectual remedy for superfluous hair, 3s. 6d.; post, privately packed, 45 stamps.—Inventor, JOHN LEON, 18, Portman-road, London, W.; or Chemists.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS and OINTMENT. The Pills purify the blood, correct all disorders of the liver, stomach, kidneys, and bowels. The Ointment is unrivalled in the cure of bad legs, old wounds, gout, and rheumatism.

A NEVER-FAILING REMEDY for Bilious and Liver Complaints, Indigestion, Wind, Spasms, Giddiness, Dizziness or the Eyes, &c., DR. SCOTT'S BILIOUS and LIVER PILLS are the most certain remedy, without mercury, having proved effectual in cases of habitual costiveness, loss of appetite, with sensation of fulness at the pit of the stomach, pains between the shoulders, and the distressing feeling arising from indigestion. Prepared only by W. Lambert, 173, Seymour-place, London, W., in Boxes, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d., sold by all Chemists. See you have "Dr. Scott's" wrapped in a square green pa.kage.

NEW MUSIC.

GILBERT AND SULLIVAN'S NEW OPERA.

PATIENCE; or, Bunthorne's Bride. An Æsthetic Opera. Written by W. S. Gilbert; composed by ARTHUR SULLIVAN. Now being performed at the Opera Comique, with enormous success.
In the Press.
The Complete Vocal Score .. .. .. .. 5s.
Pianoforte Score .. .. .. .. .. 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

OLIVETTE. New Comic Opera. Enormous success at the Strand Theatre. Adapted by H. B. Farnie; Music by AUDRAN.
Vocal score .. .. .. .. .. 8s. net.
Abridged Edition of the Vocal Score, containing the Overture, Songs, &c. .. .. .. .. 4s. „
Pianoforte Solo .. .. .. .. 2s. 6d. „
All the Favourite Airs, arranged for the Violin 1s. 6d. each.
Lancers. D'Albert .. 2s. net. | Galop. D'Albert .. 2s. net.
Waltz. D'Albert .. 2s. „ | Nearest and Dearest .. 2s. „
Quadrille. D'Albert.. 2s. „ | Waltz. D'Albert .. 2s. „
Polka. D'Albert .. 2s. „
Boyton Smith's Fantasia .. .. 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

NEW AND POPULAR SONGS.

WELCOME. Lady ARTHUR HILL. 2s. net.
COEUR DE LION. H. J. STARK. Sung by Mr. Oswald. 2s. net.
AT THE PORTAL. N. FERRI. Sung by Madame Mary Cummings. 2s. net.
WHAT THE FIRELIGHT TOLD. J. L. ROECKEL. 2s. net.
THE CHILDREN IN THE WOOD. ROECKEL. 2s. net.
WHERE THE PURPLE VIOLET GROWS. From "The Turquoise Ring." L. BENSON. 2s. net.
DINNA LEAVE ME. A. M. WAKEFIELD, Composer of "No, Sir." 2s. net.
THOUGHTS AT SUNRISE. Mrs. L. MONCRIEFF. 2s. net.
THE LASS I LOVE. OLIVER CRAMER. 2s. net.
LOVE FOR LOVE. OLIVER CRAMER. 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

NEW SONGS by Mrs. RONALDS.
IN SHADOW .. .. .. .. .. 2s. net.
WHY? .. .. .. .. .. .. 2s. net.
EVER NEAR .. .. .. .. .. 2s. net.
DIS MOI POURQUOI .. .. .. .. 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

CHARLES D'ALBERT'S NOVELTIES.
PIRATES OF PENZANCE LANCERS, WALTZ, QUADRILLE, POLKA, and GALOP .. each 2s. 0d. net
ADELINA WALTZ. Illustrated with beautiful Portrait of Madame Patti .. .. .. .. 2s. 0d. net
PORTIA WALTZ .. .. .. .. .. 2s. 0d. net
DRINK, PUPPY, DRINK! POLKA .. .. .. 2s. 0d. net
CONGRESS LANCERS .. .. .. .. 2s. 0d. net
DISTANT SHORE WALTZ .. .. .. .. 2s. 0d. net
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S THREE-YEARS' SYSTEM of HIRE of PIANOFORTES, HARMONIUMS, and AMERICAN ORGANS, by which the Instrument becomes the property of the Hirer at the end of the third year, provided each quarter's hire shall have been regularly paid in advance. Pianofortes, from 3 gs. Harmoniums, from £1 5s.; and American Organs, from £2 10s. a Quarter.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S PIANINOS, from 20 guineas.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S COTTAGES, from 27 guineas.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S GRANDS, from 75 guineas.

CHICKERING PIANOFORTES, from 120 guineas, with American discount.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ALEXANDRE HARMONIUMS, for Church, Schools, or Drawing-Rooms, from 6 to 150 guineas; or, on the Three-Years' System, from £1 5s. per quarter.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S IMPROVED AMERICAN ORGANS, combining Pipes with Reeds, Manufactured by Clough and Warren, Detroit, U.S.A. The immense advantages these instruments possess over the Organs hitherto produced have induced Messrs. Chappell until sent Co. to undertake the sole Agency of this eminent Manufactory. A large variety on view, from 18 to 250 guineas. Price-Lists on application to CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

CLOUGH and WARREN'S Favourite ORGAN. Compass, five octaves, ten stops, four sets of reeds, two of two and two thirds octaves and two of two and one third octaves, knee swell, elegant carved walnut case, price 25 guineas. With twelve stops, sub-bass octave coupler, and two knee pedals, 30 guineas. Illustrated Price-List free by post.
Sole Agents, CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

INSTRUMENTS by ALL MAKERS may be HIRED or PURCHASED on the Three-Years' System.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

A LARGE DISCOUNT TO PURCHASERS FOR CASH.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

BROADWOOD'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on CRAMER'S Three-Years' System from £2 12s. 6d. per Quarter.

COLLARD'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on CRAMER'S Three-Years' System; in Black and Gold Cases, at £4 14s. 6d. to £5 5s., 5½ 6s., £7 7s., and in Special Early English Ebonised Case, £8 8s. per Quarter.

ERARD'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on CRAMER'S Three-Years' System, from £5 5s. per Quarter.

CRAMER'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on their Three-Years' System, from £1 11s. 6d. per Quarter. Detailed Lists post-free on application to Regent-street, W.; Bond-street, W.; Moorgate-street, E.C.; and 745, High-street, Notting-hill.

CHALLEN and SON'S IRON-FRAME PIANOS, require but little tuning, pure and powerful in tone, and more damp-resisting than those upon the old system of bracing. Their Gold Medal Pianettes, from 25 guineas, have taken the highest award at any Exhibition. Illustrated List free.—20, Oxford-street.

MELBOURNE EXHIBITION, 1881. HIGHEST AWARD.—CHALLEN and SON have been awarded the First Prize for their Iron-Frame Upright Pianos, the jury having adjudged them a higher number of good points than any other English Firm.—20, Oxford-street.

CHALLEN and SON'S THREE-YEARS' SYSTEM of Purchase affords facilities for obtaining a first-class Instrument by a series of twelve quarterly payments, after which the piano becomes the property of the hirer, without further payment. List and Terms free.—20, Oxford-street. Established 1808.

"Steinway is to the Pianist what Stradivarius is to the Violinist."—Herr Joachim.

THE STEINWAY PIANOFORTES, GRAND AND UPRIGHT,
THE GREATEST PIANOFORTES IN THE WORLD.
The Steinway Pianofortes are the chosen instruments of the celebrated and wealthy classes in every nation throughout civilisation, and have by far the largest annual sale of any pianofortes in the world.
STEINWAY and SONS,
STEINWAY HALL,
LOWER SEYMOUR-STREET, PORTMAN-SQUARE, W.
(And at Steinway Hall, New York.)

PIANOFORTES for HIRE or for SALE, from 25 guineas upwards.—JOHN BROADWOOD and SONS, 33, Great Pulteney-street, Golden-square, W. Manufactory, 46, Horseferry-road, Westminster, W.

NEW MUSIC.

THE BOATSWAIN'S STORY. Mr. Santley's last success. By MOLLOY. Sung at the last four Ballad Concerts, and always encored. Price 2s.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

THE VIKINGS' SONG. By STEPHEN ADAMS. Sung by Signor Foli at all his concerts in the present and last week in the provinces.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

MISS WAKEFIELD'S NEW SONG, THE LITTLE ROUNDHEAD MAID. By the Composer of "No, Sir." Sung by Miss Clara Samuell.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

ALL IN ALL. JOSEPH MAAS' Successful New Song. By F. H. COWEN. Sung at the Ballad Concerts and the Albert Hall, and encored on each occasion.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

MARZIALS' NEW SONGS.
A BASKET OF LOVES. Sung by Mrs. Osgood.
A SUMMER SHOWER. Sung by Miss Mary Davies.
ROCHESTER BELLS. Sung by the Composer.
THAT SWEET STORY OF OLD. Sacred Song.
2s. each.—BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

THE ROYAL EDITION OF OPERAS, for Voice and Pianoforte, in the most perfect form ever published. Edited by ARTHUR SULLIVAN and J. PITTMAN.

ITALIAN AND ENGLISH WORDS.

| | s. | d. | | s. | d. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Sallo in Masco (Un) .. | 3 | 6 | Huguenots (Les) .. .. | 5 | 0 |
| Barbiere di Siviglia (Il) | 3 | 6 | Lucia di Lammermoor | 3 | 6 |
| Crown Diamonds (The) .. | 3 | 6 | Lucrezia Borgia .. .. | 3 | 6 |
| Dinorah .. .. .. | 3 | 6 | Martha .. .. .. | 3 | 6 |
| Domino Noir (Le) .. .. | 3 | 6 | Masaniello .. .. .. | 3 | 6 |
| Don Giovanni .. .. | 3 | 6 | Mirella .. .. .. | 3 | 6 |
| Don Pasquale .. .. | 3 | 6 | Norma .. .. .. | 3 | 6 |
| Elisir d'Amore (L') .. | 3 | 6 | Porter of Haar (The) .. | 3 | 6 |
| Faust .. .. .. | 3 | 6 | Puritani (I) .. .. .. | 3 | 6 |
| Favorita (La) .. .. | 3 | 6 | Rigoletto .. .. .. | 3 | 6 |
| Fidelio .. .. .. | 3 | 6 | Robert le Diable .. .. | 5 | 0 |
| Figaro .. .. .. | 3 | 6 | Semiramide .. .. .. | 3 | 6 |
| Figlia del Reggimento (La) | 3 | 6 | Sonnambula (La) .. .. | 3 | 6 |
| Flauto Magico (Il) .. | 3 | 6 | Traviata (La) .. .. | 3 | 6 |
| Fra Diavolo .. .. | 3 | 6 | Trovatore (Il) .. .. | 3 | 6 |
| Guillaume Tell .. .. | 5 | 0 | Vascello Fantasma (Il) .. | 3 | 6 |

ITALIAN, GERMAN, AND ENGLISH WORDS.
Freischütz (Der) .. .. .. .. .. .. 3 6

GERMAN AND ENGLISH WORDS.
Fliegende Hollander (Der). 3s. 6d.

NEW. GERMAN, FRENCH, AND ENGLISH WORDS.
Water Carrier (The) Les Deux Journées. 3s. 6d.

FRENCH AND ENGLISH WORDS.

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Fille de Madame Angot (La) | 3 | 6 | |
| Grand Duchess (The) ..... | 3 | 6 | |
| Médecin Malgre Lui (Le) .. | 3 | 6 | |
| Zampa ..... | 3 | 6 | |

ENGLISH WORDS.

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Bohemian Girl (The) .. | 3 | 6 | Satanella .. .. .. |
| Lily of Killarney (The) .. | 3 | 6 | Siege of Rochelle (The) .. |
| Mountain Sylph (The) .. | 3 | 6 | |

Also in cloth, gilt edges, 1s. 6d. and 2s. 6d. each extra.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S MINIATURE PIANOFORTE. Price 17 Guineas. Size, 41 inches high, 50½ inches wide, 6½ octaves; has an excellent quality of tone, and is strongly recommended as an attractive and good piano. Prospectus on application to BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

THE MUSICAL TIMES for MAY contains: Verdi's Opera "Simon Boccanegra," at the Scala of Milan—The Music of Dvorak—The Great Composers: Berlioz—Mr. Pepys the Musician, by F. Hueffer—Three Hours, Sullivan's New Opera—Monday Popular Crystal Palace, and Bach Choir Concerts, &c.—The Royal Italian Opera—Occasional Notes, Foreign and Country News, Reviews, &c. Price 3d.; postfree, 4d.; annual subscription, 4s., including postage.

THE MUSICAL TIMES for MAY contains: "The Son of God goes forth to war" (St. Ann's tune), by ARTHUR SULLIVAN; and "God so loved the world." Anthem. By Sir JOHN GOSS. Price 1½d.

MESSRS. NOVELLO, EWER, and CO. have the honour to announce that they have purchased the ENTIRE STOCK and COPYRIGHTS of the WORKS hitherto published by Messrs. REMNETER and CO., of Newmeyer Hall, including the whole of the valuable Compositions of HEINRICH HOFMANN, &c.

NOVELLO'S ORIGINAL OCTAVO EDITION of OPERAS. Edited and Corrected according to the Original Scores by NATALIA MACFARREN and BERTHOLD TOURS. The English Translations by Natalia Macfarren and the Rev. J. Troutbeck, M.A., &c.

| | s. | d. | | s. | d. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Fra Diavolo .. .. | 3 | 6 | Die Zauberflöte .. .. | 3 | 6 |
| Masaniello .. .. | 3 | 6 | Idomeneo .. .. | 3 | 6 |
| Fidelio .. .. .. | 3 | 6 | Il Barbiere .. .. | 3 | 6 |
| Norma .. .. .. | 3 | 6 | Guillaume Tell .. .. | 5 | 0 |
| La Sonnambula .. .. | 3 | 6 | Il Trovatore .. .. | 3 | 6 |
| I Puritani .. .. | 3 | 6 | Rigoletto .. .. | 3 | 6 |
| Lucia di Lammermoor .. | 3 | 6 | La Traviata .. .. | 3 | 6 |
| Lucrezia Borgia .. .. | 3 | 6 | Ernani .. .. | 3 | 6 |
| La Figlia del Reggimento | 3 | 6 | Nachtwandler .. .. | 3 | 6 |
| Martha .. .. | 3 | 6 | Lohengrin .. .. | 3 | 6 |
| Iphigenia in Aulis .. | 3 | 6 | Flying Dutchman .. | 3 | 6 |
| Iphigenia in Tauris .. | 3 | 6 | Oberon .. .. | 3 | 6 |
| L'Ecole du Nord .. | 5 | 0 | Der Freischutz .. .. | 3 | 6 |
| Don Giovanni .. .. | 3 | 6 | Preciosa .. .. .. | 1 | 6 |
| Le Nozze di Figaro .. | 3 | 6 | (To be continued.) | | |

JUST PUBLISHED. ONE SHILLING EACH.
NOVELLO'S PIANOFORTE ALBUMS. Edited by BERTHOLD TOURS. Nos. 1 and 2, each containing Twenty-four Compositions by Bach. Nos. 4, 5, and 6, each containing Twenty-four compositions by Handel.
List of Contents may be had on application.

NOVELLO, EWER, and CO.'S COMPLETE CATALOGUES.
1. Organ and Harmonium Music.
2. Sacred Music with English Words (Anthems, Church Services, &c.).
3. Music printed in separate Vocal and Orchestral Parts, &c.
4. Pianoforte.
5. Secular Music (Songs, Part Songs, &c.).
6. Sacred Music with Latin Words.
Post-free on application.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and CO., 1, Berners-street, W., and 80 and 81, Queen-street, E.C.

THREE NEW SONGS. By Lord HENRY SOMERSET. ONE MORE (in F and D). 2s.; DAWN, NOON, AND NIGHT (in F). 2s. 6d.; GOOD-BYE (in G minor and E minor); the Words by Major J. Whyte-Melville. 2s. 6d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER, and Co.

DER LUSTIGE BAUER (SCHUMANN). Transcribed for the Piano in Oct.—F. West's happiest style. Post-free for 24 stamps.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

VALLEY ECHOES. Six elegant Morceaux for the Pianoforte. Composed by WILLIAM SMALLWOOD. Effectively and appropriately Entitled.
1. Valley of the Rhine.
2. The Tyrol.
3. Bones, Naples.
4. Dhruin.
5. Festining.
6. California.
3s. each; post-free at half price in stamps.
"There is no doubt that the series will be much sought after."—Orchestra.
"They are written in a most happy style, and cannot fail to command a rapid sale."—Birmingham Chronicle.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

CLASSICAL WALTZES. Edited and Fingered for the Pianoforte by GEORGE FREDERICK WEST. All post-free for half price in stamps.
BEETHOVEN'S WALTZES, Books 1 to 6, 3s. each. Also, arranged as Piano Duets, 4s. each.
MOZART'S WALTZES, Books 1 to 3, 3s. each.
SCHUBERT'S WALTZES, Books 1 to 3, 4s. each.
"Always so satisfactory in everything he takes in hand."—Graphic.—London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

ECHOES OF HOME. Twenty-five very attractive copyright themes. Arranged for the Piano by WILLIAM SMALLWOOD. Post-free for 15 stamps each.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street, of whom a detailed list may be had post-free.

J. PRIDHAM'S LATEST FANTASIAS for the PIANOFORTE. All post-free at half-price.

| | |
|---|---|
| England. 3s. | Gipsy's Festival. 4s. |
| Ireland. 3s. | The Harvest Home. 4s. |
| Scotland. 3s. | Sabbath's Farewell. 4s. |
| The Sentinel's March. 3s. | The Ferryman. 4s. |

London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., 6, New Burlington-street.

F. SPINDLER'S latest Compositions, post-free at half-price:—

| | |
|---|---|
| La Classe. 4s. | Die Schwalben. 3s. |
| Am Neckar am Rhein. 3s. | Glöckchen im Thal. 3s. |
| Schneeglöckchen. 3s. | Die Fahnen Wehn. 3s. |

London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

NEW MUSIC.

W. MORLEY, JUN., and COMPANY'S NEW SONGS.
Post-free, 24 stamps each.
70, Upper-street, London, N.

F. H. COWEN'S GREATEST SUCCESS.

THE CHILDREN'S HOME. New Song.
THE CHILDREN'S HOME.
THE CHILDREN'S HOME.

F. H. COWEN'S GREATEST SUCCESS.

THE CHILDREN'S HOME. New Song.
Poetry by F. E. Weatherly.
They played in their beautiful gardens,
The children of high degree ;
Outside the gates, the beggars
Passed on in their misery.
But there was one of the children
Who could not join their play,
And a little beggar maiden
Watched for him day by day.
Once he had given her a flower!
And oh! how he smiled to see
Her thin white hands thro' the railings
Stretched out so eagerly.
She came again to the garden,
She saw the children play,
But the little white face had vanished,
The little feet gone away.
She crept away to her corner,
Lover by the murky stream ;
But the pale, pale face in the garden
Shone thro' her restless dream.
And that high-born child and the beggar
Passed homeward side by side :
For the ways of men are narrow,
But the gates of Heav'n are wide.
"The music is touching in its simplicity, while the air is rendered all the more effective by some rich phrasing which Mr. Cowen has introduced in the accompaniment."—Brighton Times.
In B flat. Contralto or Bass; C Medium Voices or Baritone (compass C to E); E flat, Mezzo-Soprano, F Soprano or Tenor.
With Pianoforte and Harmonium (ad lib.) Accompaniment.

F. H. COWEN'S GREATEST SUCCESS.

THE CHILDREN'S HOME. New Song.
Sung, with unbounded applause, by
Madame Patey, Miss Mary Davies, Madame Bodda-Pyne,
Miss José Sherrington, Madame Sellinger-Lake, Mrs. Bradshawe
McKay, Miss Coyte Turner, Mr. Alfred Moore, and by all the principal singers.

Owing to the great success of F. H. COWEN'S New Song,

THE CHILDREN'S HOME,
W. MORLEY, Jun., and CO. have much pleasure in announcing the purchase of Mr. COWEN'S last song

THE WATCHMAN AND THE CHILD,
which must still further enhance his reputation as one of the finest song writers of the present day. Keys for all voices.

Ready this day.

IN THE CLOISTERS. ODOARDO BARRI'S New Song.
"A song of uncommon beauty and merit, which will soon be equally popular with the 'Last Chord.' Of moderate compass, yet thoroughly vocal, its charming phrases must ensure success alike to the professional vocalist or amateur."—Review.
Piano and Harmonium (ad lib.) Accompaniment.
Keys for all voices.

IMPORTANT.
W. Morley, Jun., and Co. have the honour to announce that they have secured J. BLUMENTHAL'S Last Song,

THE CHILD'S DREAM.
The above New Songs, post-free, 24 stamps each.

W. MORLEY, JUN., and COMPANY,
70, UPPER-STREET, ISLINGTON, N.

JOSEPH WILLIAMS'S LIST.

THE LATEST SUCCESS.

BILLEE TAYLOR. Comic Opera. By H. P. STEPHENS and E. SOLOMON.
VOCAL SCORE .. .. .. .. 6s. net.
SONGS.
ALL ON ACCOUNT OF ELIZA. (Third Edition). 2s. net.
SELF-MADE KNIGHT (Second Edition). 2s. net.
THE VIRTUOUS GARDENER. 2s. net.
FANTASIA FOR PIANO. CH. TOURVILLE. 1s. 6d. net.

PIANO SCORE (Complete). 2s. 6d. net. Now ready.
*QUADRILLES. By CHARLES COOTE. 2s. net.
*LANCERS. By ARTHUR GRENVILLE. 2s. net.
*WALTZES. By CHARLES GODFREY. 2s. net.
DANCE MUSIC, BILLEE TAYLOR, ready. Orchestra, 2s.; Septet, 1s. 6d.
* Beautifully Illustrated.

HENRY FARMER'S PIANOFORTE TUTOR, considerably Enlarged and Fingered by the Author. Tenth Edition. 4s.
"Decidedly the best and most useful instruction book we have seen."—Musical Review.

THE LOVE OF OLD. ROECKEL'S charming New Song will be sung by Mr. Damian at her forthcoming engagements. Post-free, 24 stamps.

PIANO DUETS.
C. REINECKE. Three Sonatas, Op. 139. Price 2s. each, net.

PIANO SOLOS.
W. RUHE. NEW SACRED TRANSCRIPTIONS.
Eli (Costa), Naaman (Costa). Price 2s. each net.
TH. LACK. NEW PIECES.
Menuet, La Meunette, Bolero. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
H. ROUBIER. NEW PIECES.
Joyeuse Reunion, Fête à Trianon, Parfait Bonheur. Price 1s. each net.
FRANZ HITZ. NEW PIECES.
Quasetanz (Caprice), Lutin Rose, Le Regiment qui passe. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
JOYFUL MOMENTS. Ten Easy Pieces on Popular Subjects. Arranged by CH. TOURVILLE. Price 1s. each net.
OUR FAVOURITES. Ten Moderately Easy Pieces on Popular Subjects. Arranged by CH. TOURVILLE. Price 1s. 3d. each net.

THE PROGRESSIVE MUSIC SCHOOL.
Carefully Edited, Fingered, and Corrected from the Original Manuscripts by J. LEYBACH. First Series (very easy), 15 Numbers. Numbers 1 to 14, price 1s. 3d. each net. Number 15, price 1s. 6d. net.

VIOLIN AND PIANO DUETS.
S. JACOBY. Six Popular Airs (Easy). Price 1s. each net.
CH. TOURVILLE. Twelve Favourite Subjects (Moderate). Price 1s. 6d. each net.
H. FARMER. Popular Violin Solos (Brilliant), with Piano Accompaniment. Nine Numbers. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 24, Berners-street, W.; and 123, Cheapside, E.C.

SUNG BY ARTHUR ROBERTS.
THE GOOD YOUNG MAN WHO DIED. An Æsthetic Lay. Words by H. P. Stephens; Music by E. SOLOMON. "He has left this world for a brighter sphere, There's a neat little headstone o'er him. Telling how much we held him dear, And how deeply we deplore him; But that cannot tell how we miss his ways, Our friend, philosopher, and guide; For years to come we shall sing in praise Of the good young man who died." Post-free for 24 stamps.—London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 24, Berners-street, and 123, Cheapside.

MISS WAKEFIELD'S NEW SONGS.
"YES, SIR!" A sequel to "No, Sir!" Words by W. H. Haslinee.
SWEET SALLY GRAY. A North Countrie Ballad. Words by the late Robert Anderson.
"NO, SIR!" Spanish Ballad. Also arranged as a Vocal Duet by Theo. Marziala.
A SERENADE. Words by Tom Hood.
Price 2s. each net.
PATERSON and SONS, 27, George-street, Edinburgh.

METZLER and CO.
35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, London, W.

ESPERANZA. New Waltz. By L. SOVICIO. Published by WEEKES and Co., Hanover-street, London. Eminently dansante.

CHARLES HALLÉ'S PRACTICAL PIANOFORTE SCHOOL.
Section I.—No. 1, PIANOFORTE TUTOR.
Catalogue and all Particulars may be had from
FORSYTH BROTHERS, London, 272a, Regent-circus, Oxford-street; Manchester, Cross-street and South King-street; and all Musicsellers.

£20 SCHOOL-ROOM PIANO (Co-operative price for cash). Seven octaves—strong, sound, and substantial. Adapted for hard practice. Carefully packed free, and sent to any part. Drawings gratis.
THOMAS OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street.

£35.—There is nothing in London—nor, in fact, in all England—to be compared to the elegantly carved DRAWING-ROOM TRICHORD COTTAGE PIANOFORTE, with Cabriole Truss Legs, which is sold for £35 by THOMAS OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, Portman-sq.

D'ALMAINE'S PIANOS HALF PRICE. In consequence of a change of partnership, the whole of this splendid stock, perfected with all the improvements of the day, by this long-standing firm of 100 years' reputation, and in order to effect a speedy sale the easiest terms arranged, with seven years' warranty. Trichord Cottages from hire, or taken in exchange, £10 to £12.
Class 0, £14 | Class 2, £20 | Class 4, £26 | Class 6, £35
Class 1, £17 | Class 3, £23 | Class 5, £30 | Class 7, £40
American Organs from £2.
91, Finsbury-pavement, Moorgate Station, E.C.

HARMONIUMS, by DEBAIN (the Inventor), for School and Church, 8 to 100 gs.; Drawing-room or Concert (percussive), 40 to 260 gs.—Debain and Co. (Gold Medal, Paris, 1878), 41, Hathbone-place, London, W.

FURNISH THROUGHOUT.
SUBSTANTIAL ARTISTIC FURNITURE (Regd.)
OETZMANN & CO.,
HAMPSTEAD-ROAD,
NEAR TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD.

FURNISH THROUGHOUT.—OETZMANN and CO., 67, 68, 69, 70, 71, 72, 73, 74, 75, 76, and 77, HAMPSTEAD-ROAD, near Tottenham-court-road, London. CARPETS, Furniture, Bedding, Drapery, Furnishing Ironmongery, China, Glass, Paper Hangings, Pictures, Bronzes, Clocks, Pianos, &c., and every other requisite for completely furnishing a house throughout. Lowest prices consistent with guaranteed quality.
OETZMANN and CO.

SIDEBOARDS.—OETZMANN and CO.'S Large and Handsome Mahogany or Oak Sideboards, with high bevel-glass back, price 15 guineas; massive Spanish Mahogany or Oak ditto, very handsome, 25 guineas; noble Spanish Mahogany or Oak ditto, and lofty plate-glass back, made and finished in the best possible manner, price 35 guineas. A variety of Early English and other designs in Spanish Mahogany or finest carved Oak, from 25 to 50 guineas.
OETZMANN and CO.

PAINTINGS, OLEOS, CHROMOS, PHOTOS, and ENGRAVINGS.—A choice assortment, in handsome frames. The paintings are by well-known artists, and the name guaranteed. Also, a large assortment of Bronzes, Statuettes, Vases, Clocks, Antique Furniture, and artistic furnishing Items. A Catalogue of Art Department post-free.
OETZMANN and CO.

TIME, TROUBLE, and EXPENSE in HOUSE-HUNTING SAVED.—OETZMANN and CO. have always on their Registry Private Residences, Villas, and Mansions in London and Suburbs, and all parts of the Country. Particulars can be had free, on personal application, or by letter.—OETZMANN and CO.

DRAPERY DEPARTMENT.—Large White Quilts, 2½ yards by 2 yards, ea. 11d.; handsome Marseilles ditto, 9s. 9d.; White Wool Blankets, from 6s. per pair (see Special Reduced List, sent post-free); Large Witney ditto, 2½ yards long, 9s. 11d. per pair; handsome Cloth Table-Covers, from 4s. 11d.; magnificent ditto, large size, 10s. 11d.; Good Chintzes, new patterns, 42d. per yard; Cretonne ditto, from 6d. per yard.—OETZMANN and CO.

FOR QUALITY and CHEAPNESS nothing can compare with OETZMANN and CO.'s new design "Queen Anne" Fenders, handsome and artistic, bronzed, 10s. 6d.; and their "Early English" Coal Vase, Black, with brass mountings, handsome, and strong lasting, complete, 12s. 9d. An Inspection solicited, or Coloured Lithographs sent, post-free, on application.—OETZMANN and CO.

POSTAL ORDER DEPARTMENT. OETZMANN and CO.—Orders sent per post, whether large or small, receive prompt and careful attention. Those residing at a distance, or any to whom a personal visit would be inconvenient, desirous of leaving the City, this firm, may rely upon a faithful attention to their wishes and interests in the selection. This department is personally supervised by a member of the firm, and O. and Co. continually receive numerous letters expressing the greatest satisfaction with the execution of orders so entrusted. Persons residing in Foreign Countries and the Colonies will find great advantages by entrusting their orders to O. and CO. For further particulars please see page xiv in Catalogue, sent free on application.—OETZMANN and CO.

DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE, post-free.
OETZMANN & CO.,
HAMPSTEAD-ROAD.

HEAL and SON.

BED-ROOM FURNITURE.
DINING-ROOM FURNITURE.
DRAWING-ROOM FURNITURE.

HEAL and SON,
196 to 198, TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD, W.

THE ART-FURNISHERS' ALLIANCE, Limited, 157, New Bond-street, London, W., IS NOW OPEN, as a medium for promoting the best Art-effects in all branches of House Furnishing and decoration at the least possible outlay. The Public is invited to inspect the Original Assortment of Furniture and other specially selected objects of domestic use and decorative art, now on sale, and designated by the "Whitehall Review" of April 14 as "the most superb collection of artistic furniture and accessories ever brought together."
Every article has its price affixed. Those intending to build, alter, or redecorate their houses, should inspect the examples now on Sale at
THE ART-FURNISHERS' ALLIANCE, LIMITED,
157, New Bond-street, W.
CHARLES JAMES, Ph.D., F.R.S.
Art Adviser.
EDWARD LUCY, Knt., F.S.A. Scot.,
Secretary and Manager.

GARDNER'S DINNER and TABLE GLASS SERVICES. Free, graceful, and original designs, of unequalled value. Dinner Services, from 21s. Table Glass Services, of the best Crystal, for twelve persons, complete, ex. Cash discount, 15 per cent. Coloured Photographic Sheets and Illustrated Glass Catalogues post-free.
453 and 454, West Strand, Charing-cross.

ELKINGTON and CO.,
MANUFACTURING SILVERSMITHS,
PATENTEES OF THE ELECTRO-PLATE.

ELKINGTON and CO.
CAUTION PURCHASERS AGAINST CHEAP AND INFERIOR IMITATIONS.
Illustrated Catalogues, post-free.
ELKINGTON and CO., 22, Regent-st.; or 42, Moorgate-st., City.

NOVELTIES IN JEWELLERY. New Styles for 1881. Gold, Silver, and Gem Jewellery of all kinds. New Pigs, Mouse, &c.; Artificial Diamond Jewellery; Norwegian, Italian, and Mauresque Filigree Jewellery; Ladies' Watches, &c. Price-List, 300 Illustrations post-free.—Jewellery Depôt, 57, Cambridge-street, Birmingham.

LONDON: Printed and Published at the Office, 198, Strand, in the Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middlesex, by GEORGE C. LEIGHTON, 198, Strand, aforesaid.—SATURDAY, MAY 7, 1881.

THE IMPERIAL WEDDING AT VIENNA.

The approaching marriage of the heir-apparent to the Austrian Empire with a daughter of the King of the Belgians, to be celebrated next week at Vienna, is an event that is naturally looked upon with great interest by all the Courts of Europe. We shall obtain, from our Special Artist at Vienna, sketches of the ceremonial and festival proceedings there, in anticipation of which we now present the portraits of the illustrious bride-elect and her intended bridegroom.

The Archduke Rudolph Francis Charles Joseph, Crown Prince Imperial of Austria, Crown Prince Royal of Hungary and Bohemia, is the son and second child of the Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria, King of Hungary and Bohemia, and of the Empress Elizabeth, who was a daughter of the late Duke Maximilian of Bavaria. His Imperial and Royal Highness was born on Aug. 21, 1858. He visited England a few years ago, and made the personal acquaintance of our Royal Family and many of the English aristocracy.

Princess Stéphanie Clotilde Louise Marie Charlotte, second daughter of King Leopold II. of the Belgians and of Queen Marie, a daughter of the late Archduke John of Austria, Palatine of Hungary, was born at Laeken, Brussels, on May 21, 1864.

The Queen of the Belgians, with her daughter Princess Stephanie, left Brussels on Tuesday for Vienna, and the King was to follow them next day. On Monday afternoon, the people of Brussels bade her Royal Highness farewell, with a grand public demonstration. The King, the Queen, and the Princess left the Palace of Laeken, a little before two o'clock, amidst the cheers of the assembled people. The streets were gaily decorated with flags and garlands. After receiving an address of the Corporation of Laeken and bouquets presented by young ladies, their Majesties drove by the Central Boulevard to the Bourse, on the steps of which a platform had been raised for the Royal family, the Ministers, and the authorities. An address of the Corporation of Brussels was read. Many bouquets were then presented by young ladies. The popular clubs, 120 in number, marched past the Royal family with banners and music. The march was opened by the surviving veterans of 1830. The King descended and shook hands with their president. The proceedings were of an enthusiastic and touching character. There were also public concerts in six of the principal squares in Brussels, and fireworks were exhibited in the evening in each of these squares, a final display being made at the Porte du Hal. The English residents in Brussels were received at the Palace, for the purpose of presenting an address to the Princess, on Saturday last. Mr. F. W. Allix, chairman of their committee, was introduced to the King and Queen, and to her Royal Highness, by Sir J. Saville Lumley, the British Minister. He read the address, which was very graciously received.

MARRIAGE IN WESTMINSTER ABBEY.

On Saturday afternoon, by special license, Lord Brooke, M.P., eldest son of the Earl of Warwick, was married to Miss Frances Evelyn Maynard, eldest daughter of the Countess of Rosslyn and the late Colonel the Hon. Charles H. Maynard, and granddaughter of Henry, third and last Viscount Maynard. The wedding took place at Westminster Abbey, in the presence of several members of the Royal family and a very numerous congregation, including many of the aristocracy. At three o'clock the nave was densely filled, a large number of the bride's tenantry from Essex and many of Lord Warwick's tenantry from Warwickshire being present. In the nave a pathway was railed off for the guests invited to the wedding and for the bridal procession. Shortly after three o'clock the Earl and Countess of Warwick arrived with their younger sons, and took their seats on the right of the choir. Lord Brooke had arrived before, and was joined by his Royal Highness Prince Leopold. The Countess of Rosslyn came with Lord Loughborough and the Hon. Alexander St. Clair Erskine, and took her seat on the bride's side. The Royal party, including the Prince and Princess of Wales, Princess Christian, the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, Princess Louise (Marchioness of Lorne), and Princess Mary Adelaide (Duchess of Teck), arrived at half-past three, with the ladies and gentlemen in attendance.

ARCHDUKE RUDOLPH, CROWN PRINCE OF AUSTRIA.

PRINCESS STÉPHANIE OF BELGIUM.

THE IMPERIAL WEDDING AT VIENNA.

The Royal party occupied seats on the bridegroom's side. The bride came accompanied by the Earl of Rosslyn, her stepfather, and entered the Abbey by the west door, where she was received by her twelve bridesmaids, who were awaiting her arrival. Leaning on the arm of her stepfather, and followed by bridesmaids, the bride passed along the nave to the choir. The bridesmaids were Miss Blanche Maynard, the bride's sister; Lady Eva Greville, sister of the bridegroom; the Ladies Millicent, Sybil, and Angela St. Clair Erskine, stepsisters of the bride; Countess Feodore Gleichen, Lady Florence Bridgeman, Miss Wombwell, Miss Mills, Miss Violet Lindsay, and Miss Ethel Milner. As the bridal procession passed along the nave and choir, Dr. Bridge played the march and chorus, "Twine ye the Garlands" ("Ruins of Athens"), by Beethoven.

A dais was placed at the extreme east end of the choir, where the first part of the service was performed. The Vicars Choral and choristers were stationed under the lantern.

The bride and bridegroom having taken their places on the dais, the ceremony commenced. The Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of St. Albans solemnised the marriage, assisted by the Rev. E. Capel Cure, Rector of St. George's, Hanover-square, the Rev. George C. Tufnell, M.A., Rector of Little Easton, Essex, and the Rev. S. Flood Jones, M.A., precentor. The bride was given away by the Earl of Rosslyn, her stepfather. The ceremony being over, the bride and bridegroom, preceded by the choristers and clergy, followed by the bridesmaids, Prince Leopold (the best man), the Earl and Countess of Rosslyn and sons, the Earl and Countess of Warwick, entered the sacrarium, the choristers chanting the psalm to Turle's music, where the marriage service was concluded. Before the Lesson the choir sang the hymn, "Father of Life," &c. The service ended with the Benediction, pronounced by the Very Rev. Dean Stanley, who had been seated at the communion table during the solemnity. The organist then played Mendelssohn's "Wedding March," while the bride and bridegroom went in procession to the Jerusalem Chamber, followed by the members of the Royal family and near relatives, for the registration of the marriage. Wedding favours, composed of orange-blossoms, white daisies, and maidenhair fern, tied by a bow of white satin ribbon, were handed to the Royal Princes and Princesses and their attendants. The register was signed by the Prince of Wales and Prince Leopold, and by the Earl of Warwick and the Earl of Rosslyn.

ISLE OF MAN SKETCHES.

The Manx peasantry and fisher-folk, amongst whom, it will be seen, the Artist has again been seeking picturesque subjects for his pencil, are a simple, primitive, virtuous, and religious people, quite as well instructed in church, chapel, and school, as the rustic inhabitants of any part of England, Scotland, or Wales; but they are fondly attached to their own peculiar fashions, still cherishing the traditional manners and customs of "Ellan Vannin," with a great deal of national spirit. They have a proverb among them, "Mannagh vow cliaghtey cliaghtey, nee cliaghtey coe," which must be admitted to be quite conclusive upon this subject; and, to those of our readers who can appreciate the force and truth of this profound remark, no farther comment will be needful upon the domestic outdoor scene which is delineated in the present Illustration.

With regard to the village of Port St. Mary, near Castleton, in the south-west part of the island, which was mentioned by us in a former notice, we would commend to public liberality an effort that is now being made to raise funds for building a church there. The sum of £1600 will be sufficient, but only £850 has yet been collected. Subscriptions will be gladly received by the Rev. Arthur Allwork, Rushen Vicarage, Isle of Man.

A VILLAGE HOLIDAY.

This picture, by the German artist Knaus, which we have engraved by permission of the Berlin Photographic Company, to whom it belongs, represents a quaint and pleasing scene. The inhabitants of a German village, as they were a hundred years ago, in the primitive simplicity and sociability of the olden time, are assembled at a holiday feast, given to them, very likely, in honour of the coming of age or marriage of the Herr Baron's eldest son. While the elders of the rustic community, with some fair and comely grown-up maidens, are demurely seated, under the presidency of the steward or bailiff, supported by the pastor and schoolmaster, at the long table seen to the right hand, there is a separate table for the children beneath the fine old tree that grows so near the school-house door. To quote or translate the motto chosen by the artist for this picture, "As the old cock crows, so the young one learns to crow;" and in the gestures and mutual conversation of these boys and girls, more especially in the attitude of the juvenile speechmaker proposing an after-dinner toast, this remark is sufficiently exemplified. At the other end of the table are seen two tender couples, of tender years, engaged in making themselves exclusively agreeable to one another, upon the same principles of flirtation that regulate the conduct of such relations between young men and young women of adult stature meeting at a social assembly. The old grandmother or nurse, who is about to remove some empty dishes from the festive board, seems rather in doubt whether she ought not to interpose her authority to check the ardour of this precocious gallantry; while the other girls, sitting remote from any possible sweethearts, watch the proceeding of their friends with a certain mixture of curiosity and disapprobation. One young gentleman, in a pensive mood, leaning his head on his arm, quite unmindful of eating and drinking, has apparently become absorbed in loving contemplation of a pretty person nearly opposite to him, while she, disconcerted by his steadfast gaze, turns aside pretending to look at those behind her. In contrast to these amiable portions of the company, we perceive the unfeigned greediness of a boy who sticks to his plate, already thrice filled, with a single-minded determination to devour all he can get. The woman beside him cannot help smiling as she endeavours to restrain his excessive appetite. We observe two other selfish boys, in the foreground party, who are striving to wrest something from each other, and have almost come to blows. Their quarrel does not alarm or discompose the very placid young lady sitting at the same table, "in maiden meditation fancy-free;" or the little curly-headed brother, offering a morsel of food to the cat; while the baby, securely enthroned in a high chair, of solid construction, and fenced with a board in front, so that the child cannot fall off, is sublimely indifferent to all their turmoil. Very good, too, is the free enjoyment of the small guest holding up a fig, or some kind of fruit, and with open mouth preparing to swallow it, or to bite a large piece out of it, in an unmistakably relishing manner. The gentle girl feeding the babe, in the foreground, and interrupted by the bold intrusion of a large dog, thrusting his muzzle over her arm, is one of the most interesting figures in this agreeable composition. It will be remarked, of course, that some of the costumes, of both sexes, are in the style of full dress commonly worn in the eighteenth century, amongst the Germans and other Continental nations, upon occasions of ceremonious festivity. It is well known that children, in those times, if they belonged to families making some pretensions to gentility, would have gala suits of a similar cut and fashion, though of different measure, to those worn by ladies and gentlemen of their rank in life; the queue and the curled frisure, sometimes with hair-powder, the cocked hat, the formal tail-coat and breeches, might be worn by urchins less than ten years of age; while the girl's brocaded sacque and cap, or artificial head-gear, would in those days be regarded as equally proper. But a simpler and more natural style of dressing young people, and more convenient for the freedom of playful exercise, has since come into vogue, we believe, in every country of Europe.

THE CHURCH.

PREFERMENTS AND APPOINTMENTS.

Alford, G.; Vicar of Mangotsfield.
Allen, William Dennis; Vicar of Findon, Sussex.
Ball, Frederick, Vicar of St. Mary's, Hoxton, to be Vicar of Wollaston, Wellingborough.
Bickerstaff, William; Perpetual Curate of Marr.
Bode, Henry John, Curate of Aldermiuster; Vicar of Honington.
Bridges, William George, Senior Curate of the parish church, Stockport; Vicar of High Lane, Marple.
Bromehead, J. N.; Incumbent of Acaster-Malbis.
Brown, Canon R. H., Rural Dean of Stockport; Vicar of Stayley, Cheshire.
Burn-Murdoch, J. M., Vicar of Riverhead and Rural Dean of Shoreham, Kent; Surrogate.
Curtis, H. E.; Curate of Faversham, and Chaplain of the Almshouses.
Daniel, Charles Andrew; Vicar of Coatham.
Denovan, William Hunter; Minister of St. James's Church, Forest-gate.
Dickinson, Thomas; Perpetual Curate of Higher Openshaw.
Duncan, Robert; Vicar of St. James's, Whitehaven.
Edwards, Thomas Hyne; Rector of Kington Magna, Dorset.
Fell, John Edwin; Rector of Shepey.
Flavell, John Webb; Rector of Kelling, with Salthouse annexed, Norfolk.
Forster, Charles Farrar, Curate; Vicar of St. Andrew's, Huddersfield.
Fox, Edward Cutcret Dobree, Curate; Perpetual Curate of Castlemorton.
Fraser, James; Chaplain to Bishop Otter Memorial College, Chichester.
Freeman, John Major; Vicar of Culpho, Suffolk.
Gill, T. Howard, Vicar of Whalley Range, Manchester; Chaplain of Holy Trinity, Rome.
Hemsley, Lewis, Vicar of Hitchin; Honorary Canon of St. Alban's Cathedral.
Hilliard, Arthur Brewit; Rector of Nevenden.
Holden, George; Vicar of St. James's, New Bury, Farnworth.
Horne, William; Vicar of Thundridge.
Irvine, Alexander Campbell; Vicar of St. Mary's, Warwick.
Johnson, Samuel Jenkins; Vicar of Melplaish, Dorset.
Jordan, Joseph; Perpetual Curate of Holy Trinity, Woolwich.
Keating, William Wixon; Vicar of Willesford, Wilts.
Kewley, W., Curate of Millom; Perpetual Curate of Ulpha, Cumberland.
Kinsman, Vivian William; Chaplain, Bengal.
Kirby, W. W., Rector of St. Mary's, Barnsley; Rural Dean of Silkstone.
Lee, George Holwell; Rector of East Clandon.
Lewis, James Sculthorpe, Curate of Gresford; Vicar of Guilsfield.
Lloyd, John Henry; Vicar of Fotheringay.
Massingberd, W. O., Rector of South Ormsby; Rural Dean of Hill, No. 1.
Milson, Edward M.; Victor of Helperthorpe.
Notley, James Thomas Benedictus; Rector of Diptford.
Reay, T. O., Vicar of Prittlewell, Essex; Rural Dean of Canewdon.
Rich, Charles Frederick; Vicar of Swaffham Bulbeck.
Row, A. W. S. A., Vicar-Designate of All Hallows, Leeds; Chaplain to the English Church at Riga.
Rowland, Frank Oakley; Minister of the District, St. Benet and All Saints', Kentish Town.
Russell, Alfred William; Rector of St. Peter's, Wallingford, Berks.
Sapte, John Henry; Rural Dean of Guildford.
Scott, T., Vicar of West Ham; Honorary Canon of St. Alban's Cathedral.
Sheild, William; Vicar of Whittingham.
Smith, R. J. F., Curate of West Alvington; Perpetual Curate of Brent Tor
Squire, Herbert Upton, Curate of Northam; Rector of Tetcott.
Summerfield, Richard Abbott; Vicar of Cundall with Norton-le-Clay; Vicar of North Stainley.
Sutcliffe, John; Rector of Germansweek.
Sweet, William Sweet; Perpetual Curate of Crewkerne.
Telfer, Archibald; Chaplain of H.M. Prison at Worcester.
Wellington, H. M., Curate of St. Agnes', Kennington; Vicar of Hickleton, Yorkshire.—Guardian.

The Rev. Pelham Dale, late of St. Vedast's, has been inducted to the living of Sausthorpe, Lincolnshire.

The Convocation of the Northern Province has been sitting for the dispatch of business in York.

The Chapel Royal, Savoy, will be reopened, after restoration, to-morrow (Sunday).

Owing to continued indisposition the Bishop of Oxford, acting on the advice of his medical attendants, will not hold his triennial visitation in the diocese as announced.

The Bishop of Manchester recently consecrated the new Church of St. James, at Westhoughton, near Bolton, which has been erected at a cost of £5000 by Mrs. Makant and Miss Haddock, sisters. All the seats are free.

A memorial to the late Lord Stratford de Redcliffe has been placed in Frant church by a few friends and neighbours. It is a brass eagle lectern, designed by Mr. J. Oldrid Scott, under whose direction the church has recently been refitted; and made by Messrs. Potter, of Oxford-street.

At a bazaar which was opened at Preston on Wednesday in aid of the building and endowment of a new church, to be dedicated to St. Matthew, it was announced that Messrs. Horrocks, Miller, and Co. had contributed £1700, and that Mr. Hermon, M.P., had added £100 to his previous subscriptions.

The last annual report of the Bishop of London's Fund exhibits a continued falling off in income. Although the committee, having regard to the averages of former years, had expected that their available resources would not fall short of £20,000, only £15,290 was received from the public for general purposes, besides £162 for special objects. The object of the fund is that of "providing for the spiritual wants of the metropolis and its suburbs."

Among the contemplated alterations in the west front of St. Alban's Abbey, which Sir Edmund Beckett is restoring, is the removal of the large window and the substitution of a new one. It is now stated that a gentleman has promised that if the old window is retained he will fill it with the best stained glass, at a cost of certainly not less than £500.

Viscount Lewisham, M.P., on Tuesday opened a bazaar at Wolverhampton held in the Exchange, in aid of the fund for the restoration of Tettenhall church, one of the oldest in the kingdom. The stalls were presided over by Lady Wrottesley, the Countess of Dartmouth, and other ladies of position in the neighbourhood; the band of the Royal Horse Artillery being in attendance each day.

Nearly 250 sermons were preached in London last Sunday on the work of the Church of England Temperance Society. The anniversary gatherings of this association extended over three days, and included a festival service at St. Paul's Cathedral, on Monday, with a sermon by the Bishop of Bedford; annual meeting at Lambeth Palace on Tuesday, and Exeter Hall meeting on Wednesday.

The Bishop of Exeter, addressing a meeting of North Devon clergy at Torrington, expressed his conviction that the existing difficulties in the Church would not lead to a disestablishment, which, he thought, would be a terrible evil both to the Church and to the nation. The Church would lose a great position, preserved to her hitherto by the providence of God, and the nation, he was convinced, would loose in depth, in sobriety, and steadiness of religious tone.

The church of Narberth, Pembrokeshire, was consecrated on Easter Tuesday, after being, with the exception of the north wall and tower (the latter the only remnant of ancient work), rebuilt from the designs of Mr. T. G. Jackson, of London. A handsome stone pulpit, in memory of the Rev. H. Lewis, Vicar of Stowmarket, is the gift of his widow; Mr. James Williams, of Robeston, presented a handsome oak lectern; a beautiful altar-cloth, designed by the Rev. T. G. Cree, was worked and given by Mrs. J. B. Macaulay; and other handsome gifts have been liberally bestowed.

The Society for the Enlargement, Building, and Repairing of Churches and Chapels held its usual monthly meeting at the society's house, No. 7, Whitehall, on the 22nd ult., when several grants of money were made. The Archbishop of Canterbury, president of the society, has appointed next Monday for the annual general court, and will himself take the chair at 2.30 p.m. A special service will be held in St. Paul's Cathedral on Friday evening, May 20 (the anniversary of the laying of the foundationstone of Truro Cathedral), on behalf of this society, when the sermon will be preached by the Bishop of Truro.

The Rev. Dr. Leary, late Curate of St. George's Church, Camberwell, for nearly seven years, and Mrs. Leary have been presented by the congregation with valuable pieces of silver plate and an illuminated address, in affectionate and grateful recognition of their valuable parochial services. Dr. Leary's St. George's Bible-class also have presented him with a costly and richly ornamented inkstand.—The Rev. Matthew Powley, on his resignation of the vicarage of Christ Church, Whitley, Reading, has been presented with a valuable gold watch and a silver centrepiece, each bearing a suitable inscription, together with a purse containing £100, by the parishioners, in token of their esteem and regard. An inkstand and pair of candlesticks for his study table have been added by the members of a Bible class.

ROYAL INSTITUTION LECTURES.

HYDROGEN.

Professor Dewar, F.R.S., began the first of a course of six lectures on the Non-Metallic Elements on Tuesday, April 26, by commenting on the great extension of chemical knowledge in the last ten years, more especially in regard to the stability and dissociation of matter, the investigation of gases by means of very great pressure and very low temperature, and the approach to the study, by means of the hypotheses relative to molecular motion, and the structure and nature of matter, and the general principles of the conservation and dissipation of energy. Having illustrated these views experimentally, he showed and explained the great use of the galvanometer in chemical research, as an invaluable auxiliary to the balance in making delicate effects evident. Taking hydrogen as the first element to be considered in his course, the Professor briefly noticed and illustrated its history. It is, when pure, a very light, colourless, inodorous gas, known to Paracelsus in the sixteenth century, but especially studied by Cavendish in the seventeenth, who termed it "inflammable air," and obtained it by dissolving iron, zinc, or tin in dilute hydrochloric acid; and who in 1781 made the grand discovery that water is the sole production of the combustion of hydrogen. A similar discovery was contemporaneously made by Watt, and their results were fully confirmed by the experiments of Lavoisier. That pure water is solely composed of two gases, hydrogen and oxygen, was thus proved synthetically and analytically. After referring to the experiments of Black, who proposed the use of hydrogen to inflate balloons, Professor Dewar devoted the remainder of the lecture to striking illustrations of the great diffusibility of hydrogen, the subject of some of the invaluable researches of the late Professor Graham, who not only demonstrated the power of this gas to pass through porous bodies, but also proved its capability of penetrating the dense metal platinum. When hydrogen is condensed in palladium it has been hypothetically termed the metal hydrogenium. These phenomena were illustrated by experiments, and the changes in the properties of palladium due to the occluded hydrogen were set forth on a table and duly explained.

MAGNETISM.

Professor Tyndall, D.C.L., F.R.S., on Thursday, April 28, gave the first of a course of six lectures on Paramagnetism and Diamagnetism. He began with remarks on the nature and distinctions of the physical forces, and the theories connected with them. Producing then a piece of loadstone or natural magnet, he showed how its property of attracting iron could be transmitted to iron, but especially to steel, which is employed for permanent magnets of very great power. In rough bar iron the force is very transient. The action of the magnet upon iron was also shown to be reciprocal. Magnetism is destroyed by heat. A red-hot poker recovered its lost power when cooled by plunging in water. The polarity of a magnetic needle (its setting north and south) having been shown, a fundamental law was illustrated by the north end of the needle repelling the north end and attracting the south end of another needle; a similar effect is obtained by the south end, which repelled south and attracted north. Though this power is manifested at the poles and appeared to be neutralised in the centre of a steel bar magnet, yet, when the bar was broken into pieces, the smallest fragment was shown to possess polarity, the same as the original magnet. Every molecule of the steel has the properties of a magnet. This was illustrated by various ingenious methods. The magnetic curves, termed by Faraday the "lines of force," were exhibited, by the position taken up by fine iron filings, strewed on paper placed over a powerful magnet. Over these curves, said Professor Tyndall, Faraday brooded for the greater part of his life. He leaned more and more to the conclusion, that the space surrounding every magnet is traversed by these lines of power; and that they exist independently of the iron filings, to which they give their position. If, he used to say, it could only be proved that the magnetic power required time in its transference through space, as light requires time in its transference through space in coming from the sun to the earth, we should have conclusive proof that there exists a magnetic as well as a luminiferous medium.

LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE OF THE SCOTTISH HIGHLANDS.

Professor J. Stuart Blackie began his discourse at the Friday evening meeting, on April 29, by alluding to the general neglect of the Celtic languages in the infancy of comparative philology. Referring to Kennedy's protest against this, the Professor devoted much of his discourse to demonstrating that Celtic is not only a branch of the great Aryan family of speech, including Sanscrit, Greek, Latin, and German, but is really, like French, a curtailed and emasculated Latin. This he exemplified by discussing many Celtic words, and explaining how their relationship to Latin is explicable by the law of transmutation of consonants and other linguistic peculiarities. Very many Celtic words were shown to be borrowed from Latin. He repudiated the charge against Gaelic of being a harsh guttural language when compared with German. Celtic literature was described as very similar to that of early Greece, consisting of popular songs, legends, and fairy tales, many of which had been collected by John Campbell, of Islay, and which possess much moral significance, dramatic truthfulness, and natural grace. In regard to the poems ascribed to Ossian, which had been admired by Goethe, Herder, and Napoleon I., the Professor said that he believed them to be genuine, and that Macpherson had done for them what Homer had done for the early Greek myths, but had dressed them up in the superfine sentimentalism of a flat and feeble age. Homer was himself a true minstrel, while Macpherson was merely a man of letters. Remarks having been made on several Celtic poets, including Master Macdonald of Ardranach, Donald Buchanan, the Highland Bunyan, and especially on Duren Bar, described as the most genuine of Gaelic poets, the Professor read two beautiful specimens, translated by himself into English verse of peculiar metres. He concluded with remarks on the similarity of Highland and classical life, and the apostolic labours of the father of the late Rev. Norman Macleod.

EARLY SCOTTISH LITERATURE.

Professor Henry Morley, in beginning a course of four lectures on "Scotland's Part in English Literature," on Saturday last, April 30, after alluding to the characteristics of the Lowlands and Highlands, described the Lowland Scots as the most English of the English, since they had successfully resisted the irruptions of the Celts from the north and the Normans from the South. After giving a brief sketch of the discovery of Iceland by the Norwegians, and its colonisation in 930 by chiefs who would not submit to the autocratic rule of their King Harold Harfagr, he commented on their free spirit and restless energy, shown in their marauding maritime expeditions, their rigid adherence to their system of clanship, and their great imaginative faculty exhibited in the production of their "sagas," romantic poems extolling the deeds of their ancestors, with other mythic tales recited during the nights of their long winters. Much of the sturdy independence of later Scottish life and character Professor Morley ascribed to the enduring influence of Old Scandinavia, with which the lowlands were much connected, and he especially distinguished it in the early poetry. Beginning with Thomas the Rhymer, of Ercildoun (now Earlston, in Berwickshire), who flourished in the thirteenth century, the Professor gave some biographical details, with extracts from the poem "Tristram the Hunter," and also noticed the evidence of French influence in the structure of Scottish verse. The next author considered was John Barbour (about 1316—1396) who had half written his "Bruce" in 1375, and who was Archdeacon of Aberdeen, and received an annual pension of £10 from King Robert II. His noble apostrophe on beholding the misery of his country, "A! fredome is a nobill thing!" was read, and other extracts. James I., who was long prisoner at Windsor, expressed his earnest love for Jane Beaufort, afterwards his Queen, in a fine poem entitled "The King's Quhair," and in other poems vigorously depicted the national life of all classes. The disastrus battle of the Harlaw, on July 24, 1411, between the lowland nobility, under the Duke of Albany, and Donald the lord of the Isles, respecting the succession to the earldom of Ross, was celebrated in several remarkable old ballads, which were considered.

Mr. Francis Galton will give a discourse on Mental Images and Vision at the evening meeting on Friday, May 13.

The annual meeting of the Royal Institution of Great Britain was held on Monday—Dr. Bowman, vice-president, in the chair. The annual report of the Committee of Visitors for the past year, testifying to the continued prosperity of the institution, was adopted. The real and funded property amounts to £85,400. The Duke of Northumberland was elected president; Mr. G. Busk, treasurer; and Mr. Warren de la Rue, secretary.

Mr. John Morley has been elected a member of the Reform Club, under the rule empowering the committee to elect in each year two gentlemen of distinguished eminence for public service, or in science, literature, or arts.

The summer term of Technical Science Classes of the London City and Guilds Institute began on Monday at the Cowper-street Schools, part of which building is devoted to this purpose, pending the completion of the new college. Both the day and the evening classes include laboratory practice, and are open to male and female students.

Mr. Thomas Shaw, of Allangate, Halifax, has sent a letter to the Halifax School Board announcing that, to celebrate the coming of age of his son, Mr. William Rawson Shaw, he has decided to present to the School Board £1000, the interest of which is to be used for scholarships in the Halifax Higher Board School and Heath Grammar School, Halifax. The scholarships are to be known as the Rawson Shaw scholarships.

The committee of management of the Hospital for Consumption, Brompton, at their recent meeting, passed a resolution deeply deploring the death of the Earl of Beaconsfield. The committee have recently received the sum of £16, being the amount of the Wednesday morning offertory at the parish church, Kensington, in aid of the funds of that excellent institution.

ROYAL ACADEMY EXHIBITION.

SECOND NOTICE.

One of the rare pictorial surprises of the year is Mr. Goodall's "Road to Mecca" (43). We imply no depreciation of other works by this artist; for he is always admirable, and one of our few masters who could bear comparison with Continental figure-painters on their own Academic ground. But this picture has an impressiveness at which Mr. Goodall does not always aim, and a power of colouring which will correct any supposition that he was becoming too partial to a scheme of faint opaline tints. The scene is the desert. A sheikh, somewhat removed from the caravan, with his camel tethered near him, kneeling on his praying-rug, is invoking the protection of Allah on his way to the holy city, and his expression of reposeful faith and calm resolve seem attuned to the solemnity and stillness of the hour. No picture in the Exhibition remains more distinctly in our memory. The companion work, "The Return from Mecca" (50), an Arab, still mounted, lifting his little son from the mother's arms for an embrace, is a contrast in its cheerful, bright colouring—as the subject demands. Mr. Herkomer's large picture, "Missing" (373), is, on the whole, his best since "The Last Muster." The painter's sympathies for the dramatic and pathetic found a fitting field in the sad scene witnessed outside the gates of Plymouth Dockyard when the relatives and friends of the crew of the Atalanta collected daily, and collected in vain, to find some news of the "missing" ship placarded on the walls. The blind aged widow is there, the old fainting father (men bear sorrow and pain with less fortitude than women), the mother with her babe, the sweetheart with blighted love, the brother tar; and more are there; and there is a pretty incident of a rough dock labourer stooping to answer as best he may the inquiries of a little child. Technically, however, the picture is unequal, and betrays marks of haste. The heads of the old widow and of a tall young sailor are very good, but other figures are slurred; and the composition is hurt by the oblique lines formed by a cannon that serves for post, and the little boy that stoops from the widow's hand for his fallen play-ball on the one side, and an elder granddaughter on the other, who would draw her from the spot in an opposite direction.

If quality of painting should be the first claim to notice, very early attention is due to Mr. Hook's pictures—once more from the Cornish coast, its stern cliffs and rocks contrasting with the lovely sea, deep azure in its depths, passing into emerald as it nears the shore, and fringed with peacock hues where it reaches the sea-weed carpeting of the shallows. Venetian colouring is reached in richness and almost surpassed in brilliancy. Each picture, too, is enlivened by some pleasant incident supplied by appropriate figures, as in No. 192, playfully styled "The Nearest Way to School," where a boy, having secured a crab with a couple of strings (to serve as reins), watches its awkward movements, to the delight of his sister and his own; and in "A Diamond Merchant" (258), another urchin offering for sale quartz crystals and other fairy-like products of the district. Mr. Fildes, also, discarding the negative tones of former works, comes at a bound into the front rank as a colourist in three lifesize single-figure subjects, comprising an exuberant Venetian girl (378), with her copper pail, and bearing a bundle of her finery to wash in the canal; a buxom "Dolly" (314) shelling peas; and—uniting higher refinement of expression to beauty of colour—"Doubts" (310), a maiden in antiquated costume seated on a garden settle, her sweet eyes set wistfully as she ponders over the contents of a letter that lies in her lap.

Mr. Faed is at his best, whether as regards simple natural sentiment or skill of execution, in a humble Scotch interior scene, showing a young mother, with a babe at her breast, and a little daughter of three or four standing sobbing where she has been put for correction, and making no sign of forgetting her wrongs. The mother, of course, relents first, and to prepare a reconciliation asks, in the words of the title, "Where is my good little daughter?" (187). "School-board in the North" (542) is the amusing designation appended to a smaller picture by Mr. Faed, representing a lassie seated at a table with writing materials, but sorely puzzled what to indite to her dear Donald, or how to write it, notwithstanding the aid of the school-board. Mr. Frith, too, paints as nattily and evenly, and as heedless of any æsthetic problems of the day, as ever; and, as always, he tells his story of genteel life well—in "For Better for Worse" (14). A couple, newly married at the church in the mid-distance, are passing to a carriage from the handsome Tyburnian house of the bride, with the blessings of relatives and friends from porch and balcony, and in a shower of slippers and rice. The young gentleman has probably married "for better;" but among the usual street crowd is a wretched-looking pair, the woman carrying a baby, who have doubtless married "for worse." A higher effort pictorially is made by Mr. Frith in his rendering of the interview between "Swift and Vanessa" (182), when the Dean furiously cast on the table the letter she had written to "Stella" to ascertain the nature of her rival's connection with Swift—an interview that broke her heart.

Let us now glance at the contributions of three of the lately-elected Associates, whose portraits we gave last week. Mr. Dicksee sends a kind of painted "morality," with figures in Italian costumes of the cinque cento, entitled "The Symbol" (175), the title refering to a crucifix which an old mendicant, crouched in a corner of the picture beside a basket full of other religious wares, offers to the foremost couple of a string of merry-makers, who approach with gest and gibe or singing, playing guitar and tibia, and love-making. Only the leading youth, attired in sumptuous garments, casts a momentary look of seriousness at the solemn symbol—his mistress turning aside significantly to pluck a ripe orange from a pendant bough. The colouring is splendidly rich—if inclining a little to "hotness;" and altogether it is a very remarkable work for so young a painter. Mr. Gow, with appropriate and admirable spirit, has painted the stirring incident of "Montrose at Kilsyth" (311), stripping to his shirt, to inspire his Royalist followers with contempt of the iron-cased Covenanters that were closing upon them. The interest of the picture lies in the gallant mounted figure of Montrose, and the row of characteristic enthusiastic heads of his troopers; the bodies and legs of the horses below occupy a rather unfortunately preponderating space in the composition. Mr. Hamo Thornycroft will add greatly to his rapidly-made reputation by his life-size nude statue of the mighty archer "Teucer" (1495), in the Lecture-Room. The Homeric hero stands square, as it were, to the spectator, the left arm rigidly extended holding the bow, the right raised and flexed as at the moment of the shaft leaving the cord; the feet are planted firmly by the parted legs, the abdomen retracted to support the strain on the muscles of the arms and thorax; in short, every muscle of the body is tense with energy. The figure is naturalistic, perhaps, to excess; there is not much thought of classic beauty; yet it is long since we have seen so original, daring, vigorous, and thoroughly understood a work of English sculpture. We would fain say a word of praise in conclusion of Mr. Tinworth's alto-relievo of "The Triumphant Entry of Christ into Jerusalem" (1444), which fully equals his extraordinary relief of last year; but we must perforce pause for the present.

GROSVENOR GALLERY EXHIBITION.

FIRST NOTICE.

This exhibition contains several fine portraits and some decorative pieces of mark, though it has much fewer works of the kind that we have come to consider distinctive of, or peculiar to, this gallery. The absence of Mr. Burne Jones will be felt by many, and we regret to hear ill health assigned as the cause. His imitators here, like all copyists, reproduce his mannerisms, and with exaggeration, but miss his spirit. Out of sympathy with his time, as he is, illogical consequently in his practice, and therefore in the interest of artistic progress open to question and even censure as his works are, we must all feel that he is a distinct personality in art, and that with other early associations and completer training he might have achieved far greater and more acceptable results.

Among the portraits are two by Mr. Millais, one, unnamed, of a little girl (39), evidently from the same model, and almost as exquisite as the "Cinderella" in the Academy; and a half-length of Mrs. Kate Perugini (68) in black, walking from us, but with the head gracefully turned into profile view—the artist's most sketchy work of the year, but not on that account less masterly. Mr. Watts's numerous contributions include a head of the late Lord Stratford de Redcliffe (57), "Arcadia" (57), a lifesize female figure standing half disrobed beside a bath; "Endymion" (56), the sleeping shepherd of Latmos with Diana hoveringly implanting a kiss, her white drapery forming a crescent (from a design exhibited some years back); "The Wife of Pygmalion" (58), of appropriate Greek character and Phydian grandeur of form, the flesh rendered with delicious morbidezza; a view (72) of the marble mountains of Carrara, taken from the dizzy top of the Leaning Tower of Pisa; a small allegory of "The Genius of Greek Poetry" (55), showing a nude male figure seated on a rock, with earth, sea, sky, and arching rainbow teeming with visionary beings the germs of an ideal mythology; and a half-length of "Miss Venetia Bentinck" (64) in a Titianesque red dress, with bronze-gold background, admirably large and simple in treatment, and so pure in colour that no one would ever from this suspect the painter of a penchant for low tones.

Mr. E. J. Gregory's three-quarter length, seated, of Miss Edith Galloway (125), in white satin, if, possibly, rather too uncompromising as a likeness, is beautiful in colour and otherwise technically excellent. A painter so variously admirable as Mr. Gregory proves himself in this portrait and his drawing at the Institute (noticed last week) must be regarded as one of the most rising artists of the day. Another capital likeness and piece of painting (despite the somewhat too indeterminate execution) is that of Mr. Ruskin (49), by Mr. Herkomer, and, although in water-colours, holds its own among its neighbours in oil. Very different in treatment—strong as a portrait can be made by sound drawing and modelling, and broadly disposed masses of light and deep shadow—is the half-length of Mr. G. H. Farren (77), by Mr. Holl. We have also to commend Mr. Lehmann's characteristic head of "Sir Alexander Kennedy" (109), the Lady Lawrence (70), in a side light, and "Mrs. Alma Tadema" (11), in demi-tint, by Mr. J. Collier (but why these artifices of lighting?); a bust of Mrs. Algernon Sartoris (89), by Sir Frederick Leighton—beautiful in the rendering of the eyes and in some passages of colour, though surely the blues and pinks of the carnations are exaggerated; and Mr. W. B. Richmond's delicately modelled half-length of Princess Louise (50). Mr. Whistler has a whole-length of "Miss Alexander" (113), primarily an "arrangement" in white, black, and grey, in a greenish gold frame. It is reminiscent of Velasquez, but with this difference in principle, to go no farther, that the minor key does not serve to foil clear natural colour in the flesh. Mr. Holman Hunt's portrait of Professor Owen (44) is a painful instance of misdirected energy and mistaken methods of execution.

Mr. Alma Tadema sends a small variation of a theme he had already treated in "Ave, Cæsar—Io Saturnalia" (41)—a finely imagined and learned illustration of the Roman decadence. The scene is within the Imperial palace. A soldier, bowing low in mock obeisance, discovers the Emperor Claudius concealing himself, pale with fear, behind a curtain that divides a court or atrium, at the entrance of which gathers, with ominous disrespect, a crowd of soldiers and women, who greet the dissolute, craven Monarch with ironical "Ios," or huzzars, as they note the evidences of the night's debauch, and the creatures of his pleasures, wreathed with roses, lying about the mosaic floor, while a row of busts of the greater Cæsars, his predecessors, seem to look on in mute reproach. The composition is, perhaps, too much divided by the immense purplish curtains; but in all other respects the work is as perfect as it is elaborate. Mrs. Alma Tadema has also a small picture (37), so charming and well painted it might excusably be taken for a work of her husband, representing a little girl on tiptoe beside a bed offering flowers to a sick sister.

A most daring piece of scenic decoration is "The Flight of Helen" (47), a large canvas by Mr. Britten. Paris, in his eagerness to bear off his fair and fatal prize, has driven the horses of his chariot (a rude, lumbering vehicle, it must be confessed) breast-deep into the sea-margin towards the ship that approaches from the offing. A floating draped nereid scatters roses before them. Despite obvious exaggerations, the work evinces decorative capabilities of no mean order. "Behold, the Bridegroom Cometh!" is another large and able decorative work, by Mr. W. B. Richmond, at the head of the room, showing the wise and foolish virgins disposed about a porch of many columns, under an effect of grey twilight that is reflected in all the bluish upper surfaces. But, perhaps, needlessly great sacrifice is made to procure the "flatness" proper to mural embellishment: in nature the columns and figures would appear relatively darker as they approach the focus of faint light on the horizon. At the opposite end of the room is another large canvas, of monumental scope, by Sir Coutts Lindsay, "The Boat of Charon," illustrating the tremendous description of the "Inferno," with Dante and his "courteous master," Virgil, watching the embarkation of the affrighted freight of lost souls. A prominent incident is that of a mother on the brink of the Styx, who is about to plunge the dagger in her own bosom with which she has stabbed her child that still clings to her. The numerous lifesize nude figures are certainly well composed, yet a difficulty here is to apply the severe canons of criticism that an attempt to deal with such a theme demands (a work that necessarily recalls a portion of Michael Angelo's "Last Judgment," to say nothing of many versions by minor men) and at the same time make fair allowance for the production of an amateur, and, if need be, accord indulgence to one who has done much for contemporary English art. We prefer to let the visitor strike the balance. But this we may say, that so serious an effort is honourable, by whomsoever made.

We must reserve for a future article some other excellent examples of decoration and still-life by Messrs. A. Moore, W. Hughes, Muckley, R. Barret Browning, and others; the landscapes by C. Napier Hemy, Herkomer, H. Moore, &c.

---

The National Fisheries Exhibition at Norwich has been kept open another week, the admission reduced to threepence. Earl Ducie distributes the prizes to-day (Saturday).

MAGAZINES FOR MAY.

Mr. Payn's "Grape from a Thorn" continues to gratify the readers of the Cornhill with an admirable specimen of comedy in narrative, with so much of the character of a well-constructed play as to suggest that the author might make his mark in this department of literature. Equally excellent is "A Bishop's Confession," with its startling but thoroughly satisfactory dénouement. An essay on Grillparzer, the Austrian dramatist praised by Byron and treated with unjustifiable slight by Carlyle, exhibits great energy and richness of style allied to unusual discrimination, and includes an analysis of Grillparzer's most celebrated drama, "Sappho." Mrs. Barnet, the wife of an East-End clergyman, contributes a sensible as well benevolent suggestion on the entertainment of the poor by the rich; and a philosopher who has not disdained to study a baby enumerates the phenomena of infancy which seem to throw light on the development of consciousness and the reasoning powers.

Macmillan has nothing remarkable except Mr. James's story, which, with all its merit, is too deficient in stirring incident to be adapted for a serial publication. Mr. Bradley's remarks on the mythological element in modern poetry are good; and there are points of interest in the account of Sir Donald Stewart's march from Kandahar to Kabul, the fame of which has been unduly eclipsed by General Roberts's more exciting return.

The contents of the Fortnightly Review are generally interesting; but there is only one paper calculated to excite much curiosity—the chapter from Mr. Morley's forthcoming biography of Cobden. The extract selected refers to Cobden's first political publications, and is a very good piece of criticism, but, at the same time, describes one of the episodes of Cobden's life least animated by human interest. The other contributions include critiques on the Irish Land Bill, disquisitions on Canadian tariffs, United States literature, Statius, Eastern horses, and, above all, "The Lark Ascending," a poem which shows what Mr. George Meredith can perform when he is simple and natural. Even here the description is occasionally a little over-laboured, but in the main it has the clearness and buoyancy of the melody it celebrates.

The Nineteenth Century begins and ends with an article on a subject of momentous importance. Lord Dunsany discusses the liability of the country to invasion; the Duke of Argyll the Irish Land Bill. Lord Dunsany's warnings are weighty; but we should be sorry not to be able to believe that, in case of a descent upon our coasts actually taking place, the nation would behave better than he seems to expect. The Duke of Argyll approves of no part of the Government measure except the facilities for purchase by tenants, which he seems inclined to extend. Miss Simcox's essay on George Eliot is the most worthy tribute as yet rendered to this illustrious writer, not so much from any extraordinary subtlety of criticism as from the deep glow of personal attachment and admiration which pervades it. No one not intimately acquainted with George Eliot could have written it; yet there is no infringement of the reticence due to private life. Professor Dowden's extracts from unpublished notes of Carlyle's lectures on the History of Literature, delivered in 1838, are almost equally interesting. The sentiments are in general such as would have been anticipated, but the force and fire of the style exhibit Carlyle's faculty of expression at its best. An intense love of sincerity in whatever form is the animating principle of Carlyle's judgments everywhere; he is in general remarkably just, except to Milton, whose strong points he leaves out of sight; and to Socrates, of whom he can hardly have known much, since he speaks of his writings, unless indeed the mistake is the reporter's. Mr. Hardinge's renderings of French lyrics in the original metres are most delicately ingenious and successful; all the more so, perhaps, because, notwithstanding the ease of his rhythm and diction, the form commonly remains exotic and un-English. Dr. Knighton draws a glowing picture of the barbaric pomp and tumult of a great Indian religious festival.

The brilliancy of "Vernon Lee" has never been more characteristically displayed than in the "Dialogue on Poetic Morality," which illuminates this month's Contemporary. The poet is, indeed, more apparent than the thinker; and the intensely vivid descriptions of Italian scenery, instead of forming a suitable background for the characters and sentiments, tend to thrust these into the background themselves. But if the structure of the dialogue be somewhat incoherent, and its arguments not invariably conclusive, its eloquence and enthusiasm are most impressive. "Law Reform in the Days of Justinian," by T. Hodgkin, founded on the memoirs of a Byzantine civilian, is far more entertaining than could have been inferred from the title. Entertaining, too, is Mr. Morris's notice of the Buddhist book of transmigration stories, translated by Mr. Rhys Davids. Mr. Sydney Buxton criticises—favourably, in the main—the Attorney-General's Corrupt Practices Act; and Mr. Blachley suggests means for rendering Post-Office Insurance more popular. Miss Julia Wedgwood, criticising Carlyle's Reminiscences, "vainly strives to fashion some conceivable hypothesis why Mr. Froude has not done what anyone else would have done." Simply because Mr. Froude is not like anyone else.

Thomas Carlyle and George Eliot form the leading feature of the three American magazines, all of which are excellent. Harper's Magazine has admirable papers on each, copiously illustrated, and written with a fulness of personal knowledge which, in the case of Carlyle, will do much towards allaying the acerbity of feeling engendered by Mr. Froude's unfortunate indiscretion. Mr. James's reminiscences in the Atlantic Monthly are less pleasing; but it is perfectly clear that Mr. James can only interpret the reluctance of Carlyle or any other person to accept his peculiar religious mysticism on the hypothesis of an innate perversity. Much of what he says is mere inference, and is directly contradicted by the testimony of Emerson's paper in Scribner, which is made up from letters written during his visit to England in 1848. The most remarkable of the other contributions are, in Harper an illustrated paper on Athens; in Scribner Mr. Boyesen's poem, "Calpurnia;" and in the Atlantic Monthly the reminiscences of Washington during President Fillmore's administration, and an admirable critique on Scribe's plays.

Some other magazines will be noticed next week.

---

The first monthly part of The Boys' Illustrated News requires but brief notice, this new weekly journal for the young having, at starting received so cordial and hearty a welcome from the public. We share the gratification the conductors must experience at this marked success. The Boys' Illustrated News presents its manifold attractions in what will, no doubt, prove an additionally acceptable form in the monthly part. The entrancing nature of Captain Mayne Reid's original romance, "The Lost Mountain," is indicated by the bold Illustrations to this story. "Travel, Voyage, and Adventure," the funny adventures of "Squee Biffen," an illustrated memoir of Lord Beaconsfield, and the month's news, make a richly varied part.

A VILLAGE

BY KNAUS. ENGRAVED BY PERMISSION OF THE

E HOLIDAY.

BERLIN PHOTOGRAPHIC COMPANY.—SEE PAGE 457.

OBITUARY.

MR. GURDON.

Mr. Brampton Gurdon, of Letton, Norfolk, and Grundisburgh, Suffolk, J.P. and D.L., and formerly M.P. for West Norfolk, died on the 28th ult., at his town residence, 38, Hill-street, Berkeley-square, in his eighty-fourth year. He was eldest son of Mr. Theophilus Thornhagh Gurdon, of Letton and Grundisburgh, by Anne, his wife, daughter of Mr. William Mellish, M.P., of Blyth, Notts; received his education at Eton, and at Emmanuel College, Cambridge (where he graduated M.A. in 1822), and served as High Sheriff of Norfolk in 1855. Mr. Gurdon sat in Parliament for West Norfolk from 1857 to 1865. He married, Aug. 12, 1828, the Hon. Henrietta Susannah Ridley Colborne, eldest daughter and coheiress of Nicholas, Lord Colborne, and has two surviving sons, Colonel Robert Thornhagh Gurdon, M.P. for South Norfolk, and William Brampton Gurdon, C.B. The Earl of Kimberley is nephew of the gentleman whose decease we record. The Gurdons of Letton, one of the most ancient and important families in the county of Norfolk, descend from Brampton Gurdon, M.P., Colonel of a regiment of horse during the Civil War, who was a younger son of Brampton Gurdon, of Assington, M.P.

MR. GLANVILLE.

Mr. Francis Glanville, of Catchfrench, Cornwall, J.P. and D.L., died on the 24th ult., at Stratford-sub-Castle, aged eighty-four. He was eldest son of Mr. Francis Glanville, of Catchfrench, M.P., High Sheriff of Cornwall in 1793, by Elizabeth, his second wife, daughter of Mr. Robert Fanshawe, Commissioner of Plymouth Dockyard; was educated at Eton, and served for a time in the Grenadier Guards. He married, in 1821, Amabel, daughter of the Right Hon. Reginald Pole-Carew, of Antony, Cornwall, and by her, who died in 1871, leaves, with other issue, a son, Major-General Francis Robert Glanville.

MR. LEWIS OF GREENMEADOW.

Mr. Henry Lewis of Greenmeadow, Glamorganshire, J.P. and D.L., died at Plasnewydd, Weston-super-Mare, on the 23rd ult., aged sixty-six, having survived only four days the Earl of Beaconsfield, who married, in 1839, Mrs. Wyndham Lewis (afterwards Viscountess Beaconsfield), the widow of Mr. Wyndham Lewis of Greenmeadow, M.P., the uncle of the gentleman whose death we record. Mr. Lewis was born in 1815, the eldest son of the late Mr. Henry Lewis of Greenmeadow, by Mary, his wife, daughter of Mr. George Emerson. He served as High Sheriff of the county of Glamorgan in 1858. He married, first, 1844, Anne, daughter of Mr. Walter Morgan of Merthyr; and secondly, 1858, Sophia, daughter of Colonel Gwynne, of Glanbrane.

---

We have also to record the deaths of—

Sir Edward Blount, Bart., on the 28th ult. His memoir will be given next week.

Mr. Edward Miall, formerly M.P., for Bradford, on the 29th ult. His portrait and memoir are given in this week's issue.

Mr. Robert Bunch, H.M. Minister Resident at Caracas, Venezuela, on March 21.

Colonel Hector Harvest, formerly of the 97th Regiment, on the 26th ult., at Dawlish, Devon, in his eighty-sixth year.

Mr. Luke Elcoate, at 80, Gloucester-street, Pimlico, on the 28th ult., aged eighty-one.

The Rev. Gorges Paulin Lowther, Canon of Salisbury, for fifty-one years Rector of Orcheston St. George, on the 28th ult., aged eighty-nine.

Lieut.-Colonel George Ernest Bulger, late 10th Regiment, on the 17th ult., at 44, Highgate-road. He entered the Army in 1847, and attained the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel in 1876.

The Rev. Richard Arthur Francis Barrett, B.D., formerly Rector of Stour Provost, Dorset, and Senior Fellow of King's College, Cambridge, on the 24th ult., aged sixty-eight.

The Hon. Adela Mary Bootle-Wilbraham, eldest sister of Edward, Earl of Lathom, at West Malvern, on the 22nd ult., aged forty-six.

The Rev. Richard William Morice, M.A., for upwards of thirty-three years Vicar of Hoddesdon, Herts, on the 20th ult., in his eighty-third year.

The Rev. Charles Girdlestone, M.A., formerly Rector of Kingswinford, and Fellow of Balliol College, Oxford, on the 28th ult., at Holywell House, Weston-super-Mare, in his eighty-fifth year.

The Hon. Anne Jane Charlotte Shawe, widow of Mr. Laurence Shawe, 5th Dragoon Guards, on the 24th ult., at Stanfield House, Southsea, aged sixty-eight. She was the second daughter of Henry, fourth Viscount Bolingbroke, and sister to Henry, present Viscount Bolingbroke and St. John.

Mr. John Spry Morris, formerly Commissioner of Crown Lands, Surveyor-General and Judge of the Probate Court, Halifax, Nova Scotia, on the 21st ult., at Church-road, St. Leonards-on-Sea, in his eighty-sixth year. He was eldest surviving son of the Hon. Charles Morris.

The Hon. Arthur Annesley, formerly of the Grenadier Guards, on the 25th ult., at Cannes. He was son of William Richard, third Earl Annesley, and was brother of the present Earl. He married, in 1867, Clara, only daughter of Mr. George Weston, of Norwich.

Mr. Robert Drummond, senior partner of the old-established banking firm of Messrs. Drummond's, of Charing-cross, on the 29th ult., from yellow jaundice. He was born July 26, 1822; and married, April 25, 1854, Augusta Charlotte, youngest daughter of Colonel Mackenzie Fraser, of Castle Fraser, Aberdeen.

Lady Charlotte Isabella Russell, on the 24th ult., at Paris. She was born Aug. 8, 1841, the younger daughter of James, sixth Duke of Roxburghe, K.T., by Susanna Stephenia, his wife (long connected with the Queen's Household), only child of Lieut.-General Sir Charles Dalbiac, K.C.H. Her Ladyship was married, Oct. 28, 1862, to Mr. George Russell, eldest son of Mr. William Russell, Accountant-General of the Court of Chancery, youngest son of Lord William Russell.

---

Colonel Forester, who for many years has held the office of Assistant-Serjeant of the House of Commons, has resigned his appointment, on the ground of ill health.

The Mansion House fund for the relief of the sufferers by the earthquake at Scio now amounts to £18,520, exclusive of £1400 to which the Stock Exchange contributions have reached. It has been resolved to forward to Constantinople for distribution a further sum of £2500, making £15,500 so remitted.

According to the quarterly return of the Registrar-General, in the United Kingdom the births of 288,168 children and the deaths of 188,603 persons were registered in the three months ending March 31. The recorded natural increase of population was thus 99,565. The registered number of persons married in the quarter ending Dec. 31, 1880, was 137,168. The resident population of the United Kingdom in the middle of 1881 is estimated at 34,788,814; of England and Wales 25,798,922, of Scotland 3,695,456; of Ireland 5,294,436.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

All communications relating to this department of the Paper should be addressed to the Editor, and have the word "Chess" written on the envelope.

T M M (Secunderabad).—We cannot undertake to examine problems without the author's proposed solutions for reference. Suppose they cannot be solved at all? not an uncommon occurrence in our experience.

W B (Stratford).—You shall have an early report on all the problems of yours that we have now in hand.

E H (Rawtenstall).—Send the games and you shall have the opinion you desire.

S G C (Humberston).—Your letter has been forwarded to the author, and you shall have his answer to the suggested improvement. We agree with you that it is an improvement.

D C (Paris).—The British Chess Magazine, published by Mr. John Watkinson, Huddersfield, should suit you. The contents of that journal were noticed last week.

A C (Staines).—Your solution of No. 1937 is correct, but it arrived too late for acknowledgment in the usual place.

J T (Chipping Camden).—The other problem of yours shall not be forgotten. Look at No. 1940 again, and you will think more highly of it than you appear to do at present.

J J H (Bolton).—We have a communication for you which shall be dispatched if you will send a full address.

Anon H (Swindon).—There were five games played in the correspondence match between London and Edinburgh. The play commenced in April, 1878, and ended in July, 1878. The late Mr. Staunton was not among the players on either side. He was a mere schoolboy at that time.

Correct Solutions of Problems Nos. 1932 and 1933 received from W Pocock (Cape Town), of No. 1933 from T M Manickum (Secunderabad).

Correct Solutions of Problem No. 1938 received from Frank E Purchas, J Estlin, N, James Atkinson, Spring, John Perkins, and F O'N Hopkins.

Correct Solutions of Problem No. 1939 received from Frank E Purchas, J Tucker, Edmundson, Espenol, E Holt, S G C H J Grant, A Chapman, T W Humphries, James Atkinson, Spring, Pops, Cant, R H Gibson (Southport), and W F Wood.

Correct Solutions of Problem No. 1940 received from H B, Fire Fing, E J Patterson, E Louden, R Gray, An Old Hand, Eiste, R T Kemp, Aaron Harper, F G Parslow, S N Harris, Rev. Nevin, H H Blackbeck, E Casella, M O'Halloran, C Darragh, E Ingersoll, L Pelcon (Antwerp), F Ferris, W J Rudman, A Kentish Man, C S Ooze, Otto Folder, A Colborne, J G Anstee, H L Dyke, L Sharwood, E Sharwood, R J Vines, C W Milsom, H Langford, E Jessop, C Oswald, W Hillier, Norman Rumbelow, Frank E Purchas, J W W, E L G, D W (Guernsey), Lulu, Z Ingold, C Edmundson, E Holt, T H, South Jags, S D Bessell, Pierce Jones, Frank Littleboy, Sidmouth, Birkbeck Chess Class, H A N, S Horne, John Perkins, John Balfour, James Dobson, J Alois Schmucke, J Peers Ventom, Cant, R H Brooks, W Biddle, Alpha, S Lowndes, Joseph Ainsworth, Nerina, Jupiter Junior, Snutch, and Matthew Hendrie.

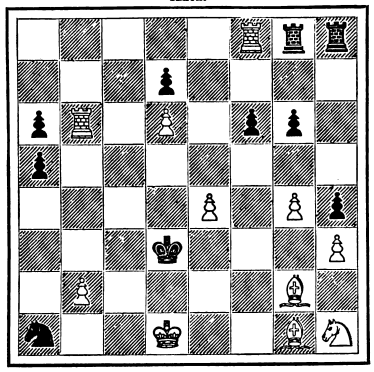
Notes.—This problem cannot be solved by way of 1. Q to Kt 6th, as many correspondents have supposed. Black's defence to that move is 1. K to B 4th; and, should White continue with 2. Q to K 6th, then 2. B to Q 3rd, &c.

Solution of Problem No. 1939.

| WHITE. | BLACK. |
|---|---|
| 1. K to Kt 4th | Any move |

Mates accordingly.

PROBLEM No. 1942.
By J. W. Abbott.
BLACK.



WHITE.
White to play, and mate in four moves.

Played at Buda-Pesth between Herr E. Kemeny and Dr. Jacoby.
(Irregular Opening.)

| WHITE (Herr K.) | BLACK (Dr. J.) | WHITE (Herr K.) | BLACK (Dr. J.) |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1. P to Q B 4th | P to K 4th | 16. P takes Kt | P to K B 3rd |
| 2. P to K 3rd | Kt to K B 3rd | 17. K R to K sq | Kt to R 4th |
| 3. Kt to Q B 3rd | P to Q 4th | 18. P to Q B 4th | P to Q B 3rd |
| 4. P takes P | Kt takes P | 19. Q to B 3rd | P to Q B 4th |
| White's position is now similar to that of the second player in the Sicilian game. Having the advantage of the move, however, he is enabled to prevent 5. Kt to Kt 6th, a very important manœuvre in the opening named. | | 20. P to Q 5th | |
| | | He cannot play 20. P takes P, because there would follow—20. Q takes R, 21. B takes Q, R takes B (ch); 22. B to B sq, B to R 6th, &c. | |
| 5. P to Q R 3rd | Kt to Q B 3rd | 20. | Q to Q R 5th |
| 6. P to K Kt 3rd | B to Q B 4th | The Knight and Bishop are already out of play, and now the Queen follows suit. | |
| 6. B to K 2nd is preferable here. Indeed, as a general rule, the Bishop is not well placed in close games when posted at Q B 4th. | | 21. B takes R P | P takes B |
| | | 22. Q to K B 6th | R takes Kt |
| 7. B to Kt 2nd | B to K 3rd | We should have preferred retreating the Bishop to Kt 3rd; and, should White then play 23. Kt to K 4th, exchanging Rooks and playing Q to Q B 7th, &c. | |
| 8. K Kt to K 2nd | Castles | | |
| 9. Castles | Q to Q 2nd | | |
| 10. P to Q 4th | P takes P | 23. Q takes B | Q R to K sq |
| 11. P takes P | B to Kt 3rd | 24. R to K B sq | Kt takes Q B P |
| 12. B to K 3rd | Q R to Q sq | 25. P to Q 6th | Kt to Q 7th |
| 13. Q to B 2nd | K B to K sq | 26. B to Q 5th | Q to Q 5th |
| 14. Q R to Q sq | B to K B 4th | 27. R takes Kt | Q takes R |
| 15. Q to B sq | | 28. B takes P (ch) | K to R sq |
| Better, apparently, than 15. Q to Q 2nd, the only other resource to prevent Black winning a Pawn by 15. Kt takes B and 16. R takes P. | | 29. Q to B 6th (ch) | K to R 2nd |
| | | White can here mate in three moves by 30. B to Kt 4th (ch), K to Kt sq; 31. Q to R 7th (ch), &c., but missed the opportunity, and the game, after some exchanges, was abandoned as drawn. | |
| 15. | Kt takes Kt | | |

The fifth match between the West and East of Scotland was played on Saturday last at the Queen-street Hall, Edinburgh. The West, whose representatives were all from Glasgow, or the immediate neighbourhood of that city, brought thirty-two players to the lists, and the East furnished contingents from Dundee, Edinburgh, Forfar, and Blairgowrie, numbering in all twenty-seven. We are indebted to the Glasgow Herald for the following details of the play on this occasion. The combatants were paired according to their reputed strength, and each pair had to contest two games. No special opening seemed to be much run upon, unless it was Max Lange's attack. This consists in 1. P to K 4th, P to K 4th; 2. Kt to K B 3rd, Kt to Q B 3rd; 3. B to Q B 4th, B to Q B 4th; 4. Castles, Kt to K B 3rd; 5. P to Q 4th. This last move constitutes the Lange attack, and requires to be very carefully answered. Mr. Mills tried it against Mr. G. B. Fraser, but the latter avoided it. Mr Mills, however, by some fine play won the game. In the second game Mr. Fraser adopted the Ecosse attack, a form of the King's Gambit which he has made a speciality recently, for which reason it is not surprising that he won it. The novelty is this—1. P to K 4th, P to K 4th; 2. P to K B 4th, P takes P; 3. P to Q 4th. The usual third move for White is Kt to K B 3rd or B to Q B 4th. Mr. Jenkin also played the Lange attack against Mr. Walker, but it resulted in nothing, Mr. Walker ultimately giving perpetual check, and so forcing a draw. The same opening was also adopted by Mr. Crum against Mr. J. Fraser, and resulted in a draw. The Evans' Gambit was not much played, but one fine example was won from Mr. Baxter by Mr. Court. The match was never at any time a close one. The West led from the start, and were very soon twelve games to three. This lead they gradually increased, until at the termination of the contest they had won by forty games to twelve. We should add that the visitors were much indebted to the Edinburgh Club for the very complete arrangements that were made to provide all that was necessary in the shape of creature comforts for the competitors. The following is the precise score:—

| | | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| West of Scotland | ... | ... | ... | ... | ... | 40 games |
| East of Scotland | ... | ... | ... | ... | ... | 12 ,, |
| Drawn... | ... | ... | ... | ... | ... | 11 ,, |
| Majority for West of Scotland | ... | ... | ... | ... | ... | 28 games |

The North London and Greenwich Chess Clubs, each represented by eight champions, played a match at Mouffiet's Hotel on the 28th ult. Among the best-contested games was that between Messrs. Forrest (Greenwich) and Howard (North London), which, after a prolonged struggle, terminated in a draw. The result of the match was that each club scored four games.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will (dated Nov. 1, 1879) with two codicils (dated March 24, 1880, and Feb. 27, 1881) of Mr. Samuel Courtauld, late of Gosfield Hall, near Halstead, Essex, and of No. 76, Lancaster-gate, Hyde Park, who died on March 21 last, was proved on the 22nd ult. by Miss Sarah Ann Cawston, Colonel Arthur Swann Howard Lowe, Edward Bromley, and Samuel Jeffrey McKee, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £700,000. The testator leaves all his real estate in the parish of High Garrett, certain houses at Halstead, and pecuniary legacies of £10,000 and £80,000 to his adopted daughter Miss Cawston; the Gosfield Hall estate and the residue of his freehold property to his adopted daughter Mrs. Louisa Ruth Lowe for life, then to her husband, Colonel Lowe for life, and on the death of the survivor of them to such one or more of their children as they shall appoint; he also gives to Mrs. Lowe all his household furniture, plate, pictures, and effects at Gosfield Hall, except any that may be selected by Miss Cawston, all his live and dead farming stock and crops, and a pecuniary legacy of £140,000; his residence at Lancaster-gate, with the furniture and effects, is given between his said two adopted daughters. The testator bequeaths £10,000 to be laid out in the purchase of an annuity on the lives of Miss Cawston, Mrs. Lowe, and Mrs. Courtauld (the wife of his nephew Sydney Courtauld), to be applied by them for the support of the chapel services at High Garrett in connection with the free church at Halstead, or for the schools at High Garrett and Gosfield, or for the coffee and reading rooms; £4000 to the British and Foreign Unitarian Society; £2500 to the Society for the Liberation of Religion from State Patronage and Control; £2000 each to the London Hospital and the Essex and Colchester Hospital; £1000 each to the Charing-cross Hospital, the Royal Free Hospital, the East London Hospital for Children, Shadwell, and the Royal Hospital for Consumption and Diseases of the Chest, City-road; £15,000 each to his nieces Edith Arundrup and Susannah Ruth Solly; £15,000 to his late wife's niece, Mrs. John Minton Courtauld; £20,000 upon trust for the widow and children of his late nephew Louis Courtauld; and there are considerable other legacies and annuities to his own and his late wife's relatives, and to friends, executors, and servants. Many of these legacies are directed to be paid out of his capital in the firm of Samuel Courtauld and Co., and the remainder of such capital is bequeathed to his nephews George and Sydney Courtauld. The testator appoints as his residuary legatees most of the pecuniary legatees under his will, except servants, and the residue of the personalty is to be divided among them in proportion to their legacies.

The will (dated April 21, 1877) with a codicil (dated July 18 following) of Senhor Felipe Santiago Gordillo, formerly of Lima, Peru, but late of No. 28, Rue Taitbout, Paris, merchant, who died on Feb. 11, 1878, at No. 73, Boulevard Malesherbes, Paris, was proved in London on the 9th ult. by Manuel Gaspar Chavez, the brother by the half-blood, the sole executor, the personal estate in England being sworn under £80,000. The testator leaves to his servant Martin, if in his service at his death, 12,000f.; to his brother his two houses in Peru; and the residue of his property up to 2,500,000f. as to two-thirds for his said brother, and one third for Madame Palmyre Lemaire, but that lady in any case is not to receive less than 500,000f. If the residue exceeds two million and a half francs legacies are given for charity, benevolence, masses, &c., and the ultimate residue is to go to his said brother, who is appointed his universal heir.

The will (dated March 20, 1879) with a codicil (dated Dec. 27, 1879) of Mr. Jonathan King, late of Wiggen Hall, Watford, Herts, who died on March 18 last, was proved on the 6th ult. by John James Smith, Joseph Gutteridge Smith, and Charles King Smith, the nephews, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £70,000. The testator makes various devises and bequests to his said three nephews; to his nieces, Mrs. Emma Sophia Hepburn, Mrs. Eliza Jane Betts, and Miss Mary Jemima Lucretia Smith; to his nephew George Alexander Smith; to the children of his late sister Mrs. Asquith; to other relatives, and to servants. The residue of his property he gives to his said nieces Mrs. Hepburn and Mrs. Betts.

The will (dated Jan. 5, 1875) with two codicils (dated Nov. 2, 1877, and Sept. 13, 1880) of General James Arthur Butler, late of Holt Lodge, Kintbury, Berks, who died on Feb. 26 last, has been proved by Francis Lovelock Coxe and William Hensman Tenlon, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £60,000. The testator devises all his real estate to Thomas Butler, and he bequeaths to his sister, Miss Rose Butler, an annuity of £600, legacies to other relatives and to his executors; also £1500 to his housekeeper, Elizabeth Punter; £500 to his cook, Jane Rolfe, and £300 and some horses and carriages to his groom, William Hayward. The residue of the personalty is to be divided between the said Thomas Butler, and his cousins, Whitwell Butler, John Butler, and James Butler.

The will (dated Aug. 18, 1854) of Lady Emily Caroline Bathurst, widow of the Hon. and Rev. Charles Bathurst, formerly of Wytham, Berks, afterwards of Great Ilford, Essex, but late of No. 33, Eaton-place, who died on March 26 last, was proved on the 5th ult. by the Hon. and Rev. Henry William Bertie, the brother, and Lady Charlotte Margaret Bertie, the sister, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £18,000. The testatrix leaves all her real and personal estate to be equally divided between her said brother and sister as tenants in common. The deceased was a daughter of Montague, fifth Earl of Abingdon.

The will (dated Aug. 26, 1878) of Mr. James Tennant, late of No. 149, Strand, mineralogist, who died on Feb. 23 last, was proved on the 5th ult. by Frederick Tennant, the brother, and John Jones, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £5000. The testator, among other legacies, wishes Baroness Burdett-Coutts to accept one of his large pieces of double refracting spar, or some mineral or fossil, for her collection at Holly Lodge; and he bequeaths £400 Scinde railway stock upon trust for his housekeeper, Sarah Pennyfather, for life; at her decease the stock is directed to be sold, and the proceeds paid to the treasurer of King's College, London, for the purpose of founding a prize, to be called the "Tennant" prize, to encourage the study of mineralogy, to be given in money, books, instruments, or a medal.

The will (dated Aug. 23, 1880) of the Rev. Sir George William Crawfurd, Bart., late of Burgh Hall, near Boston, Lincolnshire, who died on Feb. 24 last, was proved on the 1st ult. by Sir Charles William Frederick Crawfurd, Bart., the son, the sole executor, to whom he leaves all his real and personal estate. The personalty is sworn under £16,000.

The will (dated Dec. 27, 1861) of Lady Elizabeth Bulteel, formerly of Flete, Devon, but late of No. 52, Green-street, Grosvenor-square, who died on Nov. 18 last, was proved on the 5th ult., under a nominal sum, by John Bulteel, the son, the sole executor, to whom she devises and bequeaths all her real and personal estate. The testatrix was the daughter of Charles, second Earl Grey, and the widow of Mr. J. C. Bulteel.

C. G. C.

In consequence of the large Number of Shares already applied for, the List will close on or before Tuesday, May 10.

THE AUSTRALIAN COMPANY, Limited.

Incorporated under the Joint-Stock Companies' Acts, 1862 to 1880.

CAPITAL, £125,000, IN SHARES OF £1 EACH.
FIRST ISSUE, 100,000 SHARES, of which upwards of 35,000 have already been applied for. 5s. per Share to be paid on Application, and 5s. on Allotment. Further Calls will not be made at less than Three Months' Interval.

It is intended to make a Second Issue hereafter of 25,000 Shares for Australia.

WHERE NO ALLOTMENT IS MADE, THE DEPOSIT WILL BE RETURNED IN FULL.

DIRECTORS.

CHAIRMAN.

W. J. R. COTTON, ESQ., M.P.
and Alderman, 27, Saint Mary Axe, London.

JAMES JACKSON, Esq., 4, Stanhope-street, Hyde Park, W.

SAMPSON S. LLOYD, Esq. (Chairman of Board of Lloyd's Banking Company, Limited), Birmingham.

LAIDLEY MORT, Esq. (Mort and Co., Sydney), 155, Fenchurch-street, London.

THOMAS SALT, Esq. (Bosanquet, Salt, and Co.), 73, Lombard-street, London.

ARTHUR VAN DE VELDE, Esq. (late First Secretary to the Belgian Legation in England), 15, Upper Hamilton-terrace, N.W.

BANKERS.

IN ENGLAND.
Messrs. BOSANQUET, SALT, and CO., 73, Lombard-street, E.C.
LLOYD'S BANKING COMPANY, LIMITED, Birmingham, and its Branches.
IN AUSTRALIA.
THE BANK OF NEW SOUTH WALES.

BROKERS.

Messrs. NICKISSON, POSTON, and EVANS, 7, Drapers'-gardens, E.C.

SOLICITORS.

Messrs. HARWOOD and STEPHENSON, 31, Lombard-street, E.C.

AUDITORS.

Messrs. KEMP, FORD, and CO., 8, Walbrook, E.C.

TEMPORARY OFFICES.
28, ST. MARY AXE, E.C.

PROSPECTUS.

1. This Company has been formed for the purpose of importing from Australia and elsewhere Meat and other Food products, the profitable importation of which has hitherto been unattainable, owing to the difficulties of preserving them during the voyage.

2. The time appears to have arrived when, in the interest of the Colonies and the United Kingdom, the formation of a sound English Company is desirable for the above-mentioned objects.

3. SEVERAL CARGOES OF MEAT have now been brought over from Australia in sound condition justifying the expectation that a large trade can be carried on under the improved conditions of transport, and by means of the cold dry air system, the successful working of which has now been fully proved, thus effectually overcoming the difficulties of the voyage.

4. The Board has made provisional arrangements with responsible parties for the purchase, and is in treaty for the transport, preservation during the voyage, and subsequent disposal, of a considerable supply of the finest Meat procurable.

5. It is proposed that Messrs. Hick, Hargreaves, and Co., Bolton, the well-known Engineers, should supply the machinery for the first shipments; but it is intended to take advantage of any improvement that may be made from time to time in freezing appliances.

6. THE FOLLOWING APPROXIMATE ESTIMATES have been made:—

| | |
|---|---|
| Cost price all round at shipping port .. .. .. .. | 2d. per lb. |
| Freight, insurance, shipping, and landing charges, cold air chambers and apparatus, and miscellaneous charges .. .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | 2¼d. per lb. |
| | 4¼d. per lb. |
| Estimated selling price .. .. .. .. .. | 5½d. to 6d. per lb.* |

Showing a probable average profit, exclusive of hides, tallow, &c., of 27½ per cent per cargo.

7. It is estimated that when the Company is in full working order, two cargoes a month, of 200 tons each can be imported and sold. If this should be attained, it would represent a probable profit of about £66,000 a year, or over 50 per cent upon the nominal capital.

8. ALL THE RISKS OF THE VOYAGE, including the efficient working of the machinery, may be insured against at a moderate premium, thus obviating any chance of loss to the Company in this respect. The cost of such insurance is included in the above estimate.

9. No delay need take place in commencing the Company's operations. Extensive abattoirs, lairages, and cooling-houses are already in existence at one port of shipment, of which the Company can at once take advantage, and it is proposed to erect others without delay. It is likewise intended, if necessary, to have in London or elsewhere one or more warehouses, cooled by the above indicated process, where the Meat can be received and kept until sold, thereby obviating the necessity of its being unduly forced upon the market.

10. The Directors will receive no remuneration in any year for their ordinary duties as Directors, except on surplus profits after providing for a dividend at the rate of 10 per cent on the amount paid up in respect of the shares of this issue; after which they will be entitled to one fourth of the Company's net profits over and above such 10 per cent per annum. If a Director is required to go abroad, or perform special duties for the Company, his remuneration will be fixed by the Board.

Copies of the Memorandum and Articles of Association of the Company can be inspected at the offices of the Solicitors of the Company, Messrs. Harwood and Stephenson, 31, Lombard-street, E.C.

Applications for shares must be made on the annexed form. Copies of the Prospectus and Forms of Application can be obtained from the Bankers, Brokers, and Solicitors, and at the offices of the Company.

Dated April 29, 1881.

FORM OF APPLICATION FOR SHARES.

To the Directors of
THE AUSTRALIAN COMPANY, LIMITED.

Gentlemen,—

Having paid to the Company's Bankers, Messrs. the sum of £———, being a deposit of 5s. per Share on ——— Shares in the above Company, I request you to allot me that number of shares upon the terms of the Company's Prospectus, dated April 29, 1881, and I hereby agree to accept the same, or any smaller number that may be allotted to me, and to pay the further sum of 5s. per share on allotment, and the balance when called upon to do so, as provided by the said Prospectus, and I authorise you to regi-ter me as the holder of the said shares.

In the case of a lady, state whether spinster or widow.

Name in full .....
Address .....
Description .....
Date .....
Signature .....

THE AUSTRALIAN COMPANY, LIMITED.

1st. The name of this Company is "THE AUSTRALIAN COMPANY, LIMITED."

2nd. The registered office of the Company will be situate in England.

3rd. The objects for which the Company is established are:—To import from Australia and elsewhere Meat and other Food products; to export to Australia and elsewhere Goods, Merchandise, Live or Dead Stock, and articles of all sorts; and generally to carry on an import and export business in England, Australia, and elsewhere. To deal in the produce and manufactures of all countries, and in all countries. To own, charter, build, employ, and work Steamers, ships, and other Vessels. To own, take on lease, hire, construct, occupy, and work Stations, Farms, Lands, Railways, Tramways, Roads, Freezing-houses, Slaughter-yards, Houses, Stores, Wharves, Plant, Fixed and Rolling Stock, and other Property. To buy, sell, let, hire, mortgage, pledge, and deal with Real and Personal Property of every description in Australia or elsewhere, including existing Mortgages or other Securities. To acquire, establish, and undertake Agencies, and Commercial and Financial Business of every kind in Australia or elsewhere. To receive and take money on Deposit or for Investment on the guarantee of the Company, or otherwise. To borrow or raise money by the issue of or upon bonds, debentures, debenture stock, bills of exchange, promissory notes, or other obligations or securities of the Company, or by mortgage or charge of all or any part of the property of the Company, or its uncalled capital, or in such other manner as the Company shall think fit. To make, accept, indorse, and execute promissory notes, bills of exchange, or other negotiable instruments. To invest the moneys of the Company not immediately required upon such securities as may from time to time be determined. To sell, improve, manage, develope, lease, mortgage, dispose of, or otherwise deal with all or any part of the property of the Company. To acquire or participate in by purchase or otherwise, the goodwill of, or any interest in, any business established for any of the objects herein mentioned, and to amalgamate, or unite or combine with any other company or association established or to be hereafter established for objects similar to or including the objects herein mentioned, and for any such purpose to make and enter into any contracts, agreements, and arrangements, and to subscribe bonds or otherwise acquire and hold shares, stocks, obligations, bonds, or debentures of any such company or association. To sell or dispose of all or any part of the business carried on by the Company. To procure the Company incorporation as a company or as an anonymous partnership, or any other constitution, status, or privilege in any British possession or Colony, or in any foreign country, possession, or colony. And to do all such other things as the Company may deem incidental or conducive to the attainment of any of the aforesaid objects of the Company.

4th. The liability of the members is limited.

5th. The capital of the Company is £125,000, divided into 125,000 shares of £1 each, with power, if so determined by the Company, to issue all or any part of the said capital for the time being unissued, or any additional capital, with the right to any preferential or or guaranteed dividend or other privilege, or subject to any postponement, restriction, or conditions.

BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR
IS A WORLD-WIDE NECESSARY.

BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR
FOR THE NURSERY.

BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR
FOR THE FAMILY TABLE.

BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR
FOR THE SICK-ROOM.

BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR
HAS A WORLD-WIDE REPUTATION.

THE ESSEX FLOUR and GRAIN COMPANY, Liverpool-road, London, N., supply the best goods only. Flour: Whites for Pastry, per 36 lb., 3s. 4d.; Households, for Bread making, 3s. 2d.; Whole Wheaten Meal (granulated), for Brown Bread, 3s.; Best Scotch Oatmeal for Porridge, per 14 lb., 3s.; Hominy, 2s.; Barley, Pearl Wheat, Maize, and Mixed Corn for Poultry, per bushel, 5s.; Middlings, 2s.; Bran, 1s.; Pearl Split Peas, per peck, 3s.; Split Egyptian Lentils, 3s.; Meat Biscuits, per 14 lb., 2s. 6d.; Barley Meal, per 48 lb., 5s.; Lentil Flour, per 14 lb., 5s. 6d.; per 14 lb., 6s. All other kinds of Grain and Seeds. Price List on application. Special quotations for large orders. P.O. Orders and Cheques to be made in favour of George Young.

ROBERT ROBERTS AND CO.'S CELEBRATED TEAS.
TWELVE POUNDS AND UPWARDS CARRIAGE PAID.
Samples and Price-lists free by post.
Queen Insurance-buildings, Liverpool. ESTABLISHED 1840.
No agents.
All communications and orders direct.

CHOCOLAT MENIER.
Awarded the GRAND DIPLOMA OF HONOUR.

CHOCOLAT MENIER, in ½lb. and ¼lb. Packets.
For BREAKFAST and SUPPER.

CHOCOLAT MENIER.—Awarded Twenty Eight PRIZE MEDALS.
Consumption annually exceeds 18,000,000 lbs.

CHOCOLAT MENIER. Paris, London, New York.
Sold Everywhere.

FRY'S Gold Medal, Paris. First Award, Sydney.
FRY'S CARACAS COCOA.
"A most delicious and valuable article."—Standard.

COCOA. PURE COCOA ONLY.
FRY'S COCOA EXTRACT.
"Strictly pure."—W. SCOVELL, F.I.C., F.C.S., City Analyst, Bristol.
Thirteen Exhibition Medals.

SCHWEITZER'S COCOATINA.
Anti-Dyspeptic Cocoa or Chocolate Powder.
Guaranteed Pure Soluble Cocoa, with excess of Fat extracted. Four times the strength of Cocoa Thickened yet Weakened with Arrowroot, Starch, &c.
The faculty pronounce it the most nutritious, perfectly digestive Beverage for "BREAKFAST, LUNCHEON, or SUPPER." Recp. in all Climates. Requires no Cooking. A teaspoonful to Breakfast-Cup, costing less than a halfpenny. Samples gratis.
In Air-Tight Tins, at 1s. 6d., 3s., &c., by Chemists and Grocers.
H. SCHWEITZER and CO., 10, Adam-street, London, W.C.

PETER ROBINSON'S
COURT and GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
REGENT-STREET.

FAMILY BEREAVEMENTS.
Upon Receipt of Letter or Telegram
PETER ROBINSON'S EXPERIENCED DRESSMAKERS and MILLINERS TRAVEL to ALL PARTS of the COUNTRY (no matter the distance) FREE OF EXPENSE TO PURCHASERS, with Dresses, Mantles, Millinery, and a full assortment of MADE-UP ARTICLES of the best and most suitable description. Also Materials by the Yard, and supplied at the same VERY REASONABLE PRICES as if Purchased at the Warehouse in "REGENT-STREET."
Mourning for Servants at unexceptionally low rates, at a great saving to large or small families.
Funerals Conducted in Town or Country at Stated Charges.
Address 256 to 262, Regent-street, London.
PETER ROBINSON'S.

THE BEST CRAPES,
THAT WILL NOT SPOT WITH RAIN.
Special qualities finished by the manufacturer in this desirable manner solely to the order of PETER ROBINSON.
Good qualities from 5s. 6d. to 12s. 9d. per yard. Others, not finished by this process, from 1s. 6d. to 4s. 9d.

A SPECIAL PURCHASE.
300 PIECES OF
RICH BLACK BROCADED SILKS,
very fashionable now for Costumes and Mantles.
2s. 9d., 3s. 11d., 4s. 9d., 5s. 11d., 6s. 6d.

100 PIECES OF
BLACK SATIN IMPERIAL,
a New Make of Satin,
Rich in appearance,
and wears better than any other silk.
6s. 6d., and up to 10s. 3d.

BLACK SATIN MERVEILLEUX,
new this Season,
3s. 6d., 4s. 11d., 5s. 9d., 6s. 6d.

BLACK SATIN DE LYON,
a good useful Silk, for Hard Wear,
3s. 6d., 4s. 11d., 5s. 11d., 6s. 6d.

BLACK DUCHESS SATIN,
at 3s. 6d., 5s. 6d.;
Magnificent qualities at 7s. 6d. and 10s. 6d.

BLACK SATINS (Cotton Backs),
1s. 11d., 2s. 6d., 2s. 11d., 3s. 11d.

BLACK BROCADED VELVETS,
5s. 9d., 6s. 11d., 8s. 9d., 10s. 9d.

BLACK TWILLED SILKS, for Summer Wear, at 3s. 6d., and above.

BLACK SURAT SILKS, with White Floral Designs, 2s. 11d., 3s. 6d., 3s. 11d.

COSTUMES in SILK, SATIN, and BROCADE
Facsimiles of Expensive Paris Models
at 4½ guineas and up to 20 guineas.
Materials for Bodices included.
For Patterns of the above,
Please write to—
PETER ROBINSON'S, REGENT-STREET,
Nos. 256 to 262.

GLOVES AT WHOLESALE PRICES.
The New Detailed Price-List for Spring, 1881, is now ready, and will be forwarded post free upon application.—THE LONDON GLOVE COMPANY, 45a, Cheapside, E.C.

BREIDENBACH'S
SACHETS.
Wood Violet, White Rose, Stephanotis, Maréchale, Eau Bouquet, Musk, Ylang Ylang, Opopenax, Millefleurs, Chypre. In paper envelopes, 1s. each; in silk bags, 1s. each; in satin cushions, 2s. 6d. each. Sold by all Perfumers and Fancy Dealers, or post-free from the Makers, 157a, New Bond-street, London, W

VALUABLE DISCOVERY for the HAIR.
If your hair is turning grey, or white, or falling off, use "The Mexican Hair Renewer," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White Hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of dye. This "Renewer" is make the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots where the glands are not decayed. "The Mexican Hair Renewer" is sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere, at 3s. 6d. per Bottle.

FLORILINE. For the Teeth and Breath.
Is the best Liquid Dentifrice in the world; it thoroughly cleanses partially-decayed teeth from all parasites or living animalculæ, and preserves them in pearly white, imparting a delightful fragrance to the breath. The Fragrant Florilline removes instantly all odours arising from a foul stomach or tobacco smoke, being partly composed of honey, soda, and extracts of sweet herbs and plants. It is perfectly harmless, and delicious as sherry. Sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere, at 2s. 6d. per Bottle.

THE LONG TRYING WINTER,
necessitating large fires, and living in a hot, dry atmosphere, has not been without effect upon the hair of most people, who will do well to use ROWLAND'S MACASSAR OIL during the Spring months if they desire the usual Spring growth of chevelure. Sold everywhere.

SPRING.—Cutaneous visitations now prevail, and render ROWLANDS' KALYDOR, for the Complexion and Skin, of peculiar value and importance. This unique botanical preparation allays all irritation and tenderness of the skin, removes cutaneous disfigurements, freckles, and tan, and imparts a healthy and blooming appearance to the complexion, and a delicacy and softness to the neck, hands, and arms. Sold in two sizes, by Chemists.

PIESSE and LUBIN.
Opopenax, Jockey Club, Patchouly, Frangipanni, Kiss-Me-Quick, White Rose, and 1000 others, from every flower that breathes a fragrance. 2s. 6d. each, or three Bottles in a Case, 7s. The above Sweet Scents in Sachet Powder, 1s. 6d. each, can be forwarded by post. Sold by the fashionable Druggists and Perfumers in all parts of the world.
2, NEW BOND-STREET, LONDON.

TURKISH PASTILS.
"Through all my travels few things astonished me more than seeing the beauties of the harem smoking Narghiles at Stamboul. After smoking, a sweet scented Pastil or paste is used by them, which is said to impart an odour of flowers to the breath. I have never seen these breath lozenges but once in Europe, and that was at PIESSE and LUBIN'S shop in Bond-street."—Lady W. Montagu.
In Boxes, 2s.; by post, 2s. 2d.
2, NEW BOND-STREET, LONDON.

NUDA VERITAS.—GREY HAIR restored by this valuable specific to its original shade, after which it grows the natural colour, not grey. Used as a dressing, it causes growth and prevents falling. The most harmless and effectual restorer extant. One trial will convince it has no equal. Price 10s. 6d., of all Chemists and Hairdressers. Testimonials post-free.—R. HOVENDEN and SONS, London.

GOLDEN HAIR.—ROBARE'S AUREOLINE produces the beautiful Golden Colour so much admired. Warranted perfectly Harmless. Price 5s. 6d. and 10s. 6d., of all Perfumers. Wholesale, HOVENDEN and SONS, 5, Great Marlborough-street, W.; and 32 and 33, City-road, E.C.

EPPS'S COCOA.
GRATEFUL and COMFORTING.
"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operation of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.
JAMES EPPS and CO., HOMŒOPATHIC CHEMISTS.
Also, EPPS'S CHOCOLATE ESSENCE, for Afternoon Use.

TRELOAR and SONS' LUDGATE-HILL.
MATS. FLOORCLOTH.
LINOLEUM. CARPETS.
TRELOAR and SONS, 69, Ludgate-hill, were established 1832. They are the only firm in London who deal exclusively in Floor Coverings. They have been awarded seven Prize Medals, including one at Paris, 1878. The Fine Arts Galleries at the International Exhibitions of 1851, 1855, 1862, 1865, 1869, and 1878, were covered with matting specially manufactured by them.

CHUBB'S SAFES FOR JEWELS, DEEDS, PLATE, BULLION, &c.
CHUBB'S LOCKS AND LATCHES, CHESTS, BOXES, &c.
CHUBB'S ILLUSTRATED PRICE-LISTS POST-FREE.
CHUBB and SON, 128, Queen Victoria-street, E.C.; and 68, St. James's-street, London.

CARSON'S PAINT FOR EXTREMES OF CLIMATE.
ANTI-CORROSION PAINT,
Patronised by her Majesty, the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Edinburgh, and 15,000 of the Nobility, Gentry, and Clergy, for every description of outdoor work, has been established upwards of eighty years, and has the reputation over every part of the habitable globe of being the best Preserver of Iron, Wood, Stone, Brick, or Compo.
It stands any extreme of climate, and seems only to harden with exposure. It is sold in all Colours.—Prices, patterns, and full particulars of free delivery, cash discount, with flattering testimonials; also list of Oils, Varnishes, Brushes, &c., can be had upon application to
WALKER CARSON and SONS,
La Belle Sauvage-yard, Ludgate-hill, London; and 24, Bachelor's-walk, Dublin.

CARSON'S ANTI-CORROSION PAINT is used by all the leading horticulturists for their conservatories and hot-houses, and has stood a practical test of upwards of eighty years.

THE SKIN.—The glory of woman, the pride of man. It contains the delicate lines of beauty and constitutes all that we term "Loveliness;" yet how many thousands have their skins blemished by the use of the irritant soaps, Carbolic, Coal Tar, Glycerine, and the coarse coloured soaps, caustic with alkali and made of putrid fats. The more delicate the skin the quicker its ruin. The ALBION MILK AND SULPHUR SOAP is the purest, the whitest, and most purifying of all Soaps, by its purifying action taking away and preventing all pimples, blotches, and roughness. It is recommended by the entire Medical Profession as the most elegant preparation for the skin that is known. By all Chemists, in Tablets, 6d. and 1s. THE ALBION SANATORY SOAP COMPANY, 532, Oxford-street, London.

COLDS CURED BY
DR. DUNBAR'S ALKARAM, or Anti-Catarrh Smelling-Bottle.
ALKARAM. COLDS.
ALKARAM. COLDS.
ALKARAM. COLDS.
IF inhaled on the first symptoms, ALKARAM will at once arrest them, and cure severe cases in half an hour. Sold by all Chemists, 2s. 9d. a Bottle. Address, Dr. Dunbar, care of Messrs. F. Newbery and Sons, 1, King Edward-st., E.C.

TAMAR INDIEN GRILLON,
For CONSTIPATION. BILE. HEADACHE.
TAMAR INDIEN GRILLON,
A LAXATIVE AND REFRESHING FRUIT LOZENGE.
UNIVERSALLY PRESCRIBED BY THE FACULTY.
TAMAR INDIEN GRILLON,
2s. 6d. per Box, stamp included.
Sold by all Chemists and Druggists.
Wholesale—E. GRILLON, 80, Queen-street, London, E.C.

ALLEN AND HANBURYS'
"PERFECTED" COD-LIVER OIL
is free from disagreeable taste and smell, and causes no nausea or after-taste. Of all Chemists, in capsuled bottles only.

HOOPING COUGH.
ROCHE'S HERBAL EMBROCATION.
THIS celebrated effectual Cure without internal medicine. Sole Wholesale Agents, W. EDWARDS and SON, 157, Queen Victoria-street (formerly of 67, St. Paul's-churchyard), London, whose names are engraved on the Government stamp.
Sold by most Chemists. Price 4s. per Bottle.

"FOR THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE."
CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE is warranted to cleanse the Blood from all impurities, from whatever cause arising. For Scrofula, Scurvy, Skin and Blood Diseases, its effects are marvellous. In Bottles, 2s. 9d. each, and in cases, containing six times the quantity, 11s. each, of all Chemists. Sent to any address for 30 or 132 stamps, of the Proprietor, F. J. CLARKE, Chemist, Lincoln.

BLAIR'S GOUT PILLS,
THE CELEBRATED
REMEDY FOR GOUT AND RHEUMATISM.
Sold by all Chemists, at 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. per Box.

DINNEFORD'S MAGNESIA.
The best remedy for Acidity of the Stomach, Heartburn, Headache, Gout, and Indigestion, and safest aperient for delicate constitutions. Ladies and Children. Of all Chemists.

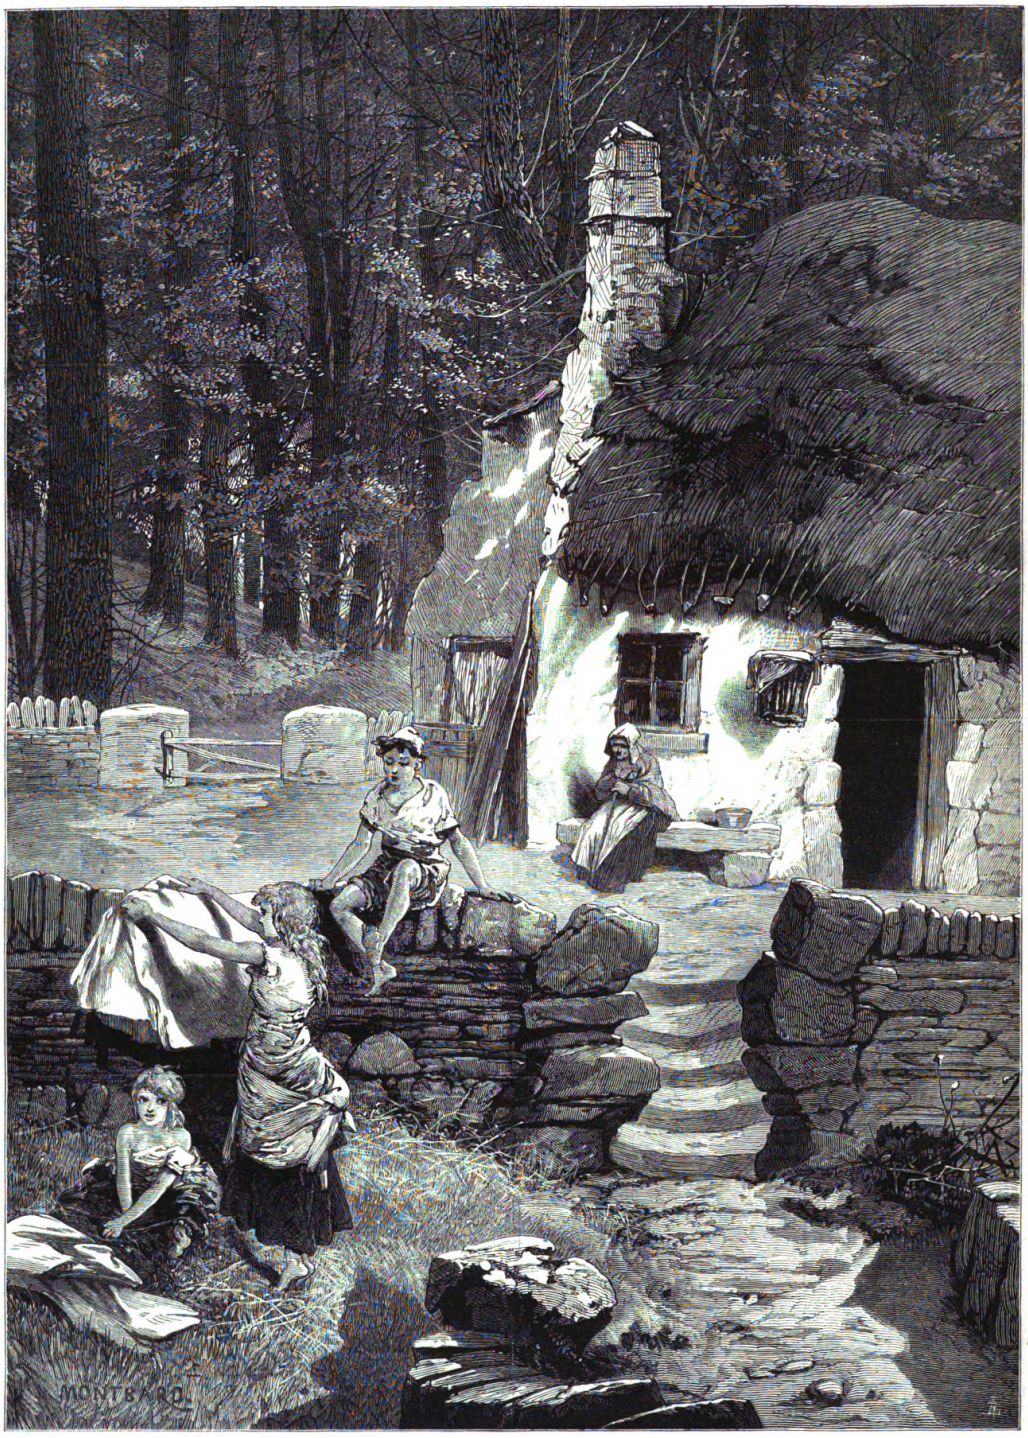
THROAT AFFECTIONS and HOARSENESS.—All suffering from Irritation of the Throat and Hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES. These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable Chemists in this country, at 1s. 1½d. per Box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" and the Government stamp around each box.—Prepared by JOHN I. BROWN and SONS, Boston, U.S. European Depôt, 23, Farringdon-road, London.

ELECTRICITY IS LIFE.
PULVERMACHER'S "GALVANISM,
NATURE'S CHIEF RESTORER OF IMPAIRED VITAL ENERGY."
In this Pamphlet the most reliable proofs are given of the vast and wonderful curative powers of Pulvermacher's Patent Galvanic Chain-Bands, Belts, &c., in Rheumatic, Nervous, and Functional Disorders. Sent post-free for three stamps on application to
J. L. PULVERMACHER'S GALVANIC ESTABLISHMENT, 194, Regent-street, London, W.

"KEATING'S POWDER" kills BUGS, Moths, Fleas, Beetles, and all Insects (perfectly unrivalled). Harmless to everything but Insects. Tins, 6d. and 1s.

* The mutton, ex the S.S. Protos, recently imported from Australia, is stated to have been sold in the London market at an average price of 4½d. per lb.

The annual available surplus of meat in Australia, estimated by Mr. A. R. Bruce, the Government Inspector of Stock for New South Wales, amounts to 205,252,000 lb.



ISLE OF MAN SKETCHES: A MANX COTTAGE.—SEE PAGE 457.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

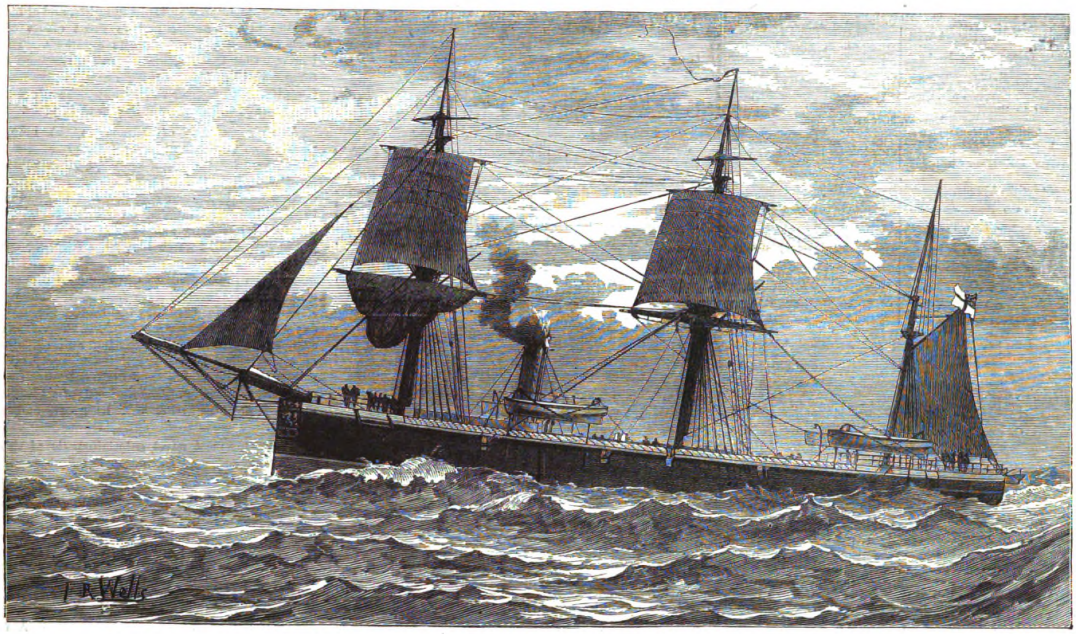
REGISTERED AT THE GENERAL POST-OFFICE FOR TRANSMISSION ABROAD.

No. 2191.—VOL. LXXVIII. SATURDAY, MAY 14, 1881. WITH TWO SUPPLEMENTS | SIXPENCE. By Post, 6½D.



H.M.S. DOTEREL, LATELY BLOWN UP IN THE STRAIT OF MAGELLAN.—SEE PAGE 474.

CONSECRATING THE MEMORIAL CHAPEL ON THE SPOT WHERE THE LATE EMPEROR OF RUSSIA WAS KILLED.—SEE PAGE 474.

BIRTHS.

On the 9th inst., at 17, Clanricarde Gardens, Hyde Park, Mrs. Eustace Meredyth Martin, of a son.

On March 25, at Valparaiso, the wife of F. W. McLaughlin, of a son.

On March 3, at St. Mary's Cottage, Parnell, the wife of W. Tomlinson, F.R.A.S., of the Auckland College and Grammar School, of a son.

On the 4th inst., at Frankfort-on-Maine, the wife of W. H. Lindley, C.E., of a daughter.

MARRIAGE.

On the 3rd inst., at Stuttgard, Count Rudolf Adelmann von Adelmannsfelden, of Schloss Hohenstadt, Wurtemberg, to Agnes Clara Selina, only daughter of Count and Countess Wilhelm von Zeppelin, and granddaughter of Lady Mabella Knox and the late Hon. John H. Knox.

DEATHS.

On the 6th inst., at 53, Marc-street, Hackney, Selina Elizabeth, wife of Robert Jesse Chillingworth, citizen, and blacksmith, in her 41st year.

On the 8th inst., at Florence, Lieutenan.-Colonel Sir John Digby Murray, Bart., of Blackbarony.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, or Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING MAY 21.

SUNDAY, MAY 15.

Fourth Sunday after Easter.
Scotch Quarter Day (termed Whit-Sunday).
Morning Lessons: Dent. iv. 1—23, John iv. 31. Evening Lessons: Deut. iv. 23—41, or v.; 1 Tim. iv.
St. Paul's Cathedral, 10.30 a.m., Rev. J. F. Kitto; 3.15 p.m., Rev. Canon Stubbs; 7 p.m.
Westminster Abbey, 10 a.m.
St. James's, noon, Rev. Canon Cook.
Whitehall, 11 a.m., Rev. Canon Prothero; 3 p.m., Rev. Dr. Thornton (Boyle Lecture).
Savoy, 11.30 a.m., Hon. and Rev. E. C. Glyn, Vicar of Kensington; 7 p.m., Rev. F. A. J. Hervey, Rector of Sandringham.

MONDAY, MAY 16.

Victoria Institute, anniversary, 8 p.m. (address by Lord O'Neill, the president).
Surveyors' Institution, 8 p.m.
Manchester International Horse Show (two days).
Somersetshire Society, ball, Willis's Rooms.

TUESDAY, MAY 17.

Humane Society, 3.30 p.m.
Royal Institution, 3 p.m. (Professor Dewar on the Non-Metallic Elements).
Statistical Society, 7.45 p.m.
Gresham Lectures, 6 p.m. (Dean Cowie on Geometry); and on the 18th, 19th, and 20th.
Civil Engineers' Institution, 8 p.m. (Discussion on Torpedo Boats and Light Yachts for High Steam Navigation).
Pathological Society, 8.30 p.m.
Zoological Society, 8.30 p.m.
Hibbert Lectures, St. George's Hall, 5 (Mr. Rhys Davids on Buddhism).
National Hospital for the Paralysed, bazaar, Rudimentary School, Knightsbridge, to be opened by the Duchess of Edinburgh (three days).
Pharmaceutical Society Conversazione (three days).
Anniversaries: Religious Tract Society, breakfast, Cannon-street, 9 a.m.; Peace Society, Finsbury Chapel, 6.30 p.m.
Races: Newmarket Second Spring Meeting.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 18.

Festival of the Sons of the Clergy, St. Paul's, 3.30 p.m., Rev. Dr. Butler; dinner at Merchant Taylors' Hall, 6.30 p.m.
Botanic Society, promenade, 3.30 p.m.
Bankers' Institute, 6 p.m. (Sir Richard Temple on Monetary Practice of the Natives of India; afterwards, the annual meeting).
Dental Surgery Association, 8.30 p.m.
Meteorological Society, 7 p.m. (Mr. R. H. Curtis on Anemometers; Hon. Rollo Russell on Waterspouts at Cannes, &c.).
Society of Arts, 8 p.m. (Mr. A. Siemens on the Electric Railway).
British Archæological Association, 8 p.m.
Amateur Mechanical Society, annual dinner.
Pharmaceutical Society, anniversary, 11 a.m.; conversazione at South Kensington, 8 p.m.
Sanitary Institute, 8 p.m. (discussion respecting smallpox).
South Kensington Museum, 4 p.m. (Mr. Norman Lockyer on Spectroscopy in relation to Solar Chemistry; and on Friday).
Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, anniversary festival, 7.30 p.m.
State Concert, Buckingham Palace.

THURSDAY, MAY 19.

Royal Institution, 3 p.m. (Professor Tyndall on Magnetism).
Chemical Society, 8 p.m. (papers by Messrs. L. T. Wright and C. V. Peard).
Royal Society, 4.30 p.m.
Historical Society, 8 p.m.
Numismatic Society, 7 p.m.
Antiquaries' Society, 8.30 p.m.
Anniversary: Christian Evidence Society, Exeter Hall, 2.30 p.m.
St. John's Foundation School dinner, Willis' Rooms, 6.30 p.m.
London Rowing Club: Trial Eights.

FRIDAY, MAY 20.

Moon's last quarter, 3.7 p.m.
Accession of Queen Victoria, 1837.
Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, 2 p.m.
United Service Institution, 3 p.m. (Vice-Admiral G. G. Randolph on the Group of Three and of Two in Naval Tactics).
Botanic Society, lecture, 4 p.m.
Royal Institution, 8 p.m. (Mr. Walter H. Pollock on Shakspeare Criticism, 9 p.m.).
Philological Society, anniversary, 8 p.m. (annual address by the president, Mr. A. J. Ellis).
London Institution, 5 p.m. (Rev. H. R. Haweis on some American Humorists).
University College Hospital, anniversary festival, Willis's Rooms, 6.30 p.m. (Prince Leopold in the chair).
Mansion House, public conference on National Thrift, 2.30 p.m.
National Health Society, Mayfair Lecture, 4 p.m. (Dr. W. Siemens on Stoves and Grates).
Sacred Harmonic Society, 7.30 p.m. (Rossini's "Moses in Egypt").
Races: Lewes Spring Meeting.

SATURDAY, MAY 21.

Royal Institution, 3 p.m. (Professor C. E. Turner on the Great Modern Writers of Russia—Pouschkin).
Yachting-Matches: New Thames, Erith, and Corinthian Clubs.

YORKSHIRE FINE-ART and INDUSTRIAL INSTITUTION, YORK.

NOW OPEN,
THE SUMMER EXHIBITION OF PAINTINGS, and the
PRINCE OF WALES'
MAGNIFICENT COLLECTION OF INDIAN PRESENTS.
Admission One shilling. Excursionists Sixpence.

INSTITUTE OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS. The FORTY-SEVENTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION is now OPEN from Nine till Seven. Admission, 1s.; Catalogue, 6d.
Gallery, 53, Pall-mall. H. F. PHILLIPS, Secretary.

THE ANNUAL SPRING EXHIBITION OF HIGH-CLASS PICTURES by BRITISH AND FOREIGN ARTISTS, including Professor Leopold Carl Müller's picture, "An Encampment beside Cairo," is Now Open at ARTHUR TOOTH and SONS' Gallery, 5, Haymarket. Admission, One shilling.

DORÉ'S GREAT WORKS.—"ECCE HOMO" ("Full of divine dignity."—The Times) and "THE ASCENSION." "CHRIST LEAVING THE PRETORIUM." "CHRIST ENTERING JERUSALEM," with all his other Great Pictures.—DORÉ GALLERY, 35, New Bond-street. Daily, 10 to 6. 1s.

SOCIETY OF BRITISH ARTISTS.—FIFTY-EIGHTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION NOW OPEN at the SUFFOLK-STREET GALLERIES, Pall-mall East, from Nine to six daily. Admission, One Shilling.
THOMAS ROBERTS, Secretary.

ROSA BONHEUR'S celebrated PICTURES, ON THE ALERT, and A FORAGING PARTY, which gained for the artist the Cross of the Order of Leopold of Belgium, at the Antwerp Academy, 1870, also the engraved works of Rosa Bonheur, including the well-known "Horse Fair," now on Exhibition at L. H. LEEVER'S GALLERY, 1a, King-street, St. James's, S.W. Admission, One Shilling. Ten to Five.

HERBERT EXHIBITION.—THE JUDGMENT OF DANIEL, painted for the House of Lords, and other Works, by J. R. HERBERT, R.A., NOW ON VIEW at the HANOVER GALLERY, 47, New Bond-street. Admission, One Shilling. From 9.30 to Six.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Irving. On MONDAY, WEDNESDAY, and FRIDAY, MAY 16, 18, and 20, at Eight o'clock, OTHELLO—Othello, Mr. Booth; Iago, Mr. Irving; Desdemona, Miss Ellen Terry. On TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY, MAY 17, 19, and 21, at 7.45, THE UCE and THE BELLE'S STRATAGEM—Mr. Irving and Miss Ellen Terry.

OTHELLO.—MORNING PERFORMANCES.—TWO SPECIAL MORNING PERFORMANCES of OTHELLO will be given, on SATURDAY, MAY 21, and SATURDAY, MAY 28, at Two o'clock precisely. On May 21, Mr. Irving will appear as Othello, and Mr. Edwin Booth as Iago; and on Saturday, May 28, Mr. Edwin Booth will appear as Othello, and Mr. Irving as Iago; Desdemona, Miss Ellen Terry. Seats can now be booked for these Special Performances. LYCEUM.

MR. and MRS. GERMAN REED'S ENTERTAINMENT. MANY HAPPY RETURNS, by Gilbert A'Beckett and Clement Scott; Music by Lionel Benson. A Musical Sketch, OUR INSTITUTE, by Mr. Corney Grain; and ALL AT SEA, by Arthur Law; Music by Corney Grain. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Friday, at Eight; Thursday and Saturday at Three.—ST. GEORGE'S HALL, Langham-place. Admission, 1s., 2s.; Stalls, 3s., 5s. No fees. Booking-Office open from 10 to 6. An entire Change of Programme, Monday, May 30.

THE
BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS,
A NEW JOURNAL FOR THE YOUNG.
The Proprietors of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS issued the first Illustrated Weekly Newspaper for Boys, price ONE PENNY, on Wednesday, April 6, 1881. THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS is a Journal full of Entertainment and Information for Youth; and, at the same time, a Paper which Parents can with confidence place in the hands of their Children.

CAPTAIN MAYNE REID'S "LOST MOUNTAIN." A New Romance in the best style of this famous Author, commenced in THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS for April 6.

THE LOST MOUNTAIN. Captain MAYNE REID'S New Romance is the Best Story for Boys now being published.

"SQUEE BIFFEN" LANDS ON A DESERT ISLAND FROM A BALLOON in No. 6 of THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS, May 11.

CAPTAIN WEBB.—A lifelike Portrait and a Memoir of this famous Channel swimmer appears in THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS for May 11.

H.M.S. DOTEREL.—A View of this ill-fated vessel appears in THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS for May 11.

BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS.
PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY.
One Penny; post-free, 1½d.

THE FIRST MONTHLY PART of THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS is now being published.
Price SIXPENCE; post-free, Eightpence.

SUBSCRIPTION TO THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS.
FOR THE UNITED KINGDOM:
Three Months, 1s. 8d.; Six Months, 3s. 3d.; Twelve Months, 6s. 6d.
ABROAD:
Post-free to any part of Europe, United States of America, Canada, and Egypt, for One Year, 6s. 6d.; to India, Ceylon, China, and Japan, for One Year, 10s. 10d. Elsewhere Abroad, One Year, 8s. 8d.
All subscriptions to be paid in advance direct by Post-office order, payable at the East Strand Post-office, to THOMAS FOX, 10, Milford-lane, Strand, London.

MR. SIMS REEVES' FAREWELL ORATORIOS at the ROYAL ALBERT HALL, under the special patronage of HER MAJESTY the QUEEN and all the members of the Royal Family.

THIRD CONCERT, WEDNESDAY, MAY 18, at Eight. Handel's
ISRAEL IN EGYPT.—Artists: Madame LEMMENS-SHERRINGTON, Miss DE FONBLANQUE, Madame PATEY, Mr. EDWARD LLOYD, Mr. SANTLEY, Signor FOLI, Mr. SIMS REEVES, and the ROYAL ALBERT HALL CHORAL SOCIETY.—Orchestra and Chorus 1000. Organist, Dr. Stainer. Conductor, Mr. Barnby. Prices:—Stalls, 10s.; Arena, 10s. 6d. and 7s.; Balcony, 5s. and 4s. Admission, One shilling. Tickets of the usual Agents'; Austin's Office, St. James's Hall; and at the Boys Albert Hall.

NOTICE.—Mr. SIMS REEVES has the honour to announce that, as JEPTHA cannot be included in the Series of FAREWELL ORATORIO PERFORMANCES, he will, in addition to the Tenor Music in ISRAEL IN EGYPT, give the Recit. and Air "Deeper and deeper still" and "Waft her angels" on WEDNESDAY EVENING NEXT, at the ROYAL ALBERT HALL.

RICHTER CONCERT.—MONDAY NEXT.—ST. JAMES'S HALL, MAY 16, at Eight.—Conductor, Herr Richter, of Vienna; Leader and Artistique Director, Herr H. Franke.

RICHTER CONCERT.—MONDAY NEXT, at Eight. Brahms' "Overture Academic." Liszt's "Mephisto Waltzer." Wagner's "Siegfried Idyll." Schumann's Symphonic, C major (Op. 61). Conductor, Herr Hans Richter, of Vienna.

RICHTER CONCERT.—Hans Richter, Conductor. Tickets, 2s. 6d., 5s., 10s. 6d., 15s., at Messrs. Chappell and Co.'s; Mitchell's; Lucas, Weber, and Chidley's; A. Hays'; S. Hays'; Austin's Ticket-office; and of Messrs. Schulz Curtius, 5, Vere-street, W.

SACRED HARMONIC SOCIETY.—St. James's Hall. Conductor, Sir Michael Costa.—On FRIDAY NEXT, MAY 20, at 7.30, Rossini's MOSES IN EGYPT. English version by Mr. J. Matthison. Principal Vocalists: Madame L. Sherrington, Mdlle. Enequist, Madame Enriquez; Messrs. E. Lloyd, Cummings, W. Nicholson, Hilton, and Santley. Organist, Mr. Willing. Tickets, 10s. 6d., 7s. 6d., and 2s. 6d.; at Society's Offices, 7, John-street, Adelphi; Austin's, St. James's Hall; and Ascot's.

ST. JAMES'S HALL, PICCADILLY.
THE
MOORE and BURGESS MINSTRELS'
NEW PROGRAMME,
replete with musical gems, sparkling conundrums, and humorous sketches, will be repeated until the end of the present month.
EVERY NIGHT AT EIGHT.
MONDAY, WEDNESDAY, and SATURDAY at THREE and EIGHT.
FIFTY ARTISTES,
including the Juvenile Choir, the Statuesque Dancers, and powerful Phalanx of Concertinas.
Fauteuils, &c.; Sofa Stalls, 3s.; Area, 2s.; Gallery, 1s.
No fees.

MOHAWK MINSTRELS.—SANGER'S AMPHITHEATRE.—EVERY EVENING, at Eight. Most brilliant Success. Crowded Houses. Enthusiastic Encores. Fresh Programme each week. No Clockroom extortions. Prices 6d. to Five guineas. E. MOWBRAY, Manager.

HORSE SHOW, AGRICULTURAL HALL, ISLINGTON. Entries close MAY 23. SHOW OPEN JUNE 6, 7, 8, 9, and 10.
Prize Lists and Forms of Entry may be had on application to the Office, Hartford-street, N. By order, S. SIDNEY, Secretary and Manager.
Agricultural Hall Company, Limited.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, MAY 14, 1881.

On Monday afternoon the Conservative peers sat at rest the controversy that has been carried on in the daily papers as to the choice of a leader in that Assembly. The meeting held at Lord Abergavenny's house was brief but conclusive. On the motion of the Duke of Richmond, seconded by Lord Cairns, the Marquis of Salisbury was unanimously selected to succeed the late Lord Beaconsfield in that exalted position. This decision was the more easy in consequence of the Duke's refusal to be nominated, and the support it received from Lord Carnarvon, who is once again formally identified with the party. For the present, apparently, the Opposition will be guided in each House by separate leaders acting in concert—two independent heads, with a common policy. It is an experiment, the wisdom of which will be tested by experience. The marked political characteristics of the deceased Conservative statesman will now be, as it were, separated. His vigour and boldness will find a representative in Lord Salisbury; his freedom from prejudice, patient waiting, and flexibility of tactics are better reflected in Sir Stafford Northcote. How these distinctive qualities of two independent chiefs can be so blended in action as to further the common interests of the party is a problem yet to be solved.

The difficulty is not decreased by the glimpse we got of Lord Beaconsfield's special aptitude—genius we might say—as a great leader in the speeches of Monday night. In supporting the proposal for a national monument to the veteran statesman in Westminter Abbey, Lords Granville and Lord Salisbury in the one House—the latter making his début as a leader—and Mr. Gladstone and Sir Stafford Northcote in the other, were singularly happy and discriminating in their eulogiums. The several speeches were redolent of dignity, kindly feeling, and good taste. No more delicate task could fall to the lot of the Prime Minister, who had to justify to his supporters a somewhat unpalatable proposal, and to praise the qualities of a Minister whose policy he had so often severely condemned. In stately language and with generous warmth, Mr. Gladstone "acquitted himself," says a Conservative writer, "with a grace that must baffle the most captious of his critics," in a speech referred to by Sir Stafford Northcote as a monument to his departed colleague "higher and better than any that can be carved out of stone or marble." The motion, thus generously recommended, was skilfully framed to express the high sense entertained by both Houses of Parliament of Lord Beaconsfield's "rare and splendid gifts, and of his devoted labours in Parliament and in great offices of State," without allusion to debateable questions. Those who believed that the erection of such a monument implied some sort of sanction of his Lordship's political career absented themselves, or voted for Mr. Labouchere's amendment, which was negatived by 380 to 54 votes.

The proceedings of Monday night brought into prominence two interesting points. Lord Granville, in the course of his graceful speech, and in illustration of Lord Beaconsfield's tenacity of purpose, stated that during the late Afghan debate, when the late Earl, deaf to remonstrance, insisted on speaking early, he had swallowed one drug and inhaled another in quantities nicely calculated to free him from suffering during the time required for his speech. The other novel feature of Monday's debate was Mr. Gladstone's touching repudiation of the prevalent idea that political opponents in Parliament are actuated by sentiments of personal antipathy or hatred for one another. These were not, he said, the relations between himself and his great rival, on whose behalf he warmly disclaimed any such feeling as inconsistent with his Lordship's character for candour and high-mindedness. The influence of all this in toning down political asperities will be great, and we hope abiding.

One of the most novel entertainments of this festive season was the banquet given on Saturday evening at the Mansion House to Dr. Moffat, the great African missionary, and to the representatives of the leading missionary societies. Our civic potentates, whose year of office is traditionally associated with profuse hospitality, cannot reasonably be denied the indulgence of their own special tastes. Sometimes it is men of letters, at another men of science, at a third dramatists and actors, who are in high favour at the Mansion House. Lord Mayor M'Arthur's not ignoble tendencies are in the direction of philanthropy and religion. A fortnight ago his Lordship did honour to the venerable Earl of Shaftesbury on completing his eightieth year. Last Saturday the patriarch of foreign missions occupied the place of honour; and the chief officials of the great societies, which directly or indirectly assist the work of evangelisation, were invited to meet Dr. Moffat at a stately entertainment given in the historical Egyptian Hall. Bishops, headed by the Primate; dignitaries of the Established Church; presidents of denominational communities, and Nonconformist divines of every degree; lay supporters of the societies now holding high festival; and missionaries from various parts of the world, sat side by side to partake of the Lord Mayor's prodigal repast, and enjoy unrestrained social intercourse. Many present who, like Dr. Moffat and his illustrious son-in-law, the late Dr. Livingstone, have led isolated lives, and endured with patient fortitude untold sufferings and hardships in the mission-field, must have been as bewildered at the scene of magnificence into which they were ushered last Saturday as they were cheered at this practical evidence of Christian unity. The good Archbishop of Canterbury was not less forward than his humbler ministerial brethren in recognising meritorious service in the mission-field, outside as well as within his own Church. When by such intercourse the points of agreement are found to be far more vital than the points of difference, the effect cannot but be beneficial. This is one of the happy tendencies of the age; and the present Lord Mayor must enjoy the satisfaction of feeling that he has done something to break down the barriers that keep apart earnest men who are working for common and noble objects.

The French campaign in Tunis has been materially advanced by the evacuation by the Khroumirs, without fighting, of the important position of Sidi Abdallah; by the occupation of Bizerta, a position outside the country occupied by these tribes; and by the advance of an infantry column within a short distance of the capital. While the idea of conquest or of a Protectorate is still vigorously disclaimed at Paris, the French Government insist upon exacting material guarantees from the Bey, which probably means his ultimate subjection to their authority. An army of 40,000 men and a fleet of ironclads cannot be needed to subdue a few border tribes; and their employment on the northern coast of Africa must involve more than "a military experiment," for it is being carried out without reference to the wishes of other European Powers. It seems to be a policy of adventure prosecuted with a view to secure French preponderance, to the exclusion of Italian and English interests, in the Regency, and probably with the connivance of Prince Bismarck. The ultimate outcome of this aggressive action has yet to be seen; but it is manifestly being entered upon with the unanimous approval of all sections of the French people, and with a vigour that implies a foregone conclusion.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

I went, on Wednesday, the Fourth of May, to the annual festival, at Willis's Rooms, of the Royal Literary Fund. The American Minister, the Hon. James Russell Lowell, was in the chair. There was a large gathering; and I was glad to notice, among the usual assemblage of Peers, members of Parliament, dignified clerics, medical men, and publishers, a fair sprinkling of working men of letters. Professional literature was represented by Mr. Leslie Stephen, Mr. Justin M'Carthy, Mr. Edmund Yates, Mr. Blanchard Jerrold, Mr. Fraser Rae, and a few others; but I should have liked to see a great many more "live authors" present. The Royal Literary Fund is a most admirable charity, generously, sagaciously, and delicately administered; and it is entitled to the support of every literary man. If he be a prosperous one, to help his less fortunate brethren, through the medium of this quietly beneficent institution, becomes a bounden duty.

Mr. James Russell Lowell made several speeches, full of tranquil humour and refined scholarship. His Excellency, it is true, fathered on Swift a droll anecdote about a charity sermon, which anecdote, I believe, was first narrated in connection with the Rev. Rowland Hill; and again, from his interesting enumeration of American writers Mr. Lowell, oddly enough, omitted the names of Ralph Waldo Emerson and Edgar Allan Poe. Whether he mentioned Bret Harte, Mark Twain, and George W. Curtis I am not quite certain. I am rather deaf. Sir Garnet Wolseley made a capital speech, delivered with ringing emphasis; Mr. Justin M'Carthy returned thanks with equal elegance and eloquence for English Literature; but the finest oratorical display of the evening was unquestionably that made by Lord Coleridge. It was splendidly polished and sonorous, in matter and in manner alike unimpeachable; and to listen to it was a rich literary treat.

One of the noble speakers at the top table, in responding to the toast of the House of Peers, quoted the names of Lords Bacon, Bolingbroke, Derby, Macaulay, Lytton, and Beaconsfield as exemplifying the close connection between literature and politics. The noble speaker might have added to his list Lord Shaftesbury of the "Characteristics," two Lord Strangfords—the translator of the Lusiad and the accomplished peer but lately among us: Lord Lyttelton, the historian; Lords Brougham, Campbell, Dorset, Roscommon, Stanhope, and Orford. For did not Horace Walpole die an Earl? Finally, the noble speaker might have known that there was never a "Lord" Bacon. There was a wonderful genius by the name of Sir Francis Bacon, Baron Verulam and Viscount St. Albans. Those who study with love and reverence his immortal works would blush to call him "Lord" Bacon. They speak of him as "Bacon," or as he, with simple dignity, was wont to speak of himself, "Francis of Verulam."

I am very sorry to learn that Sir William Gull has been compelled imperatively to prescribe a total surcease for the present from all literary and journalistic labour to Mr. Edwin Arnold, M.A., whose health, under a constant and exceptionally severe strain, has broken down. The wise physician has ordered his gifted patient away; and I sincerely hope that in a few weeks Mr. Arnold may be able to return with "a new lease of life," freshened and invigorated by the complete rest which he should have taken long ago. I know what it is to work hard; and I have known what it is to break down—during seven months of bitter agony—and I can thus fully sympathise with overworked and over-worried Mr. Arnold. But there is another reason why he has my ardent sympathy. We are altogether at opposite poles, intellectually speaking. I do not suppose we hold the same opinion on any one subject of human moment. I detest and abhor Mr. Arnold's political principles; and (metaphorically speaking) would willingly assist at his public execution, even to the extent (metaphorically) of pulling his legs after the bolt was drawn; but I have the highest admiration for his poetic genius, his vast and varied scholarship, his fervid eloquence, and his untiring industry; and I have the truest affection for him, personally, as a most kindly, amiable, upright, and pure-minded gentleman. When he gets well again I will continue to call for his consignment to the lowest depths of the Mamertine prisons, his deliverance into the hands of the Carnifex, and the ultimate exposure of his remains on the Gemonian steps.

My pen slipped last week when I wrote that the Ladies' Gazette of Fashion had been recently giving pictures of "Fashions for Artistic Folks." I should have said that it was the Journal des Modes, edited by Madame Marie Schild, which published such art-fashion plates; and in the number for May I find a very vigorous drawing of a lady in mediæval costume adapted to modern wear from a picture by Carlo Crivelli.

More than once I may have dwelt on the curious fact that all the fashion magazines, from "Le Follet" to "Myra," from "Sylvia" to Madame Schild, persist in pictorially informing you how French ladies dress their hair, but never enlighten English ladies as to the prevalent style of fashionable coiffure in England. Again, scarcely one of the fashion plate designers seems to be aware of the fact that English children at the present day wear, almost invariably, black or dark coloured stockings. In the fashion magazines we see only French children almost always in white stockings. How would it pay—I do not say with certainty that I have never asked the question before—to start a monthly magazine of English fashions, illustrated by Mr. Du Maurier, Mr. Tissot, and Mr. Marcus Stone, as anti-æsthetes; by Miss Kate Greenaway and Mr. Caldecott, as what I may call "Goody Two Shoes and John Gilpinites;" and by Mr. Walter Crane as a representative of æstheticism pure and simple? Mr. Coleman could scarcely be comprised in this bright band of artists. The lovely Greek maidens whom Mr. Coleman so deftly draws are, as a rule, too much addicted to the costume worn by Hans Breitmann's Mermaid to be of any practical use to the milliner or dressmaker.

To such a Magazine of English Fashions, leaving mere technical details of fabric to ladies, competent male writers might very advantageously contribute. Lest any of my lady readers, not being "behind the scenes," should indignantly protest against the supposition that a gentleman can know anything about a lady's dress, I may respectfully point out that the dresses of the famous Worth are all designed by men; that many years ago the Paris fashions were distinctly set in the "Parures" of Gavarni, and the "Propos de Femme" of Henri Valentin; and that at the present day we find the Hon. Lewis Wingfield designing the costumes for "Masks and Faces" at the Haymarket, Mr. Alfred Thompson planning the dresses for operas and ballet at the Alhambra, and Mr. E. W. Godwin making careful costume-drawings for Mr. Wills's "Juana" at the Court.

There closed on Friday, the 3rd inst., in St. Paul's-churchyard, a most interesting exhibition of needlework recently sent to the Editor of "The Girl's Own Paper" in competition for prizes, which will now be devoted to the use of the patients at the various London hospitals. Paintings—the well-abused Kyrle Society will be pleased to learn this—drawings, bedclothes, caps, crochet shawls, and sailor's bags were among the contents of "the Girls' Own Exhibition." Anything that does the slightest good to an hospital deserves support; and you have no need of the Charity Organisation Society as an intermediary before helping an infirmary.

A gentleman writes from the London Institution, Finsbury-circus, to tell me that he has recently come across an Italian dictionary, in two volumes, which bear on their covers an oval monogram with "Newstead Abbey" inscribed round the circumference, the interior being filled with the figure of a rampant lion (or unicorn) having a pennon, and at the base are the letters "T. W." Could these books have possibly any connection, asks my correspondent, with the poet Byron, who was an assiduous student of Italian literature!

I should be rather inclined, myself, to think that the "T. W." stood for the initials of the Colonel Wildman who was an occupant of Newstead Abbey for some years after the death of Lord Byron; but whether the volumes themselves ever belonged to the poet I am, of course, unable to say. But my correspondent, in his turn, puzzles me. Surely he should know the difference between a lion and a unicorn. But my perplexity diminishes when I find the bronze Dragon (which I have learned to love, which surmounts the Temple Bar Memorial) persistently called a Griffin. The Griffin in heraldry has the head and wings of an eagle and the body of a lion. The fabulous beast in Fleet-street has no hooked beak, but a most monstrous snout, a crested head, and a scaly body and forked tail. He is a Dragon. As Mr. Birch has represented him, so does he figure in the achievement of the City Arms on the titlepage of the Citizen's Pocket Chronicle for 1827, and thus from time immemorial have two Dragons served as supporters of the Civic arms. Yet everybody calls the Dragon a Griffin; and even worthy Mr. Bedford, who had so conspicuous a hand in raising him to his "bad eminence," speaks publicly of the bronze beast as a Griffin.

I read in the Times newspaper, in the report of Mr. Labouchere's speech on the Beaconsfield monument motion, the following remarkable statement:—"During the past twenty-five years there had been a vast number of Prime Ministers. Of these only five had received this sort of recognition from the country. The first was the Earl of Chatham; and the monument was specifically stated to be erected on account of great and signal services. . . . . The next Prime Minister to whom the honour was granted was Mr. Pitt."

Now, remembering that Mr. Henry Labouchere, M.P., has a remarkably tenacious (and occasionally embarrassing) memory for dates; that the accuracy of the Parliamentary Reports in the Leading Journal are, as a rule, unimpeachable; and finally, ascertaining from "Cassell's Biographical Dictionary" that William Pitt the First, Earl of Chatham, died in 1778, and William Pitt the Second in 1806, I own that in reading this passage from Mr. Labouchere's speech I "stood prostrate with astonishment," as Lord Castlereagh put it. Can it be that the Senior member for Northampton said "one hundred and twenty-five years," and that the Times reporter left out the trifle of a century?

Or was it the printers? Ah, those printers! How much I owe them, these many years past, for so intelligently deciphering my crabbed handwriting; yet how many salt tears they have made me shed! The other day, in this column, treating of the different pronunciation of, at different periods, certain English words, I mentioned that Pope made "tea" rhyme with "obey" but that few people nowadays asked for a cup of "tay." You know the quotation; but there is no Concordance (that I am aware of) to Pope about "Great Anna, whom three realms obey," and who "did sometimes counsel take, and sometimes tea." The printers made my suppositious "tea" rhyme to Mr. Pope's "tay" instead of to "obey." I have had worse fortune than this elsewhere. The other day, in "another place," I noticed a very clever, perverse picture in the Grosvenor Gallery called "The Grey Sisters." The printer set it up, and it passed the printers' readers (most patient of Caxtonians) as "The Grey Whiskers," and it was only in the nick of time that I discovered the blunder and corrected it. This was a case in which the compositor only, and not the reader, was in fault, since it was quite possible (in these days of eccentric titles) that the picture in the Grosvenor should have been called "The Grey Whiskers."

That "Aristology: or, the Art of Dining," by "Original" Walker, freshly edited by Sir Henry Cole, to which I incidentally alluded last week, is worth reading and re-reading for the sake of the pithy, humorous, and sensible notes appended to it by the Editor. But the "Original's" gastronomic canons are, in the main, sadly out of date. In his preface, Mr. Walker remarks that, according to the lexicons, the Greek for dinner is Ariston, and that, therefore, for the convenience of the terms, he calls the art of dining "Aristology," and those who study it "Aristologists." This is Attic, no doubt; but the modern Greek for dinner is gemá pronounced "gefma," and there is a greater difference between a Walkerian dinner and a modern one than there is between Classical and Romaic Greek.

For example, Mr. Walker prescribes the following bill of fare for a dinner at Lovegrove's (there is no Lovegrove now, no "Artichoke," and no "Brunswick!") at Blackwall. Clear turtle, followed by no other fish than whitebait, which is to be followed by no other meat but grouse, which are to be succeeded simply by apple fritters and jelly. With the turtle, of course, there will be punch; with the whitebait, champagne; and with the grouse, claret. The champagne, Mr. Walker tells us, is to "be particularly well iced," and he permits no other wines, "unless perchance a bottle or two of port."—There were to be eight guests—"if particularly wanted." The "Original" has the grace to own in another chapter that perhaps the introduction of some flounders in "water zootje" between the turtle and the whitebait would have been an improvement.

The Editor very sensibly points out that punch is too strong and tasteful with turtle soup thick or thin, and that it is barbarous and old-fashioned to drink it. "It impairs the sensibility of the palate for all wines afterwards." But what do you say to the whole menu, Miss Mary Hooper? I venture to think it from beginning to end Gothic, Ostrogothic, Anglo-Saxon, and barbarous. I am very fond of turtle; but, as a rule, ladies are not partial to it; and Frenchmen, although they will eat mock-turtle, cannot "abide" the real article, which they imagine to be a reptile. Other fish, besides whitebait, are indispensable at a Greenwich or Blackwall dinner: for "bait," crisply delicious as they are, have little flavour beyond that of fried batter; and, although flounder "zootje" is good, salmon "zootje" is better. Finally, just as grouse are coming in whitebait are going out. The "bottle or two of port" is too monstrous to be even discussed.

I am a poor, a very poor man; but I will willingly give a handsome reward—say a wooden spoon—to any one who can enlighten me as to the exact meaning of the following words, which I extract from an article in a daily paper on the performance of "Othello" at the Lyceum:—"Those who ridicule the pretensions of criticism when it differs, and who illustrate its absurdity by every want of harmony, will compel the playgoer to pin his faith to one Iago or the other." Of what is the absurdity to be illustrated by "every want of harmony"? Is criticism "when it differs" normally absurd? Want of harmony with what? Please enlighten me.

Most educated Londoners are aware that Mr. Hubert Herkomer, A.R.A., has designed a colossal poster as an advertisement for a "Magazine of Art," and that the ambitious artist aims at nothing less than a reform of all the pictorial graffiti which adorn or disfigure the hoardings of the London streets. But Mr. Herkomer should restrain his vaulting ambition. I have seen his poster. It is a very beautiful design, and is admirably suited to its purpose of promulgating the publicity of an Art-Magazine; but to bring High Art into requisition for the purpose of advertising such commodities as pickles, fish sauce, mustard, patent starch, sewing-machines, cigarettes, whisky, and burglar-proof safes would bring Art into contempt. I grant that the Herkomerian poster would do very well for a Horse or a Fat Cattle Show, and for theatrical purposes.

"Atlas," in the World, commenting on Mr. Herkomer's poster, observes: "If advertisers want real art combined with striking effect, I should advise them to consult my old friend Mr. William Beverly. He is one of the very few who could turn out a thing of this kind in a satisfactory manner." My dear "Atlas," why will you write such nonsense? Mr. William Beverly (I have known him these five-and-thirty years, and may his shadow never be less!) is a most admirable landscape, marine, and decorative artist. But he is not a draughtsman, either of the human figure or of animals; and the portrayal of men, women, and children of every degree, and of animals of every kind, is required in posters. Very few scene-painters can draw or have ever drawn the human figure with proficiency. It is not their vocation, "Atlas."

In the same number of The World I note some very beautiful stanzas, suggested for the "Vida es Sueño" of Calderon, signed "F. I. S." They are full of harmony and tenderness. I would that Mr. Frank Ives Scudamore (if he be F. I. S.) would favour his admirers with an imitation in English verse of Juan de la Encina's enchanting poem, beginning—

Mas vale trocar
Placer por dolores
Que estar sin Amores;

or the equally fascinating "Vaquera de la Finijosa" of the Marquis de Santillana. I suppose that in no language having a recognised literature is there a more essentially and entirely harmonious piece of lyric beauty than this verse in the "Vaquera"—

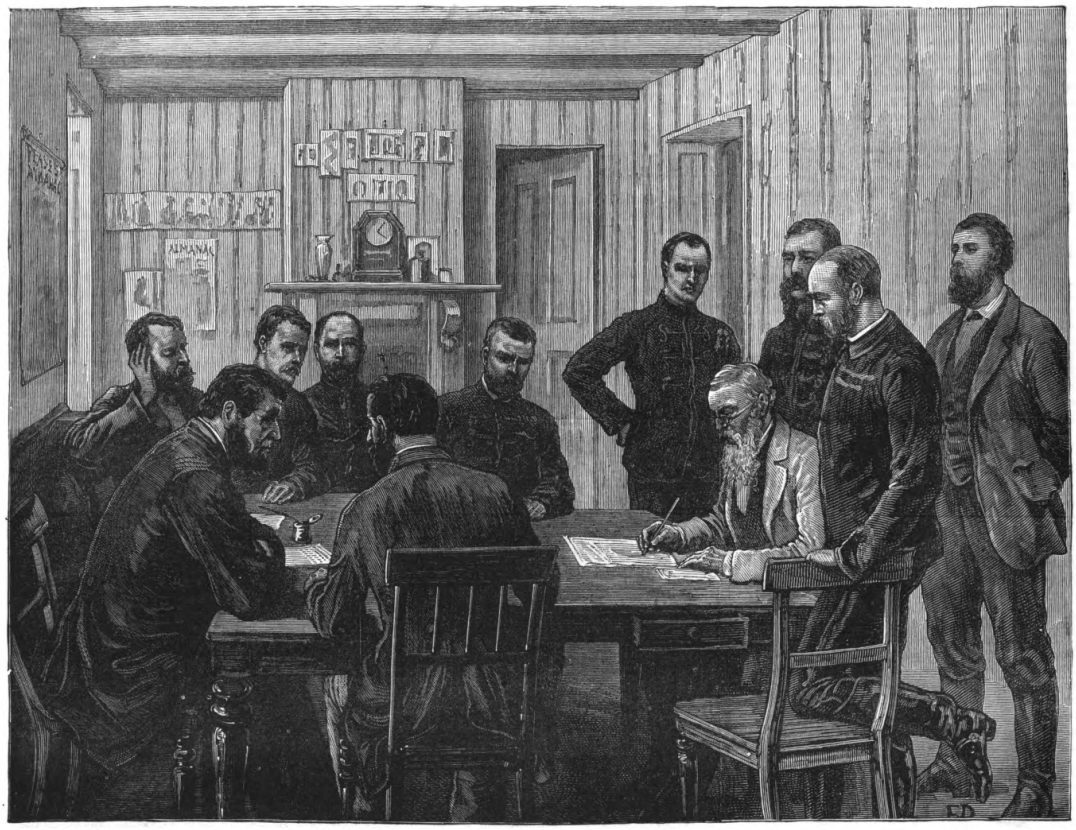
En un verde prado
De rosas y flores,
Guardando ganado,
Con otras pastoras,
La vi tan hermosa
Que apenas creyera,
Que fuese Vaquera
De la Finijosa.

I do not scruple to quote the Castilian, because the beauty of the diction is so simple and so direct that its meaning, I should say, will be at once gathered by all who know not only a little Spanish, but a little Latin, a little Italian, or a little French.

A large batch of letters touching the proper pronunciation of the Christian name "Ralph." When I have read the Keighley letter, seventeen octavo pages long, I will return to Ralph.

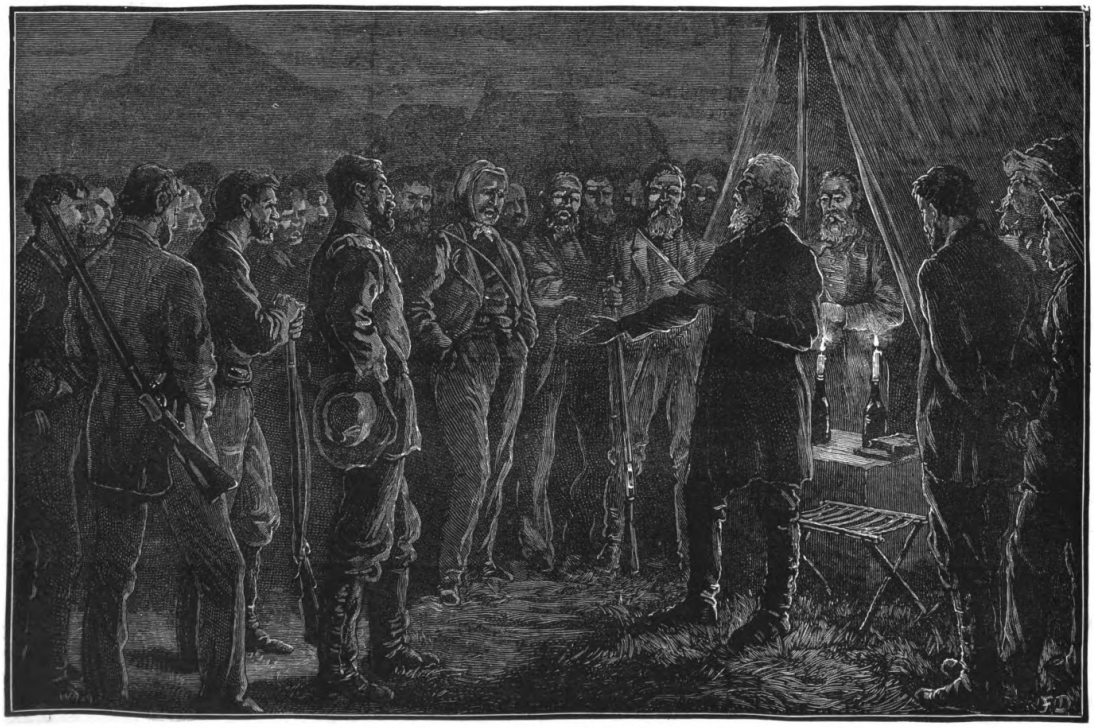
G. A. S.

THE TRANSVAAL WAR: SKETCHES BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.



Swart Dirk Uys. Lieut. Hamilton. Major Clark. Major Fraser. Captain Cropper. Captain Roberts. Commandant Smidt.
Mr. S. Paul Kruger. Mr. J. P. Joubert. President Brand (writing). General Sir Evelyn Wood.

SIGNING THE TERMS OF PEACE WITH THE BOERS AT O'NEIL'S FARM, NEAR PROSPECT HILL CAMP, MARCH 21.



THANKSGIVING SERVICE IN THE BOER CAMP AFTER THE SIGNING OF THE TREATY OF PEACE.

THE TRANSVAAL WAR: GENERAL SIR GEORGE COLLEY AT THE BATTLE OF MAJUBA MOUNTAIN JUST BEFORE HE WAS KILLED.
FROM NOTES SUPPLIED BY OFFICERS PRESENT TO OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.

THE TRANSVAAL WAR.

Our Special Artist in the British Camp, Mr. Melton Prior, with the assistance of several officers who were present at the fight of Sunday, Feb. 27, on the summit of Majuba Mountain, where General Sir George Pomeroy Colley was killed, has furnished a large drawing which supplies the Engraving, four times the size of this page, that is presented as an Extra Supplement this week. He sends us another Sketch of Sir George Colley as he appeared during the conflict, a few minutes before his death, and a number of Illustrations of the scenes that took place three weeks afterwards, upon the signing of the terms of peace by General Sir Evelyn Wood, and the proclamation of this fact in the Camp of the Boers at Laing's Neck.

The official account of the disastrous action of Feb. 27 was published in the London Gazette of last week. It consists of a report from Major T. Fraser, R.E., the senior officer surviving, with inclosed reports from Sub-Lieutenant Augustus Scott, R.N., of the Naval Brigade, and Dr. Edward Mahon, Naval Surgeon. Their narratives are accompanied with several lithographed drawings; outline perspective views of the approach to Laing's Neck from the camp at Prospect Hill, with Majuba Mountain to the left hand; a plan, in relief, of the whole of that ground, on the scale of two inches to the mile, drawn by Lieutenant Brotherton, R.E., and Major Fraser; a rough sketch plan of the summit of Majuba Mountain, done by Lieutenant Hamilton, of the 92nd Regiment, while in hospital after his wound; and Major Fraser's complete and finished plan, which is on the scale of an inch to fifty yards in the official publication, but which has been reduced for this Number of our Journal.

We refer to Major Fraser's plan of the "Top of Majuba," with the place marked "H," at the foot of the ascent, and the different parts of the summit, distinguished by numbers from 1 to 12, which are mentioned in his narrative. It should be remembered that the whole force consisted of about 560 men, composed of three companies, 180 men, of the 92nd Highlanders, under Major Hay; two companies, 140 men, of the 3rd battalion of the 60th Rifles, under Captain Smith; two companies, 170 men, of the 58th Regiment, under Captain Morris, and 64 of the Naval Brigade, under Commander Francis Romilly, R.N. They left the Mount Prospect Camp at ten o'clock on the Saturday night, reached the foot of the mountain at half-past one in the morning, and had a most fatiguing climb to the summit. We now quote Major Fraser's report, desiring the reader to follow the references to the numbered spots on the accompanying engraved Plan :—

"The guides were doubtful of the way, but we went straight up along a stone-covered ridge from "H" to (1), (See sketch of hill top.) I reached (1) at 3.40 a.m., found hill unoccupied, and took steps to extend the 58th towards (2), to make way for the column.

On the General's arrival, immediately afterwards, Colonel Stewart and myself were sent down to hurry up the column. The men, heavily weighted as they were, had made extraordinary efforts to reach the top, and were extremely exhausted. On our return they were extended all round the brow, showing on the sky line.

The Boers were entirely ignorant of our movements. General Colley forbade firing on some of them below us, but some shots were fired without orders at about 5.45 a.m. Sixteen men were posted at "H," and a few at (5). The General now organised the defence as follows :—

To the 92nd was assigned the whole brow from (6) by (5), round to between (4) and (3). One company extended, the other in reserve in rear of the ridge (7), (9). One company of the 58th was ordered to hold the brow from (3) by (2) to (1), the other company in reserve with the 92nd. The sailors extended from (1) to (10), keeping a small reserve with the others. The General thought the troops were too exhausted for any systematic intrenchment, but the extended men made cover of stones and turf, and two wells were dug where shown.

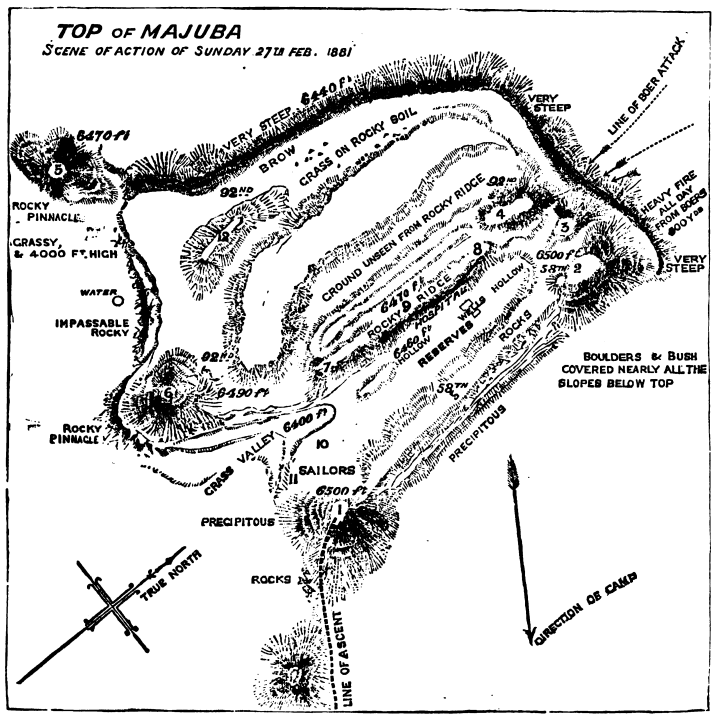
We looked down upon the whole position of Laing's Neck, and saw three large Boer waggon laagers in rear of it, at 2000 to 3000 yards to north-west; and a fourth about 1500 yards to west of us.

Shortly after six a.m., the Boers began a desultory fire. They inspanned their oxen in laagers, and stood ready to go. At the same time, reinforcements, mounted and on foot, kept coming up. We counted 160 men in one party alone. These all worked up skilfully under cover till within 600 yards from the brow, and then kept up a rapid fire on us. Our men fired very slowly and steadily, to save ammunition.

About 10.15 a.m., Colonel Stewart and I went with the General to (11), where Commander Romilly stood, to arrange to start the sailors on an intrenchment at (1). Commander Romilly was shot between us by men from below, firing from the south-west. Finding the ground so exposed, the General did not give the order to intrench.

The fire somewhat slackened till 11.30 a.m. By this time the Boers had advanced up the steep slopes, which were unseen from our shooting line. They were massed under cover, and then moved up rapidly. Some fifteen or twenty of our men were now sent up the rocky peak (6) on our extreme left, and a few sailors were sent to (1) to guard our rear there. Colonel Stewart and myself and others took the rest of the reserves and reinforced the shooting line about twelve noon; but not finding room for these supports, whence they could shoot down the brow, we withdrew and posted them on a second ridge (7, 4) about 12.15 to 12.30 p.m.

The sailors at (1) now came running down, saying they were attacked from the east. We sent them back to do the best they could. As the Boers closed General Colley was at (9), Colonel Stewart next him, and I was on the left, towards



PLAN OF THE TOP OF MAJUBA MOUNTAIN, WITH POSITIONS REFERRED TO IN THE REPORT OF MAJOR FRASER, R.E.

(7); all in the shooting line. We had succeeded in getting the men to fix bayonets.

The attack advanced, firing so rapidly we could only see their rifles through the smoke as they crept up. Ours fired repeatedly, and fell fast. They began to retreat and make for the last ridge (12) about 12.45 p.m. Colonel Stewart ran back to rally them, and failing to do so was returning to General Colley when the latter fell. As the Boers came up to the rocky ridge the remainder of our men fell back after the others.

I now went after our retreating men, walking from the Hollow towards the point (11), feeling too exhausted to catch up the men; as I was near the hollow I saw General Colley, with a few men, moving back near the wells. He turned round to face the enemy, and fell shot through the head by fire from the rocky ridge which we had just left.

When I got between (11 and 1) our men were passing over the ridge (1 and 2). Fresh firing parties now opened on me from below (6), and in seeking shelter I went down the precipitous hillside, 200 or 300 feet.

Our Special Artist writes us a letter describing what he saw in the Boer Camp on Laing's Neck on March 24 and next day, immediately after the final signing of the convention for peace. The preliminaries were agreed to between the 18th and the 21st, at O'Neil's Farm, near the British Camp, between Sir Evelyn Wood and Messrs. Joubert and Kruger, at the termination of the prolonged armistice, but the settlement of further details took three days longer.

Mr. Melton Prior says that, as soon as the peace was signed, President Brand, of the Orange Free State, who had accompanied and assisted Sir Evelyn Wood in these negotiations, started for the Boer Camp, in a "spider" carriage with a pair of horses. Thinking it would be a good opportunity to see the Boers before they quitted Laing's Neck, our Artist asked Commandant Joubert's permission to follow Mr. Brand. This was allowed by Mr. Joubert, but with the warning that Mr. Prior must take the risk of any difficulty or trouble. Mr. Prior then took leave of General Wood, and rode off to overtake President Brand's carriage. This he presently saw, at a distance, at the bottom of the ascent to Laing's Neck. It was fortunately stopped by meeting with a band of the Boers, Mr. Brand entering into some talk with them. Mr. Prior was anxious to come up with him before reaching the top of the hill, as he knew he would not be able to pass alone. He came up with the escort near the top, and "waving my hand," says Mr. Prior, "in a cheery sort of way," galloped up close to the carriage. He then at once found himself all right. Mr. Brand stopped the carriage a moment, to speak to Mr. Prior, shook hands with him, and ordered the cornet, or commander of the escort, to take care of Mr. Prior, and to see that he was not molested.

In this manner, our Special Artist was the first English newspaper correspondent to enter the Boers' camp on Laing's Neck. He made a Sketch of the exciting scene, as President Brand, looking out of the carriage, announced to the Boers that the war of the Transvaal was at an end, and that the terms of peace had been signed. Our two-page engraving, from Mr. Prior's Sketch, shows the carriage surrounded by a multitude of those brave and patriotic Dutch farmers, some of them grave and quiet in demeanour, others cheering and shouting for joy, waving their hats and caps, and their rifles, and freely expressing the sentiments of grateful gladness and manly pride at the recovery of their national liberties, for which they had fought so stontly. The President of the Free State, and our Artist following him, then moved on to enter the Camp, which was two or three hundred yards beyond the Neck, or top of the Pass. It was formed, in the Dutch fashion, of a number of waggons set close together, making a "laager," with tents inside. Mr. Prior's appearance, as an Englishman, when he dismounted in the Boers' Camp, excited their curiosity, and a crowd gathered about him, talking and laughing, but he does not understand the Dutch language. He found them rough and noisy, compared with the orderly propriety of manners to be observed among British soldiers. But some attention seems to have been paid to his personal accommodation; for he was soon informed that he was to sleep that night in the tent which had been provided for Mrs. Joubert, as that lady had gone to her own home.

It was by this time evening, and the camp fires were lighted all around. Our Artist walked towards the tent occupied by President Brand. Beside this was a waggon, and the Boer who owned it was on the top of the waggon, in the act of untying the Transvaal Republican flag on its flag-staff. The flag was blue, white, and red, and he was about to reverse its position, to put the red colour uppermost, with what significance is not explained. When this was done, he waved the flag about his head, with a shout, the meaning of which Mr. Prior did not understand. It was answered by a tremendous burst of shouts and cheering from the assembled Boers. This scene is the subject of one of our Artist's Sketches.

After displaying their flag, the crowd moved away to another part of the Camp, where a religious Thanksgiving Service for the Peace was to be solemnised. Our Artist was admitted within the circle of the congregation, and furnishes a sketch likewise of this simple act of Puritan worship, which reminds us of the history of the Scottish Covenanters, in their severe struggle for freedom. The minister stood, with a hymn-book in his hand, in front of a tent where, on a box or chest behind, two candles were burning, stuck in bottles for want of proper candlesticks, to give him light to read by. The Boers, standing all round their pastor, still held their rifles, and wore their cartridge-belts, which, indeed, they would not lay aside while in camp. A hymn was given out, and then all joined in singing it: but the quality of their vocal music was not such as to gratify a refined connoisseur. Then came a prayer; then they sang another hymn, which was followed by more prayer or exhortation. Considering religion from a fine-art point of view, this performance of the grim-looking, slovenly, illiterate Boers might seem rather grotesque than impressive. But there was, no doubt, a serious meaning in the service; and, if ever any people had cause to give Heaven thanks for an unexpected deliverance from the miseries of war, it was those Dutch farmers of the Transvaal, and the families they had left, during a four months' campaign, in a hundred scattered villages and homesteads of their South African Canaan.

From the Thanksgiving congregation, our Artist returned to the tent which had been allotted to him, and there his dinner was brought him, meat, biscuits, and coffee, not very nice or neatly served, but he is an old campaigner. He slept, and rose early next morning, the 25th, to go about and sketch the Boers' camp. It was all on the move; cattle were being "inspanned," or yoked to the waggons, and packing was busily proceeded with. After making some sketches, Mr. Prior was beset with a crowd of Boers, wanting him to draw their portraits; as there are few, if any, photographers or artists in the rural parts of the Transvaal. They pressed upon him, with the simple eagerness of children, crying out, "My turn next!" or, "No, it's my turn," or "I'm the third," "I'm the fourth," and so on, till he had to do the likenesses of fifteen or twenty, which put them, of course, in a very good humour. Turning back, as he was told that General Sir Evelyn Wood was coming into the camp, Mr. Prior now saw that there were many women in the camp. Some of the Dutch ladies, wives of the Boers, were "very pretty and jolly," as he confesses, and dressed smartly enough in the European fashion of their class. The good "vrouws," who had probably come from their farmhouses since the armistice, naturally looked "far better than their husbands," since these had endured, without the regular provision that is made for a well-appointed modern army in the field, all the hard-ships, dirt included, of an arduous campaign. One of the Sketches is that of several groups of the Boers and their womankind standing about a waggon, some with field-glasses, looking out for the arrival of the British General.

As soon, however, as Sir Evelyn Wood came into the camp, the word was given for the whole Boer army to muster for inspection, and to greet him with a parade of honour. From every side, the men rushed in to find their horses; and, in five minutes, all were in the saddle, and trooping in due order to the parade-ground. There they formed a hollow square, under the orders of their Commandant, while General Wood, mounting upon a waggon, inspected their appearance, of which he has spoken favourably in one of his despatches. He was observed to lift his hand, as if counting their numbers, which were, all told, about 2500. The General soon afterwards took his leave, and the Boer camp was instantly broken up. Far to the west and north-west, all that day, long lines of waggons, oxen, and horsemen streamed away for hours across the Transvaal plain, which was henceforth to be left free as the abode of a self-governing people, courageous in the just vindication of their freedom.

We learn from this week's telegrams that the Royal Commission, which is fully authorised to discuss all questions concerning the future constitution of the Transvaal State, its territorial limits, its political relations to the suzerainty of the Imperial Government, the functions of the British Resident, and the guarantees for the welfare of the native tribes, besides incidental claims of compensation, has already begun its sittings at Newcastle. Sir Hercules Robinson, Governor of the Cape Colony and High Commissioner for the affairs of South Africa, arrived at that place last Sunday, having been preceded by Sir J. H. De Villiers, Chief Justice of the Cape Colony, who is a Dutchman highly esteemed and entirely trusted by all the Dutch people of South Africa. The third Royal Commissioner is Major-General Sir Evelyn Wood, Lieutenant-Governor of Natal, who is also personally known and acceptable to the Boers of the Transvaal. The eminently able and successful President of the Orange Free State, Mr. J. H. Brand, with the express sanction of his own Volksraad, has come from Bloemfontein to Newcastle, at the request of her Majesty's Government through Sir Evelyn Wood, to lend his valuable assistance in the work of the Royal Commissioners. They have to deal, on the other hand, with the official chiefs of the Boer Republic, Messrs. P. J. Joubert, S. Paul Kruger, and M. W. Pretorius, assisted by Dr. E. P. Jorissen, whose communications with our Government, year after year, since the Annexation of April, 1877, have shown their moderate views and conciliatory spirit, with a fixed resolve to insist on the redress of that great public wrong. It is supposed that the proceedings of the Royal Commission, which was formally opened last Tuesday morning, may occupy about three weeks.

---

Some Arab tribes are reported to have entered Mecca, pillaged the Holy City, and cut off the postal communications. A caravan of Musselman pilgrims from India has also been pillaged by Arabs.

Prince Alexander of Bulgaria has issued a proclamation declaring that the present state of things in the Principality is such as to render the execution of his mission impossible and announcing that, unless the National Assembly assents to arrangements which he himself will indicate, he has determined to vacate the throne.

Sir Samuel Rowe, the Governor of Cape Coast, who, according to the latest news from Cape Coast Castle, had gone with his secretary and staff to Mansue, on the road to the river Prah, has addressed a circular to all the districts in the protectorate, assuring them that England did not desire war with the Ashantee King.

THE PLAYHOUSES.

On Monday last "Othello" was played at the Lyceum, Mr. Henry Irving interpreting the part of the noble Moor and Mr. Edwin Booth that of Iago. I will take the last-named impersonation first. It is a very fine one. Mr. Booth does not essay to give any novel rendering of the complex character of Emilia's "wayward" husband. He is content to base his Iago on the conventional and what may be termed the classical lines of Shakespearean tragedy. His Iago is simply a stern, cold, scheming, unrelenting, and somewhat sullen villain. He rather subdues than brings into high relief the humorous side of Iago's abominable cynicism. Goethe had assuredly Iago in his mind when he drew his humorously and sometimes even facetiously cynical Mephistopheles, who exhibits none of the despairing self-consciousness of irremediable perdition which blends such wondrous subtlety with the utterances of the mocking Fiend in Marlowe's "Faustus;" and Mr. Booth's Iago is a mundane congener of the Mephisto of Goethe, and not of Marlowe—that is to say, a villain of an entirely devilish, abandoned, and atheistic mind—ready to take any number of oaths in the sanctity of which he does not believe—denying, in short, all and everything; comforted by no hope, restrained by no fear; the embodied spirit, in fine, of Negation; and consequently a liar by nature, by policy, and by inclination. The stupendous insincerity of Iago's soul has been wonderfully indicated by Shakspeare when, in one scene, he makes the scoundrel tell the despondent Cassio that "Reputation is a most idle and false imposition; oft got without merit, and lost without deserving;" while in the very next scene he sanctimoniously tells Othello that who steals his purse steals trash; but he who filches from him his good name, robs him of that which does not enrich the thief, but makes the loser of the good name poor indeed. What is all this but the absolute mental negation of any such thing as Truth? Iago's wickedness is thus evenly balanced. He is a "level" knave. He is villanous "all round," and Mr. Booth has taken care that there shall be no light-hearted, vivacious, or romantic side to the dark, deep, and almost supernatural badness of Iago. He was thus at his best in the soliloquies; for, when he is alone Iago, although he once banteringly asks "What 's he, then, who says I play the villain?" is, in the main, sternly serious when he is alone. He has dropped the mask; and the mien of the demi-devil is revealed in all its revolting horror. The declamation of Mr. Booth was from first to last superb. Very rarely, indeed, was there suspicion of a slightly nasal timbre in his lower tones; but his enunciation was throughout faultlessly distinct and ringingly sonorous; and he has ceased to pronounce the name of Desdemona as Desdermona. His Iago, if we accept the traditions of classic acting as a standard, is a truly noble performance, vindicating to the fullest the well-deserved fame of a deep and earnest scholar and a most accomplished artist.

The Othello of Mr. Henry Irving I regard as a grand creation of a distinctly Mediæval and Oriental type. I say Mediæval because in modern times such a personage as the dark-skinned soldier of the Signory of Venice would have been next door to the impossible. I say Oriental because I have seen many Othellos, who, beyond a scimitar, an Algerian burnous, and a burnt-cork face and hands, had nothing whatever of the East about them. In studying the works of a poet whose greatest productions are more or less mingled with but not obscured by impenetrable mysteries, criticism is entitled to hazard opinions and to build up theories; and the assumption is surely permissible that Othello was the son—captured in early youth, baptised in the Christian faith, and educated at the cost and charges of the Most Serene Republic—of a Moorish Emir of princely rank, a Moor of Mauritania, as black as Queen Dido, and not a sallow Moor of Granada or of Andalusia. The State of Venice took those who could render it some service wheresoever it could find them; and it is quite possible that the "Barbarns" cited by old Knolles in his "Historie of the Turkes" as having been the Venetian Ambassador at Constantinople who discovered the plot of the "Ottomites" to seize Cyprus, may have been, like Othello, originally a Moor from Barbary. In so patrician a State as Venice the epithet of "Noble" was not lightly bestowed; and Shakspeare's Moor is repeatedly and authoritatively saluted not only as the "Valiant" but as the "Noble" Othello. Arguing then from the inference that the progenitors of Othello had been princes in their own land, Mr. Irving had full warrant for making his appearance in the First Act in robes surpassing in their picturesque splendour the costume worn on state occasions by the Maharajah Dhuleep Singh. Frequently during the play does Othello have to change his dress; and each time did he astonish the audience by the picturesque magnificence of his apparel. I grant, and unreservedly grant, the propriety and the felicity of this sumptuary splendour. I grant the artistic fitness of the necklace and the earrings. I only doubt the fitness of the white turban donned by Mr. Irving in the First Act. I doubt it because Othello, just before he stabs himself, speaks of "a malignant and a turbaned Turk;" and because I have an impression that the turban was the distinctive badge of the Mahomedan Moors in Venice, and that the Moors who had become Christians were forbidden by law to wear it. But I will look through the Earl of Orford's unique book, in which there are many references to the Venetian Moriscos, and see if I can find out anything about turbans.

Mr. Irving's rendering of Othello was as magnificent as his attire. In the presence of so finished a master of elocution as Mr. Booth, he was on his mettle in the delivery of the set speeches; and his enunciation was much clearer and more distinct than is usually the case. His frequent transitions from loudly pitched to very low and melodious tones are organic peculiarities, and must be borne with. At least, they do not become wearisome as a monotonous sostenuto is apt to do. But it was in the scenes of passion and the scenes of tenderness that Mr. Irving was most triumphantly successful. The cry of "I'll not believe it!" when Iago has all but succeeded in arousing his jealousy—a cry so wondrously indicative of the thorough generosity and nobility of his nature—simply electrified the house. The bed-room scene was much more artistically managed than it was on the occasion when Mr. Booth played the Moor, the bed being placed in the centre instead of at the side of the stage; and the whole grim scene of Desdemona's murder, and its harrowing sequel, was grandly interpreted by Mr. Irving; and in every gesture, look, and word he was, to the last, the noble Moor. I know not whether in the minds of many other spectators there was created the impression which arose in my mind, that when Othello advanced to kill Desdemona, he had altogether ceased to be jealous of her, and that he was, in his own wild Oriental fashion, only carrying out the sentence of execution which, according to Oriental practice, he had passed upon her. A jealous Italian would have stabbed the wife whom he suspected of infidelity so soon as she had confessed her inability to find the handkerchief; but the implacable Oriental waits till he has accumulated more evidence—he must have the proof, the ocular proof; and having it, as he thinks, the pillow or the dagger do their office just as the bowstring or the sack would have done it had Desdemona been a Turkish or a Mauritanian wife instead of a Venetian. Desdemona must die, not because Othello thinks she has betrayed him, but lest she should betray more men.

Of the excellent manner in which Mr. T. Mead as Brabantio, Mr. Edward Terriss as Cassio, and Miss Pauncefort as Emilia, acquitted themselves it were needless to speak again, as I have so recently applauded the efficiency of these excellent artists. Miss Ellen Terry was not so nervous as she was on the previous occasion; and the passionate expression of grief, when she sinks to the ground overwhelmed by Othello's cruel insult, had gained much in plaintive pathos. For the rest, she was a model of grace, beauty, and refinement; but will this charming young actress forgive me if I point out to her that, quite accidentally, she adopts one attitude—and one only—which is decidedly ungraceful? It is to the ground by the side of a chair that she sinks after Othello has left her overwhelmed with grief and shame at the cruel words he has hurled at her. While in this posture she flings her left arm over the arm of the chair, till her wrist touches the table; and this left arm she protrudes in a straight line, and as stiff as any poker, at an angle of forty-five degrees to the horizontal line of her clavicles. The effect, to me, was most unlovely. Unless I have misunderstood my Henry Siddons and my Engel's "Ideen zu einer Mimik," it is only rhetorically allowable to hold both arms straight and stiffened out in the attitude of adjuration or invocation, like that of Æneas in the Storm; and to hold one arm and hand straight and stiff, not sideways, but in advance, in the attitudes of menace, of command, or of simple indication. These are all perfectly natural, and therefore artistic attitudes. In all other moods of gesture the arm should be either bent or rounded. Let Miss Terry look at herself in a pier-glass, as Gavarni's heroine does when she is practising the supplication, "Seigneur protégez une Vierge Chrétienne;" and the gracefullest and most sympathetic artist on the English stage will understand what I mean.

I do not intend to dwell at any great length on Mr. W. G. Wills's new and original four-act tragedy of "Juana," produced at the Court Theatre on Saturday last, because it is extremely painful to me to have to write disagreeable things, and I cannot, in the case of "Juana," say what I should like to say concerning a dramatist with such high poetic gifts as those which Mr. Wills undoubtedly possesses, and a tragic actress of the bright genius and consummate artistic capacity which pertain to Madame Modjeska. "Juana" strikes me as being not only a very ghastly and bloodthirsty but a very tedious play. The plot is akin to some of the old Victorian melodramas of the "Manfroni, the One-Handed Monk" and "Ginevra, the Scourged One" order. Don Carlos de Narcisso (Mr. Forbes Robertson), a dissolute Knight of Granada, has been wounded in a fray and conveyed to the castle of Juana Esteban (Madame Modjeska), a noble lady, an orphan, whose father has been murdered, and who has an hereditary taint of madness in her blood. She nurses the dissolute knight, falls madly in love with him, and marries him. But Don Carlos has found at the castle an old and equivocal flame, Clara Perez (Miss Ada Ward), with whom, both before and after his marriage, he audaciously flirts; and in sheer desperation the slighted and betrayed wife draws a dagger and stabs her faithless spouse through the heart. Then she goes raving mad over his remains, and shrieks with laughter. She is captured, wandering in a wood in Madge Wildfire garb, accused of the murder of her husband, and confronted with his corpse, in order that the grim farce of the Ordeal by Touch shall be gone through; but a devoted monk named Friar John (Mr. Wilson Barrett), who has been Juana's tutor, and has loved her before he took the vows, interposes to rescue her. He scratches his own wrist with a dagger so as to draw blood, and then, touching the corpse of Don Carlos, holds up his red right hand as stained not with his own gore but with that of the dead knight. This pious fraud leads to Friar John being condemned, walled up alive in the wall of the cloisters of his convent; but Juana, who has recovered her senses, contrives to hide herself in the niche in which Friar John is to be immured, and at the proper time steps forth, avows her guiltiness of the murder, proclaims the innocence of the devoted monk, and dies—of what malady save stage convenience it is difficult to discover. The action of this gloomy tragedy is rather hampered than accelerated by the gambadoes of Pedro, a pert page, very intelligently played by a very young actor, Mr. Norman Forbes, and a coquettish waiting maid, Katrina, in which part Miss C. Grahame was very arch and sprightly. Mr. Wilson Barrett was sonorous and impressive as Friar John; and Mr. Forbes Robertson was gallant and gay in Don Carlos; but I am not quite certain whether among the male actors Mr. Wilson Barrett did not carry off the palm. In the Dame Garcia, a kind of duenña, Miss Le Thiere looked very handsome and spoke very well; and Mr. G. W. Anson as a gluttonous Franciscan friar was unctuously humorous—only the humour was mainly in the wrong place. Madame Modjeska, although in some portions of the play irresistibly fascinating and exquisitely pathetic, was, on the whole, sadly disappointing. Her horrid hilarity over the corpse of the man whom she had murdered—"Moody Madness laughing wild amid severest Woe"—was very fine; and the house rose at her; and she died with pathos, solemnity, and impressiveness. But we have seen Madame Modjeska sigh and die so often. She sighs and dies in "Heart's Ease;" she sighs and dies in "Marie Stuart;" she sighs and dies as Juliet; I am told that she sighs and dies magnificently in "Frou-Frou;" and I have seen and have been affected to tears by her sighing and dying in "Adrienne Lecouvreur." But have we not had almost enough of this kind of thing? Toujours Pompes Funèbres may become, in the long run, as wearisome as Toujours Perdrix. If Madame Modjeska wishes to preserve the strong hold on English audiences which, through her genius, she almost at once obtained, she must show playgoers that she is capable of something else besides continually sighing and dying. Concerning the extraordinary gelination of Spanish names and places in "Juana" I shall have something to say next week. Mr. William Beverly's forest scene was very beautiful.

G. A. S.

---

Miss Cowen announces one of her excellent dramatic recitals for next Tuesday evening at Steinway Hall. The varied readings will be diversified by songs, Mrs. Osgood and Miss Hope Glenn being the vocalists.

Some extraordinary prices were obtained for orchids last week. Mr. Stevens, of Covent-garden, sold by auction the collection formed by Mr. J. Day, of Tottenham. The most important lots were:—Cypripedium Stonei, var. platytænium, one strong old growth of seven leaves, with a young shoot of four leaves, 120 gs.; Cattleya labiata, autumn variety, with three leaves, and having a seed-pod fertilised with pollen from Cattleya exoniensis, 40 gs.; Oncidium ornithorynchum album, pure white, fine vigorous plant, 36 gs.; Cypripedium Spicerianum, with three strong growths, 42 gs.; Oncidium ornithorynchum album, pure white, 36 gs.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

We never remember the decision of the Two Thousand Guineas to have produced such a complete revolution in the Derby betting as it has done this year. There appears little chance of the infirm St. Louis coming to the post; Scobell ran like a thorough non-stayer; and, indeed, Peregrine made such an example of his field that it will take a bold man to back anything that finished behind him. At present, therefore, the Russley colt is first and the rest nowhere in the quotations, though Sir Charles and Geologist are freely backed at 8 to 1 each. The Thursday's programme at Newmarket did not prove particularly interesting. A good field ran for the First Spring Two-Year-Old Stakes, for which the much-improved Convert was so heavily backed that odds were always obtainable against Comely. Sir George Chetwynd's previously unbeaten filly was actually the first in trouble—form altogether too bad to be true—and Convert won as he liked. Lord Hastings introduced us to a very handsome filly in Silver Bell—a daughter of the little-known Sylvester and Mundane—and she had an easy task in a Maiden Plate, her five opponents being of extremely moderate calibre. On the Friday, Iroquois never gave Lemnoxlove a chance in the Newmarket Stakes, and, if he is not overworked, the colt ought to do good service for the American stable this season. In spite of the brilliant performances of Thebais last year, she had a dozen opponents for the One Thousand. A report that she was slightly amiss led to some strong fielding during the morning; but at the finish slight odds were laid on her, indeed many of the bookmakers declined to take any price just before the start. Wandering Nun ran far better than she did on the Tuesday, and Bal Gal showed a bold front for six furlongs, but was out of it directly she touched the hill. From this point Thebais and Thora had the struggle to themselves, and, though it looked a good race between them, and the favourite only gained a neck verdict, we fancy that Fordham held Watts rather cheaply, and had plenty in hand. This has always been a favourite race with "the Demon." He won it for Mr. Crawford on Mayonaise as far back as 1859, and since then he has steered four other winners—Nemesis, Siberia, Formosa, and Scottish Queen. The last race of the day went to Lord Stamford by the aid of a daughter of Pero Gomez, a sire that has certainly begun the season in most brilliant fashion. There are no more popular colours on the turf than the "light-blue, black and gold belt;" and as Lord Stamford is forming a nice little stud under Porter's care at Kingsclere, we trust that many more victories are in store for him. Archer had a grand week, his ten winners placing him once more well at the head of the list of winning jockeys.

Though the Chester meeting appears to be going very rapidly to the bad, and not a bet was laid on the once-famous Cup until within four or five days of its decision, there was a very good attendance on the Roodee on Tuesday. Nothing in the programme, however, calls for comment, except the Mostyn Stakes for two-year-olds, which the irrepressible Archer secured on Dunmore, a promising son of Scottish Chief and Czarina. He was no better favourite than Stump Orator, who won his first engagement in good style, but was completely stopped on this occasion by a 10 lb. penalty. After the manner in which it had been left out in the cold, it was rather surprising to find ten runners starting for the Chester Cup. Certainly, they were not of very high class, or Apollo (7 st. 9 lb.) would not have started favourite after the beating that he received from Milan last week. He once more ran fairly, but could only get third to Windsor (6 st. 6 lb.) and Prudhomme (7 st. 8 lb.), the former of whom made the whole of the running. Sir John Astley has done very well of late with his large stud of platers, but we can scarcely remember another important race that has been won by the popular Baronet, whose success must have done the ring a rare turn. Reefer (8 st. 3 lb.), the winner in 1879, was a poor fourth, and Blackthorn (6 st. 12 lb.) finished next to him, but only the placed horses were in it a long way from home. Herald and Fire King both repeated their successes of the previous day, and Archer was once more in great force.

Southern racegoers have been well catered for at Windsor, where the racing was of very fair class. Comely partially redeemed her tarnished reputation by securing the Public Sale Stakes very cleverly, though giving weight to all her three opponents; and Sobrion proved the best of the "hunters," who certainly "lag superfluous on the stage" now that summer is—or ought to be—close upon us. On Wednesday, St. Augustine at last made his faithful followers some return for the almost innumerable disappointments that they have experienced with him; and Inchcape landed the long odds laid on him for the St. George's Plate in the easiest possible style, his success materially enhancing the merits of Convert's last victory at Newmarket.

Lord George Hamilton, M.P., has succeeded Sir W. Hart-Dyke, M.P., as President of the Marylebone Cricket Club.

It is impossible to write much about that dreariest of all dreary events, a six days' swimming-match, so we need only say that Captain Webb appears to have improved in speed, while his staying powers are so proverbial that George Fearn, who is competing with him at the Lambeth Baths, can have small chance of success.

---

Mr. Russell Lowell, the American Minister, presided at the annual dinner of the Royal Literary Fund on the 4th inst. at Willis's Rooms.

A bazaar was held at the Townhall, Kensington, on Tuesday, in aid of the West-End Hospital for Diseases of the Nervous System, Paralysis, and Epilepsy, 73, Welbeck-street.

A festival dinner in aid of the funds of the Middlesex Hospital has been announced to take place at Willis's Rooms on Friday, the 13th inst., the Earl of Derby taking the chair.

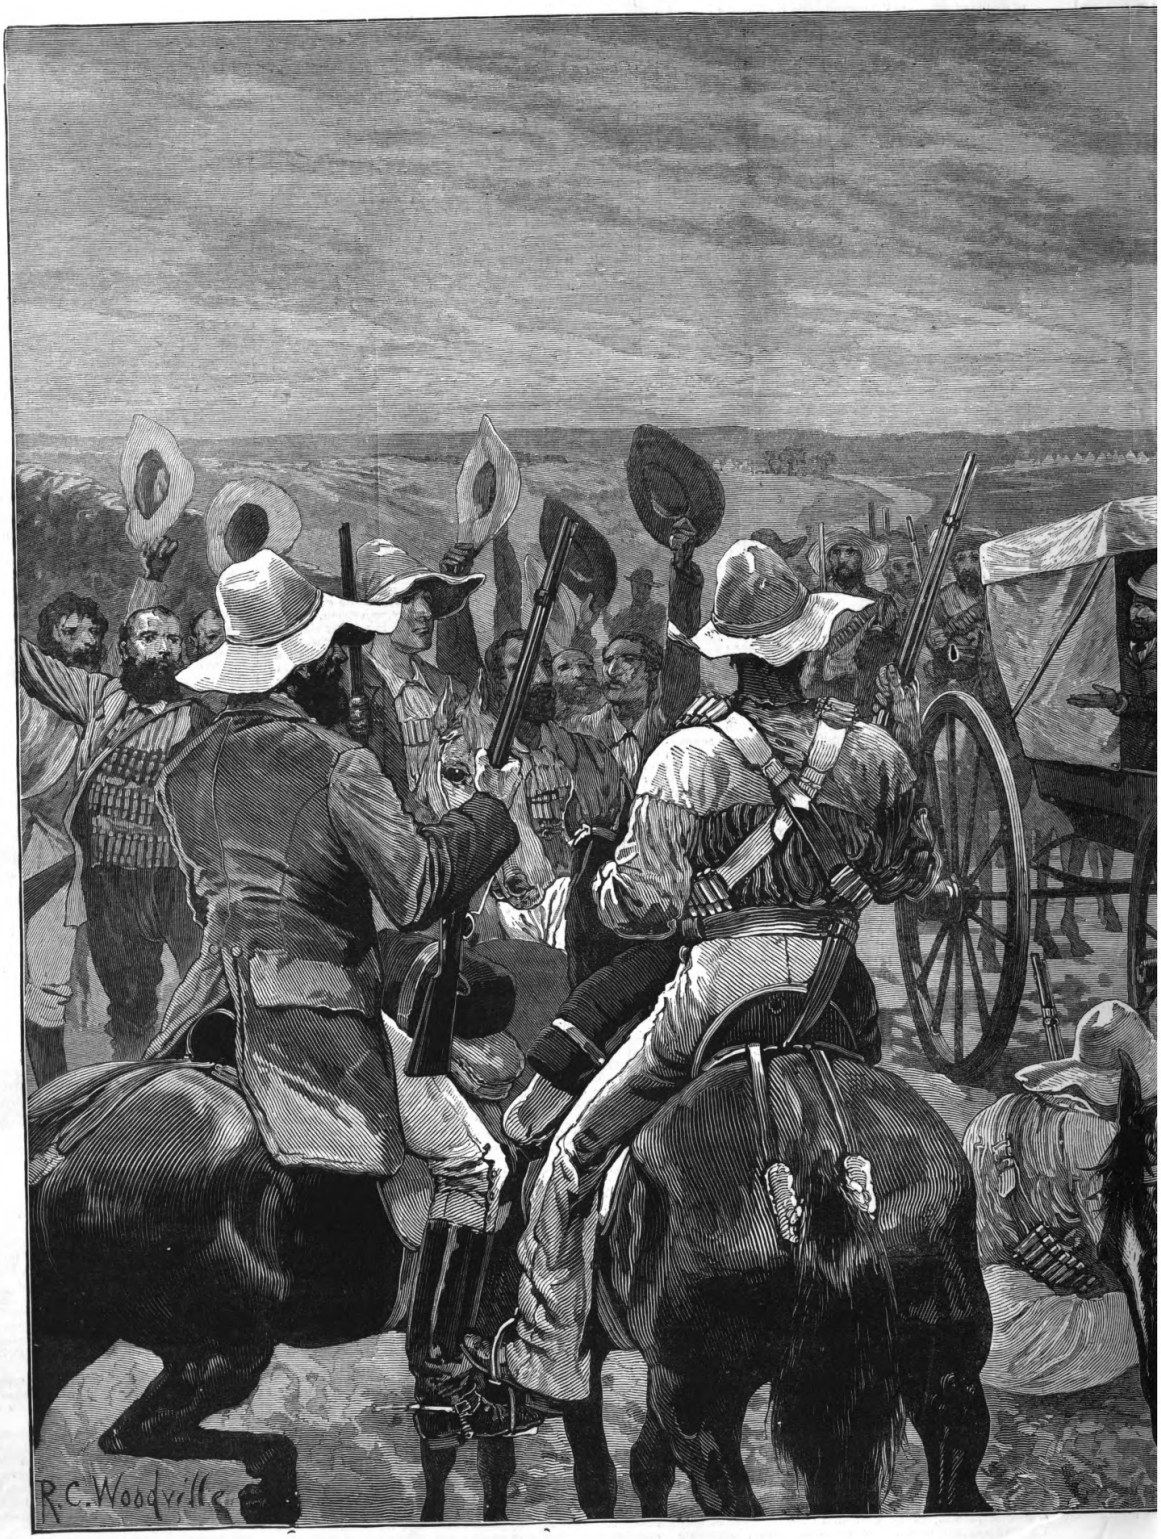
Lord Shaftesbury presided at the anniversary of the Reformatory and Refuge Union, the homes connected with which it was stated give shelter in the metropolis to 42,000 outcast children.

Under distinguished patronage, an evening concert was given on Tuesday, at Steinway Hall, in aid of the funds of the Westminster Hospital. The programme contained many interesting selections.

An amateur performance for the benefit of the Victoria Hospital for Children, Queen's-road, Chelsea, was given on Monday night at Cromwell House, South Kensington, under the personal patronage of her Royal Highness Princess Louise.

The Earl and Countess of Aberdeen have placed £600 at the disposal of the committee of the Homes for Working Girls in London towards the founding of a German Working Girls' Home at 8, Endsleigh-gardens, N.W.

An amateur concert, under the immediate patronage of of their Royal Highnesses the Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein, the Duchess of Connaught, and the Princess Mary Adelaide, and of many ladies of distinction, will take place at Dudley House, on Tuesday, May 24, in aid of the Young Women's Help Society. Many distinguished amateurs and artists have promised their services.



THE TRANSVAAL WAR: PRESIDENT BRAND ARRIVING A

FROM A SKETCH BY

N LAING'S NECK WITH THE ANNOUNCEMENT OF PEACE.

FROM OUR SPECIAL ARTIST

MUSIC.

ROYAL ITALIAN OPERA.

"La Sonnambula" was repeated on Thursday week, with the same cast as before. On Saturday the opera was "I Puritani," in which Madame Albani sang finely, both in the passages of brilliant vocalisation and in those of passionate declamation. The polacca, "Son vergin vezzosa," and the aria, "Qui la voce," were given with high artistic excellence; the performance of the prima donna having been of exceptional merit throughout. Other principal characters were well sustained by Signori Marini, Cotogni, and De Reszké, respectively as Arturo, Riccardo, and Giorgio.

On Monday "Les Huguenots" was performed, and the occasion introduced two singers for the first time here, each of whom obtained a decided success; Madame Fürsch-Madier as Valentina, and M. Gresse as Marcello. The lady sang well in the duet with Marcello in the Pré aux Clercs scene—particularly in the "Andante" movement—and still better in the great duet with Raoul in the following act; in which she displayed brilliant vocal power, great pathos, and intense dramatic feeling. In the preceding conspiracy scene her declamation and by-play were especially good, and her reception throughout the opera, and at its close, was highly favourable. M. Gresse's fine voice gave good effect to the chorale and the "Piffpaff" song in the first act, and to Marcello's share of the duet with Valentina. Madame Sembrich sang the music of Margherita di Valois with brilliancy and refinement, and Madame Scalchi gave that of the Page as admirably as heretofore. Signor Mierzwinsky, as Raoul, sang finely, particularly in the duet-septet, and the great duet with Valentina, with which the opera now ends. The gentleman just named has enhanced, by this performance, the success which he obtained by his recent first appearance here as Arnoldo in "Guglielmo Tell." Signor Cotogni acted and sang well as the Count Di Nevers, and Signor De Reszké was an excellent representative of San Bris—subordinate characters having been efficiently filled. Signor Bevignani conducted.

The announcements for the remaining performances of the week were operas recently noticed.

On Monday "Lohengrin" is to be given, for the first time this season, with Madame Albani as Elsa, and the first appearance in England of M. Labatt.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

True to his promise, Mr. Mapleson began his new season of performances of operas in Italian on Saturday last, when Rossini's delightful and ever-fresh "Il Barbiere di Siviglia" was very well rendered. Mdlle. de Belocca, as Rosina, sang and acted with much grace and vivacity. The cavatina, "Una voce," and Rosina's part in the duet with Figaro, "Dunque io son," were sung with animation and refinement, as were the interpolated pieces in the lesson-scene, these having been Gounod's "Bercause," and (in answer to the encore) Wallace's ballad, "Good-night." Signor Ravelli, as the Count Almaviva, sang effectively, if not quite up to his best mark. The cavatina, "Ecco ridente," and the prominent incidental passages in the first finale, were well given. Signor Del Puente is one of the best Figaros now on the stage, as was again demonstrated in Saturday's performance, which included the successful first appearance here of Signor Corsini as Doctor Bartolo, in which part this gentleman acted with much comic humour, and sang the song in which the old guardian scolds his ward, Rosina, with great effect. Signor Monti was a very good Basilio, and the cast also included Mdlle. Valerga as Berta, and Signor Rinaldini as Fiorello.

On Tuesday "La Favorita" was performed. The cast included the first appearance this season of Mdlle. Tremelli as Leonora, in which part the lady displayed (as heretofore) much dramatic feeling, especially in the air "O, mio Fernando," and in the great scene with this character and Alfonso at the end of the third act. In the two parts last named Signor Ravelli and Signor Galassi, respectively, sang and acted very effectively; Mdlle. Valerga as Inez, Signor Monti as Baldassare, and Signor Rinaldini as Gaspare having contributed to the general efficiency of the cast. The incidental ballet action included the clever solo dancing of Madame Cavalazzi.

For Thursday, "Aida" was announced, with the first appearance in England of Mdlle. Adalgisa Gabbi in the title character.

---

Miss Agnes Zimmermann's annual evening concert took place at St. James's Hall on Thursday week, when that excellent pianist played, with great effect, Chopin's difficult and elaborate solo sonata in B flat minor, and the leading pianoforte part in Mozart's quartet in E flat, and in that by Brahms in A major. A specialty at the concert was the first performance of a flute solo by Mendelssohn entitled "Hirtenlied," only the flute part of which was found among the composer's manuscripts. A pianoforte accompaniment and three variations were skilfully written by Miss Zimmermann, and in this shape the piece was played at the concert referred to, the pianoforte part by Miss Zimmermann and the flute solo by Mr. Svendsen, whose fine tone, polished style, and finished execution were admirably displayed. The programme also comprised vocal pieces effectively rendered by Mdlle. Pyk, well accompanied by Mr. Zerbini. The stringed instrument portions of the quartets above named were skilfully played by Messrs. Gompertz, Zerbini, and Daubert.

The first of Mr. Charles Hallé's twenty-first series of pianoforte recitals took place yesterday (Friday) week. The programmes are to be devoted to Beethoven's solo sonatas, and the forty-eight preludes and fugues of Bach; and the first concert included the three sonatas, op. 2 and that classed as op. 7, by the first-named composer, and the three first preludes and fugues by the other master. It is scarcely necessary to say that these pieces were rendered with admirable style and finish by the distinguished pianist.

The Morning Ballad Concert given by Mr. John Boosey, at St. James's Hall, last Saturday, drew a very large attendance. Vocal solos were sung with great effect by Misses M. Davies and C. Samuell, Mesdames Sterling and Patey, Mr. E. Lloyd, Mr. Santley, and Mr. Maybrick—besides part-songs by the South London Choral Association. Another concert is to be given on May 21.

The extra series of Saturday Afternoon Concerts at the Crystal Palace began last week, when Madame Sophie Menter, the eminent Austrian pianist, played with a repetition of the great success obtained at Mr. Ganz's concert on the previous Saturday—as already recorded. At last Saturday's concert the lady's exceptional merits were admirably displayed in her execution of Liszt's second concerto (in A) and some unaccompanied pieces. Brahms' "Academic Overture" was given for the second time; and other more familiar orchestral works, and vocal solos excellently sung by Mdlle. Valleria completed the programme.

The first of the new series of Richter concerts took place at St. James's Hall on Monday evening, when the programme was of special interest. The chief feature was the last and grandest of Beethoven's nine symphonies, that leviathan work the finale of which includes a setting of Schiller's "Ode to Joy," for solo voices and chorus. This great symphony received a fine performance, more particularly as regards the principal (orchestral) portions. The special excellence of the band, and of the conductor, Herr Richter, was also manifested in Wagner's "Huldigungs-Marsch" and Weber's overture to "Oberon." A novelty in the programme was a concerto (in three movements) for stringed instruments, said to be by Bach; only the principal violin part of which was found—in autograph—this having been kept intact, and the accompaniments for a stringed band skilfully supplied by Herr Hellmesberger? The solo vocalists in the choral symphony were Misses Pyk and Rosenthal and Messrs. F. Boyle and F. King.

Among the miscellaneous concerts of the week were those of Miss Edith Jerningham (pianist), Wednesday afternoon; of Madame Frickenhaus (the eminent pianist), of Miss Agnes Ross (the Scotch vocalist), both on Wednesday evening; and of Miss Hope Glenn (the well-known contralto) on Thursday afternoon.

The second concert of the Musical Union—under the new direction of M. Lasserre—took place on Tuesday afternoon, when Mozart's string quartet in D minor, and Mendelssohn's in E flat were finely rendered by MM. P. Viardot, Wiener, Waefelghem, and Lasserre. The pianist was Mr. Dannreuther, who played brilliantly in a clever sonata, by Mr. C. H. Parry, for piano and violoncelle; and Liszt's "Rhapsodie" No. 12.

Of the fifth—and last but one—of this year's concerts of the Philharmonic Society (which took place on Thursday) we must speak next week.

Miss Madelena Cronin will give a pianoforte recital at the Royal Academy of Music next Tuesday evening, assisted by Miss José Sherrington, Signori Isidore de Lara and Pezze.

Madame Adelina Patti arrived in London this week, and proceeded to her country house in Wales. She will shortly appear at the Royal Italian Opera in "Semiramide."

Madame Marie Roze has returned to London after a very successful American tour, and will soon appear at Her Majesty's Theatre.

A well-deserved tribute to Mr. August Manns is in course of promotion, in recognition of his eminent services to musical art during his career of twenty-five years as conductor of the Crystal Palace concerts. The testimonial is to take the form of a scholarship in his name, and contributions are being received by the principal music publishers.

Another testimonial is being promoted in favour of Mr. John Ella, on his retirement from the direction of the Musical Union, which was founded by him thirty-six years ago, the excellent concerts given by that institution having been actively superintended by Mr. Ella until his transference of the direction this year to M. Lasserre.

H.M.S. DOTEREL.

The terrible disaster of the 26th ult., at Sandy Point, in the Strait of Magellan, where this vessel, on her way to join the British squadron in the Pacific, was blown up by some accidental means hitherto unknown, with the loss of 145 lives, was announced in our last publication. No further intelligence, beyond that which we gave, with the names of the surviving four officers and seven seamen, had reached England on Wednesday last. It was fancied by some persons that the accident might have been caused by a torpedo which was dropped in the water thereabouts, two or three years ago, from H.M.S. Shah; but the Secretary to the Admiralty, in the House of Commons on Friday, stated that this torpedo had been safely recovered. It has been resolved to send two vessels to the Strait of Magellan, to assist in the diving operations. The Queen has addressed to the First Lord of the Admiralty a letter expressing her pity and sympathy for the widows and orphans of the men who were killed.

We give an Illustration of the unfortunate vessel, from a drawing made by Messrs. Symonds and Co., photographers, of Portsmouth, when she was fitted out in that port. The Doterel was a composite screw sloop of war, of 1124 tons burden, with engines of 900-horse power, carrying six guns, and having a crew of about 140 men. She was launched at Chatham in March, 1880, was commissioned in December, and left Sheerness on Jan. 17, under the command of Commander Richard Evans. Her other officers were Lieutenants William C. Forrest, Arthur R. M. Creagle, and John M. Stokes; Staff-Surgeon Septimus Evans; Paymaster John N. Colborne; chief engineer William Read, engineer W. Ord, gunner Jeremiah Driscoll, carpenter W. B. Baird, clerk C. M. Irving. It appears that Commander Evans, who is one of those who escaped death, has left the wreck in charge of Lieut. Stokes.

THE MURDER OF THE EMPEROR OF RUSSIA.

It has been mentioned in this Journal that a Memorial Chapel was to be erected in the road beside the Catherine Canal at St. Petersburg, on the exact spot where the late Emperor Alexander II., on Sunday, March 13, received his mortal wounds from the bomb-shell thrown by the Nihilist conspirators. The ceremony of consecrating this chapel was performed on Friday, the 29th ult., by the Metropolitan Archbishop Isidore, in the presence of several members of the Russian Imperial family, but not of the Emperor Alexander III. and the Empress, who have lived in strict retirement since the funeral. Many of the Ministers of State, foreign Ambassadors, and officials of high rank, with the Municipality of St. Petersburg, and Generals of the Army, were assembled upon this occasion, and thousands of reverent spectators. The little chapel was not opened; but its door, which is of glass set in a silver frame, allowed those who came near to look in and see the interior arrangement. It contains three altars, with a number of burning tapers upon the central altar, and with the picture of a saint of the Russo-Greek Church above each altar; the altar-cloths are of white satin; and there is a display of church plate, gold and silver, of the finest chased workmanship, laid out upon them. A gilt bronze ampulla, of pure Russian design, is suspended from the roof. The walls and roof are of polished black marble, or of some material that resembles it. Outside the door are two collecting-boxes, inscribed, "For the cost of the Chapel," and these have continually received the gifts of visitors to the shrine, both rich and poor, down to those who could give only a small copper coin. On the day of the consecration, also, many brought flowers and garlands to decorate the outside of the little edifice; and as these faded their leaves and petals were carried away for relics or memorials of a tragedy which is deplored, with feelings of pious awe and personal compassion, by most of the Russian people.

---

The Congress of the Argentine Republic was opened on the 7th inst. by General Roca, the President, who in his speech gave a comprehensive summary of the state of the Republic, and strongly emphasised the determination of the Government to maintain peace at all costs and employ all the resources of the country in continuing the railways.

PARISIAN SAYINGS AND DOINGS.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Paris, Tuesday, May 10.

The month of May should be represented in the Parisian calendar with a brilliant palette and the other accessories of the painter's art. It is the month of art exhibitions. Besides the Salon, we have now in Paris half a dozen exhibitions worthy of interest, at the École des Beaux Arts, at the Cercle des Arts Libéraux, and at the Société des Aquarellistes, and elsewhere. In the afternoon the Salon is the fashionable promenade of Parisian high life, and dinner-table conversation bristles with discussions on the merits of this and that picture. Munkacsy, the celebrated Hungarian artist, is exhibiting at No. 6, Rue de la Rochefoucauld, an immense picture of "Christ Before Pilate," on which he has been at work for the last two years. This picture is destined to make the tour of Europe and America for the purpose of collecting the greatest number of shillings possible. It is a very fine work, boldly and realistically conceived, and painted with a mastery of line, colour, and expression in which the artist has few equals. A far more interesting exhibition from the point of view of art is that of one hundred and seventy-four water-colours destined to serve as illustrations of La Fontaine, and exhibited at the rooms of the French Water-Colour Society in the Rue Lafitte. In the last century a group of financiers conceived the idea of an edition of La Fontaine's Fables, illustrated by the finest engravers of the day. Last year, a rich banker of Marseilles, M. Roux, conceived a still happier idea: he asked all the most famous water-colour painters of the day to paint him some illustrations of the Fables. The variety and universality of La Fontaine's genius enabled him to appeal to painters of the most different temperament, and so he has made a unique and most interesting collection of drawings. The gem of the collection is a series of twenty-five water-colours by Gustave Moreau, of dazzling brilliancy of colour and wonderful imagination. Then come a dozen finely-coloured drawings of Eugène Lami; a score of water colours by Jacquemart, who died lately; and others, which I have not space to mention at length, by Ed. de Beaumont, Joseph de Nittis, Vibert, Worms, Elie Delaunay of the Institute, Lambert, Jacquet, Gérôme, Heilbuth, Bastien Lepage, Louis and Maurice Leloir, Pasini, and others—in short, a splendid collection.

This week the sale of the famous Beurnonville collection of pictures is going on. On Saturday last the Hartmann collection, consisting of sixteen pictures and five drawings, was sold, and produced a total of 598,000f. Théodore Rousseau's splendid picture "Le Marais dans les Landes" was bought by the State for 129,000f. "Le Greffeur," by Millet, was sold for 133,000f. Eugène Delacroix's "Empereur du Maroc" brought 28,100f.

Amongst the new books that have appeared within the past few days must be mentioned a new volume of M. Taine's history of the French Revolution, entitled "La Conquête Jacobine," and a new novel by M. Octave Feuillet, surnamed "Le Musset des Familles." The novel is called "Histoire d'une Parisienne," and the moral of it all is that mariages de raison are bad. It is a drama of high life narrated by an homme du monde who, in the midst of Parisian life, has remained somewhat provincial.

The theatrical season is gradually drawing to a close. The cold and almost wintry weather is prolonging the death agony a little, but in reality no important novelty is to be looked for until next autumn. Maurel, the errant baritone, has returned to the opera for five months, and Mdlle. Subra, an enfant de l'Opéra, has made her début as first danseuse in Hamlet, in place of Mdlle. Beaugrand. Mdlle. Subra possesses the traditions of the French school, and her début was quite an event for the habitués. At the Vaudeville, a new comedy, "Le Drame de la Gare de l'Ouest," has proved a failure.

There has been much talk in the theatrical and journalistic world about a duel which did not take place between the critic, M. Francisque Sarcey, of Le Temps, and M. Prudhon, of the Comédie-Française. In his feuilleton, a fortnight ago, M. Sarcey allowed himself some remarks on the physique of M. Prudhon, which the latter did not relish. He accordingly sent his seconds to M. Sarcey, who at once explained that he spoke of the actor and not of the private individual. In his feuilleton last Sunday, M. Sarcey maintains that an actor belongs to the public body and soul, and from head to foot.

Duelling, by-the-way, is more in vogue in Paris than ever, and amongst a certain class it is cultivated as a means of publicity. Frenchmen equal Americans in their desire to see their names in print. It is to such motives that we must largely attribute the duel that took place at Vesinet last Wednesday between two fencing-masters, Pons and the Sicilian San Malato. The matter has occupied the Parisian press for nearly a fortnight. After fighting for an hour for the benefit of the spectators San Malato was wounded in the arm, and then the two combatants fell upon each other's necks and kissed each other. Nothing could have been more absurd.

The fine arts and gossip have taken up so much of my letter that I have very little room left for politics and public affairs. The military operations in Tunis have been much retarded by the heavy rain, but otherwise they are progressing favourably. The reactionary journals are organising a party subscription in favour of General Bourbaki. The Chambers meet on Thursday after the Easter vacation. They will sit until about July 12, when Parliament will be dissolved, and deputies will begin to prepare for the general elections, which will take place in October. The Departmental Councils have not played the rôle that was expected of them in the matter of the scrutin de liste and the scrutin d'arrondissement. There have been no political manifestations worth mentioning, and the question returns before the Chamber exactly in the same terms as before the vacation. On May 29 there will be an election of a deputy at Rouen and at Paris, to replace the late Emile de Girardin.

T. C.

---

The Western Empress of China, or second co-Regent during the minority of the present Emperor, is seriously ill of consumption.

The Gazette announces that the French Ambassador in London has announced that the Journal Officiel of the 8th inst. contains the promulgation by the President of the French Republic of the new French general tariff. Accordingly, under the provisions of the declaration between the British and French Governments, signed on Oct. 10, 1879, the duration of the undermentioned commercial treaties and conventions between Great Britain and France will cease and determine six months after the said date of May 8, 1881—viz.: (1) The treaty of commerce of Jan. 23, 1860; (2) Additional article of Feb. 25, 1860; (3) Second additional article of June 27, 1860; (4) First supplementary convention of Oct. 12, 1860; (5) Second supplementary convention of Nov. 16, 1860; (6) Treaty of commerce and navigation of July 23, 1873; (7) Supplementary convention of Jan. 24, 1874; (8) Declaration of Jan. 24, 1874.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

ITALY.

The National Exhibition of Industry, Art, and Commerce, at Milan, was opened on Thursday week, in presence of the King, Queen, and Royal Princes.

On the 5th inst. the first serious Reform discussion took place in the Chamber. Signor Depretis and Signor Minghetti made admirable speeches, the Minister accepting the modifications of the Committee, together with a scrutiny of the list, of which Signor Depretis is a zealous advocate. Signor Minghetti is adverse to universal suffrage, yet prefers it to the Ministerial bill. The general debate then closed. On the 6th the Chamber began the discussion of the thirty-two orders of the day relative to the Electoral Reform Bill, resuming the discussion on Saturday. Signor Cairoli, in reply to questions, said that the Italian Government was acting in concert with the British Government for the protection of their respective subjects and interests in Tunis. On Monday Signor Cairoli stated that all the charges made against Signor Macchio, the Italian Consul in Tunis, were unfounded. His conduct had been correct throughout, and there was no thought of recalling him.

PORTUGAL.

Senhor Miguel d'Aules has resigned the portfolio of Foreign Affairs, and will resume his former diplomatic post of Ambassador to the Court of London.

GERMANY.

The Emperor has conferred the Crown order of the First Class upon Viscount Torrington.

In the German Parliament on Thursday week a debate took place on the Bill introducing Biennial Budgets and Quadrennial Parliaments. The Committee moved the rejection of the measure, and proposed instead that the Parliament should meet every year in October. Prince Bismarck defended the bill, and warned the National Liberals not to join in an opposition coalition which would lead them towards Socialistic Democracy. The debate was continued yesterday week; and in the end the proposal of the Committee that the Reichstag should be summoned to meet every year in October was agreed to; the Conservative motion for biennial budgets was rejected; and the proposal for quadrennial Parliaments was approved.

The bill for the imposition of a tax upon persons exempted from military service came on in the German Parliament on Saturday. On the first clause being put to the vote it was unanimously rejected, a result which caused some sensation.

Wagner's operatic trilogy, or tetralogy, "Ring der Nibelungen" has been performed at the Victoria Theatre, Berlin, amid great applause. "Rheingold," the prologue, occupied four hours and a half on Thursday week; the first part, "Die Walküre," took up about the same on Friday evening; "Siegfried" was given on Sunday; and "Götterdammerung" on Monday; all with great success.

AUSTRIA-HUNGARY.—THE ROYAL MARRIAGE.

The marriage of the Crown Prince of Austria and the Princess Stéphanie of Belgium has been the great social event of the week. Prince Rudolph's affianced bride arrived at Salzburg with the King and Queen of the Belgians on Thursday evening, the 5th inst. The Crown Prince warmly greeted the Princess Stéphanie, who had a great popular triumph. The Princess Stéphanie and her Royal parents, accompanied by the Crown Prince Rudolph, arrived at Vienna yesterday week, and had a very cordial reception. The railway station was decorated with flowers, the streets were gay with flags and triumphal arches, and, as the weather was fine, everything went off well. On Saturday the Emperor and the Crown Prince met the Prince of Wales at the railway station, at six o'clock in the morning, and accompanied him to the Grand Hotel, where crowds were awaiting his arrival. The English Ambassador and Lord Torrington were also there. At half-past eight the Emperor and the Crown Prince met at the station Prince William of Prussia and the Princess Victoria, who are staying in the small Palace, in the Schoenbrunn Gardens. In the afternoon there was a dinner in the palace of the Archduke Charles Louis, the Emperor's brother. The Imperial family and the Royal guests were present. The Princess Stéphanie was dressed simply in pink satin. At night there was a Court ball in the Imperial Palace. Among those present were the bridal pair, the Prince of Wales, Prince William of Prussia and the Princess Victoria, the Count and Countess of Flanders, the bride's sister, the special Ambassadors from all countries, the members of the Diplomatic Corps, and many other distinguished guests. The Princess Stéphanie made her state entry into Vienna on Monday, amidst the pealing of bells, the roar of cannon, and the acclamations of the people. The streets were gaily decorated, and the procession is described as a very picturesque pageant. The Princess and her mother were in a carriage drawn by six white horses. In the approach to the Elizabeth Bridge a handsome pavilion was erected, and here the Burgomaster delivered to the Princess a short address of welcome, to which her Royal Highness briefly replied. Princess Stéphanie wore a pink satin dress. By-the-by, the Daily News correspondent at Vienna, describing the State entry, says that "the portrait of the Princess in the Illustrated London News (of last week) is a capital likeness." The Elizabeth Bridge itself was a mass of green shrubs, and presented a beautiful appearance. The Princess, on arriving at the castle, was received in the Mirror Room by the Empress, the Crown Prince, and the King of the Belgians. In the evening the city was brilliantly illuminated, and the Royal party drove round the Ringstrasse amid the cheers of the crowd.

The splendid festivities reached their culmination on Tuesday by the marriage of the Crown Prince Rudolph to the Princess Stéphanie in the Church of St. Augustine. An immense multitude collected in the streets through which the Imperial and Royal personages drove to the church. The sacred edifice was densely crowded, and presented a most brilliant appearance, owing to the magnificence of the ladies' toilettes, the richness of the military and diplomatic uniforms, and the Austrian and Hungarian national costumes worn by many of the nobility. A fanfare of trumpets signalled the arrival of the Court procession at the church door, where it was received by Cardinal Schwarzenberg at the head of his clergy. Their Majesties took their seats under the canopy over the throne, while the bridal pair proceeded to their places before the sanctuary rails, where they offered up a short prayer. After a brief address from the Cardinal, the marriage ceremony was proceeded with. At the moment that the rings were exchanged between the Crown Prince and his bride joyous peals broke forth from the bells of the city, and salvoes of artillery were fired. At the conclusion of the ceremony a Te Deum was sung, after which the Hofburg choir executed an old German march, and the newly-married pair, accompanied by the other Imperial and Royal personages, returned to the Hotburg.

The Crown Prince and Princess afterwards received at the Palace the congratulations of the Diplomatic Body; and, after being present at a family dinner at the Palace this evening, their Imperial Highnesses drove off to Laxenburg. In the evening there was a performance at the Grand Opera of "La Somnambula" and a ballet called "Versailles," which was attended by the Emperor, the Prince of Wales, Prince William of Prussia, and the Countess of Flanders. The Prince of Wales dined with the British Ambassador and Lady Elliot.

In commemoration of the Crown Prince's wedding, the Emperor has founded twenty-two scholarships of 300 gold florins each at various high schools. His Majesty, in the name of the Crown Prince, has also given 100,000 fl. in Rente for the free admission of ten pupils to establishments for the education of officers' daughters. The Official Gazette on Tuesday published an Imperial letter granting a complete or partial amnesty to 331 persons now undergoing sentences for various offences. The Emperor has conferred on M. Frère Orban, the Belgian Premier, the Grand Cross of the Order of St. Stephen.

DENMARK.

A Royal proclamation has been issued dissolving the Lower House. It states that the King regrets to find the members wasting their time, being either incapable or unwilling to carry useful measures. During six months not a single useful bill, nor even a bill of ways and means, has been passed.

RUSSIA.

A discussion occurred in the Imperial Council on Monday upon a project for the further relief of the peasantry by a modification of the existing land law. It is announced from St. Petersburg that the publication of an Imperial ukase is shortly expected, remitting the arrears of the peasants in respect of the annual land redemption payments to the State, diminishing future payments to the extent of 9,000,000 roubles per annum, and compelling those proprietors who have not yet done so to come to a final arrangement with their former serfs concerning the land allotted to the latter by the State.

AMERICA.

A number of President Garfield's recent nominations, including that of Mr. Hitt, formerly Secretary of the United States Legation in Paris, as Assistant Secretary of State, have been confirmed by the Senate. That body has also ratified both the Chinese treaties, and confirmed President Garfield's nomination of Mr. William Walter Phelps, of New Jersey, as United States Minister to Austria. The President has, by message, withdrawn from the Senate all his nominations to important Federal offices in New York State except that of Mr. Robertson to the post of collector of Customs at the port of New York.

The Senate Judiciary Committee have reported against confirming the appointment of Mr. Stanley Matthews as Justice of the Supreme Court.

The Secretary of State is considering the question of international copyright. He has invited prominent publishers and authors to visit Washington for the purpose of holding a consultation.

Mdlle. Sarah Bernhardt, with the French company and Mr. Henry Jarrett, of London, who managed her personal affairs on her American tour, sailed from New York on the 5th inst., on board the steamer Amérique, for Havre.

The New York correspondent of the Daily News states that there is everywhere a good prospect of an unusually large wheat crop in the United States.

THE CAPE COLONY.

The Hon. Gordon Sprigg, the Premier, and the members of his Cabinet have resigned; and a new Ministry has been formed, composed as follows:—Mr. Molteno, Colonial Secretary; Mr. Hutton, Treasurer-General; Mr. Scanlen, Attorney-General and Premier; Mr. Merriman, Commissioner of Crown Lands and Public Works; Mr. Sauer, Secretary for Native Affairs. Mr. Hoffmeyer enters the Cabinet without portfolio.

A telegram published by the Cape Times states that the Basutos have rejected the award of Sir Hercules Robinson.

THE SILENT MEMBER.

The vacant seat was occupied when the House of Lords reassembled on the 5th inst. But it seemed difficult to realise the fact that the Earl of Beaconsfield no longer filled his accustomed place of Leader of the Conservative Party. "In Memoriam" tributes to the noble Earl were begun by Earl Granville and the Duke of Richmond, but not completed; and the sense of a duty unfulfilled detracted rather from the effect of the eulogies passed by Earl Granville, Lord Cranbrook, and Lord Lytton on General Sir F. Haines, Generals Sir Donald Stewart, Sir F. Roberts, and the other officers who distinguished themselves in the Afghan War.

The reason for the exuberantly good terms the Duke of Richmond and the Marquis of Salisbury appeared to be on when their Lordships reassembled was made palpable on Monday. In accordance with the decision come to at a formal meeting of Conservative peers on the motion of his Grace, Lord Salisbury was found installed Leader of the Opposition in the Upper House. That the noble Marquis has the vigour and ability requisite to lead the Conservative Party itself, none can doubt. Has he sufficient tact to be Lord Beaconsfield's successor? Time alone will show. But, to begin with, the ex-Foreign Secretary's funeral oration, as it may be called, on the deceased Earl was couched in unexceptional terms. Earl Granville, in moving that a monument of Lord Beaconsfield should be placed in Westminster Abbey, dwelt with practised grace on his brilliant qualities, and favoured the House with an anecdote concerning the last noteworthy speech the late Earl made in Parliament. It was on the Candahar question. Lord Beaconsfield had privately expressed a wish to speak at a certain hour, which happened to be much earlier than Lord Granville found convenient. The Foreign Secretary continued:—

I have since learned with regret that Lord Beaconsfield had, just before he received that message from me, swallowed one drug and had inhaled another drug in quantities nicely adapted so as to enable him to speak free from the depression of his complaint during the time that that speech required for delivery.

Perhaps the best-appreciated sentence in Lord Salisbury's speech was that in which he said, "To me, as I believe to all others who have worked with him, his patience, his gentleness, his unswerving and unselfish loyalty to his colleagues and fellow-labourers, have made an impression which will never leave me so long as life endures." Lord Malmesbury's personal reminiscences of the noble Earl brought the ceremony to an interesting close, the motion being unanimously agreed to.

In the Lower House likewise all other questions have been dwarfed by the tribute to Lord Beaconsfield. If Earl Granville, for a wonder, was awkward and halting in moving the vote of thanks to the British officers concerned in the Afghan War, the Marquis of Hartington was even more laboured and tiresomely diffusive in performing the same perfunctory duty in the Commons. Sir Stafford Northcote seconded the motion in far better style. Mr. Healy was stolid in moving an adverse amendment, which Mr. Gladstone condemned; but Sir Wilfrid Lawson made up for the young Home-Ruler's deficiencies by delivering a brightly humorous speech against the Ministerial proposal, which was sanctioned, however, by 304 to 20 votes. The Irish Land Bill still drags its slow length along, the dulness of the debate being only relieved on Monday by the animated and trenchant argument of Sir John Holker against the measure, and by Mr. Bright's characteristic and sympathetic speech in its favour, the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster having on the previous Friday, however, seasonably qualified his championship of the Irish tenants by telling Irishmen some useful home truths when Mr. Callan brought on his sentimental motion in favour of granting peasants facilities for erecting cottages and acquiring garden plots.

Mr. Gladstone, who had, happily, recovered from his recent cold, found an unusually thronged House awaiting him when he took his seat on Monday, amid cheers. The right hon. gentleman had plainly benefited by his brief visit to Lord Rosebery's seat at Epsom. Though he held a plain walking-stick in his hand, the Prime Minister did not seem to need it; and his reinvigorated state warranted the wearing of the large white flower in his button-hole. Probably the most interesting of all Mr. Gladstone's auditors was a keenly intelligent looking lad who sat behind the clock in the corner of the gallery devoted to distinguished visitors. This was Lord Beaconsfield's nephew and heir, Master Coningsby Disraeli, who is represented in the Sketch holding a conversation with Lord Rowton at the close of the proceedings. It was to a House crowded in every part that Mr. Gladstone delivered his masterpiece of eloquence with a power and a finish remarkable even in him. The Prime Minister's was, beyond question, the noblest tribute that has yet been paid to the memory of his great political opponent, Lord Beaconsfield, whose monument he proposed should be erected in Westminster Abbey. Sir Stafford Northcote candidly and honourably acknowledged this when he remarked, amid hearty and general cheering, that the Prime Minister's speech "had been nobly expressed, and, still more, it has been nobly conceived." Mr. Labouchere, in moving "the previous question" (a polite way of negativing the monumental resolution) offered his objections in a manly and inoffensive way, his great point being that it would be against rule to erect the memorial in the Abbey to a statesman whose policy had been emphatically condemned by the nation. Besides, argued the approved member for Northampton, no monument to the memory of the late Earl of Derby or the late Earl Russell had been placed therein. The amendment was seconded by Mr. Caine, and supported by Mr. Arthur O'Connor on behalf of the Irish Home Rulers; but the House was impatient for the division; and Mr. Labouchere was left in a small minority—380 against 54—the Government motion being thereafter agreed to.

The Bradlaugh sword of Damocles, which ever threatened to interrupt the business of the Lower House, was temporarily removed on Tuesday by the forced withdrawal of "the incomplete member" for Northampton. Sir Stafford Northcote dubbed "iconoclast" thus, in moving, upon his again insisting on the right to take the oath in the teeth of the adverse decision of the House,

That the Serjeant-at-Arms do remove Mr. Bradlaugh from the House until he shall engage not to further disturb the proceedings of the House.

Mr. Gladstone meekly contented himself with supporting this motion, at the same time holding to the opinion that Mr. Bradlaugh was legally entitled to come to the table. The heterodox member for Northampton bowed to this decision; and, for the time being, was excluded from the House, which is now invited to pass an opinion on the new Parliamentary Oaths Bill, introduced by Sir Henry James to meet this difficulty.

On Wednesday, the Speaker read Mr. Bradlaugh's protest against the action of the House; and at the close of the sitting Sir Wilfrid Lawson gave notice of a motion declaring the resolution of April 26 illegal. Mr. Hutchinson's Newspaper Libel Bill, the passing of which is much to be desired, was read the second time. By the narrow majority of 9 only was Sir G. Goldney's bill to enable clergymen to sit in Parliament negatived—110 to 101—Lord Randolph Churchill, appearing in a new light, moved the second reading of the Small Debts Bill—but only to withdraw it.

THE TRANSVAAL WAR: SKETCHES BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.

HOISTING THE REPUBLICAN FLAG IN THE BOER CAMP AFTER THE DECLARATION OF PEACE.

BOERS AND THEIR WIVES WAITING THE ARRIVAL OF SIR EVELYN WOOD AFTER THE DECLARATION OF PEACE.

THE PRIME MINISTER OF GREECE.

M. Alexander Coumoundouros, the Prime Minister of Greece, is just now a conspicuous personage in European diplomacy. He is about sixty years of age, and entered the Chamber of Deputies as a representative of Messene, nearly thirty years ago. He was elected President of the Chamber, and was subsequently appointed a Minister of State. The department assigned to him was that of Finance; and the first thing he did on assuming office was to propose to the Chamber of Deputies a bill for the recognition of the old Greek debts of 1824 and 1825, contracted while the great national struggle for independence was going on. The attempt failed at that time; and, after passing through several phases, the affair continued to remain in suspense until, about two years ago, the opportunity was given to M. Coumoundouros of thus rehabilitating the credit of his country. M. Coumoundouros has often been called the Cavour of Greece; and he is undoubtedly the most popular man in the country. He has ruled Greece repeatedly as a Prime Minister, and longer than any other contemporary Greek statesman. M. Coumoundouros visited England some years ago; and he is one of her warmest admirers. With reference to the claims of the Greek nationality, his name has always been associated with a policy of action, having in his younger days personally taken part as a volunteer in one of the Cretan insurrections.

The portrait is from a photograph by Moraites, of Athens.

M. COUMOUNDOUROS, PRIME MINISTER OF GREECE.

THE IRISH LAND LEAGUE.

Our Special Artist in the disturbed parts of the West of Ireland contributes a rather startling Illustration of the manner in which a landlord has found it needful literally to take up arms for the safety of his life, while personally engaged in serving writs of ejectment on the defaulting tenants of his estate. Mr. Walter Burke, a gentleman who was candidate for a county constituency at the last General Election, is owner of property in the neighbourhood of Claremorris, County Mayo. He had occasion to obtain writs of ejectment against his tenants at Curragh Leigh, but could not find any process-server who would run the risk of going round to deliver them. So Mr. Burke resolved to perform this legal business for himself. Accompanied by a trusty servant, both of them well mounted and furnished with loaded revolvers, Mr. Burke galloped rapidly across country, from one farmhouse straight to another, taking the occupants in each case entirely by surprise. He alighted at each door, took out his weapon, and, with the writ in his other hand, walked unceremoniously in, and showed it to the person there, with whom he left it, and then got into the saddle, and rode away as quickly as he had come. In some instances, however, the people were not at home, but Mr. Burke fell in with his customers in the neighbouring market-town. He saw one of them, Malachy Fallon, standing in the street at a shop door. Fallon rushed into the house, upon which Mr. Burke got off his horse, went in after him, and chased him up stairs, and from room to room; till finally in the garret, his last place of refuge, the runaway tenant was overtaken, and was obliged to accept service of the writ.

So great is the danger to which the process-server's life is exposed just now, that it is almost impossible to find one who will perform this duty. Until the Land League obtained its present sway over the people, the office of process-server was almost a sinecure, not having, in the course of a year, more than one or two processes to serve, and often none at all; so that it in no way interfered with the man's carrying on his ordinary occupation, which was generally that of care-taker on a farm. Now things are otherwise; and those who held this formerly peaceful office before have almost to a man preferred resigning their salary to risking their lives in doing the obnoxious work. But when the unfortunate process-server undertakes to brave this danger, his fate is often to be deplored. An instance took place at Darragh, in county Limerick, where, on the 13th ult., a process-server named John Riordan was engaged in serving ejectments on the tenants of Lord Ashtown. He was attacked by a crowd of more than two hundred people, who pelted him with stones and belaboured him with sticks to such an extent that the poor fellow was nearly dead when he arrived at Kilfinane, a distance of two miles, which he had to run for his life.

Several fresh outrages have been reported this week, among which is the burning of farm-houses, as well as the mutilation of cattle, and ferocious assaults, and formidable riots. Mr. Daly, proprietor of the Connaught Telegraph, has been released from custody in Kilmainham Goal.

The Willem Barents, the little Polar ship which has already made three voyages to the Northern Polar Sea, left Amsterdam last Saturday for the fourth time. The crew consists of a Lieutenant of the Royal Navy, H. van Broekhuyzen, as captain, two other officers, a physician, a zoologist, a photographer (the Englishman, Mr. Grant), and six sailors. The King and all the members of the Royal family have given considerable gifts to the expedition, and from all sides it has met with co-operation.

THE IRISH LAND LEAGUE AGITATION: MR. WALTER BURKE SERVING WRITS ON HIS TENANTS.
FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.

HOME NEWS.

Thirteen militia regiments began on Monday their annual period of training, which extends to June 4.

The Pharmaceutical Society of Great Britain hold a conversazione next Wednesday at the South Kensington Museum.

At the annual meeting of the London University on Tuesday a resolution authorising the holding of examinations twice a year was adopted.

Rooks, which were unknown in Orkney until about two years ago, have now formed a regular settlement in every garden where trees are to be found.

According to an Edinburgh journal, the Lord Advocate has telegraphed announcing that Government will introduce a bill for the abolition of Church and manse rates in Scotland.

Dr. Danford Thomas was on Monday elected Coroner for Central Middlesex in the room of the late Dr. Hardwicke by a large majority over the number polled for Mr. Bolton.

An international exhibition of flour-mill machinery and of machines used in the manufacture and baking of bread has been held this week at the Agricultural Hall.

At a Court of Aldermen, held on Tuesday at the Guildhall—the Lord Mayor in the chair—Mr. William Anderson Ogg, merchant, citizen, and fruiterer, was nominated by his Lordship as one of the Sheriffs of the year ensuing.

Mr. John Simon, F.R.S., and Mr. T. Pridgin Teale, have been reappointed members of the General Council of Medical Education and Registration of the United Kingdom for the ensuing five years.

On the strong representation of Mr. Shaw Lefevre, the First Commissioner of Works, the Treasury have consented to give a grant of one thousand pounds for the restoration and improvement of St. Margaret's Churchyard, Westminster.

Nineteen men of the Metropolitan Fire Brigade, who had displayed conspicuous bravery during the last five years in saving sixty-seven lives, yesterday week received medals at the hands of the chairman of the Metropolitan Board.

It transpired at the hearing of a technical issue in connection with the Miles Platting Ritualist case in the Chancery Division, on Saturday, judgment on the point being reserved, that the costs in the undefended suit amounted to £243.

The fourth and last of the Cantor Lectures on the Art of Lace-making was given at the Society of Arts on Monday evening by Mr. Alan Cole; the subject of the lecture being "Modern Hand-made Laces and Machine-made Laces."

An attempt was made to blow up the Militia barracks at Chester on the night of the 5th inst. A bag, containing some explosive, was hung upon a nail driven into the wall, and fired by means of a fuse. No damage, however, was done.

After a protracted debate the Leamington Town Council decided on Monday, by a majority of only one, to erect new municipal buildings on the Denbigh Villa site, instead of on that of the pump-rooms, which belong to the town. The ground will cost over £6000, and the buildings another £25,000.

Her Majesty has conferred the Albert Medal of the Second Class on George Williams, boatman, Uzon Station of the Coast Guard, on account of services in respect of saving the lives of four survivors of the crew of the Norwegian brig Ranger, of Fredriksbald, which was wrecked at Marywells.

The Right Hon. W. H. Smith, M.P., presided at the annual meeting of the Royal Asylum in Aid of the Deaf and Dumb, held on Tuesday afternoon at the Rooms in Oxford-street.—Mr. O. E. Coope, M.P., and Lord Ebury also advocated the claims of the society.

An exhibition of roses from the gardens of Messrs. William Paul and Son, of Waltham-cross, has been open this year at the gardens of the Royal Botanic Society, Regent's-park. The show includes a collection of specimens about 250 in number, excellent as to bloom, and arranged with taste.

The Lord Mayor has received, through the Spanish Minister, a pressing invitation from the Alcalde of Madrid to be present at the fêtes about to be given in that city in celebration of the Calderon Centenary, but has been obliged to decline it, owing to official duties in London.

At a business meeting of the Congregational Union of England and Wales held on Monday evening at the Memorial Hall, previous to the annual spring session, which began on the following day, the election of president for the year 1882 took place. The candidates were the Rev. J. A. Macfadyen, M.A., of Manchester, and the Rev. Dr. Parker, of the City Temple; the result of the voting, which was by ballot, being that Mr. Macfadyen was elected by 726 votes, as against 429 given to Dr. J. Parker.

The National Fisheries Exhibition at Norwich has awarded one out of its three gold medals under Class 3 to the National Life-Boat Institution in recognition of its articles at the Exhibition, and particularly in acknowledgment of the completeness of its machinery for the preservation of life from shipwreck.

There was a somewhat larger number of steamers arrived at Liverpool last week with live cattle and fresh meat from the United States and Canada; but notwithstanding the arrivals were much below those of the preceding week; the totals being 1373 cattle, 1751 sheep, 6907 quarters of beef, 1158 carcases of mutton, and 200 dead pigs and 256 live pigs.

The Lord Chancellor has written to a Devonshire clergyman in reference to the case of Mr. Bradlaugh, in which his Lordship states that he sees no possibility of refusing to extend to all who, for any excuse whatever, may scruple to take the prescribed Parliamentary oath the same option to affirm which they now have under the Acts relating to evidence in courts of justice.

In London last week 2515 births and 1472 deaths were registered. Allowing for increase of population, the births were 153 and the deaths 87 below the average numbers in the corresponding week of the last ten years. Eighty-eight persons died from smallpox in London last week, and these fatal cases included 18 of children under five years of age, 29 of persons between five and twenty years, 32 between twenty and forty, and 9 upwards of forty. The number of smallpox patients in the Metropolitan Asylum hospitals rose to 1095, a higher number than has been under treatment at these institutions since the epidemic of 1871-2.

The Lord Mayor on Saturday last gave a dinner at the Mansion House to Dr. Moffat and representatives of Missionary Societies. The Archbishop of Canterbury expressed the hope that the centre and south of Africa would derive the same benefit as North Africa had done from the civilizing influence of missions. In proposing the health of Dr. Moffat, the Lord Mayor said his name and that of Livingstone would remain inseparable in the triumphs of Christianity and civilization in Africa. The toast of "The Clergy and Ministers of all Denominations" was replied to by Canon Farrar, the Rev. E. Jenkins (president of the Wesleyan Conference), and the Rev. Dr. Allon (chairman of the Congregational Union). The Earl of Shaftesbury and Bishop Claughton also spoke.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

CHATTO and WINDUS'S NEW BOOKS, now ready, at every Library.

NEW NOVEL, by Authors of "Ready-Money Mortiboy," 3 vols.
THE CHAPLAIN OF THE FLEET. By BESANT and RICE, Authors of "The Golden Butterfly," &c. "Reads almost as naturally as anything of Defoe's. . . . This picturesque story will add to the reputation of the authors."—Athenæum.

WILKIE COLLINS'S NEW NOVEL, 3 vols., crown 8vo,
THE BLACK ROBE. By WILKIE COLLINS, Author of "The Woman in White," "A unique success; a novel which may be counted as one more triumph for its author."—Morning Post. Second Edition now ready.

JAMES PAYN'S NEW NOVEL, 3 vols., crown 8vo.
FROM EXILE. By JAMES PAYN, Author of "By Proxy," &c. "Mr. Payn's geniality and sportiveness are irrepressible; the clever repartees in his conversations, and the little jokes on his own account, are as bright and merry as ever, and his style throughout shows no sign of diminished vivacity."—Athenæum.

NEW VOLUME of MAYFAIR LIBRARY.—Cloth limp, 2s. 6d.
THE CUPBOARD PAPERS: a Series of Reflections on the Art of Living. By FIN-BEC. "A most entertaining series of Essays."—Illustrated London News.

THE SUBURBAN HOMES OF LONDON: Favourite London Localities, their Society, Celebrities, and Associations. With Notes on their Rental and House Accommodation, and a Map of the Environs. Crown 8vo, cloth extra, 7s. 6d. "Everyone will find abundance of interest, and not a little instruction, in this attractive volume. We know of no other work that gives such a large amount of information."—Daily Chronicle.

THE EVOLUTIONIST AT LARGE. By GRANT ALLEN. Crown 8vo, cloth extra, 6s. "One of the best specimens of popular scientific exposition that we have ever had the good fortune to fall in with. The author is a naturalist of the highest type, and his command of clear and impressive language is as complete as his knowledge is extensive."—Leeds Mercury.

CHATTO AND WINDUS, Piccadilly, W.

PRACTICAL LESSONS IN PAINTING ON CHINA, PORCELAIN, FARTHENWARE, &c. By Madame la Baronne DELAMARDELLE; from the French by GUSTAVE A. BOUVIER. 4th Edition. Price 1s.; post-free, 1s. 1d.—London: LECHERTIER, BARBE, and Co., 60, Regent-street.

ANGLO-AMERICAN METHOD; or, A New and Infallible System to LEARN in Three Months how to Read, Write, and Pronounce Correctly the FRENCH LANGUAGE. By J. DE FALLOT, B.A., L.L.H. Cloth, 8vo, pp. 501, price 8s.—London: DULAU and Co., 37, Soho-square.

ALL MOTHERS SHOULD READ
MYRA'S MID-MONTHLY JOURNAL and CHILDREN'S DRESS. Price 6d.; by post, 8d. Published on the 15th of each Month.

MYRA'S MID-MONTHLY JOURNAL contains information upon all the Newest Modes for Children, from Infants to fourteen years of age.

MYRA'S MID-MONTHLY JOURNAL.
The Novelties for MAY are.—
1. Coloured Fashion Plate.
2. Dinorna Sleeve, containing Patterns of the Alexandra Costume, Drawers for a Child of two, Fichu for a Young Lady, and the Christopher Suit.
3. Cut-out Paper Pattern of the Yvonne Pinafore for a Young Child.
4. The Silkworm's Gift. Designs for Embroidering the Yvonne Pinafore.
5. La Mode in Paris; Our Children; Notes on Novelties.
6. Myra's Answers; London Modes, Dress, Health, and Personal Attention, Play-time, the Cuisine, Books and Authors, Music, Etiquette, Miscellaneous, Last News from Paris.
7. Illustrations of the Newest Modes in Costumes and Toilettes for Children; Indoor, Walking, and Evening Dresses; Mantles, Fichus, Chapeaux, Coiffures, Lingerie, &c.; Models of Mantles, Dressings, Gowns, and Children's Costumes from Les Grands Magasins du Louvre.
8. Needlework: Designs for Embroidered Photograph Frame, Berlin Wool Work, Crochet and Darned Lace.

Subscriptions—Yearly, 8s.: Half-Yearly, 4s.
GOUBAUD and SON,
39 and 40, Bedford-street, London, W.C.

Third Edition, price 1s., post-free,
THE New Electrolytic Treatment of Cancer and Simple Tumours. By G. HAGELBOW, M.D. NELSON and Co., 23, Duke-street, Grosvenor-square, W.

JUST PUBLISHED, post-free, 24 stamps,
DYSPEPSIA and the SEVERER FORMS OF INDIGESTION. A small pamphlet on these distressing complaints and their complete cure. Published by the Author, RICHARD KING, Esq., Staff Surgeon R.N., 23, Warwick-st., Regtby.

Enlarged Edition, pp. 340, bound, 1s., or 14 stamps,
HOMŒOPATHIC FAMILY INSTRUCTOR. By Drs. R. and W. EPPS. Describes fully and Prescribes for a Hundred Diseases. JAMES EPPS and Co., 48, Threadneedle-street; and 170, Piccadilly.

NOSE and THROAT DISEASES, and their Local Treatment by Medicated Sprays. By GEORGE MOORE, M.D. 8vo, 1s.; or 12 Stamps. JAMES EPPS and Co., 170, Piccadilly; and 48, Threadneedle-street.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

Now ready, in 2 vols., 21s.,
CATHARINE OF ARAGON, and the COURTS of the ENGLISH REFORMATION. Edited, from the French of Albert du Boys, with Notes by CHARLOTTE M. YONGE.
HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

At all Booksellers'.
THE NOVELS of Mrs. HENRY WOOD.
Each vol. in crown 8vo, price 6s.
East Lynne (99th Thousand). The Channings (33rd Thousand). Anne Hereford. Dene Hollow. Elster's Folly. Edina. Bessy Rane. George Canterbury's Will. Johnny Ludlow (First Series). Johnny Ludlow (Second Series). Lady Adelaide. A Life's Secret. Lord Oakburn's Daughters. Mildred Arkell. Mrs. Halliburton's Troubles. Orville College. Oswald Cray. Parkwater. Pomeroy Abbey. Red Court Farm. Roland Yorke. Shadow of Ashlydyat. St. Martin's Eve. Trevlyn Hold. Verner's Pride. Within the Maze.

THE NOVELS of RHODA BROUGHTON.
Each vol., in crown 8vo, price 6s.
Cometh up as a Flower. Good-bye. Nowhere. Joan. Nancy. Not Wisely but too Well. Red as a Rose is She. Second Thoughts.

THE NOVELS of JANE AUSTEN.
The only complete edition. Each vol., in crown 8vo, price 6s.
Emma. Lady Susan, and The Watsons. Mansfield Park. Northanger Abbey. Persuasion. Pride and Prejudice. Sense and Sensibility.
RICHARD BENTLEY and Son, New Burlington-street.

MISS BRADDON'S LATEST NOVEL.
New Edition, price 6s., with "Just as I Am,"
ASPHODEL. The Latest Novel. By the Author of "Lady Audley's Secret," "Vixen," &c.
London: J. and R. MAXWELL, Milton-house, Shoe-lane, E.C.

CAPTURE OF ENGLISH SUBJECTS BY GREEK BRIGANDS
Profusely Illustrated by Gustave Doré, price 2s.; cloth, 2s. 6d.
THE GREEK BRIGAND. A Romance of Reality. By EDMUND ABOUT. Translated by Sir G. Wrazall, Bart.
London: J. and R. MAXWELL, Milton House, Shoe-lane, E.C.

Fifteenth Edition, enlarged to 100 pages, post-free 1s.,
HOW TO INVEST. No one should invest either large or small sums without first reading this work. "More valuable than ever."—Vide Public Press. Published by E. J. BARTLETT, F.R.G.S., 30, Great St. Helen's, London.

Eighth Edition, cloth, post-free, 33 stamps,
DR. BARR MEADOWS on Skin Disease. Remarks on the Abuse of Arsenic and specifics. London: G. HILL, 154, Westminster-road.

THE REVISED NEW TESTAMENT.—PARKINS and GOTTO are now taking orders for this important work, which will be issued by them on May 17 at trade prices. Shilling books, 9d.; 2s. books, 1s. 6d.; 3s. books, 4s. 6d.; and so on. Specimens of type and price-list post-free.—PARKINS and GOTTO'S Oxford-street Bible Warehouse, London, W.

WEDDING and BIRTHDAY PRESENTS at RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly, London.
SETS FOR THE WRITING-TABLE AND BOUDOIR, IN POLISHED BRASS, ORMOLU, SEVRES CHINA, BRONZE, and OXIDIZED SILVER, from .. .. 21s. to £10
TRAVELLING DRESSING BAGS .. .. .. 63s. to £50
DRESSING CASES .. .. .. .. .. 21s. to £50
DESPATCH BOXES .. .. .. .. .. 21s. to £10
TOURISTS' WRITING CASES .. .. .. .. 4s. 6d. to £5
ENVELOPE CASES and BLOTTING BOOKS.. 10s. 6d. to £5
INKSTANDS .. .. .. .. .. .. 5s. to £5
CANDLESTICKS (per pair) .. .. .. .. 7s. 6d. to £5
WORK BOXES .. .. .. .. .. .. 15s. to £5
THE NEW "TANTALUS" LIQUEUR STAND .. 10s. to £10
THE "TANTALUS" SODA AND HOT WATER STAND, £2 12s. 6d.
And a large and choice assortment of ENGLISH, VIENNESE, and PARISIAN NOVELTIES, from 5s. to £5.

PORTRAIT ALBUMS at RODRIGUES', with Patent Leather Guards, 4s. 6d. to £5. Floral Albums, Scrap Albums, Illuminated Albums, Autograph Albums, Albums of every description made to order.—42, Piccadilly.

RODRIGUES' MONOGRAMS, ARMS, CORONET, CREST, and ADDRESS DIES Engraved to items from Original and Artistic Designs. NOTE-PAPER and ENVELOPES, brilliantly Illuminated by hand in Gold, Silver, Bronze, and Colours. BEST RELIEF STAMPING, any colour, 1s. per 100. All the New and Fashionable Note-Papers. VISITING CARD PLATE elegantly Engraved, and 100 Superfine Cards printed, for 4s. 6d. BALL PROGRAMMES, BILLS OF FARE, GUEST CARDS, WEDDING CARDS, and INVITATIONS in every variety. HENRY RODRIGUES, 42, Piccadilly, London.

CHROMOPHOTOGRAPHY. (KRAUS' PROCESS.)
The New Art (enabling any person without previous knowledge of either Painting or Drawing) to Colour Photographs on convex glasses, in imitation of China and Enamel Painting. Books containing every requisite, 2s. and 3s. Particulars post-free. Specimens shown on application at the Sole Agents, J. BARNARD and SON, 338, Oxford-street, London, W.

VITREMANIE, superseding Diaphanie. An easy and inexpensive method of decorating windows in churches, public buildings, and private houses, by which may be produced the rich colouring and beautiful designs equal in appearance to real stained glass. Handbook of Designs and full instructions, 1s. 1d. Boxes, comprising designs, &c., at 21s., 31s. 6d., 42s. Particulars post-free. Sole inventors, J. BARNARD and SON, 338, Oxford-street, London, W.

PARIS. GRAND HOTEL. PARIS.
12—BOULEVARD DES CAPUCINES—12.
Most carefully re-organised under New Management. Seven Hundred Rooms and Salons, from 5 francs.
Table d'hôte in private Dining-rooms, from Eleven to One o'Clock, 5 francs, inclusive wine, coffee, and cognac.
Dinners, with Orchestra, at Half-past Six o'Clock, 8 francs, inclusive wine.
Cafe and Restaurant opening into the Court of Honour.
Cafe, Divan, Billiards, Smoking-Room, Newspapers of all countries, Post and Telegraph Offices and Booking to the Theatres. Baths. Lift.
For a prolonged sojourn, reduced terms, as per agreement.

NAUTICAL TRAINING COLLEGE.
THE THAMES NAUTICAL TRAINING COLLEGE, H.M.S. WORCESTER, moored off Greenhithe, Kent, is managed by a Committee of London Shipowners, Merchants, and Captains. Chairman, Sir G. H. Chambers, 4, Minching-lane, E.C.; Vice-Chairman, W. Strang, Esq., 63, Fenchurch-street, E.C.; Treasurer, Thomas Daniel Hill, Esq., 4, Mincing-lane, E.C. YOUTHS from 13 to 15½ years of age, intended for the Navy, are RECEIVED on board, and specially educated for a SEAFARING LIFE. The annual terms in the Upper School for Cadets from 13 to 15½ are 36 guineas; in the Lower School for Boys from 11 to 13, 45 guineas, with a charge to each of 10 guineas for uniform, medical attendance, washing, &c. Forms and Prospectuses may be obtained on application to W. M. BULLIVANT, Hon. Sec. 72, Mark-lane, London.

ESSEX.—In the Neighbourhood of Romford.—Mansion, with great show of timber. To be LET, Furnished, for a term, a most convenient FAMILY MANSION, standing in a large, finely-timbered park, and surrounded by charming grounds, shrubberies, lawns, &c., in all seven acres in extent. The house has all necessary accommodation for a gentleman's or gentleman's family, large range of good stabling, well-stocked kitchen gardens, with vineries, forcing-houses, pits, &c., and orchard. The shooting comprises nearly 900 acres, including a suitable quantity of covert. Good jack and other fishing in a lake, and also the river Blackwater, which runs through the estate. Terms and cards to view of T. and W. BANTING, 27, St. James's-street, London, S.W.

BANK OF NEW ZEALAND
(Incorporated by Act of General Assembly, July 29, 1861).
Bankers to the New Zealand Government.
Capital subscribed and paid up, £1,000,000.
Reserve Fund, £350,000.
Head Office—Auckland.
BRANCHES AND AGENCIES.
In Australia—Melbourne, Sydney, and Newcastle.
In Fiji—Levuka.
In New Zealand—Auckland, Blenheim, Christchurch, Dunedin, Invercargill, Napier, Nelson, New Plymouth, Picton, Wellington, and at eighty-two other towns and places throughout the Colony.
The Bank grants Drafts on all their Branches and Agencies, and transacts every description of banking business connected with New Zealand, Australia, and Fiji on the most favourable terms.
The London Office RECEIVES FIXED DEPOSITS of £20 and upwards, rates and conditions of which can be ascertained on application.
F. LARKWORTHY, Managing Director.
No. 1, Queen Victoria-street, Mansion House, E.C.

SUN FIRE-OFFICE, Threadneedle-street, E.C.; Charing-cross, S.W.; Oxford-street (corner of Vere-street), W.
Established 171 years.
Home and Foreign Insurances effected.
Sum insured in 1880, £292,745,933.
FRANCIS B. RELTON, Secretary.

THE ART-FURNISHERS' ALLIANCE, Limited, 127, New Bond-street, London, W., IS NOW OPEN, as a medium for producing the best Art-effects in all branches of House Furnishing and decoration at the least possible outlay. The Public is invited to inspect the Original Assortment of Furniture and other specially selected objects of domestic use and decorative art, now on sale, and designated by the "Whitehall Review" of April 16 as "the most superb collection of artistic furniture and accessories ever brought together."
Every article has its price affixed. Those intending to build, alter, or redecorate their houses, should inspect the examples now on sale at
THE ART-FURNISHERS' ALLIANCE, LIMITED, 127, New Bond-street, W.
Chief Director, Clarence A. Ph.D., F.R.S. Art Adviser, EDWARD LEE, Kut., F.S.A. Scot., Secretary and Manager.

WHAT IS YOUR CREST and WHAT IS YOUR MOTTO? Send name and county to CULLETON'S Heraldic Office, Plain sketch, 3s. 6d.; colours, 7s. The arms of man and wife blended. Crest engraved on seals, rings, books, and steel dies, 8s. 6d. Gold seal, with crest, 20s. Solid Gold Ring, 18-carat, Hall-marked, with crest, 42s. Manual of Heraldry, 400 engravings, 3s. 9d.—T. CULLETON, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

CULLETON'S GUINEA BOX of STATIONERY contains a Ream of the very best Paper and 500 Envelopes, all stamped in the most elegant way with Crest and Motto, Monogram, or Address, and the engraving of Steel Die included. Sent to any part for P.O. order.—T. CULLETON, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

VISITING CARDS, by CULLETON. Fifty best quality, 2s. 6d., post-free, including the Engraving of Copper-plate. Wedding Cards, 50 each, 42 Embossed Envelopes, with Maiden Name, 15s. 6d.—T. CULLETON, Seal Engraver, 25, Cranbourn-street, St. Martin's-lane, W.C.

FOR FAMILY ARMS (Lincoln's-inn Heraldic Office) send Name and County. Sketch, 3s. 6d.; in colours, 7s. 6d. Arms Painted and Engraved on Seals, Dies, &c. PUGH BROTHERS, Great Turnstile, Lincoln's-inn, W.C.; and 76, Queen Victoria-street, E.C. Prize Medal, Paris, 1878.

FOR ARMS and CREST send Name and County to T. MORING, Inns of Court Heraldic Offices, 323, High Holborn, W.C. Plain Sketch, 3s. 6d.; Coloured, 7s. 6d. Seals, Dies, and Diplomas. Illustrated Price-Lists post-free.

JOSEPH GILLOTT'S STEEL PENS. GOLD MEDAL, PARIS, 1878.

ALFRED B. PEARCE, 39, Ludgate-hill, INVITES INSPECTION of all that is new and beautiful in useful and ornamental CHINA and GLASS, including

| | s. | d. |
|---|---|---|
| Dinner Services ("Cottage"), 50 pieces .. .. .. .. | 12 | 6 |
| Dinner services for 12 persons (the pieces) .. .. | 25 | 0 |
| China Dessert Services for 12 persons, 44 pcs., Unglit | 14 | 0 |
| Gilt China Tea services, 42 pieces, for .. .. 28 pieces | 8 | 6 |
| China Breakfast Sets for 6 persons, 15s. .. .. for 4 persons | 7 | 0 |
| Toilet Services (for washstands), 6s. 6d., 5s. 6d., and | 3 | 9 |
| White Stone Jugs, "The Grecian," .. .. .. .. act of three | 1 | 3 |

All really excellent patterns.

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| Quart Decanters, good cut glass, 5s. per pair .. .. plain | 4 | 0 |
| Claret Decanters (with handle), 4s. each .. .. and | 3 | 0 |
| Plain light Claret Glasses, well made, 9s. per doz. .. and | 4 | 6 |
| Wine Glasses, plain or cut, Ports and Sherries, per doz. | 1 | 9 |
| Engraved Wine Glasses .. .. do. .. .. do. | 3 | 0 |
| Rock Glasses, ruby bowl, 6s. per doz. .. .. green bowl | 3 | 0 |
| Tumblers, cut, 3s. 3d.; plain, 2s. 8d., moulded, per doz. | 1 | 6 |
| Plain light Finger-Glasses, taper shape .. .. per doz. | 6 | 6 |

Other articles proportionately cheap.
Descriptive Catalogue post-free.
ALFRED B. PEARCE, 39, LUDGATE-HILL. Established 1760.

JOHN BRINSMEAD and SONS' PATENT SOSTENENTE PIANOS have gained the highest awards at all the recent International Exhibitions, including the two First Prizes, Melbourne, 1881; the First Prize, Adelaide, 1881; the two First Special Prizes, Sydney, 1880; the Legion of Honour, Paris, 1878, &c. For SALE, Hire, and on the Three Years' system.—18c, 20, Wigmore-st., London, W. Illustrated Lists free.
JOHN BRINSMEAD and SONS' PIANOS for SALE, Hire, and on the Three Years' System.—18, 20, Wigmore-street; and the Brinsmead Works, Grafton-road, N.W. Lists post-free.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN PRINTER. The People's Printing Press, for Authors, Amateurs, the Army and Navy, &c. Prospectuses forwarded on application to D. G. BERRI, 36, High Holborn, London, W.C.

GENUINE DUBLIN WHISKY.
THE MOST WHOLESOME OF ALL SPIRITS.
DUBLIN WHISKY, Distilled by Messrs. JOHN JAMESON and SON, GEORGE ROE and CO., WILLIAM JAMESON and CO., and JOHN POWER and SONS' can be obtained in bond by wholesale merchants and dealers direct from their respective distilleries.

ROBERT ROBERTS AND CO.'S CELEBRATED TEAS.
TWELVE POUNDS AND UPWARDS CARRIAGE PAID.
Samples and Price-lists free by post.
Queen Insurance-buildings, Liverpool. ESTABLISHED 1840.
No agents.
All communications and orders direct.

HORNIMAN'S TEA for Forty Years has commanded a large sale, because it has always been relied on for strength, flavour, and cheapness. It is the best tea imported. Sold only in Packets.

FRY'S | Gold Medal, Paris, 1878. | First Award, Sydney, 1879.
FRY'S CARACAS COCOA. "A most delicious and valuable article."—Standard.

COCOA. PURE COCOA ONLY.
FRY'S COCOA EXTRACT. "Strictly pure."—W. W. STODDART, F.I.C., F.A.C., City Analyst, Bristol. Thirteen Exhibition Medals.

CHOCOLAT MENIER. Awarded the GRAND DIPLOMA OF HONOUR.

CHOCOLAT MENIER, in ¼ lb. and ½ lb. Packets. For BREAKFAST and SUPPER.

CHOCOLAT MENIER.—Awarded Twenty Eight PRIZE MEDALS. Consumption annually exceeds 10,000,000 lbs.

CHOCOLAT MENIER. Paris, London, New York. Sold Everywhere.

SCHWEITZER'S COCOATINA. Anti-Dyspeptic Cocoa or Chocolate Powder. Guaranteed Pure Soluble Cocoa, with excess of Fat extracted. Four times the strength of Cocoa Thickened yet Weakened with Arrowroot, Starch, &c.
The faculty pronounce it the most nutritious, perfectly digestive Beverage for "BREAKFAST, LUNCHEON, or SUPPER." Keeps in all Climates. Requires no Cooking. A teaspoonful to Breakfast Cup, costing less than a halfpenny. Sample gratis. In Air-Tight Tins, at 6d., 1s., 2s., &c., by Chemists and Grocers.
H. SCHWEITZER and CO., 10, Adam-street, London, W.C.

THE ESSEX FLOUR and GRAIN COMPANY, Liverpool-road, London, N., supply the best goods only. Flour: Whites for Pastry, per 56 lb., 8s. 6d.; Households, for Bread making, 8s. 8d.; Whole Wheaten Meal (granulated), for Brown Bread, 8s.; Best Scotch Oatmeal for Porridge, per 14 lb., 2s.; Hominy, 2s.; Barley, Buck Wheat, Maize, and Mixed Corn for Poultry, per bushel, 3s.; Middlings, 2s.; Bran, 1s.; Pearl Split Peas, per peck 3s.; Split Egyptian Lentils, 3s.; Meat Biscuits, per 14 lb., 2s. 6d.; Barley Meal, per 4s lb., 2s.; Lentil Flour, per 14 lb., 3s. 6d.; per 14 lb., 8s. All other kinds of Grain and Seeds. Price-list on application. Special quotations for large orders. P.O. Orders and Cheques to be made in favour of George Young.

PETER ROBINSON,
103 to 108, OXFORD-STREET.
NEW SPRING GOODS
in all Departments.
ILLUSTRATIONS AND PATTERNS FREE.

FASHION-BOOK and PRICE-LIST will be Ready early in May. Sent free by post.

LADIES IN THE COUNTRY
Are requested to write for Patterns of

NEW SPRING SILKS, including

PONGE WASHING SILK, 20 yards for 1 Guinea.

PONGEE GARNITURES, 4½ yards long, Embroidered in Silk, 10s. 6d. the piece.

300 PIECES of GRISAILLE SILKS, 22s. 6d. the Dress.

SPECIAL.

180 PIECES of COLOURED GROS GRAIN, in all the New Shades, 2s. 9½d. per yard.

100 PIECES of NEW BLACK BROCHÉ SATIN, from 2s. 11d. per yard.

BLACK SATINS, soft and bright, from 1s. 6d. per yard.

100 PIECES of extra Rich BLACK SILK MERVEILLEUX, 4s. 6d. per yard, 24 in. wide.

160 SHADES of New DUCHESSE SATINS, extra wide width, 4s. 3d. per yard.

RICH BLACK SATIN GROUND BROCADED VELVET, for Mantles, &c., 7s. 11d. per yard.

ITALIAN SATINS, in every shade of Colour, from 2s. 11d. per yard.

ALL the LATEST NOVELTIES in SHADED and BROCADED SILKS, from 3s. 6d. to 7s. 6d. per yard.

PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON.

LADIES IN THE COUNTRY
are requested to write for Patterns of

NEW SPRING DRESSES, including

ANGOLA BEIGE, 26 in. wide, 10½d., to 1s. 6d. per yard.
ANGOLA BEIGE, 45 in. wide, 1s. 10½d. to 2s. 6d. per yard.
VIGOGNE CASIMERE, very fine, 26 in. wide, 1s. 6d. per yard.
CACHEMIRE DE L'INDE, 45 in. wide, 2s. 11d. to 3s. 9d. per yard.
CASHMERE MERINOS, New Spring Colours, very wide, 1s. 11d. to 2s. 9d.
CACHEMIRE DE PARIS, very fine, 46 in. wide, 1s. 11d. to 3s. 3d. per yard.
VIGOGNE CLOTH, 36 in. wide, all Wool, 1s. 6d. per yard.
DRAP CASIMIR, 36 in. wide, 1s. to 1s. 9d. per yard.
Rich Wool and Silk MIXED FABRICS, Pompadour and other elegant styles for draping, 1s. 9d. to 3s. 6d. per yard.
All the above in Black and every shade, including the NEW HIGH 4-BT COLOURS.
RICH VELVET VELVETEENS in the New Black, as advertised, very wide, 2s. to 3s. 9d. per yard. In White and all the New Colours, 2s. 3d. to 4s. 6d. per yard.
SPECIAL SALE of 120 pieces RICH BLACK DAMASSE CASIMIR, at 1s. 9d. per yard; usual price 3s. 6d.
BLACK GRENADINES, Plain, Brocbé, and striped.
An enormous collection of PRINTED SATINES, Percales, Cambrics, Crétonnes, &c., in every variety of design.
Several hundred pieces last year's patterns best French Cambrics, at 4½d. per yard.
OSBORNE LAWNS, a very useful Fabric for MORNING DRESSES, in Plain, Checked, and Striped, all Colours. These goods are very wide, and one uniform price, 7½d. per yard.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.

MADE MATERIAL COSTUMES.
A well-selected assortment of all the leading styles and combinations, including:—

| | £ | s. | d. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Light Fonlé Casimir, trimmed braid .. .. | 1 | 9 | 6 |
| Plain and Fancy Beige .. .. .. | 2 | 12 | 6 |
| French Cashmere, trimmed rich brocades .. | 3 | 18 | 6 |
| Cashmere de l'Inde, trimmed cuirass .. .. | 0 | 14 | 6 |
| Plain and Printed Cambrics and Percales .. | 0 | 14 | 9 |
| New Printed Sateines .. .. .. .. | 1 | 7 | 6 |
| Corded and Zephyr Lawns .. .. .. | 1 | 11 | 6 |

Patterns and Illustrations of the above Costumes, with Forms for Self-Measurement, post-free.

PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON, W.

CHAPMAN'S, NOTTING-HILL, W.

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY CHEAP SILKS.

| | £ | s. | d. |
|---|---|---|---|
| A Black Corded Silk Dress .. .. 12 yds. | 2 | 0 | 0 |
| A Black Corded Silk, superior quality .. .. | 2 | 0 | 0 |
| A Black Gros Grain Silk Dress .. .. .. | 3 | 0 | 0 |
| A Black Bonnet's Silk Dress .. .. .. .. | 5 | 0 | 0 |
| A Coloured Silk Dress .. .. .. .. .. | 1 | 10 | 0 |
| A Gros Du Monde Silk Dress .. .. .. .. | 1 | 10 | 0 |
| A Black Satin Dress .. .. .. .. .. | 1 | 0 | 0 |
| A Black Satin Dress .. .. .. .. .. | 2 | 0 | 0 |

CASHMERES, One Hundred Shades, 1s. 6½d.

CASHMERES, One Hundred Shades, 1s. 6½d.

CASHMERES, One Hundred Shades, 2s. 11½d.

MERINOS, One Hundred Shades, 1s. 9½d.

MERINOS, One Hundred Shades, 2s. 6½d.

"SPECIALITE."
KASHMYR HINDOU.
Beautifully soft and supple, as only Indian Cloths are, this new make of Kashmyr recommends itself to all for its modest price and general useful qualities. Ladies should bear in mind that this class of Foreign Goods is superior in every way to ordinary Cashmere, being woven from the finest and purest wools; and, although the dyes are not always as clear as in the French makes, the colours are sounder and the cloth more durable. They are 1s. 11½d. and 2s. 11½d. per yard, the width 48 inches.

THE DRESS TRADE DEPRESSION.
Special purchases of a Manufacturer's Stock of medium-priced Dress Fabrics, fully 2s. in the pound under value. There are three divisions:—
Lot 1 .. 7½d. | Lot 2 .. 10½d. | Lot 3 .. 1s. 0½d. per yard.

SCOTCH TARTAN GINGHAMS.
It is many years since a Gingham Dress was fashionable, but this summer seems destined to make this once-admired material a more popular favourite than ever. All kinds of fancy plaids, as well as Clan Tartans, will be worn. But the great charm about real Scotch Ginghams is their marvellous washing qualities; do what you will with them, scrub them, if you like—say, boil them—nothing seems to harm them; they look as well as ever after being subjected to the severest treatment. For children's use, are unrivalled. Cool, durable, and most moderate in price. 30 inches wide, 1s. 1½d. per yard.

PATTERNS FREE.

CHAPMAN'S, NOTTING-HILL, W.

PETER ROBINSON'S
COURT AND GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
REGENT-STREET.

FAMILY BEREAVEMENTS.
Upon Receipt of Letter or Telegram
PETER ROBINSON'S EXPERIENCED DRESSMAKERS and MILLINERS TRAVEL to ALL PARTS of the COUNTRY (no matter the distance) FREE OF EXPENSE TO PURCHASERS, with Dresses, Mantles, Millinery, and a full assortment of MADE-UP ARTICLES of the best and most suitable description. Also Materials by the Yard, and supplied at the same VERY REASONABLE PRICES as if Purchased at the Warehouse in "REGENT-STREET."
Mourning for Servants at unexceptionally low rates, at a great saving to large or small families.
Funerals Conducted in Town or Country at Stated Charges.
Address 256 to 262, Regent-street, London.
PETER ROBINSON'S.

THE BEST CRAPES,
THAT WILL NOT SPOT WITH RAIN.
Special qualities finished by the manufacturer in this desirable manner solely to the order of PETER ROBINSON.
Good qualities from 5s. 6d. to 12s. 9d. per yard. Others, not finished by this process, from 1s. 6d. to 4s. 6d.

A SPECIAL PURCHASE.
300 PIECES OF
RICH BLACK BROCADED SILKS,
very fashionable now
for Costumes and Mantles,
3s. 9d., 5s. 11d., 4s. 3d., 4s. 9d., 5s. 11d., 6s. 6d.

100 PIECES OF
BLACK SATIN IMPERIAL,
a New Make of Satin,
Rich in appearance,
and wears better than any other silk.
5s. 6d., and up to 10s. 3d.

BLACK SATIN MERVEILLEUX,
new this Season,
3s. 6d., 4s. 11d., 5s. 9d., 6s. 6d.

BLACK SATIN DE LYON,
a good useful Silk, for Hard Wear,
3s. 6d., 4s. 11d., 5s. 11d., 6s. 6d.

BLACK DUCHESS SATIN,
at 5s. 6d., 6s. 6d.;
Magnificent qualities at 7s. 6d. and 10s. 6d.

BLACK SATINS (Cotton Backs),
1s. 11d., 2s. 6d., 2s. 11d., 3s. 11d.

BLACK BROCADED VELVETS,
5s. 9d., 6s. 11d., 8s. 9d., 10s. 9d.

BLACK TWILLED SILKS, for Summer Wear, at 3s. 6d., and above.

BLACK SURAT SILKS, with White Floral Designs, 2s. 11d., 3s. 6d., 3s. 11d.

COSTUMES in SILK, SATIN, and BROCADE.
Facsimiles of Robes worn at Paris Models at 4½ guineas and up to 30 guineas.
Materials for Bodices included.
For Patterns of the above,
Please write to—
PETER ROBINSON'S, REGENT-STREET,
Nos. 256 to 262.

TEENS that young ladies are in no hurry to get out of—
"LOUIS" VELVET-TEENS.

THE "LOUIS" VELVETEEN
IS SIMPLY UNIQUE.
Do not be induced by persuasion to take any other.

LOUIS
AN EXTRA PROFIT TO YOUR LOSS
may be graciously made if you accept, under whatever name offered, an inferior quality of Velveteen.
"THE LOUIS"
has established its reputation so widely that even a slight inferiority would injure its repute, which constitutes A TRIPLE MERIT,
and guarantee of
UNSURPASSED QUALITY.
Be sure you find the words
THE "LOUIS" VELVETEEN
on every yard,
or you have not the
GENUINE "LOUIS,"
notwithstanding all assertions to the contrary.

LOUIS
Wholesale London Agent, J. H. FULLER, 92, Watling-street, who will send on inquiry, post-free, the names of the nearest Drapers (not 1876 when the genuine LOUIS VELVETEEN can be obtained.

BAKER and CRISP'S 1000 New ULSTERS, Granny Cloaks, Dame Trots, Dolmans, Jerseys Jersey Skirts, Jackets, at the lowest prices. Patterns and Engravings free.—198, Regent-street.

COSTUMES.—The Newest, most Ladylike, Effective, and most Useful Costumes, from 21s. The new Morning Gowns, 12s. Tea-Gowns, 16s. 9d. The Dudley, Modjeska, Rosaline, and others. Engravings free.

BAKER and CRISP'S
MOTHER SHIPTON PINAFORES, Lawn Tennis, and others, made from real old English Bandannas. Sent post-free, 42 stamps.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

NEW TEXTILE SPRING FABRICS, 6¾d.
30,000 yards New Scarfe, Granite, and Vienna Cloths, 6¾d. yard. Real French Beiges, Foulé Cashmeres, and other Fabrics, 6¾d. to 1s. per yard. Patterns free.—198, Regent-street.

NEW POMPADOUR SATTEENS,
Cambrics, and all other washing Fabrics, from 6¾d. yard. Patterns free. Galatéas, Attaleas, Ginghams, Satteens, Oat Cake, and 100 others. Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP.

SILKS and SATINS, 1s. 11½d. yard. 100 Pieces Black Figured Broché Silks, 1s. 11½d. yard. Rich Black Satins, 1s. 11½d. and 2s. 6d. High Figured Velvets, 3s. 11d. Washing Silks, Cords, Tussores, Pompadours, and others. Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

MADAME ELLIOT makes-up DRESSES stylishly and fits elegantly.
8, Great Portland-street, Oxford-street.

MADAME ELLIOT'S CORSETS.
Splendid Shape. French and English make, 5s. 6d., 10s. 6d., 15s. 6d., 21s., 25s., 42s. Tea-cloth Jersey, send size of waist and P.O.O. for the amount. Corsets changed if not approved. Corsets made to order.—8, Great Portland-street, Oxford-street.

NEW SPRING DRESSES.—New Heather Tweed Beiges, 7½d.; New Granit Merveilleux, 6¾d. Patterns free.—JOHN HOOPER, 32, Oxford-street, W.

NOVELTIES for LADIES' MORNING DRESSES.—French Satteens, 8½d.; Pompadours, 7½d.; Prints, 6½d.: Linen Lawns, 8½d. Patterns free.
JOHN HOOPER, 32, Oxford-street, W.

NICHOLSON'S
NEW SUMMER SAMPLES.
Patterns post-free.
FRENCH CASHMERES, BEIGES,
SERGES, HERRING-BONE and MILAN STRIPES,
and all the Newest Materials in the most beautiful colours.

NICHOLSON'S
NEW WASHING FABRICS.
Patterns post-free.
FRENCH SATTEENS, CAMBRICS,
OATMEAL CLOTH, BRILLIANTS, &c.,
in every new and tasteful design.

NICHOLSON'S
NEW SILKS.
Patterns post-free.
PLUSHES, VELVETEENS, SATINS,
BROCHES, SATIN DE LYONS, and
PLAIN LYONS GROS GRAIN,
in every fashionable shade.

D. NICHOLSON and CO.,
50 to 54, ST. PAUL'S CHURCHYARD, LONDON.
8 LE LICESTER OF THE "POST" MEWS COURT, CRYSTAL PALACE.

JAY'S, Regent-street.

MOURNING.—Messrs. JAY'S Experienced Assistants travel to any part of the kingdom, free of expense to purchasers. They take dresses and millinery with them, besides patterns of materials, all marked in plain figures, and at the same price as if purchased at the Warehouse in Regent-street. Funerals at stated charges conducted in London or country. JAY'S, REGENT-STREET.

EVENING DRESSES, Black Net, Tulle, and Spanish Lace.—Messrs. JAY prepare for the season a variety of black Evening Dresses, which they can confidently recommend both for correctness of fashion and economy in price. Designs and prices postage-free.
JAY'S, Regent-street.

DRESS.—Messrs. JAY respectfully invite their clientèle to the choice Collection of Pattern Costumes of the Newest Type of Fashion, which are imported from Paris and Berlin.
JAY'S, Regent-street.

PEAU DE CHAMOIS COSTUMES.—A varied series of COSTUMES, made from Peau de Chamois Satin, are produced weekly during the season. Price 6½ guineas each, including sufficient satin to make a bodice.
JAY'S,
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
REGENT-STREET, W.

BRANDED SILKS.
The "LOCOMOTIVE" Quality,
23 inches wide, 3s. 11d. per yard.
The "OBELISK" Quality,
24 inches wide, 5s. 9d. per yard.
Every Trade before purchasing Black Silks should see patterns of these standard makes.
Patterns and Parcels carriage paid.
T. VENABLES and SONS, Whitechapel, London, E.

GLOVES AT WHOLESALE PRICES.
The New Detailed Price-List for Spring, 1881, is now ready, and will be forwarded post-free upon application.—THE LONDON GLOVE COMPANY, 45A, Cheapside, E.C.

PRATT'S LADIES' BELTS
AND ABDOMINAL SUPPORTS
ARE CONFIDENTLY RECOMMENDED AS THE
MOST COMFORTABLE AND EFFICIENT EVER MADE
Apply to the Ladies' Attendant,
420, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON, W.

FOR SOUTH AFRICA.—How to get rid of your left-off clothes, jewels, furniture, antique lace, old gold teeth plates, &c. Why, send them to the most respectable purchasers, who pay you ready money before taking them away.—Mr. and Mrs. PHILLIPS, Old Curiosity Shop, 39, Thayer-street, Manchester-square, London, W.

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| NUBIAN | N.B. | BLACKING. |
| NUBIAN | Produces an instantaneous polish without brushing. One application lasts a week. Boots Waterproof, Wear-proof, and Weatherproof. | BLACKING. |
| NUBIAN | — | BLACKING. |
| NUBIAN | — | BLACKING. |
| NUBIAN | N.B. | BLACKING. |
| NUBIAN | Saves twice the cost in time and brushes, renders leather soft, supple, and durable. Blacker, it contains no corrosive acid. | BLACKING. |
| NUBIAN | — | BLACKING. |
| NUBIAN | — | BLACKING. |
| NUBIAN | N.B. | BLACKING. |
| NUBIAN | For Seaside, Travellers, saves time, saves money, saves our feet, saves shoe leather. One application lasts a week. | BLACKING. |
| NUBIAN | — | BLACKING. |
| NUBIAN | N.B. | BLACKING. |
| NUBIAN | The economiser of time, money. The delight of ladies. The most delicate garments are never soiled by it, and it can be used on every description of boots and shoes. | BLACKING. |
| NUBIAN | | BLACKING. |

SULPHOLINE LOTION.—An external Cure for Skin Diseases. There is scarcely any eruption but will yield to SULPHOLINE and fade away in a few days. Ordinary pimples, redness, blotches, scurf, roughness, vanish as if by magic; while old skin disorders, that have plagued sufferers for years, however deeply rooted, Sulpholine will successfully attack them. It destroys the animalcule which cause these unsightly, irritable affections, and always produces a clear skin. Sulpholine Lotion is sold by Chemists. Bottles, 2s. 9d.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS and OINTMENT. The Pills purify the blood, correct all disorders of the liver, stomach, kidneys, and bowels. The Ointment is unrivalled in the cure of bad legs, old wounds, gout, and rheumatism.

"I recommend DR. LOCOCK'S PULMONIC WAFERS in ASTHMATIC and CONSUMPTIVE COUGHS, with the most beneficial results."—Signed J. JONES, SON, M.P.S., 191, Meanwood-road, Leeds. They taste pleasantly.

ELECTRICITY IS LIFE.
PULVERMACHER'S "GALVANISM,"
NATURE'S CHIEF RESTORER OF IMPAIRED VITAL ENERGY.
In this Pamphlet the most reliable proofs are given of the vast and wonderful curative powers of Pulvermacher's Patent Galvanic Chain-Bands, Belts, &c., in Rheumatic, Nervous, and Functional Disorders. Sent post-free for three stamps on application to—
J. L. PULVERMACHER'S GALVANIC ESTABLISHMENT, 194, Regent-street, London, W.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—CARPETS.—NOW SELLING, TWO MANUFACTURERS' STOCKS, purchased for Cash under very advantageous circumstances. The Stocks comprise Brussels of the best quality and newest designs; Tapestry, Brussels, Kidderminster, and every description of Carpeting. All New Goods and this Year's Spring Patterns. Quotations would convey no adequate idea of their real lowness. O. and Co. therefore respectfully solicit an early visit of inspection.—OETZMANN and CO.

FURNISH THROUGHOUT.
SUBSTANTIAL ARTISTIC FURNITURE (Regd.)
OETZMANN & CO.,
HAMPSTEAD-ROAD,
NEAR TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD.

FURNISH THROUGHOUT.—OETZMANN and CO., 67, 69, 71, 73, 77 and 79, HAMPSTEAD-ROAD, near Tottenham-court-road, London. CARPETS, Furniture, Paper Hangings, Pictures, Bronzes, Clocks, Plenos, &c., and every other requisite for completely furnishing a house throughout. Lowest prices consistent with guaranteed quality.
OETZMANN and CO.

CABINET and UPHOLSTERY DEPARTMENT.—Best Plate Chimney-Glasses, in double-gilt frames, elegant patterns, large size, 2 guineas; magnificent ditto, from 5 to 20 guineas; Black and Gold Early English ditto, from 2 to 20 guineas. Handsome Black and Gold Early English Cabinets, from £3 3s. to 50 guineas. Mahogany Sideboards, from 6 guineas upwards; noble ditto in Early English and other handsome designs, from 20 to 100 guineas. Easy-Chairs, from 1 guinea upwards. Drawing and Dining Room Chairs, from 10s. 6d. upwards.—OETZMANN and CO.

OETZMANN'S PATENT PALLIO MATTRESS supersedes the use of the old rigid palliasse; is more cleanly, healthy, and elastic; combines the advantages of a mattress and palliasse at the cost of one article. Price from 16s. 9d. upwards. Sent free 18 inches in length to House Furnishing.—Sent post-free on application.—OETZMANN and CO.

CARPET DEPARTMENT.—Stout Tapestry Brussels Carpet, 1s. 3½d.; handsome pattern ditto, from 1s. 9d. to 2s. 5d. per yard; good Brussels, new designs, from 2s. 6d. upwards; good Axminster from 4s. 6d.; good Wilton, new value, Kidderminster Carpets, all wool, 1s. 11d. per yard; excellent Stair Carpet from 8d. per yard; all-wool ditto, 1s. per yard.—OETZMANN and CO.

ELEGANT TAPESTRY CRETONNE CURTAINS, in various choice designs, adapted for Drawing-Rooms, Dining-Rooms, Parlours, Bed-Rooms, &c., lined throughout with the new Cretonne lining, and bound all round with best Silk Paris Lace, or Cretonne Binding. 3 yards long by 90 inches wide, 10s. 9d. per pair; ditto, 45 inches wide, 15s.; ditto, 3½ yards long by 45 inches wide, 17s. 6d. per pair. Also every description of materials used for Curtains. One of the largest and best Assortments in London to select from. Patterns sent post-free to the country by describing kind required.

CROWN DERBY CHINA—"STELLA." An elegant Early English design in Tea, Coffee, and Breakfast Services. OETZMANN and CO.'S New Design, manufactured exclusively for them at these celebrated works, is treated artistic in shape, design, and colourings. Price 20s. 6d. per tea set of twenty-eight pieces. Illustrated detailed Price-list post-free. Also, SOLE VENDORS of the "KEW-LEAF" DAILY TOILET SERVICES (Regd.) Ewer, Basin, &c., complete), from 10s. 6d. per set.—OETZMANN and CO.

POSTAL ORDER DEPARTMENT.
OETZMANN and CO.—Orders sent per post, whether large or small, receive prompt and careful attention. Those residing at a distance, or any to whom a personal visit would be inconvenient, desirous of leaving the selection to the firm, may rely upon a faithful attention to their wishes and interests in the selection. This department is personally supervised by a member of the firm, and O. and Co. continually receive numerous letters expressing the greatest satisfaction with the execution of orders so entrusted. Persons residing in Foreign Countries and the Colonies will find great advantages by entrusting their orders to O. and CO. Every description please see page 1 of this Catalogue, sent free on application.—OETZMANN and CO.

DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE, post-free.
OETZMANN & CO.,
HAMPSTEAD-ROAD.

ELKINGTON and CO.,
MANUFACTURING SILVERSMITHS.
PATENTEES OF THE ELECTRO-PLATE.

ELKINGTON and CO.
SUPPLY THE PUBLIC DIRECT.
PRICES TO SUIT ALL PURCHASERS.
Illustrated Catalogues post-free.
ELKINGTON and CO., 22, Regent-st.; or 42, Moorgate-st., City.

GARDNER'S DINNER and TABLE GLASS SERVICES. Free, graceful, and original designs, of unequalled value. Dinner Services, from 21s. Table Glass Services, of the best Crystal, for twelve persons, complete, 63s. Cash discount, 15 per cent. Coloured Photographic Sheets and Illustrated Glass Catalogues post-free.
453 and 454, West Strand, Charing-cross.

AN OLD RECOMMENDATION.
A LETTER from MRS. THRALE.
(Reprinted by Messrs. MORTLOCK, Oxford-street.)
1880.

Bath,
Thursday, 13th Oct., 1806.

To Sir James Fellowes.
My dear Sir James Fellowes, like his own Western sun, delights to warm and gild the evening of a stormy day; but I have no commission that I can remember. DOCTOR Robinson has sent the wine and I have sent him the money, so that's all over. When you feel your stomach too heavy, take it to MORTLOCK'S, in OXFORD-STREET, and carry Lady Fellowes a beautiful specimen of South Wales china, and tell him I am panting for my fowl-pails and large dishes to use this day se'nnight.
Yours and all your family's obliged and faithful
H. L. PIOZZI.

JEWEL ROBBERIES PREVENTED.
J. TANN'S RELIANCE SAFES have never failed to resist the attempts of the most determined burglars. Fire-Resisting Safes, £2 5s. Lists free.—31, Newgate-street, E.C.

TRELOAR and SONS' LUDGATE-HILL.

MATS. FLOORCLOTH.

LINOLEUM. CARPETS.

TRELOAR and SONS, 69, Ludgate-hill, were established 1832. They are the only firm in London who deal exclusively in Floor Coverings. They have been awarded seven Prize Medals, including one at Paris, 1878. The Fine Arts Galleries at the International Exhibitions of 1851, 1862, 1871, 1872, 1873, 1874, and 1876, were covered with matting specially manufactured by them.

CHUBB'S SAFES FOR JEWELS, DEEDS, PLATE, BULLION, &c.

CHUBB'S LOCKS AND LATCHES, CHESTS, BOXES, &c.

CHUBB'S ILLUSTRATED PRICE-LISTS POST-FREE.

CHUBB and SON, 128, Queen Victoria-street, E.C.; and 68, St. James's-street, London.

EPPS'S COCOA. GRATEFUL and COMFORTING.
"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operation of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.
JAMES EPPS and CO., HOMŒOPATHIC CHEMISTS.
Also, EPPS'S CHOCOLATE ESSENCE, for Afternoon Use.

NEW MUSIC.

GILBERT AND SULLIVAN'S NEW OPERA.

PATIENCE; or, Bunthorne's Bride. An Æsthetic Opera. Written by W. S. Gilbert; composed by ARTHUR SULLIVAN. Now being performed at the Opera Comique, with enormous success.

In the Press.

| | |
|---|---|
| The Complete Vocal Score | 8s. |
| Pianoforte Score | 3s. |

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

OLIVETTE. New Comic Opera. Enormous success at the Strand Theatre. Adapted by H. B. Farnie; Music by AUDRAN.

| | |
|---|---|
| Vocal Score | 8s. net. |
| Abridged Edition of the Vocal Score, containing the Overture, Songs, &c. | 4s. net. |
| Pianoforte Solo | 2s. 6d. net. |
| All the Favourite Airs, arranged for the Violin | 1s. 6d. net. |
| Lancers, D'Albert | 2s. net. |
| Waltz. D'Albert | 2s. net. |
| Quadrille. D'Albert | 2s. net. |
| Polka. D'Albert | 2s. net. |
| Boyton Smith's Fantasia | 2s. net. |

Galop. D'Albert
Nearest and Dearest Waltz. D'Albert

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

NEW AND POPULAR SONGS.

WELCOME. Lady ARTHUR HILL. 2s. net.
CŒUR DE LION. H. J. STARK. Sung by Mr. Oswald. 2s. net.
AT THE PORTAL. N. FERRI. Sung by Madame Mary Cummings. 2s. net.
WHAT THE FIRELIGHT TOLD. J. L. ROECKEL. 2s. net.
THE CHILDREN IN THE WOOD. ROECKEL. 2s. net.
WHERE THE PURPLE VIOLET GROWS. From "The Turquoise Ring." L. BENSON. 2s. net.
DINNA LEAVE ME. A. M. WAKEFIELD. Composed "No, Sir." 2s. net.
THOUGHTS AT SUNRISE. Mrs. L. MONCRIEFF. 2s. net.
THE LASS I LOVE. OLIVER CRAMER. 2s. net.
LOVE FOR LOVE. OLIVER CRAMER. 2s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

NEW SONGS by Mrs. RONALDS.

| | |
|---|---|
| IN SHADOW | 2s. net. |
| WHIT | 2s. net. |
| EVER NEAR | 2s. net. |
| DIS MOI POURQUOI | 2s. net. |

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

CHARLES D'ALBERT'S NOVELTIES.

PIRATES OF PENZANCE LANCERS, WALTZ, QUADRILLE, POLKA, and GALOP. 2s. 6d. net
ADELINA WALTZ. Illustrated with beautiful Portrait of Madame Patti. 2s. net
PORTIA WALTZ. 2s. net
DRINK, PUPPY, DRINK! POLKA. 2s. net
PONGOLESE LANCERS. 2s. net
DISTANT SHORE WALTZ. 2s. net
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S THREE-YEARS' SYSTEM of HIRE of PIANOFORTES, HARMONIUMS, and AMERICAN ORGANS, by which the instrument becomes the property of the Hirer at the end of the third year, provided each quarter's hire shall have been regularly paid in advance. Pianofortes, from 7s. Harmoniums, from £1 5s.; and American Organs, from £2 10s. a Quarter.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S PIANINOS, from 70 guineas.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S COTTAGES, from 27 guineas.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S GRANDS, from 75 guineas.

CHICKERING PIANOFORTES, from 72 guineas, with American discount.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ALEXANDRE HARMONIUMS, for Church, Schools, or Drawing-Rooms, from 6 to 150 guineas; or, on the Three-Years' System, from £1 5s. per quarter.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S IMPROVED AMERICAN ORGANS, combining Pipes with Reeds, Manufactured by Clough and Warren, Detroit, U.S.A. The immense advantages these Instruments possess over the Organs hitherto imported have induced Messrs. Chappell and Co. to undertake the sole Agency of this eminent Manufactory, and have a large variety on view, from 16 to 250 guineas. Price-Lists on application to CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street. City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

CLOUGH and WARREN'S Favourite ORGAN. Compass, five octaves, ten stops, four sets of reeds, two of two and two thirds octaves and two of two and one third octaves, knee swell, elegant carved Canadian walnut case, price 25 guineas. With twelve stops, sub-bass octave coupler, and two knee pedals, 36 guineas. Illustrated Price-List free by post.
Sole Agents, CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street. City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

INSTRUMENTS by ALL MAKERS may be HIRED or PURCHASED on the Three-Years' System. CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street. City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

A LARGE DISCOUNT TO PURCHASERS FOR CASH.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street. City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

"Steinway is to the Pianist what Stradnarius is to the Violinist."—Herr Joachim.

THE STEINWAY PIANOFORTES, GRAND AND UPRIGHT.
THE GREATEST PIANOFORTES IN THE WORLD.
The Steinway Pianofortes are the chosen instruments of the educated and wealthy classes in every nation throughout civilisation, and have by far the largest annual sale of any pianofortes in the world.

STEINWAY and SONS,
STEINWAY HALL,
LOWER SEYMOUR-STREET, PORTMAN-SQUARE, W.
(And at Steinway Hall, New York.)

BROADWOOD'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on CRAMER'S Three-Years' System, from £3 12s. 6d. per Quarter.

COLLARD'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on CRAMER'S Three-Years' System, in Rich and Gold Cases at £4 14s. 6d. to £5 5s., £6 6s., £7 7s., and in Special Early English Ebonised Case, £8 8s. per Quarter.

ERARD'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on CRAMER'S Three-Years' System, from £5 5s. per Quarter.

CRAMER'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on their Three-Years' System, from £1 11s. 6d. per Quarter. Detailed lists post-free on application to Regent-street, W.; Bond-street, W.; Moorgate-street, E.C.; and 160, High-street, Notting-hill.

£20 SCHOOL-ROOM PIANO (Co-operative price for cash). Seven octaves—strong, sound, and substantial. Adapted for hard practice. Carefully packed free, and sent to any part. Drawings gratis.
THOMAS OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street.

£35.—There is nothing in London—nor, in fact, in all England—to be compared to the elegantly carved
DRAWING-ROOM TRICHORD COTTAGE PIANOFORTE, with Cabriole Truss Legs, which is sold for £35 by
THOMAS OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, Portman-sq.

PIANOFORTES for HIRE or for SALE, from 25 guineas upwards.—JOHN BROADWOOD and SONS, 33, Great Pulteney-street, Golden-square, W. Manufactory, 55, Horseferry-road, Westminster, W.

THE HARMONINA (Debain, inventor). 2 oct., F to F. Keys full width. 11 set vibrators, 4 stops. Travelling case, 2 ft. by 9 in. by 5 in.; weight, 15 lb. Most portable Harmonium made. £8.
DEBAIN and CO., 41, Rathbone-place, London, W.

NEW MUSIC.

THE BOATSWAIN'S STORY. Mr. Santley's last success. By MOLLOY. Sung at the last four Ballad Concerts, and always encored. Price 3s.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

THE VIKINGS' SONG. By STEPHEN ADAMS. Sung by Signor Foli at all his concerts in the present and last week in the provinces. 2s. net.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

MISS WAKEFIELD'S NEW SONG, THE LITTLE ROUNDHEAD MAID. By the Composer of "No, Sir." Sung by Miss Clara Samuell.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

ALL IN ALL. JOSEPH MAAS' Successful New Song. By F. H. COWEN. Sung at the Ballad Concerts and the Albert Hall, and encored on each occasion. BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

MARZIALS' NEW SONGS.
A BASKET OF LOVES. Sung by Mrs. Osgood.
A SUMMER SHOWER. Sung by Miss Mary Davies.
ROCHESTER BELLS. Sung by the Composer.
THAT SWEET STORY OF OLD. Sacred Song.
2s. each.—BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

THE ROYAL EDITION OF OPERAS, for Voice and Pianoforte, in the most perfect form ever published. Edited by ARTHUR SULLIVAN and J. PITTMAN.

ITALIAN AND ENGLISH WORDS.

| | s. | d. | | s. | d. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Ballo in Maschera (Un) | 3 | 6 | Huguenots (Les) | 5 | 0 |
| Barbiere di Siviglia (Il) | 3 | 6 | Lucia di Lammermoor | 3 | 6 |
| Crown Diamonds (The) | 3 | 6 | Lucrezia Borgia | 3 | 6 |
| Dinorah | 3 | 6 | Martha | 3 | 6 |
| Domino Noir (Le) | 3 | 6 | Masaniello | 3 | 6 |
| Don Giovanni | 3 | 6 | Nicolia | 3 | 6 |
| Don Pasquale | 3 | 6 | Norma | 3 | 6 |
| Elisir d'Amore (L') | 3 | 6 | Porter of Havre (The) | 3 | 6 |
| Faust | 3 | 6 | Puritani (I) | 3 | 6 |
| Favorita (La) | 3 | 6 | Rigoletto | 3 | 6 |
| Fidelio | 3 | 6 | Robert le Diable | 5 | 0 |
| Figaro | 3 | 6 | Semiramide | 3 | 6 |
| Figlia del Reggimento (La) | 3 | 6 | Somnambula (La) | 3 | 6 |
| Flauto Magico (Il) | 3 | 6 | Traviata (La) | 3 | 6 |
| Fra Diavolo | 3 | 6 | Trovatore (Il) | 3 | 6 |
| Guillaume Tell | 5 | 0 | Vascello Fantasma (Il) | 3 | 6 |

ITALIAN, GERMAN, AND ENGLISH WORDS.

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Freischütz (Der) | 3 | 6 | Lobengrin | 3 | 6 |

GERMAN AND ENGLISH WORDS.
Fliegende Hollander (Der). 3s. 6d.
GERMAN, FRENCH, AND ENGLISH WORDS.
Water Carrier (The) Les Deux Journees. 3s. 6d.
FRENCH AND ENGLISH WORDS.

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Fille de Madame Angot (La) | 3 | 6 | Postillon de Lonjumeau (Le) | 3 | 6 |
| Grand Duchess (The) | 3 | 6 | Zampa | 3 | 6 |
| M'dlle Mariage Lui (Le) | 3 | 6 | | | |

ENGLISH WORDS.

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Bohemian Girl (The) | 3 | 6 | Satanella | 3 | 6 |
| Lily of Killarney (The) | 3 | 6 | Siege of Rochelle (The) | 3 | 6 |
| Mountain Sylph (The) | 3 | 6 | | | |

Also in cloth, gilt edges, 1s. 6d. and 2s. 6d. each extra.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S MINIATURE PIANOFORTE. Price 17 Guineas. Size, 41 inches high, 22 inches wide, 9 octaves; has an excellent quality of tone, and is strongly recommended as an attractive and good piano. Prospectus on application to BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

THE MUSICAL TIMES for MAY contains: Verdi's Opera "Simon Boccanegra," at the Scala of Milan—The Music of Dvorak—The Great Composers: Berlioz—Mr. Peyps the Musician, by F. Bueffer—"Past Hours," Sullivan's New Opera—Monday Popular Concerts, Crystal Palace, and Bach Choir Concerts &c.—The Royal Italian Opera—Occasional Notes, Foreign and Country News, Reviews, &c. Price 3d.; post-free, 4d.; annual subscription, 4s., including postage.

THE MUSICAL TIMES for MAY contains "The Son of God goes forth to war" (St. Ann's Church), by ARTHUR SULLIVAN; and "And so loved the world." Anthem. By Sir JOHN GOSS. Price 1½d.

MESSRS. NOVELLO, EWER, AND CO. have the honour to announce that they have purchased the ENTIRE STOCK and COPYRIGHTS of the WORKS hitherto published by Messrs. D. ROCHLITZ & CO., of Newmeyer Hall, including the whole of the valuable Compositions of HEINRICH HOFMANN, &c.

NOVELLO'S ORIGINAL OCTAVO EDITION of OPERAS. Edited and Corrected according to the Original Scores by SIR MICHAEL COSTA, of Her Majesty's THEATRE. The English Translations by Natalia Macfarren and the Rev. J. Troutbeck, M.A., &c.

| | s. | d. | | s. | d. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Fra Diavolo | 3 | 6 | Die Zauberflöte | 3 | 6 |
| Masaniello | 3 | 6 | Il Seraglio | 3 | 6 |
| Fidelio | 3 | 6 | Il Barbiere | 3 | 6 |
| Norma | 3 | 6 | Guillaume Tell | 5 | 0 |
| La Sonnambula | 3 | 6 | Il Trovatore | 3 | 6 |
| I Puritani | 3 | 6 | Rigoletto | 3 | 6 |
| Lucia di Lammermoor | 3 | 6 | La Traviata | 3 | 6 |
| Lucrezia Borgia | 3 | 6 | Ernani | 3 | 6 |
| La Figlia del Reggimento | 3 | 6 | Tannhauser | 3 | 6 |
| Martha | 3 | 6 | Lohengrin | 3 | 6 |
| Ifigenia in Aulis | 3 | 6 | Flying Dutchman | 3 | 6 |
| Ifigenia in Tauris | 3 | 6 | Oberon | 3 | 6 |
| D'Ebole da Nord | 5 | 0 | Der Freischütz | 3 | 6 |
| Don Giovanni | 3 | 6 | Preciosa | 1 | 6 |
| Le Nozze di Figaro | 3 | 6 | (To be continued.) | | |

JUST PUBLISHED. ONE SHILLING EACH.
NOVELLO'S PIANOFORTE ALBUMS. Edited by BERTHOLD TOURS. Nos. 1 and 2, each containing Twenty Compositions by Bach, Handel, Lvi of Cherubini, Mozart, and Schubert, in application.

NOVELLO, EWER, and CO.'S COMPLETE CATALOGUES.
1. Organ and Harmonium Music.
2. Sacred Music with English Words (Anthems, Church Services, &c.)
3. Music printed in separate Vocal and Orchestral Parts, &c.
4. Pianoforte.
5. Secular Music (Songs, Part Songs, &c.).
6. Sacred Music with Latin Words.
Post-free on application.
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners-street, W., and 80 and 81, Queen-street, E.C.

THREE NEW SONGS. By Lord HENRY SOMERSET. ONE MORE (in F and D). 2s.; DAWN, NOON, AND NIGHT (in F). 2s. 6d.; GOOD-BYE (in G minor and E minor); the Words by Major G. J. Whyte-Melville, 2s. 6d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER, and Co.

THE PILGRIM'S PATH. Song. By BRINLEY RICHARDS. The beautiful words by Bishop Heber have been most successfully treated, and the effect of Miss Mary Davies' singing has been considerably increased by a delicate and effective American organ accompaniment. Post-free for 24 stamps.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

IN THE TWILIGHT TENDER. Song. By BRINLEY RICHARDS. Apart from "God Bless the Prince of Wales," it is doubtful whether Mr. Richards has ever written a purer and more fascinating melody. Post-free for 24 stamps.—London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

I'M THINKING OF THE PAST. Song. By J. VARLEY ROBERTS. Post-free for 18 stamps. "Decidedly one of the prettiest songs."
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

A FRAGMENT from MENDELSSOHN. Arranged for the Pianoforte by C. A. CASPAR. 4s.; post-free, 24 stamps.—London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

ROBERT COCKS and CO.'S MUSICAL BOX. Caprice for the Pianoforte. By I. LIEBICH. "An agreeable and clever piece, which is very popular among amateurs."—Vide Musical World. Free by post for 24 stamps.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

HOPKINS AND RIMBAULT ON THE ORGAN—ITS HISTORY AND CONSTRUCTION. Bound in cloth gilt. Price 2os. 3d. The only authority extant in this country.—London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

SPOHR'S VIOLIN SCHOOL.—In one handsome volume, folio, cloth, upwards of 200 pp. 25s. Louis Spohr wrote to the publishers, saying:—"I have carefully looked over this English Edition of my "Violin School," and have no hesitation in recommending it as a faithful translation of the original work." Price, 12s. 3d.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street, Music Publishers to the Queen and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales.

NEW MUSIC.

JOSEPH WILLIAMS'S LIST.

THE LATEST SUCCESS.

BILLEE TAYLOR. Comic Opera. By H. P. STEPHENS and E. SOLOMON.

| | |
|---|---|
| VOCAL SCORE | 8s. net. |
| SONGS, | 1s. net. |

ALL ON ACCOUNT OF ELIZA (Third Edition). 2s. net.
SELF-MADE KNIGHT (Second Edition). 2s. net.
THE VIRTUOUS GARDENER. 2s. net.
FANTASIA FOR PIANO. CH. TOURVILLE. 1s. 6d. net.

PIANO SCORE (Complete). 2s. 6d. net. Now ready.
*QUADRILLES. By CHARLES COOTE. 2s. net.
LANCERS. By ARTHUR GRENVILLE. 2s. net.
*WALTZES. By CHARLES GODFREY. 2s. net.
DANCE MUSIC, BILLEE TAYLOR, ready. Orchestra, 2s.; Septet, 1s. 6d.
* Beautifully Illustrated.

HENRY FARMER'S PIANOFORTE TUTOR, considerably Enlarged and Fingered by the Author. Fourth Edition. 4s.
"Decidedly the best and most useful instruction book we have seen."—Musical Review.

THE LOVE OF OLD. ROECKEL'S charming New Song will be sung by Miss Damian at her forthcoming engagements. Post-free, 24 stamps.

PIANO DUETS.
C. REINECKE. Three Sonatas, Op. 120. Price 2s. each, net.

PIANO SOLOS.
W. KUHE. NEW SACRED TRANSCRIPTIONS.
Eli (Costa), Naaman (Costa). Price 2s. each net.
TH. LACK. NEW PIECES.
Menuet, La Meunette, Bolero. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
H. ROUBIER. NEW PIECES.
Joyeuse Rentrée, Fête à Trianon, Parfait Bonheur. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
FRANZ HILTZ. NEW PIECES.
Cavatelage (Caprice). Lutin Rose, Le Regiment qui passe. Price 2. 6d. each net.
JOYFUL MOMENTS. Ten Easy Pieces on Popular Subjects. Arranged by CH. TOURVILLE. Price 1s. each net.
OUR FAVOURITES. Ten Moderately Easy Pieces on Popular Subjects. Arranged by CH. TOURVILLE. Price 1s. 3d. each net.

THE PROGRESSIVE MUSIC SCHOOL.
Carefully Edited, Fingered, and Corrected from the Original Manuscripts by J. LEYBACH. First Series (very easy), 15 Numbers. Numbers 1 to 14, price 1s. 3d. each net. Number 15, price 1s. 6d. net.

VIOLIN AND PIANO DUETS.
S. JACOBY. Six Popular Airs (Easy). Price 1s. each net.
CH. TOURVILLE. Twelve Favourite Subjects (Moderate). Price 1s. 6d. each net.
H. FARMER. Popular Violin Solos (Brilliant), with Piano Accompaniment. Nine Numbers. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 24, Berners-street, W.; and 123, Cheapside, E.C.

SUNG BY ARTHUR ROBERTS.
THE GOOD YOUNG MAN WHO DIED. An Æsthetic Lay. Words by H. P. Stephens: Music by E. SOLOMON. "He has left this world for a brighter sphere. There's a neat little headstone over him. Perhaps how much we held him dear. And how deeply we deplore him: But that cannot tell how we miss his ways, our friend, fellow-sufferer, and guide: For yours to come we shall sing in praise Of the good young man who died." Post-free for 24 stamps.—London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 24, Berners-street; and 123, Cheapside.

Owing to the great success of F. H. COWEN'S New Song.
THE CHILDREN'S HOME,
W. MORLEY, Jun., and CO. have much pleasure in announcing the purchase of Mr. COWEN'S last song

THE WATCHMAN AND THE CHILD, which must still further enhance his reputation as one of the finest song writers of the present day. Keys for all voices.

IN THE CLOISTERS. ODOARDO BARRI'S New Song.
"A song of uncommon beauty and merit, which will soon be equally popular with the 'Last Chord.' Of moderate compass, yet thoroughly effective. In short, a song to ensure success alike to the professional vocalist or amateur."—Review.
Piano and Harmonium Obbligato Accompaniment.
Keys for all voices.

W. Morley, Jun., and Co. have the honour to announce that they have secured J. BLUMENTHAL'S New Song.

THE CHILD'S DREAM.
The above New Songs, post-free, 24 stamps each.

W. MORLEY, JUN., and COMPANY, 70, UPPER-STREET, ISLINGTON, N.

THE BUGLER. In D, F, and G. By CIRO PINSUTI. Words by F. E. Weatherly.
This very successful song has now reached the Tenth Edition.

THE CHALLENGE. For Bass and Baritone.
By HUMPHREY J. STARK. Words by E. Oxenford. A bold and vigorous composition, and received always by great applause and repeated encores.

THE ROYAL EXCHANGE. ODOARDO BARRI. "A brilliant and effective song for vocalists in which charming music is united to a quaint little story."—Review.

WEIT VON DIR (Far from Thee). Waltz.
By OSCAR SEYDEL. "Bring me west back to the ball-room," Captain Winstanley followed her, and claimed his waltz. The band was just striking up the latest German melody, 'Weit von Dir,' a strain of deep tenderness."—Vide Miss Braddon's "Vixen." Each of the above 2s. net.
B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster-row.

MENDELSSOHN'S L'ANGE QUI CHANTE. Mélodie (4e este. "A truly divine inspiration and angelic song of heavenly peace. Effective and easy." Piano Solo, Violin and Piano, Flute and Piano, Violoncello and Piano. 1s stamps, post-free.
CZERNY, 365, Oxford-street.

MADAME CHRISTINE NILSSON'S NEW SONG.
A SONG OF THE NORTH. By LADY LINDSAY (of Balcarras). Price 2s. net.
FABEY and WILLIS, Publishers, 39, Great Marlborough-street, W

CHARLES HALLÉ'S PRACTICAL PIANOFORTE SCHOOL
Section 1.—New PIANOFORTE TUTOR.
Catalogue and all Particulars may be had from FORSTER BROTHERS, London, 272A, Regent-street, Oxford-street; Manchester, Cross-street and South King-street; and all Musicsellers.

| | |
|---|---|
| DIAMONDS. | Mr. STREETER, |
| SAPPHIRES. | 18, New Bond-street, W. |
| CATS'-EYES. | INTRODUCER of |
| OPALS. | 18-CARAT GOLD JEWELLERY and ENGLISH LEVER WATCHES, (MACHINE-MADE.) |
| EMERALDS. | BRANCH ESTABLISHMENT, COLOMBO, CEYLON. |

WALKER'S CRYSTAL CASE WATCHES are superseding all others. Prize Medals—London, 1862; Paris, 1867. Silver Watches, from £4 4s.; Gold, from £14 14s., and £25; Ladies', £7 7s., £10 10s., and £18 18s.; in silver cases, for Ladies or Gentlemen, £5 5s., £6 6s., and £8 8s. Forwarded on receipt of remittance.—J. Sewill, 20, Cornhill, London; and 61, South Castle-street, Liverpool.

| | |
|---|---|
| THE FINEST WATCHES MADE. | SEWILL'S KEYLESS WATCHES, Prize Medals, London, Paris, and Philadelphia, Damp and Dust-proof, 18-carat cases, adjusted and compensated for all climates, £30 10s., £14 14s., and £25; Ladies', £7 7s., £10 10s., and £18 18s.; in silver cases, for Ladies or Gentlemen, £5 5s., £6 6s., and £8 8s. Forwarded on receipt of remittance.—J. Sewill, 20, Cornhill, London; and 61, South Castle-street, Liverpool. |

DENT'S WATCHES, CLOCKS, and CHRONOMETERS.—Illustrated Catalogue sent free.—Apply to 61, Strand, or 34, Royal Exchange, London.

NOVELTIES IN JEWELLERY. New Styles for 1881. Gold, Silver, and Gem Jewellery of all kinds. New "Pig," "Mouse," &c. Artificial Diamond Jewellery; Norwegian, Italian, and Mauresque Filigree Jewellery; Ladies' Watches, &c. Price-List, 300 Illustrations post-free.—Jewellery Depôt, 97, Cambridge-street, Birmingham.

VALUABLE DISCOVERY for the HAIR.
If your hair is turning grey or white, or falling off, use THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER; for it will positively restore, in every case, grey or white hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots, where the glands are not decayed.
This preparation has never been known to fail in restoring the hair to its natural colour and gloss in from eight to twelve days.
It promotes growth, and prevents the hair falling out, eradicating dandruff, and leaving the scalp in a clean, healthy condition.
It imparts peculiar vitality to the roots of the hair, restoring it to its youthful freshness and vigour. Daily applications of this preparation for a week or two will surely restore faded, grey, or white hair to its natural colour and richness.
It is not a dye, nor does it contain any colouring matter or offensive substance whatever. Hence it does not soil the hands, the scalp, or even white linen, but produces the colour with a the substance of the hair.
It may be had of any respectable Chemist, Perfumer, or Dealer in Toilet Articles in the Kingdom, at 3s. 6d. per Bottle. In case the dealer has not "The Mexican Hair Renewer" in stock and will not procure it for you, it will be sent direct by rail, carriage-paid, on receipt of 4s. in stamps, to any part of England.
Sold Wholesale by the ANGLO-AMERICAN DRUG COMPANY, Limited, 33, Farringdon-road, London.

THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER.
WHAT BEAUTIFIES THE HAIR?

What gives luxuriance to each tress,
And pleases each one's fancies?
What adds a charm of perfect grace,
And Nature's gift enhances?
What gives a bright and lustrous gloss,
And what says each reviewer?
"That quite successful is the use
Of 'THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER!'"

What gives luxuriance to each tress,
And makes it bright and glowing?
What keeps it free from dandruff, too,
And healthy in its growing?
What does such wonders? Ask the press,
And what says each reviewer?
"That none can equal or surpass each
'THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER!'"

What gives luxuriance to each tress,
Like some bright halo beaming?
What makes the hair a perfect mass
Of splendid ringlets teeming?
What gives profusion in each tress?
Why, what says each reviewer?
"The choicest preparation is
'THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER!'"

What gives luxuriance to each tress,
And makes it so delightful?
Because to speak the honest truth
Is only just and rightful.
What say the people and the press,
And what says each reviewer?
"That most superb for ladies' use Is 'THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER!'"

THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER
has gained for itself the highest reputation, and a decided preference over all other "hair dressings," as evinced from certificates and testimonials from the most respectable sources. Being compounded with the greatest care—combining, as it does, all the most desirable qualities of the best hair preparations of the day, without the objectionable ones—it may be relied on as the very best known to chemistry for restoring the natural colour to the hair, and causing new hair to grow on bald spots, where the hair glands are decayed; for, if the glands are decayed and gone, no stimulant can restore them; but if, as is often the case, the glands are only torpid, THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER will renew their vitality, and a new growth of hair will follow. Read the following Testimonial:—
From Messrs. Wm. Hayes and Co., Chemists, 12, Grafton-street, Dublin.—"We are recommending THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER to all our customers as the best of the kind, as we have been told by several of our friends who tried it that it has a wonderful effect in restoring and strengthening their Hair."

THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER.
AN IMPORTANT QUESTION FOR LADIES.

Would you have luxuriant hair,
Beautiful, and rich, and rare;
Would you have it soft and bright,
And attractive to the sight?
This you really can produce
If you put in constant use
THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER.

The hair it strengthens and preserves,
And thus a double purpose serves;
It beautifies—improves it, too,
And gives it a most charming hue,
And thus in each essential way,
It public favour gains each day—
THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER.

If a single thread of hair
Of a greyish tint is there,
THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER
All its colour as before,
And thus it is that vast renown
Does daily now its virtues crown—
THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER.

No matter whether faded grey,
Or falling like the leaves away,
It will renew the human hair,
And make it like itself appear:
It will revive it, beautify,
And every want wish supply—
THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER.

THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER.
The constitution of the person and the condition of the scalp have much to do with the length of time it requires for new hair to grow; also thin or thick hair will depend much upon the vital force remaining in the hair-glands. New hairs are first seen to start around the margin of the bald spots near the permanent hair, and extending upwards until the spots are covered more or less thickly with fine short hair. Excessive brushing should be guarded against as soon as the small hairs make their appearance; but the scalp may be sponged with rain water to advantage occasionally. The scalp may be pressed and moved on the bone by the finger ends, which quickens the circulation and softens the spots which have remained long bald. On applying this hair-dressing it enlivens the scalp, and in cases where the hair begins to fall a few applications will arrest it, and the new growth presents the luxuriance and colour of youth. It may be relied on as the best hair-dressing known for restoring grey or faded hair to its original colour without dyeing causing new hairs to grow, unless the hair-glands are entirely decayed. THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER makes the hair soft, glossy, and luxuriant. Sold by Chemists and Perfumers at 3s. 6d.; or sent to any address free on receipt of 4s. in stamps

THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER.

When the hair is weak and faded,
Like the autumn leaves that fall,
Then is felt that sadden'd feeling
Which does every heart enthral,
Then we look for some specific
To arrest it on its way,
And THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER
Bids it like enchantment stay.

It arrests decaying progress:
Though the hair is thin and grey
It will strengthen and improve it,
And work wonders day by day.
It restores the colour,
And brings back its beauty, too;
For THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER
Makes it look both fresh and new.

What's the greatest hair restorer
That the present age can show;
What produces wonders daily,
Which the world at large should know?
Why, THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER
Eminently stands the first:
Thus its fame by countless thousands
Day by day is now rehears'd.

What beautifies, improves, and strengthens
Human hair of every age?
Why this famous great restorer
With the initials I. C. B.,
And THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER
Is the very best in use.
For luxuriant tresses always
Does its magic powers produce.

THE WORDS "THE MEXICAN HAIR RENEWER" are a Trade Mark; and the public will please see the words are on every case surrounding the Bottle, and the name is blown in the bottle.
The Mexican Hair Renewer. Price 3s. 6d. Directions in German, French, and Spanish.
May be had of most respectable Dealers in all parts of the World.
Sold Wholesale by the ANGLO-AMERICAN DRUG COMPANY, Limited, 33, Farringdon-road, London

LONDON: Printed and Published at the Office, 198, Strand, in the Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middlesex, by GEORGE C. LEIGHTON, 198, Strand, aforesaid.—SATURDAY, MAY 14, 1881.

MAY FLOWERS.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

FROM A PAINTING BY CHAPLIN.

MAY FLOWERS.

The pretty little girl, in M. Chaplin's pleasing picture, has got as much as she can well carry of floral treasures. Her apron, or the skirt of her frock, and the bosom, with both arms holding masses of blossomy branches, or sprays of every flowering tree, shrub, and creeping plant in season, and the basket-like hat which hangs by its ribbons from her lifted elbow, are filled with the lovely produce of genial Spring. It is a rich booty that this fair and innocent depredator among the hedgerows and thickets has gathered, and is now bringing home in triumph—as declared by the light in her eyes and the gentle pride of her countenance and gesture—to decorate the bower where a gladsome birthday festival, happily falling in the sweet month of May, will be celebrated with a party of her youthful friends. But, the other day, in a suburban field half defaced with bricks and mortar for house-building, half remaining in a grassy state, and no longer used for pasture or fenced against idle intruders, we saw a ragged and dirty child of the London streets, picking a small heap of buttercups and daisies. And that was quite as good to little Mary Ann, and it did us good to see that she was so easily made happy.

ROYAL ACADEMY EXHIBITION.

THIRD NOTICE.

Mr. Briton Rivière, the new Academician elect, could have told the story of "Envy, Hatred, and Malice" (2), as fully, and more acceptably on a much smaller canvas. A girl standing fondling a pug pup, is surrounded by a crowd of dogs, of species so various they might furnish a small dog show, and who, after the manner of their several kinds, are displaying the passions indicated by the title. The dogs are much better painted than the human figure. In "A Roman Holiday" (155), also, the Christian martyr making in a dying effort the sign of the cross with his sword in the sand of the amphitheatre floor, is less successful than the tiger lying slain at his side, or than—and more especially—another tiger that, scared at the defeat of its mate, slinks away howling along the inclosure wall of the arena. But the artist is more happy in the figures of two smaller pictures, the one entitled "Let Sleeping Dogs lie" (402), showing a besotted "rough" asleep on an ale-house bench, with an empty quart pot by his side, and a bull-dog, also asleep, on his chest; the other called "Hope Deferred" (419), representing wife or sweetheart looking anxiously out to sea in a storm, with a terrier by her side that seems to share all her fears. The lion—the "holy" legendary lion that visited the renowned marabout Sidi Ahmed ben Ayuda—in Mr. Heywood Hardy's picture, No. 213, is likewise a fine piece of animal-painting, though here again the canvas is needlessly large for the subject.

An earlier welcome in these notices was due to the picture in the Lecture-Room, by the American painter F. A. Bridgman, representing "The Funeral Rites of a Mummy on the Nile" (906)—i.e., a grand procession of boats conveying the embalmed body of an ancient Egyptian, in its painted sarcophagus, to the tomb up in the mountains. The explanatory notes in the catalogue relieve us from the duty of offering further description; but certainly no work founded upon Egyptian archæology at once so learned, imaginative, and picturesque has appeared since Mr. Poynter's "Israel in Egypt." It more than redeems the promise of the painter's picture of an Assyrian monarch shooting lions in an arena before his court, which was exhibited at Burlington House a few years back; and the careful finished execution evinces the beneficial influence of Mr. Bridgman's master, Gérôme.

"The Defence of Rorke's Drift" (899), by Mrs. Butler, hanging near at hand in the same room, is sadly disappointing—the more so after the long delay attending its exhibition, and on comparison—inevitable comparison—with M. de Neuville's very spirited sketch of the same subject. The mistake of the pictorial treatment seems to be the over insistence on the glare and reflections from the burning house that served for hospital; emphasis and contrast are thereby lost, and the general colouring becomes monotonous, lurid, and unpleasant. Close by hangs another martial subject, "Candahar" (887), by R. C. Woodville, depicting that stirring incident of the Afghan campaign where, in storming Gandi Mullah Sahibdad, the 92nd Highlanders and 2nd Goorkas advanced along the low walls and outworks and from house to house under a galling fire from every neighbouring parapet, window, and loophole. The effect appears to be too cold, and the picture, perhaps, hardly equals that of last year; yet it is full of promise in the spirit of the conception, the vigour of the realisation, and the command of the human figure in every possible attitude and foreshortening.

The picture purchased this year by the Academy from the Chantry Fund is J. Collier's "Last Voyage of Henry Hudson" (260), showing the great navigator (whose name is given to the great bay and river he explored in his voyages to the Polar Seas) in the boat in which, with his son and some infirm sailors, he was ruthlessly set adrift by his mutinied crew. Nothing is in view but fragments of ice-floe; the old man stands to the helm, awaiting death with fortitude; his little son clings to him imploringly; one of the sick sailors lies incapable against the boat's side. All this is told unmistakably, and the painting is very satisfactory, yet somehow the artist—hitherto known only as a portrait painter—does not move us with the terror of the situation, and its imminent tragedy. The thin clothing of the child may be meant to excite our pity, but is contrary to all probability. Another work purchased from the same fund is Mr. Brock's realisation in bronze of the equestrian group of an Indian, with spear raised to thrust in the jaws of a huge boa that is attacking horse and man, entitled "A Moment of Peril," the model for which we reviewed when exhibited here last year. The energy of the composition, and the technical ability displayed are beyond question. Mr. Brock, like Mr. Birch, worked under the late Mr. Foley, and both do credit to that great sculptor. The statue, "The Prodigal" (1498), by Mr. Calder Marshall, has also been bought by the artist's brother Academicians, from the same fund, and the purchase may be regarded as a testimony to a sculptor who in his day has done work admirable at least in feeling.

Returning to the painters, we find Mr. Marks at his best, within the range of his unpretending art and quiet humour in "An Episcopal Visitation" (113)—a Bishop regarding a pelican in the Zoological Gardens. What rare nicety of observation of both human and ornithological varieties, what delicate perception of their minute characteristics and traits, and what subtle faculty of realisation does it not require to induce the irreverent comparisons which this picture incontinently suggests! Who but Mr. Marks would find an analogy between the solemn, important-looking bird, with uncouth but clean-cut mandibles, and the reflective, self-satisfied, close-shaven, trim ecclesiastic? Scarcely less penetrative, and hardly less droll is the group (252) of the conceited "author" reading his manuscript to a couple of most unsympathetic "critics." "The Man of Law" (478) is likewise a capital character study. In mentioning the series of decorative designs illustrative of "Christian Charity," by Mr. Armitage, in Room III., we omitted to notice the large picture by the same artist of "Samson and the Lion" (554), which effectively closes the vista of the north rooms. Two things are noteworthy in the conception of this work: first, Samson's strength is not indicated vulgarly as that of burly Hercules, he is rather of the type of a Greek athlete—for the painter properly suggests that his strength is from the Lord; secondly, the daring evinced in representing the Jewish hero as whirling the lion aloft, as he were "a kid," to dash him over the rocks. Although the colouring is hardly decorative, the treatment has a largeness of style referable to Mr. Armitage's early training in monumental art. Fuller reference than we could give in our first notice is due to Sir John Gilbert's "Fair St. George" (149)—one of the artist's greatest technical successes, and proclaiming decorative and monumental powers that, as we have already said, would have been engaged for the public service by any other State of Europe. The passivity of the saint and the Lady Saba is hardly inappropriate to the moment represented, or to so legendary a theme; and detracts nothing from the decorative function the work is so well fitted to fulfil. The colouring and tone of the draperies, armour, and impressive landscape, have much affinity to those of the Venetians; while the manly vigorous handling recalls the execution of Rubens.

Mr. Waller has made a notable advance in "Success!" (81)—a duellist leaving the field where his man lies wounded, perhaps mortally, but so paralysed by remorse that he heeds not the efforts of his seconds to force on his coat and hurry him into the postchaise, at the door of which he and they stand. The painting is as efficient as the moral of the duellist's "success" is well pointed. Perhaps a still greater advance is made by A. Stock in "At Last" (391)—the return of a soldier son to his lonely widowed mother. Seldom have we seen a somewhat hackneyed incident of humble life—the dénouement, as we may call it, of a domestic drama—realised with such an entire absence of obtrusive sentimentality or theatrical clap-trap. The young trooper, bronzed and pleasant looking, but no imaginary hero, stands in the cross-light of the cottage door, his face radiant with joyful anticipation, but hesitating to present himself too suddenly. In the full light of the foreground sits the aged mother, with the letter announcing her boy's return by her side, and evidently, though deaf to the opening of the door and unconscious of his presence, thinking but of him—with that constant but undemonstrative resigned affection that is so pathetic in age. Not less excellent than the telling of the story is the thoroughness and solidity of the painting.

Mr. Seymour Lucas has a picture (354), with many figures, of Charles I. receiving Major Pudsey and Toby Jordan as ambassadors from the town of Gloucester, after the King had summoned it to surrender. The situation is not unintelligently realised, and the execution is creditable, yet the work fails to deeply interest or impress. "Here we go round the Mulberry Bush" (9), by Mr. Yeames—children dancing in a ring round a Sebastopol gun in a seaport town—has some characteristic figures, but does not escape the tameness of the painter's recent works. More artistic is "Il dolce far niente" (208), by the same—a luxurious damsel lounging on a couch. Mr. G. D. Leslie's single contribution—children (mostly girls) playing the game of "Hen and Chickens" (295) on a trim sward, has the artist's unfailing charm of fidelity to actual youthful beauty and grace, and his favourite effect of soft, broadly-diffused light. A somewhat analogous charm of simplicity distinguishes Mr. Boughton's figure of "Hester Prynne" (from Hawthorne's "Scarlet Letter") on her errand of mercy knocking at a door during the plague; and his "Kitty: a portrait" (368). There is also by him a view of the town of Hoorn, one of the "dead cities" of the Zuyder Zee (374), which is peculiarly happy in its daylight effect. We would include in this article, with commendation of its spirited vigorous treatment, a picture (385) by W. Small, representing the rescue from the rigging of the survivors of a foundered ship.

A few other figure-pictures, together with the remaining portraits, landscapes, &c., must be reserved for future notice.

SKETCHES IN THE PARIS SALON.

Last week our remarks on the Salon related chiefly to figure-subjects. In the present notice we propose saying a few cursory words on the landscapes and cattle-pieces of the exhibition. These, like the figure-subjects, are apt to run into large canvases, and one often wonders where pictures of such portentous size can ultimately be housed. In the salon carré, for example, at the end of the vista to the right, there hangs a great picture some twelve feet by eight, representing a vast ploughed field which a great bull-necked hind is sowing. The action of the man is admirable; indeed, we doubt whether we ever saw the swinging gait of the sower better represented; but surely the artist, A. Perret, would have given him a better chance of long life had his dimensions been expressed in inches instead of feet.

This passion for large canvases naturally leads to roughness of execution. Foreground details are little attended to, general effect appearing to be the sole object of the artist. Vegetation and tree foliage are rather suggested than expressed; and the result is that, before every feature in the landscape can take its proper place, the spectator must stand ten or twelve feet off.

The Salon authorities, moreover, have awarded ample space to foreign artists, and some of the best landscapes belong to other than French artists. This wide welcome, indeed, to men of all nations is, as it has been now for many years, a very characteristic and pleasing feature of the exhibition. One of the best examples of this catholicity, and one peculiarly flattering to the art genius of England, occurs in the great covered garden-space devoted to sculpture. The supreme place of honour there is given to Lord Ronald Gower's magnificent figure monument glorifying, so far as any bronze or marble can, the memory of Shakspeare. The bust of the poet being crowned by Fame forms the apex of the composition, whilst against the four panels of a well-proportioned pedestal of Renaissance design are placed admirably studied life-sized figures of Hamlet, Lady Macbeth, Falstaff, and Prince Henry. The ultimate home of this, the most magnificent of all Shakspearean monuments, will, we have reason to think, be Stratford-upon-Avon.

Turning to the well-chosen landscape examples which fill our double page, we regret that our space will enable us to do little more than name them. They are all peculiarly representative, and most of them are masterpieces in respect of colour, effect, and aerial, as well as linear, perspective.

No. 261 represents a group of "Ducks" on the river shore to the right of the punt, though they are not very well defined in the woodcut. The artist is Léon Boudot. 118, a serene "Autumn Evening," by C. J. Beauverie; 31, "The Port of Collioure," at the foot of the Eastern Pyrenees, by A. Appian, a pupil of Corot's. These are all Frenchmen; but the author of the next, 1210, "An Autumn Evening," is Louis Japy, a Swiss. An avenue in "The Forest of Marly" (2030), by G. Rodrigues, another of Corot's pupils, shows a touch of the master's indefiniteness without his compensating tenderness. The trees in the original are intended for birches. "A Dieppe Fishing-Boat" (891), by M. A. Flameng, is a very luminous seapiece; but the slackness of sail is scarcely consistent with the amount of way on the vessel. Sheep "Returning to the Farm" (888), with sky and distance nicely given, has Léon Flahaut for its author. He studied under Fleury, as well as under Corot. Another of Fleury's pupils is C. Bernier, whose "Moorland of Kerrenic," a remarkably fine landscape, is numbered 149. The next picture, that of the cow standing in the water, near "The Sluice" (2306), is one of the most important and telling of its kind in the whole exhibition. The cow is nearly lifesize, and magnificently painted, and, in its relation to the landscape, nothing could be finer. Its author is Emile Van Marcke, a Frenchman by birth, if not by blood, and a worthy disciple of the famous Troyon.

Another work remarkable for its vraisemblance and nicely-balanced parts is "The Barge Towing" (1235), by Roger Jourdain. The dragging action of the women is wonderfully sympathetic in effect. Another large picture full of truth to nature, and which, like the last three named, commands special attention on the walls of the Salon, is the "Seaweed Gathering" (2335) on the coast of Finistere. The two bullocks as "wheelers" and the two lean horses as "leaders" are characteristic of that region. The painter is E. Vernier. The three small pictures between the last two, 1639, 244—both flower-pieces of most effective colouring—and the delicate little landscape, 689, are respectively by E. Minet, Madame Bonvalet-Barillot, pupil of her brother, Léon Barillot, who is represented by two capital pictures in the present Salon, and by Victor Deroche. Besides the two flower pictures just named, there are several others magnificent in composition and gorgeous in colour. In respect of these let the following names suffice:—E. Gilbaut, G. Jeannin, and Ernest Quost.

The two marine pictures, 1319, by Charles Lapostolet, and 2115, by L. P. Sauvaige, are noticeable on the walls of the Salon for the fine quality of their tone. The two tree-subjects, 259, E. L. Boudier, and 293, E. A. Breton, though scraggy-looking in the woodcuts and lacking rather in subject, have much art significance in the originals, especially as regards effect. This matter of effect is, as has already been implied, the dominating idea in the minds of all French landscapists. The numbers 2449, "Evening," by J. H. Zuber; "The Coming Storm," 125, by L. de Bellée; 1312, "The End of the Tempest," by E. Lansyer; and 1812, "Morning Effect," by P. E. Péraire, are all four admirable in light and shade and atmospheric action. The rocks in the original of 2116, by A. Sauzay, are well studied, though roughly rendered. No. 20 is by R. Allou, and the two cows and calf, 87, by L. Barillot.

Most of the works we have named are, comparatively speaking, by young men; and, if the reader will keep in mind that many of them are big canvases, and important, therefore, from their size as well as for their art-excellence—and all of them come under this latter category—he will be able with the aid of the woodcuts, to picture to himself, with something like satisfaction, the appearance of the originals on the walls of the Salon.

The paintings altogether occupy about thirty great rooms; and besides these there are two large apartments devoted exclusively to architecture, three to engravings, many of them after well-known pictures in former Salons, and some of them after pictures in the present exhibition; and along with these are hung water-colours, pastels, enamels, porcelain paintings, and works in black and white. A general collection in all these departments of art, including miniatures, adorns nearly the entire wall space of the galleries which run round the inclosed garden devoted to Sculpture. When our readers are told that the ends of this immense parallelogram are about eighty paces each in length, and about 260 paces on each of the long sides, they will readily understand why we insist on finding in the Paris Salon the greatest exposition of modern art in Europe.

J. F. R.

ART NOTES.

The bust of the late Sir Rowland Hill, by Mr. Keyworth, has been placed in Westminster Abbey.

The foundation-stone of the Technical College, Finsbury, in connection with the City and Guilds of London Institute, was laid by Prince Leopold on Tuesday.

Mr. Briton Riviere and Mr. Walter William Ouless, painters, have been elected Royal Academicians, and Mr. Thomas Oldham Barlow a Royal Academician Engraver.

The Court of Common Council have resolved that a bust of Lord Beaconsfield be executed in marble, in lasting memory of the deceased statesman, at an expense not exceeding £250.

For the best marine picture at their last exhibition the Fine-Arts Commissioners at Sydney have awarded a medal and a certificate to Mr. Edward Hayes, R.H.A. The picture has also been bought for their National Gallery.

Prince Leopold on Tuesday laid the foundation-stone of the projected Technical College at Finsbury, a building which is intended to form one of the principal centres of the important work now carried on by the City and Guilds of London Institute. A large company assembled.

At the Hanover Gallery is being exhibited the large picture for the ante-room of the House of Lords, which Mr. Herbert has had in hand so many years, together with a collection of other works, painted by him from an early period of his lengthened career down to the present time. A review of the collection must, however, be deferred till next week.

A summer exhibition in connection with the York Fine-Art Institution at York was opened on the 5th inst. An important feature of the exhibition is a large collection of Indian works of art and articles of virtù belonging to the Prince of Wales, which were brought by him from India. They were sent from Aberdeen, and occupy the central hall and the north and south galleries of the exhibition.

Yesterday week a meeting of the committee for promoting the special loan exhibition of Spanish and Portuguese Ornamental Art was held at the South Kensington Museum—Prince Leopold presided. Promises were reported of important contributions on loan from the Royal and national collections in Spain and Portugal, and from numerous private collections in those countries, in France, and in England.

The portrait of the late Lord Beaconsfield published in our number for April 23 was from a photograph by Messrs. Downey, of Ebury-street, Pimlico, and Newcastle-on-Tyne. Messrs. Downey, who are renowned all the world over, have had the privilege of photographing all the most celebrated persons of the time, from the Queen downwards. In their varied and extensive collection there is nothing finer than the portrait of the late lamented Earl of Beaconsfield.

The Queen has signified her pleasure that a reduced copy shall be made and published of the bust of Lord Beaconsfield which was executed from the life by Count Gleichen last year expressly for her Majesty. The replica of this bust made by her Majesty's permission for the Beaconsfield Club is on exhibition in the Grosvenor Gallery.—The Committee of the Junior Carlton Club have unanimously approved of a bust of Lord Beaconsfield by Mr. Belt, and have commissioned him to execute it in marble for the Club.

A portrait, lifesize, fully half-length, of Mr. Tennyson, by Mr. Millais, has been added to the exhibition of the painter's works at the Fine-Art Society's rooms in Bond-street. The Laureate stands full-front to the spectator in the cloak well-known to his friends, and holding in one hand the no less familiar black felt sombrero. So marvellously real is the likeness, so brilliant the lighting of the head, so penetrative the eyes, as they seem to literally fascinate us, that the first sight of the picture is positively startling, and it is some time before it occurs to us to inquire by what magic of art so vivid an embodiment of a noble physiognomy has been attained. But as regards the painting itself, it is worthy of the artist, and has never been surpassed by him. More need not be said.

MAGAZINES FOR MAY.

SECOND NOTICE.

Fraser is mainly redeemed from the imputation of heaviness by the contributions of two ladies. Mrs. Brassey's description of the behaviour of "The Sunbeam" in a storm is as bright a piece of writing as anything in her account of the terrestrial circumnavigation of that world-renowned vessel. Miss Bertha Thomas's "Autobiography of an Agnostic" is an irresistibly amusing reductio ad absurdum of the postulates of dogmatic scepticism by showing the consequences of their application to the actual affairs of life. Mr. W. Simpson's investigation of the origin of the Prince of Wales's Feathers indicates how deeply the most familiar emblems are rooted in antiquity. The best of the other papers are the Oxford tutor's picture of the ways of the young Oxonians of the present academic generation; and Mr. Noble's reminiscences of a coterie of Lancashire poets.

We almost lose sight of the heroine of Blackwood's "Private Secretary" in the present instalment, and the special charm of the story disappears with her, although the members of the Scallan household are all types of character very felicitously caught and presented. "A French Speculation" is also a study of character very true to life. The Duchess of Newcastle is the subject of this month's chapter of the autobiographical series. A paper on Mr. Gladstone's recent unostentatious Budget suggests that the Premier is only reculant pour mieux sauter, and that his next bound will carry him a long way. There are also an interesting study on the decline of the sword into a mere symbol, and a very graceful and complimentary copy of verses to the American sculptor Story.

In the Gentleman's Magazine Mr. Justin M'Carthy's "Comet of a Season" reaches the crisis which has for some time been preparing. The investigation, "What became of Cromwell?" affords a curious instance of the difficulty of obtaining absolutely conclusive evidence in an historical inquiry. "Sir Oliver Surface" is a biography of the comedian Yates. The most interesting contribution to Temple Bar, after the serial tales, is a very fair account of Byron's expedition to Greece. Belgravia has a story in which "Ouida" appears in the unwonted character of a moral teacher in a child's tale. Very wholesome her moral is, and it is enforced with all her accustomed power. Mr. Mallock, on the other hand, who has set up as a moral teacher, continues to administer, in his "Romance of the Nineteenth Century," the same unwholesome mixture of affected religion and unmanly passion. "Rambles about Eton" and "The Epicure in Jamaica" are amusing reading. There is nothing of the slightest interest in Time, with the exception of "Sophy;" but "Sophy" counts for more than half a dozen ordinary stories. Mrs. Riddell's "Senior Partner" is, in like manner, the mainstay of London Society. The most interesting contribution to the Theatre is Mr. Joseph Hatton's account of American actors and audiences.

Our Times, a new candidate for public support, is distinguished by the unusual number and variety, and by consequence the comparative brevity, of its contributions. Among the best are Mr. R. Black's tale, "The Boy Bishop," and a very effective piece of diablerie entitled "Mr. Morton's Butler." Many of the other papers deal with subjects of practical philanthropy or politics, and all such are distinguished by an honourable sincerity and earnestness.

From Messrs. Cassell, Petter, and Galpin we have received an unusually excellent number of their Magazine of Art (noticed in a previous issue), first part of Milton's Paradise Lost, illustrated by Doré; first part of Household Guide, Picturesque America, British Ballads, Family Magazine, Old and New London, Old and New Edinburgh, Technical Educator, Science for All, Familiar Wild Flowers, Cookery, Book of the Dog, and Royal Shakspere.

The Fashion Books include Le Follet, World of Fashion, Ladies' Gazette of Fashion, Myra's Journal, Myra's Mid-Monthly, Weldon's Ladies' Journal, and Household Journal.

Among the other magazines and serial publications received are the Antiquary, Home, North American Review, Pathways of Palestine, Sporting Mirror, Journal of Forestry, Colburn's New Monthly, Good Words, Leisure Hour, Welcome, Month and Catholic Review, Universal Instructor, Tinsley's, St. James's, Churchman, Modern Thought, Burlington, Portfolio, Men of Mark, St. James's, Churchman's Shilling Magazine, Science Gossip, Army and Navy Magazine, Art Journal; and Monthly Parts of House and Home, All the Year Round, Social Notes, Sunday at Home, Gardeners' Magazine, Gardening Illustrated, Day of Rest, Boy's Own Paper, Girl's Own Paper, Young England, and Union Jack.

An old friend with a new and winsome face has come to life. Household Words, a weekly serial, established by Charles Dickens, has, after an interval of about a quarter of a century, been revived by his son.

Besides articles of a more strictly professional character, the Church Quarterly is distinguished by a singularly thoughtful and appreciative essay on George Eliot—one of the most satisfactory, because one of the most discriminating, tributes that her genius has received since her death. There are also able articles on The Huguenots, Plant Life, the Letters of Pope Gregory I., and recent changes at Oxford regarded from an Anglican point of view.

The contents of the Modern Review are in general interesting, but the only one of special note is a virulent diatribe against the medical profession, in inspiring which hostility to vaccination seems to have borne a part.

Mr. Edward Walford, M.A., with the help of Mr. George Gilbert Scott, and of others who aided him in founding the Antiquary, has revived the Sacristy, a quarterly review of sacred archæology, ecclesiastical art, literature, and antiquities; the first fruits of his resuscitating labours being a pleasant medley of antiquarian lore.

We learn that the last section of the granite for the Eddystone Lighthouse has been fitted and dispatched from the De Lank Granite Quarries, near Bodmin, and that it is expected that the tower will be completely set on the rock before a month is over, which is six months before the contract time.

THE COURT.

During the Queen's sojourn at Buckingham Palace last week her Majesty entertained at dinner the Princess of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh, the Grand Duke and Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, Prince Leopold, the Duke of Cambridge, the Duchess of Teck, the Duchess Dowager of Athole, the Marchioness Dowager of Ely, Earl and Countess Spencer, Earl Sydney, Viscount Bridport, Lord and Lady John Manners, Lady Harriet Grimston, Lady Frances Baillie, Miss Knollys, and the Dean of Westminster. The Princess of Wales, the Duchess of Connaught, Princess Louise of Lorne, and Princesses Louise, Victoria, and Maud of Wales lunched with her Majesty. Princess Christian was on a visit to the Queen.

Her Majesty and Princess Beatrice visited Princess Louise of Lorne at Kensington Palace and the Duchess of Cambridge at St. James's Palace. Prince Alfred and the Princesses of Edinburgh came to see the Queen.

Sir Nathaniel de Rothschild and Sir Philip Rose were received by her Majesty. Lord Rowton accompanied them. Prince Leopold was with the Queen. The portrait of the late Earl of Beaconsfield, painted by Mr. J. E. Millais, was submitted to her Majesty's inspection. Earl Granville had an audience of the Queen. Mr. Gladstone was to have had an audience of her Majesty, but was prevented by indisposition. Her Majesty inspected several of Mr. Belt's works at Buckingham Palace.

Princess Beatrice visited the Exhibition of the Society of Painters in Water Colours; and the French Gallery, Pall-mall; also the Summer Exhibition at the Grosvenor Gallery; and the Soho Bazaar. Her Royal Highness also paid visits to the Duchess of Edinburgh and the Princess of Wales. The Princess and Prince Leopold went to the Royal Italian Opera, Covent-garden, and to the Strand Theatre.

The Queen and Princess Beatrice left town for Windsor Castle at five p.m. yesterday week, being escorted from Buckingham Palace to Paddington by a detachment of Life Guards. Prince Leopold returned to Claremont. Mr. Coningsby Disraeli, nephew of the late Earl of Beaconsfield, was presented to her Majesty by Lord Rowton after her arrival at the castle.

Mr. Sydney Locock was presented to the Queen on Saturday, and kissed hands on his appointment as Minister at Belgrade. The Right Hon. Hugh C. E. Childers dined with her Majesty.

Divine service was performed on Sunday in the private chapel of the castle by the Rev. Henry Twells, Rector of Waltham, Leicestershire, the Queen and Princess Beatrice being present. Her Majesty and the Princess drove out in the afternoon; and the Hon. Lady Biddulph joined the Royal dinner circle.

On Monday Princesses Victoria and Louise of Schleswig-Holstein lunched with the Queen; and the Dean of Windsor and the Hon. Mrs. Wellesley and Colonel Sir Howard Elphinstone dined with her Majesty.

The Queen inspected the Royal vault beneath the Albert Memorial Chapel on Tuesday. The Royal dinner party included Sir Frederick and Lady Roberts, Lord and Lady Salisbury, Lord Carlingford, and the United States Minister.

On Wednesday her Majesty, with Princess Beatrice, inspected the Aldershott troops.

The Queen has walked and driven out, as usual, every day.

The appointments are gazetted of Captain Arthur John Bigge, Royal Artillery, Assistant Keeper of Privy Purse and Assistant Private Secretary to her Majesty, to be Equerry in Ordinary, in the room of Lieutenant-General the Hon. Arthur Hardinge, who has resigned; and Lieutenant-General the Hon. Arthur Hardinge, Equerry in Ordinary to her Majesty, to be an extra Equerry; also Lieutenant-Colonel Lord Edward William Pelham-Clinton to be one of the Grooms in Waiting in Ordinary to her Majesty, in the room of Captain Arthur John Bigge.

Lady Churchill has succeeded the Duchess Dowager of Athole as Lady in Waiting; and Lord Methuen and Lieutenant-Colonel the Hon. W. Carington have succeeded Lord Ribblesdale and Colonel the Hon. A. Liddell as Lord and Groom in Waiting to the Queen.

COURT ENTERTAINMENTS.

Her Majesty's Drawingroom on Thursday week was attended by the Prince and Princess of Wales, the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein, Princess Beatrice, the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, Prince Leopold, and the Duke of Cambridge. The Nawab Nazim of Bengal, accompanied by his son, Prince Asman Kudr Asad Ali Mirza, was presented to the Queen, to take leave on his return to the East. The general presentations numbered nearly 300.

The Queen wore a dress and train of black silk trimmed with jet embroidery and crape, and a black tulle veil, surmounted by a diadem of diamonds. Her Majesty also wore a necklace, brooch, and earrings of diamonds, the ribbon and star of the Order of the Garter, the orders of Victoria and Albert, the Crown of India, Louise of Prussia, St. Catherine of Russia, Marie Louise of Spain, St. Isabelle of Portugal, and the Saxe-Coburg and Gotha family order.

The Princess of Wales wore a dress of black poult de soie veiled in tulle and studded with diamonds, corsage to correspond, train of black velvet and satin; head-dress, a tiara of diamonds, feathers, and veil; ornament, diamonds; orders, Victoria and Albert, the Crown of India, St. Catherine of Russia, and the Danish family order.

Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein wore a train and corsage of rich white satin duchesse over a petticoat of the same, handsomely trimmed with pearl embroidery and ostrich feathers; head-dress, a diadem of diamonds, feathers, and veil; ornaments, diamonds; orders, the Victoria and Albert, the Crown of India, St. Catherine of Russia, the Saxe-Coburg and Gotha family order, the Prussian order for Care of the Sick and Wounded, and the Louise Prussian order.

Princess Beatrice wore a dress and train of Oriental silk, embroidered with gold; head-dress, feathers, veil, and a tiara of Oriental rubies, with necklace, brooch, and earrings to correspond; orders, Victoria and Albert, the Crown of India, the Portuguese Order, and the Saxe-Coburg and Gotha family order.

The Duchess of Connaught wore a pink satin skirt trimmed with tulle and bouquets of roses and lilacs, and a train of brocaded satin trimmed with tulle and butterflies; head-dress, a tiara of diamonds, diamond stars, veil, and plume; ornaments, diamonds; orders, Victoria and Albert, the Imperial Order of India, the Louise Order of Prussia, the Saxe-Coburg and Gotha family order, and the medal in commemoration of the Golden Wedding of the Emperor and Empress of Germany.

Her Majesty's first State Concert is fixed for the 18th inst., at Buckingham Palace. The Prince of Wales will hold a Levée on the 23rd inst., at St. James's Palace; and the first State Ball takes place on the 25th inst. The Queen's birthday will be celebrated on the 28th inst.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince of Wales reached Munich yesterday week, and arrived at Vienna at half-past seven last Saturday morning. His Royal Highness was received at the railway station by the Emperor, the Archduke Joseph, the Dukes Augustus, Philip, and Ferdinand of Coburg-Gotha, Sir G. H. Elliot, the British Ambassador, and Lord Torrington. After an exchange of cordial salutations, the Prince drove with the Emperor to the palace. His Royal Highness has left Vienna for Pesth.

The Prince has been elected a trustee of the British Museum; and at a late Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons of England, held at Freemasons' Hall, his Royal Highness was declared as installed as First Principal of the Order.

The Princess has remained at Marlborough House during the Prince's absence in Austria. On Tuesday her Royal Highness, with Princesses Louise, Victoria, and Maud of Wales, was present at the christening of Lord and Lady Carrington's infant daughter at the Chapel Royal, Whitehall. The Princess stood sponsor for the infant, which was named Alexandra. The Rev. F. Garden and the Rev. Canon Luckock performed the baptismal rites.

The Prince and Princess will honour the Treasurer of St. Bartholomew's Hospital by their presence at a conversazione to be given on the 27th inst.

The annual dinner of the officers of the 10th Hussars is appointed to take place at Willis's Rooms on June 2, when the Prince, as Colonel of the Regiment, will preside.

The visit of his Royal Highness to Great Yarmouth for the purpose of inspecting the Norfolk Artillery Militia, of which corps the Prince is hon. Colonel, will be made in June. The inspection will take place on the 9th of the month.

The Prince will open next month the new infirmary for Marylebone erected by the guardians at Notting-hill.

The Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh, accompanied by Prince Alfred and Princess Victoria of Edinburgh, have given Messrs. Downey, in Ebury-street, sittings for photographs. The Duke and Duchess, with their children, have taken up their residence at Eastwell Park. The Duke has appointed Captain Francis Harwood Poore, Royal Marine Artillery, to be Equerry in Waiting to his Royal Highness.

The Duke and Duchess of Connaught have been entertaining the German Ambassador and Countess Marie Münster at Bagshot Park. The Duke will support Prince Leopold at the festival dinner of University College Hospital, to be held at Willis's Rooms on the 20th inst. The Duchess has headed the list of patronesses for a grand military bazaar and fête to be held on July 6 and 7 in the gardens of the Royal Horticultural Society, in furtherance of the efforts being made by the Institution of Army Coffee Taverns.

Princess Louise of Lorne, accompanied by Baroness Burdett-Coutts, visited the Richmond Industrial and Fine-Art Loan Exhibition the day before it closed. An amateur performance for the benefit of the Victoria Hospital for Children, Queen's-road, Chelsea, was given on Monday night at Cromwell House, South Kensington, under the personal patronage of Princess Louise.

On Tuesday Prince Leopold laid the foundation-stone of the projected Technical College at Finsbury.

The health of the King of Sweden and Norway has improved since his arrival at Bournemouth with the Queen. On Monday their Majesties drove to Wimborne and visited the Minster. A visit has also been paid to Christchurch Priory, as well as to other places of interest in the neighbourhood. Prince Charles of Sweden arrived at Bournemouth on Tuesday, and the Crown Prince, the betrothed of the Princess Victoria of Baden, will arrive in a few days.

The Earl and Countess of Lonsdale's infant daughter was baptized at St. Paul's Church, Knightsbridge, on Monday. The sponsors were the Marchioness of Hamilton and Lady Augusta Fane, Captain the Hon. Oliver Montagu and the Hon. Michael Herbert, who was represented by his brother, the Hon. Sidney Herbert, M.P. The child was baptised in the name of Gladys Mary Juliet. At the same time the infant daughter of Mr. Cecil and Lady Augusta Fane was christened. The Earl and Countess of Lonsdale being present.

The Earl of Northbrook will have evening parties on the 19th and the 26th inst., at his official residence at the Admiralty.

FASHIONABLE MARRIAGES.

The Hon. John Montagu Stopford, 52nd Light Infantry, son of the late Earl of Courtown, and Miss Winifred Reilly, youngest daughter of the late Mr. Reilly and the Hon. Mrs. Reilly, were married on the 5th inst., at the parish church, Thames Ditton, Surrey. The Hon. and Rev. Frank Sugden, uncle of the bride, officiated, assisted by the Rev. E. Rogers, Vicar of the parish.

